JAPANESE CRUISER MIYAKO BLOWN UP BY RUSSIAN MINE AT KERR BAY, NEAR DALNY

Second Vessel Lost By Japs While Clearing Out Russian Mines.

Cruiser Sank In Few Minutes--- Two Killed, Twenty Wounded.

Combined Land and Sea Attack Will Soon Be Made on Port Arthur.

Tokio, May 16.—A Japanese dispatch boat, the steel cruiser Miyako, was destroyed in Kerr bay by striking a submerged mine. Eight casualties are reported.

The Miyako was lost while assisting in teh operations of clearing the Russian mines from Kerr bay, northeast of Talien Wan bay, on which Port Dalny is situated. Admiral Kataoka, commander of the third squadron, returned there Sunday with a detachment of his squadron, protecting two flotillas of torpedo boats, which had been detailed to complete sweeping the harbor by the removal of mines. Five mines were discovered and exploded, and the work was being suspended for the day when the Miyado struck an undiscovered mine, which exploded with tremendous force under the stern, on the port side, and inflicted immense damage on the hull. The Miyako sank in twenty-two minutes. Two sailors were killed and twenty-two men were wounded. The rest of the crew were rescued.

Admiral Kataoka reports that the Russians withdrew from Robinson point, northeast of Kerr bay, which adjoins Talien Wan bay, May 12, but they erected a temporary fort on a height northeast of Taku mountain, where they mounted six guns and constructed protecting trenches. The vessels of Admiral Kataoka's squadron shelled the Russians throughout Sunday but the latter stubbornly maintained their position.

The Japanese flotillas, while sweeping the bay, were exposed to the Russian fire, but continued their work until injured.

When the torpedo boat, No. 48, was destroyed, May 12, in Kerr bay, while removing Russian mines, seven men were killed and seven were wounded. The No. 48 was the first warship lost by Japan during the war with Russia.

The Miyako was one of the warships which took part in the operations at Kerr bay, Talien Wan bay, and Blackney (or Deep bay), the day No. 48 was destroyed. The Miyako was a steel cruiser of 1800 tons displacement and 6130 indicated horsepower, completed in 1901 and having an estimated speed of 20 knots. She was 314¾ feet long, had 36 feet beam and drew 12¾ feet of water. Her armament consisted of two 4.7-inch quick firing guns and ten 1.8-inch guns and four torpedo tubes.

Che Foo, May 16.—A combined land and sea attack on Port Arthur is expected to take place between May 20 and May 23.

The Japanese hope to occupy Port Dalny within a few days. Dalny is not fortified, the only fort in the vicinity being one midway between Talien Wan and Kin Chou. After the destruction of the submarine mines at Talien Wan the Japanese intend to land additional troops there and commence an attack on Port Arthur.

A Japanese officer informed the correspondent of the Associated Press that the Japanese are ready to lose two hundred thousand men in the attack. This he did not consider to be a large number in view of the great percentage of sick and wounded who will be able to retake the filed as a result of modern hospital equipment.

Well informed Chinese say that the entrance to Port Arthur is not blocked.

Newchwang, May 16.—There is an unconfirmed native rumor here that heavy fighting took place in the direction of Liao Yang yesterday. The report of big guns were faintly heard east of Newchwang at 5 o'clock this morning. The Russo-Chinese bank has been moved to the French consulate.

The Russians now admit that the railroad is practically closed to Port Arthur. Nothing has been heard from there by wire for three days and six days' mail consigned to points south of Hsiu Yen was returned this afternoon. The furniture of the administration buildings here has been taken away. The Russians say that Gen. Linevitch, with a large army is moving from Vladivostok towards Korea.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—The interruption of communication with Port Arthur prevents the admiralty investigating the announcement from Liao Yang of the daring torpedoing of a Japanese armored cruiser off Port Dalny. As soon as communication is re-established the admiralty expects the commander of the fortress to send full details.

ATTACK BY CHINESE

Was Led By the Governor of Foo Chow.

Liao Yang, May 16.—Further details of the attack made May 14 by Chinese soldiers upon the railway coal mines occupied by the Russian administrative force near Port Adams show that the troops were the body guard of the governor of Foo Chow, who led the attack in person and was attended by fifteen Chinese officials. The governor ordered the arest and the beheading of the Chinese officials. The Russians were stripped and driven off naked, their property looted and 20,000 tons of coal was dertoyed. A detachment of Japanese troops had passed the coal mines the previous day but did not touch them, regarding them as private property.

Another conflict between Cossacks and Chinese bandits has occurred in the village of Chantaidzy. The bandits, it is stated, were led by four Japanese troopers. The Cossacks, numbering thirty-three, lost two killed and succeeded in killing twenty-five of the bandits, the remainder of whom escaped. The bandits used dum-dum bullets.

Lieut. Sorrokin, who was wounded in the eye in the fight at Kiu Lien Cheng, owes his life to the mercy of a Japanese soldier. When the lieutenant fell after receiving his wound, a comrade stopped to rescue him. Two Japanese soldiers one of whom carried a Red Cross flag and the other a rifle, came up. The rifleman leveled his weapon and ordered Sorokin to remain prone upon the ground and his comrade to leave. Then the Japanese with the Red Cross flag carefully washed and dressed Sorrokin's wound and gave him a drink and retired. Sorrokin arrived here safely.

LACK CONFIRMATION.

London Has Not Heard of Siu Yen Battles.

London, May 16.—No confirmation has reached London of the rumors of a great battle at Siu Yen and no attention whatever is paid to the wild reports of the fall of Port Arthur. In Japanese quarters here confidence is expressed that a great assault upon that fortress will be attempted before the end of May.

The correspondent of the Daily News, at Che Foo says that he left Port Arthur last Tuesday, when the channel had been cleared, two cruisers having steamed outside. On May 7, he adds, the garrison there numbered 15,000 men and was provisioned for nine months.

According to a Central News dispatch from St. Petersburg, mail advices from Port Arthur clearly show that the Russian cruiser Boyarin, which was destroyed Feb. 13, at Port Arthur, struck a mine and sank while assisting in the rescue of the crew of the sinking torpedo transport Yenisei.

The Morning Post's Shanghai correspondent, under date of May 14, says it is reported that ten British warships lef Hong Kong yesterday for the Yang Tse.

The Times correspondent on board the Kalmum, the dispatch boat of that paper, explains that his long silence is due to his having been warned not to proceed north of the Che Foo-Chemulpo line until further notice. He attributes the fiasco on the Yalu to Russia's sudden change of plan, the decision to hold the river and the frenzied efforts then made, at the eleventh hour to improve the defective positions, with the result that the Japanese caught the Russians in a state of transition. The correspondent expresses the opinion that the main interest in the near future will center around Port Arthur.

RUSSIANS RESISTED

Operations of the Japs at Kerr Bay.

Washington, May 16.—The Japanese legation has received the following cablegram from Tokio: "Admiral Kataoki reports that on May 14 our torpedo boat flotilla continued sea-sweeping operations under cover of the fleet. The enemy constructed temporary batteries on the promontory at Kerr bay, Talien Wan, mounting six field guns, beside a hastily constructed fort and with one company of sodiers stubbornly resisted our attack. Our torpedo flotilla, defying the enemy's fire, carried out the operations and destroyed five mines laid by the enemy. Unfortunately one of the mines exploded and sunk our cruiser Miyako. In this accident six men were killed, besides the two who were wounded during the fight."

TORPEDOED A CRUISER.

Russians Win Distinct Success In Tolienwan Bay.

Liao Yang, Saturday, May 14.—(Delayed in Transmission.)—The Russian fleet scored its first distinct naval success of the war by torpedoing and crippling, if not sinking, of an armored cruiser in Talienwan bay.

The Russian attack was carefully planned on May 10, while the Japanese squadron was concentrated outside Dalny, devoting its whole attention to Talienwan bay, and was carried out the same night.

The attacking force was not a regular torpedo boat, but was only a small naphtha launch, in command of a young naval officer, who had with him three jackies. The launch mounted a small machi gun and carried three torpedoes.

When darkness fell the launch crept out of Port Arthur, hugging the shore, with no lights aboard and no glow from the engines to betray her presence. It was late when she gained the outer line of the Japanese squadron. Slipping through the torpedo boat pickets, and selecting the nearest warship, a big armored cruiser, she told toward her and succeeded in exploding against her side a single torpedo. A defeaning roar followed the explosion, which echoed far ashore. Immediately flames enveloped the cruiser, which evidently was badly crippled.

The crew of the cruiser was seen to be fighting the fire, which they at last succeeded in extinguishing. A sister ship took the damaged vessel in tow and disappeared to the southeast.

The launch escaped the hot fire directed against her by the Japanese ships, but being unable to return to Port Arthur, or to get into Dalny, she was bached not far from Dalny.

Only a few of the higher officers were aware of the plan, the success of which depended upon secrecy. The achievement raised the spirits of the Russians afloat and ashore, and the young naval officer who was the hero of the exploit was feted and recommended for the cross of St. George.

Two thousand Japanese have reoccupied the road to San Chilipu, again cutting off Port Arthur. A strong force is advancing against Polandien.

THE THREE DEFENDANTS IN FAMOUS GILLESPIE MURDER CASE.

FEELING IS INTENSE

Rising Sun Community Greatly Aroused Over Gillespie Case.

Rumors That Defense Has New and Valuable Witness.

Rising Sun, Ind., May 16.—The trial of the defendants charged with the murder of Elizabeth Gillespie, continues to attract crowds to the courthouse and to keep up an intense feeling in the community. Today, it is rumored that the defense has found a new and valuable witness in Ellsworth McQuithy, of Warsaw, Ky., who will testify that on the night of the murder he saw a man running from the vicinity of the murder in the opposite direction from that which James Gillespie must have taken, according to the theory of the prosecution. Juror Spaulding, whose brother is dying at Forestville, Ohio, asked for leave to go to his brother's bedside, but was refused.

SOCIETY SHOCKED.

New York, May 16.—Georgiana, dowager countess of Ravensworth, has startled society by marrying her coachman, James Wadsworth, says a dispatch from London to the American. The bride is nearly sixty years of age, a grande dame, a leader of one of the most exclusive sets and regarded as one of the staunchest defenders of "position." She is a daughter of the Right Hon. Richard Denman, and married in 1872 Maj. Oswin C. Baker-Cresswell, and, secondly, in 1892, the earl of Ravensworth, who died in 1903, leaving the widow an estate amounting to nearly $1,000,000. Little is known of the fortunate coachman. He is the son of a real estate dealer, handsome, and only 26 years of age.

BLOODY WATER

Led to the Discovery of Murder In Dakotas.

St. Paul, May 16.—A special to the Dispatch from Aberdeen, S. D., says: Bloody water coming up through a pump on the farm of Andrew McFarland, seven miles from Groton, led to the discovery of the body of DeWitt C. Bilby. Three bullet holes in the back of the man's head indicated plainly that he had been murdered. Bilby made his home with McFarland and before the murder had about $200 on his person. A farm hand working for McFarland has disappeared and indications point to him as the murderer. Posses are searching for him.

GEN. SANBORN PASSES AWAY

Well Known Resident of St. Paul Dies of Old Age.

He Had Been Identified With Minnesota Since 1854.

St. Paul, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Gen. John B. Sanborn, aged 78, died at his home here at 8 o'clock this morning. Death was due to old age and a complication of ailments that prostrated Gen. Sanborn two weeks ago.

Gen. Sanborn was born in Epsom, N. H., in 1826. As a young lawyer he came to St. Paul in 1854. He was a member of the lower house in 1859, and a state senator subsequently.

As adjutant general and quartermaster general of Minnesota he organized and sent to the field five regiments of infantry, a battalion of cavalry, and two batteries of artillery in 1861, and in the spring of 1862 left the state as colonel of the Fourth Minnesota volunteers, remaining in active service in the field to the close of the war. At luka, his first battle, he commanded the leading brigade and was commended in the official report. About 600 of his men, out of 2000, were killed and wounded in little more than an hour. For this he was appointed brigadier general of volunteers, but the senate allowed this appointment to lapse, and after the Vicksburg campaign, on the recommendation of Gen. McPherson and Gen. Grant, he was again commissioned to date from Aug. 4, 1863. This appointment was confirmed by the senate. He participated in the battles of Corinth, Port Gibson, Raymond, Jackson and Champion Hills, and in the assault and siege of Vicksburg. He was designated to lead the advance into the town after the surrender, and superintended the paroling of the prisoners of war and passing them beyond the lines. This honor was conferred on account of his gallant conduct and that of his command, especially at the battle of Jackson. After October he commanded the district of Southwest Missouri, and a brigade and division of cavalry in the field in October and November, 1864, and fought the actions of Jefferson City, Booneville, Independence, Big Blue, Little Blue, Osage, Marias des-Cygnes, and Newtonia. He was never defeated, and never failed of complete success except in the assault of May 22 at Vicksburg. He conducted a campaign against the Indians of the Southwest in the summer and autumn of 1865, opened all the lines of communication to the territory of Colorado and New Mexico, and terminated all the hostilities with the Comanche, Kiowa, Cheyenne, Arapahoe and Apaches of the Upper Arkansas, by the treaties that he concluded at the mouth of the Little Arkansas in October, 1865. After this, in the winter of of 1865-6, under the direction of President Johnson, he adjusted amicably the difficulties growing out of the war between the Cherokees, Choctaws, Chickasaws, Creeks and Seminoles and their slaves, and declared the slaves of these tribes free. In 1867 Gen. Sanborn was designated by congress as one of an Indian peace commission, and with the other commissioners negotiated several treaties which have remained in force and, in connection with the report of the commission, have had a great influence in the amelioration of the condition of the Indians.

Deceased was formerly president of the chamber of commerce, and was elected president of the State Historical society a year ago.

Gen. Sanborn was an uncle of Judge Walter B. Sanborn of the United States circuit court of appeals.

SHOT HIS SWEETHEART.

Peoria, Ill., May 16.—While her father, Ben. D. Howells and family were away from their home near Yates City, yesterday, Nora, the 17-year-old daughter, went riding with William Louden, who had been forbidden the house. He urged her to marry him and when she refused fatally shot her through the abdomen. The girl claimed the shooting was accidental, until informed there was no hope of recovery, when she weakened and told the straight story. Louden made no effort to escape, and was taken to the Knox county jail at Galesburg for safe keeping this morning.

IN POSITIVE TERMS

China Assures Russia It Will Not Violate Neutrality.

Will Preserve Tranquility Throughout Entire Empire.

St. Petersburg, May 16.—In order to allay Russian apprehension as to the attitude of China, the Chinese minister here has given Foreign Minister Lamsdorf fresh assurances of the purpose of his government not to violate its neutrality and to preserve tranquility throughout the empire. These assurances, which are based on dispatches received from the Chinese foreign office and Viceroy Yuan Shi Kai, the commander-in-chief of the Chinese forces, set forth in the most positive terms that there is absolutely no ground to believe that China will depart from her proclaimed attitude.

"While there has not been the slightest fear that the peace of the empire would be disturbed or that my government would intervene in the war," said the Chinese minister to the correspondent of the Associated Press, "it was still deemed wise to communicate to Pekin and Viceroy Yuan Shi Kai the sensational rumors circulating in Europe.

"The Chinese foreign office telegrahically reiterated that China is determined to continue the strictest neutrality, giving support neither to Russia or Japan.

Viceroy Yuan Shi Kai telegraphed that the rumors of impending uprisings were without foundation and assured me that a repetition of the Boxer revolt of 1900 was impossible.

The viceroy is a strong man, who can be depended upon to preserve order. The mass of the army, consisting of 10,000 men, is distributed in small detachments throughout the vast territory which indubitably is under Chinese control. Its duty is to maintain peace and see that neutral territory is not violated by either belligerent."

The minister was not advised of the attack of the governor of Foo Chow, on the coal mines at Port Adams. He things the circumstances are misunderstood and that it will be found that there was no intention to commit an act of hostility against Russia. Nor was the minister informed of the reported Chinese attacks on Russian troops in Manchuria, for which, even if they occurred, China could not be held responsible, as the region is comprised in the theater of war, which is specifically exempted from Chinese jurisdiction.

FRANCE STARTLED BY THE DISCOVERY OF PLANS OF ITS FORTIFICATIONS IN LONDON

Treasonable Affair Which May Exceed Famous Dreyfus Case.

Deserted Employe of Two Daring Spies Revealed the Secret.

Nearly One Hundred Plans of War Works at Toulon Were Found.

Paris, May 16.—The Matin's London correspondent having obtained nearly a hundred authetnic plans of the fortifications at Toulon, besides numerous other compromising documents, that paper this morning begins the publication of the history of a treason affair which seems likely to exceed in importance the offenses with which Capt. Dreyfus was charged. On April 21 the correspondent received a letter written in a queer semi-French, semi-Italian jargon, and signed "Fragola, Pietro," telling him that the writer, who was employed at a hotel had been acting as a guide to two persons who had come to London to sell a large parcel of documents of the highest importance concerning French naval defenses. The letter stated that the men had gone to Brussels, leaving the writer penniless. He, therefore, wanted to negotiate for the transfer of certain documents, but was unwilling to treat direct with the French government, preferring to deal with the Matin or some other newspaper.

The correspondent thought the letter was probably a begging trick, but replied, addressing his answer to the postoffice to be called for and making an appointment, which Fragola duly kept. The man's desperate state of hunger evidenced his sincerity. He told the following story:

He was formerly, he said, employed at the war ministry in Rome, but became compromised in a case of espionage and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment. Subsequently he came to London, living from hand to mouth. Secondly, he had acted as guide and secretary to two men of Italian origin, with one of whom—a naturalized French citizen—he had formerly been acquainted at the war ministry in Rome. Both of these men, Fragola said, worked for foreign governments and had sometimes sold important secrets to Germany at high prices. The Italian's name was Cesare Golco, and that of the naturalized Frenchman, Jeremie Mesqui. The latter had long been a contractor on public works at Toulon. They had gone to Brussels five days ago, leaving him entirely without means of living. He found after their departure that Golco had left documents behind him and these he wanted to sell. Fragola thereupon produced eighty-five plans of the Toulon forts, some of them the French originals and other accurate copies, made at the Italian war ministry. He also had in his possession a list of plans of Cherbourg, Brest and Tolon, with typewriten instructions, alleged by Fragola to have emanated from the German staff concerning the marking of batteries of artillery. There was also a letter appointing a rendezvous at the Thuringer Hof, Berlin, for Nov. 13, signed "X." To this was attached a card inscribed "Felix Friedrich Scholtz."

The Matin's correspondent gave Fragola a few shillings and induced him to leave the documents in his hands in order that an examination of them might be made. The next morning he took them to the French embassy, where the naval attache declared them to be absolutely genuine.

The Matin will continue its revelations tomorrow.

THE GOVERNOR OF LOUISIANA MAKES PLAIN STATEMENTS

Baton Rouge, La., May 16.—In the presence of a multitude of Louisianans gathered in the ground of the state capitol today, Newton C. Blanchard was inaugurated as governor and Jared Y. Sanders as lieutenant governor. In his inaugural address Governor Blanchard said:

"Mob law in contravention and defiance of law will not be tolerated. Lynchings will not be permitted under any circumstances, if it is possible for the military at the command of the governor to prevent it. Sheriffs will be held to the strictest accountability possible under the law for the safety from mob violence of persons in their custody."

On the negro question he said:

"The negro is here. He is a man and a citizen. He is useful and valuable in his sphere. Within that sphere he must be guaranteed the equal protection of the law and his education along proper lines—mainly agricultural and industrial—is at once a duty and a necessity.

"No approach toward social equality or social recognition will never be tolerated in Louisiana. Separate schools, separate churches, separate cars, separate places of entertainment will be enforced.

"The South asserts its ability to handle and solve the negro question on humanitarian lines—those of justice and of right. We brook no interference from without. It is up to the South to so handle and solve it as to furnish no occasion for such interference.'

"THE OLD HANNA GUARD" WILL CONTROL OHIO CONVENTION

Columbus, Ohio, May 16.—Some delegates and most of the candidates are here today for the Republican state convention that convenes tomorrow to nominate a state ticket, select delegates and alternates-at-large to the national convention at Chicago, adopt a platform, etc.

"The old Hanna guard," including Governor Herrick, Senator Dick, George B. Cox, of Cincinnati, Dr. J. E. Lowes, of Dayton, and other so-called Hanna legatees, evidently have control of the convention and will name the state ticket and the national delegates and dictate the platform.

Governor Herrick, who will be both temporary and permanent chairman of the convention, says he will sound no national keynote in his speech, but will simply give an account of his own stewardship and that of the recent legislature. Platforms have been drafted by Senators Dick, Congressman Grosvenor and others, but it is understood that the Dick platform, which is brief and does not seek to anticipate the declaration of principles at Chicago, is the one that will be adopted.

WISCONSIN DEMOCRATS WILL ENDORSE WALL OVER HEARST

Milwaukee, May 16.—The Democratic state convention will meet at the Pabst theater in this city tomorrow for the purpose of electing four delegates-at-large to the national convention at St. Louis, also to ratify the selection of the delegates named by the conrgessional district caucuses, choose a national committeeman and name presidential electors. From the returns of the caucuses throughout the state Edward C. Wall, of this city, candidate for the presidency, will undoubtedly be endorsed by the convention, over William R. Hearst, the only other candidate who has been seeking the control of the state delegation. According to estimates of the Wall managers, their candidate wil have close to 400 of the 583 delegates in the convention. The Hearst supporters say this claim is preposterous, but have not given out their figures. Owen A. Wells, of Fond du Lac, has been chosen as temporary presiding officer of the convention.

Among those mentioned for delegates-at-large are Neal Brown, of Wausau; Mayor David S. Rose, of Milwaukee; Timothy E. Ryan, of Waukesha; Geo. W. Bird and William F. Vilas, of Madison and Dr. Wendell A. Anderson, of La Crosse.

DIAMOND WAS IN HIS STOMACH

Chicago, May 16.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Galveston, Texas, says: Having made restitution of a valuable diamond ring, Paul Clarkson, a prisoner in the county jail here, has escaped prosecution. Restitution was made with the aid of two surgeons and an X-ray machine and a scalpel. The stone, after being located by means of the X-ray, was removed from Clarkson's stomach and turned over to the proper owner. It is worth $250. The owner paid for the operation, and the prisoner was released. Clarkson was preparing to sail for New York when he was arrested. While he was being searched the stone, which he held in his mouth, sliped down his throat by mistake, he says. Clarkson is recovering rapidly from the effects of the operation.

80 PER CENT OF THE ADULT POPULATION SUFFER FROM ONE PAINFUL AILMENT.

Think what this means. Imagine the amount of misery that exists and is endured simply because people do not know there is an absolute cure.

The only way to cure any complaint is to remove the cause. There are very few diseases or ailments that can be cured by external application—and piles is not one of them. Piles can be cured; the treatment must, however, be internal, for the cause of piles is an internal disorder of the liver or the bowels. Even catarrh of the stomach and bowels can be cured by DR. PERRIN'S PILE SPECIFIC, The Internal Remedy. Here is an instance of what this practically infallible remedy will do:

Dr. C. A. Perrin, Helena, Mont.—Dear Sir: I have nearly finished the former bottle of Perrin's Pile Specific and am practically well. My case was one which most physicians would have pronounced incurable, as I was afflicted with a dysentery and compelled to go to the toilet room from three to five times each day and each time would bleed from one-half to one teacupful. I had to resort to bandages and absorbent cotton to check the flow of blood, and now the past ten or twelve days there has been no sign of bleeding and my appetite is good; have gained ten pounds in weight and feel like a new lease of life was given me.

Very truly yours,
T. R. HARRIS,
October 20th, 1902. Yerington, Nev.

Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific is sold by all reliable druggists at $1.00 the bottle, under an absolute guarantee to refund the money should this great internal remedy fail to cure.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Further Curtailments Are Being Made In Mines All Along Range.

Iron Mountain—Temporary curtailments are being made at the mines here and along the range owing to lack of stockpile room, due to the tie up of the ore carriers on the lakes. Business is suffering greatly in consequence. Pewabik put out over sixty men today. The Chapin, one of the largest ore mines in the world, is said to be about to curtail.

Menominee—The Prescott company, of Menominee, recently puhchased a lot of iron from a Marinette junk dealer and was surprised to find among it pig iron it had previously bought in Chicago. An investigation was at once started with the result that it was found the ron had been stolen from cars on the sidetrack and taken over to Marinette and sold. There was over a ton of it. The boys who sold the iron to the junk dealer were arrested and one of them confessed to the theft. The youngsters are threatened with sentences to the reform school.

Judge Steere has awarded the Hall & Munson company, of Bay Mills, judgment to the amount of $2000 in their trespass case against Kerr & Kimball. The latter named parties were accused of appropriating timber from the Hal & Munson lands, during their operations in Luce county. Both Kerr and Kimball have left this part of the country and were not represented at the trial.

Escanaba—No improvement work will be done on Ludington street, the principal business thoroughfare of Escanaba, for at least another year, despite the fact that the street badly needs it. This is owing to the fact that, according to the city ordinances an appropriation for improving a street must be made by the council the year previous to that in which the work is done. This year's council is expected to provide for an improvement fund for expediture in 1905.

Sault Ste. Marie—The managers of two of the mines located at Michipicoten have been in the Soo looking for men to work in the mines there this summer. They state that there will be at least 1000 men employed in the mines of the district during the season.

EDITORS IN SESSION

Nineteenth Annual Convention of National Association.

Meetings at World's Fair Grounds and Largely Attended.

St. Louis, May 16.—The nineteenth annual convention of the National Editorial association, comprising 500 delegates representing the state press organizations of the United States, convened today in the hall of congresses of the World's fair grounds, and will be in session four days. Capt. Henry King, editor-in-chief of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, chairman of the committee of welcome, presided. There was considerable delay in calling the convention to order as the delegates were rather inclined to consider the occasion a general reception, and indulged in handshaking and greetings on all sides. When Chairman King finally rapped for order the audience arose and sang "America," after which Rev. C. H. Patton, pastor of the First Congregational church, of St. Louis, offered the invocation. The convention was then formally welcomed by President D. R. Francis of the exposition.

The principal conventions of the week are those of the National Editorial association, which began today and continues until Thursday, and the World's Press parliament, which begins Thursday and concludes Saturday. Numerous other conventions will be held on the grounds in state buildings by different press associations, and when the newspaper men are not in attendance at conventions they will be tendered entertainments.

Bissel Ware, who was recently appointed assistant to Secretary Stevens of the exposition, today assumed the duties of custodian of the Washington university buildings, succeeding to the position made vacant by the death of Capt. Walter Allen, who committed suicide in the dormitory building last week. The buildings are now occupied as World's fair buildings. Mr. Ware, who is 27 years old, bears the distinction of being the youngest man who holds an appointive office with the administrative department of the World's fair.

Hundreds of club women, who are delegates to the General Federation of Women's Clubs, are already here, or are coming on special trains for the opening session of the seventh biennial convention tomorrow. The New York women have arrived in special cars over the Big Four and many of the Wisconsin delegation are here. There are a number of candidates for president, and the contest for the offices promises to be spirited. The name of Mrs. George H. Noyes, a well known club woman of Milwaukee, is the latest to be mentioned in connection with the position.

THE SITUATION IN FAR EAST

Gloomily Reviewed By the Foreign Minister of Austria.

Budapest, May 16.—At today's sitting of the budget committee of the Austrian delegation, Foreign Minister Golushowski made a speech in which he lengthily reviewed the international situation. The most interesting portion was a refernce to the gloomy situation in the far East. "There," said the count, "far reaching antagonistic interests have brought about a struggle which owing to the impossibility of gauging its duration and on account of the general economy depression it may entail threatens to make itself felt even by those not directly concerned. Besides the general state of insecurity attendant on such a long conflict there has to be considered the interruption of free intercourse of trade and the unusually wide interpretation given by belligerents nowadays to "the contraband of war."

"This wide interpretation exercises such a far-reaching effect on international trade, that it appears jutifiable to inquire whether it would not be advisable through a mutual agreement of the powers to check that much felt evil in the future by the introduction of certain restrictive regulations. That work must, however, be reserved for a more suitable moment.

"Austria-Hungary's position in regard to the war is one of strict neutrality and as all the other powers have taken the same attitude it may, as far as human foresight can reach be anticipated that the struggle will be localized and result in no further dangerous complications."

Count Golushowski expresed satisfaction at the "cordial relations" existing between Austria and Italy, especially in regard to the Balkans, which constituted "a guarantee of peace which should not be underestimated."

The Anglo-French convention Count Golushowski considered to be "another link in the chain of arrangements intended to weld more firmly the peaceful union of the European powers." Count Golushowski considered that satisfactory progress was being made in the Macedonian reform program and both Austria-Hungary and Russia deemed it an honor to do the fullest justice to the mision entrusted to them by the great powers and they hoped Turkey would not further impede the task. Unless Turkey loyally assisted in the reforms she would have herself to blame for the serious dangers to which she inevitably would be exposed.

DYNAMITED SAFE.

Chicago, May 16.—Overpowering, binding and gagging the watchman and breaking into the private office of the steel mills of Foster, Waterbury & Co., at Franklin Park, Ill., today three men dynamited the safe and escaped with $400.

HORSEMAN ROBBED.

Sneak Thief Abstracts $10,700 From His Valise.

Chicago, May 16.—Alonzo Bristow, of Bedford, Iowa, has reported to the police the loss of $10,700, which he received from the sale of eighty-three horses at the Union Stock yards. He says the money was in a small satchel and that the thief slashed the side of the bag with a knife, thereby enabling him to insert his hand and purloin the two packages of greenbacks.

The robbery apparently occurred while Bristow was on his way from a hotel to the depot, where he intended to take a train for Iowa. The satchel was not out of his hands, he says, from the time the money was put in until he discovered the loss.

NOT IN DIRECTORY.

Names of Chicago Unionists Must Be Withheld.

Chicago, May 16.—The Chicago Federation of Labor has adopted a resolution requiring members of unions affiliated with it to refuse to permit their names to appear in the forthcoming city directory. It is charged in the resolution that the firm publishing the directory has "publicly expressed a determined opposition to organized labor in general by its efforts to maintain a so-called open shop.

The directory of the Chicago Telephone company, also published by this firm, was included in the resolution.

INCREASE SHOWN

In Commerce Between the United States and Cuba.

Under the Operations of the New Reciprocity Treaty.

Washington, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Commerce between the United States and Cuba is already showing a material increase under the operations of the new reciprocity treaty. That instrument went into force on Dec. 27, 1903, and therefore all the commercial transactions between the two countries since Jan. 1, 1904, reflect the influence of the treaty and furnish a measure of its effectiveness. Statistics compiled by the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, and covering the months of January, February and March, 1904, compared with figures of previous periods, show the results of Cuban reciprocity thus far.

The increase of trade between the United States and Cuba during the first three months of the present calendar year, as compared with the corresponding three conths of 1903, is apparent both in our imports from Cuba and in our exports to Cuba, as will be seen by consulting the following table:

IMPORTS FROM CUBA.	1903.	1904.
January	$ 2,537,455	$ 5,287,449
February	4,013,453	7,711,704
March	5,378,089	10,218,035
Total (3 months)	$11,948,597	$23,217,180
EXPORTS TO CUBA.
January	$ 1,870,619	$ 2,092,603
February	1,535,978	2,152,328
March	1,804,465	2,249,215
Total (3 months)	$ 5,211,063	$ 6,495,149

From this table it becomes apparent, in the first place, that our trade and commerce with Cuba have greatly increased during the three months of reciprocity, as compared with the corresponding three months a year ago; in the second place, that the increase pertains both to the imports from and the exports to Cuba, and in the third place, that this increase, both in imports and in exports, has been progressive—that is to say, that both in imports and in exports the figures are larger for February, 1904, than for January, 1904, and larger for March, 1904, than for February, 1904. It is seen that under reciprocity, in three months, our exports to Cuba have increased from $5,211,063—the figures of a year ago—to $6,495,149, or nearly 25 per cent; that our imports from Cuba have increased from $11,948,597 to $23,217,180, or 95 per cent; and that our total trade with Cuba has increased from $17,159,660 to $29,712,329, or more than 70 per cent.

An examination of the figures of the fiscal year for the periods ending with January, February and March, 1904, gives the following results:

IMPORTS FROM CUBA.	1903	1904.
Seven months ending January	$30,493,448	$27,517,056
Eight months ending February	34 506 901	35 228 760
Nine months ending March	39,892,712	45,446,796
EXPORTS TO CUBA.
Seven months ending January	$12,505,444	$14,746,556
Eight months ending February	14,006,518	16,898,884
Nine months ending March	16,146,330	19,148,099

It thus appears that although there has been, with one exception, an increase in all the above periods of the current year, as compared with the corresponding periods of the preceding year, nevertheless, in all cases, both as to imports and as to exports, by far the greater portion of the increases has occurred during the three months' period embracing January, February, and March, 1904—that is to say, the period covered by the new reciprocity treaty. The imports from Cuba for the nine months ending March, 1903, amounted to $39,892,712, while for the nine months ending March, 1904, they amounted to $45,446,796, an increase of about 14 per cent. But, as shown in the first table, the increase of imports from Cuba for the three months ending March, 1904 (the reciprocity period), as compared with the three months ending March, 1903, was nearly 100 per cent. So likewise the increase of the exports to Cuba during the nine months' period ending March, 1904, as compared with the same period of the previous year, is seen to have been about 18 per cent, but in the last three months' period it was nearly 25 per cent, while the increase of the total trade between the two countries was about 15 per cent in the nine months' period, and more than 70 per cent in the three months' period.

Taking up the details of the imports and exports, it is found that the bulk of the recent increase in the imports of the United States from Cuba is made up of sugar. The imports of sugar during the nine months ending March, 1904, amounted to $32,925,873 in value, as against $25,767,331 during the nine months ending March, 1903. In terms of quantity, these two sums represent 1,729,356,070 pounds in 1904 and 1,491,440,208 pounds in 1903, respectively. The figures show that about 70 per cent of this increase was secured during the three months of January, February, and March, 1904—the period of reciprocity. Thus, the imports of sugar from Cuba in January, 1904, were $4,781,952; in February, 1904, $8,273, 978, and in March, 1904, $8,259,256; making a total for the three months of $19,315,285, or about 70 per cent of the total for the whole nine months ending March, 1904—$22,925,873. This large recent addition to the importation of cane sugar by the United States has not been followed by any material variation in the price of sugar in this country.

FILIPINOS DOING WELL

Students In the United States Making Rapid Progress.

Washington, May 16.—The second quarterly report of Professor William Alexander Sutherland, in charge of the Filipino students in the United States, has been received by the Bureau of Insular Affairs of the war department. Professor Sutherland speaks of the excellent health of the students who spent their first winter in Southern California, and also of the satisfactory progress made in their school work.

The present plan is to collect the students at some suitable place after the school year is over and give them a special summer course along the lines where special work is needed, and then after a short visit to the St. Louis fair, to place them in schools and colleges in the central states.

The students, as far as they have expressed themselves, desire to pursue a variety of callings upon their return to their island homes. Twenty-five per cent of them expect to become teachers. Some desire to become civil engineers, others desire to pursue a commercial course, a few wish to study medicine, two are eager to enter the naval academy at Annapolis, and then find employment in the coastwise service of the Philippines.

A few desire to study scientific agriculture, and it is suggested that they be placed in some Southern agricultural college, in order to secure practical training in the cultivation of rice, sugar and cotton, as well as an acquaintance with modern agricutural implements.

THE CURZONS ARRIVE.

Are Given a Great Reception In London.

London, May 16.—Lord Curzon, the viceroy of India, and Lady Curzon, arrived in London today and had a great reception.

Premier Balfour and other ministers, and many relatives and friends of Lord and Lady Curzon, including Henry White, the secretary of the United States embassy, crowded the railroad station. Lord Curzon drove directly to Buckingham palace, where he had an audience with King Edward. The viceroy received a hearty welcome from the crowds along the route.

AN OLD PIONEER

Of the Northwest Is Dead at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., May 16.—Capt. H. S. Donaldson, one of the oldest pioneers of the Northwest, is dead. He left Montreal while only a lad and settled in Minnesota in its early days, and in 1862 commanded a troop of United States cavalry in the "Minnesota massacre." He came in 1864 to Winnipeg (then Fort Garry), in the interests of N. W. Kittson, of St. Paul, and started a store here. He was a member of the first Dakota legislature in 1892.

Important to Women Shoppers

The anouncement that a hundred new and beautiful tailored suits of wool materials, for women, were to be placed on sale this morning at half price drew an unusually large number of women buyers to the Gluding store this morning. They seemed to be more than pleased with the values offered them, for the buying was unusually heavy, and the day's sales promised to be unusually heavy. Mr. Gluding, on being asked the reason for such radical reductions so early in the season, said that this policy is one he has always followed to the letter. He believes in making reductions at a time when people are most anxious to buy. Instead of waiting until the season is over. In that way they hope to keep their stock constantly fresh and new. As soon as an article does not move as rapidly as we think it ought to, a price will be put on it that will move it, that's our policy and this is just the beginning our customers can always hope to find the very newest out, and they can also hope to find the greatest values because of our desire to clean up "laggards" by the great price inducement. The suit sale continues tomorrow.

BASEBALL CASE

Attorney Harris Says Playing of Game Will Be Admitted.

No Quibbling Over Small Points—Much Interest In Case.

"I won't require the city to prove that Van Praagh was playing baseball on Sunday," said L. C. Harris, attorney for the Duluth Baseball club this morning. "We will admit that he was engaged in a game of baseball on Sunday and will not attempt to quibble in regard to the matter, when the case comes up for trial tomorrow morning."

The trial is set for tomorrow at 10 o'clock in the municipal court before Judge Windom. Mr. Van Praagh pleaded not guilty to the charge against him and asked for a jury trial. Just what line of defense will be taken is not known. A local attorney stated this morning that the law in regard to Sunday baseball was much less stringent than most people supposed and that changes made during the past few years have modified it to a great extent.

"It is possible that they will admit having played baseball on Sunday, but deny that they were making a disturbance," said the attorney in question. "I have not looked into the law very thoroughly, but I would not be surprised if that would be a valid defense. The decision of Judge Gaynor, of New York, will doubtless be made use of by the baseball club's attorney. Baseball is now legalized in the metropolis and I would not be surprised to see the defense made along the same lines here in Duluth.

"You will see that the jury will be picked very carefully, and they will all be questioned very closely in regard to their prejudices against Sunday baseball or for it. It is pretty hard to find a man who does not take some side on the question, and I would not be surprised if it took most of tomorrow to draw the jury."

No attempt was made to stop the game played yesterday with Hibbing, nor have any warrants been issued as yet for the arrest of any of the players connected with it. It is understood that Mayor Cullum requested Manager Van Praagh to abtain from using any glaring advertisements of the Sunday game, such as signs on the street cars or banners on the street.

In spite of the poor attraction in the Hibbing baseball there were 1375 paid admissions at the game yesterday afternoon, and the baseball men claim that Sunday games would draw between 2000 and 3000 people regularly during the league season.

The trial tomorrow will be watched with interest by the fans in the city, as it will decide whether or not Sunday baseball will be played in Duluth this season. T. J. McKeon, the assistant city attorney, will have charge of the prosecution.

BROUGHT BACK NO CHANGE

Percy Sheehan Is Not Satisfied With Small Profits.

A profit of about 97 cents on one newspaper was made by Percy Sheehan yesterday morning, but it landed him in the custody of the municipal court.

Percy is a lad of only 13 years of age. He is the brother of "Patsy" Sheehan, who has gained more or less notoriety in the municipal court, and has been under parole himself, for the theft of a watch.

Yesterday he was engaged in selling Chicago Sunday papers through the East End. He made a sale to one lady, and she handed him a dollar in payment. Percy stated that he had no change, but would run to a nearby store and secure some silver for the dollar. The lady agreed to the proposition and Percy disappeared. He failed to return with the change and the lady informed Humane Officer Withrow of the incident.

From the description given by the lady Mr. Withrow suspected that Percy was the guilty lad and he confessed after being placed under arrest.

He will be arraigned in the municipal court this afternoon on the charge of breaking his parole. He has made a good record, however, during the time he has been on parole and it is possible that he will be given another chance before being sent to the Red Wing training school. The lady who purchased the paper is very reluctant to see the lad prosecuted and her wishes may be taken into consideration by the authorities.

Two of the lad's brothers are now in the training school and a third is out on parole.

A FOOT RACE

Minister vs. Boy.

"Facts are facts and stubborn things indeed," says a Michigan clergyman, who had a memomrable food experience.

"The fact is when a man gets all out of sorts physically because of a derangement of the stomach so that his heart action is bad, is very nervous owing to physical organs inpaired and nothing he can eat of an ordinary kind will properly assimilate, it is time to call a halt. Such was my case two years ago last March when I commenced using Grape-Nuts, according to directions, and have continued their use up to the present time with the result I am in better health physically and mentally than I have been for many years, having passed my 63rd year.

"To demonstrate this fact I proopsed a foot-race with my 11-year-old boy, who was very fleet on foot, and he, being barefoot, imagined he could outrun his Pa, but I was besting him until a slip of my foot on a muddy place caused me to stumble and I found myself rolling in the mud in the road. I soon found my footing again undamaged and had to join in a good, hearty laugh with my wife and daughter.

"Why should I not recommend Grape-Nuts to my friends when the food has done so much for me, for I am confident that had it not been for the help this excellent food supplied I would today have been past recovery. Instead of growing old now I feel younger than I have for years, with more mental strength as well as physical, and can preach better sermons than ever before." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Grape-Nuts makes far healthier, keener brains. A dull, worn-out brain can be remade on this food. There's a reason.

WEST DULUTH

"The water is too cold."

Such was the complaint this morning of West Duluth fishermen who tried their luck in the St. Louis river yesterday. A few fish were caught, but not many, and this fact is attributed to the icy water.

Several parties of West Duluth anglers went up the rapids above Fond du Lac yesterday, some by train and same by little launches. They found that the pike were through "running," and seemed to have returned to deep water. Speaking of the matter this morning, one of them said:

"There was good fishing at the rapids during the spawning season, but this is practically over now and the pike have most of them come down from the river again. While they bite to some extent now, no large strings will be caught while the water remains as cold as at present. Before the fishing in the river can be really good the water must be a good deal warmer.

"In my opinion the fishing in the river and Spirit Lake will not be as good this summer as would have been the case if the game wardens had exercised a little more care. I know it to be a fact that fish have been netted in large numbers along the river, particularly in the vicinity of Fond du Lac and just as much in Minnesota as Wisconsin. I have not heard of a single arrest being made. Since James Blackadder, the Superior game warden, resigned his position, illicit fishing along the St. Louis has been carried on quite extensively. When Blackadder was in office he mades a number of arrests at the rapids, and confiscated several outfits of nets and tackle. The law breakers became frightened at the vigorous manner in which he got after them, but they seem now to have little fear of the law's interference."

LOST THROUGH ERRORS.

West Duluth Loses to Cloquet Team.

Two bad errors by right fielder, A. Buska, in the ball game at Cloquet yesterday lost West Duluth the contest. Buska, usually a good man in the field, dropped two balls batted in his direction which he should have hung on to, letting in two runs in each instance. In both cases there were two men out, and the first time three men on bases. The second error found two men on bases, and they succeeded in beating the ball to the home plate. Only for these errors the final score would have stood 2 to 1, favor of Duluth in stead of 5 to 2 in favor of Cloquet.

The game was a snappy one, and good ball was played on both sides. Larson did good work in the box for West Duluth, and was about equally matched with Hule, the Cloquet Indian slab artist. Larson allowed three hits and Hule two. One base hits were the best that could be made. Hule is the man to be tried out by the Superior Northern league team. It is understood that Manager Cameron has already signed him.

The boys report good treatment in Cloquet, and say they were well entertained. Their only kick is against the small boys of the town, who persisted in throwing stones at the fielders at critical points in the game. It is said that the stones had something to do with Buska's errors. The grounds at Cloquet are not fenced in, but a collection taken up in the large crowd assembled netted $50.

NEW SHELL IS A DAISY

Boat Club Crew Will Sit In Her In Another Day.

Captain Mahoney of the boat club said this morning that it was expected to get the new eight-oar shell afloat and put the eight in her tonight. He says that the boat is all they expected, and more. The outside skin looks like mahogany, altohugh it is supposed to be Spanish cedar, while the top is of mahogany and the inside of spruce.

The boat made the trip from Cambridgeport without getting injured in any way and is expected to demonstrate its qualities in a very short time. Some days may be elapsed before the men to work her will be properly placed as it is an exacting problem to fit a crew to a new boat. But her owners feel that she is the finest thing of the kind in the northwest and say very confidently that they doubt if there will be anything on exhibition at Madison to compare with her.

Madison university is the owner of the extension door which was used to permit the boat to be placed in the express car which brought her, and this door will now be returned to Madison.

CLEANING DAY

Proclamation Announcing One Will Be Made Soon.

Special Health Inspectors Begin Work In Various Districts.

A spring "cleaning day" will again be observed in Duluth this season, and as soon as the health department has decided on the date, the mayor will issue a proclamation requesting the citizens to make a special effort to have their back yards and lawns made presentable.

Mayor Cullum made arrangements for the proclamation before leaving for West Baden, and it is now ready with the exception of filling in the date.

The plan was adopted by Mayor Hugo last year, and the day was generally observed by the citizens. It comes much later this spring on account of the severe winter.

The eleven inspectors appointed by the health department started work this morning in their different districts. The list of districts and inspectors is as follows:

First district, Sixtieth avenue east to Nineteenth avenue east, Emil Huhn.
Second district, Nineteenth avenue east to Eighth avenue east, John Salvo.
Third district, Eighth avenue east to Third avenue east, Louis Finn.
Fourth district, Third avenue east to Lake avenue, Harold Aske.
Fifth district, Lake avenue to Fourth avenue west, W. L. Pierce.
Sixth district, Fourth avenue west to Eighth avenue west, Cal. T. Bush.
Seventh district, Eighth avenue west to Sixteenth avenue west, C. Wicklund.
Eighth district, Garfield avenue to Twentieth avenue west, A. Swanstrom.
Ninth district, Twentieth to Fortieth avenue west, O. Lundin.
Tenth district, Fortieth avenue west to Central avenue, Thomas Sorenson.
Eleventh district, Central avenue to the Western city limits, J. A. Murray.

These eleven inspectors are in addition to the regular inspectors who will continue to perform their usual duties. The special force will inspect all of the cellars in the larger buildings of the city and order ash piles or any other filth that has been accumulated during the winter, removed.

The greater part of the rubbish will have to be disposed of by the citizens themselves, but the inspectors will work in conjunction with the board of health and in certain cases the employes of the board will clean up vacant lots or alleys as directed by the inspectors.

Commissioner Murray expects to have the work completed within a month, and the greater part of it will probably be accomplished before June 1, when the summer visitors commence to arrive.

Directors to Meet.

Directors of the Commercial club will hold their regular meeting this evening at 8 o'clock and discuss various matters of routine character. The usual monthly grist of bills will be handled and a number of matters will probably come up for reference to subcommittees. One proposition now in hand is the question of redecorating the ladies' dining room.

It is expected that the meeting of the public affairs committee will be scheduled for some day later in the week, but it has not yet been decided.

MONEY FOR PANAMA

Is Creditor of United States to Extent of $9,000,000.

Five Millions to Be Invested In This Country.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The republic of Panama is a creditor of the United States to the extent of $9,000,000. The original amount due the new republic was $10,000,000, but one-enth of that sum has already been paid. Of the $9,000,000 balance, $800,000 is due to creditors of Panama for war material and other advance claims. Within the next few weeks the secretary of the treasury will send to Panama $3,200,000 in gold. It is understood that this sum wil be used as the reserve fund to guarantee the stability of the currency of the republic, which is to be issued on a gold basis. Panama, in other words, will avoid the mistakes of her sister republics in Central and South America and will start in as a member of the family of nations upon a sound financial footing.

But there will still be due the sum of $5,000,000 in American money after all debts have been paid. Some anxiety has been felt as to the disposition of this sum. Five million dollars withdrawn from the gold reserve in the United States would not cause much of a financial flurry, but it would be better if this sum, small as it is, could be retained in the United States. And this will probably be done. A delegation of representatives of the republic of Panama has just arrived here for the purpose of providing for the investment of the remaining $5,000,000 of the fund. The gentlemen composing this commission are of the very best citizens of the republic. They desire to so place the investment as to assure the best returns with the least possible risk. It is recognized that easily convertible securities might prove a temptation to revolutionists. It is essential that the capital of the new nation should be so invested as to make it impossible for any revolutionary "patriot" to abscond with all the available assets. For this reason it has been decided to invest the entire amount in good securities in the United States. The first choice of the commissioners is 4 per cent first mortgages upon real estate in the borough of Manhattan and they come to look over the field. They will, naturally, take the advice of men who know something of real estate in the city of New York, and it is not believed that any difficulty will be encountered in finding satisfactory investments.

It will be a new departure for South American republics to invest their funds in mortgages upon real estate in this country and some of the stockholders of the Manhattan "sky scrapers" may have a thrill when they realize that they are indebted to the republic of Panama, which is the youngest of the nations of the earth.

Eugene F. Ware, commissioner of pensions, in explanation of the order which is known in the pension bureau as order "78" relating to the adjudication of pension claims under the act of June 27, 1890, that when a claimant has passed the age of 62 years he is disabled one-half in ability to perform manual labor and is entitled to be rated at $6 per month; after 65 years at $8 per month; after 68 years at $10 per month, and after 70 years at $12 per month, has issued a general order relative to the interpretation of this order, which excited so much controversy during the closing days of congress. Commissioner Ware says that the order in no way changes the provisions of existing laws, but simply operates as a rule of evidence for the guidance of this bureau. The order extends the act of June 27, 1890, to those persons who have reached the age of 62 years and upwards upon the theory that a man is not as capable of performing manual labor at 62 years as he is at 50 and that the increase in years decreases his capability to perform manual labor. The effect of the order is that those having pensions already will increase such pensions up to the age limit if the pensions already allowed should be below the amount stipulated in the order.

A pensioner receiving a smaller rating under the general laws than he is entitled to under the act of June 27, 1890, and acts amendatory thereto, may elect according to the interpretation placed upon order "78" which bids fair to become in some sections of the country a cause for war on the Republican party because of its so-called paternalism, which pension he will draw and payments made under the old certificate covering the same period as that named in the new certificate will be deducted from the first payment made under the latter. This order which was criticised in severe language during the closing days of congress has no application to claims filed by or on behalf of widows, minor children, dependent parents or dependent brothers and sisters. It does not apply to service in the Mexican war, Indian wars, the regular army or navy prior to or subsequent to the war of the rebellion, the Spanish-American or the Philippine insurrection. It applies solely to the officers and enlisted men of the army, the navy and the marine corps of the United States who served ninety days or more during the war of the rebellion and were honorably discharged.

Neither will the order benefit acting assistant surgeons, contract surgeons, provost marshals, deputy provost marshals or enrolling officers who may have rendered service during the war of the rebellion, for the reason that persons are not entitled pensionable under the provisions of the act of June 27, 1890, which is the basis for the now famous order which went into effect on April 13. But so many inquiries have come to the department from old soldiers, soldiers' widows and minor children, that it was found necessary to issue instructions to medical examining boards throughout the United States as to the interpretation to be placed on the order. Commissioner Ware frankly states that it is impossible to adopt a general rule covering the questions of medical examination coming under the order, and that the procedure must be determined by the fact in each individual case, as while a claimant may be 62, 65, or 68 years of age, which in itself would entitle him to a rating of $6, $8 or $10 per month, he may also be suffering from disabilities other than age, which, if properly shown, would entitle him to a rate greater than he could receive for old age alone. A declaration stating that a claimant is 62, 65, 68 or 70 years of age, as the case may be, is a sufficient allegation even if no other disabling cause is set forth, but the date of birth should be stated.

There is deep unrest among Latin-American countries. Brazil is squaring off to Peru, Peru is arming against Chili, while Guatemala and Salvador are straining their leshes to get at one another. All of this, of course, is prospective, but there is bad blood existing in the countries named, and all are waiting, according to a diplomat who has just returned from these countries, favorable opportunity to begin a war of conquest. A statement recently issued by the Brazilian legation in this city alleges that Peru is trying to override the provisions of the treaty of 1851 and take advantage of the boundary dispute between Brazil and Bolivia by throwing troops into the territory involved. As to Guatemala and Salvador, their differences grow out of a personal quarrel between President Cabrero of Guatemala and the Salvador minister of war, which threatens to involve the two republics in strife.

It is extremely doubtful, however, whether such an issue would be recognized by any of the South American republics except the two at outs, according to a representative of a South American country in Washington. Speaking of the unrest which prevails in South American countries by reason of the separation of Panama from Colombia, the gentleman above referred to said "there is no gainsaying the fact that the acquisition of the Panama canal strip by the United States is looked upon by a majority of South American republics as an encroachment on the part of your country. The Latin-American republics look upon France as an ally to the United States with its aggressive methods and its ability to do things is a wholly different proposition. Personally, I believe in American institutions. I have profound faith in the United States as an impartial judge and arbitrator, but it would be foolish for me to tell you that my people are infatuated with the United States. Because they are not and what the United States requires by purchase or otherwise comes to your country because the South American republics can't help it. I look for great dissensions in the ranks of the republic of South America during 1905, and I also look for the Monroe doctrine to be strained at a number of places."

LEWISOHN IS IN CONTEMPT

New York Banker Refuses to Testify Concerning Gambling.

New York, May 16.—Jesse Lewisohn, the banker, who was subpoenaed to testify regarding his knowledge of gambling in this city, declined to answer questions put to him by District Attorney Jerome before Judge Wyatt in the court of special sessions today. Mr. Jerome immediately made application to Justice Wyatt for the commitment of the witness for contempt. This was granted and Lewisohn was turned over to the custody of a county detective. Lewisohn was given his choice of summary committment or a warrant for misdemeanor. He chose the former and an application was made at once to the supreme court for a writ of habeas corpus. Argument on this writ will be heard by Justice Dugro of the supreme court. Lewisohn is charged with violating the section of the penal code which pertains to criminal contempt of court. He will be arraigned before Justice Wyatt in special sessions on this charge.

After the transcript of what transpired before Justice Wyatt in the court of general sessions had been written, Lewisohn was taken before the grand jury.

A writ of habeas corpus was secured from Justice Dugro in the supreme court in the Jesse Lewishon proceedings, returnable this afternoon. This will review the whole case, as far as it has gone. The writ was secured on a petition in which Lewisohn held that the proceedings are illegal and unconstitutional in that his counsel were excluded from the examination; that he had previously answered the questions and that there was no ground in law for even the issuance of the summons in the case.

When taken before the grand jury Lewishon refused to answer questions and was then declared in contempt of court by Judge Graham for his failure to answer. He was committed to the Ludlow street jail until May 31. The writ of habeas corpus obtained from Justice Dugro, however, will review the case in its entirety, thus probably obviating the necessity of his incarceration.

After Lewisohn had been ordered committed to Ludlow street jail, the warden of that prison informed District Attorney Jerome that he could not receive Lewisohn because he was not authorized to receive criminal prisoners.

WILL MAKE FIGHT

Opposition to Appropriation For Aerial Bridge Approaches.

Aldermen Claim Improvement Fund Will Be Wiped Out.

A warm fight promises to develop this evening at the council meeting on the question of appropriating $8000 for the building of the approaches to the ferry bridge.

The appropriation will leave the permanent improvement fund totally depleted, and some of the aldermen are very much opposed to it, claiming that the money is urgently needed for roads and other improvements in different parts of the city.

"The extra appropriation necessary for the approaches was kept secret until the contract was let," said one of the aldermen this afternoon, "and now it is sprung on us with the statement that unless we make the appropriation the bridge cannot be built. It is not a fair way of doing business, and there is likely to be a warm fight before the appropriation pases.

"It is not likely that those who are opposed to the measure will succeed in preventing the appropriation being made, but they are going to make an effort to do so."

The council committee on light and water and the board of water and light commissioners are holding a conference this afternoon to discuss the plan to extend the First street mains to connect with those on Piedmont avenue and form a supplementary water system for the West End. The matter was brought up at the last meeting of the council by Aldermen Haven and Schaffer and the council expresed itself as favoring the building of such a system if possible. Alderman Haven stated that the need for the extra system was shown recently when the main to the West End burst and all of the western part of the city was left without any protection from fire for several hours.

The committee will submit its report to the council this evening and some action will probably be taken in regard to the matter.

DEPORTATION SUSTAINED.

United States Supreme Court Affirms Turner Decision.

Washington, May 16.—In an opinion today by Chief Justice Fuller, the United States supreme court sustained the action of the immigration authorities at the port of New York in ordering the deportation of the Englishman Turner, alleged to be an anarchist. The chief justice said in his opinion that Turner did not himself deny that he is an anarchist. The opinion upheld the law for the exclusion of anarchists, and affirmed the decision of the circuit court for the Southern district of New York, which refused a writ of habeas corpus to Turner.

CONSUL APPOINTED.

Washington, May 16.—President Roosevelt has appointed as consul at Puerto Cabello, Vez., Jerome B. Patterson of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Patterson is one of the proprietors of the "New York Age."

DESERT HORRORS.

Wide Spaces of Territory, Where Only Vultures Live.

Those who have never dwelt on the desert cannot possibly have any idea of what desert life means, says the Los Angeles Times. There is no life anywhere else like it. There are no dangers of a similar character to be experienced elsewhere. The prospector, the man who sees most of it, can describe it to you. He can tell you of its heat, its blinding blare and the awful feeling of being without water to moisten the parched lips with; but with all that he can say nothing that adequately describes the awe that comes upon a man who is there alone. There is companionship in the very rocks and trees of the mountains. The noise of the birds singing and the running water cheers the heart, but on the desert there is none of those things. A man on the trail, lost there, is indeed helpless and well may one say "God help him."

Every year the desert claims its quota of victims, just as soon as the ocean must be fed its list of wrecks. Beyond its confines they are little heard of. Within them they sometimes happen and are not known of for years.

Occasionally a prospector—he, too, may be off the trail—stumbles across the bleached bones of another of that pioneer breed who had perished years before. A piece of paper, an old envelope or a pocketbook may give the data to identify the remains by, but often there is nothing, and they are put beneath the ground to mingle with the dust, unmarked by any needless formality. Awe-inspiring it is, indeed, to come upon the skeleton of some lost prospector. Think of a man, himself wandering, uncertain whether he is traveling parallel with the trail or is to the north or south of it, thus attracted. For a few minutes he forgets his own predicament. He stands over it and ponders: Who was he? When did he die? He tries, if he is an old desert prospector, to call to mind those whom he has missed and who may have come that way, or perhaps he is a newcomer, and it is the skeleton of a man who prospected there before his time. Be that as it may, to a man lost on the desert the sight is awe-inspiring beyond ability of mere words to describe.

An illustration of this may be gleaned from the experience of two American prospectors who had been exploring the line country between Sonora and Arizona. Gold veins, some carrying good values, are plentiful in the little ranges which appear here and there on the desert of that region.

The white population in a tract of country embracing 16,000 square miles numbers less than twenty-five souls. And there may be as many Mexicans, and there is a floating population of Indians. These latter in bands dig considerable basins in the ground to hold the rain water which falls twice a year. Twice a year, sometimes, it should be said, but more often only once, and sometimes there are seasons of drought when the rain does not fall at all for several years. These little accumulations of water do not last long, and when they have dried up the Indians leave. Here and there is an oasis where a little white man lives, always in the foothills. He is there to mine and has, maybe, a little store and a few head of horses and cattle. His water, perhaps, comes from a well several hundred feet deep and is just sufficient for his own purposes. The Indians can get a supply in passing and a little to support life until the next water is reached, perhaps forty miles away, but they cannot remain and consume the little there is.

And it so happens that there are times when the desert is almost denuded of its inhabitants. It was on one of these occasions that two American prospectors were crossing from the Sonora side of the boundary line into Arizona. They were out of water. Twice they had been disappointed. On each occasion the Indian supply they had counted on was dried up. The bottom of the chaca, as it is called, was as hard as a brick. They had been nearly a day and a half without water and the animals at the last disappointment lay down and could not get up again.

What an outlook! Surely enough to stagger the bravest. The prospectors, old hands at the game, realized their predicament. No time then for delay. One of them knew of a tinaja, or tank of water, in a range of hills about seven miles distrange. After taking the packs from the burros, which they fully realized had made their last prospecting trip, they set out for this, their last hope. Hours later, for the sun was high and the heat intense, they reached the foot of the hills. A climb of 700 feet was in front of them and silently they made it. Words take strength and in emergencies of this kind none is wasted. Soon they were at their goal and, heaven be thanked, there was water there. Not much—indeed, the veriest trifle—but it was water, just enough to save their lives.

In the solid rock beneath tlfeir feet, under an overhanging cliff, was a slight acumulation made by a gentle inflow through a crevice in the blue porphyry. This was the tenaja. It was known only to a few prospectors and to a few wild animals which made the range their home or were driven to it when all other sources failed. Even as they stooped to dip it up a mountain lion was noticed sneaking around a huge bowlder. They had disturbed him, evidently, just in time to prevent his lapping up the few pints which had trickled there for many hours. He evidently came there often for his tracks were in every patch of sand around it. Men of that kind paid little attention to such signs. They would drink even if they had to do it revolver in hand. Nor is this class of men from which prospectors are drawn given to prayer. But those men prayed. It was years since they had done so before and their words came few. Each knelt and on his knees and with clasped hands said: "Thank God!" and was silent for a brief time.

Again and again they moistened their lips and drank a few drops at a time, as long experience had taught them was wisest. In the morning a little more had accumulated and they drank that too, and started off for the old mining camp at Gunsight. Before they had been traveling an hour they came upon the skeleton of a man, bleached and white as the bull quartz of the Sierras. From the perfect state of the bones it was evident that no wild animals had mutilated the remains. The way they were found, however, told their story. There were no clothes near, not a rag. Evidently the man had done as many do who are driven crazy by want of water on the desert. He had stripped off his clothes and run on wildly, but he had held to his canteen and it lay beside him as it had been dropped years before. No sign of flesh was on the bones. The ants had cleaned that off and left them, within a few weeks after the man died, as white as they were then. The two prospectors looked at the skeleton. "Poor fellow," said one to the writer of this experience. "He fell by the wayside. Thank God we were saved." The rest of the journey was not made without an effort. They had no more water for twenty miles and the thermometer registered for many hours during the day 113 degrees, and there was no shade.

The following month two German prospectors set out from the next range, the Quijotoas. One of the prospectors had been on the desert before, but had little been country only a short time, and, lured by the tales of mining life he had heard, wanted to try his luck. To the one who could speak English Mr. Day, the storekeeper at Quijotoa, pointed out the danger of going for from water, but without avail, and midway between the Quijotoas range and the Barbaguivari mountains, three days later, one of them lay down and died and the other was driven insane, but fortunately fell into the hands of the Indians, who brought him back to Day's store, where he recuperated and regained his reason.

The Indians who found the German wandering had but a few mouthfuls of water in a calabasas gourd. They gave it to him to drink and one took him to a band which was rested a while near by, being on a migatory passage to the waterbered who had perished years before. A piece of paper, an old envelope or a pocketbook may give the data to identify the remains by, but often there is nothing, and they are put beneath the ground to mingle with the dust, unmarked by any needless formality. Awe-inspiring it is, indeed, to come upon the skeleton of some lost prospector. "Ain't got but $2.16 and a lot of papers," declared Bill.

"It beats me," said the other highwayman ruefully. "He wasn't makin' no deposit, 'cause he wasn't carryin' no book, an' it jest stood to reason he was drawin' out for the payroll. I looked to find $2000 on him goin' this way an' nothin' but a check goin' the other. It's a bloomin' shame how unreliable these folks is. Ain't there nothin' in the satchel?"

"Not a blame thing," replied Bill.

"Was you jest goin' to the bank for a walk?" asked the other man.

"No," replied the victim. "I had business there."

"What business?"

"I took up a note. You'll find it canceled in my pocket."

"Now, ain't that a bloomin' shame?" exclaimed the highwayman. "Men with money is gettin' so blamed uncertain that you can't tell whether to catch 'em comin' or goin'. The last feller we caught was goin', an' didn't have nothin' but a check; the feller before that was held up by his wife afore we had time to git to him, an' this feller is comin', with not a bloomin' thing but a canceled note. I tell you, there ought to be business rules laid down so's a poor, hard workin' man would know how to hit it right.

NEW FLYING MACHINE.

Sir Hiram Maxim's New Inventiou and Its Stunts.

Sir Hiram Maxim's latest contribution to mankind is a machine that provides a new form of strenuous amusement of the looping of the loop, switchback railway and shooting the chutes order, says London Sketch. He calls it a captive flying machine and it is in reality a merry-go-round built on gigantic lines and with centrifugal force executing a few hair-raising stunts that make other forms of neurotic amusement seem mild in comparison.

The machine should prove as destructive of nerves as Sir Hiram's other invention, the Maxim gun, is of lives. The only justification for the captive flying machine is that Sir Hiram needs the money to build a sure-enough flying machine.

He thinks that by giving the public a chance to swing around in the air at a rate of from 30 to 65 miles an hour, to look at the world upside down and experience other similar sensations he can get the money he needs. Recently he invited his neighbors, friends and reporters to witness the working of the invention at his home at Tulse Hill, one of the suburbs of London.

The machine looks like an immense umbrella stripped of its covering and turned inside out. To a central steel shaft some 60 feet in height are attached by very long radial arms, supported by steel wire ropes. From the outer end of each arm is swung a car.

A 34-horse-power gas engine rotates the central shaft and the cars on the case of the ordinary merry-go-round. There is this difference:

In an ordinary merry-go-round the wooden horses move in three vertical plains of the circumference to which they are attached. In Sir Hiram's invention the cars swing outward as the speed increases just like the governor balls on a steam engine.

The faster the shaft rotates the greater becomes the centrifugal force and the further outward the cars swing until, at a speed of 60 miles an hour, the cars are traveling at an angle of 30 degrees and have increased their orbit from a circumference of 200 feet to one of more than 600 feet.

It is at this high speed that the chief attractions of the invention present themselves.

To quote the words of Sir Hiram, it seems to the passengers that instead of traveling around on a level plain they are really traveling on the side of a mountain which slants downward in all directions 30 degrees as far as the eye can see, and that the ornamental pagoda which is built around the great central shaft is situated on the very apex of this enormously high mountain.

Another curious phenomenon is that the cars seem to travel much faster than the actual speed.

There was an indicated rush when the opportunity to test the apparatus came, and most of the passengers were women. They pronounced the sensation immense, but complained to Sir Hiram that the speed, 35 miles an hour, at which the cars revolved, was altogether too slow.

"Whoop her up then," commanded Sir Hiram, and the machines spun around until it was announced that they had reached a speed of over 60 miles an hour.

At this speed the passengers were practically pinned in their seats, and were unable to move, though to the people below it looked as if they were in danger of dropping out of the open sides which had now become the bottoms of the cars.

"Centrifugal force keeps them as snug as a bug in a rug," was the explanation of one of Sir Hiram's assistants.

To the writer who traveled in the cars at their highest rate the sensation was most pleasant. He found in common with others that until one got used to whizzing about, the motion induced a feeling much akin to going under an anaesthetic, but this soon passed away.

One feature of the invention which was not in working order on the day of this experiment, is the areoplanes which are attached to the top of each of the cars. A wire inside the car enables the angles of the areoplane to be shifted at will, and thus make the car perform various evolutions, such as plunging up and down like a fish or swinging inward and outward, as one wishes.

To each of the guests the inventor presented a pamphlet entitled "Shall We Ever Fly?" In it he says the time is at hand when a flying machine will be invented, that he proposes to tackle the problem again, that the experiments will be very costly, and that therefore he has produced the captive flying machine to raise the money needed.

The two highwaymen looked perplexed, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

BIDS ARE OPENED.

Crowley Company Bids Lowest For Wiring Piers.

The government contract for wiring the piers at the Duluth ship canal, preparatory to their being lighted by the city, was awarded to the Crowley Electric company, of this city, the consideration to be $1600.

Bids for the work entirely complete, were submitted to Capt. Charles L. Potter, engineer in charge of this district, by four local concerns, and these were opened this noon.

The total amount available for the work, out of the sum appropriated for the harbor improvement, is about $1600.

The other bids were as follows: C. R. France, $1800; Mutual Electric company, $2935; Burgess Electric company, $1795.

One of the travelers has been completed and the other will be set up within a few days.

Mr. Nichols says this is the first time he has visited Duluth when the sun was shining. He came here first ten years ago when a northeaster was prevailing and again last July when the head of the lakes had some very rainy weather.

Mr. Nichols says the season is very much farther advanced at Chicago than in Duluth.

TRIAL OF WHITE

Murderer of Jerome Menaige Fighting For His Life.

Nine Jurors Obtained In Forenoon Session—Twenty-Six Called.

J. B. Adams, manager Hibbing Clothing company, Hibbing, Minn.

John T. Pugh, grain inspector, 321 East Fifth street, Duluth.

Edward Johnson, grocery clerk, 216 East Fifth street, Duluth.

Ralph H. Wellington, street car conductor, 2822 West Third street, Duluth.

Henry Norman, general merchant, town of Midway.

George Blackwell, fireman, Pioneer mine, Ely.

Julius D. Howard, real estate and loans, 431 East Second street, Duluth.

S. C. Warren, contractor, Forty-sixth avenue West and Grand avenue, Duluth.

J. N. Salin, carpenter, town of Kelsey.

The above nine men were accepted and sworn as jurors, out of twenty-six called, this morning, in the murder trial of Frank White, which has started in Judge Cant's room in district court. It was expected that the jury would be complete early this afternoon when the state was to open the case.

Frank White is charged with shooting and fatally wounding Jerome Menaige, the bartender at the Northland saloon, 601 West Michigan street, the night of April 26 last. The grand jury returned an indictment of murder in the first degree, which is the form returnable when, in the opinion of the jury, there is reason to believe that the killing was premeditated. The penalty for murder in the first degree is death ,there being no alternative in the way of a long term of imprisonment.

County Attorney McClintock is conducting the case for the state and Walter F. Green is defending White.

As is customary in the trial of murder cases, triers were selected to whom were submitted the chalenges on jurors. The triers are Judge W. D. Edson, C. E. Adams and Philneas Ayer.

In this case the state has the right to use seven peremptory challenges and the defense twenty. Up to this noon the state had exercised its right in but one case, and White's counsel had excused seven men from service on the jury.

The chalenges were for actual bias, and one man was excused because he stated positively that he bid not believe in capital punishment.

Nels J. Anderson, a grocery clerk from irVginia, was reprimanded severely by Judge Cant, after being examined and refused as a juror. In response to queries by the court he said that he had talked the case over at his boarding place, since coming to Duluth, and had made a few inquiries about it.

Judge Cant told Anderson that he had been talking against the express instruction of the court and had disqualified himself as a juror.

"You will bear in mind the rest of this term," said Judge Cant, "that the court means just what it says and you are not to talk about any more cases."

B. Magnuson, a geenral merchant of Chisholm, also said that he had talked about the case since coming to Duluth and Judge Cant tempered his reprimand in view of the fact that Magnuson was not present in court the first day the petit jury assembled, when the court gave explicit instructions to jurors that they were not to discuss cases for trial during the present term.

Aside from a general appearance of lassitude, probably due from his recent sickness, Frank White, the accused, seems to bear the ordeal of his trial with no more uneasiness than if the charge were a minor one. He sits close at thee lbow of his counsel, most of the time leaning on his elbow against the table and watching his attorney's notes or the jurymen as they are being examined.

From the nature of a few questions asked the jurors during their examination, this morning, the intimation is that White will make his defense almost entirely along the line of self-defense.

The story of the crime as published at the time was that he attempted to compel a cripple to go up to the bar and drink, against the latter's will, when Menaige, the bartender, interfered. Whote, it is claimed, became very angry and left the saloon. Returning to a side door shortly afterward, he opened fire on the bartender with a revolver. Menaige gave chsae and followed White out on the street. It is claimed that during the pursuit, White turned and fired two bullets at Menaige, both of which struck him and caused injuries from which he died a few days later.

Menaige left a wife, a bride of but a few weeks.

Charles Deroponzgi was sentenced to spend sixty days in the county jail, by Judge Windom Saturday afternoon, for petty lareeny. Frank Thayer, of Swan River, was paying for a meal in a Bowery restaurant Saturday, when Reroponzgi snatched a bill from the purse. Thayer held in his hand, and fled. He was arrested an hour later in a Bowery saloon & and when searched at headquarters the sum of $10.40 was found in his possession.

Charles L. Seymour and John McDougall, two 17-year-old lads, were arrested Saturday afternoon on the charge of stealing a quantity of junk from the Duluth Metal works. It was shown by the police that McDougall had stolen the junk and sold it to a second-hand dealer, dividing the proceeds with his companion. McDougall was placed on parole for one year, and Seymour was released under suspended sentence.

Judge Dibell, directed the jury in the case of the Pine Tree Lumber company against C. A. Remington, to return a verdict for Mr. Remington. Saturday afternoon. The suit was brought by the Pine Tree company to recover $805 damages for logs alleged to have been carried from its premises by Mr. Remington. The verdict was ordered by the court on the ground that evidence was lacking to show that Mr. Remington had taken the property in an unlawful manner.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Chicago, May 16.—J. N. Barr, assistant to the president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, is dead at his home in Libertyville, Ill., of heart disease. He was 52 years old. Mr. Barr was one of the best known railroad mechanical men in the country. Many of the devices now used in railroad shops and in connection with rolling stock are the product of Mr. Barr's inventive genius.

London, May 16.—George Augustus Hamilton Chichester, fifth marquis of Donegal, is dead. He was born June 27, 1822. The Marquis of Donegal was married Dec. 23, 1902, to Miss Violet Twining, of Halifax, Nova Scotia, who was 22 years old at the time. On Oct. 8, 1903, a son and heir was born to the marquis, who had twice previously been married without having issue.

Quietness Is Temporary.

Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Silberstein have returned from a pleasure trip through the South and East. Mr. Silberstein says the South is experiencing a boom at the present time, and that retail merchants all report a very satisfactory business. In the East things are quiet, but he thinks it is only temporary, owing to the very backward spring in both the East and West.

Twenty-fifth Ballot In Illinois Shows Little Change.

Yates-Deneen Followers Said to Have Made Combination.

Springfield, Ill., May 16.—Expectations were strong today that the gubernatorial deadlock in the Republican state convention would be broken this afternoon. The basis was an alleged combination between followers of Governor Yates and those of State's Attorney Deneen.

Later it looked as if the balloting would start off substantially as it ended Saturday evening. The Lowden leaders declared that reports of a Yates-Deneen alliance had been given currency in the hope that the result would be to force Lowden to go to Yates, but that the manouver would not have the effect desired. The Lowden people asserted confidently that Kane, Will and a number of other Yates' counties would desert the governor and vote for Lowden.

Col. Lowden mingled freely with the delegates today. He was in a cheerful mood and said he felt in a stronger position than ever.

Attorney General Hamlin, for whom an unsuccessful stampede was attempted Saturday evening, was watching developments today with the keenest interest. It was said that he would throw his delegates to Yates if it became necessary to do so to bring about Lowden's defeat.

It is reported that the Sherman and Hamlin leaders have formally notified Col. Lowden that under no circumstances will they throw their strength to him. The reason assigned is that Lowden's combination with Yates in unscaling anti-Yates delegates makes it impossible for Sherman and Hamlin to deliver delegates to Lowden.

The convention was called to order promptly at 2 o'clock.

Governor Yates this afternoon received the following message from Mrs. Richard Yates, Sr., at Jacksonville:

"Stand firm and be of good courage.

"MOTHER."

The great hall was packed with people. The roll was called on the twenty-fifth ballot and developed but little change.

The result of the twenty-fifth ballot was as follows: Yates, 489 440-770; Lowden, 407 335-770; Deneen, 381 545-770; Hamlin, 111 440-770. Warner, 38 440-770; Sherman, 50 440-770; Pierce, 21 440-770.

RULING OF INTEREST

The General Land Office Makes One Covering Four Cases.

"A contest will not be allowed where the grounds alleged therein have been made the subject of investigation and final decision rendered by the department."

This clause is contained in a decision from the general land office, received at the Duluth office today. It relates to four contest cases, brought against settlers, whose commutation proofs were once rejected and later, on investigation by the department, the decision holding the entry for cancellation was reversed and the entries allowed to remain intact, subject to future compliance with the law.

The cases were as follows: Alice Lockerby against Joseph M. Wise, involving homestead entry on lot 7, northeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 12, township 62-22, and lots 4 and 5, section 7, township 69-21; James J. Lockerby against George Schwirtz, involving a tract in section 10, township 69-22; Clary Lockerby against William E. White, involving land in section 12, township 69-22; Charles W. Drake against W. B. Neal, involving land in section 12, township 69-22.

All the cases were practically the same, and in each instance the affidavit of contest is rejected. The defendants made their entries on March 6 and 7, 1902. Their commutation proofs were rejected in August, 1903, on th ground that proper compliance with the homestead laws was not hsown. The matter was appealed, and as a result the following decision was rendered Nov. 10, 1903:

"Your decision rejecting commutation proof is affirmed that inasmuch as there does not appear to be any contest against the entry, nor any adverse claim to the land, and inasmuch as the entrymen may choose to cure the existing defaults in the matter of residence and cultivation of the land, your said decision in so far as it holds the entry for cancellation, is reversed and the entry will remain intact, subject to future compliance with the law."

The several affidavits of contest, alleging abandonment for the past six months, were filed, and on April 4, the defendants each filed a motion asking for the dismissal of the affidavits of contest on the ground that they were in conflict with the decision of the secretary directing that the entries remain intact, and subject to future compliance with the law.

The decision states that, taking the severe winter weather in to consideration, and the limited transportation facilities into consideration the parties contesting did not allow a reasonable time after the notice of the secretary's decision in which the defendants might comply herewith.

VERDICT IS SMALLER.

Mrs. McKenzie Awarded $1450 Against Mrs. Banks.

Mrs. Belle McKenzie, who sued Mrs. Sarah Banks for damages in the sum of $5000 for personal injuries received in being pushed over a woodbox when the former was in a delicate condition, was awarded $1450 by a verdict opened in district court this morning. The jury arrived at the verdict at a late hour Saturday evening.

This is the second trial of the case and the second time that Mrs. McKenzie has been given a verdict.

In the first trial a judgment was rendered against Mrs. Banks of $2650. The supreme court, however, set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial, on the ground that the evidence was not sufficient to warrant the amount given.

Mrs. Banks was defended by W. D. Bailey and Mr. Powell. Mrs. McKenzie was represented at both trials by Marshall & Whipple.

INSANE PATIENT SCALDS ANOTHER.

Indianapolis, May 16.—William V. Cleveland, a patient at the county insane hospital here, was being bathed by an attendant assisted by another patient today. The attendant left the room for a moment, and while away the insane asylum assistant put Cleveland in the bath tub, turned on the hot water and scalded him to death.

MARINE BAND MEMBERS

Forbidden to Fill Places of Union Men.

Washington, May 16.—As a result of a protest of the local union of musicians against the acceptance by members of the United States marine band of positions in the orchestra of a local theater, President Roosevelt has ordered that no member of the band shall take the place of any civilian dismissed on account of a labor dispute. The union had presented the issue in the case to the president, claiming that the dismissals were made because the men refused to accept less than union prices. In compliance with the order no member of the band was in his place in the orchestra when the matinee performance was given this afternoon.

COLORADO'S TROUBLES.

Salient Points In the Mine War Collated.

It may be worth while to collate the salient points in the Colorado mine troubles, which now engage universal attention, because a collusion of jurisdictions is finally before the supreme court of that state for adjustment, says the Pittsburg Post. More than a year ago the Western Federation of Miners sought to enforce an 8hour day regulation in Colorado, having already succeeded in securing agreement to it from the mine operators of Idaho, Montana and Utah, and affirmation of the law from the courts. But the Colorado mine operators characterized the federation officials with being outlaws and unworthy of notice. The officials retorted in kind, and subsequent events tended to support their countercharge.

According to the report on the situation as it is printed in the congressional record, offensive tactics were first employed by the operators, who sent detectives among the miners to report on the memberships in unions, which they had been forbidden to join. Miners on discovery were discharged. The Mine Owners' association of the state joined in the resistance. About a year ago the operators represented to Governor Peabody that the miners were interfering with the work at Colorado City, and he ordered out the militia. Miners were locked up and writs to secure their release ignored, cannon even being planted about the court houses wherein judges endeavored to have writs of habeas corpus served. The writ had not yet been suspended.

So-called agitators were deported from the state without the slightest warrant in law, and miners were kept away from families in unknown camps by processes as sceret and villainous as the lettres de cachet of the French revolution. Wives and children have been driven into virtual exile. On the other hand, the mingrs have used intimidation to keep non-union men away. Dynamite has been used on machinery and the act charged against them, though they claim that ignorant substitutes have caused the explosions while handling the blasting preparations.

The later chapters in the story of lawlessness began only a few months ago, when Governor Peabody ordered 3000 troops into the disaffected region under command of Gen. Sherman M. Bell. Attorney General Miller, a Republican, like Governor Peabody himself, strongly differed concerning the whole procedure. The impetuous conduct of the governor is not connected with any party principle in Colorado or elsewhere, but his speeches and action are ascribable to his individual traits, which are shared in remarkable coincidence by Adjt. Gen. Bell.

Charles H. Moyer, president of the Miners' Federation, was long watched and much wanted. Finally the soldiers, acting under martial law, the writ of habeas corpus having then been suspended, arrested him on the charge that he had desecrated the American flag by twining it about a placard reviling the militia. He was placed in a remote camp, and all attempts to have the charge heard by a civil tribunal were ignored. Judge Theron Stevens of Ouray issued a writ for Moyer's production before him, and, upon refusal of the officers, issued attachments against them. Bell and Capt. Welles and entered fines of $500 against each. The supreme court on appeal next sent forth its writ, which is now being obeyed.

The governor indulged in the most defiant talk of his omnipotence as commander of the military of the state, and of being higher than the supreme court when martial law prevailed. It was at this stage that cooler counsels finally asserted their soothing effect, and an armed guard started with Moyer in charge for the supreme court chamber in Denver.

Comment on the case has been widespread, but the dominant tone has been deprecatory of Peabody's defiance of civil authority while striving to balance the misdeeds of operators and miners in the long series of troubles prior to the Moyer arrest. Not since the Shays' rebellion in Massachusetts in 1786 has a state suspended the writ of habeas corpus. The national constitution provides: "The privileges of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended except in case of rebellion or insurrection, and only then if the public safety demands it." In several state constitutions suspension of the writ is expressly forbidden.

It has been held that its suspension is a legislative function and can only be delegated to the executive by express authority. In 1861 Chief Justice Taney decided, in the circuit court of Maryland, that congress alone possessed the right of suspension. President Lincoln had already suspended it by proclamation in a limited area of country. Taney's decision was against the presidential action, but the attorney general upheld Mr. Lincoln, and at a special session congress passed an act legalizing his acts, and in 1863 another statute was enacted giving him authority so to do whenever in his judgment the public safety required it. Thus, Taney and the now accepted doctrine of legislative control of the matter were confirmed. Even in the civil war, when arrests of disloyal people were necessary, popular sentiment ran against this invasion of the Anglo-Saxon privilege of habeas corpus.

It is in the light of such considerations that the action of the Colorado supreme court will be followed. If Governor Peabody can affirm that he is higher as commander-in-chief of the militia than any court of his state, and can suspend the writ of habeas corpus under circumstances, taken at their worst assay, it will be a revelation to his people, for it is incredible that such powers were ever meant to be conferred. No such condition has ever existed in Colorado as that which confronted Mr. Lincoln at the outbreak of the war. When he suspended the writ an emergency of the direct kind pressed upon him, and congress was not in session.

THE JUSTICE OF JUSTICES.

The police magistrate looked solemn, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

"We must take measures to prevent this lawlessness," he said.

"I have done nothing," asserted the prisoner.

"But you were carrying a revolver," declared the magistrate.

"Solely for self-protection," replied the prisoner. "I am a non-union workman, guilty of nothing but accepting wages that are satisfactory to me and that serve to support my family, but I have been twice assaulted by union pickets, and I don't want to be laid up again. I never have used the revolver, and I never should do so except as a matter of self-protection."

"But you have been carrying it," said the magistrate, "and I shall fine you $25 and costs in the hope that it will teach you to be a law-abiding citizen. We must discourage lawlessness. Call the next case. What's the charge?"

"He beat up a non-union workman with brass knuckles," said the policeman in charge of the next prisoner.

"Wrong, of course," commented the justice. "but we must consider the provocation. What was the non-union man doing?"

"Working," replied the policeman.

"Is he working now?" asked the magistrate.

"No; he's in the hospital with a broken jaw and a fractured skull."

"Oh, well, make it $5 and costs," said the magistrate. "The provocation was great, but we can't afford to overlook the offense entirely."

SHOULD PRAY FOR BRAINS.

A slot telephone was recently put into the shop of a German barber in East New York, says the Brooklyn Eagle. The arrangement was that whenever the telephone took in $5 or more in a month the barber was to have 20 per cent of the receipts as his commission, but was to get nothing if the amount was less than that.

After the first month's settlement the barber, who was shaving one of his regular customers, said:

"I von't nefer again believe in prayer."

"Why not, Jake?" the customer asked. "What has happened? You used to believe in prayer."

"Yes, but since yesterday I don't believe in it any more. Yesterday morning der vas $4.90 in the telephone. If yoost one more man use dat telephone before night, dat makes $5 in it, und I git $1 gommission. So I pray all day dat somebotty vill want to send a message, but der more I pray der more nobotty don'd make anodder 10 cents in der telephone. Und dis morning der man come and find only $4.90, so I don'd git noddings for gommission."

"But, Jake," said the customer, "that was not a proper subject for prayer. You shouldn't expect Providence to do everything for you while you do nothing for yourself. Why didn't you put a dime in the telephone last night? That would have brought the sum up to $5 and entitled you to the $1 commission. You would have been 90 cents ahead by this operation."

The barber stood with the bay rum bottle in his hand thinking profoundly for some moments. Then, setting the bottle on the shelf with a bang, he said vehemently:

"Dot's so. I didn't pray for der right ding. Vot I ought to pray for is a new set of brains in my fool head."

A DISEASE THAT IS RARE.

Mrs. Juniper entered the doctor's office dragging by the hand an overgrown boy of 14, says the Youth's Companion. She was excited and impatient; he was dogged and glum. "Oh, doctor, he has lost his voice! He hasn't spoken a word for two days," she said.

The boy looked at her sullenly, and suffered the doctor to hold his face up to the light.

"Open your mouth. H'm! Tongue all right?"

"Ya-ah."

"Hold your head up and let me look at your throat. Seems to be nothing the trouble there. Push your tongue out. Now pull it back. Feel all right?"

"Ya-ah."

"Why, Mrs. Juniper, there is nothing the matter with him," said the doctor impatiently. "Boy, why don't you talk?"

"How can I when I hain't got anything to say?"

THE REPUBLICAN SCANDAL.

The revelations made during the past ten days concerning the large corruption funds which have been employed by the Republican state central committee in this state to elect the party's candidates have created much talk throughout the state and have disgusted the people. Men who have been professing hostility to corporate influence are shown to have been the beneficiaries of large contributions to their campaign funds by the corporations to whom they pretend to be hostile.

Robert C. Dunn publicly charged in a speech at Minneapolis that Judge Collins was assisted in his campaign for re-election to the supreme court bench in 1894 by President James J. Hill of the Great Northern railroad to the extent of from $30,000 to $40,000 and that this year Mr. Hill was approached by State Librarian Nelson and asked to contribute $25,000 for the present gubernatorial campaign of Judge Collins. Judge Collins and Mr. Nelson both denied the statement and wrote letters to Mr. Hill asking if he had told these stories to Mr. Dunn as the latter alleged and if they were true. Mr. Hill promptly replied that Judge Collins never personally solicited money from him, but declined to state in writing to whom he had contributed and where and when the money was paid, adding that information on these points could be obtained by a personal interview. The answer to Mr. Nelson was in the affirmative, Mr. Hill saying: "You asked me if I had enough interest in the election of governor to contribute $20,000 or $25,000 to a campaign fund if Judge Collins could be nominated."

From these replies by Mr. Hill it appears that he contributed liberally to the support of the Republican ticket in 1894, when Collins was a candidate for judge and Dunn was seeking election as auditor. Thus it will be seen that both Collins and Dunn were aided in their election in 1894 by Mr. Hill. And now when Collins is posing as the foe of corporate influence and attempting to infuse the breath of life in the defunct "merger issue," Mr. Hill says that Nelson, one of the managers of the Collins campaign, suggested a contribution of $20,000 or $25,000 to "help the cause."

These shameful disclosures should be sufficient to arouse the indignation of the people and cause them to bury the Republican ticket—no matter which faction names it—at the polls in November. It is time for the people to clean out the whole gang of corruptionists. The one faction is as bad as the other in this respect. They are all "tarred with the same stick." The corruption funds that have been gathered from the railroad and other great corporations have been used for the benefit of Dunn, Collins, Van Sant and all the other professed defenders of the people's interests. While pretending to be fighting the railroads and combines, they have been the willing beneficiaries of those corporations' contributions to the Republican campaign funds. It is a scandalous state of affairs that calls for emphatic rebuke by the people of Minnesota.

MODERN SCHOOL METHODS.

No doubt inspired by the many and repeated criticisms of modern school methods, the Boston Globe undertook an independent investigation of the question: "Are the new methods of training making better children?" The answers received by the Globe were, as might have been expected, about equally divided on both sides of the question.

William I. Cole of the South End house, a Boston college settlement, concludes that the modern schools take the place of home training when the latter is defective and in so far as this is true, are to be commended, while Mrs. Annie G. Murray of the Boston Children's Institution department says that if there is a distinct defect in the new-fashioned system, it is to be found in the tendency to draw the child away from the more loving home influence and substitute an official care-taker.

Mrs. Murray's views must be a result of seeing only the better homes. Certainly if she could see some places where children are brought up she would at once conclude that an official care-taker could be of no harm to them. Her plan would be best if all homes provided proper training, but where so many do not it would seem that society should do what it can in the public schools to counteract the effect of evil teachings before it is too late.

Possibly on the theory that ignorance of the fundamentals is bliss, Mrs. Kate Gannett Wells, of the Massachusetts state board of education, does not believe that the present methods of training increase the child's endowment of moral strength, but thinks that they do make him happier than did the schools of the past. She says: "Then the child itself did the hard work of the school. Today his teacher does it for him. Then he learned exactness and truth by spelling and grammar lessons. Today he gets these by intuition, and is fed on stories and 'selections' with moral values. Then the home was considered as the training-place of character. Today the school is, and responsibility is shifted to the state."

The truth is that in the past both child and teacher worked harder than they do today. To those parents who have had experience with modern methods, it would seem that too much is left to intuition, with the result that pupils do not learn to spell and read and write and figure as they should. To some it appears that parents are left to do the teaching if they can, while the teacher hears the recitations and tells the stories. That may be harder work for the teacher, but it is hard to believe it. Efforts to make children happier and better citizens are laudable, but as well stated by Mrs. Julia E. Duff, of the Boston school committee, "the consequence of this strange system is that the pupils in our public schools get a smattering of a dozen things and no real knowledge of anything. Especially are the graduates of the public schools deficient in those simple, solid, and essential branches of learning which the child of the old-fashioned system had to learn thoroughly, and which, once learned, were of inestimable benefit to the pupils throughout their subsequent lives."

SHOULD WOMAN EARN WAGES?

The question whether a woman is justified in becoming a wage-earner is discussed in a magazine article by Mrs. Thompson, a vigorous writer, who takes the stand that woman is doing herself and mankind an injury by competing with men in certain professions and industries. Her conclusion is that woman in industry is a "frightful failure." The conclusion is based upon the following grounds: First, the practice of so-called economic independence has achieved for woman financial results indicated in the fact that her average earnings are less than $1 a day. Secondly, the effect of the practice upon economic interests is to lessen efficiency and to increase the cost of production. Thirdly, the effect upon the woman herself is to impair her physical fitness for the maternal function, and to subject her to a false system of education which mentally and morally unfits her for her economic office in the family. Finally, the effect upon society is to promote pauperism, both by increasing the expense of living and by robbing men of the sense of responsibility which gives them force and strength in their natural office of dispenser of wealth to the family.

It is a natural law that an increase of supply of any article will reduce its value. It is certain, therefore, that the increase of labor, if the demand is not correspondingly increased, must result in lessening the wage-earning power. However, since woman has become a factor in the world's industry the demand for labor has increased in proportion. Hence her competition would do no particular harm if she did not work for less wages than a man could afford to labor for. Here is just the trouble with female labor. Many girls who ultimately intend to marry seek light and genteel employment in order that they may equip themselves with finery that would be denied them if they remained at home. Instead, however, of insisting upon sufficient wages to maintain themselves, any number of them depend upon somebody else to assist in their support. This is not only an injustice to relatives, but a positive injury to both men and women employed in the field of industry in which they compete. Thousands of girls are employed throughout the country for wages that would not pay their board if they were compelled to purchase it. When the average woman's earnings are less than $1 per day that certainly is sufficient indication that she is not a success as a wage-earner.

Whether the woman worker lessens efficiency and increases the cost of production is mere guess work, and a matter of individual opinion. Manifestly there are no statistics to prove it. Again the effect upon her physical condition depends much upon the character of her employment. It is unlikely, however, that any change in her physical condition unfits her for the maternal function, because work is natural and ought not to hurt anybody. As well say that attendance at school unfits a woman for the rearing of a family. But the freedom from restraint and the feeling of independence that comes of leaving the home to find employment no doubt has a mental effect upon many that leads them to shun the rearing of a family when they do get married. It also has a tendency to keep many single until late in life. While it is the duty and the true destiny of every normal woman to raise a family, the spirit of independence that comes to a woman who earns her own living may not be an unmixed evil.

It would seem that every woman should have the right to decide for herself just what line of employment she shall pursue, but in the interests of fairness and the advancement of both sexes, she should insist upon sufficient wages to maintain herself, no matter what her employment, after she has passed the necessary period of apprenticeship.

AMERICA'S DRINK BILL.

Delving among the figures furnished by the treasury department, the American Grocer has made some interesting comparisons with regard to the expenditures of the American people for liquid refreshments. It is shown by these figurs that the thirst for alcoholic beverages is increasing at a rather rapid rate, and that the total amount spent for all kinds of liquid stimulants for the year ending June 30 last aggregated $1,451,633,379, a sum considerably in excess of the national debt. Included in these figures are the amounts paid for tea, coffee and soft drinks, aggregating $208,690,261. Of the remainder there was expended for beer, $727,042,245, or three times as much as the bill for non-alcoholic drinks; whisky involved an expenditure of $417,915,513, with an investment of $97,985,360 for wines. The amount of liquor used in the arts does not enter into this calculation.

To state the case a little more plainly it appears from the figures that while the American people expended in the last fiscal year $208,690,261 for tea, coffee and soft drinks, they paid out the enormous sum of $1,242,943,118 for beer, whisky and wine.

The average outlay of stimulants was $90.75 per family of five, or $18.15 per individual. In twenty-three years the average quantity of stimulating beverages, notably alcoholic beverages, used has grown from 10.50 gallons to 19.98 gallons per citizen. Coffee, too, has grown from 8.25 pounds per citizen in 1881 to 10.79 pounds in 1903. Tea, however, is less used.

As one-fourth of the population uses alcoholic beverages, the average annual outlay of "drinkers" is $62.16—a large sum for the indulgence of a dangerous appetite. The proportion of coffee to alcoholic drinks is as $2.61 to $15.54. The use of spirits steadily increases, being 1.46 gallons per citizen in 1903, against 1.12 gallons between 1894 and 1900.

How important it is since the people will consume so much wine, beer and liquor, that it should be free from poisons and adulterants. Perhaps if only pure liquors were sold there would be fewer drunkards and less men to die from "alcoholism." The disease known as alcoholism covers a multitude of sins committed by brewers, distillers and "rectifyers."

It is claimed that the people of the Upper Peninsula of Michigan turned down the mining companies' candidate for delegate to the national Republican convention and that a movement is on foot to establish a primary law so they can do it easier next time.

In awarding damages to a father who had lost a son and daughter in a street railway accident a Newark judge set the boy's value at $6000 and the girl's at $3000. "A woman may become a breadwinner," he said, "a man must be one." The Herald can show him quite a number who are not.

State Engineer Ralph has just reported that Minnesota has thus far spent $7500 for state ditches and that its lands have been increased in value $8,000,000 as a result. This sounds almost too good to be true and yet a small amount of ditching often makes lands valuable that otherwise are practically worthless. However, this report makes a strong argument in favor of ditching.

TALKS WITH THE STATE PRESS.

Whether a woman should earn wages or not is well answered by this item clipped from the columns of the Windom Citizen:

> There is a woman in Windom whose good fortune at the time of her husband's death consisted almost wholly of only five small children. In a little one-room house she maintains herself and children. She has canvassed for books, taken in washing, and hustled in other ways to keep the wolf from the door. And she has done it. She has faced adversity with determination and energy. She has not given up, and loafed around, and appealed to the county to meet all her bills. In comparison with what this woman is doing, how shameful the conduct of some able-bodied men who receive county aid appears.

How children of the brain sometimes get lost is thus related by the Eveleth Mining News:

> There is a newspaper article about the Mesaba iron range which seems bound to get into the classics. It begins like this: "Just about thirteen years ago a lone and weary explorer," etc. After it had appeared in nearly all the range papers, and the week following its appearance in the Eveleth Star, that wonderful newsy newspaper—the Duluth Evening Herald—protested and expressed the hope that this very entertaining and intellectual account of the birth and growth of the Mesaba iron range was about due for consignment to the waste basket, especially as it first apeared "just about two years ago." But it did not stop there. It came out last week in the Duluth Tribunal, and most wonderful of all, credited to the Eveleth Star! Shades of hades!

If The Herald's memory serves it right, the article was written for an Eastern publication by Kirby Thomas, postmaster of Superior. That it must be a very well-written article is evidenced by the fact that so many editors have been willing to claim it as their own.

The matter of abolishing the grand jury is being discussed by the state press and the general opinion seems to be that it should be retained. While the grand jury is an expensive and cumbersome institution it is sometimes a mighty handy thing to have around. It sometimes saves in one sitting more than it will cost in years. It is about the only place where rumors of official thievery can be properly ventilated.

The financial value of an education is thus figured up by an unknown publication:

> The average educated man gets a salary of $1000 per year. He works 40 years, making him a total of $40,000 in a lifetime. The average day laborer gets $1.50 per day, 300 days in the year or $450 per year. In ten years he earns $4500 or $18,000 a lifetime. The difference between $40,000 and $18,000 or $22,000 equals the value of an education in dollars. To acquire this earning capacity requires twelve years at school of 180 days each, or a total of 2160 days. Divide $22,000, value of an education, by 2160, number of days required in getting it, and we find each day at school is worth a little more than $10 to the pupil.

The Bemidji Daily Pioneer celebrated its first anniversary by issuing a special number consisting of twenty-eight pages, mainly filled with write-ups of the enterprising business men of that place. When it is considered that a special newspaper of that size was quite an event for Duluth fifteen years ago, the reader will more readily appreciate the growth and importance of the "hub of Northern Minnesota." Both the publisher of the Pioneer and the people of this thriving little city are to be congratulated upon their success and enterprise.

HOTEL GOSSIP

"That man Dietz who is defending himself down there in Wisconsin is not so much of an outlaw as some people have tried to make him out," said a man yesterday who returned a couple of days ago from the neighborhood where Dietz has been causing all the excitement.

"One man at the town where I was, a railroad man that I've known for a long time told me that he knew Dietz and was well acquainted with him. He said that Dietz was a nice fellow, and that the only part of his make-up that seemed to be hurting people now was that he was not afraid to look out for himself.

"Dietz is not acting haphazard. He knows what he is doing. He's got a dam on his land there, and there's a lumber company that wants to drive some logs down and he will not let them bring down the logs and will not let anyone get near him to serve legal papers on him. The lumber people have been bringing their logs down every spring, and now he wants a settlement with them. He has legal advice and knows just exactly what he is doing. I think, for my part, that he is right and is acting within his lawful privileges, and anyone who thinks he is foolish I believe will be proved mightily mistaken.

"As to his shooting people, there is a lot of magnified talk about that, too. There have been two men shot down there, and as I heard the story, they don't know who shot them. Maybe Dietz did and maybe someone else did. But Dietz's friends do not believe that he did, for he's not a bloodthirsty outlaw, as he has been described, but a man who likes to get along without troubling anyone. But he is not afraid and he is demonstrating it.

"There are a good many large corporations that use the game of bluff on people that they think are smaller than themselves and apt to be easily 'shooed' off the nest. The lumber company would like to bluff Dietz away from the dam, but they can't do it. Dietz has got lots of friends down in that country who are in sympathy with him, and the newspaper correspondents who have been describing him as a sort of wild man and anxious, or apparently anxious, to pot a few people in his neighborhood with powder and ball are doing him a great injustice. Just wait and see if I am right about it.

"No one who has ordinary sense cares to see a man act in the outlandish manner that the newspapers have made out that Dietz has acted. But it is highly overdrawn, you may rest assured of that."

A well-known Duluth woman recently returned from a trip abroad remarks some unpleasant features of shopping in the largest city in the world—London. According to what she says, people who go into stores in that city are expected to buy something and not go out without having contributed some little patronage to the place.

She says she walked into one store and inquired the price of an article.

"Do you wish to buy?" inquired the man behind the counter.

"I want to see what kind you have, as well as the prices."

"I'll show them to you whenever you come in to buy."

The woman was pretty well confused by this time, but told the "gentleman" that she thought she was entitled to some courtesy.

"Oh, I've dealt with Yankees before," was the retort.

"Well, we've at least learned in America to be polite."

"It's a pity you hadn't stopped in America."

This was too much. She left the store and walked up the street, gasping and all out of countenance. Then she would laugh a little until tears would begin coming. She did not know whether to laugh or cry. But it was all the shopping experience she wanted in London. Her husband and she were leaving London next day, and not until then, when all the stuff was packed and they were about ready to take the train, did she tell him. Just how angry he was cannot be described very well, but he was mad enough, and wanted to stay over for a day, but she talked him out of it. So her mercy saved one Londoner "in troide" was probably saved a couple of discolored optics. The woman inquired of some friends who were familiar with London ways, and was told that it was expected that a person entering a store would buy something.

"What if you went into a shoe store and wanted a pair of shoes and they could not fit you," she asked.

"Buy a pair of shoestrings, or a toothpick, or any old thing, but buy something, for it's expected."

She has determined to do all her trading outside of London hereafter.

Gwendolen—That's what Jack thought, and he never gave her a chance to say it.

Chicago Daily News: "Circe," remarked the boarder who had been delving in ancient mythology, "turned men into hogs."

"She must have operated a street car line," said the maid, who had been hanging to a strap all the way home.

Washington Star: "You don't feel any sympathy for the colleague who was convicted of grafting?"

"Not the slightest," answered Senator Sorghum; "his lack of honesty was equaled only by the primitive insufficiency of his methods.

New York American: A man in Arizona, who had been arrested for robbery of an express car, could make a pretty good plea for clemency on the ground of an irresistible hereditary predisposition to crime. His grandfather was a page at the court of the first Napoleon, and must have held up many a train.

New York Weekly: Old Boarder—What's for breakfast? Hope not ham and eggs again.

Waiter Girl—No sir; not ham and eggs this morning.

"Thank the stars! What is it?"

"Oly ham."

Chicago Evening Post: "Are you in society?"

"About half in."

"What do you mean by that?"

"I'm always invited to society entertainments given to raise money for charity—and that's about all."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Fergus Falls Free Press: The crops in Otter Tail county were never in better condition. The season, although somewhat late, has been a very favorable one, and the rains, following the seeding, have been of great advantage to push the grain forward. But this condition is only a local one. In the lower Red River valley and in the level part of North Dakota water still remains on top, and it will be some time before the farmers will be able to seed. C. H. Goodsell returned last week from a trip to the country between Glyndon and Crookston, and he says all the level country has the appearance of a large lake. However, the soil of the Red River valley is very rich, and it is quite likely that the farmers there will be blessed with a good crop. It takes a very short time in this country for a crop to mature.

Altkin Republican: We have some good roads in Altkin county—as good, perhaps, as those in other counties of the same size and age—and the cry for roads that is now being made, instead of being a disgrace, only emphasizes the fact that farm lands are being settled more rapidly than the county's ability to provide good roads. A condition confronts the people that needs heroic action, and being recognized by the members of the Commercial club and many other intelligent observers in the county, the agitation for the issuance of bonds was begun.

Brainerd Arena: They call him Bluff Bob Dunn. That's right, for if he isn't a bluff he isn't anything.

Barnum Gazette: Joseph B. Cotton, of Duluth, has been chosen to second the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for president. Northern Minnesota recognizes the honor thus given, and the selection of Mr. Cotton was a good choice, as a more able speaker would be hard to find.

St. Paul Dispatch: The dairy and food department has detected baroeic acid in the butter color recently prepared from the yolks of eggs, and, therefore, refuses to give it its O. K. As the law reads, prohibiting the use of that preservative, the department takes the only tenable attitude, though it mildens it by suggesting that, as the coloring matter must be diluted, the amount consumed by any person would be so slight as to be hurtless. It certainly would not be as harmful as the analines so commonly used, and whose poisonous nature was so frequently shown by the death of children who had drank them. The department properly banned them. The experiments made by Dr. Wiley, of the agricultural department, with borax and its question clearly demonstrated the absurdity of the crusade against it as a food preservative.

St. Paul Globe: Recent developments in the Russo-Japanese war have deepened the conviction of the world that the mighty empire of the czar is no match in technical ability or in practical daring for her relatively diminutive antagonist. That Russia can be crushed by such an opponent is, of course, impossible. That she has been both outwitted and beaten at every point thus far is palpable.

New Ulm News: One of the weakest objections raised to Judge Parker, a Democratic candidate for president, is that the men who voted against Bryan are now urging his nomination, though Judge Parker himself voted for Bryan in 1896 and 1900. It would seem conclusive the men who twice voted for Bryan have not enough votes to defeat the Republican canddate, and that if the Democrats hope to elect a president they want and need every Democratic vote in the country, without questioning the past. Let him who is without sin cast the first stone.

St. Cloud Times: In a speech made by Theodore Roosevelt at the wool exchange in New York city in October, 1896, he said: "Mr. Bryan and his adherents have appealed to the basest men in the land, the farmers." This man who also viciously traduced the character of the best type of American citizenship now asks their votes for president!

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: A girl can nearly always get interested in a man who has the fascinating qualities of getting interested in her.

Generally the man who wants to borrow from you comes to you smoking a better cigar than you can afford.

You can never make a woman see that it is better finance to earn $5 and spend $1 than to earn $10 and spend $9.

A woman has no doubt she is economizing if she can make the servants burn electric light instead of gas to save matches.

What a woman worries about is if it will seem frivolous of her when her son gets to be president to call him by his first name.

A woman thinks she is coining money if she goes to a shop and gets back an allowance of 27 cents on a ribbon that had a flaw in it, and spends $2 on cab fare doing it.

The Ancient Russian Mariner.

It was an ancient mariner
Who stopped a Journal cub;
"Unhand me!" the reporter said,
"Thou art a fresh old dub!"

"I fear thee, ancient mariner!"
The young reporter said;
"Methinks I hear the merry buzz
"Of drivewheels in my head!"

"I am a ghost," the sailor said,
In accents strange and low;
"I sailed from old St. Petersburg
About a month ago.

"Snug in our strong torpedo boat
For ten long days sailed we;
We were the worst that ever burst
Into the Yellow Sea!

"And when he struck the Yellow Sea
We went upon a drunk—
The Japs attacked us savagely
And straightway we were sunk!

"Upon the bottom lay our boat;
Happy! Well, I don't think!
Water, water everywhere
And not a drop to drink!

"When we were tired of staying sunk
We rose with might and main,
And then the Japs would rally round
And sink us once again!

"Thus we were sunk, my lad, about
Three dozen times I guess;
First by the Japs and then by the Associated Press!

"And Hearst, he sank us fifteen times
With much red ink and gloom,
So I have journeyed here to haunt
His presidential boom!"
—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Part of the Game.

New York Sun: The Hon. Cornelius N Bliss is fitted by training, experience and habit to be treasurer of the national committee. Mr. Roosevelt will furnish the fine sentiments. Wall Street must butter the parsnips. Neither the Republican nor the Democratic party has any prejudice against a fat campaign fund. To get it, and abuse the donors, is part of the game.

HIBBING NO MATCH

Range Team Does Not Give White Sox Fair Practice.

Saturday and Sunday Games Little More Than Farces.

Hibbing proved to be no match for the White Sox, and did not even furnish them with good practice in the games played Saturday afternoon and yesterday. Both games were won by the home team in the easiest kind of a fashion.

Shaw pitched Saturday's game and Gehring pitched yesterday. Both twirlers had the visitors at their mercy, and had they not let up toward the end, the range men would have made a much poorer showing.

The White Sox made little effort to pile up a score in either game, and played horse with the visitors after the third or fourth inning.

The score on Saturday was 16 to 7 and yesterday 17 to 10.

Several Duluth players appeared in Hibbing uniforms. Geiselman, Bennett and Potter played Saturday, and yesterday Wegman was behind the bat. "Si" Bennett put up a star game both in the field and at the bat, his pite of the fact that his old team mates were "laying for" him. In Saturday's game he had two hits to his credit and accepted seven out of eight chances in the field.

Hibbing did not have a look-in for the first five innings on Saturday. Only eighteen men faced Shaw during that time, and but two hits were scored off his delivery. In the sixth inning, however, he let up a little, and Bennett, the second man up, rapped out a hit, stole second, and raced home on a scratch single by Freeman. It was a pretty piece of base running, and the sun gods showed their appreciation. Freeman came home on a hit by Welsner.

In the seventh the visitors went out in short order. In the eighth "Si" got to first on Zink's error and scored on Freeman's hit.

In the ninth, with the score 15 to 3 in his favor, Shaw commenced to pitch straight lobs over the plate. Ulrich, Calligham, Geiselman, Bennett and Goldie all got hits, three of them being two-baggers. Four runs came before the side was all nely retired.

The White Sox started after Freeman in the first inning. Corrigan went out Freeman to Welsner, but Ball rapped out a two-bagger. Randall got first on an error and O'Leary followed with a two-bagger scoring Ball and Randall.

In the second inning Quillan hit the first ball pitched to the fence in deep center and was safe on third before the fielder could return it. Lagger went out to first. Shaw got his base on an error, Corrigan hit, scoring Quillan, went to second on a passed ball, and scored on an error.

In the third Quillan got a base on balls and scored on Lagger's triple.

The Sox went out one-two-three in the fourth and got an unearned run in the fifth. Hits by Ball and Randall scored one in the sixth. In the seventh Martin hit and Quillan connected with one of Freeman's gentle curves for a four-bagger.

In the Eighth the White Sox showed what they could do. Ball was given transportation, Randall hit for two bases bringing Ball home. O'Leary hit out a single, scoring Randal. Zink hit safely and O'Leary went to third. Martin sent out an easy infield hit and O'Leary started for home. He was caught between bases, but the third baseman dropped the ball and he pantered across the plate. Quillan was given a base on balls, got to second on an error and scored on Lagger's hit. Lagger was caught trying to steal home. Shaw went out Freeman to Welsner, and after Corrigan had got to first on an error, Ball went out on an infield hit. Six runs resulted from the carnage. Quillan's batting was the feature of the game. He got a home run and a three-bagger, and scored four runs out of twice at bat.

The White Sox worked in two double plays during the game. One was in the fourth inning when Welsner and Potter were retired by Shaw, Martin and Zink. Again in the eighth Lagger and Zink retired two on a fly which Lagger pulled down after a long run.

Yesterday's game was witnessed by a crowd of over 1200 fans and several hundred small boys who had reserved seats on the fence. It was won by Duluth in the first three innings, when fifteen runs were scored, and two pitchers were knocked out of the box.

Whittman started in to pitch for the rangs men. The first inning was a batting carnival. Koukalik hit the first ball for three bases, Ball walked and Randall bunted. Koukalik was tagged out at the plate, but Hughes scored Ball with a sacrifice. Zink brought in Randall with a two-bagger, and Martin went to first on Bennett's error. Wilkes banged one up against the fence for two bases scoring Zink and Martin. Lagged singled and Wilkes scored. Gehring hit safely, and Koukalik's second two-bagger scored them both. Ball hit to the pitcher and Koukalik ended the agony by being caught napping at third.

Hibbing got two in the second on a hit by Goldie, four bad ones to Welsner, and a two-bagger by O'Connell.

Wagner replaced Whitman in the second inning, but he fared no better. Zink, Martin, Lagger, and Gehring got hits and a base on balls and an error netted Duluth four runs.

Four more were added in the third, while Hibbing secured two.

Freeman then replaced Wagner in the box, and while he held the White Sox down better than his predecessors, they had little trouble in hitting him at will. But two more runs were added in the next five innings, however.

Gehring braced up after the third and shut the visitors out for four innings, when he again eased up and allowed them to score two runs in the eighth when Goldie hit for two bags with two men on bases.

Loose play in the ninth allowed Hibbing to add four more runs in the ninth and the final score stood 17 to 10.

The game was a listless one. The Duluth team played tag with the visitors and the play lagged. Zink's batting was the feature, the big first baseman securing four singles and a double out of six times at bat.

MUSICIANS MEET IN NEW YORK CITY.

New York, May 14.—Delegates from all large cities have arrived here to attend the annual convention of the American Federation of Musicians, which, it is expected, will continue through this week. This year's session is of unusual interest, from the fact that it is the first convention of the American Federation of Musicians since the Musical Mutual Protective union of this city became affiliated with the body. For many years a large and influential faction of the Musical Mutual Protective union opposed affiliation with the federation on the ground that the latter, having a charter from the American Federation of Labor, was identified with trades unions in every mechanical calling.

Spring Sale of Linens

We are proud of the reputation of our white department, and we are proud of the envious position it holds as the most reliable linen store in the city. It demonstrates the correctness of our policy in insisting on perfect linens only, and in representing them for just what they are—pure, if they are all linen—union, if they are not. You feel that there is absolute security at all times in buying linens here. Our spring sale of linens began this morning and continues until Wednesday night. You know what it means when the white department quotes values like these:

Bleached Table Damask—10 pieces of the best Irish flax, very heavy and guaranteed to wear—all new open border designs, (no napkins to match). A special for Tuesday only to take the place of the odd pattern cloths which were sold out today. This number we bought and reserved for our spring sale. It never sells for less than $1.75 the yard. Come tomorrow if you would benefit by this one day price $1.25

Full Bleached Satin Table Damask of pure Irish linen—two yards wide—nice, new, tasty designs—cheap at 90c the yard. A number we bought in a fifty-piece lot, giving us the very lowest prices possible, and we pass it on by making our sale price 64c

Real Marseilles Bed Spreads—A very heavy quality in the newest patterns; a well-made spread. Our regular price is $2.75 and is cheap at that. Another extraordinary bargain for this sale at $1.95

Twenty-Five Doz. Napkins Reduced—An accumulation of eight different numbers, including ⅝ and ¾ sizes. None have sold for less than $2.98, while most of them have sold at $3.98; these are not soiled but are the most perfect goods we have. All pure linen. Consider the 25 per cent advance in flax which advances linens the same, you'll see the wisdom of investigation— per dozen $2.69

$1.35 Snow White Satin Damask for 98c—Full two yards wide, pure Irish linen damask, in heavy and over weight—also extra fine, highly finished and medium weight—very choice designs. We are making it a matchless leader for this sale at the price of 98c

F. A. Patrick Nine Defeats Northern Pacific In Commercial League.

Many Games Are Played All Over the City.

The amateurs were busy Saturday afternoon and yesterday, and many games were played in the different parts of the city.

The Commercial league season was opened Saturday afternoon at the driving park when the F. A. Patrick team defeated the Northern Pacific men by the score of 19 to 5. The grounds were rough and many errors resulted. Criteinfield, the pitcher for the railroad men, was hit freely, while Menelce pitched good ball for the dry goods men. The jobbers had seven errors marked up against them, while the losing team made eight. Wegman, Ceska, Menelce, McDougall and Hannold had two base hits to their credit, while Menelce also had a three-bagger.

MISSING BROTHER.

Thomas Jenik In City In Search of One.

Thomas Jenik, of St. Paul, is in the city attempting to solve the mysterious disappearance of his brother, John Jenik, a Turk, from the north shore lumber camp of W. C. Sherwood.

Sherwood's camp is 15 miles from Grand Marais and Jenik left there six weeks ago. Since that time nothing has been heard from him, and his relatives fear he has met with foul play.

When Jenik left the camp he went out to inspect some timber, with another man. The latter returned, claiming that he became separated from the Turk.

Janik had two drafts from a Turkish financial institution on a Buffalo, N. Y. bank, aggregating twenty-five pounds. He also had about $30 or $40 on his person.

A search is being conducted through the north shore woods with the view of finding the body, if Jenik is dead.

Jenik's effects were found in the possession of the man with whom he went out in the woods, but there is said to be no reason for believing they were taken except for safekeeping until claimed by the authorities.

TO BURY CHAMBERLAIN.

Poor Commissioner Finally Decides to Do It.

The remains of Edward Chamberlain, a pauper, will be buried at the county poor farm today, instructions having been given to that effect by A. P. Cook, secretary of the board of poor commissioners.

Chamberlain's body has been lying at Durkan & Crawford's morgue for five days, waiting a settlement of the difference of the poor board and the county coroner as to which department should be responsible for the expenses of the burial.

If the burial of the body had not been ordered to take place today by the county authorities, the city health commissioner stated that he would take the matter in hand from a sanitary point of view.

The undertakers say that if the county authorities had not taken steps to take care of the body by today they would have appealed to the state board of health.

REDUCTION IN STEEL BOUNTY.

Cologne, May 16.—The German steel combination has reduced the export bounty from 15 marks, as hitherto fixed by the association for the manufacture of half finished steel, to 12½ marks instead of to 10 marks, per ton, as was previously announced. The reduction will go into effect in the third quarter of 1904.

THE STAGE

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

METROPOLITAN—"Why Girls Leave Home", also Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and Wednesday afternoon.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Otis Skinner in "The Harvester."
METROPOLITAN—Latter half of week, Kennedy Stock company.
LYCEUM—Friday and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoon, Al. Field's Minstrels.

AL. H. WILSON.

Al. H. Wilson was given a very gratifying reception at the Lyceum, Saturday evening in "The Prince of Tatters". The attendance was fairly large and Mr. Wilson was enthusiastically applauded after every one of his many opportunities in the vocal line. The play is a very pretty one dealing with New York in the olden days.

Although Mr. Wilson as the Prince of Tatters was practically the whole show he was given creditable support.

Mr. Wilson has already sung his way into the hearts of the Duluth theatergoers and they were in no way disappointed with his melodies on this occasion. If anything Mr. Wilson's voice is better than it was a year ago when he visited the Zenith City.

"WHY GIRLS LEAVE HOME."

"Why Girls Leave Home" will be played at the Metropolitan tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday nights and Wednesday afternoon. It tells the story of the temptations to which young girls are exposed in a great city but points to the moral that true nobility of character and soul is the best safe guard of all young women. The subject is said to be handled with great delicacy and reverence by the author who has made a play that cannot but interest all. The scenic equipment is said to be unusually attractive; especially the cafe scene in the second act which is described as being particularly effective. The cast is a very powerful one, it is said, numbering among its members Walter Walker, Robert Smiley, Oscar Briggs, Miss Ellen Boyer, Miss Anna Marie Schaeffer, Walter Gilbert, Miss Gaunthier Pottery, Miss Florence Lois Weber, Miss Katherine Cherry and many others.

OTIS SKINNER.

The atmosphere of Otis Skinner's new play "The Harvester," which he will present at the Lyceum, Tuesday and Wednesday, takes one back to the dreams of childhood reinvesting the land of Longfellow's "Evangeline" with picturesque grace and poetic charm. The scenes are all laid in a semi-Arcadian village of the French-Canadian border in the year 1859, and the characters are typical of the French, half-American, that was lived in that day. The proximity of Indians and trappers infused the one rugged strain in an existence otherwise entirely pastoral. It was a simple, devout community that worked hard in the fields all day, and at night prayed fervently for God's blessings on themselves, their soil and their cattle.

One day a handsome, young stranger walked into the village with a song—naught else—and asks for service among the reapers. He comes from distant lands over the seas and calls himself "The Harvester". He beguiles the maidens with strange stories of far countries and sets the men by the ears with his masterful ways and prodigious strength. It is not long before he wins the love of Tolnette, the fairest girl in the countryside, and then the moving story old in essence as the eternal hills, but ever-new in its manifold incarnations, arises and takes its romantic course.

THE KENNEDY COMPANY.

The Kennedy company has gone to Hibbing and Virginia, but will return Tuesday and that evening and for the rest of the week will present "Faust."

WADSWORTH FINED.

Fall Lake Saloonkeeper Pays For Selling to Minor.

George Wadsworth, a Fall Lake saloonkeeper, indicted by the grand jury for selling liquor to a minor, pleaded guilty to the charge Saturday afternoon and was sentenced to pay a fine of $30 and costs, the total amount being $45 which he paid.

Wadsworth would not have an attorney, but looked after his own case. He admitted that had sold liquor to a young man but claimed that he did not know his customer was under age. He claimed that he would not have sold the liquor if he had known the boy was a minor.

Andrew Peterson, another liquor dealer of Fall Lake, who was indicted for the same offense was released on a bond of $100, his case to be tried later. In Peterson's case it is charged that his bartender sold two glasses of beer to a minor, Alfred Olson by name.

The complaining witness for the state in both cases was the father of young Olson.

EPISCOPAL MONASTERY

On the Hudson River Will Be Dedicated on Thursday.

New York, May 16.—Prelates of the Episcopal church from all parts of the country will participate on Thursday in the dedication of the monastery of the Order of the Holy Cross, at West Park, a little hamlet on the west bank of the Hudson river, ten miles above Poughkeepsie. The ceremonies will consume the entire day. Bishop Whitehead, of Pittsburg, acting at the request of Bishop Potter, will preside. The principal address will be made by the Rev. Father Osborne, the superior of the society of mission priests of St. John the Evangelist.

The new monastery has been built on an elevation almost on the water's edge. The grounds consist of seventy acres, and a large part of these are already under cultivation. More than 2500 grape vines have been planted, and cattle and horses installed. There are also several hundred fruit trees, designed to provide a revenue for the maintenance of the order. The fathers will help till the soil and reap the harvests.

There is a common room in the monastery for the professed fathers and one for the novices. There is also a common room for guests. Each of the fathers has a room or cell for his own use.

The Order of the Holy Cross was founded in New York city in 1880 as a religious community of priests. Vows of poverty, chastity and obedience were required to be taken. For the past twelve years and up to this removal to West Park, the order has occupied a house at Westminster, Md.

SECRET MARRIAGE.

Chief Executive of Baltimore Weds Beautiful Widow.

Baltimore, May 16.—Mayor Robert M. McLane, whose independent course since his inauguration caused dismay to the Democratic organization, yesterday furnished a surprise to the general public.

Without giving anyone an inkling of his purpose he quietly slipped over to Washington with Mrs. Mary Van Bibber and went to the parsonage of the St. Andrew Protestant Episcopal church, where they were married. Both Acting Mayor Timanus and Secretary Rodgers were under the impression that the mayor had gone to New York on political business and nothing whatever was known of his real mission until a telegram received from the mayor by his close friend, Deputy City Solicitor Edgar Allen Poe, announced the marriage.

Mrs. Van Bibber is the widow of Dr. John Van Bibber, a well-known alienist. She is one of the handsomest women in Baltimore.

QUEER SCHEME

To Get Money From Missing Man's Wife.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 16.—What appears to be a queer confidence game was worked at Richdale. Mr. Ekert, proprietor of the hotel there, lost $50 a few days ago and worried until he finally started out with a gun. After he had been gone some time his wife became alarmed and asked two or three of the boarders to go in search of him. In a short time one of them returned and informed her that he had found Ekert in the woods; that he was thoroughly demented and was raving over the loss of the money. He suggested that it would be well to take $50 out and show it to Ekert, as the impression that it had been found would probably restore his reason.

Mrs. Eckert secured $50 and gave it to her son, who started with the boarder for the woods where Ekert was supposed to be raving. The boarder told the boy that his father might shoot, and he had better give him the $50 and he would approach Ekert cautiously. The boy gave him the money, the boarder went on ahead and has not returned.

Quick Arrest.

J. A. Gulledge, of Verbena, Ala., was twice in the hospital from a severe case of piles causing tumors. After doctors and all remedies failed, Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly arrested further inflammation and cured him. It conquers aches and kills pain. 25c, at all druggists.

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

Social, Musical and Art Circles.

In view of the stir made by the announcement of the exhibit which the police departments of the United States would show at the World's fair, an editorial of the Business Woman's Magazine for May is interesting. It says:

"A prisoner in one of the penal institutions in an Eastern state writes pertinently of an important matter, and his own words need no comment or additions. He has served a long term, now almost at an end, for a crime committed while he was but a boy in the company of experienced criminals. The years, the best one of his life, spent in return for this crime, have certainly given him opportunity to know something of the criminal impulse, hence, in his own way he expresses a great truth in law making and enforcing that it would be well for our judges and legislators to have constantly in mind. He says:

"Some time ago I noticed in the Globe-Democrat that the police departments of the great cities would have an exhibit at the World's fair the devices used by safe-blowers, burglars, house-breakers—in fact all the paraphernalia of a thief's wardrobe. What in the world are the more intelligent people thinking about to allow things of this kind to be on exhibition? Why in the d——l don't they rent a hall and give the young mind lessons in how to become a sucessful safe-blower and house-breaker, terms, say—$5 down and balance at the end of his term in the penitentiary?"

NEW CLUB HOUSE.

Golf Club to Have Brilliant Function.

This evening the formal opening of the new Northland Golf club house will take place, and with this affair the opening of the golf season, with its many social affairs, will be started. For this evening's opening a large number of invitations have been issued and a brilliant and very fashionable social event is promised. The directors of the club and their wives will receive, and after the inspection of the house, there will be dancing. Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Pressentin, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Hoopes and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. House will receive.

BEAUTIFUL VOLUME.

Bible Handed Down From Sixteenth Century.

The most beautiful volume among the 500,000 in the congressional library at Washington is a Bible which was transcribed by a monk in the sixteenth century, says the New York Press. It could not be matched today in the best printing office in the world. The parchment is in perfect preservation. Every one of its thousand pages is a study. The general lettering is in German text, each letter perfect, without a scratch or blot from lid to lid. At the beginning of each chapter the first letter is very large, usually two or three inches long, and is brightly illuminated in red and blue ink. Within each o fthese capitals is drawn the figure of some saint, some incident of which the chapter tells. There are two columns on a page, and nowhere is traceable the slightest iregularity of line space or formation of the letters. Even under a magnifying glass they seem flawless. This precious volume is kept under a glass case, which is sometimes lifted to show that all the pages are as perfect as the two which lie open.

A legend relates that a young man who had sinned deeply became a monk and resolved to do penance for his misdeeds. He determined to copy the Bible that he might learn every letter of the divine commands which he had violated. Every day for many years he patiently pursued his task. Each letter was wrought in reverence and love, and the patient soul found its only companionship in the saintly faces which were portrayed on these pages. When the last touch was given to the last letter the old man reverently kissed the page and folded the sheets together. The illustrated intials in perfection of form and brilliancy of color surpass anything produced in the present day. With all our boasted progress nothing in Europe or America equals it.

MUST SQUEEZE TIGHTER.

Waist Must Be Smaller, Says the Dressmakers.

Feminine waists are to grow smaller in deference to the new shirred skirts. With the waistband of the comfortable dimensions which has been prevalent the past season or two, a full gathered skirt would be a fearful and wonderful thing. But this shrinkage in the belt measurements does not by any means indicate a return to the hour-glass form with the high bust and prominent hips. Nor will the girdle clasp creep upward to the place it occupied when full skirts were in flower some years ago. No, indeed, the "dip front" and "straight front" are to be as pronounced as ever, even if the girdle is shorter by some inches. No cruel tightening of the corset strings will be required to bring about the result either. It will be accomplished by the adjustment of lines and curves merely, and the best models with a view to producing these effects.

Art and careful practice will be required, also, in the putting on of the stays. So much depends upon this that most corsetieres give demonstrations by model at their rooms. The main point, however, is to pull the corset well down into place before attempting to draw in the lacings at all, and never, never to think of wearing it one day with the adjustment of the day before. Each putting on must be a law unto itself.

With this precaution in mind, a moderately stout woman can look trim and shapely, with row upon row of gatherings about her hips. If, however, she has passed beyond the "moderately" class she should turn her back resolutely upon the shirring string and all its works. For her there is a great big "Thou shalt not," which forbids her hiding her newly acquired slimness under a mass of draperies. A nice, perfectly fitting yoke top to her skirt, with one or two corded gatherings beneath, is as much of this pretty girlish fashion as she can hope to enjoy. But even this is a wonderful concession for Dame Fashion to make. Of late years, above all, when it would seem that only her tall, willowy sister had a chance to be well gowned, there are innumerable ways by which Mme. Avoirdupois can make herself not only presentable, but absolutely stylish as well, by making a study of the geography of corset curves and putting gatherings and ruchings where they will do the least harm.

Dance a Fine Success.

Saturday evening a delightful informal dancing party was given at Harmonie hall at Lester Park by the local members of the Minnesota State Music Teachers' association. The object of the party was to help raise the funds which will be necessary to continue the convention of the association, which is to be held here in June. La Brosse played delightfully and a large number of the musical people and others interested in the work carried on by the association were present. The committee in charge was composed of Mrs. James McAuliffe, Miss Carlotta Simonds, Mrs. D. H. Day, George Tyler and Gerard Tonning.

First week he will introduce three new dances: The Bellefield waltz, Mazurka, and the Duquesne, also a novel game dance, called football waltz, for which he will give a prize to the person making the most goals.

THE EVENING STORY.

THE WAY TO A MAN'S HEART

By Joseph Bnrnett.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.

Herbert Mulford was thoroughly dissatisfied with himself and with his lot in life. He had awakened to the fact that riches do not necessarily bring happiness.

He had challenged fortune in the arena of life and had won the joust. He was a very rich and a very powerful man.

He had gone at it early and worked unremittingly. He had been fortunate, as well as faithful, and found himself the possessor of great riches before he had reached 40.

When he found his fortune secure he had turned to the enjoyment of it. "Now," he said, "I will indulge the dreams I have dreamed all these years of grind." But the flowers of fancy had turned to ashes at his touch. The desires of his youth proved to be a mirage when put to the lips. Society bored him, the pleasure resorts drove him distracted; travel tired him, and Europe nearly landed him in a madhouse. The moment he left the fascinating game of business he became lonesome, homesick and discontented. Once back at his desk his enthusiasm returned, he felt at home, satisfied, confident and ardent to pursue the game.

Of course he enjoyed the freedom and the creature comforts his great wealth gave him, and he lavished money on his personal expenses without stint. But he was compelled to admit that his life was circumscribed by the limits of the business world, and that no pleasures, no society, no higher or other ambitions or activities could be his. He yearned for a home, yet shrank from the thought of matrimony. He yearned for leisure and repose, but was unhappy away from the ticker. He dreamed of reveling in art and literature, but realized that they were for no half-hearted suitor, and knew that he was tied to his idols.

The home yearning was the strongest of all, and he bent to it to the extent of securing an establishment with a retinue of servants. Here he generally slept, and sometimes ate—in lonely grandeur and from a menu prepared by a $500 chef whose autocracy was approached only by his stupidity. But more often he dined at the clubs or the exclusive restaurants, where, at least, he did not feel apologetic to those who served him. His living cost him a great sum, but ever and anon, as he awaited some particularly expensive course, or left the table, drowning his disappointed appetite in the aroma of a Havana cigar, there would flash before his mental vision the old dinner table at home—on the rock-strewn farm. He could fairly smell the steaming dishes on the red tablecloth, and it sometimes seemed that he could reach the great platters of fried chicken and the fragrant dishes of vegetables and the great plates of homemade bread.

Of all these things had Mulford been thinking one afternoon, after a futile attempt at lunch at the club, as he wandered perfunctorily throught a great apartment building of the cheaper class on which he was about to make a considerable loan. For once the business in hand seemed of secondary importance and he lounged idly through the labyrinth of halls and corridors unseeing and unaware, his soul full of bitterness and his body full of weariness. Of what avail his successes, his money, his power, when it could not buy for him that which he craved—his lost youth and freshness and joy?

He leaned against the wall heavily, oppressed by the gloom of his thoughts. Presently he was aroused by a pungent odor which permeated through his thoughts and his bitterness and assailed his sub-consciousness—an odor which galvanized into very life the memories with which he was struggling. Yes, surely it was—no, it could not be; but, yes—no—yes, most certainly it was the odor of fresh-baking bread—none of your bakery smells, but the real aroma of home-made bread. He glanced at the transom through which the tempting odor came. At this instant a stalwart young fellow came charging around the corner, and without as much as looking at Mulford, slammed open the door beneath the fragrant transom.

What followed Mulford heard involuntarily.

"Hang it, Mabel; no luck!" said a masculine voice. "Not a red cent until they hear from old Jasper. Confound the luck! There goes the strawberry shortcake, after all our planning."

"Never mind," replied a feminine voice, soothingly. "I've got the crust all ready to put in the oven, and we will have some hot biscuit, anyway."

"Yes," replied the other, moodily, "with this blamed tallow stuff instead of butter. I'm sick of this pinching along on short rations—and we had our mouths all made up for a luscious strawberry shortcake—one of those with the berries all mashed up so you can't see the crust—like we used to have in the country."

Suddenly it occurred to Mulford that he would give more for one of those old-fashioned strawberry shortcake than for anything else he could think of. A vision of his boyhood days came into his mind and he could fairly smell and taste the rich, red mess. Then he realized, with a start, the fact that he was listening, and he turned to move on.

The door burst open and the young man burst into the hall with a small pitcher in his hand, evidently going for some milk.

Mulford again caught the aroma of the new bread, and formed a sudden and desperate resolution.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he said, "but I was an involuntary listener to a part of your conversation just now. I am a bachelor and once lived in the country. I have been in the city a long time, and it is many years since I had anything good to eat. Could I without offense, suggest that I would feel it a great personal favor if you would permit me to furnish the necessary ingredients and to have a share in the feast. I haven't had a decent strawberry shortcake for twenty years."

The young man flushed hotly, but before he could speak Mulford went on:

"I do not presume to say this as an offer to assist you. It is a proposition of which I am to be the chief beneficiary." He smiled in that persuasive way which had helped him in so many deals.

The young man's face cleared and he replied: "All right, sir; I'll take you at your word. Come on and get the stuff and we'll give Mabel a surprise."

So presently Mulford found himself shopping industriously. He insisted on getting the biggest and finest berries, and in the most unheard-of quantity. Then he insisted on getting a quantity of the finest butter, and a sack of the most fragrant coffee, and other things as he saw them. As they went back to the apartment, loaded with bundles, Mulford smiled at the thought of the picture he presented.

He had learned during the shopping that the young man's name was Milton Wenham and the young woman was his sister. Left orphans without means, they had come to the city, where he was working in an office days and studying law at night, while Mabel was taking in sewing and devoting her afternoons to perfecting herself on the piano, with a view to teaching. Their ambitions made the most rigid economy necessary.

Such a feat as followed certainly never happened before or since. Mabel took the intrusion in good part and Mulford, with the grace of a polished man of the world, put all at their ease. As to him, he swore to himself and to them that never before had he tasted anything half so good. That evening he went home better satisfied with himself than he had been for years.

This was but the precursor of many dinners at the Wenham flat. Mulford was forever sending up something to serve as the foundation of a feast. He got to haunting the markets looking for good things. Gastronomy seemed to have become his ruling passion. But it was not all gastronomy. After dinner Mabel would play and sing, and they had the most delightful sessions. One Sunday Mulford took them all out to the beach, and after this many little excursions followed. He began to plan theater and opera parties and enjoyed their enthusiasm, which really was quite contagious.

Well, of course, there was all but one ending. The reader has seen it coming all along. And when, one day, Mulford took Mabel in his arms and asked the old, old question, and saw the lovelight in her eyes, he knew that his days of unrest and bitterness were over and that new vistas opened out in the great sunny world.

Work on Street Begins.

The work of tearing up Superior street between Sitenth and Twenty-third avenues east was commenced this morning. Contractor McDonnell will have a force of about 200 men employed at the work. The tracks of the Duluth street railway company will be placed on one side of the street while the other side is being paved. No delay will be occasioned on account of the non-arrival of the mixing plant, as Mr. McDonnell states he will not be ready to use it for nearly a month yet.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Leading Stockman Near Dickinson Shot and Instantly Killed.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Dickinson—Ole P. Ziner, one of the leading stockmen of this section, was shot and instantly killed Sunday, at his ranch, thirty miles north of here. The shooting is said to have ben done by B. K. Climie, but there are no particulars known.

Mandan—State's Attorney Campbell returned from investigating a case of homicide, near Hebron. According to the charges, John Houser and Jacob Klutz, neighboring farmers, quarreled over some cattle. Klutz shot at Houser and struck his arm. Houser replied with a rifle, but his aim was bad, and instead of hitting Jacob he struck Henry Klutz, a brother, and killed him. The killing took place just over the line in Mercer county. Houser is in custody.

Grand Forks—Judge Fisk has granted Clint Walhood a divorce from Mamie Walhood and given her the custody of a 5-year-old son. She is also awarded $100 and $15 a month from June 1 as alimony and the husband is required to pay all expenses of the suit, including Mrs. Walhood's attorneys' fees. Walhood asked for the divorce on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment and infidelity.

An appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals has been taken from an order of Judge Amidon in refusing the claim of John Goldstein for $1000 of exemptions from the bankruptcy firm of Goldstein & Aronovitch, of which he was the financial member. The case will be argued at St. Louis in December.

Fargo—This city will be the scene of one of the most elaborate "Seventeenth of May" celebrations, Tuesday, ever held outside of Norway, and an immense gathering of Norsemen from North Dakota and Minnesota is confidently expected. The chief event will naturally be the Bjornson "bauta" stone, the gift of Erik Gude, the Norwegian sculptor, who also designed the monument.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Huron—The son of J. M. Stiver, aged about 7, was killed in a horrible manner. He was holding a horse and to make his hold more secure, wrapped the tie-strap about his wrist. The horse became frightened and in its flight dragged the boy to death.

George Phial and wife, residing on a farm, were severely injured by a runaway team. Mr. Phial's injuries may prove fatal.

Chamberlain—The local land office is already being flooded with inquiries regarding the opening of the Rosebud reservation and inquiries are coming from all portions of the United States. There is every reason to believe that the rush will be second only to the great Cherokee opening several years since. Estimates that 20,000 names will be registered are considered conservative.

Rapid City—The first wagon for the spring roundup on the western South Dakota cattle range will leave Fort Pierre on May 18, and will commence work at the mouth of the Yellow Medicine creek. Wagon No. 2 will leave Fort Pierre on May 25, working westward. On June 1, wagon No. 3 will commence work at Bull Creek dam. Along Mission creek wagon No. 4 will start on May 25, and on the same day wagon No. 5, which will be known as White river wagon, will also commence work on Mission creek.

Sioux Falls—Judge Jones has sentenced "Rev." Charles A. Lyons, a self-confessed bigamist, to four years at hard labor in the penitentiary. It was argued in behalf of the prisoner that the marriage mania was the only crime that could be charged against him. His attorney also expressed the opinion that Lyons would not live for three years longer, as there was every indication that he had a blood-clot on the brain.

DULUTH LUCKY THIS SPRING

Winds Such as to Settle Ice Blockade Very Quickly.

All danger of trouble from the floating fields of ice is now past, according to statements made by an old lake captain this morning. The ice is now so far gone that no matter how hard the wind may blow from the northeast the local harbor cannot be blocked so that a boat will be unable to make its way through it.

"Duluth has been unusually lucky this spring so far as the blocking of the harbor after the breaking up of the ice is concerned," said Capt. H. G. Inman, of the Union Towing and Wrecking company, today. "Since the ice field was broken there has not been a day that a small lake boat could not readily steam through the canal and make her way down the lake. On the day of our worst blockade, when the ice was packed from half a mile to a mile out from the shore, the little Bon Ami made her way through the field and continued on down the lake unobstructed.

"It not infrequently happens in the spring of the year that the harbor is completely blocked for short periods, one, two or three days, sometimes even longer, but I think that all danger from this source is now past as far as the present season is concerned. The ice was pretty well honey-combed when it broke up, and since then the repeated shiftings up and down the lake, with the many warm days we have had have combined to further lessen the danger. The fields are now pretty well packed against the south shore, and from now on there is little need for the lake men to entertain fear of them.

"The prediction made some time ago that the Fourth of July would find ice floating about in the bay will hardly be carried out this year. By June 1 all the ice should have disappeared. An occasional floating chunk may bob up now and then, but inside of three weeks I believe that every vestige of it will be disappeared."

Whooping Cough.

"In the spring of 1901 my children had whooping cough," says Mrs. D. W. Capps, of Capps, Ala. "I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with the most satisfactory results. I think this is the best remedy I have ever seen for whooping cough." This remedy keeps the cough loose, lessens the severity and frequency of the coughing spells and counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. For sale by all druggists.

"DOPED" AND DECEIVED

Kentucky Physicians Try to Cure Woman of Hysteria.

Louisville, Ky., May 16.—Carefully wrapped in bandages and laboring under the delusion that she has undergone a dangerous operation for a tumor in the stomach, a New Albany, Ind., woman lies at the Kentucky university here while her physicians are carefully watching her in the anticipation that their unique deception may permanently cure the hysteria with which she has been afflicted for several months.

The patient was operated upon. Since that time her physicians says she has been constantly harassed with the hallucination that there would be an ultimate recurrence of the tumerous growth. About three months ago she sustained a fright, which upset her nerves. A few days afterward she fancied she detected symptoms of a recurring tumor. Her physicians could find no trace of the growth. She insisted on an operation, however, and the physicians arranged the deception.

Enough opiates were administered to reduce her to a state of semi-consciousness. She could hear and feel vaguely, but could see nothing. The physicians, speaking gravely, spent considerable time in delinitely locating the supposed tumor. When all was in readiness one of the doctors produced a pitcher of ice water, which he held above the part supposed to be affected, and allowed a drop to fall at intervals of ifteen seconds. With each drop of water the patient winced and occasionally groaned as if in great agony. Once or twice she could be heard to whisper that the doctors be careful and not cut her too deeply. Finally, when it was thought the hoax had been successfully carride to completion, the doctors swathed the patient in bandages and had her removed to a room.

On awakening she found herself in the presence of two trained nurses, who are keeping up the deception by not allowing her to move a muscle. Although she has the appetite and strength of a normal woman, she lies perfectly passive and submits cheerfully to the diet of clear broth. The physicians say they will allow her to leave the infirmary in about three weeks.

THE HUMAN ALARM CLOCK

Peddler's Voice Calls Residents of Indianapolis From Bed.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 16.—In the cast of caharacters that play the drama of life in Indianapolis every day, there is one whose appearance on the stage is demanded in certain quarters of the city at a certain time every day. Unless he appears there are hundreds of Indianapolis people who have to make excuses for being late at the store, office or shop.

That character is "Tom" Horton, the peddler, known as "The American Dago," but more recently styled "The human alarm clock." Horton is an oddity. About twenty years ago he became a huckster, and has followed that business on down the years, although a few years ago he put aside his wagon to become the pusher of a fruit cart.

He lives at 520 West Court street, and is a familiar figure in that end of the town. He is always clad in blue overalls. He has passed the fifty-year mark, but his voice has not aged. In fact, it is his voice that has given him the sobriquet of "The human alarm clock."

His voice and his punctuality are Horton's best known features. Every weekday morning Horton leaves his West Court street home to make his tour of the city. He goes east to Senate avenue, thence north to Vermont street. He pushes his cart at such a regular speed that time might be measured by it. That fact is responsible for his new title of "The human alarm clock."

As he goes ambling along behind his cart his thunderous voice can be heard for two blocks distant. His cry is:

"Sweet navel oranges, 20 cents a dozen! Bananas are 10 to 15 a dozen! Great big lemons!"

That voice serves to awaken hundreds of sleepers in the district he visits every morning between 6:50 and 8 o'clock. Nearly everybody in Vermont street, between Senate avenue and Illinois street, depends that Horton's familiar call to awaken them. They get up by it. Occasionally he makes a sale to "the lady of the house," who, of course, has arisen earlier than the people who work down town. Were Horton to fail to make his daily rounds he would be responsible for any number of cases of "late" at the office. Seldom it is that he fails to enter Vermont street at Senate avenue later than 7 o'clock. He boasts of being punctual, and the people living in the streets through which he pushes his cart depend upon the old peddler to awaken them.

THEY FOUND BODY OF A DOG

Officials Expected to Unearth Evidence of Great Crime.

Hempstead, L. I., May 16.—Three officials of Nassau county made a midnight pilgrimage to the Greenfield cemetery near Freeport, where they opened a freshly dug grave with the expectation of uncovering a possible clew to the mysterious case of the woman who was found dead in the cemetery a month ago.

They did not succeed, but they did learn how great an affection a beautiful young woman may have for a dog.

Late in the afternoon a well dressed man and woman got off a train in Freeport and asked John Losea what he would charge to dig a grave on lot No. 847, Columbia Heights, a plot of land owned by the Long Island Realty company and ajoining the Greenfield cemetery.

Losea replied that he "wouldn't charge nothin'," for he wouldn't dig the grave. He didn't want to get mixed up in any more mysteries. But straightway he reported the matter to Arthur B. Wallace, justice of the peace and coroner, and Wallace reported it to his father-in-law, Dr. J. H. R. Denton, who acts as medical examiner, and Dr. Denton reported it to Ira H. Baker, the Freeport detective and constable, and Baker reported it to nearly everybody in town.

There the matter ended until early twilight, when another report went forth that a Brooklyn hearse had been seen slowly wending its way to the cemetery, and plot mentioned.

There were many whispered conferences among officials in Freeport, and a great getting together of spades, guns and lanterns. At the midnight hour six forms stole across the fields to the burying ground.

Half an hour later these dusky forms might have been seen half hidden in a grave, making the dirt fly like woodchucks, and again they made a picture with white faces in the lantern light prying open a costly metallic casket there in the lonely cemetery.

And whose features were those which the lantern light fell upon? It was the placid face of a well nourished Newfoundland dog. About his neck was a pink ribbon and a collar, which revealed that his name was "Pete." About his body was a silken winding sheet, and his head reclined on a hand-embroidered pillow. "Pete" was inscribed on that also.

Quickly the officials closed the casket and lowered it into the grave.

They learned later that the dog belonged to Miss Grace C. Macoy, who lives with her parents at 494 Decatur street. In the house are many costly paintings of Pete, and Miss Macoy tearfully related the sad story of his recent illness and death. She owns the plot of ground in question, and upon it she intends to build a house, and wished to have the dog's grave near.

REWARD OF $1000

Offered For Capture and Conviction of an Abductor.

Mother Crazed By Kidnaping of Her Little Girl.

New York, May 16.—Moved by sympathy and compassion for Mrs. McCahill, the hardworking widow whose only child, Josephine, was in all probability kidnaped a few days ago, and as an added incentive to the speedy rescue of the child and the capture and conviction of her abductor, Senator James J. Frawley, Tammany leader of the Thirty-second assembly district, and Isaac A. Hopper, of the Hopper Construction company, have each offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who kidnaped the child.

Meanwhile, Mrs. McCahill is in a serious condition at her home, 1832 Third avenue, as a result of the physical strain and fatigue which she underwent Friday in her fruitless search for the little girl so dear to her.

Twenty miles is the distance which Mrs. McCahill must have traveled on foot, for she was too proud to ask assistance from neighbors or friends, who would have supplied her with transportation.

Friday, about noon, Mrs. McCahill received a letter from Peter E. Pulis, chief of police at Ridgewood, N. J., telling her that eight miles in the country from that place was a little child under medical treatment, name unknown, who it was believed, had been stolen, and suggesting that Mrs. McCahill come to Ridgewood and drive out in the country and look at the child and see if it was her Josephine.

The almost frenzied mother started at 5 o'clock in the afternoon for Ridgewood. Husbanding her small means she walked from One Hundred and Second street and Third avenue to the Fort Lee ferry, at One Hundred and Thirtieth street, North river, a distance of three miles, took the ferry and then a trolley car to Patterson, N. J.

Here Mrs. McCahill started to walk to Ridgewood, a distance of seven miles over rough country roads and much of the way through the woods. She arrived at the Ridgewood police station at 9 o'clock at night, only to be told that it had been learned that the child in the country, eight miles further, was named Converse.

Anxious lest some news of her lost child might have reached home during her absence, she bravely started back on her seven-mile tramp to Patterson, and by trolley to Fort Lee, and then walked the three miles to her home.

After toiling up five flights of stairs she fell at her own door, at 1:40 o'clock in the morning, and was only revived by the friend who is caring for her. With not a mouthful to eat in her 20-mile journey, covering nine hours, she sank back on the bed and begged for news of the child, only to be told that no news had come. Her feet were so swollen that he shoes had to be cut from them, and yesterday she was almost crazed with anxiety.

"Oh, if I only knew she was dead!" cried the grief-stricken mother in her delirium. "This uncertainty is killing me. I never cease to pray for the child's return, but I am almost crazed with grief."

The distracted woman told the truth. She was very near the verge of losing her mind, and a doctor from the Harlem hospital was summoned, who gave her a sedative and something to allay the burning fever.

The police of the Twenty-third precinct are doing all in their power to find the lost child, and four men are constantly working in the case, but thus far without a single ray of hope.

"As much has been done to find this poor little one as though she were the daughter of a millionaire," said the sergeant at the desk.

NEGOTIABLE SECURITIES

To Be Subject of Inquiry By the Census Bureau.

Washington, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—An inquiry into the volume and character of the negotiable securities in the country has been determined upon by Mr. North, the director of the census, with the approval of the secretary of commerce and labor. Such an inquiry was recommended to all the leading governments of the world by the international institute of statistics some nine years ago. Thus far the work has not been taken up in an exhaustive manner by any of the European governments, but the statistics of incorporations and the issues of securities are more readily accessible in the chief European countries than in the United States.

Mr. North has become convinced that an inquiry which would show the vast amount of wealth in this form in the United States, with the fluctuations in market values and the rise or fall of the rate of interest, would have much scientific value and is a necessary part of the pending census report on wealth, debt and taxation. The inquiry will cover the security issues of the federal, state and municipal governments, railways, banks, street railways and industrial enterprises.

Much of the work will be done under the direction of LeGrand Powers, who is in general charge of the statistics of wealth, debt and taxation, and Professor Henry Farkuhar. Mr. North has, however, asked Charles A. Conant, treasurer of the Morton Trust company, of New York, to act as special expert in the matter with the view of suggesting the lines of inquiry, bringing together the available data regarding foreign countries and preparing the report.

ALL MILLS AT WORK

Thousand Men Engaged In Sawing Lumber at Duluth.

Night Shifts Will Nearly Double Number—Other News.

The sawing season is open full swing at the head of the lakes and all of the mills are now manufacturing lumber. About 1000 men are now being employed in this industry alone and if all the mills were running with two shifts this number would be almost doubled.

The last mill to start was that of the St. Louis Lumber company. It has but one contract thus far outside of its own sawing, that of 500,000 feet for the McAlpine Lumber company. The contract with this company was expected to be a large one, when it was first made, but it is said that the amount to be sawed will be far below the estimates. There are, however, some other contracts in sight for the mill that are likely to insure it a pretty steady summer run.

Nolan Bros. & Laird started their mill last week and will cut steadily all the season. The company is receiving plenty of logs on the St. Louis river drive.

The Longyear Lake Lumber company has resumed mill operations and will cut about 15,000,000 feet this year.

N. Mills, formerly general manager of the St. Croix & Duluth Logging road from Dedham, to the St. Croix river, is in the city for a few days' visit.

Mr. Mills after severing his connections with the Empire Lumber company, which owns the St. Croix road, was in charge for some time of the construction work on the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road. About two years ago he left for the South and built about 70 miles of road into the timber country of Arkansas. Later he went out to the Pacific coast where he has been the last year in charge of railroad construction through the mountain district of California. He expects to return to the coast in a few days.

Mr. Mills has built a great deal of logging railway, the St. Croix & Duluth road having been constructed under his supervision several years ago.

INTERVIEW WAS COSTLY

To Nat Goodwin, Who Paid Old Gambling Debt.

New York, May 16.—A faro game down in Louisville two years ago, in which Nat Goodwin overployed himself by $15,000, had a highly exciting sequel in New York last week.

Two thousand dollars of the losses, which had never been paid, were collected from the comedian by Bob Gray, of Louisville, after the Kentucky man had said a few persuasive words in a tone of voice most astonishing to hear from a quick, undersized man of his very modest and gentlemanly bearing.

Gray's decision to come to New York for a personal settlement was influenced by learning that the actor was booked to sail for Europe Wednesday. Mr. Gray has returned to Louisville and is not walking, either.

It is said that Mr. Goodwin and Mr. Gray were to have met here Sunday to talk business. For some reason, not known, Mr. Goodwin did not keep the appointment.

By 9 o'clock Mr. Gray was mad clear through. He went to the Broadway theater, and upon inquiry was told that Mr. Goodwin was in a box viewing the performance. He sent down a card by an usher.

"Tell him I can't see him until the act is over," was the comedian's reply.

"Very well, go back and tell him I'll wait," was the message Gray returned. As the curtain descended Goodwin made his way to the lobby. He was accompanied by two or three gentlemen. He had gone a short distance when he was overtaken by Mr. Gray, who accosted him and asked him for a conference. It was granted. When Mr. Gray is in the mood he was in then, few of his requests are denied. He and Mr. Goodwin talked earnestly together.

Then people in Broadway began to hear parts of the conversation. It ran like this:

"Nat, I want the rest of that money."

"I haven't got it, Bob."

"Well, then, you must get it.'

It was a command delivered in a stern, though well controled voice. The speaker bore no hostile demeanor. He stood easily, with his hands in his trousers pockets.

"I'm going to have that money, Nat. You are going to pay me tonight.'

"Oh, no; I'm not going to shoot. I'm not going to kick up a sort of a shindig. I haven't got a pistol in my pocket."

There was an accent on "a pistol" that carried chills with it. Gray still stood with his hands in his pockets.

"You are going to pay me tonight, or, by heaven, you won't sail for Europe tomorrow morning."

"I haven't got the money," protested the actor in an undertone.

"Well, go get it. You can get it. You know you can get it. I know you can get it."

"How many minutes do you want?"

Some other words passed, which were not caught by any other than the two principals. Then they moved slowly from the theater lobby to Broadway. They walked up the street to the Metropole. There George Considine was called into conference and agreed to cash Mr. Goodwin's check for $1000.

FOR THIRTY DAYS.

Chisholm Woman Is Brought to County Jail.

Mrs. John Gustafsen, of Chisholm, has been lodged in the county flail to serve a thirty-day term for drunkenness. Mrs. Gustafsen was charged with being drunk, disorderly and with neglect of her children, the youngest dying a few days ago because it did not have the proper care. Mrs. Gustafsen is indignant over the charge that the child died of neglect, and claims that it died a natural death. She alleges that her arrest was caused through the efforts of enemies and she accusses her husband with being largely responsible for her plight. She denies that she had been drunk, or that she ever neglected her children in any way.

Two of her children Mrs. Gustafsen has consigned to the Children's Home, of this city. They will probably be sent to the state school. The oldest is 12 years old.

Duluthians to Go.

It is expected that a total of 10,000 delegates will be in attendance, and a class of 1000 candidates will be initiated into the order.

NOT IN A MEDLEY.

"Star Spangled Banner" Is Barred By National Guard.

In an order giving instructions regarding the coming annual state encampment at Lake City, received yesterday by Maj. Rosche of the Third regiment, from Adjt. Gen. Libbey, there is a provision prohibiting bands of the Minnesota National Guard, when on duty with troops, playing "Star Spangled Banner" as a part of a medley. It will be played only as a selection by itself.

The annual encampment for the Third infantry will be held this year from June 14 to 23. Under the new orders infantry men will not be allowed to send a substitute, and it is ordered that violations of this rule be prosecuted under the military code. This year Col. Charles A. Van Duzee of St. Paul will be in command. Inspection for the state will be made by Maj. Gerlich of St. Paul.

MIDDY DROWNED.

Heroic Efforts to Save Him Proved Unavailing.

Annapolis, Md., May 16.—Midshipman Phillip Brittingham, of Wheeling, W. V., a member of the third class of the naval academy, was drowned about two miles north of the academy yesterday afternoon. The young man left the academy dock in a sailing launch with Midshipmen Anderson, Henderson, Towers and Stevens, all of the third class. The boat was without center board or air tanks, and being caught by a strong gust of whid, capsized and sank immediately. The five young men struggled in the water for about twenty minutes before succor reached them from another academy boat containing several other midshipmen. As the rescuing sailboat came near oars were thrown to the struggling men, but Midshipman Brittingham was unable to grasp his. Midshipman C. T. Blackburn, who was in the second boat, plunged overboard, and in his heroic attempt to rescue his drowning classmate, was dragged under. Both came to the surface and Midshipman R. R. Steuart bravely went to the assistance of Blackburn. Their combined efforts proved unavailing and Brittingham sank in seventeen feet of water. The other four midshipmen were picked up and the rescuers dove overboard in repeated but unsuccessful efforts to find the body.

Midshipman Brittingham was 19 years of age and a son of Rev. Joseph Brittingham.

HONOR FOR CATHOLIC

Daughter to Have Marriage Ceremony Said By Cardinal

Satolli Will Come From Rome For That Purpose.

Philadelphia, May 16.—The pope has permitted the breaking of a vatican rule, and will permit Cardinal Satolli to come here from Rome to perform the marriage service in July, when Miss Helen Maloney is to become the wife of a young lawyer, named Rigely. It will mark a departure from a time-honored rule of the Catholic church that no one of the rank of cardinal may leave Rome on any mission other than one from the vatican.

This friendship between Martin Maloney, the girl's millionaire father, and Cardinal Satolli began three years ago, at the time when France began her anti-Catholic crusade. By the news that the French government had placed under the ban the communities of Jesuits and various orders of the sisters, the Philadelphia millionaire was aroused to action. As a loyal Catholic he decided that it was his duty to sacrifice at least a part of his great fortune to save the charitable and educational orders that were included in the ban.

Without communicating with any of the officials of the church, Mr. Maloney hurried to Paris on his self-chosen mission. Through a firm of Paris lawyers he purchased three of the largest of the convents in the city that are devoted to educational interests. A little later he purchased a fourth one, that is engaged in the rescue of women and girls. Having procured these valuable properties, the Philadelphian called on the sisters in charge of them and informed them of the steps he had taken.

"These convents belong to me and I am an American citizen," said Mr. Maloney. "The French government cannot touch you or molest you, so long as the title is in my name. Go on with your good work, and so long as I live you may be sure that there will be no interference with you."

Mr. Maloney returned to his home in Philadelphia and it was several months before the report of his generosity by chance reached the vatican. Pope Leo then instituted an inquiry concerning the American who had done so much for the church. Cardinal Satolli could only say that he was an American Catholic. His holiness thereupon commanded that an inquiry be made concerning him.

The papal representative found a modest man living quietly in one of the old-fashioned homes of Philadelphia. Mr. Maloney was greatly astonished that anyone in the world, much less the pope, should evince any interest in his affairs. He said he had done only what any loyal Catholic might have done under similar conditions for the sisters in France.

A few weeks later Mr. Maloney was bidden to come to Rome by a papal telegram. There he had an interview with the pope. Much to his astonishment the pope conferred on him the title of marquis, one of the highest in the gift of the church.

Mr. Maoney returned only a week ago from another pilgrimage to Rome, and it was on this visit he happened to mention to his friend, Cardinal Satolli, the fact that his daughter, Helen, was to be married in July. The cardinal asked him if he could not have the honor of performing the marriage ceremony.

Cured His Mother of Rheumatism

"My mother has been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism," says W. H. Howard, of Husband, Pa. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all times walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried, in fact, she is never without it now and is at all times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with." For sale by all druggists.

WOULD BE A CIRCUS RIDER

Ambition of Young Maryland Girl of Aristocratic Lineage.

Washington, May 16.—Elizabeth Calvert Austin of the famous family whose fortunes were closely connected with those of Lord Baltimore in the early days of the Maryland colony, and whose ancestors fought under Washington in the devolutionary war, dressed herself in her brother's clothes Saturday, cut off her hair, and ran away from her home at Proffitts Station, Va., to become a circus rider.

Miss Austin is 17 years old, tall, slender and pretty. The fact that she did not succeed in getting away and was taken back to her home the same night, tearful and repentant, was due to the good sense of a brakeman on the Virginia fast freight, who notified the Washington police that "a mighty pretty girl, dressed in a gray sack suit, several sizes too large," had stolen a ride on his train from Proffitts Station to Alexandria.

According to this same brakeman, Miss Austin has nerve enough to be a circus rider, or almost anything else. When he was on his run to Alexandria Saturday morning she was sitting on the edge of a flat car, swinging her feet over the side, and engaged in the apparently congenial task of cutting her hair off close to her head with a dull penknife.

"Won't you please help me?" she said to the brakeman, and the brakeman helped.

Afterwards he explained to the police that Elizabeth was half through the operation when he arrived on the scene and that she had made such ragged joo of it, he thought he might as well help. So he got a pair of scissors from the caboose and trimmed her hair almost as well as a professional barber could have done.

When the freight train reached Alexandria, the brakeman gave the girl some good advice and took her to the home of a woman friend, who supplied her with a complete outfit of woman's clothes, bought a railroad ticket and started her for home.

But Miss Austin did not go in that direction, for two hours later she appeared at the Florence Crittenton mission in Washington and asked if she might stay there for a while.

She explained, with aparent sincerity, that she was a professional circus rider, but had been ill and consequently was out of a position.

Saturday night members of her family here located the girl in Washington. Her uncle, William P. Early, came after her and tok her home. She said she had run away because:

"Things were so awfully slow," in Proffits Station, and because "circus riders have such an exciting time."

She admited that she was sorry, and said she would stay at home in the future. Her father declares he will see that she does.

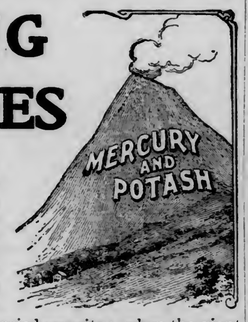
SLEEPING VOLCANOES



A thin, vapory smoke, lazily ascending from its crater, may be the only visible sign of life in the sleeping volcano; but within is a raging sea of fire, molten rock and sulphurous gases. Those who make their homes in the peaceful valleys below know the danger, and though frequently warned by the rumblings and quakings, these signs of impending eruption go unheeded. They are living in fancied security; when the giant awakes with deafening roars, and they are lost beneath a downpour of heated rock and scalding ashes. Thousands of blood poison sufferers are living upon a sleeping volcano, and are taking desperate chances, for under the mercury and potash treatment the external symtpoms of the disease disappear, and the deluded victim is happy in the belief of a complete cure; but the fires of contagion have only been smothered in the system, and as soon as these minerals are left off will blaze up again. Occasional sores break out in the mouth, a red rash appears on the body, and these warning symptoms, if not heeded, are soon followed by fearful eruptions, sores, copper-colored splotches, swollen glands, loss of hair and other sickening symptoms. Mercury and potash not only fail to cure blood poison, but cause mercurial Rheumatism, necrosis of the bones, offensive ulcers and inflammation of the stomach and bowels. The use of S. S. S. is never followed by any such bad results. It cures without the slightest injury to the system. We offer $1,000 for proof that it contains a mineral of any description. S. S. S. is an antidote for contagious blood poison, it destroys every atom of the virus and purifies and strengthens the blood and builds up the general health.

Bowling Green, Ky., Mar. 24, 1902.
Gentlemen: For over four years I suffered greatly from a severe case of contagious blood poison. I went to Hot Springs, staying there four months at a big expense. I then consulted physicians, who prescribed Mercury. Nothing did me any good; in fact, the treatment proved more harmful than beneficial. I mentioned my case to a friend, who told me that S. S. S. had certainly cured him. I at once commenced its use, and after continuing it for sometime could find no trace of the disease whatever. This was about two years ago. I can truthfully say I am entirely well. D. M. SANDERS.

DIVORCED TWICE

In an Hour, an Alleged German Countess Faces Jail.

Both Husbands Obtained By Advertising In Certain Papers.

New York, May 16.—Divorced twice in one hour!

This record was established last week in the supreme court by Mrs. Maria Susanna Elliott, who has also borne the name of Maria Susanna Fedora Elizabeth Von Schwartsenberg, said to be a German countess, Mrs. Maria Bruchie, and Mrs. Maria Habedank.

And now it is likely that this distinguished defendant will be charged with bigamy after District Attorney Jerome has digested the contents of the papers involved in these suits. One of these comprises a letter in which the defendant, after castigating one of her husbands, says:

"A millionaire for mine next time!"

Justice Leventritt, after severing the bonds which bound two men to one woman, ordered all the evidence and papers submitted to Mr. Jerome, with the recommendation that action be taken as quickly as possible.

The two men who in the same hour, in the same court, were freed from the same woman, are aKrl J. Bruchle, a prosperous New York builder and contractor, sixty-five years of age, who has been identified with the building trade for forty years, and who married the defendant on February 24, 1903, and Charles F. Habedank, of 261 Floyd street, Brooklyn, who was united to the woman in Jersey City, October 31, 1903.

It is asserted by Morgan & Chilton, of No. 140 Nassau street, representing both plaintiffs, that when Mr. Bruchle married the woman she already had at least one husband living, named Robert Elliott. Mrs. Elliott declared this man was dead, but the lawyers produced a witness who testifies that two years after her announcement of his death Elliott was seen alive.

Mrs. Elliott is a really handsome woman, of German extraction, vivacious and engaging. She is rather plump, rosy and has much personal magnetism. Her eyes are round and bright, and she looks her questioners straight in the face, and smiles sweetly when occasion requires. She has pretty teeth. The woman is apparently the personification of ingenuousness, and looks like anything but a schemer.

In the latter part of 1902, the papers set forth, Karl J. Bruchle, then residing at No. 1160 Second avenue and engaged in a prosperous contracting business read an advertisement in a New York paper intimating that the advertiser was an agreeable woman.

Mr. Bruchle answered it and met Mrs. Elliott, who told him she was a German countess—Maria Susanna Fedora Elizabeth von Schwartsenberg. A few months afterward Bruchle married the woman, who is about thirty-five. This was on February, 24, 1903.

They were married in Washington, coming soon to this city and living at the Second avenue home, which Bruchle fitted up elegantly, he swore.

He says that he soon discovered his wife had a mercenary strain in her make up, and that she took his furniture and personal effects, and even went so far as to barricade his house against him. They lived together six weeks.

Bruchle then left her, believing that she desired only to get all she could out of him and give him no affection or even consideration.

According to Morgan & Chilton, then Mrs. Bruchle advertised for a new husband. Charles F. Habedank, employed in William street, New York, and living at No. 261 Floyd street, Brooklyn answered one of the "ads." and met their author. After a very short acquaintance the pair were married by a justice of the peace in Jersey City, on October 31, 1903—about seven months after the Bruchle alliance was contracted. Mr. and Mrs Habedank kept house in Brooklyn about two weeks. Then, Habedank alleges, his wife left him, on hearing that he was not blessed with a surfeit of worldly goods.

Habedank, through a chain of circumstances he himself cannot now explain, discovered the existence of the Bruchle marriage, and sought the contractor. They held a conference in New York, and the Amalgamated Order of Maria's Husbands went in a body to the lawyers, where the cases were gone over thoroughly and the woman's antecedents looked into.

It was then decided that Bruchle should first sue for absolute divorce, on statutory grounds, his wife having lived with another man subsequent to her marriage to him. Habedank, it was agreed, should simultaneously institute an action for annulment of his marriage to the woman. Both men are widowers.

Both cases were called last week in special term, part III., of the supreme court. Only a few witnesses were called, it being regarded as unecessary to prolong the cases while evidence of the character submitted was at hand.

Two letters were submitted by Morgan & Chilton, who received them from Mrs. Elliott. They follow:

"January 28, 1904.

"Messrs. Morgan & Chilton:

"Gentlemen—In regard to the statement of Karl Bruchle, may answer is that he cannot have annulment of his marriage, nor can he have a divorce, as he lived with Mrs. Bush two weeks after we were married. I lived only five days in his house. Three of these we were on good terms. He is worth nothing. His first wife had to support him.

"A millionaire for mine, next time!

"The smaller a man is the worse he treats his wife.

The other letter was as follows:

"January 28, 1904.

"Now having time, I will answer the sworn statement that Karl Bruchle. I was married on the 24th of February, 1903, in Washington, D. C., to Karl J. Bruchle. After three weeks he left me. I had him arrested, and he promised to pay me $3 per week. After two weeks' payment ceased. He has not paid a cent since. To hear him talk one would think he had thousands, but he never bought a wedding ring. He promised automobiles and fine houses.

Two Men Killed at Quarry In Dramatic Manner.

Winona, Minn., May 16.—An accident Saturday afternoon at the quarry of theBiesanz Stone company, at Minnesota City, resulted in the killing of Charles Miller, the under foreman of the quarry, a married man, with a wife and two daughters residing at Minnesota City, and the fatal injury of Joseph Sines, foreman of the quarry, also a Minnesota City man, married, with a wife and four children.

A three-rail railway has recently been built up the side of the bluff to the stone quarry. Contrary to orders, the two men were riding down on a loaded car of stone Saturday afternoon, when, just below the switch, the cable broke and the car started toward the bottom with frightful rapidity. The car jumped the track and the men on board and the load of stone were thrown out. The empty car going up was also released and came back and struck the other and was also derailed. Miller was frightfully mangled and was killed instantly, and internal injuries were received by Sines, who was also cut and bruised, and died a few hours later.

His Settlements of Trespass Cases to Be Investigated.

Frank Eddy Scouts the Claim of "Accidental" Trespass.

St. Paul, May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Public Examiner S. T. Johnson will investigate the official conduct of State Auditor S. G. Iverson to ascertain the truth of the story that Mr. Iverson, since he became state auditor, has settled timber trespass cases for less than double or treble the appraised value, the thing that Mr. Johnson says Robert C. Dunn of Princeton did.

"Yes, I have read statements in Twin City papers that Mr. Iverson has not enforced double or treble penalty in timber cases, and when I get through with his office I will know whether the story is true."

People who have examined the records in Mr. Iverson's office say that he has settled several cases of "accidental" trespass on the basis of the appraised value of the timber. The law provides that double the value of the timber shall be paid for accidental trespass and treble the value when the trespass is wilful.

A case against Irwin & O'Brien of Bemidji, which was settled July 19, 1903, is one of several, according to these people, in which the state received only the value of the timber. The state cruiser reported to Mr. Iverson that this firm cut 161,050 feet of pine logs worth $5 per M and 106,830 feet of spruce, tamarac and balsam, worth $3 per M. A member of the firm appeared at the auditor's office and stated that the timber had been cut by mistake. Being convinced that this was true, Mr. Iverson settled for $5 per M for the pine and $3 for the rest.

Frank M. Eddy of Glenwood, who has been in St. Paul the last few days, says that there is no such thing as accidental trespass. He says that scalers employed by timber companies can follow the section lines as closely as a business man can trace the confines of his own lot.

"It makes me laugh when I read about a lumberman pleading accidental trespass," said Mr. Eddy. "There is no such thing as accidental trespass. Let anyone get over on the property of one of the lumbermen and see how quick the lumbermen will point out the boundary of his tract. I scaled lumber for the Northern Pacific railroad for years and I know that a scaler can follow a section line with as much ease as a farmer can walk in a road."

Quiet has prevailed in political circles in St. Paul since the publication of James J. Hill's letters to Judge Collins and State Librarian E. A. Nelson. Because Mr. Dunn has stopped talking, some of the Minneapolis papers have accused him of being "muzzled" by Joel P. Heatwole and W. E. Verity, two Dunn managers. Mr. Dunn denies that this is true and says that he will talk, whenever he wants to tell the people anything.

"I will talk whenever I please and will say what I want to have the public hear," said Mr. Dunn yesterday. "I have engaged in no mud slinging, but if I am pressed I may have something to say that will be more interesting than any utterances I have made up to the present time."

Judge Loren W. Collins denies the report that he plans to bring a libel suit against Robert C. Dunn of Princeton for stating that he had received financial support from James J. Hill in the campaign of 1894.

"I haven't the slightest idea of doing anything of the sort," says Judge Collins.

* * *

Representative William C. Fraser, of Rochester, who was in St. Paul yesterday, says that Olmstead county will give a complimentary vote to Former Senator A. T. Stebbings of Rochester, candidate for the Republican nomination for railroad and warehouse commissioner, and that the delegation will be for Judge Collins on the governorship.

"Senator Stebbings will be approved by Olmsted county but he will not have a fighting delegation," said Representative Fraser. "The county, I believe, will be for Judge Collins for governor."

RIDDLED WITH BULLETS.

Ex-Policeman Assassinated By Unknown Parties.

Denver, Col., May 16.—Lyte Gregory, an ex-policeman, was assassinated early yesterday morning when he was returning home from a social visit with friends. His body was riddled with bullets and he died in his tracks. It has been discovered that the assassin used a repeating rifle, for in all ten bullets penetrated the murdered man's body. No positive trace of the assassin has been found. Gregory had recently served a detective agency and was one of the men accused by William Wardjon, the national committeeman of the United Mine Workers, of assaulting him on a railroad train near Salida, Col., recently. Wardjon was badly beaten and declared that four of the detective agency men were his assailants. Gregory had just returned to the city, having been absent several weeks. Letters found on his person indicated that he was aware of Wardjon's accusation.

PORT WING IS OPEN

Portage Entry Company Already at Work Quarrying Stone.

Little Wisconsin Town Will Have a Busy Season.

W. V. Grubb, local manager for the Portage Lake Quarries company, received word Saturday afternoon from Superintendent George Froney, at Port Wing, Wis., that the ice was so broken up at that point that no difficulty would be encountered in getting a tug and scow to the quarry company's dock to load stone. A tug and a scow was sent to Port Wing last evening to return with the first load of building stone by tomorrow.

The quarry company will have a very active season at its Port Wing quarry, where about fifty men are now employed getting out stone.

Several large building projects over the Northwest have been awaiting the delivery of Port Wing stone, there being no other way of getting it out, except by way of the lake.

The company has between 10,000 and 12,000 feet of stone on the Port Wing dock at the present time and the shipments are to be rushed to Duluth as fast as possible.

Nearly all of the stone sold through the branch office of the quarry company here will be sawed and cut by the William Penn company, which has cutting works on both sides of the bay.

Among the large contracts for stone this season, already made through the Duluth office are the following: Courthouse at Antigo, Wis.; court house at Windom, Minn.; 100 carloads of stone for a Catholic cathedral at Chicago; a large furniture factory at Winnipeg; Good Shepherds' home, Soo City; armory, St. Paul; two flat buildings, Minneapolis; large business block, Toronto; business block, Racine, Wis.; business block, Omaha, Neb.; business block, Kansas City; school building, Superior; bank building, Moorhead.

Other large amounts of the Port Wing stone have been sold through branch offices in other cities, the shipments of which will not be made through Duluth.

The quarry company has completed this winter a new 75 by 150-foot dock on Lake Superior front at Port Wing, and has plans ready for another 215 by 60-fot extension to be made another season.

TAMMANY TO HELP PARKER

If Majority at St. Louis Wants Jurist, Tammany Will Consent.

New York, May 16.—Prominent Tammany politicians said last night that the organization would make no fight on the floor of the Democratic national convention at St. Louis against the nomination of Judge Parker.

Tammany has come around to the point of view that Parker may be nominated. The Tammany delegates are bound by the unit rule to vote with the New York state delegation as a whole on nominations in the convention. For some time there have been rumors that Cockran or Towne would, on the floor of the convention, make a speech opposing the nomination of Parker.

This report was set at rest last night by statements made by prominent Tammany men who have talked with Leader Murphy. They said positively that if Judge Parker should prove to be the first choice of a majority of the delegates to the St. Louis convention Tammany would fall into line and vote for his nomination.

The Tammany delegates will vote with the state delegation without a protest, according to the present program.

TRAGEDIENNE JANAUSCHEK

Is In Actors' Home and Glad She Is There.

New York, May 16.—At a sunlit, white-curtained window, looking out over a little lake with violet-studded banks and embowered in budding trees, sat Mme Janauschek, the actress. One shrunken, trembling hand rested on the polished sill. The other, limp and useless, hung by her side.

Her brilliant eyes, sweeping over the landscape, softened gradually and melted into tears. She stretched out her one healthy arm with the old, dramatic gesture which once swayed thousands as with a magic power, and cried with a strong voice:

"Ah, it is beautiful, beautiful! So peaceful, so serene! I am glad I came. I am glad that I am here."

It was Mme. Janauschek's first day at the Actors' home, at West Brighton, Staten Island.

The wonderful old tragedienne, who thrilled the hearts of thousands with her great art, will there play a quiet drama for the rest of her days. Her theater will be the quaint little white cement cottage which the actors of America have built for their old folk. Her audience will be only the other guests of the home. There, among the aged exponents of the old-class school, which still loves and defends, the venerable acress will pass her remaining years untroubled by reminders of the decadence of her ideals.

"Some day," she said yesterday, "they will return to the old style and recognize what art in acting is. Some day they will realize that old Janauschek was right. This modern school—it wants to laugh. Some day it will wish to weep again, and then—ah, then, whom will they have to show them what emotion really is?

"Can you play Lady Macbeth as a babbling society debutante? I made them weep with my Lady Macbeth. I made kings and queens weep. I played in the private theaters of kings, and they wept and cheered with what critics would call now 'my antiquated manner.' My old friend Booth and I—ah, how we made them hold their breath and chill with horror in those good old days. That was acting. Those were plays."

As she talked age had droped away from the bent old figure by the window like a mantle. The old fire kindled in her eyes. The old imperious frown deepened on the high, broad brow. The trembling accents grew strong and full. Janauschek had come back again.

As she finished, however, the gray pallor crept back over her wrinkled and sunken cheeks, and the light died out of her eyes. Her trembling hand fumbled at her throat. Her voice died away and her figure drooped with dejection.

"But it's all over now. This will be my stage now."

Mme. Januschek's devoted friends, N. S. Wood, well known as the boy actor, and Mr. and Mrs. James P. Tossiny, who have been almost her only friends for the last few years, were at the home to receive her. Mrs. Lillian Roach, the actress' companion, will remain with her, a special rule having been made in her behalf.

WENTZ APOLOGIZES.

Did Not Make Alleged Charges Against Jury.

Bristol, Tenn., May 16.—The coroner's jury, which rendered a verdict of accidental shooting in the case of Edward L. Wentz, whose dead body was found in Wise county, Virginia, several days ago, has received a reply from Dr. J. S. Wentz regarding his alleged criminal charge in relation to the finding of the jury. Dr. Wentz makes due apology to the jury, declaring that he did not use such terms as were credited to him in the press dispatches. Dr. Wentz was credited with intimating that the verdict was intended to shield the murderers of his son, who were friends of the jury. No one stands higher in Wise county than the men who served on the Wentz jury of inquiry, and in the absence of an apology from Dr. Wentz a damage suit would probably have resulted.

That Edward Wentz had made a will is known positively, but nothing can be learned as to when it will be probated.

HANGING IN BELFRY.

Startled Parishioners Discover Body of a Suicide.

Chicago, May 16.—The dead body of a man dangling at the end of a rope in the belfry of the Emanuel Baptist church, Michigan avenue, was the gruesome sight which met the eyes of the congregation as they assembled for yesterday morning's service. The police were notified at once and the body cut down and taken away. In one of the pockets of the dead man's coat was found a memorandum book bearing the name and address of William Johnson, 232 Webster avenue, Pittsburg. Written on a fly leaf of the book were the following words: "Well, I see that nothing but my death will satisfy the outraged public. Therefore, I will give it, but I will be my own executioner."

It is supposed that Johnson had been hanging in the belfry since Friday night, when he was last seen to enter the church. He had been employed on different occasions by the pastor to repair the electric lights at the top of the steeple and hanged himself, as he was not seen by anyone afterwards.

FOUR DROWNED.

Bridge Span Broke, Throwing Them Into River.

Reno, Nevada, May 16.—By the breaking of one of the spans of the suspension tramway across the Truckee river at Lawton Springs, five miles west of this city, at 2 o'clock yesterday, four young people, Maurice Jacobs, of this city; Miss McMillan, of Reno; Mrs. E. S. Ede, Jr., and a Mr. Kingsley, of Chicago, were precipitated from the car into the swollen stream and drowned. Both young men were athletes and gave their lives in a heroic effort to save their companions. Mr. Jacobs was seen for a few moments swimming with Miss McMillan, holding her above water, but in her terror she grasped his arms, and both went down. Kingsley swam for 200 yards holding Mrs. Ede's head above water and then was seen to turn on his back, when the woman seized him and bore the swimmer beneath the water.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

WHEN LOVE INVITES

The woman follows the man of her choice though the path leads out of Eden into a world untrodden and untried. What is her reward? Many a time when her health is broken by the burdens she has borne for the man's sake, her reward is to see him turn from her to seek rosier cheeks and brighter eyes. It is man's nature to crave beauty in the wife as in the maid. And what woman is there, who would not be happy to keep her maiden bloom when motherhood has crowned her wifely happiness? Some women seem to have found this secret of perpetual youth. "Age cannot wither them." They have learned that fairness of face and form depend upon the health, and that the general health depends upon the local womanly health. They establish regularity of the periods. They dry the disagreeable drains which draw the luster from the eyes and the vermillion from the lips as well as sap the body's strength. They quench the internal fires of inflammation in which the very elements of beauty are consumed. They heal the ulcer which gnaws into the very life. They walk the world as wonders—women exempt from the sacrifice to love. How have they done this? By the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which makes weak women strong and sick women well. It matters not how weak the woman is, or how sick she is, "Favorite Prescription" will cure the womanly ills that vex her; will round out the sunken curves of her form, put light in her eyes, tint her cheeks with health's carnation, and make her a glad and happy woman. Hundreds of thousands of women testify to the truth of these statements. Let every ailing woman read the two testimonials given below and remember that these two women speak for more than half a million other women cured by the skill of Dr. Pierce and by the use of his "Favorite Prescription." There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription," neither has it any opium or other narcotic.

"Two years ago I began to gradually lose my health," writes Mrs. Nellie D. Stark, Vice-President Bethesda Society, 39 Gardner Street, Worcester, Mass. "Became nervous, lost my appetite, and it seemed impossible to obtain a good night's rest. I became emaciated, hollow-eyed, and suffered with frequent heart palpitation. Complexion was bad and "muddy" looking and I had a haggard expression. I felt as though life had lost its charm; did not care to live, for life without health is simply a living death. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription changed all this. It came as a blessing into my home; I felt better in a short time after starting to use it, and within a month I was like another woman. New life, health and vigor returned and my husband fell in love with me all over again, and a new light and happiness came into my life. Your medicine did all this for me, and it is certainly worthy of praise."

"I was a great sufferer for six years and doctored all the time with a number of physicians but did not receive any benefit," writes Mrs. Geo. Sogden, 641 Bonda Street, Saginaw (South), Michigan. "I had given up all hope of ever getting better, thought I would write to you. When I received your letter telling me what to do I commenced to take your 'Favorite Prescription' and follow your advice. I have taken ten bottles in all, also five vials of the 'Pleasant Pellets.' Am now regular, after having missed two years and suffered with pain in the head and back. I was so nervous, could not eat or sleep. Now I can thank you for my recovery."

CROOKSTON COMPANY'S BID

For Cutting Blown Down Timber Is Accepted.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bids were opened last week by Maj. Scott for the blown-down timber on the Red Lake reservation. The Thief River Falls company offered $5.50 per 1000 for white pine and $4.50 per 1000 for Norway. Contained in this bid was a clause which allowed the cutting of all standing timber of the subdivisions, as well as the blown-down pine, really a suggestion to cut all timber, whether standing or blown down, clean. The Crookston Lumber company, which submitted the other bid, offered $5 per 1000 for white pine, and $4 per 1000 for Norway. Owing to the clause regarding cutting the standing timber, the bid of the Thief River Falls company was rejected. Maj. Scott has recommended the acceptance of the Crookston company's bid.

NEGRO LYNCHED.

Committed Assault on Fifteen Year-Old Girl.

Appling, Ga., May 16.—A crowd of about 100 masked men forcibly entered the county jail here abont midnight Saturday night, took out John Cumming, a negro, who was waiting trial on the charge of criminal assault, and hanged him to a tree near the public road, about half a mile from Appling. His body was afterward riddled with bird shot and bullets. A card was left attached to the negro's breast bearing the inscription.

"This is the penalty for rape. Yours truly, BROTHER DOOLEY."

The crime for which the negro was lynched was committed last week, and his victim was a 15-year-old girl. The crowd of lynchers was quiet and orderly.

CONVENTION ENDS.

Thirty-Fifth Meeting of Y. M. C. A. Over.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 16.—Two mass meetings, one for women and the other for men, services in several churches and an evening meeting at the City Convention hall yesterday, ended the thirty-fifth international convention of the Y. M. C. A. of North America. At the meeting for women, Miss Helen M. Gould read the lesson of the day. W. M. Danner, general secretary of the association's health farm at Denver, told of the benefits of the health farm, where young men in search of health are helped to pass the time in pleasant companionship. John F. Moore, railroad secretary of the international committee, described the dangers, moral and physical, which beset railroad men, and the work of the Y. M. C. A. in offsetting those dangers.

W. B. Miller, army and navy secretary, told about some of the work in his department, and at the close of his address several bluejackets from the U. S. S. Massachusetts came upon the stage and spoke for themselves. All were emphatic in praise of the influences of the Y. M. C. A.

CURES

RHEUMATISM!

Helena, Mont., Jan. 24, 1904.

MEDERINE REMEDY CO., Duluth, Minn.

Dear Sirs:—As I have suffered for the last seven years with Blood Poison and Eczema I had tried everything that money could pay for and it was of no avail. No one knows how I suffered with running sores on my leg, I at last gave up all hopes and started to use opiates for relief.

My druggist, one day, told me to try Mederine. I thought that it was no good, but resolved to spend a dollar once more. One bottle of Mederine cured all the running ulcers and cleared the Eczema. I have taken two courses and am a well woman today. I cannot say enough for Mederine for Blood, Eczema and Catarrh. I thank you for my life long relief and shall recommend Mederine to others. Yours truly, Mrs. A. O. S. Miller, No. 208 State street.

Mederine is sold at $1 per bottle or 6 for $5 by all dealers. Write for booklet.

HEARST WILL AID NOMINEE

Denies the Story That He Is Likely to Bolt.

Washington, May 16.—William Randolph Hearst will support the nominee of the St. Louis Democratic convention, whoever he may be. He authorized the Washington Post to make this statement unequivocally. He ridiculed a story sent from Albany that he and Mr. Bryan, Arthur Brisbane, Gen. Weaver, of Iowa, and others were planning a huge bolt and the formation of a new party.

He said he had been making his fight for the nomination in the name of progressive Democracy, but his fight had been within party lines and would continue to be so. Whatever the result, he intended personally and through his newspapers to support the regular ticket.

"I am for the St. Louis nominee," said Mr. Hearst to the Post. Having uttered that plain spoken sentence, he added with a smile:

"I should, of course, like any other man, be honored and gratified should the Democrats see fit to nominate me. But I do not have to be bribed by office to be a Democrat. I have supported the Democratic ticket in the last five campaigns. I supported Cleveland three times and Bryan twice. I intend to support the nominee of the party at St. Louis, whoever he may be.

"I have not been able to deny all the foolish things that have been said about me. I have not even kept up with all that has been said. But of all the fool things that story that I am going to bolt is 'fooler' than all the rest.

"I have been making a fight for the nomination in the name of progressive Democracy. I have been making my fight within party lines."

An inquiry was made about the significance of the several contesting Hearst delegations over the country.

"Every state convention of both parties has contesting delegations," said Mr. Hearst. "Contests do not mean that bolting will follow. Some of my friends have instituted contests for delegates. In certain cases contests have been instituted by my friends, in entire sincerity on their part, which I would not have sanctioned had the matter come to my knowledge in time. But these contests can be settled in every national convention. Please make it plain that I stand by the verdict of loyal Democrats, men who have been loyal to the party and have not been Democrats at pleasure. I am for men who have been Democrats consistently for twenty years."

"But suppose the class you suggest as disloyal should be in control at St. Louis?"

"I think there is no danger of that," was the answer.

He expressed the belief that loyal Democrats would be in control at St. Louis and reiterated his intention to support the nominee of that convention.

BEMIDJI VICTORIOUS.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Cass Lake and Bemidji baseball teams met at Bemidji Sunday afternoon for the initial game of the season, and the game ended disastrously for the Cass Lake contingent, Bemidji winning by a score of 20 to 2. There were several good excuses for the Cass Lake team not making a better showing, chiefamong which was the fact that four of the best players of the club were unable to participate in the game, having gone out of town on fishing expeditions.

WHEAT IS STRONG

Market Advances Sharply Under Leadership of Chicago.

Scarcity of Contract Wheat Stirs That Market—Flax Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 16.—The wheat market this morning suddenly woke up to the fact that the stock of contract wheat in Chicago is very low and that there may be congestion in some of the options in that market. As a result the May option in that market bulged about 3 cents. This influenced all markets and was largely responsible for a good advance that was made. The world's shipments were above the 10,000,000-mark, but not as large as the week previous, or the same week in last year. The visible supply showed a decrease of 1,535,000 bus, and this did not include the wheat burned at Fort William. The decrease was larger than expected. The Liverpool market closed ¼d higher, Paris ¼c lower, and Antwerp unchanged.

The Duluth market closed ½c higher for July; Chicago, 1⅜-⅝c higher; Minneapolis, ⅞-1c higher, and New York, 1⅜c higher. In Duluth the September option gained ⅝c, and in Minneapolis 1c.

The world's shipments of wheat and corn for last week, the week previous and the corresponding week in last year were as follows:

WHEAT.

Argentine	864,000	360,000	694,000
Total	2,488,000	1,084,000	3,698,000

The amount of wheat on passage decreased 720,650 bus and corn decreased 1,430,000 bus.

Car receipts at Duluth were 4 against 21 last year, and at Minneapolis 112 against 183 last year, making a total for the Northwest of 117 against 204 last year. Chicago receipts were 12 cars against 17 a year ago. Winnipeg received 77 against 196 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 218,201 bus, last year 339,610 bus. Shipments 214,-397 bus, last year 114,75 bus. Clearances were 209,751 bus.

The visible supply of corn decreased 702,000 bus last week. Primary receipts of corn were 302,650 bus, last year 551,840 bus. Shipments 893,610 bus, last year 884,-87 bus. Clearances were 8000 bus. Corn in the Liverpool market closed ½d higher. In the Chicago market July corn closed Z-¾c lower. July oats closed ½-⅝c higher.

In the Duluth market trading was very light. The July option opened unchanged to 90c and sold steadily up to 91⅜c shortly before 1 o'clock. The market closed at 91¼c, an advance of 1¼c. The May option closed with the same advance. September gained ¾c, closing at 80½c.

Cash sales were very light and prices continued to be of the same wide ranges as last week, from May price to 2c over for No. 1 northern.

Flax was very dull. July closed ¼c lower at $1.07¾. May lost ¾c. September ½c and October ¼c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bullish Sentiment In Evidence In Wheat Pit.

Chicago, May 16.—A bullish sentiment pervaded the wheat pit today as a result of small stocks of contract grain. Active covering by shorts and a good investment demand with only light offerings caused an advance of over a cent in the price of the July delivery. The opening on July was a shade lower to ⅝-¾c higher at 83¾c to 84¼c. A quick rally to 85¼c followed, but on realizing sales the price settled back to 84⅞c. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 128 cars, against 158 cars last week, and 230 cars a year ago.

The market made further advances later in the day, a larger decrease than expected in the visible supply being the strengthening influence. The close was strong with July up 1⅝@1¾ at 85⅝c, after the price had touched 85⅞c.

Strength in wheat caused a firm tone in corn, sentiment being helped by unfavorable weather and a fair cash business. Shorts were the principal buyers although there was a fair demand from commission houses. Offerings were light. July opened ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c, up to 47⅛c to 47⅝c, and sold up to 47⅝c. Local receipts 63 cars, with 5 of the contract grade.

The strength was well maintained throughout the day. After selling up to 48¾c, July closed with a gain of ⅝@¾c at 48c.

Oats were firm in sympathy with other grains. Trading was light and confined largely to scalpers. July opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 38¼c to 38⅜c, and advanced to 39⅝@⅞c. Local receipts 86 cars.

Pit traders bought provisions on the strength in grains causing a firm market in the face of lower prices at the yards. July pork opened down 5c at $11.12½, but quickly advanced to $11.25. Lard was off 2½c at $6.40. The price rallied to $6.45@6.47½. Ribs opened a shade lower to a shade up at $6.37½ to $6.40, and sold up to $6.42½@6.45.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The keynote to the strength is the talk about small stocks of contract wheat and the probable inability of shorts to fill their contracts. This stimulated local buying and free covering of shorts. Bornhaid cabled that Liverpool was depressed by fine weather, large world's shipments and that there has been partial relief to the drouth in Roumania. There was a small decrease in local stocks of wheat but as to what the decrease was in the contract stocks will not be known until tomorrow. A nervous and good scalping market is likely on account of the small stocks.

Corn—It is rather a quiet market and the whole cash situation is held in suspense by the lake strike. In the meantime there is a moderate cash demand and not much selling pressure except when local bears put out short lines on prospect of next crop.

Oats—There is enough uncertainty about the May situation locally to prevent confident bear operations in the July and outside of the Patten interest there is not much bullish local sentiment and even the Patten interests seem to be strong only on the cash and May stuff.

Provisions—It was a very quiet market without much selling pressure. Receipts are running about the same as a year ago with the average weight a little less. The distributive demand continues a little in excess of last year.

* * *

Cce Commission Company: There was a good demand for wheat all morning from commission houses, and new and old July was up about 2 cents a bushel, while Minneapolis is about ⅞c up. It is very evident that the shorts over-played their hand last week and are paying up for it today. We do not believe that the time has come to sell wheat short and still favor the long side. Would buy September wheat on all breaks. Eighty cents does not look high for September and the old crop futures are too dangerous to be short of. Visible supply wheat decreased 1,535,000 bushels. There is unquestionably a large short interest in the market which may find it hard to buy wheat o any further may find it hard to buy wheat on any further. Corn and Oats—Strong in sympathy with the strength in wheat. Visible supply corn decreased 702,000. Oats decreased 907,000.

Provisions—The provision market is showing a little more strength this morning than it has for some time, partly in sympathy with the strong grain market and partly due to shorts covering.

* * *

Kansas City wires: The Kansas City Commercial Men's Club, largely composed of grain men have just returned from an extended trip through Kansas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory. They are unanimous in saying Kansas will raise a bumper crop fully up to last year. Northern Oklahoma fine, balance not so good but should raise as much as a year ago.

* * *

King of Toledo says: "Kansas will issue no May report. The state report will appear June 1. The crop there should be well advanced by that time. Government report made the May wheat condition 82, indicating a yield of about 80,000,000 bushels. This is as much as the prospective crop combined of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia. It is not yet secured."

Chicago Record-Herald: It is expected that the stock of No. 1 northern wheat Tuesday will show about 250,000 bus., and this practically is the only contract wheat here. There was a cargo of 150,000 bus. which just missed yesterday, because the boats were not to be had. If that had gone through there would practically be no No. 1 northern. Eckhart took out 100,000 bus. No. 1 northern during the week, and there was probably 50,000 bus. taken out in smaller lots. There is a stock still of 250,000 No. 2 red, but it is held at from 1c to 10c over the May, and would do the short seller no good. Chicago is practically now without contract wheat, and will be absolutely without any in another week. Everyone has known this situation was being approached, but its practical realization is creating increased talk, and is directing new attention to the fact millions of bushels are open for July, with no prospect of additional wheat here to fill the sales and with the fact being that this vast liquidation in July must be made in the market and entirely by concessions between the longs and the shorts. Last July there were received here in this market 445 cars of No. 2 red, 283 cars of No. 3 red and 36 cars of No. 4 red, 122 cars of No. 2 hard, 67 cars No. 3 hard and 12 cars of No. 4 hard. The present winter wheat crop is believed all the way from ten days to twenty days behind last year's. So there is the likelihood of much smaller receipts in July this year than last, and last year's July receipts were certainly not in volume enough to give any comfort to shorts.

A large cash wheat operator, whose liberties during the past season have been the correct ones, in speaking about the present situation, says: "We bought our red winter wheat on the last crop at around 80c, and are now still sold at over $1. We are getting 90c for our No. 1 northern and 90c for our No. 1 hard. There are practically no contract stocks left here, and there will be actually none in a week or more. Everybody knows there is a vast, natural open July trade to close, and it is indisputable there is no cash wheat in sight to help the liquidation. It must be entirely a matter of concession between speculators, a matter of what the long will sell for and a matter of what the short can buy for. I think a man would be crazy to sell July, but cannot see how the September can decline much."

St. Louis wired yesterday all the No. 2 red which Spencer had taken on his December deal had been sold except 127,000 bus, and that one of the millers had an option on that remnant. Spencer and his group took over 5,000,000 bus on their December deal and today have now cleaned it all up, and the St. Louis holder of No. 2 red is getting about $1.03 for all that he has to sell. The Spencel deal has been successful in spite of the fact of mean opposition from Albers and the other St. Louis revokers. The people down there who defaulted, who sold their cash at high prices, and who failed to compel Spencer to settle with them at low prices, have all been beaten in the courts, disgraced in their own exchanges and disciplined. Now the big holdings has been most sucessfully liquidated on a market that is higher than Spencer probably ever expected it to be."

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 16.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 14 to 19 points on the old and of 6 to 11 points on the new crop months, on covering and buying by local bulls in response to much better cables than expected, and a rather unfavorable weather map. Offerings were heavy at the advance and the market following the call eased off a few points after which, however, reports that the Southern market leaders were bidding aggressively for large blocks of May and July in the New Orleans market and the continued firmness of Liverpool led to a scare of shorts with July shooting up to 13.61 and October at 11.27, gains of 15 to 28 points. At this level realizing eased prices off a point or two, but the general undertone remained steady to firm. Trading was rather more active than the recent average.

Cotton spot, closed quiet, 25 points higher; mid ups 13.80; mid gulf14.05; sales, 3500 bales. Futures closed steady; May 13.47; June 13.54; July 13.65; August 13.28; September 11.86; October 11.37; November 11.28; December 11.27; January 11.29.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

But Covering of Shorts In United States Steel.

Buying Not Encouraging Character and Close Irregular.

New York, May 16.—Small gains and losses was quite equally divided on the opening quotations in the stock market today. Consolidated Gas rose a point and United States Steel preferred showed an advancing tendency to the extent of ¾. The market showed considerable variety and activity.

The demand for a few specialties stiffened the general market until liquidation was resumed in the Eries and other coalers. Consolidated Gas gained 2¾. Lackawanna 1⅞ and Metropolitan Street Railway and Car 1 before they relapsed on the general selling. Railroad stocks showed but little resistance to the decline, but United States Steel preferred was supported. Hocking Valley fell 3⅞ on one sale. Other losses included 2 in Erie first preferred, 1¼ in the second and 1 to 1¼ in Delaware & Hudson, Reading, the second preferred, Northwestern and Kansas & Texas preferred. Trading was quieter at 11 o'clock and the market slightly better all around.

The tone of the market was soft and yielding with little rallying power. Many prominent railroad stocks were a large fraction below last week. New York Central lost a full point. Union Pacific and Wabash preferred 7/8. General Electric 2. Sugar 1⅛ and Brooklyn Transit ⅞. Gas lost most of its rise. There were gains of about a point for United States Rubber preferred and Kanawha & Michigan. Bonds were easier at noon.

Aggressive selling set in at all points after 12 o'clock and the market was driven substantially lower. United States steel preferred, which had held well during the morning, was forced below Saturday's close. Consolidated Gas sold down to 209, compared with 212½ earlier. Rubber preferred showed exceptional strength, rising 2¾. Additional declines consisted of 4 in General Electric, 2¾ in Kansas & Texas preferred, 1½ in Denver & Rio Grande preferred and 7/8@1⅛ in Atchison, St. Paul, Illinois Central, Locomotive preferred, Republic Steel preferred and Tennessee Coal.

Some of the standard railroad stocks reached a lower level, but selling in general was more concentrated against the specialties. Continued offerings of these stocks discouraged buying of the favorite stocks. Wabash preferred yielded 2 and the common is off. American also sagged 3 and Copper, Consolidated Gas, Distilleries securities, Texas Pacific, Rock Island, Colorado Southern first preferred, Kelshion preferred, Pere Marquette ⅞ to 1½. Brooklyn Transit fell 2 points.

A rise of a point in United States Steel preferred carried the market with it. Rallies reached a point in a few stocks. North American rallied 2. The drop of over 2 points in Consolidated Gas checked the movement. Hocking Valley fell 3⅞ in all and Kansas & Texas and Pressed Steel Car preferred 3 point. The market fell into extreme dullness. The closing was sluggish and irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

F. P. Frazer to B. E. Baker: I had a talk with a prominent Western railroad man this morning, and he was extremely pessimistic over the outlook for earnings. The prospect for his own road, he said, was bad, and he did not hesitate to say that the chances of improvement for some time to come are poor. Tomorrow's returns will take out $10,000,000 gold and the total shipments for the week will be double that amount. Surplus reserves will be cut to a low figure by Saturday and there is still the prospect of remitting to meet the Japanese loan, paying $35,000,000 to Cuba in the near future and handing out funds to railroad and industrial borrowers. It is difficult to see how this can make for bullishness in the stock market.

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market was a little irregular, but the average is fractionally lower. There is covering of shorts in Steel, but there is scattered liquidation throughout the list generally and the buying is not of an encouraging character. There is a lot of unfavorable talk about Erie. The whole market acts draggy and shorts are the best buyers. Cold continues to go out and no one seems able to estimate the end, while the tendency to the money rate is high. There is probably short interest enough to give the market an occasional rally, but the outlook does not seem hopeful for a sustained advance.

* * *

Evans to Paine, Webber & Co.: The money situation is becoming interesting. Loans were again swell last week and stand at a total hitherto unapproached. It is an extraordinary fact that in spite of business contracting and liquidation in the stock market the loan column never goes down except temporarily. It promptly jumps up again to a higher total than before. This means that there are an enormous amount of securities being carried in loans which cannot be sold and the loans cannot be liquidated. This liquidation will have to take place some time. Tight money may soon appear as this gold exports if kept up will wipe out the surplus reserve. If the tight money does come now it will probably come in the autumn. In any event it seems to me that liquidation on a large scale is sure to come some time this year. It has started now and I think will probably continue for some time. Stocks are a sale on all rallies.

* * *

S. T. Welch & Co.: London stock market for Americans a fraction lower. Our market opened fairly active and firm, and conservative traders were inclined to the bull side early, but the market soon felt the effect of continued liquidation of some lines of stock, also short selling caused a decided weakness. The heavy gold exports last week, and the decrease in the surplus bank reserve has given the professional bears renewed courage, and they may succeed in pounding the market a little lower, but we think that all standard stocks should be bought conservatively on all the recessions, feeling that purchase of the Pacifics, St. Paul, Atchison and Pennsylvania on breaks will prove profitable.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The decline in the market caused by selling to the short and long account as on former occasions the volume of selling grew very small when prices were lowest and the short covering came on a very fair rally. News generally unfavorable to an advancing market and traders are all bearish. There is nothing to encourage buying and at the same time those who sell are not making more than exceedingly small profits. Most of the coppers showed good buying all day, acting much better than the railroads and industrials.

* * *

Paine, Webber & Co.: The London visible supply of copper May 16 was 11,655 tons, a decrease of 371 tons in the past week.

Paine, Webber & Co.: The directors of Allouez have declared an assessment of $5 per share payable, $1.50 May 24, 1904, by stock of record May 25, and $1.50 Sept. 26, 1904, by stockholders of record Sept. 24, 1904.

HANDSOME OFFICES

Duluth Quarters of Two Railroads Excite Much Admiration.

Omaha and South Shore Are Handsomely Fitted Out.

Two of the new offices fitted up on Superior street by the local railroads are "stunners" in every sense of the word. These are the South Shore and the Omaha headquarters, which are completely new in every detail of their furnishings. The only old things about the offices are the agents.

The Omaha, in some senses, has the advantage over the South Shore, while in other respects the reverse is true. But comparisons are odious, and the railroad men will not permit them.

The finish of the furniture of the Omaha is mahogany of a rick, dark reddish color. The counters and ticket case were brought from St. Paul, the ticket case having originally been intended for the office at St. Paul, but was found not to fit the office. The counters are more roomy and pretentious than they were in the old quarters, and the colors are made to harmonize perfectly with the woodwork, which was all done over in order to give the entire office a uniform appearance.

So as it stands the office is beautiful in every sense as far as the work is completed, although the end of the week will probably roll around before everything is really settled.

One reason the work is not absolutely in the condition desired is owing to the interference of T. W. Teasdale, general passenger agent of the Omaha, whose headquarters are at Omaha. Mr. Teasdale's interfering qualities are said to be superior to those of most football teams when he gets his "dander" up.

He is particularly efficient in this direction when he believes things are not as they should be, and he found this to be the case with one or two minor details of the office furniture when he was here the latter part of the week. He had come up to see the effects that were being secured by the efforts the company were exerting to give the Duluth representatives a good office.

"Where did you get that desk?" he asked City Ticket Agent Blakeney.

The desk was a neat desk of the proper color, but a little small for extensive work. Mr. Blakeney said the desk had come with some other furniture.

"You can't do much work on that. You should have had a good desk when you were about it."

Mr. Blakeney was not responsible for the kind of desk that was sent, but was not in a mood to argue the question.

"What kind of a floor is that you've got?" asked the general passenger agent, as he peered behind the counters.

It was a tile floor. Mr. Teasdale sniffed in contempt at a tile floor for office men to work on.

"It'll give you corns to work on such a floor as that—chilblains and all sorts of things."

Mr. Teasdale left the city in the evening. This morning the office was notified that a large desk was waiting to be delivered from a local furniture house. A force of men also appeared to take up the tile floor and put down a cork matting, which is about a third of an inch thick and much the same sort of stuff as is used on the deck of warships. It contains a composition of cork, linseed oil and other things, which, when worked together, make a soft, warm, agreeable floor to move around on.

So the office, after having been ostensibly settled down for the summer campaign, is torn up again, but in a cause which gladdens the hearts of the people engaged therein. General Agent Smith and the others will send to Mr. Teasdale a vote of thanks for his thoughtfulness.

The South Shore office is equipped from stem to stern with new furniture, ticket cases and partions finished in antique oak. President Fitch was here some time ago and talked the improvement over with Agent Adson, and indicated that the suggested needs were excessive. Adson wanted a new safe. One about as high as his waist stood in the office.

"You ought to make that safe do a while longer, Adson," insisted the president.

Adson said he would try, thinking all the time how many other nice pieces of furniture he was going to get. This was some consolation.

He wanted four new desks, and the president seemed to think that was too much.

But when the stuff came all that Adson wanted was there. The "old man" of the road was quietly poking fun at him.

And the safe? Well, it's twice as high as the old one and almost large enough to entertain one's friends in. The lettering on the window is the greatest source of pride to Agent Adson. Especially is he pleased with the picture of a ship rolling in the billows which has been painted on the glass. He stood for hours at a time looking at it as it was in course of construction, and gloating over its beauty.

"Ah, me. If navigation would only open," pined he.

And he kept on pining until it was thought well to send him on an early vacation, where he could pine in a more appropriate neighborhood, the state of Washington, where he will remain for a couple of weeks.

One of the friends of both roads was overheard to remark this morning that it was strange how many ladies were to be seen in the two offices lately. For his part he could not understand it, but others believe it is the beautiful furniture that they feel so curious to see.

The South Shore office has not a corner office like the Omaha, but prism glass will be put in certain parts of the room to diffuse light.

THE JIM HILL BOATS.

Tests of the Engines of the Minnesota.

Preliminary tests of the engines of the new steamship Minnesota, which is being built at New London, Conn., for President James J. Hill, of the Great Northern, were successful. In a few days now it is expected that the final tests of engines and machinery will be completed so the boat can be put to sea for the speed and endurance tests.

When the boat is ready for the sea test the engineers and machinists now working on the Minnesota will go into the Dakota, her sister ship, to bring that boat into sea-going shape as soon as possible.

The Minnesota is a twin screw ship with two sets of engines almost indentical. They are of the three cyclinder, triple expansion, direct acting surface condensing type and each is expected to develop 5000 horse power at a speed of 78 revolutions. The three cyclinders are 29, 51 and 89 inches in diameter respectively, the stroke being 27 inches and the working steam pressure 220 pounds. Interchangeable crank shafts are used to permit easy repairing and the crank webs have a tensile strength of 75,000 to 80,000 pounds. The Minnesota will leave New York July 4 on her maiden trip and the Dakota will start five months later. Captain Truebridge, of the Minnesota, is already in the East picking his crew and doing other work incidental to starting the new boat.

Railroad Notes.

W. G. Ulrich, assistant city ticket agent of the Omaha, has returned from a month's vacation in St. Louis and Memphis. He says the fair is a place of great magnitude and well worth seeing despite some of the incompleted details. He says the Filipinos on exhibition are a remarkable people, and they number 1400. Despite their large numbers their entire wardrobe, it is claimed, would not suffice for one Duluth person.

F. D. Lyon, traveling passenger agent of the Rock Island, was here today from the Twin Cities, as was also T. H. Larke, Northwestern agent of the Dominion steamship line.

TESTIMONY FOR DEFENSE

Attorney Shows Tyner's Procedure With Investment Companies.

Washington, May 16.—In the Tyner-Barrett trial today, Louis T. Michener, of the Washington law firm of Dudley & Michener, was placed on the stand by the defense to show the procedure by bond investment companies in getting their contracts passed upon by the department. Mr. Michener declared that he had obtained an agreement with Gen. Tyner and Mr. Barrett, that the matter be determined by the courts and that all parties were disappointed at the failure to get a court ruling on the bond investment business. The witness said that Gen. Tyner then announced that th department could wait no longer and would make their own rules in regard to such cases when they were brought before the department. The outcome was a rule that when charges were made against companies, the companies would be given an opportunity to change their plans of business to conform to law, before action was taken by the department.

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free. Reg. sizes 50c, $1.00.

STANDARD OIL DIVIDEND.

New York, May 26.—The Standard Oil company of New Jersey has declared a dividend of $8 per share payable June 15. Last year in the corresponding period a dividend of $7 was declared. The dividends thus far declared this year amount of $24 compared with $27 in the corresponding period last year.

We offer $1,000 for a disease germ that Liquozone can't kill; and most of the sick are sick because of germs. One bottle free.

We have purchased more than a million 50c bottles of Liquozone and given them free to the sick. During the past four months, we have spent over $500,000 to announce and fulfill this offer. We have done this to convince the sick that Liquozone does what medicine cannot do, and we are willing to do the same with you if you need it.

What Liquozone Is.

Liquozone is the result of a process which, for more than 20 years, has been the constant subject of scientific and chemical research. Its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and 14 days' time. Each cubic inch of Liquozone represents the virtues of 1250 cubic inches of the gas.

The result is a product which does what oxygen does. Oxygen is the nerve food, the blood food, the scavenger of the blood. It is the very source of vitality, the most essential element of life. But oxygen is a gas and unstable; while Liquozone is fixed and concentrated. It gets an excess of oxygen virtues into the blood, to go wherever the blood goes. The result is a vitalizing tonic with which no other known product can compare.

Kills Inside Germs.

But the great value of Liquozone lies in the fact that it kills germs in the body without killing the tissues, too. There is nothing else known which will do that. Any drug that kills germs is a poison, and it cannot be taken internally. For that reason, medicine is practically helpless in any germ disease.

Liquozone is so certain that we publish on every bottle an offer of $1000 for a disease germ that it cannot kill. The reason is that germs are vegetables; and an excess of oxygen—the very life of an animal—is deadly to vegetal matter. Liquozone is certain destruction to the cause of a germ trouble, yet to the human body it is the most helpful thing in the world.

We paid $100,000 for the American rights to Liquozone, because this product alone can end a germ disease.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases. All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone kills the germs, wherever they are, and the results are inevitable. By destroying the cause of the trouble, it invariably ends the disease, and forever.

The Whys and Wherefores of the Suit Sale.

The question has been asked why half price—for beautiful Tailored Suits right at the very beginning of the season?

And the answer is—because!

Everybody knows that the heavy selling of Covert Coats and Rain Coats—has retarded the sale of Tailored Suits—then, too, the weather has been unseasonable, almost too cool to take off one's winter coat! The result is that certain lines have not moved as rapidly as others—

Then again, certain cloths are closed out which we will not be able to re-order—and certain lots are broken in sizes—these all go to make up the suit sale—

These all have been taken from their regular places—put on separate racks—and we'll take half for them—of what they are originally marked!

All sizes, 32 to 44 bust measure, in the newest shapes and fabrics!—if you get here in time—

IMPORTANT POINT

Date of Navigation Opening Greatly Concerns Grain Men.

Arrival of Boat From Lake Erie Can Complicate Matters.

The time when navigation is actually open is a matter of much concern to grain men. In the minds of most people of Duluth navigation is open here, boats having arrived from Chicago and from points on Lake Huron, the latter being all Canadian boats, however.

To the grain man, however, navigation is not yet open in the legal sense of the term. Shippers of grain in the late winter and spring sell much grain that is to go forward on the "opening of navigation." Under the rules of the board of trade the seller has ten days after the opening to ship his grain. If he fails to do it that time, he defaults on his contract.

Not for a number of years at least, has there been a time when shippers of grain were more concerned over the meaning of when "navigation is open." There is a tie-up on the lakes that makes it impossible for grain to be shipped even though it is possible for a boat to reach the lower lakes. Nevertheless if navigation was open within the meaning of the rules of the Duluth board of trade, the shipper would be compelled to get the grain sold to go out on the opening, off his hands or default. The rule covering this point is as follows:

"The opening of navigation shall be construed to mean the arrival in Duluth harbor of the first vessel from the lower lakes, and that the entrance or entrances of the Duluth-Superior harbor are free from obstruction by ice. In the event of ice returning in sufficient quantity to obstruct navigation then all contracts based upon the 'opening' shall be extended for as many days as such obstruction exists. On contracts for grain sold for the opening of navigation the seller shall have ten days from such date."

This is taken to be equivalent to saying that a boat must reach here from Lake Erie. As yet none have arrived but the question is as to how soon they will.

Some lumber hooker is liable to come in at any time or some small boat that has arranged with its men without waiting for a agreement with the Lake Carriers' association. Navigation will then be opened and grain sold under the terms noted will have to go forward within ten days.

Inquiry shows that not a great amount of grain is in this jeopardy. The shippers at Duluth have practically all forseen the difficulty that now exists and sold their grain to go forward on the opening with a "strike clause" inserted in the contract that is that the interference of a strike on the lakes should extend the contract. A small amount has, however, been sold without this clause and on this the unfortunate shippers will have to wriggle out as best they can if a boat should slip in here and open navigation before the strike is settled and the movement on the lakes becomes general.

TAKES ORE OUT.

Pentland Leaves Great Northern Allouez Dock.

The steamer Pentland, property of the Spring Lake Iron company, left the local harbor this noon for Fruit Port, Mich., with 1200 tons of iron ore, taken on at the Great Northern Allouez bay docks this morning, as a cargo. The Pentland, a wooden boat of only 827 gross tons burden, which arrived light for ore last Saturday, is the first vessel from a lower lake port to clear from the local harbor this season. She is also the first vessel to load with ore at the local docks. The Pentland, being owned by a small concern, is not affected by the difficulty existing between the Masters and Pilots and Lake Carriers' association.

Although navigation is now open along the lakes, the arrivals at Duluth are few and far between. No lake boats had arrived today up to an early hour this afternoon, but the Russia, of the Port Huron and Duluth Transportation company, was hourly expected. She is from Buffalo, loaded with package freight.

BON AMI GOES OUT.

The steamer Bon Ami cleared for south shore points today, with sixty tons of merchandise on board. She will go as far as Port Wing. The White Line Transportation company also advertises to send a boat to the copper country ports on Wednesday at 9 a. m. The Mabel Bradshaw has arrived from her first trip of the season to Port Arthur. She left on her regular north shore trip early this afternoon. The Mary H. Boyce is expected to clear today with a load of lumber for the lower lake ports

MORE CONTRACTS SIGNED.

Cleveland, May 16.—According to the statement of District Captain Paul Howell, of the Masters' and Pilots' association, contracts were signed today with the owners of seven additional freight steamers and these boats will, it is said, be immediately placed in service. The owners of these vessels are not members of the Lake Carriers' association. No member of the Lake Carriers' association has signed a contract. Practically all the vessel owners included in the Lumber Carriers' association have agreed to pay the scale and signed contracts to that effect.

M'DONALD ON TRIAL

On the Charge of Murdering Miss Schafer.

Bedford, Ind., May 16.—James McDonald, who has been in the Bloomington jail since early in February on the charge of murdering Miss Sarah C. Schafer in this city on the night of January 21, was today placed on trial for his life. McDonald was brought to Bedford from Bloomington, shackled to two minor prisoners. There is no excitement here. In addition to the regular panel, a special venire of ninety-eight names has been summoned.

ATTACKED SULTAN'S TROOPS.

Paris, May 26.—According to a dispatch from Lalla-Marnia, Algeiria, the followers of the Moroccan pretender recently attacked the sultan's troops near Ujda and the former were repulsed after severe fighting. Fifty of the sultan's troops were killed. The rebel losses are said to have been heavier.

THE NUMBER OF BISHOPS

Important Question Before Methodist Committee on Episcopacy.

Los Angeles, May 16.—The third week of the Methodist conference, which commenced today, promises to see the settlement of a majority of the great church problems now pressing for solution. The most important of these is the determination of the number of bishops to be chosen, and their final selection. At this afternoon's meeting of the committee of episcopacy, the question of how many bishops the conference shall name was taken up, and Dr. Buckley, chairman of the committee, has promised the conference that the report of his committee on the subject will be ready Tuesday morning. The number of new bishops that will be elected is entirely problematical. The retirement of Bishops Andrews, Walden, Mallalieu, Vincent and Foss by the vote of the conference last Saturday, the acceptance of Bishop Merrill's resignation and the death of Bishops Ninde and Hurst during the last quadrennium, make eight vacancies on the board of bishops. The conference may or may not, however, fill all of these vacancies.

In the meantime there is no dearth of candidates for bishopric honors. Probably fifteen names are being discussed in connection with the position. Most prominent among these are the following: Dr. W. F. Dowell, secretary of the board of education; Dr. J. F. Perry, editor Epworth Herald; Dr. Henry Spellminer, of Newark; Dr. B. R. Day, chancellor of Syracuse university; Dr. J. W. Bashford, president of the Ohio Wesleyan seminary; Dr. H. C. Jennings, agent of the Western book concern; Dr. George P. Eckman, of New York, and Dr. K. E. Bowen, the colored educator of Atlanta, Ga.

WASHBURN TRAINS NOW RUN OVER SOO TRACKS.

Bismarck, N. D., May 16.—The transfer of the Bismarck, Washburn & Great Falls road to the Soo line was made today and Washburn trains are running over the Soo tracks. A large crowd was at the Soo station to witness the inauguration of the new management. The passenger rates on the Washburn line have been reduced from 4 to 3 cents and the Washburn crews taken into the service of the Soo.

PRINCE VISITS FARMS.

Lexington, Ky., May 16.—Prince Hohenlohe, son of the former German chancellor, arrived today from Cincinnati, with his suite. Under the escort of Col. R. D. Williams the party is visiting stock farms in the blue grass region.

GOOD ROADS CONVENTION.

St. Louis, May 16.—Delegates from all parts of the United States and a number from foreign countries were present today at the opening session of the convention of the national and international good roads association. Sessions will be held each day of this week. Thursday has been designated as good roads day at the World's Fair, and delegates will meet there and an elaborate program will be carried out.

A MOTHER'S SUGGESTIONS.

An indignant mother, who has evidently tried in vain to get a habitable place for her family, offers these few suggestions through the Minneapolis Tribune:

"I wish to make a meek suggestion to the capitalists of Minneapolis, which might prove a paying investment. A few acres could be bought in the outskirts of the city for the purpose of tunneling, with proper ventilation, to be made into abiding places for the growing generation. Anything almost would do in this enlightened century, only so that people who are blessed with no children, and who hold more advanced ideas, will not be annoyed by them and their noises.

"Whining old couples and people practicing a refined race suicide are especially burdened by this growing generation, who really act as if they owned the earth. Old tumble-down shacks, perforated with rat holes, with caved-in cellars and filthy back yards are really too good this spring to be occupied by people with large flocks of young interlopers.

"Since we are going back to the comfortable days before Christ and want to forget His words, 'Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven,' I might humbly advance another idea.

"We could with profit use the method of King Herod, only somewhat improved. Keep our first-born and send all the rest the good Lord may see fit to give us to a place where much-moneyed landlards and barren old women cannot interfere with their childish pleasures."

PARRY SAYS "CLOSED SHOP" IS AGAINST PUBLIC POLICY AND SHOULD CEASE TO EXIST

He Believes That This Fact Will Soon Be Recognized.

National Manufacturers' Association Meets at Pittsburg.

Association Now Has Over Thirty-Five Hundred Members.

Pittsburg, May 17.—Nearly 700 delegates were in their seats when the ninth annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers was called to order today by Chairman D. C. Ripley of the local committee of reception. Following the invocation by Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, City Solicitor William B. Rogers tendered the freedom of the city to the delegates. Adjutant General Thomas A. Stewart then welcomed them to the state and Congressman J. S. Brown received them on behalf of the chamber of commerce.

In his annual address President Parry briefly discussed the labor problem, which he declared was at present the paramount question before the association. In reviewing the labor events of the past year he said:

"The theory that the condition of labor can be bettered by checking production and making life and property insecure was put to an extensive test and the results were disappointing to those who believe in that theory. There are many indications which go to show that organized labor is learning a very valuable lesson in economics and law observances, and hopes can be reasonably entertained that the strikes which have characterized the last year will be less strenuous in the immediate future.

"In regard to the National Association of Manufacturers I am positive that any crusade having for its object the grinding down of labor would meet with the determined opposition of practically the entire membership. The policy of this association is primarily one of peace. If we stand for anything we stand for the development of American industry. It is obvious that men will hesitate to invest their capital in productive enterprises if it means constant struggle with labor unions and if frequent strikes tend to destroy trade by making uncertain the filling of contracts. Industrial strife adds a hazard to investments, involving the employment of labor which cannot fail to be injurious to industrial development, thus causing permanent loss to all classes. Therefore our policy is one which looks to the maintenance of peace and not to the adoption of measures that will arouse hostilities."

Speaking of the closed shop, Mr. Parry said:

"The closed shop is against public policy and is of doubtful legality. The liberty of the individual would be impossible if he is debarred from the right to contract for his services because he does not belong to a union. I believe that this truth will become generally recognized and the day must come when no industry will be allowed to run on the closed shop plan. Any set of men have a right to contract in a collective capacity for the sale of their labor but they cannot be upheld in making contracts which exclude other labor from the right to contract."

In closing, he announced that the association had gained a thousand members in the last year, bringing the total membership up to 2000, and was in better financial condition than it ever has been.

One of the most important features of this meeting will be adoption of a new constitution for the organization.

The executive committee has been at work since the last meeting, held in New Orleans, preparing the new constitution, and it will likely be adopted with but few changes. There will probably be no changes made in the officers of the association for the coming year, and D. M. Parry, of Indianapolis, as president, Marshall Cushing, of New York, as secretary, and F. H. Stillman, of New York, as treasurer, will likely be elected at the closing session of the convention to be held Thursday. New vice presidents may be selected on account of state representation, and the executive committee may be changed slightly on this account.

The association now has 3500 members, nearly 1600 members having been received during the last year.

The treasurer's report shows a balance of about $15,000.

During their stay in the city the delegates will be shown the various industrial plants of the city and all the principal points of interest. Arrangements have been made for a special boat excursion on Thursday. A ball and reception will be given at the Hotel Schenly tonight.

DAVID M. PARRY,
President of Manufacturers' Association and Opponent of Trades Unionism.

SECTION MAN FATALLY HURT

Jacob Wise Crushed By Freight Train at Cass Lake.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Jacob Wise, a section man on the Great Northern, was run over this morning and died an hour later. Wise crawled under a freight train standing in the yards, and the train suddenly started. Both his legs were mangled, his head was crushed and he was injured internally. Wise died without regaining consciousness. The accident was witnessed by Wise's wife. He was 50 years old. No blame is attached to the railroad company.

OFFERS TO MEDIATE

Civic Federation Would Settle the Great Lakes Strike.

Tenders Its Services to Masters' and Pilots' Association.

Cleveland, May 17.—The Civic Federation, through its conciliation committee, has proferred its services with a view to bringing about a settlement of the existing differences between the Lake Carriers' association and the Masters' and Pilots' association. District Captain Paul Howell, of the Masters' and Pilots' association today received a letter from Charles A. Moore, chairman of the conciliation committee of the Civic Federation, with headquarters in New York in which he says he offered the service of the conciliation committee of the National Civic Federation to bring about an agreement. To this communication District Captain Howell has replied that if the committee can, through its good offices, bring about a settlement that would be acceptable to both sides of the trouble, he certainly would think a great good has been accomplished, but asked that it not be done at his solicitation, as the other side would make capital out of it and say it was a sign of weakness on the part of his association, which is "willing to stay out until June 21, 1905, if necessary to get our just demands."

Contracts embodying the wage scale of the masters and pilots were received today by Captain Howell from owners of the steamers Badger State, New Orleans, Business and Eva Ward. None of these boats are enrolled with the lake carriers.

DEMOCRATS OF WISCONSIN FAVOR EDWARD C. WALL FOR PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATION

State Convention Held at Pabst Theater, Milwaukee.

Wall Supporters Carried Ten of Eleven District Caucuses.

The Third District Alone Was Conceded to Hearst.

Milwaukee, May 17.—The Democratic state convention, which will elect four delegates to the national convention in St. Louis, met at noon today in the Pabst theater. Before the convention was called to order the opinion generally prevailed that Edward C. Wall would easily defeat William R. Hearst in securing endorsement for the presidential nomination, and that among those certain of being chosen national delegates were Mayor David S. Rose of Milwaukee and Neal Brown, of Wausau. Others mentioned include the names of Congressman Weisse of the Sixth district, Col. George W. Bird of Madison and Dr. Wendell A. Anderson, of La Crosse. It was reported that Timothy E. Ryan would undoubtedly be re-elected national committeeman, and in consideration of this honor, and from the fact that he lives in the same district as Mayor Rose, Mr. Ryan was willing to forego being a national delegate-at-large.

Chairman A. F. Warden of the state central committee called the gathering to order and introduced Former Congressman Owen A. Wells of Fond du Lac as temporary chairman. Mr. Wells' speech in the main was confined to an arraignment of the state and national Republican administrations. He said:

"He would be rash indeed, and convict himself of insincerity who would say that he was not proud and flattered by having been selected to preside, even temporarily, over an intelligent and representative a body of men as I see before and around me, the very flower of Wisconsin's Democracy; and being human, I plead guilty to a feeling akin to pride at having been thus honored. In assuming the responsibilities of the position I do so in the full confidence that I will have the hearty co-operation of the members of the convention to aid me in the performance of my duties connected therewith; and during my brief tenure, I assure you, I shall seek to merit your good opinion by striving to deal fairly with the interests concerned.

"We are, or should be, full awake to the fact that our actions here today is but the putting on of our political armor, preparatory to taking our place in the line of battle that will be fully formed when the convention at St. Louis shall have completed its work, by giving form and expression to the declaration of our faith and purposes that shall stand during this campaign as our party platform. Short and direct, let us hope, sound as heart of oak, conservative without Bourbonism, yet broad enough to afford ample standing room for every American worthy the knightly title of Democrat; and the selection of a standard bearer of judicial temperament and broad experience, who by his known character as a good citizen, his sturdy honesty, stability and soundness of his judgment, coupled with the courage of his convictions, will challenge the admiration and win and keep the confidence of that great body of conservative Americans who are the guardians of our liberties and the source from whence, if we would win in the impending struggle, we must recruit our forces; and in order to interest that element and enlist them in the cause of Democracy, we must convince them by our action of our sincerity, and that our purpose in not merely office getting and office holding, but the betterment of the condition of the people by a speedy return to the safe anchorage of constitutional methods as applied to the government in all its branches.

"We need not to wander far afield for material from which to construct our platform, nor for vital issues that mark the line that divides the two great parties; it lies in abundance ready to hand, furnished by our opponents through the policies adopted as their rule of faith and the recklessness of consequences with which they have gone forward in utter disregard of the law, subverting it to their own sweet will, until the old ship of state, under their captaincy, has drifted so far from her ancient moorings established by the sages who mapped her course, and for a century gave her steerage way, that if some steady hand be not called and at once, to take the helm and guide her by the compass of the Federal Constitution and the beacon light of Democracy, she will drift farther into the dangerous latitudes of socialism, anarchy, and militarism, and be finally wrecked on the sunken rocks of imperialism or worse, of absolutism.

"They have, through the policy of protection which they have engrafted upon our revenue system, created an army of mendicants, who, as they have grown wealthy on the alms obtained under the false pretense of benefits to accrue to the deluded laborer, grown insolent, and throwing off all disguise, now demand as a vested right, payment of the tribute they formerly accepted as a gratuity. They have, through the same policy and by the grant of special privilege by way of gift of the public domain and improvident grant of valuable franchises to their favorites, the great corporations, and individuals, who understand the potency of political pull, and the full value as a political asset of the good Republican mathematical rule of division and silence, enabled those pets and special wards of government, to amass fortunes in which they themselves have often shared; the magnitude of which would dazzle a Croesus, and by the corrupt use of which the electorate has been debauched; further special legislation has been purchased, seats in both branches of the national legislature have been bought and sold with as little regard for secrecy or decency, as characterized the action of Mark Antony and his bawd Cleopatra when their notorious conduct brought the blush of shame even to the chtek of ancient Rome; the very courts, the last sanctuary of liberty, have been invaded and the course of justice averted by bribery, direct and indirect, and through political control of appointments to the judiciary; yea, even here in our own state it is openly charged by his party associates, that the present governor was the residuary legatee of the political prophet derived from a bribe $200 given by one of the mangy litter of protected mon-

JAPANESE TROOPS MOVE STEADILY NEARER TO RUSSIAN FIGHTING LINE

Army Is Moving North In Three Columns and Is Almost Within Striking Distance of the Russians.

Mukden, May 17.—The fighting line is steadily nearing Mukden, where Viceroy Alexieff's headquarters still remain. Little reliable information can be obtained by the newspaper correspondents, who are forbidden to proceed to the scene of operations, and official information is withheld until advices are sent to St. Petersburg. It is now known, however, that the Japanese are almost within striking distance of the Russians, and that the forces protecting Liao Yang are stretching eastward, from the railroad along the Mao Tien mountain range.

The Japanese are advancing in three columns and are now north of Siu-Yen and Feng Wang Cheng. Two columns are reported to be working further northward with the object of turning the Russian position and advancing upon Mukden.

Numerous small engagements have been fought, but no decisive action has taken place. Port Arthur is now completely isolated by the Japanese expedition at Polandien.

The Japanese are now operating in a rugged country, well suited to the Russian defense; but north of Liao Yang to Mukden, country is a flat plain, intersected by rivers. The weather recently has been hot and dry, but the rain which has fallen in the past two days has made the roads almost impassable for vehicles and when the rainy season begins, at the end of June, this plain will be converted into a morass. This condition will probably result in the practical suspension of operations.

Mukden is now the receiving center for the wounded from the various engagements south of the Mao Tien mountains. A hospital has been established in the Lama Temple, in the outskirts of the town, and a field hospital has been located in a wood near the military camp around the station.

A significant feature of the situation, is the demeanor of the Chinese population, which may be said to be a barometer of the military weather. A close observant of the expressions and general attitude of the Chinese can tell how the fighting a hundred miles away is turning. They have rapid and mysterious channels of information through which the result of the battle at Feng Wang Cheng spread and could be suspected from the outward manner of the Chinese before the Russians made it known here. The cutting off of Port Arthur is another instance in point.

The newspaper correspondents are most courteously treated by Col. Poestich, the officer whom Viceroy Alexieff appointed to attend them, but they are chafing under the restriction imposed here which prevents them from seeing anything of the fighting.

General Kuropatkin is evidently unwilling that the foreign correspondents shall witness the present phase of operations, though he may accept them in the indefinite future, when the Russians are able to make a sweeping advance.

SKRYDLOFF SHUT OUT.

Cannot Reach Port Arthur to Command Fleet.

St. Petersburg, May 17.—The probability that there will be no further communication with Port Arthur, thus preventing Vice Admiral Skrydloff from assuming command of the Russian squadron there, has led to the suggestion that Skrydloff return from the far East and hoist his flag as commander of the Baltic fleet, which is destined for the far East. Vice Admiral Rojestvensky, who has been gazetted to command the latter, is a junior of Vice Admiral Skrydloff, and would be ordered to report to him as commander-in-chief. Whatever Skrydloff's future plans may be the admiralty says he will certainly proceed to Vladivostok and inspect the squadron there. The report that Vladivostok is blockaded is denied at the admiralty. Telegrams received from Rear Admiral Jessen do not refer to the presence of a single Japanese ship. It is said that the Russians would not have the slightest objection to a blockade of Vladivostok, since it would tie up a Japanese squadron without causing inconvenience. It being Admiral Skrydloff's plan not to risk either of the Russian squadrons until the Baltic squadron reaches the Pacific.

No official dispatches were given out this morning on account of the delay occasioned by the emperor's journey. His majesty arrived at Kharkoff this morning, whither all dispatches have been transmitted. A special force of operators have been detailed for this purpose.

In the absence of advices, the general staff is continuing its speculation, based on the latest reports of the appearance of considerable bodies of the enemy in the northwest section of Manchuria. The opinion prevails that this is an indication of the intention of the Japanese to make an attempt to stop Gen. Kuropatkin's retreat northward, while the main Japanese force is hurled against Liao Yang and Mukden. It is believed here that the Japanese generals must appreciate that they would lose the fruits of their achievement if Kuropatkin retired unmolested to Harbin and there awaited reinforcements, leaving the invaders to hold the country, and thereby losing men by disease. The Japanese course would have good prospects of success if they had sufficient strength, but the authorities here of the Japanese, a railroad engineer, who has just arrived here from the far East, was quoted today as saying that when he talked with the commander-in-chief in February the latter wanted an additional line built in the rear of the Manchurian army, so as to enable it to fall back, and subsequently advance. The engineer added:

"Kuropatkin said he hoped to advance at the end of August. I pointed out that he had better go slow and make a survey, to which Kuropatkin replied: 'Build immediately. There is no time for a survey. Otherwise the whole territory will be in the enemy's hands.'"

EVACUATION COMPLETE.

Russians March Out of Newchwang In Perfect Order.

Newchwang, May 17.—In confirmation of recent Associated Press dispatches the Russian evacuation of this city has been completed. Nothing remains but the destruction of the gunboat Sivouch, which it is expected will take place early in the morning.

The Russians admit the advance of the Japanese army to a point within

WISCONSIN REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION WILL BE EXCITING

Anti-Third Termers Threaten to Bolt If Contested Delegations Are Seated Where They Claim There Is No Question of Election.

Madison, Wis., May 17.—Republican leaders and delegates from all parts of the state are arriving on every train for the Republican state convention, which opens at the University gymnasium at noon tomorrow. The convention promises to be one of the most exciting in the history of the state. A state ticket and four delegates-at-large to the national convention in Chicago will be named, also the state presidential electors. The pre-convention campaign has been intensely exciting, and with this over, a majority of the delegates to the convention are claimed by the adherents of Governor Robert M. La Follette, as well as by the anti-third termers, who are supporting Judge Emil Baensch of Manitowoc, and Former Congressman Samuel A. Cook of Neenah. The managers of Governor La Follette's campaign claim that out of a total of 1065 delegates their candidate will have over 600, or a good majority over the number necessary to control, 533. The anti-third termers claim to have elected 560 delegates. In the tables made up by each faction both claim the delegates from Ashland, Dodge, Oconto, Eau Claire and Pepin counties. The contested cases will be settled by the state central committee, which is composed largely of La Follette supporters. It is said to be the plan of this committee to seat all or nearly all of the delegates from contested counties who will be favorable to the renomination of the governor. There have been many conferences bearing on the situation and many rumors afloat as to what the outcome will be. It has been openly stated that if the state central committee seats delegates over which the anti claim there is no question, there will be a bolt. In this case there will be two state tickets and possibly two separate lists of delegates-at-large to the national convention. The only part of the program on which the factions are likely to agree, in case of a split, will be the presidential electors.

Irving L. Lenroot, of Superior, has been named as temporary chairman, and will sound the keynote of the La Follette campaign.

The anti-third termers will meet tonight in the Fuller Opera house to map out their plan of campaign in the event of their delegates being unseated.

ICE BREAKER FOR ST. LAWRENCE

Montreal, May 17.—it is announced that the Dominion government will have an ice breaker built in England this summer for the purpose of trying to keep the St. Lawrence open later in the fall and also to break up the ice earlier in the spring. It is calculated that the shipping season at Montreal could be lengthened by at least a fortnight in the fall and that about the same time could be gained by breaking up the ice formation at Cape Rouge in the spring. The cost of the vessel will be about $300,000 and if the experiment prove successful another and larger boat will be built and stationed at Quebec in order to make the service even more efficacious.

WHITES AID THIBETANS.

New York, May 17.—Rumors that the Thibetans are receiving aid from white me nare becoming more frequent says a dispatch from the Times correspondent with the British expedition at Gyang-Tse, Thibet. The natives have received heavier ordinance from L'Hasa and considerable reinforcement from the east and north. A military censorship has been established at Chumbi over dispatches from the front.

WEST DULUTH

An enthusiastic meeting of citizens was held in the Commercial club rooms last evening, and the matter of a Fourth of July celebration for West Duluth this year that will eclipse all previous efforts in that line was taken up. Suggestions were in order and the plans were discussed in detail. The various committees to arrange for the event were for the first time announced. The names on them gave satisfaction to the citizens, for the committees had been carefully selected, only those men being chosen who would be sure to put forth their best efforts to make the celebration a big success.

The music and parade will be leading features of the day. L. S. Newman, chairman of the meeting, said that last year $150 had been paid for the music at the last celebration, and that more would be spent this year, if necessary. There will be a special effort to make the parade a good one. A squad of mounted police, members of the G. A. R. and militia and several uniformed societies will take part in it.

Meetings will be held frequently from now on until July 4. The next meeting will be held next Thursday evening, at the Commercial club rooms.

The committees announced last evening were as follows:

Executive—L. S. Newman, chairman; F. H. Wade, W. B. Getchell, A. Hendrickson, William Chesney, S. J. Nygren, L. A. Barnes, S. W. Hanchett, I. Deatherage, Charles Fancett, C. C. Salter, N. C. Hendrichs.

Soliciting—William Chesney, chairman; Otto Eklund, Ed Dormady, Nelo Bilcey, J. J. Frey.

Music—S. J. Nygren, chairman; Geo. Cruickshank, M. J. Fillatrault, E. J. Zautt, J. A. Scott.

Speakers and program—L. A. Barnes, chairman; M. M. Clark, G. J. Mallory, M. Jacoby, H. M. Phelps.

Sports—S. W. Hanchett, chairman; James Faubister, Chris Tracey, Wm. James, F. H. Wade.

Fireworks—I. Deatherage, chairman; Ed Warner, W. A. Fond, E. A. Webber, J. J. Ramsbottom.

Printing and advertising—Charles Fancett, chairman; V. R. Method, Peter Lund, E. E. Moseman, A. H. Merriman.

Parade—C. C. Salter, chairman; H. R. Patterson, John Galway, Dr. C. E. Confer, Alex Stewart.

Decorations—N. C. Hendrichs, chairman; I. Chabot, Joe Becks, Joseph Cochran, I. B. Flock.

COUNCIL MATTERS.

Two of Much Importance to West Duluth.

A resolution, ordering that the bridges on Grand avenue west at Sixty-first and Sixty-sixth avenues be strengthened, was adopted at the meeting of the council last night. The expenditure necessary to put the bridges in good shape, so that they will be able to sustain the weight of the large double-truck cars, will be about $5000. At first it was planned to repair the structures just enough so that the smaller cars might be safely run over them, but it was pointed out that more repairs would be necessary within a year or two to allow the running of the big cars, and it was decided it would be cheaper in the long run to put the bridges in good condition now.

The water board, in a communication to the council, asked permission to purchase two blocks of ground in Lloyd's addition of West Duluth for the purpose of constructing a reservoir as a basis for an auxiliary water system in West Duluth. The board urged that the proposed extension of the main on West First street would be too expensive and impractical. The money for building the reservoir, which would cost $30,000, is not available this year. The board stated that to duplicate the main from the city proper to West Duluth would cost $60,000.

It was requested that the board of public works investigate the condition of the cedar block paving on Central avenue from Cody street northward and ascertain if the streets cannot be used without the blocks, which were shown to be in a state of decay.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The body of Thomas Leahy, who died yesterday, is being held at Fillatrault's morgue awaiting word from relatives in Canada.

Frank Ehlenbach, the Central avenue grocer, left yesterday for his old home at Arcola, Ill., called there by a telegram announcing the death of his brother.

Twenty head of fine cows, milkers and springers, just received. For sale at a bargain. John Winnis, Central and Grand.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the entertainment to be held at Great Eastern hall this evening, under the auspices of Lodge Fram, No. 5, Sons of Norway, celebrating Norway's independence day, and it is thought that the attendance will be large.

For wall paper go to Nygren's.

O'Connell & Kilton, who secured the contract for constructing the West Duluth sewers, started work with a small crew of men this morning on the Grand avenue sewer.

Paints and oils at Nygren's.

The West Duluth W. C. T. U. will hold its fourteenth anniversary meeting Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. N. C. Hendricks, 331 North Fifty-seventh avenue west. All the ladies who have held the position of president of the West Duluth union will be present, including Mrs. R. Ellison, the first president, and Mrs. G. W. Smith and C. R. Keyes. The meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Dr. Hunton. There will be music and refreshments.

J. J. Frew is visiting at his old home in Buffalo, Wis. He will return to West Duluth next week.

White Pine Lung Balsam will cure that cough. At Nygren's.

A recital will be given by one of the Sunday school classes of the St. James Catholic church next Sunday morning.

George Munson has returned from Chicago, where he visited with friends.

Miss Mary Fillatrault, who has been visiting relatives in West Duluth, returned last evening to St. Paul.

Mrs. J. L. Almquist, of Grand avenue, has returned from St. Paul, where she was the guest of her daughter.

Robert Johnson, of Sherburne, Minn., is a guest of his sister, Mrs. L. B. Avery, in West Duluth.

Joseph Smiley, of Fifty-fourth avenue west, was a departure yesterday for Southern Wisconsin points.

Thomas Jennings arrived in the city yesterday to look after West Duluth real estate interests.

Otto Dieber, who has been employed as a laborer at the stone crushing plant in West Duluth, has received notice that through the death of a wealthy sister in Tyringen, Germany, he has fallen heir to a small fortune. He is now communicating with the authorities in Germany and hopes to have the legal side of the matter settled at an early date.

Division No. 4, A. O. H., will give a social, at which there will be raffled off a fine silver set, at Gilley's hall this evening.

ENGELS' ART STORE

17 and 19 THIRD AVENUE WEST.

Interest Increasas In the Sale of Women's Cloth Suits at Half-Price at the Gidding Store.

The sale of women's man-tailored suits at half price continues with unabated interest. The Gidding store was indeed a busy place yesterday, and women seemed to grasp the opportunity offered them right at the beginning of the season to be able to buy absolutely new and fresh styles in tailored suits at half price. A double force of salespeople enables their customers prompt attention, and three expert fitters are kept constantly busy. The sale continues tomorrow and they have added more numbers from their regular lines at half to make sizes and shades still complete.

Going Out of Business.

The Famous Shoe store has decided to retire from the shoe business. Their store will be closed Wednesday to give them an opportunity to arrange the stock and prepare for the big sale that will begin Thursday morning, at 9 o'clock, and continue until every pair of shoes is sold out. As a large spring stock had been bought before it had been decided to close the store, Duluth people may look for some exceptionally good bargains in spring foot wear.

N. P. MEETING ADJOURNED.

New York, May 17.—The adjourned annual meeting of the Northern railway, which was to have been held today, has again adjourned until July 7.

STATEMENT MADE BEFORE HIS DEATH

Testimony of Man He Murdered, Confronts Frank White.

On His Deathbed, He Relates Story of the Crime.

The most interesting feature in the murder trial of Frank White in district court, this morning, was the reading of the ante-mortem statement of Jerome Manaige, whom White is accused of slaying, made to County Attorney J. M. McClintock a few hours before death ensued.

The statement, signed by Manaige, was read to the jury by Mr. McClintock. It was as follows:

"I, Jerome Manaige, knowing and believing that I am going to die within a few hours and that immediate death is pending, make this statement as my dying declaration in the face of pending death, the same being true as my last words.

"Three men came to the saloon about 7 o'clock in the evening with a little lame fellow who was drunk and they wanted him to drink some more and I wouldn't let him take anything because he was drunk and sick at the time.

"The fellow who did the shooting tried to make him drink and I wouldn't stand for it. I told him not to force him and if he didn't want it he needn't take it. I told him I didn't think he was of age.

"He said: 'I'll sow you that he will drink,' and walked out.

"In about five minutes he came back and fired at me with a revolver, the bullet striking me in the chin.

"He stood in the side door at the time of firing.

"I was in the saloon about six feet from him. I had just got through working.

"He came up to the bar after coming back and was going to make the kid, the lame boy, drink.

"I told him the kid couldn't have anything to drink. He said the kid was a friend of his and could have a drink if he wanted it.

"Then he walked to the side door and as he reached the door, he turned and fired at me striking me in the chin as above related.

"He said nothing at the time of shooting. After shooting he walked out and I walked out after him. He walked to the viaduct. I walked after him.

"I told him to hold up as we walked, that I wanted to speak to him. He did not say anything. When we were about fifty feet from the saloon he turned on me when I was right behind him and shot at me again.

"He said nothing, shot twice near viaduct, one shot immediately following the other. One shot struck me in the side, and the other in the arm.

"He said nothing whatever while shooting.

"I had no weapon, knife or anything except my bare hands.

"I did not know the man's name. Never had seen him before.

"He was a middling tall man, rather heavy set. Think he had a sandy moustache, am not certain as to this, as I was very excited.

"I am certain it was a revolver he shot with because I could plainly see it.

"After he shot I held him until the officer, a big heavy set fellow came up and arrested him.

"After the man who did the shooting went out of the saloon the first time, the little lame fellow stayed in the saloon and the other two went out. Then they later came back in the saloon.

"The above is a true and correct statement and has been read to me and is now signed by me as my dying declaration and statement.

"JEROME MANAIGE."

Preliminary to the reading of the signed statement, Mr. McClintock testified as to how he visited St. Mary's hospital for the purpose of getting Manaige's account of the shooting affray before he died.

He said Manaige expressed the belief that he was about to die, and desired to make a statement of the events as they transpired up to and including the shooting. Dr. Magie was present during the reading of the statement to Manaige, and the latter verified it in every respect before he signed it. The statement was taken down in writing, as questions were answered, or as Manaige took up a direct narrative.

* * *

The first witness called for the state this morning was Andrew Anderson, a woodman, who was in the saloon when the trouble occurred, and who witnessed the shooting in the street.

Anderson said he heard Manaige order White to leave the Northland saloon, using these words:

"You are now out and I want you to stay out."

When White returned to the saloon, according to Anderson, he stood in the doorway and was about six feet from Manaige when the first shot was fired. Manaige passed his hand over his chin, as though he were struck, declared that he was not to be fooled with that way, and started out of the door after White. Anderson said White had crossed Michigan street with Manaige after him, when he turned around and fired twice in rapid succession, the first shot coming when Manaige was a few feet away from White, and the second when they were close together. Witness saw them clinch and then the crowd gathered around so that he could not see what transpired.

Ivor Johnson, another occupant of the saloon, testified as to the words that passed between Manaige and White when the former refused to permit White to compel a crippled companion to drink. He testified to White's ejectment from the saloon, his return, when he called Manaige bad names and fired a shot at him.

Charles Bolen, the bartender who relieved Manaige that same evening, corroborated the testimony of other witnesses as to the trouble in the saloon, and the shot taken at Manaige, while both were in the building. Witness claimed he knew Manaige was hit on the chin, because he saw the blood on his face before he went out after White.

Dr. W. H. Magie, who was called to St. Mary's hospital to examine Manaige following the shooting, and who attended the wounded bartender up to the time of his death some forty-three hours later, testified that he found three bullet wounds. The wound on the chin was a mere grazing shot. The bullet through the forearm came out about three inches from where it entered the inside of the arm. The wound in the side was the most serious. The bullet, Dr. Magie said, entered under the point of the tenth rib and took a downward, backward and inward course, passing through the abdominal cavity, the left kidney and penetrating the pancreas. It was the wound to the pancreas that was the direct cause of death. The bullet was never recovered.

Dr. Magie said that Manaige's condition for the first twenty-four hours following the shooting was very favorable and the absence of any noticeable shock gave the impression that the wound was a slight one, but as soon as the pancreas began feeling the effects of the bullet, Manaige failed rapidly.

He testified to hearing Manaige's dying statement to the county attorney.

On cross-examination Dr. Magie said there was no trace of liquor on Manaige when he was placed on the operating table, also that he was perfectly sane and rational when he made his ante-mortem statement, being entirely conscious up to the time of his death.

Witnesses called yesterday afternoon by the state were Officer John Roberg, who arrested White, and L. R. Birch, a saloonkeeper, who witnessed the meeting between White and Manaige on the viaduct.

The revolver with which White shot Manaige was introduced in evidence yesterday.

White shows close interest in the trial as it progresses and listens intently to every scrap of evidence introduced by the state, scarcely removing his eyes from the witnesses while they are on the stand.

The trial draws a great many spectators, the court room being filled at every session.

CORTELYOU IS SELECTED

By President as Head of Republican National Committee.

Washington, May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report that Secretary Cortelyou is to be made chairman of the Republican national committee, is confirmed today by those in the confidence of President Roosevelt. The officials of the committee, as selected by Mr. Roosevelt, are: Secretary Cortelyou, chairman; Harry New, of Indianapolis, vice chairman; Cornelius N. Bliss, of New York, treasurer. It is understood that Elmer Dover, former secretary to Senator Hanna, will retain the position of secretary, which he has held since the resignation of Perry S. Heath.

It was said today that Mr. Cortelyou would retire from the department of commerce and labor immediately after the Chicago convention, to take charge of the campaign and that in the event of Republican success he will be appointed postmaster general. This arrangement has been decided upon as a result of a decision of Postmaster General Payne to resign on account of ill health.

The selection of Secretary Cortelyou for the chairmanship is in line with the decision of President Roosevelt to keep in close touch with the details of his campaign. The president has told some of his advisers that he considers Mr. Cortelyou a very capable political organizer and that he prefers him to any of those who have been suggested for chairman.

HAVE MOVED INTO NEW HOME

Christensen, Mendenhall & Graham Now on First Street.

Christensen, Mendenhall & Graham, the well-known manufacturers and jobbers of men's working clothing and furnishings, are now established in their new home at 514-516 West First street, in the block immediately west of The Herald. The new building, which is 50 by 140 feet in dimensions, is conceded to be one of the most modern and substantial in its line in the Northwest.

It has four stories. The first floor is devoted to warerooms and shipping room, the second and third are used for general stock, and on the fourth is the factory, which turns out the popular Zenith shirts, pants and overalls, which have an established reputation throughout the Northwest and as far west as the Pacific coast.

From a small beginning, the firm of Christensen, Mendenhall & Graham, in the space of seven years, has grown to such proportions that the present change to more commodious quarters was an absolute necessity. Five traveling men are now employed, who cover the Northwest and the Western states thoroughly. While a general line of men's furnishing goods are manufactured and handled, a specialty is made of workingmen's goods, such as shirts, pants, overalls, mackinaws, etc.

With their increased facilities the firm is assured of a trade that in time will be second to none in its line in America.

PRESIDENT POLK'S NIECE SAYS: "PE-RU-NA IS WOMAN'S FRIEND."

Minnie Lee Collins, of Tennessee, says Peruna cured her of female trouble after the best physicians had failed.

Mrs. Minnie Lee Collins, Grandniece of the late President James K. Polk, writes from 912 High street, Nashville, Tenn.:

"For several years I experienced a severe attack of female trouble. The best physicians prescribed for me, but without avail. Two years ago I began to take Peruna at the advice of a friend. I noticed a perceptible improvement at once; after taking several bottles I was cured. I hold Peruna in high esteem and am always ready to say a good word for it."—MINNIE LEE COLLINS.

This is the same old story told by a thousand women in a thousand different ways. Female trouble: doctors fail to cure; Peruna, as a last resort, a happy relief from a dreary servitude to aches, pains and a complication of physical anguish that can never be described.

These women all tell the same story. Pains all gone. Dragging sensations gone. Quivers and throbbings and tremblings and dizziness and nausea and the irregularities and painful periods—all gone. In their place has come vigor and vivacity, health and hope, peace and patience, grace and gratitude.

Peruna is a wonder-worker in female diseases and yet the explanation of it is simple. Catarrh is the cause of these troubles. Peruna cures the catarrh. The cause being removed the symptoms disappear.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

STANLEY BURIED.

London, May 17.—The remains of Sir H. M. Stanley were buried today in the churchyard of the old Surrey village of Pirbright. Prior to the burial the British nation and the United States in the persons of Ambassador Choate and Consul General Evans, paid honor to the departed African explorer, with an impressive funeral service held in Westminster abbey. The service was fully choral. Both King Edward and the king of the Belgians were present.

CHICAGO TO SELL BONDS.

Chicago, May 17.—The Chicago city council has passed an ordinance directing the city controller to advertise for bids for sale of $5,500,000 of bonds, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the liquidation of judgments against the city. The time for presentation of bids terminates on May 27. There will be twenty-year bonds and serial bonds.

EXCURSION RATES.

Commercial Club Wants Same as Twin Cities.

At their meeting last evening the directors of the Commercial club referred to the public affairs committee the question of getting an excursion rate to Duluth from points in the territory governed by the Western passenger association.

It was reported to the committee that the association had determined to give the Twin cities one fare for the round trip from all points in the territory for 60 days beginning about July 1.

The directors believe that Duluth has advantages equal to the Twin cities from a tourist point of view, if not greater, and that if these avantages are properly set before the Western passenger association that body may be induced to make Duluth an excursion point as well as Minneapolis and St. Paul. The iron ranges, Isle Royale and other pleasant places for investigation and recreation, are mentioned among the number.

PAPER DEALERS TO MEET.

Men of Northwest to Hold Session Here.

Twenty members of the Northwestern Paper Dealers' association will hold their monthly business meeting this evening at the Commercial club, and a special table is to be set up for the occasion. It is a large round festal board, which will require a piece of linen nearly twenty feet square to cover its surface.

E. W. Matter, of the Duluth Paper and Stationery company, has been the principal in making arrangements here for the meeting, the members being from Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth and Superior. They usually meet in St. Paul, but as an urgent invitation was extended for them to come to Duluth for a change, they accepted the invitation.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

No More Arrivals, Though Some Boats Are Expected.

Longshoremen May Not Arbitrate For Month—Dredging Work.

Everything is still quiet in local marine circles. There have been no arrivals in the past two days. The Russia, which was expected in yesterday from the lower lakes has, it is learned, gone to Port Arthur before coming to Duluth, thus delaying her arrival in the local harbor. Several boats are now bound up the lake, and some of them are due at Duluth tomorraw.

Yesterday there were four clearances, the Pentland with ore for Fruitport, Mich., the Wyoming with merchandise, for Port Huron and the Osceola with a similar cargo for Chicago. The Mary Boyce got away yesterday with a load of lumber for Lake Erie. There have been no departures today.

The arbitration committee that is to arbitrate the question of whether longshoremen are to receive 50 cents or 52½ cents an hour for loading boats at the western end of Lake Superior, will, it is expected, meet in Duluth within the next thirty days. President B. J. Keefe, of the International Longshoremen's association, who is a member of the committee, says that he cannot be in Duluth for about a month. Meantime the longshoremen will perform whatever work they are called upon to do in the line of loading boats with lumber, and a record of their time will be kept, so that if the arbitration committee decides they are to get the extra 2½ cents per hour the amounts may be quickly figured out and paid over.

DREDGING BEGINS.

Not Much In Local Harbor This Year.

The first dredging operations of the season, in the local harbor, began yesterday when a dipper dredge belonging to the Lake Superior Contracting and Dredge company commenced work on the coal dock near the Murray-McCann mill. Another dredge will be set at work dredging the sand away from the mouth of the Nemadji river and some work will be done at Superior entry, but outside of these localities there will be little dredging done here this summer. The local concerns have contracts elsewhere this season and few of the dredges will be kept in the local harbor. Most of them are likely to be operated at the Sault where the government has considerable work in view.

Whitney Bros. have under construction what they claim will be the largest scow on the lakes. It will be 180 feet long with a 38-foot beam and 12 feet deep. The carrying capicty will be 1200 tons and the scow will be equipped with a derrick at each end. It will be used in carrying gravel to the Superior entry new pier work.

STEAMBOAT RULES.

Amended Copy Received By Local Inspectors.

The local board of steam vessel inspectors today received from Washington a copy of the amended steamboat rules and regulations. The most important of the new clauses read as follows:

"Practical service in the deck department of a steam yacht of over 100 tons, cruising on inland waters, when offered in documentary evidence by a person applying for a pilot license, or raise of grade, shall be accepted as being equal to the same amount of service on any inland passenger vessel.

"And the holder of a license as first-class pilot may have the same indorsed, without examination, as master of lake, bay, sound or river steamer of 150 tons, or under, engaged exclusively in towing.

"Whenever the owner or sailing master of a steam or sailing yacht, who has had three years' experience in sailing such vessels, applies for a license authorizing him to act as master of steam yachts for coastwise and ocean navigation, the local inspector shall examine the applicant."

The clause relative to certificates of inspection is changed so as to allow the renewal of certificate at any time not exceeding thirty days of expiration of current certificate of inspection. Formerly ten days was the limit.

ENTERED AT SAME TIME.

Pentland Came In With Steamer Boyce.

Friends of Captain Thomas McKambridge, of the steamer Pentland, which opened ore navigation by her departure last night claim that the captain is entitled to credit of entry here as early as the Boyce.

Both boats came in last Thursday, it is asserted, and the Boyce used the Duluth entry while the other came through the Superior entry. Captain McKambridge told people while he was here that he heard the other boat whistling for her approach to Duluth while he was coming through the other side.

The engineer of the Pentland is C. Ball, while the craft is owned by W. H. Londit, of Grand Haven, Mich.

ENROLLED HERE.

The big new steal screw steamer, the Augustus B. Wolvin, will know Duluth as her home port. A bill of sale, formally recommending the transfer of the vessel to the Acme Steamship company, was today filed in the local customs office, and enrollment papers were made out.

BUYS FINE LAUNCH.

A. W. Echart, general manager at Lake Nebagamon for the Weyerhauser lumber interests, was in Duluth a shot time ago and picked out a fine launch for the private use of his family on the lake this summer.

The launch is run by naptha, is 22 feet long, and is said to be one of the nicest boats, if not the peer of any, that will be seen on the lake this summer, and Mr. Echart's friends are watching one another jealously to see who gets invited to ride in it first after it is initiated by the family.

The name given to the new boat is the "Doad-E," which is understood to be an abbreviation of Mrs. Echart's name, the E standing for Echart. The boat is said to have cost $500. A number of new boats are expected to be seen on Lake Nebagamon this summer and the neighborhood is expected to be more popular than ever as a summer resort.

WITH FIFY-EIGHT.

Commercial Club's Relations With Other Clubs.

Fifty-eight commercial and other clubs throughout the United States are exchanging courtesies with the Commercial club of Duluth and this fact is made conveniently plain on the back of the new membership cards, which are being issued by Secretary Eva. The towns and the names of the clubs are all included in the back of the cards and the former are in alphabetical order so that it is no trouble for the anxious member to learn how he is going to fare in the town to which he is going.

But whether the courtesy is declared or not, there are a large number of clubs of the character which give their courtesies to visiting members from other clubs whether they have sent notices out to that effect or not, and it is said that many a hospitable occasion is not learned of by Commercial club members owing to lack of making inquiry in the towns to which they go.

The fifty-eight clubs in the list are said to be more of a suggestion for the members than to pretend to be a complete list of desirable club rooms where the Duluth men will find a welcome. In order to get the list into compact form so that it would print well on the back of the small membership card, it had to be photographed from a large printed copy and reduced to a plate small enough to confine its impression in the limited space. The effect finally secured is excellent.

The towns where the courtesy is openly declared are as follows: Deadwood, Des Moines, Lincoln, Neb., Moline, Ill., Philadelphia and San Francisco having two; Albuquerque, Appleton, Wis., Atlanta, Austin, Ill., Austin, Minn., Billings, Boston, Buffalo, Cedar Rapids, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas, Dayton, Deadwood, Denver, Des Moines, El Paso, Fairhaven, Wash., Fargo, Faribault, Fort Smith, Ark., Galveston, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Lanesboro, Minn., Lincoln, Neb., Louisville, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Mobile, Moline, Ill., Montgomery, Muscatine, Northfield, Minn., Ogden, Omaha, Pierre, S. D., Philadelphia, Portland, Ore., Red Wing, Salt Lake, San Antonio, San Francisco, Savannah, Scranton, Sioux City, Springfield, O., St. Joseph, Mo., St. Paul, Tacoma, Winnipeg and Winona.

A Bullet Proof Vest.

It is reported that a vest made of bullet proof cloth was recently sent to the president, to be worn as a protection against assassination. If this cloth will do all that is claimed for it, its discovery will be a most valuable one, especially to all public men. While it is good policy to protect the system from danger on the outside, it is equally as important to protect it from the inroad of disease on the inside. For this particular work Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is highly recommended by physicians everywhere. It will tone up and strengthen the system so effectually that disease cannot find a foothold. Then it also cures indigestion, dyspepsia, bloating, dizziness, insomnia, liver troubles and malaria, fever and ague. A trial will convince you of its value.

COMMENCE SUIT

Warren Bros. Bring Action Against City of Duluth.

Claim Infringement of Bituminous Macadam Pavement Patent.

The Warren Brothers company, which has had trouble with the city over certain paving contracts, and with its principal place of business in the city of Boston, has started two injunction suits in the United States circuit court against the city of Duluth, seeking to have it perpetually enjoined from using or allowing to be used locally certain apparatus for preparing mineral ingredients of bituminous macadam or other pavements for use, on which it is alleged the Warrens hold patents, and from using any pavements substantially as described in a certain letters patent, now held by the Warren company, and which it is claimed has been infringed by Duluth. Damages are also asked for such apparatus and paving unlawfully used in the past. A writ of subpoena directed to the respondent, the city of Duluth, commanding it to appear and answer to the bills of complaint, is asked for in each case.

The bill of complaint in the first case, as filed with the clerk of federal court, states that Frederick J. Warren secured a patent on a new and useful improvement in the method of preparing the ingredients of street sheet pavements or roadways Dec. 9, 1902, which was later assigned to the complainant, now sole owner of the patent.

"And your orator further shows unto your honors that since the issue of said letters patent and before the commencement of this suit, the defendant, well knowing the premises and rights and privileges secured to your orator by the said letters patent, and contriving to injure your orator and deprive it of the profits, benefits and advantages which might otherwise accrue to it, has, at the city of Duluth, unlawfully and wrongfully made, constructed, laid and used, and is now unlawfully making, constructing, laying and using, and is about to enter into contracts with other parties to make, lay and construct large areas and extents of pavements and roadways containing the invention set forth in said letters patent, and in violation of the exclusive privileges secured thereby to your orator and in infringement of said letters patent."

The other complaint is practically the same, except that it refers to an apparatus for mixing the macadam, which was patented by one H. W. Ash, and later assigned to the Warren company.

In both cases Stears & Hunter, of Duluth, are named as attorneys for the complainant.

ORE LANDS INVOLVED

Have Caused Delay In Transfer of Clairton Steel Company.

Tomorow is the day set for the transfer of the Clairton Steel company to the United States Steel corporation. At the time the sale was announced some days ago, it was not stated that there was a time in which the deal was to be completed, but it appears that owing to a difference among the present owners this time had to be given to permit of a settlement of the dispute.

The trouble is between W. P. Snyder, president of the Clairton Steel company, and the steel corporation, and negotiations are on between Snyder and H. C. McEldowney, president of the Union Trust company of Pittsburg, representing the corporation, for a settlement of the difference. It is said the matter will be decided today.

The question hinges on the ownership of one-half interest in the iron ore lands on the Mesaba range, conservatively estimated to be worth $2,000,000. It appears that when the Clairton Steel company was formed Mr. Snyder made an agreement disposing of one-half interest in these lands to the Clairton company, retaining one-half interest himself, but making a tonnage agreement with the company for the production of a certain amount of pig iron tonnage each year, about one-eighth of its output.

The ownership of the one-half of the ore lands of Mr. Snyder seems to have been the stumbling block, not having been settled in the early negotiations for the sale. Mr. Snyder is said to have had no desire to part with his share, but does not wish to block the disposal of the company to the corporation. The question of Mr. Snyder receiving any of the output of the Clairton plant is not involved, as the corporation has made no objection to the agreement, but it desires all the land, as a joint ownership unless harmonious, would render operations impossible. It is said the ore possessions are among the Mesaba range and are not fully developed.

In this connection it is asserted on what is regarded as good authority that there is no good foundation for the rumor that the Shenango mine, formerly owned by the Oliver-Snyder interests, has been disposed of to the corporation. It is one of the wettest mines on the range. One large Prescott pump has been put in the mine and it is said that another with 3000 gallons capacity is being placed.

RUSTY OWENS WILL TWIRL

Will Be In Box In Opening Game At Fargo.

"Rusty" Owens will probably pitch for Duluth in the opening game of the Northern league season at Fargo Thursday.

Owens is due to report in Duluth tomorrow and will leave with the team over the Northern Pacific tomorrow night at 8 o'clock for Fargo. If he is in good condition when he reports he will be put in the box Thursday. He has been pitching good ball with the Minneapolis team and should make a good showing against Perry Werden's bunch.

The White Sox will not play tomorrow. Some of the men are suffering from stiffness, the result of too much practice in the cold weather, and they will take a rest tomorrow preparatory to the opening of the season at Fargo.

SNOW BANK IN JUNE

That Promises to Be One of Park Point's Curiosities.

Season Is Opening, Cottages Filling and Pavilions Starting.

From present indications a snow scene in June will be one of Park Point's strongest attractions to the tourist this year. The immense drifts of mixed sand and snow that were piled along the strip of land during the heavy storms of the past winter have not yet by any means entirely disappeared. Where the snow was protected by the shade of the pine trees, and in many places where covered with sand, there are still drifts from three to five feet deep, and the snow is so hardly packed as to appear almost like ice. In some of the open places even there are drifts, kept intact by a covering of sand. The snow peeps out in startling contrast to the surroundings. Some of the point residents boast that they will be able to exhibit patches of it to visitors from the South even as late as July, but this prediction is regarded as being rather far fetched. There is talk of placing a tent over the most promising drift to keep it in a state of preservation as long as possible, and introduce it as a curiosity to strangers.

The summer cottages on the point are fast becoming occupied with residents from the city, and the winter quietness of the place is transformed into a scene of busy activity. Many of the cottages are already occupied, and nearly all of them are undergoing repairs and improvements. The painters are busy with their gay-colored paints, and when they are done the camping district will present more than the usual attractive appearance. Several new summer homes are in the course of construction. There will probably be more campers on the point this year than ever before.

The Park Point railway company is also making spring improvements, and is extending the line for some distance southward. One cottager, more enterprising than the rest, has just had a windmill and water tank placed on his property. As the mill is high enough to be above the trees, it will probably never lack for wind.

Dancing begins at the pavilion this week, and the usual restaurants and refreshment stands are opening up. It will be only a short time now before the point is entirely in readiness for the daily rush of pleasure seekers from Duluth and Superior.

MEMORIAL DAY.

Annual Proclamation Issued By Governor Van Sant.

St. Paul, May 17.—Governor Van Sant has issued the following proclamation:

"In commemoration of the deeds of those who gave their lives that our country might survive and its glory be perpetuated, I, as governor of the state of Minnesota, do hereby urge the observance of Monday, May 30, 1904, as Memorial day.

Throughout our land, in almost every city, village and hamlet, are found the honored graves of American soldiers and sailors; they died for their country, they died for us. May we gather from their lives and deeds that inspiration which arouses genuine love for our country and devotion to its institutions. Their valor and patriotism established and preserved our republic, and we should devoutly consecrate this day to their memory and tenderly strew their graves with garlands of love. To honor the memories of the brave who sleep in the 'windowless palace of the grave' is not only a sacred duty, but evinces the love of a grateful people. That the day may be fittingly observed, I urgently urge the cessation of business throughout the state, and that we individually devote the day to expressions and deeds showing our devotion to the memory of these, our honored dead.

R. S. VAN SANT, Governor.

YALE MATTERS.

Silver Mace Presented—New Scholarship Announced.

New Haven, Conn., May 17.—At the May meeting of the Yale university corporation just held here Professor S. Sanford of the department of music, presented the university with a mace as the symbol of authority of the president and the fellows of the corporation. It is of silver covered with gold, weighs twenty-four pounds and is forty-seven inches long. The main shaft of the mace contains the names of the thirteen president of the university. Space is provided for twenty more names.

President Hadley announced the establishment of a new scholarship in Yale in memory of Walter Joseph Austrian of the class of 1907, who lost his life in the Iroquois theater fire. By the provisions of this scholarship the annual income of a fund of $6000 is to be given to a student of strong character and influence, marked ability and promise of scholarship. The first recipient of the scholarship is Roger Benton Hull. The scholarship is the gift of Joseph Austrian of Chicago and Henry Block, of New York City.

A number of appointments and reappointments of professors were made. Prof. Francis G. Peabody, D. D., of Harvard university was chosen Lyman Becher lecturer for next year and Prof. William N. Clark, D. D., of Colgate university, was chosen N. W. Taylor lecturer for next year.

DEMOCRATS OF MONTANA

Meet at Great Falls to Select National Delegates.

Butte, Mont., May 17.—The Democratic state convention at which six delegates and as many alternates will be chosen for the Democratic national convention at St. Louis will convene at Great Falls this afternoon. Several of the delegations from counties throughout the state come with endorsements for W. R. Hearst and a warm fight with the New Yorker's followers for the control of the gathering is expected.

Senators W. A. Clark and Paris Gibson, and Governor Toole will probably be three of the national delegates.

Among other candidates are Lieutenant Governor Frank Higgins and W. G. Conrad.

The sentiment generally appears opposed to instructing the delegates for anyone.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

More than 300 American laborers arrived at Colon Monday. The majority of them are under contract to the United States Fruit company at Bocas Del Roan, the others are seeking work there, but the present conditions are unfavorable for such early arrivals.

Jimmy Britt and Young Corbett Monday were matched for the featherweight championship of the world. The fight will take place in San Francisco, but the date has not been set. The articles stipulate, however, that the men shall meet in the ring not later than December 31.

Vincent Malzer of Michigan City, Ind., left Monday for St. Petersburg, where he will volunteer his services to the czar's army. Malzer is well educated and ever since the outbreak of the war he has been impatient to fight for the czar.

Mrs. Phillis Smith and little son, residing near Dudley, in Callahan county, Texas, were struck and instantly killed by lightning during a thunder storm. A baby in Mrs. Smith's arms was severely burned but will survive.

In the recent primaries at Jacksonville, Fla., two tickets for delegates to the national Democratic convention were in the race. One was put out by the Hearst club and the other was in the interest of no particular candidate. Returns show that three of the Hearst men were elected and six of the others.

Announcement is made by the re-organizers of the Lake Superior company that the following named men have consented to become directors in the new corporation: J. Tatnall Lea, Charles S. Hinchman and Francis B. Beaves of Philadelphia; John T. Terry, Charles E. Orvis, and Dumont Clark, New York; George B. Turrell, Orange, N. J.; C. D. Warren, Toronto, and Thomas J. Drummond, Montreal.

Reports from Albuuerue, Winslow, Needles, Seligman, Barstow, Point Richmond and San Barnardino, received by General Manager Wells, of the Santa Fe, are to the effect that every boilermaker struck at the points named when the call was issued Saturday afternoon. At Bakersfield and Los Angeles, where only a comparatively few men are employed, in these departments the order was not obeyd, and th men remained at work.

TO LIE IN STATE.

Remains of Gen. Sanborn In Governor's Room.

St. Paul, May 17.—Gov. Van Sant has issued a proclamation which sets forth at length the late Gen. Sanborn's services to the state and proceeds as follows:

"As a tribute to his memory, and as an expression of our grief, I, as governor of the state of Minnesota, direct that all flags on state buildings be placed at half mast until after the funeral, and that public business be suspended between the hours of 11 o'clock a. m. and 3 o'clock p. m. on the funeral day. The remains of our honored citizen will lie in state in the governor's room at the capitol between the hours of 12 o'clock noon and 2:30 o'clock p. m., on Wednesday, May 18, and the funeral will occur on said day, at the hour of three o'clock at the House of Hope church."

BRAKEMAN KILLED IN COLLISION ON G. N.

Everett, Wash., May 17.—The west bound overland train on the Great Northern ran into two freight trains at the Shingle Mill siding, at Monroe, 15 miles east of Everett last night. The engine and baggage car were wrecked and Head Brakeman Tom Downing was killed. The express messenger on the passenger and a mill hand who was on the freight are missing. The engineer of the passenger train was injured, possibly fatally. Passengers were shaken up, but not seriously injured.

HAS GREAT WEALTH

Minnesota's Timber Has Valuation High In Millions.

Received Half Million Dollars For Last Winter's Cut.

Minnesota's timber wealth still remains an important factor in the state's resources.

According to the figures of State Auditor Iverson, there was approximately 85,000,000 feet of timber cut on state lands during the logging season just closed. From these these logs the state realized about $500,000, nearly all of which has gone to swell the permanent school fund, which now amounts to about $16,000,000.

The estimates of the state auditor show about 1,500,000,000 feet of timber still remaining on state lands, of a value of about $10,000,000. As this timber is growing right along, the state auditor figures that the state can cut about $500,000 worth every season for a great many years to come.

The logging season just closed was a prosperous one for the state, the receipts from timber giving an average price of about $6.50 per thousand feet. Six or eight years ago the state received about $2 or $2.50 per thousand for its lumber.

The policy of the state is to have cut each year only that timber that is in danger of being destroyed by fire, windfall or in other ways. As the price of lumber has been advancing it has been considered a good investment to let the state timber continue to grow and increase in value.

The timber on state lands is only one of the resources of the trust funds of Minnesota. Besides the mines on which the state gets a royalty of 25 cents for every ton of ore shipped, a vast acreage of ground from which the timber has been cut and is available for sale and settlement.

The scale bills for the Duluth district during the past season show approximately 20,000,000 feet of timber cut in the district, with about 40,000,000 feet yet to be reported.

The Minneapolis district reported about the same amount cut as the Duluth district, while about 5,000,000 feet were reported from Stillwater and other districts.

Individual timber sales have been few, particularly in this county, for the past several months. The largest to go on record within recent date was filed this week.

W. H. Cook, of this city, has sold to E. W. Benjamin timber lands in 67-21 for $48,000 and timber lands in 68-18 and 65-19 for $46,000. The papers indicate that the transactions were negotiated some time ago.

Jack Sully Meets Death In a Running Fight.

Chamberlain, S. D., May 17.—The notorious desperado, Jack Sully, who for many years has been the terror of the Rosebud country, was killed yesterday in a running fight with officers on the Rosebud reservation. Many bullets found lodgment in Sully's body, while the horse on which he was attempting to escape, also was killed. About a week ago Sully ran off a bunch of nearly 200 cattle, disposing of a portion of them in Nebraska. The balance of the cattle were recovered. As a result of this exploit, United States Commissioner Tidrick, of this city, sent out Deputy United States Marshal Petrie and a posse, with orders to bring in Sully dead or alive. They found Sully at his home, on Black Birds island, and ordered him to surrender. He sprang onto his horse, however, and made a dash to liberty, closely pursued by the posse. A running fire was kept up between pursuer and pursued, which soon resulted in the killing of Sully's horse and the fatal wounding of himself. He died thirty minutes after being hit. Sully, for the past thirty years, has been recognized as the head of a band of cattle rustlers, whose depredations have caused endless trouble and expense to the stockmen of this section.

VICTORY IS THEIRS

Cameron's Colts Finally Give White Sox a Drubbing.

Two Fatal Innings Put Duluth to the Bad.

Cameron's Colts took a sweet revenge yesterday afternoon for the drubbing administered to them last week by the White Sox. The men from Bugville won out by the score of 9 to 7 in a slugging match at baseball park.

Ragged play by the White Sox in the first and fourth innings lost the game, and the sensational rally which brought the fans to their feet in the eighth and ninth innings proved to be too late. The team was weakened by the absence of Quillan, Lagger and Randall, and Duluth had two pitchers playing in the outfield and Wilkes on third. Gehring in the outfield played the star game of the day, however, banging out two home runs and accepting four difficult chances. Shaw fielded his position in good style, but he was not there with the stick when a hit was needed.

Duluth got started wrong. Egan, the first man up, got a base on balls and went to second on Keas' long fly to Gehring. O'Dea got a hit and Cameron followed with a double, scoring Egan and O'Dea. Chandler went out to Shaw. Foster rapped out a double, scoring Cameron, and Simmonds hit safely, scoring Foster. Rogers went out Martin to Zink.

Only three Duluth men faced Simmonds the elongated slnt artist of the Bugville bunch, and then the visitors took another whirl at Koukalik. The two first men up were retired, and then Keas broke the heart of the fans by slamming one over the deep center field fence for four bases.

In their half of the inning Duluth started after Simmonds with a vim. O'Leary, the first man up, hit safely, and Zink followed with a hit that he lengthened into a two-bagger. But they died on the bases, Gehring, Wilkes and Koukalik failing to get a hit.

Superior went out one-two-three in the third, and the White Sox got their first run on hits by Corrigan, Martin and O'Leary, and a fielder's choice which let Ball get to first.

Superior took another hand in the game in the fourth. Simmonds, the first man up, slammed the ball for two bases, Rogers hit safely, and Kilroy sacrificed him to second and scored Simmonds. Egan got his base on an error by O'Leary and Keas hit safely, scoring Rogers. O'Dea hit, scoring Egan; Cameron got his base on a fielder's choice, which caught Keas at the plate, and Chandler died at first, retiring the side. The inning netted Superior four runs, leaving the score 9 to 7.

The Duluth contingent was in despair. Even the seats rose up in tiers and some of the more pessimistic called for Noldin to take Koukalik's place. But "Coke's" trance was over and he came down out of the clouds. Superior never had a look-in for the next five innings, and only two more scratch hits were secured off his delivery.

In their half of the fourth Duluth again looked like winners, but failed to make good. "Hank" Gehring hammered the first ball pitched by Simmonds over the left field fence for four bags, but that ended the carnage and while Koukalik drew transportation to first and Corrigan got a hit, Wilkes, Shaw and Ball went out in easy fashion.

For three more innings the kid that has charge of the score board had to chalk up big "0's" opposite Duluth, but the Sox still had a rally coming. In the eighth Gehring led off with a hit. Wilkes got his base on the first error made by Superior, and Koukalik hit for two bases, scoring them both. Shaw died at first, Corrigan sacrificed and Ball brought "Coke" in with a clean single, but Martin flew out to Foster and three runs was the best the White Sox could count.

With the score of 9 to 5 against them, they still had a rally coming, however, and after O'Leary had been retired in the ninth, Zink lammed out his second two-bagger and third hit of the day. Then Mr. Gehring walked up to the plate with his club and swatted one of Simmonds' benders over the left field fence within ten feet of the spot where he had placed the on in th fourth inning. Still two runs to get and one man out. But Wilkes and Koukalik proved to be unequal to the emergency and went out with easy grounders to Keas.

Simmonds, the Superior pitcher, is a find and should prove to be a winner in the league. He had Duluth at his mercy until the eighth inning although fourteen hits were made from his delivery. The Duluth team was disorganized by the absence of Randall and Quillan and the first defeat of the year resulted. They will be in the game this afternoon, however, and Noldin will pitch. It will be the last game played here until June 2, as the team will leave tomorrow to open the season with Perry Werden's bunch in Fargo.

WILL DEAL WITH MEN

Carriers Likely to Ignore Masters' and Pilots' Association.

Cleveland, O., May 17.—At a meeting of the local vessel owners yesterday afternoon it was decided to issue a general call for a meeting of all members of the Lake Carriers' association, to be held here next Thursday, to take united action in regard to the deadlock existing between the Lake Carriers' association and the Masters' and Pilots' association. A strong sentiment prevailed among those attending the conference in favor of continued resistance to the demand of the masters and pilots.

Henry Coulby, general manager of the Pittsburg Steamship company, and a members of the executive committee of the Lake Carriers' association, has issued a statement, in which he declares he is in entire accord with the position of the Lake Carriers' association in opposing the terms of the masters and pilots, and that he was aware of the contents and approved of the statement sent out a week ago by William Livingstone, president of the Lake Carriers' association. Mr. Coulby's statement concludes as follows:

"After the action of the masters and pilots on our compromise proposition, and the arbitrary position taken by their executive officers during the last few days in insisting on the enforcement of their ex poste facto ruling, made April 12, that men who were not notified prior to Jan. 15 of the discontinuance of their employment, should be considered as engaged to the same boat, or a better one, for the coming season, and the threat, if any owner appoints any other captain to the boat she will not be allowed to sail this year, coupled with their demands that the men shall receive a full season's pay, whether they work or not, and other similar demands, raises a very serious question in my mind whether it is possible for us to deal with this organization for our captains or not."

At the meeting of the vessel owners it was practically agreed to not deal with the masters and pilots as an association, but to engage the captains and mates as individuals. The meeting Thursday will be to have members of the association sign an agreement.

Rochester, N. Y., May 17.—The strike of the masters and pilots on the great lakes for higher wages may prove a serious matter for the millers of this city. Representatives of important local milling interests declared today that if the strike was of long duration the mills of this city will probably shut down rather than accept the alternative of bringing their wheat by rail. The railroad rates for this class of freight is about double the canal rates. Very little grain has been received here since the canal opened, ten days ago.

PARTNER ELOPED

With His Wife, Says Parkersburg Business Man.

Parkersburg, W. Va., May 17.—T. W. Starbuck, a wealthy business man, has filed suit for divorce, and named his former partner, R. C. Smoot, as co-respondent. In his petition he alleges that his wife and Smoot eloped, and it is said that they were seen together by two Parkersburgers on the streets of Cincinnati. He alleges that his wife mysteriously disappeared a few days ago, and that later Smoot left the city after he had sold his interest in the plumbing business, which they conducted jointly.

Smoot's wife is here. Mrs. Starbuck leaves four smal children for her husband to care for. Mrs. Starbuck is a dashing blonde. Mrs. Smoot is a handsome brunette, and their husbands are very prominent in business circles, while their wives moved in the best society social circles.

When moving why not engage covered vans. It costs no more.

Hints To Advertisers

If you want to buy, sell or exchange, call up 324, either 'phone. A Herald ad gives big returns for a little investment.

Why miss The Herald's Iron Range editions? That's an important part of its advertising service, and you're entitled to it if you get your copy in by noon of the day before.

An evening newspaper advertisement finds the reader at leisure—with mind and surroundings adjusted to reading and considering.

Don't you like to have the people of Duluth "take off their hats to you?" And don't they always do it to a successful Herald advertiser?

Your competitor in business does not become dangerous until he begins to advertise more than you do, and to sell goods cheaper. Then you must "sit up and take notice."

What sort of crop would the farmer reap if he concluded that seed was too expensive? To the merchant the advertising appropriation is "seed-money." When he economizes on it he is planning for smaller harvests.

The relations between food and life are pretty well understood—as are the relations between newspaper advertising and business life.

The man who neglects his friends makes a bid to be forgotten. The business house that does not advertise makes the same plea.

If the doors of your store are not kept swinging on their hinges more steadily than those of the house across the street, look to your advertising—the only good lubricant for rusty hinges.

Your advertising is a salesman, says Jacob G. McCall in Judicious Advertising. Arm it with the power of suggestion. Let the other fellow do part of the thinking and you've made a friend of him, you've flattered him, but no more than he deserves, for, if he is fit to come out and buy for himself he is equal to doing some thinking for himself. Leave something to his imgaination.

Ad Sense says that Susanna Wesley, when her husband asked her why she told her boy the same thing over and over again, unwittingly created an advertising aphorism when she said: "Once telling is not enough." People are so busy nowadays, their brain cells are so crowded, that your advertisement must stand at the dor and knock until some little cell is temporarily left vacant—then it can go in and take its place. Advertising is not a success until it has engraved itself upon the human mind.

GAME NOT NOISY

Testimony of Witnesses In the Sunday Baseball Case.

Line of Defense Is That There Was No Disturbance.

Charles Lund, carpenter, 923 East Sixth street.

K. S. Adams, grain weighmaster, Riverside park.

John Rossiter, solicitor, 4741 London road.

Michael Cashin, lumberman, 5807 Cody street.

Jacob Thorenson, laborer, 1913 West First street.

George Prebec, contractor, 101 East Fourth street.

O. W. Olson, stone mason, 920 East Fifth street.

William P. Faubister, grocer, 5602 Grand avenue.

R. J. McLeod, oiler, 2723 West Third street.

W. H. Wilson, bookkeeper, Duluth Heights.

Fred Rankin, railroad man, 213 South Seventeenth avenue east.

Dan McDonald, freight clerk, 1226 West Michigan street.

The above twelve men may decide whether or not Duluth will have Sunday baseball games during the coming summer. They were sworn in this morning, after a rigid cross-examination, to act as jurors in the trial of L. A. Van Praagh, accused of creating a disturbance by playing baseball on Sunday.

They were questioned as to their religion, their membership in the churches, their attitude toward Sunday baseball, their previous knowledge of the case, and their attitude toward the law governing Sunday observance. Eight jurors were objected to by the attorneys on various grounds, and it was nearly noon before the list was finally complete.

F. G. Pastoret was the first witness called to the stand by the assistant city attorney.

"Mr. Pasteret, were you at the baseball game played here Sunday, May 8, at the baseball park?" asked the prosecuting attorney.

"I was."

"You are one of the 'fans?'"

"I believe I am."

"State to the jury the manner in which the crowd conducted itself that day."

"They acted like a lot of gentlemen."

"Was there any noise?"

"I didn't hear any."

"Was there any clapping of hands or stamping of feet?"

"Not that I heard."

"Did you hear the umpire call strike one?"

"I did not."

"Did you hear the umpire say anything?"

"I did not."

"Are you hard of hearing?"

"Not particularly."

"It must have been a very quiet game."

"It was."

The witness was then turned over to L. C. Harris, the attorney for the defense.

"Is it not a fact," asked Mr. Harris, "that the reason why the game was so quiet was that the manager of the club went through the grand stand and the bleachers and requested the crowd to be quiet?"

"I could not say," replied the witness. "I saw Mr. Van Praagh walking through the grand stand, but I did not hear him say anything."

"What is the position of the baseball park in regard to the number of houses in the vicinity?"

"It is in a very sparsely settled part of the city."

"How far away is the nearest house this side of the park?"

"Six or seven blocks."

"Are there any houses to the North between the grounds and the old driving park?"

"Just one or two scattered houses, I believe."

"Beyond the park, what houses are there?"

"There are one or two houses about a block away, and a few others a short distance beyond them."

"Then in your opinion do you think there was enough noise made at the game on May 8 to disturb the peace and repose of any of the citizens in the vicinity?"

"I do not."

M. L. Robbins, assistant instructor in the manual training department at the high school, was next summoned by the city attorney. He testified, in reply to the questions put to him, that he lives four blocks distant from the park.

"Could you hear any noise coming from the direction of the park?" asked Mr. McKeon.

"I could."

"Was it sufficient to disturb the peace and repose of the Sabbath day as far as you were concerned?"

"It was not."

"The windows and doors of your house were all closed?"

"They certainly were."

The witness was turned over to Mr. Harris.

"The wind was blowing from the northeast, was it not?" asked Mr. Harris.

"It was."

"That would carry any sound there might be directly toward your house?"

"It would."

Detective Fritz of the police department was the next witness called. He stated that the crowd was a very quiet one for a baseball crowd, and he did not think the sound made could be heard more than a block.

The court room was crowded with an interested throng of spectators, among whom were most of the ministers of the city. Court adjourned until 2 o'clock, with Detective Fritz still upon the stand.

ST. JOHN'S HOSPITAL.

The good that is done by St. John's Hospital of Lowell, Mass., will ever be held in grateful memory by thousands of people. The Sisters of Charity who care for the sick and ailing at the institution say: "We cheerfully recommend Father John's Medicine as a good remedy for colds, bronchial troubles, etc.; also a tonic for building up the system. The ingredients of which it is composed seem to be perfectly safe and well worth a trial by all suffering troubles specified above." (Signed) Sisters of Charity, St. John's Hospital, Lowell, Mass. Father John's Medicine contains no opium, morphine or other poisonous drugs. We refund the money for any cough or cold it does not cure. We are able to guarantee it because it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it during the 50 years of its success, since it was prescribed for the late Rev. WISCONSIN DEMOCRATS INDORSE EDWARD C. WALL opolists, in lieu of the nomination of its tool to the highest educational office in our state. They have wrung from the people unnecessarily, hundreds of millions of their hard earnings annually by way of indirect taxes and have outdone themselves in an effort to devise ways of spending them for the benefit of their creatures and favorites; and while government coffers were being stuffed to repletion the strong boxes of the favored few were receiving in the ration of 5 to 1 of the spoil of protection. When the surplus has piled up beyond their ability to squander, it has, in violation of the letter and spirit of the law, been deposited (at times on doubtful security) in favored banks without interest, from whom it could be borrowed by the dear public whose cash it was and is on security approved by the banks, and at the highest rate of interest obtainable in a manipulated money market; and when the government requires the use of its own, a wild cry is raised by the beneficiaries of the system, of danger to credit from its withdrawal, and a complacent secretary of the treasury usually the pliant tool of monopoly, devises some scheme whereby it is permitted to remain.

"Under the sheltering wing of this system, through the consolidation of the great corporations, gigantic aggregations of capital have been formed known as "trusts," notably the coal trust, of which we heard so much when political capital could be made by talking of it; the steel trust, noted as being pretty much all steal; the Standard Oil trust, the Sugar trust, and hundreds of others, covering every line of industry and effort, setting themselves up as above the law, and, by crushing out foreign competition and destroying individual effort at home, they have been enabled to monopolize the entire field, and to sell their protected wares to the home consumer at prices only limited by the boundary line of the greed and avarice of their promoters and managers commonly known as captains of industry, many of whom, on the recent development of their methods, but for a public conscience warped and blunted by long laudation of crime in gilded form, and quasi partnership maintained between themselves and the government, whereby they have been screened from prosecution for their crimes, would be doing time in stripes instead of posing as philanthropists. The logical outcome of long persistence in such practices is the arraying of foreign nations in a cabal against us, and the adoption by them of retaliatory legislation and measures of reprisal that are fast destroying our foreign trade, while at home certain classes of labor long schooled in the system of legalized robbery are seeking their share of the loot, and through strikes and boycotts vainly trying to right one flagrant wrong by the perpetration of another, and thus the seeds of discontent, of socialism, sedition and anarchy are being sown broadcast throughout the land to take root and grow a crop of foul weeds that nothing short of a quickened public conscience or a revolution will eradicate. They have under the false pretense of desire to extend the blessings of liberty to the peoples of Porto Rico and the Philippines, under the high-sounding humbug known as 'benevolent assimilation,' adopted a system of colonialism alike foreign to our form of government and repugnant to the spirit of true Americanism, more galling, if possible, to those who suffer under it than was that form which the fathers rebelled and gave us freedom; a system that for purposes of revenue taxation makes these people foreign, domestic for other purposes of government, without resultant benefit to them, or us, excepting as it affords opportunity to place pets of the administration where they can profit by exploitation and graft, while adding millions annually to our taxes through the enforced maintenance of an expensive naval establishment and largely increased army which must be constantly recruited from the flower of our young manhood to replace those whose coffined bones are returned, or those who have met a worse fate and are being sent home in squads, helpless and hopeless maniacs. Following along the same line our phrase-making, fearless and firey chief executive in behalf of what he calls 'our collective civilization,' whatever that may be, procured, if he were not himself guilty of the rape of our small and helpless sister republic of Columbia by taking forcibly possession of the Panama canal strip, through collusion with the pretended officials of a 7x9 mushroom republic, the growth of an overnight insurrection, pleading necessity as an excuse, and justifying the act by what he and his apologists are pleased to call the exercise of 'international right of eminent domain,' which to the plain people means:

"'The good old rule, the simple plan,
That he may take who has the power,
And he may keep who can.'

"Thereby violating every principle of international equity while forever tarnishing the fair name of our country, and branding us among nations as an international bully.

"They are, under pretense of necessity for protection of our commerce in the Orient (a mere bagatelle), interfering in the politics of Europe and the East, in utter disregard of the will of the people and the injunction of the fathers of our country to avoid 'entangling alliances,' thus weakening our position in regard to the enforcement of the Monroe doctrine in this hemisphere, while greatly adding to the risk and danger of foreign complications and war from which we would derive neither profit nor honor. The present chief executive, who must be deemed to be the exponent of Republican thought and opinion, has persistently exalted the military above the civil authority, giving an imperial aspect to every possible function where formerly modest and simple Republican ways were the rule. He has taken from private life his boon companions and favorites, heaping upon them the highest military honors, while with the brutal directness and arrogance for which he is noted, wherein control, he has bullied and insulted the men who for more than forty years have maintained the honor and dignity of our country on land and sea, fighting their way from ice field to the topmost rung of the ladder of military and naval fame.

"While posing as the champion of the merit system and lecturing the people on the necessity for the setting of a good example in high places, he has been a most flagrant violator of the rules of civil service, suspending them that he might appoint or promote his friends and favorites with greater frequency than ever before known. He has usurped the prerogative of the congress by the issuance of his recent mandate placing a forced construction upon existing law, thus legislating by executive order and providing a method and excuse for the payment of a service pension to the survivors of the civil war without the shadow of legal authority, establishing thereby a dangerous precedent, and heaping gratuitous insult upon the veterans who staked their lives that the Union might live, by assuming that they would be willing to take that for which they could show no clear legal title. He, as also his cabinet and chiefs of departments, has shown such laxity in the execution of the trust reposed in them that emboldened to the point of recklessness; the subordinates have been plundering indiscriminately, the rottenness in the postal department alone being so all-permeating that they dare not carry an investigation to the end, not knowing how high it may strike; and the same is beyond doubt, true in every department of the government; while in the always Republican state of Pennsylvania, where the gospel of St. Matthew (Quay) is the supreme law of the land, a full counterfeit outfit was discovered operated by the convicts in the state prison, and reports failed to state whether the rule of division and silence had been there invoked, and if so, by whom?

"Through the reckless extravagance of the legislative and executive branches of the federal government the expenses have been nearly doubled in ten years and still continue to increase, while the budget in our own state has grown in five years under the rule of our reform governor, more than $1,625,000, and the reports in that case do not show what portion of that increase was expended for electioneering purposes. They have succumbed to and cultivated the spirit of commercialism, elevating boodle above brains, that the question now is, not as formerly, is he honest, is he capable, is he morally and intellectually fitted for the position, but, has he wealth? So completely taken hold upon the people under their vicious tutelage that the possession of the almighty dollar or a pull, is the criterion by which a man's fitness for office is determined.

"I might go on indefinitely adding count after count to the indictment, but from very surfeit I abandon it and turn my attention for a moment to the remedy.

"Let us not forget that the creed of Democracy is not founded on the gospel of pessimism and discontent, nor is the preaching of that gospel a favorite pastime with thoroughbred Democrats. If we would gather together the conservative forces that must form the grand army of successful invasion that shall march steadily forward until on the night of election we plant the banner of triumphant Democracy on the ruins of the citadel of Republican corruption and misrule, we must do more than call attention to the errors and misdeeds of the enemy. We must point the remedy, and give guarantee of its adoption; and the first step in that direction is the repeal of all laws granting special privileges to any class of citizens and replacing them with a simple code, the provisions of which will be equally applicable to this case, and give pledge of exact justice to president or pauper, laborer or millionaire, the individual or corporation, alike giving guarantee of real protection to each and all, and holding all equally responsible for obedience thereto; and then see to it that they are rigidly enforced.

"We should so change and modify existing tariff laws by judicious reduction of present rates of duty that they will yield the greatest amount of revenue for the state, while bearing as lightly as possible upon the individual; taking away from monopoly the fortification of protection behind which it has been sheltered while plundering all the people, and laying the foundation for the gigantic trusts, the breeding ground of corruption, and the menace of free government; and all this can be accomplished and more without injury to or persecution of any interests. We should compel the grantee of every franchise to give to the people a quid pro quo in good service for the valuable rights parted with by the state, and a frequent full and fair showing of all things essential to the protection of the people's rights, and prevention of fraud and abuses, while the same time, safeguarding the rights of corporations thus created as though they were individuals.

"We would adopt business methods in the administration of the government by abolishing thousands of useless offices, by demanding efficiency of service and a fair day's work for a fair day's pay; cutting down expenditure to actual necessities and within our income; while the same time going constantly forward with development and improvement, in harmony with the spirit of this progressive age, avoiding the dangers that always beset the individual or government that sets for himself or itself too rapid a pace; and we would so reduce the amount of taxes, direct or indirect, taken from the people that there would be no great surplus of their money in the hands of the state, either as a temptation to jobbery, or for deposit in specially favored banks for the enrichment of the few at the expense of the many.

"We would so amend and revise the laws relating to bribery, boodling and the corrupt use of money in elections, that the technicalities of the law and the statute of limitations would not be so easily invoked to screen and shield men whose conviction might place those in high position in an unenviable light before the world.

"We would give, and at once, to our island possessions, that the misfortunes of war and the baleful spirit of land-grabbing possessed us of, a territorial form of government like unto that which we gave to all our territories, thus extending to them all benefits of our constitution they have a right to expect, with a final guaranty of local self-government, the boon for which our forefathers fought, no matter from whence they came, and through the struggle for which the earth has been deluged with the blood of the millions who in all ages battled for its possession.

"Following along the line of progress and expansion mapped out for us by Jefferson in the Louisiana Purchase we would construct and own a canal that would bind together in eternal wedlock the Atlantic and the Pacific, but we would have procured the right of way and ownership by purchase and the aid of skillful diplomacy rather than by the dispoiling of one of the sisterhood of American republics and we would secure to our own people the full benefits thereof through cheapened transportation and increased traffic, removing all barriers to commerce that have been raised by protection, by revision of tariffs and navigation laws. We would avoid international complications by remaining at home and attending strictly to our own affairs, only going abroad with our armed fleets for the protection of the rights of Americans where they are actually threatened, leaving the solution of old-World problems to Old World governments and enforcing respect for our decree of 'hands off' in the Western hemisphere.

"We believe that if soldiers, not doctors, were given high command in the army, and long and efficient service in the navy lead not to persecution, but preferment; in fact, if merit, not friendship or relationship, was made the criterion by which commanders were selected, there would be less of scandal in the army, and less danger that our costly naval equipment would be annihilated through the blundering inefficiency of the carpet knights whose successes have been achieved largely through political pull, and believing thus, we would honestly adopt the merit system, and long and efficient service would be made one of the determining factors of promotions. We would insist upon a speedy return by our representatives in the lower branch of our national legislature to the manly, virile spirit of independence that characterized the action of that august body in former times, and the resenting by them of any usurpation by the senate or executive of their constitutional rights or prerogatives, resisting to the last extremity any encroachment by either on the field to which they are solely entitled under the constitution, and in this connection we would by law, not by executive order, render to the remnant of that grand army which saved the republic measure for measure, both in gratitude and monetary compensation. We would, while encouraging the commercial spirit, set honor above the dollar, and public virtue above gold.

"To be brief, we would enforce the laws and adopt business methods in the conduct of the affairs of government, giving to the people that which is our common birthright and the watchword of Democracy, 'Equal rights to all; special privileges to none.'

"They tell us Democracy is old and decrepit; that its ancient creed as embodied on the Sermon on the Mount, the Magna Charta, the Declaration of Independence, the bill of rights and the teachings of Jefferson and Jackson is obsolete and unfitted for this age of progress, and that a new faith adapted to changed conditions and the spirit of innovation, commercialism, socialism and imperialism enforced by militarism that has taken such a hold upon the people is essential to future success.

"In fact, there are those who pretend to think that Democracy is dead, and that its mantle has fallen upon the shoulders of Populism. There is another faith of which, at times, a similar view has been taken. So completely did Diocletian believe he had destroyed the last vestige of Christianity by the scourge of blood and fire he had imposed upon its votaries, that he caused a medal to be struck, bearing an inscription commemorating the event; but spontaneously, as though in very truth 'the blood of the martyrs was the seed of the church,' from the catacombs, the quarries and sand pits of the Campagna, from the fastnesses of the Alban and Sabine hills, in fact from every quarter of the globe arose as if by magic an army resistless in its enthusiastic devotion to the cause of the Master, who peaceful onward sweep, gathered force as it progressed, bore down all opposition, until the whole world rang with anthems of praise to the crucified God.

"So also with our ancient political faith. Time and again have its enemies, believing they had destroyed it, sung its requiem, but, like the Christian religion, grounded as it is in very truth and built upon the rock of virtue, its faithful votaries have in time of trial sprung forth spontaneously in its defence, revitalized, as did the goddess Minerva spring from the brain of Jupiter, fully armed and armored to do battle for the true faith of the party of the plain people. And now standing as I do, just to the westward of the crest of Great Divide, a little nearer to the point where 'life's shadows are meeting eternity's day,' than of the rosy morning's dream of life, but not so far adown the slope, but that I can survey the ground on either side, I feel I may safely, against the charge of presumption, offer a word of suggestion, especially to those of you, who are but just assuming the grave responsibilities of leadership as to what should be our line of action in the impending campaign. Each of you will, of course, go forth from hence an apostle of Democracy to preach and teach its gospel, and by precept and example prove the disinterestedness of your mission and the sincerity of your purpose.

"Teach them first of all, that honest government is what we seek. And that, as water rises no higher than its source, neither can there be any honest government without an honest, intelligent, virtuous citizenship. Teach them that 'God's mandate to man is work,' and that work was ennobled by the God-man, the son of Joseph the carpenter, when he labored at the bench in the little shop at Nazareth, and that what we demand for labor is the guaranteed natural right for every man to obey that mandate, without let or hindrance by, or payment of tribute to any, for the privilege. Teach them that we have no quarrel with wealth, that we honor the man who through his individual honest effort has amassed a fortune, and that, whether that fortune be invested in individual or corporate enterprise, we demand that his property rights be respected and safeguarded.

"Teach them that Democracy recognizes the right of both capital and labor to organize within the law, but that it will brook no interference by either with the right of those who choose to conduct their affairs in their individual capacity, and that we will, if need be, invoke the aid of the 80,000,000 of freemen, the entire power of the sisterhood of states for the protection of the rights of the meanest individual against the aggression of organized capital or labor.

"Teach them that he is the best Democrat who is the best citizen, and that Democracy will, for the sake of obtaining ascession to its ranks, make no concessions that involve the surrender of principals, but will battle with errors and sciism, either within or without the party fold, and that any attempt to engraft on its sturdy stock the decaying branches of Republicanism known as Populism and Socialism, will meet a fate similar to that described by Owen as 'the abortive attempt to light the torch of liberty by the flames of hell;' and that our appeal is directed solely to Democracy's god, the deliberate judgment of an intelligent citizenship.

"Teach them, and impress this lesson well, that no single man controls the destiny or shapes the policy of the grand old Democracy."

The delegates of the First Congressional district to the Democratic state convention failed to agree in their caucus this forenoon, and as a result the delegates supporting William R. Hearst bolted the meeting, leaving the Wall men in control, and organized a rump caucus of their own. Two separate lists of officers were elected. The trouble started over the fifteen delegates from Racine county. There was a bolt in the Racine county convention, and the state central committee settled the contest in favor of the Wall delegates.

A report is in circulation that the Hearst faction will bolt the convention when the time arrives for receiving the report of the credentials committee this afternoon.

Temporary Chairman Wells occupied nearly an hour in delivering his speech. He was frequently interrupted by outbursts of applause.

After the chairman's speech the various districts reported on caucuses and committees were appointed. The only rupture to the proceedings thus far was the announcement of two reports in the first district which split. It was announced that the appointment of members of the various committees would be held in abeyance until the contest had been settled by credentials committee. The convention then took a recess until 3 p. m.

The Wall supporters carried ten out of the eleven district caucuses, the third alone being conceded to Hearst.

Mayor Rose was appointed chairman of the committee on resolutions. The platform will instruct for Edward C. Wall for the presidential nomination.

REPUBLICANS QUIET IN OHIO

Convention Not Largely Attended and Undemonstrative.

Columbus, Ohio, May 17.—The preliminary meetings of the Republican state convention here today were not as demonstrative or as largely attended as usual. More than enough delegates came from the counties pledged or instructed to assure the selection of Governor Herrick, Senators Foraker and Dick and George B. Cox, of Cincinnati, as the delegates-at-large.

Governor Herrick, Senators Foraker and Dick, George B. Cox and other leaders held receptions at their respective headquarters today and there was much comment among the delegates as to who would become the successor of Hanna in Ohio politics.

According to the gossip among the delegates there is considerable rivalry among the Hanna men on the question of leadership.

Governor Herrck will be both temporary and permanent chairman of the convention and may be selected as the Ohio member of the Republican national committee, and he is expected to be the standard bearer next year.

Senator Dick will be the author of the platform and again chairman of the state executive committee.

It is the consensus of opinion that the "successor of Hanna outside of the senatorship," will not be determined at the first Ohio Republican convention that has been held in many years without Hanna.

This agitation is a feature of the convention. The delegates visit the quarters of all the leaders and then ask each other's opinion.

It is conceded now that George B. Cox, of Cincinnati, with Dr. E. J. Lowes, of Dayton, and a few others, hold the balance of power. It is due to Cox holding this balance of power that the present convention is without contests for the prominent places as he is for harmony at the sacrifice of all factional preferences.

MUST APPLY SOON.

Washington, May 17.—Charles H. Mann, of the press gallery, house of representatives, to whom applications for press seats at the Democratic national convention in St. Louis should be made, announces that he will not receive any applications after June 8.

INCENDIARIES ARRESTED.

Chariton, Iowa, May 17.—Henry Schotty and Harley Waynick, two young men, have been arrested charged with starting the fire which last Wednesday burned nine business houses in this city, entailing a loss of $40,000. Schotty has confessed and will give no reason for the act of himself and companion.

AN EASY FABLE.

"Good evening, Torpid Liver," said a Beecham Pill. "I merely dropped in to tell you that you must act in the living present. This is no time for slumber; move on." Torpid Liver heeded the advice of Beecham's Pill, and the next day Bilious Headache was absent from the House Wonderful.

A NEW COURT HOUSE.

The question of providing St. Louis county with a new court house is being discussed quite generally at the present time. It has become evident that something must be done without further delay to provide larger and better accommodations for the district court and the county officials. The old rattle-trap structure that now does duty for a courthouse has outlived its usefulness. It has been outgrown by the county's business and the courts, and the result is that those who transact the county's business and those who have business at the court house are subjected to many inconveniences. In addition, the building is an eyesore—a disgrace to a county of the size and wealth of St. Louis county.

The Herald believes that the time has arrived when the erection of a new court house should be begun. There are few counties in the United States that can compare with St. Louis county in richness of natural resources. It is in good financial condition and its credit stands so high that there would be no difficulty whatever experienced in floating bonds bearing a low rate of interest for the construction of a court house that would properly accommodate the public and be a credit to the county. It is the opinion of many people, and The Herald joins in this view, that a combined court house and city hall should be built. Duluth's city hall is too small for the rapidly growing business of the city. There is an urgent need of better accommodations for the municipal court, which is now located in the basement of the city hall in a small room that lacks ventilation and light, and by its unsanitary state, endangers the health of the judges, court officers, witnesses and jurors. Even if a new county building should not be erected, new quarters for the municipal court must be provided soon. In many other cities the idea of a combined court house and city hall has been carried out with very satisfactory results, and The Herald believes the plan should be adopted here.

The location of the new building is a point upon which opinion differs, but a canvass of the attorneys and many people who frequently have business with the courts and county officials shows that a very large percentage favor a more central location than the site of the present court house. A central location for a combined courthouse and city hall admits of no dispute, and The Herald believes that the new building should be in the business district. Not only would such a location be more accessible for the people of Duluth, but it would be of special convenience to residents of other sections of the county, who are now greatly discommoded by the long trip to the court house, with the result that they frequently find it impossible to transact their business in time to catch the outgoing afternoon trains, and are therefore put to additional expense.

There are some people who are opposed to abandoning the site of the present court house, contending that it is the best one that could be selected. While the advocates of this site appear to be in the minority, it is a question that should not be hastily decided. Every citizen should be given an opportunity to express his opinion, and the decision should be in accordance with the views of the majority. The Herald trusts that all who take an interest in the question will speak out at once, and it tenders the use of its columns freely for this purpose. With a general expression by the public, the county board would be better able to reach a satisfactory decision.

THE YOUNG MAN'S CHANCES.

It is a matter of frequent complaint that the trust system, which has fastened itself upon American industries, has decreased the opportunities for young men ambitious to make their mark in the world.

Recently Senator Dolliver of Iowa told how three young school teachers met one Sunday afternoon, a quarter of a century ago, and told each other of their life ambitions. One said that he intended to become a station agent on the Wabash railroad, with the intention of becoming president of the company. Another said he intended to study telegraphy, also with the intention of becoming president of a great railroad system. The third said he proposed to study law and go to congress. All three achieved the objects of their ambitions. One is now Sir William Van Horne of the Canadian Pacific. Another is Mr. Hayes of the Grand Trunk system, and the third is Senator Dolliver himself.

Referring to these facts, the Wall Street Journal, a financial authority with independent leanings, says: "There can be no doubt that a great deal of the 'social unrest' of which so much is heard is the result of a widespread feeling that doors of opportunity are being closed to ambition and industry. Such a feeling long sustained and based upon ascertained facts leads to revolution. There are certain developments that certainly appear as if decreased opportunity and severer struggle were the prospect of the young men of today."

It is no doubt true that it is harder today for the young man of small capital to win success in an independent business. But is there not just as great opportunity for success within the ranks of these industrial organizations for young man of worth and industrious habits?

Let us look close at home for an example. The Red Lake Courier in a recent issue, after mentioning the fact that Joseph B. Cotton had been selected to make one of the speeches seconding the nomination of President Roosevelt at the Republican national convention, said that the average Democrat would find ground for criticism from the fact that Mr. Cotton was an attorney for the steel trust and that his sympathies would naturally be with the corporations. The Courier goes on to say:

"This is probably true, but nevertheless Joe Cotton is entitled to a great deal of praise for the success he has achieved in the face of adverse circumstances. The writer knew Cotton back in a little Indiana town more than twenty years ago. As a boy he did not have ordinary advantages, yet in the face of manifect difficulties he secured a college education and graduated with honor from one of the best law schools in that section. His determination as a student and his ability as a speaker soon brought him into prominence, and he was selected as attorney for the steel trust because he was the brightest lawyer they could find. Joe Cotton has earned the enviable reputation he has achieved by perseverence and hard work. His rise from lowly and adverse circumstances is an object lesson for the millions of boys who imagine they have 'no chance in life.'"

There are many more young men in Duluth who are winning their way to the front as employes of great corporations and there will be hundreds of chances for others who are soon to enter the field. The chief cause for complaint that the American people have against the trusts is not that they lessen opportunity, but that they take more than their share of the fruits of production, in which they are assisted by unjust laws and the non-enforcement of law.

Let the government once control natural monopolies so that exact justice is done both to the trusts and to the public and the young man of ability will not only have a chance in life, but it will be possible for him to join forces with these great industrial enterprises without resting under the constant suspicion that he must be an enemy of the people.

A REPROACH TO AMERICA.

Those Duluthians (happily there were few) who sympathized with the English government in its war of conquest against the South African republics, have some of the results brought home to them by an American traveling man who has just returned from a business trip to Johannesburg. They can now see for themselves what the real object of the British government was in destroying the lives of 24,000 of the best people in South Africa and 40,000 of their own soldiers.

"When I was in Johannesburg," says this traveler, 'the mines were expecting the first indenture of Chinese for employment there. The first detail will number 150,000, and they will receive their board and 37½ cents a day for their labor. The Chinamen are coming under contract between the Chinese empire and the British colonial government, for a period of seven years. They will be the white slaves of Africa.

"The Chinamen will be kept in compounds, the same as are the Kaffirs at Kimberly. At the end of seven years they may renew their contract for another period of seven years, or may go back to China, but will not be allowed to remain in Africa. They are debarred from engaging their services to anyone else than the government and from acquiring property. They will be kept herded in the compounds and not allowed any degree of liberty."

There is the story in a nutshell. Seven years of slavery for 150,000 human beings and the clearing of the mines of both native and white labor, the destruction of two republics and a war debt of enormous proportions saddled upon the taxpayers of England.

Indeed the cost of imperialism is out of all proportion to the benefits under the most favorable conditions. This enormous sacrifice of treasure and lives was made solely that a few capitalists might add to their ill-gotten gains by the enslavement of thousands of their fellow men. And it should also be remembered that throughout this great struggle which the brave Boers made in behalf of individual and political liberty the present administration of the greatest American republic was too cowardly and too much engrossed in money-getting to offer even one word of sympathy and encouragement to these patriots who gave their lives on the altar of human liberty.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

Why is it when money is so plentiful that it is difficult to loan it at low rates of interest, that it is hard to make collections? Don't all speak at once.

The Des Moines News of May 11 was issued under the direction of the Des Moines Women's club. The ladies did creditable work. One of the editorial writers, discussing the religious phase of the Eastern war, reaches the sensible conclusion that "an orthodox faith, the product of force, should not be rated superior to Paganism. A name is not sufficient. To preach peace and practice war is not Christianity."

In regard to woman suffrage, Nell Perkins Dawson makes a strong point when she says: "Are not women already doing more than their share? Is it not enough that they bring men into the world—directing and shaping their lives from the cradle to the grave? Is it not enough that the women should guide men in all the affairs of life, up to this one single little insignificant, automatic thing of going to the polls and casting a ballot? Must they now be forced to do this also? Are not men equal to the task, once, twice, or three times a year, of marking a ballot?"

A suggestion of some merit is also contained in the following verses contributed by the child of a club woman under the title "My Mamma:"

My mamma, she's a club woman,
She works from morn till night,
A writin' this, discussin' that
And fightin' for the right.

But when I go a gaddin' off
And don't get home at six,
She always scolds, and asks my pa
"Where did she learn such tricks?"

No doubt C. A. Towne will be pleased to learn that he has prospered so well that he is now considered a plutocrat.

Governor Stone of Pennsylvania is another of those individuals who, reasoning from false premises in regard to the Carnegie hero fund, reached unjust conclusions. The Chicago Journal falls into the same error when, in commending Governor Stone's opinion, it says: "Offering a reward for an act of bravery looks overmuch like an attempt to capitalize that which is highest and best in human nature." Mr. Carnegie does not propose to reward heroes but simply to provide pensions for such as are injured in the performance of acts of heroism, and to provide for those dependent upon them in case they lose their lives. Surely the man who will cavil at that is the possessor of a mighty mean and small spirit.

Charlotte Stetson Perkins Gilman, in advocating the best school teachers irrespective of their needing the money or not, whether married or single, says that "the public school is not a young woman's financial aid society, or an old ladies' home." She says it is not, but too often it is. Perhaps she means that it should not be. With that nearly everybody will agree. If there are any charming young ladies who are entitled to charity and any dear old ladies who need a home let society provide for their needs outside the school room. That would be a much cheaper and more satisfactory plan.

HOTEL GOSSIP

Some mail is awaiting Mr. and Mrs. Wesley H. Oshler, of Sioux Falls, S. D., at one of the most prominent hotels in the city of Duluth. There are a number of letters and some of them are pink. All of them are fairly studded with hearts of a blood-red hue, and some of them on the address state without hesitation that Mr. and Mrs. Oshler have only recently embarked on the sea of conjugial bliss.

Some say "just married," and others "bride and groom," and a number are marked to return to Sioux Falls in case of failure to deliver at this point. The clerk at the hotel also received a communication signed "Anonymous," asking him to kindly publish the fact that W. H. Oshler is newly married." The way the mail is prepared, however, leaves no doubt on the point. There were four pink letters and three white ones, with hearts on the front and back ranging in number from 7 to about 37.

As goes St. Louis county, so goes Ely. That's about the way of it, according to Mayor P. R. Vall of Ely, or "Paddy" Vall, as he is so often called. He says that there has been no work done up there yet in the governorship fight, and he does not look for any for some time.

"We're not usually very lively in a political way," said the mayor yesterday while stopping at the St. Louis. "Most of our population is of foreigners, who are never very active in politics. No, I'm taking no part in politics one way or the other now, and have not been interesting myself in the state or national campaigns. Personally, I am for Dunn for governor, but have not done any work in his behalf. Everything is quiet up our way."

An immigration agent in Duluth says that he estimates that 150 men have passed through Duluth bound from Ely to different parts of the country since the mines closed a short time since. Most of these are bachelors, in fact all that he has particular recollection of. The majority of the family men prefer to wait in Ely for the mines to reopen rather than to make a change.

"In this morning paper I notice that in the account of the Japanese was a number of fleeing soldiers escaped with their lives," remarked a new arrival this morning after breakfast.

"It's a gratifying thing to know this, for if they had not retained their lives I have no idea what they would have done. In fact it's hard to say whether they would have done anything. Nearly everybody who escapes with something, and those who escape with their lives I think are very fortunate, indeed."

Down at Rice Lake the other day a traveling man came across a very peculiar thing. He said he would be afraid to tell it to a newspaper man for fear that it would not be believed. Maybe he does not know a newspaper man by merely seeing one, but when he sees this item he'll recognize the circumstances.

He says he saw a bird's nest on a passenger car that travels fifty miles every day. The engineer called his attention to it. The nest was under the end of the car and was protected from wind and rain by the steps, being set on the drawhead or some other part of the coach apparatus where it was out of sight of the ordinary run of people.

Just how it came to be there is a question, but it is there, or was late last week. It was a robins nest as indicated by the one egg inside it, and the problem that is most puzzling of all is how the robin built the nest on the car at all, let alone in such a peculiar position. The cars run on a train that is away from Rice Lake about four hours every day, leaving Rice Lake at 1 o'clock and returning about 5 in the afternoon.

How the robin had time to complete the nest in one day is the question. It may have been able to do it over a Sunday, but how the bird arranges its itinerary while the nest is away for four hours a day is worth thinking about. If a young robin should be hatched out of the egg the mother will have to let the little one remain in the tender care of the passenger coach for four or five hours a day, travel with it or else remove it to some other place.

A good many people at Rice Lake are interested in the outcome.

HAWKINS FOR GOVERNOR.

Hibbing Ore: The fight between Bob Dunn and L. W. Collins for the gubernatorial nomination of Minnesota has proven to the complete satisfaction of all sincere Republicans that neither is fit to hold such a high office, and the voting masses are disgusted with the unholy spectacle. Day after day the front page columns of the daily papers are filled with Collins and Dunn billingsgate, until it has come to the point where the nomination of either will be the means of absolute disruption of the Republican party of Minnesota. A new deal will be called for before the date of the nominating convention, and there will be an opening for a man not identified with either of the squabbling factions. Such a man is Hon. E. B. Hawkins, of Hibbing and Duluth. He is an able man, a clean, strong Republican and one in whom the Republicans of Minnesota could conscientiously and safely unite upon as the standard-bearer in the coming conflict. The Ore believes that but little effort will be necessary to secure the nomination of Mr. Hawkins.

TWO HOMES.

N. E. A., in Detroit News: Estate of William C. Whitney to John Henry Smith. * * * Consideration $2,000,000.

John Blank to John Smith. * * * Consideration $2000.

John Henry Smith, of New York, worth many millions of dollars, has purchased a house.

Plain John Smith, of —— has purchased a house.

John Henry Smith, millionaire, paid two million dollars for his place. John Smith, carpenter, paid two thousand dollars for his home.

The millionaire Smith has bought the palatial residence of the late William C. Whitney. The price, which includes a wealth of rare furniture and bric-a-brac, is said to be low, but it is nevertheless the highest sum ever paid for a like dwelling house in this country, if not in the world. It represents more money than any one citizen of this country owned a few generations ago.

And the new owner is a bachelor!

He has purchased a pile of marble with stately halls, perfectly appointed, for whose furnishings the art treasures of Southern Europe have been ransacked. And he has neither chic nor child. He does not even own a dog.

John Smith and his good wife have saved for several years to get the $3000 with which to buy their home. It is neat and cozy—good enough for a king. Neither furniture or carpets are imported. They are good American-made stuff. A few well chosen pictures adorn the walls.

But their home is richer than the bachelor millionaire's.

Their home is a place for the indwelling of husband and wife and five healthy children. Its modest walls inclose the sacred precincts of a real home. Its treasures? Love. Its jewels? Like Cornelia's—the children.

They do not envy rich John Henry Smith his lonely marble halls. They would not trade a single one of the jewels in their casket for the lordly palace in New York.

Poor John Henry Smith.

Rich John Smith.

WE DO NOT CARE.

We do not care what the world may say,
If those whom we love are true;
We do not mind the toil of the day
If we know in the dusk and the dew
There waits some one who will welcome us
As we come home to rest—
Some friend who will say, "Dear heart, I know
That today you have done your best."

We do not mind if the thorns are sharp,
Or the pathway is rough and steep;
We do not mind if we plow and sow
For others to come and reap,
If we can but hear, when the twilight comes,
And the red in the West grows gray,
Some dear voice whisper these words of cheer:
"You have fought a good fight today."

For the heart does not care what the world may say
If those whom it loves are true,
For it rises over and always the heart's own way
To long for the love and the true.
You forget the gain, the loss and the pain
That tortures your pulsing breast,
If there's one who always in sweet, blind faith
Can say: "You have done your best."

—WILL D. MUSE, in Chattanooga Times.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: There never was a man a woman couldn't flatter; there never was a woman that didn't do it.

It's a curious thing that girls go from the nursery to school and from school back to the nursery.

There is hardly anything a woman likes more than to hear that one of her neighbors has called her a snob.

It's pretty good fun to pretend you're going to kiss a girl and then to have to do it to appease her indignation.

No matter how poor a woman feels, she never has any doubt that it is cheaper to buy an expensive hat and charge it than a low-priced one and pay cash for it.

The Seven Lies of Man.

Behold the seven lies of man
And tell his age by that:
As soon as he can lisp he says:
"It must have been the cat!"

Next, when the baseball team begins
To make its thrilling score,
His well-loved grandmamma falls dead
A dozen times or more.

Third, like a furnace does he sigh;
Of course we know the gist.
He tells the maiden fair she is
The first he ever kissed.

Fourth age, he comes home in the morn,
And gladness fills his cup—
The good Samaritan has been
With sick friends sitting up.

Fifth, to the woodshed he repairs
His heir to interview,
And says: "My son—kerskat! kerswish!—
This hurts me more than you!"

He next has leisure on his hands
And fills a jug with bait;
He hooks a minnow, then he swears
Ten pounds to be its weight.

Last age, when lean and slippered gown,
He finds his greatest joy
In telling what perfection ruled
The days he was a boy.

—McLANDBURGH WILSON, in New York Sun.

The Cost of Greatness.

New York American: Former Senator Washburn yielded $150 to a swindler who exhibited a check for the same amount signed by J. J. Hill, as payment for a write-up in an encyclopedia of great Americans. It is wonderful how much men will pay to be in the fashion.

TWENTY YEARS AGO IN DULUTH

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1884.

John T. Morgan, agent at Rice's Point, and Miss Florence A. Jones, of Oneota, were married at the latter place on Thursday evening last.

Isaac Katzauer, of the clothing firm of Katzauer & Gardner, became insane, and was taken to Chicago, where his family reside. He attempted to drown himself in the canal. He was about 60 years of age. His business affairs are all right.

M. E. Chambers, auctioneer, advertised to sell the contents of a first-class candy store.

Public sentiment has been so worked up that if Professor West should remain in the schools of Duluth another year to the exclusion of Miss Coleman, he would find his position a most decidedly uncomfortable one.

Robert Osborne, who has the contract for running the logs down the St. Louis river, has chartered the tug John McKay, Jr., to make up his rafts. He has fully 25,000,000 feet of logs in the Fond du Lac boom.

The Mary Martini, Capt. Fred H. Beshoff, ran into and capsized the Rice's Point and Connor's Point ferry boat on the evening of the 14th, drowning several people.

Fred Puhler and C. J. Judd, of St. Paul, are in the city and have decided to purchase the old Times plant and will resume publication of the Sunday issue.

Hon. Mark A. Hanna, of Cleveland, John Wagner, of St. Paul, C. J. Burns, Stillwater, and party arrived here this morning in the Northern Pacific car Yellowstone. They came to inspect the new dock of the St. Paul & Pacific Coal company, in which they are interested.

THE JOKESMITHS.

Philadelphia Press: "I suppose," said the timid suitor, "when you recall what a handsome man your first husband was you wouldn't consider me for a minute."

"Oh!" you, I would, replied the pretty widow, "but I wouldn't consider you for a second."

Chicago Tribune: "How do you account for the fact," asked the doctor, "as shown by actual investigation, that 32 out of every 100 criminals in the country are left-handed?"

"That's easily accounted for," said the professor. "The other 68 are right-handed."

Chicago Tribune: "You have been fighting again, Tommy!"

"I couldn't help it, mamma. That Stapleford boy sassed me."

"That was no reason for fighting. You should have remembered that 'a soft answer turneth away wrath,' and given him a soft answer."

"I did; I hit him with a chunk o' mud."

Washington Star: "What'll I do about this explanation of mine?" asked the congressman. "My constituents will expect something of the kind from me."

"Follow the usual method," answered the experienced editor. "Make it so long that people will take it for granted rather than try to read it all."

Chicago Daily News: "But," protested the youth, "I am capable of filling the position."

"That has nothing to do with the case, my young friend," replied the old politician. "By and by you will learn that the soft jobs are not so apt to fall to those who are fit for them as to those who fought for them."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Bemidji Pioneer: When the city of Glasgow can transport people in its street cars at 1¾ cents apiece, carry workingmen night and morning for 1 cent, let children ride to school for nothing and have an annual profit of $1,500,000, municipal ownership can no longer be condemned. If we could but cut politics out of public business we should still be sure of death, but not of taxes.

Little Falls Herald: It begins to look as if Joe Folk could be imported from Missouri with profit to Minnesota. There's work for a man like Folk in this state.

Two Harbors News: Hon. J. B. Cotton, of Duluth, has been accorded the distinguished honor of being chosen as one of the orators who will second the nomination of President Roosevelt at the national convention. Congressman Bede suggested him, and assured the president that his would add greatly to the oratory of the occasion. The selection will receive the O. K. of every good Republican in this section, as Mr. Cotton's ability to acquit himself with distinction and with honor to his district is recognized. While his reputation now is more than local, after the convention it will be national.

Sauk Center Avalanche: Those Democrats who favor the ambitions of Judge Parker and denounce the candidacy of W. R. Hearst as being illogical should arise early one of these bright spring mornings and scrub away the film of prejudice that is responsible for their one-sided vision. It is improbable that either Hearst or Parker will land the nomination. The situation is ripe for some untooted colored equine to gallop under the wire a winner at the convention. As between Hearst and Parker, many people will favor the former because he has a reputation for doing things. He stated flatly the issues upon which he intended to give battle and has held to the line. So far as the declaration of any principle is concerned, the platform of the Parker faction is too evasive.

St. Paul Globe: The time is ripe for the Democrats of Minnesota to get together and form an effective body for representation in the national convention. Such a political condition has been created in this state that a political revolution is impending. The Republicans are hopelessly divided and on such lines, marked by such rancor, that they cannot be united. The state will be carried by a Democratic candidate for governor. Let us put aside the pursuit of chimeras and settle down to the business proposition of carrying Minnesota.

Cass Lake Times: More land wanted is now the cry of the sturdy farmer who has been driven out of the old hive and must seek a new home for himself and his young family. The Times is in daily receipt of letters of inquiry from such persons, and we regret to tell them that less than 500 can be accommodated in the Cass Lake land district, where more than that number have been waiting for the last five years. Enough agricultural land to provide homes for 2000 settlers has been held up by the department under the Morris law for forestry purposes, or, in more emphatic words, for a playground for the idle rich. We have often remarked in the Times that the state of Minnesota could not afford to have this large area of fertile land tied up or devoted to any purpose but agriculture, but our governor has been too busy looking after merger nonentities and political intrigues to pay any attention to any of the vital interests of the state he tries to govern.

Prison Mirror Hellogram: A lady writer says that as yet no woman has opened a session of a state legislature with prayer. No, but it is getting to be very common nowadays for a woman to open a session of court with a prayer for divorce.

A STICKER.

New York World: An inventive Republican genius in Duluth has fashioned into mechanical form and presented to the president a World editorial that was printed as long ago as last November, asserting that "Roosevelt will be nominated by acclamation." The mechanical manifestation of this prophetic utterance is thus described in the despatches from Washington:

"The toy is for campaign purposes. It is founded on the peculiar mechanical principle that if you put a weight on the bowl of a properly constructed pipe the harder you blow through the stem the tighter the obstacle sticks.

"Utilizing this phenomenon Mr. Wieland has constructed a small elephant, branded 'G. O. P.' The elephant has a small hole in his neck on which is placed a diminutive Rough Rider. You then blow through the trunk or the tail, but you can't blow the rider off."

Of course you can't blow the rider off. That is what the World was saying six months ago, when Wall street was trying it, when the party leaders were trying it, when the "vested interests" were trying it. They blew until they were black as to the face and flat as to the chest, but the rider stuck, and still sticks, with his head tilted at a cocksure angle and his teeth flashing like the plume of Henry of Navarre. And he will continue to stick. He bestrides that sacred party elephant like a Colossus and rides the venerable beast like a centaur. He will never become even saddle-weary while he is on the second-term pike.

Towne as a Plutocrat.

St. Louis Mirror: The commanding figure of Hon. Charles A. Towne is again looming up on the crepuscular horizon of political conjecture. It is estimated that he has really serious intentions. That may be. But the question is: Would he be any more acceptable to the Bryan or radical wing of Democracy than is Parker or Gorman? Towne can hardly be considered persona grata at Lincoln, for he has been making all kinds of money since the time the cry of "free silver or bust" was last heard in the land. In New York he is cheek by jowl with the plutocrats. It is suspected that he has been accomplice in several profitable promoting projects, and substantially added to the wealth which Beaumont oil wells gushed into his lap. Towne must be regarded as a base renegade. The erstwhile uncompromising Populist, who used to fulminate so volubly against Wall street and the world's gold monopoly, is no more available as presidential candidate on the national Democratic ticket than would be that bloated, self-complacent capitalist and whilom "trust buster" of the Lone Star state, the rotund "Jimmy" Hogg. These two, and many others of the "blood-to-the-bridle" times of 1893-97, have done too well latterly. They have prospered under the damnable domination of the gold standard. They have been spreading themselves like green bay trees. Therefore, they won't do as Democratic candidates.

WATER RESERVOIR IN WEST DULUTH

Water Board Will Build Supplementary One In Lloyd's Division.

Appropriation From General Fund For Aerial Bridge Approaches.

The council last evening:

Took steps toward building supplementary reservoir in West Duluth.

Appropriated $3000 for approaches to ferry bridge.

Called meeting of council committee and property owners to discuss Garfield avenue improvement.

Ordered board of public works to strengthen West Duluth and Lester Park bridges.

Took steps to abate nuisance of Fifth avenue dump.

Preliminary steps were taken last evening toward the establishment of a reservoir in West Duluth, to be used as a supplementary system to supply the western half of the city with water, should a break in the mains ever shut that portion of the system off from the main reservoir.

The plan is the outcome of the action taken last Monday night, when the council requested the committee on light and water and the board of water and light commissioners to hold a conference to determine the feasibility of extending the First street mains to connect with those on Piedmont avenue and for a supplementary system for the West End.

The conference was held yesterday afternoon and the plan to build the reservoir was the outcome.

The following resolution, passed by the board of water and light commissioners, was submitted to the council last evening:

"Resolved, that the report of the committee on extension and construction recommending the building of a reservoir in Lloyd's division of West Duluth be, and the recommendations contained therein, are hereby concurred in, and the consent of the common council of the city of Duluth, that this board be allowed to purchase in the name of the city, blocks 16 and 19, of Lloyd's division of West Duluth, for such reservoir site and pay for the same out of the funds of this department, is hereby asked.'

It was pointed out that if such a reservoir is constructed at the same elevation as the main reservoir, it would be kept practically full at all times when the main reservoir is full, by the natural pressure, and in case of a break in the mains connecting West Duluth with the central part of the city, the water in the branch reservoir would flow back and supply the western half of the city with water. The department now has a twelve-inch main on Fifty-ninth avenue west to Worden street. This main could be extended along Worden street to Sixty-third and up Sixty-third avenue to the proposed site. Part of this territory is already settled and the new main would furnish water to the residents of the locality. The board stated that it has not the means to build this summer, but that it could afford a small sum to purchase the necessary site.

It is claimed by the board that the extension on First street would supply only a small part of the city west of the point of rocks with a supplementary water system as there is only a single pipe from Thirty-fourth avenue west to West Duluth. To make the extension of the First street main to Piedmont avenue would cost $10,000 as it would run through almost solid rock, and to duplicate the entire system to West Duluth would cost about $60,000. It is claimed that the reservoir could be built for half that sum.

The board proposed that the city dispose of the $40,000 issue of bonds which was authorized two years ago. The communication to the council stated that if this were done the reservoir could be constructed this summer. The matter was laid over for a week.

• • •

The appropriation of $3000 for the ferry bridge approaches did not cause the fight that was expected because of the fact that the money was ordered to be paid from the general fund instead of the permanent improvement fund.

City Attorney Bert Fesler gave it as his opinion that the appropriation was legal if made from either the permanent improvement fund or the general fund.

Alderman Walker introduced a motion that the appropriation be made from the permanent improvement fund. Alderman McEwen moved an amendment that it be paid from the general fund and Alderman Sang supported him. The amendment was accepted and passed without a dissenting vote. This leaves a small sum in the permanent improvement fund to make necessary improvements on roads and bridges.

• • •

The improvement of Garfield avenue again came up for discussion, and it was decided to call a meeting of the property owners on the avenue, the council committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks and Aldermen Schaffer and Olson of the Sixth ward for next Thursday evening. The meeting will be held in the council chamber at 7:30 o'clock and all who are interested in the improvement are urged to be present for the purpose of discussing plans and determining the best and cheapest method of placing the avenue in proper condition.

City Attorney Fesler was also instructed to confer with the street railway in regard to the finishing of the joint contract entered into with the city last year in regard to placing screenings and crushed rock along the car tracks on the avenue.

• • •

The board of public works was instructed to place the bridges on Grand avenue at Sixty-first and Sixty-sixth avenues west and the bridge over Lester river in a proper state of repair in order that they may be able to sustain the weight of the double truck cars.

• • •

A petition signed by ten property owners was presented, asking that the property between Sixteenth and Nineteenth avenues east on the south side of Superior street be eliminated from the building line easement. It was claimed by the signers of the petition that a number of buildings are already standing outside of the line, and that if they were compelled to build back of the line it would shut off their view. The case will come up for hearing next week.

• • •

The board of public works was directed to investigate the condition of the cedar block paving on Central avenue north of Cody street and in West Michigan street from Eighteenth to Twenty-third avenues, to determine whether the streets cannot be used without the cedar blocks, which are in a state of decay.

• • •

Health Commissioner Murray addressed the council, telling of the unsanitary condition of affairs existing on Fifth avenue west near the city dock, where refuse from the stables of the wholesale houses is being dumped. He stated that the place has ben used for a dump for three years past, and he asked that the council committee on drains, sewers and sanitation be directed to confer with him to determine the best method of abating the nuisance.

In the absence of Alderman Tischer, the two aldermen from the Fifth ward were directed to join with the two remaining members of the committee, Aldermen Sang and Waugh, and inspect the dump this afternoon in company with the health commissioner.

• • •

The contracts for the storm sewers in Tenth and Twelfth avenues east were confirmed as let by the board of public works.

GUARDIAN NAMED.

Young Italian Girl Can Now Get License.

Louise Dundra, the Italian girl who was refused a marriage license a few days ago because she was under 18 years old, her surviving parent being in Alaska and too far away to be reached to obtain his consent to a marriage, has had all legal obstacles removed from her prospective wedding by the appointment of her aunt, Mrs. Mary Dundra Stafia, as guardian.

Probate Judge Middlecoff made an order yesterday afternoon, appointing the aunt to have full charge of the girls' affairs, and the license will now be forthcoming.

The Humane society had taken preliminary steps to have the girl sent to the state training school, but proceedings will be stopped with the appointment of her guardian.

Louise came to this country with her father a few years ago, her mother having died in Italy.

WHEAT—ITS EARLY USERS.

Wheat—now the bread-corn of twelve European nations (all India and America)—was, no doubt, widely known in prehistoric times. This shows that the knowledge of its great value has constantly increased until, at last, we have it in the perfect form of pillsbury's vitos, from one package of which twelve pounds of most delicious and nutritious food can be made. Try it, and you will want more. At your grocer's.

SALE OF TIMBER.

Virginia Company Disposes of Large Block.

The first sale of lumber of any importance to be made at this point in some weeks was closed yesterday. The Virginia Lumber company has sold 5,000,000 feet of norway pine, 3,000,000 feet of which will go to Cleveland and 2,000,000 feet to Bay City, Mich. The consideration was in the neighborhood of $75,000, and represents the largest norway pine sale made in the Northwest in some time.

The Virginia Lumber company operates a large mill at Virginia. Since the first of March it has sold over 25,000,000 feet of its 1904 cut. The mill runs on two shifts and will saw about 70,000,000 feet of lumber this year. The timber supply of the mill comes from along the line of the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake road.

Suit Dismissed.

The suit started by the state of Minnesota against the Tower Lumber company, in which it was sought to get an injunction restraining the lumber company from running its logs on Pike river until the game and fish commission had collected its pike spawn, was dismissed in district court yesterday afternoon, on stipulation of both parties. No costs attach to either party. The commission succeeded in collecting the spawn before the logs were started, so that the injunction was not necessary.

HEARST LOSES

In First Skirmish In California State Convention.

Santa Cruz, Cal., May 17.—The preliminary skirmish in the Democratic state convention yesterday was won by the forces opposing the sending of a delegation to the national convention instructed to support the candidacy of Congressman W. R. Hearst for the presidency.

Those favoring a delegation instructed for Hearst made a gallant fight, losing the battle by the close vote of 367 to 345. The test came on the vote for temporary chairman. For this position the Hearst people named Former Lieutenant Governor W. T. Jeter, of Santa Cruz, while Frank H. Gould, of San Francisco, former speaker of the asembly, led the anti-Hearst forces.

Gould's election was brought about by the vote of the San Francisco delegation which was largely against Jeter. It was victory for what is commonly known as the San Francisco "machine."

THE TEACHINGS OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Address By Mrs. Sue Harper Mims, of Atlanta, Ga.

Large Audience at the Lyceum Is Much Interested.

Mrs. Sue Harper Mims, of Atlanta, Ga., lectured at the Lyceum theater last evening on Christian Science. A large audience was present and listened to the speaker's discourse with marked attention. It was an earnest and logical discussion of Christian Science, its teachings and beliefs, and made a profound impression.

Mrs. Mims is one of the Christian Science board of lecturers and has a wide reputation as a platform speaker. In the South she is a very well known woman and her husband, Maj. Livingston Mims, is one of the foremost citizens of Atlanta, having been four times elected mayor there.

Mrs. Mims was introduced by Robert Rankin of the local church. She said:

"The aspiration to know and understand the 'ways of God to men' has inspired the long search and questioning of the centuries. The attempt to reconcile the 'mystery of evil with the basis of an allwise, omniscient, omnipotent and benevolent Creator,' has been the stimulus of vast systems of speculative thought throughout the history of man. This theoretical mind has been ever the same since the days, and before, when Socrates talked of the immortality of the soul, and Plato dreamed, seemingly. Utopian dreams of a true republic, while the Alexandrian schools teemed with magnificent hypotheses.

"Nineteen hundred years ago, in the midst of the tumultuous thought of that day, there appeared a simple, majestic figure, Jesus of Nazareth. He spake as never man spake, and he proved the beneficent ways of God to man, proved this omnipotent, infinite God to be forever the destroyer of evil and all its varied manifestations. It was as if he said, 'God is not a remote abstraction, nor a far-away ruler and mighty king, but a living presence, eternal truth, a divine environment, in which we live and move and have our being; the one source from whence 'cometh every good and perfect gift.'

"God is the mind, intelligence, substance that includes all, that feeds, clothes, sustains and governs man, redeeming him from the materialistic law of sin and death, by the demonstration of the actual spiritual law of life and harmony. He said, even the birds and lilies teach you lessons of the ineffable love and tenderness of this Infinite Mother God, for the same intelligence that enables a growing vine to rend a rock, in its travail of expression, is the same power that enabled Jesus to rend the rock-ribbed tomb, in the travail of expression of His indestructible, immortal individuality.

"Has speculative philosophy gone further today, or is it not rather fallen short of the old echos? In his last days, Herbert Spencer sums up his system by saying that since the brain evolves all things, and the brain is material and perishable, that there is therefore no basis on which to predicate the immortality of man. Most impotent conclusion. Is there nothing to still the immortal longings that stir the heart of man?

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE APPEARS.

"Today, in answer to sore human need, Christian Science appears reiterating the words of Jesus, and is at least in part imitating Him and demonstrating the God-power that can redeem and bless humanity. It recalls and is establishing the practical Christianity of Jesus, as he walked lambly with the multitude, healing every manner of disease, raising the dead, spiritualizing and uplifting man. It is fulfilling the mission of the Comforter. It takes of His life and words and works and shows them to us, explaining His modus operandi. Have you ever thought how little is said of Jesus' works, yet He said, 'The works that I do, ye shall do.' He taught how God, divine mind, is the only medicine, the only physician, revealing to man His God-given dominion as the reflection of his Maker. This supremacy is not through the dominion of the human will, but through the enlightened, spiritual understanding of the realities of being, wherein infinite life, harmony, immortal bliss, omniscient, omnipotent good is the destroyer of the finite corporeal illusions which limit all things. THE SCRIPTURES TEACH, AND THE GOSPEL DEMANDS THIS SUPREMACY.

The closing years of this century are marked by a very extraordinary development along the lines of material science, daily rising in new forms to greater power, the more ethereal, the more potent. Time and space, the matter itself, almost disappears under the X-ray and wireless telegraph. All this is but a prophecy of the true science of God, which must finally dominate all else. Crowning this great development there must come with the centuries the spiritual ascendency and dominion of man as a Son of God, and joint heir with Christ, of His heavenly birthright.

"In the spiritual account of creation, in the first chapter of Genesis, we read, 'And God said, let us make man in our image and likeness, and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and the fowl of the air, and the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.'—Gen. 1:26.

"'Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of Thy hands. Thou hast put all things under his feet,' sang the sweet singer of Israel.

"In Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures, pages 517-31, Mrs. Eddy says, 'Man in the image of his Maker reflects the divine might; he is the master of earth, not made to till the soil. His birthright is dominion, not subjection. He is lord of beast, fowl, reptile and fish, himself subordinate alone to his Master. This is the science of being.' She also says: 'Think less of the enactments of moral mind, and you will soon grasp man's God-given dominion. Let us banish sickness as an outlaw, and abide by the rule of perpetual harmony, God's law.'—S. and H., page 381-21.

"This declaration that man may reflect God's power is the key-note to the religion of the future. Jesus illustrated it to the fullest extent in His life and work as our way-shower, and as the demonstrator of this law of infinite good, life and love.

LIKE GOLDEN CHAIN.

"This law and proof of spiritual dominion runs like a fine golden chain throughout the entire Scriptures, linking all its eras of development in one perfect design, culminating in the Christ Jesus.

"To the Christian Scientist these so-called miracles are not infractions of law, but utilization of an ever-operative divine principle. God and Christian Scientists accept them, not only because they are in the inspired writings, but understandingly because they can be, and are, demonstrated again by the same eternal truth of principle, thus scientifically proving them scientific.

"The watchword of modern progress is science; humanity is looking to science as the emancipator of the race. In the realm of materialism these laws are changing and fleeting as clouds in a summer sky.

"There is no so-called science of history, of medicine, chemistry, electricity, sociology, and through these human thought is breading its own fetters and limitations, for the Christ, the innocent child at prayer; the steam may burst its iron fetters and spread destruction abroad. They are lawless, they cannot therefore be true science. Christ must be higher and subtle expressions of the knowledge of good and evil, life and death, light and darkness, the belief, or apple, from the "tree of knowledge of good and evil," eating whose fruit brought death into the world; they are elements of the human will or mind, which must become subservient to the true, the spiritual dynamics of unchanging and eternal good.

It is interesting to know, that 35 years ago, in the first edition of Science and Health, Mrs. Eddy foretold the wireless telegraphy, for she said spirit is omnipresent, and needs no wire to transmit its messages. S. and H. page 78.

It is also interesting to know, that even the development of these material forces had their basis, faith in the invisible, something beyond human vision or touch. Even more than any other force, electricity is another so-called force of human will, which is hypnotism; this too, belongs to the dangerous fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, for any supposed comfort it may seem to give, is more than met by its disastrous destruction of individual freedom, and its use by unscrupulous men, to further the inner ambitions of temporary things of a day, and for a day, and cannot belong to the realm of reality. This alone is not new, for Moses learned this, and Israel turned from it to the one true God. Omnipotent, divine mind, "who doeth all things well."

A true force must be a force of unchanging quantity, be beneficent, intelligent, good, the same "yesterday, today and forever, incapable of producing aught but good, nay "very good."

The Psalmist, the monotheistic Hebrew race began with Abraham's trust in, and recognition of, an invisible, beneficent God, who could over-rule material laws. True history is the history of the human struggle between the worship of this one true God, and the temptation to believe in other Gods, or powers; when we know, by proof, that "no Good-God all things are possible, and that Omnipotence can have no rival, then our victory is won, and we "rest in the peace that passeth all understanding." Jesus Christ announced to us that this power is spirit; his work in the flesh was to show that acknowledgment of this God, as unhanging Good Life, Truth, Love, able to destroy every lie, sin, ill, or illusion, and give man his true birthright as a Son of God, and reflector of the divine nature, and power over even death itself.

Paul, to whom the ascended Christ appeared, calls this spirit the mind of Christ, the Father that does the works. This Mind that is Spirit, Truth destroys the "works of the devil," or illusions of the "mind of the flesh."

We read that Jesus came in the "power of the Spirit," and before this power every form of sin, disease, and death itself, vanished into its native darkness. A close study of Jesus' works will reveal also that every achievement which human intention is striving for today, with its dangerous forces, was already attained and demonstrated by Jesus, through the power of spirit, nineteen hundred years ago. He only recognized, not a new, but an eternal Truth.

For several centuries the application of the power of Spirit to overcome human ills, characterized the primitive Christian church. Gradually the materialization of the age obscured, for a while, the glorious light, as the world took possession of the church, instead of the church taking charge of the world.

St. John, rising to a high spiritual sense, called this power divine love, the love that is God, that destroys all fear, that is life, that makes perfect, and Mrs. Eddy, in Science and Health, page 146, defines God as "the universal, eternal Love, that changeth not, and sendeth no sin, no sorrow on man." This love is the infinite intelligence of all things—of the flower, the blade of grass, the star, of man.

Fifty years ago there was not a Christian Scientist on the earth; there were beautiful, spiritual-minded, aspiring Christians, seeking, praying for more light, and because of this, the light has come.

Less than forty years ago, in sublime spiritual isolation, there stood one woman, Mary Baker Eddy, on the mountain top of etherean vision, "kissed by the rising sun of righteousness with healing on its beams." Solitary as the great explorer, "standing on a lonely peak in Darien" two unknown continents, and two vast oceans on either side. Mrs. Eddy saw on one side the vast sea of human thoughts, swelling and raging in tumultuous struggle, and on the other side, the peaceful pacific ocean of spiritual understanding and love; back of her, the enforced, self-inflicted sorrow and slavery of men, through human illusions; and before her, the land of spiritual Canaan, where man, free and fearless in his true selfhood, may "transparent walk the earth like some holy thing."

She saw the awful unreality of senses, including evil, disease and death, "that deceiveth the whole world," and she also saw, the omnipotence and reality of God and infinite possibilities of man, endued with a true knowledge of God. She discovered anew the spiritual laws of life and harmony, and their application to human needs, as Jesus taught and proved. She named the discovery Christian Science, because it deals with eternal laws that always were and are, and will be, the laws of God and the universe.

The world is not slow to acknowledge its debts to the brave one in the physical realm for the modern conveniences of life, although they are a dangerous admixture of good and evil. What then do we owe to her who has so bravely stemmed the tide of human opinions and holds aloft the banner of primitive Christianity and its demonstrations of the power of the Spirit, which can work no ill, that is eternally and unchanging good, nay, very good—that law of love to which every knee and all error must bow. It is my dear privilege to speak of Mrs. Eddy from my own personal knowledge of the beauty of her life, the inspiration of presence, the exquisite charm of her personality. Born of an old and intellectual family, environed in a high spiritual atmosphere, associated intimately with the most scholarly and gifted men of her native state, she was unusually fitted for her high destiny; educated in part by her elder brother, one of New Hampshire's most gifted sons, she had every facility for an accomplished education. This brother, Hon. Albert Baker, was a lawpartner and student of President Franklin Pierce, who in his inaugural address, paid a just tribute to his gifted young friend, who had just died.

Mrs. Eddy was a well-known and gifted authoress herself, and was both intellectually and spiritually gifted. Of her philanthropy and her unselfish work for humanity, words are inadequate to express its fullness. No one person, perhaps, in all this modern world has so lived and loved that many thousands have been uplifted out of sin, disease and poverty as have been through her sweet ministry. When the veils of prejudice that blinds the world of sense to its great spiritual realities is removed, her life will shine out in a radiant light that will command the admiration of the world and the ages will call her blessed.

THE SCRIPTURAL DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE NEW THOUGHT MOVEMENT AND CHRISTIAN SCIENCE, AND THEIR RELATION TO THE PROBLEMS OF EVIL.

Christian Science is entirely unique in its dealings with the question of evil, or matter. It rests absolutely on the basis that God is the only, the infinite One, the omniscience, omnipotence, omnipresence that is good; the all-inclusive Mind, "besides whom there is naught else." It is true that the new thought movement claims to acknowledge this same infinite God, Good, Spirit, but it drops from this sublime postulate, and admits matter, something besides the infinity of Spirit, in theory, making material man and universe the expression of Spirit, and universe the expression of Spirit, which is illogical and unscriptural, for flesh and spirit, matter and mind are contrary; truth and error are at warfare one with the other. "The flesh lusteth against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh." Because of this opposition of the spirit to the flesh, we know that logically one cannot be the outcome of the other, any more than light can emit darkness, or truth express a lie. Therefore Christian Science denies that matter, or materiality can be actual, or the emanation of Spirit, the only cause. It does not deny away man or the universe, but only a false, material sense of them. The carnal mind, or material sense is enmity to truth, and is so in optics and astronomy as well as in Christianity. "Do ye judge after appearances," was Paul's reproach to the materialism of his day, and would be the same to this. The conviction of the unseen real is the very basis of Christianity. Jesus' first command to his followers was to deny self, deny material selfhood, for its deeds, self, deny material selfhood, and follow me, are sin, disease and death, and follow me, through overcoming, to true spiritual individuality in good.

The New Thought movement, or philosophy, makes no separation between the carnal mind, which is enmity to truth, and the Christ mind, which is truth. In Christian Science the realization of this one mind that is truth, destroys the illusory ills of the mind of the flesh; it rebukes the "Adam sense in which all die," and brings to view the Christ or divine ideal, in which all are made alive. It is this separation process between the real and unreal, between flesh and spirit, the seen and the unseen, that constitutes the Christian warfare. The second day of spiritual unfolding in the first chapter of Gensis states this truth, the spiritual idea "dividing the waters above from the waters below."

In Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures, we read, page 505. "Understanding is the spiritual firmament wherby human conception distinguishes between truth and error." Moses, by symtween truth and error." Moses, by symtween this separation between the "clean and the unclean," and Ezekiel reproached the pastors of Israel because they did not show the difference between the "holy and profane" nor "cause the people to discern between the clean and the unclean."

In fullness of time, Jesus came, the scientific demonstrator of truth, "to judge not by the seeing of the eye, nor by the hearing of the ear, but to judge righteous judgment." He came with "fan in hand to separate the chaff from the wheat," the material seeming, fleeting, from the real, harmonious, and eternal. In divine metaphysics this is the suppositional conflict between truth and error, understanding and belief, wherein the sword of the spirit divides asunder soul and sense.

This failure in the New Thought movement to take the second step, is really a failure to take the first, for when we have said "God is Infinite Spirit, All power, All presence, and Truth, we have already denied the reality of matter, and evil, sin and death, as eternal verities. Jesus termed this false sense of matter and evil as "a lie, liar and father of lies," and proved its unreality on the basis of God's Infinity. It is on this point of denying evil, of meeting it as a false claim, a seeming presence, that Browning and other poets have failed; they say all is good without meeting and destroying the false evidence of sin and evil, and thus fall under the condemnation of the prophet—"Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil.

Let us see how Jesus met this claim. When the full revelation of the sonship glorified the consciousness of Jesus, and he heard the divine voice saying, "Jesus is my beloved son, in whom I am well pleased," he was immediately led of the Spirit to be tempted in the wilderness; that is, Truth uncovered to him the full mystery of evil, the false claims of another mind that God, with all its arguments and evil suggestions, and he met and mastered every one, then came down clothed in the majesty of spiritual dominion, ready to cast out all manner of evil. He had found all that was in the human mind, and rebuked every temptation of materialism, with its prides, ambitions, passions, and desires. He reversed every basic thought prevalent then and now, as to the origin and destiny of man, and planted himself absolutely on the promise of man's spiritual perfection as the image and likeness of God, revealing the eternal changeless now of scientific being. "Now are we are the sons of God."

This meeting an overcoming the false evidence of evil on the basis of man's spiritual perfection in Good delivers man, here and now, from the powers of darkness, and translates him into the spiritual "kingdom of his dear son," of true sonship. This may be thus illustrated: "A citizen who becomes a citizen of this republic must renounce all allegiance to any other government before he becomes a citizen of this Republic." A Christian Scientist would take this illustration into minute datails. To enter into this Kingdom of Christ, or Commonwealth of Israel, the first step is renunciation, the "putting off" of the old sense of things, and the acceptance of the "new man created in righteousness;" allegiance to other rulers than Spirit must be renounced, and the true individuality, or Son of God, "born not of the will of man, but of the will of God," must be acknowledged in his true heirship.

In this spiritual realm, only the law of Spirit must be acknowledged, which demonstrates "life and immortality." He that is in Christ is a new creature, old things are passed away. In this pure realm our conversation is in heaven. The new tongue of Spirit which heals is our vehicle of expression. Our basic thought must be the spiritual fact that man is, ever was, and must be spiritual, not material, that he never fell from the hands of Omnipotent Love. Holding on to these realities in thought, meditating on and "talking truth one to another," we shall become naturalized to Spirit, to the divine nature, to the immortal law of harmony and perfection. The sinless man, the offspring of Spirit, heir with Christ of power, glory and dominion, will become the real to us. Sin, discord and death will vanish from this spiritual consciousness. They will be "put off" as unnatural, repellent, untrue, and we will see the "new heaven and the new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness, here and now, for God is all-in-all to this spiritual consciousness.

HEALING.

Many intelligent physicians who recognize the healing of Christian Science say their objection is to the claim of it being super-natural. Now this is just what Christian Science absolutely disclaims. Paul once said, "why should it seem a thing incredible with you that God should heal the sick" seems divinely natural to Christian Scientists. To the understanding of God, the only cause, the tender, loving Father, Mother, God, nothing else could be natural, than this Truth of Being that heals, not human will nor influence.

Mrs. Eddy says in "Miscellaneous Writings," page 400, "the so-called miracles of the Bible were neither supernatural, nor preternatural, for God is Good, and goodness is more natural than evil. The marvelous healing power of Jesus, and the wonderful following life of Christianity, and it characterized and dated the Christian era. It was the consummate naturalness of Truth in the consciousness of Jesus that made his healing so unconscious. Jesus regarded good as the natural state of man, and evil as abnormal; holiness, Life and health as better representatives of God than sickness and death. The master Metaphysician understood Omnipotence to be all power, because spirit was to him All in all; matter was palpably an error of premise and conclusion, while God was the only substance —Life and Intelligence of man."

As a mathematician works out a problem on the blackboard for his students, he works out the problem of Being for us, showing us the way out of the flesh and its thralldom into the glorious freedom of man in his individuality. His was not a slow process of material evolution, but the revelation of the real man, here and now.

Christian Science teaches that sin and disease have no divine authority, they are one, and are lawlessness, as St. John declares: "They exist in an illusory, untrue sense of existence, and are destroyed by changing human belief about them.

We must have at least, in part, the Mind which was also in Christ Jesus in order to destroy them. Thought is causation, is back of all manifestation; we have only to think truly, to have health, harmony and immortality. "To know God is eternal life."

The healing work of Christian Science being the work of breaking the fetters of materialism, its philanthropy is as broad as the heavens, and as deep as the ocean; it has no limits, even the "creature itself is to be freed from the bondage of corruption." A little child redeemed from the power

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

TO CHANGE TARIFF

Dominion Commons to Reconstruct Its Schedules on Imports.

Canada Getting Ready For War, If One Should Come.

Ottawa, May 17.—It is understood that the budget speech to be delivered by the finance minister in the Dominion commons shortly will announce some important changes in the Canadian tariff. The woolen interests, the coal oil consumers and the lumbermen of British Columbia are among the most clamorous for better tariff treatment. The woolen manufacturers want higher protection, so do the lumber interests of the Pacific coast. Coal oil consumers want the government to redeem their pledge, made when in opposition, to give the people free coal oil.

At the recent government caucus the finance minister gave an assurance that there would be a readjustment of the customs tariff in a considerable number of articles of import, and these will have a bearing upon the import trade from the United States. This foreshadows some important changes in the tariff, as, owing to the independence of Canadian industries, it has become expedient to make certain radical changes so as to give fair play to all concerned. The impression is prevalent in political circles here that the best thing to do is to inqure first into the whole tariff situation by means of a committee of the cabinet, as was done in 1897, but it is doubtful whether, at this late date, such an inquiry will be authorized until an appeal to the country has been made.

The lesson taught by the war in South Africa is being taken to heart by Canada. The defense which the small Dutch republic made against veteran British battalions has opened the eyes of Canadians to the possibilities of successfully resisting a powerful attack from their southern neighbor. The report of Lord Dundonald, commanding the Canadian forces, shows that the Dominion is making active and extensive preparations to maintain peace or resist a breach of it. Lord Dundonald states that to give effect to the new military scheme, which is to provide for an army of 230,000 men, some rearrangement is necessary and will entail a large increase in the cavalry, artillery and engineers in which arms this country is at present very weak.

Other lines of progress and preparation include heavy field batteries, artillery, armories, target practice, rifle associations, rifle ranges, intelligence department, signaling corps, engineers' service branch, cadet organization and a new ammunition factory for Ontario. The whole report breathes a spirit of unusual preparation and military activity calculated to place Canada on the best possible footing to take the field with a large and highly organized fighting machine in case of trouble.

Americans are gradually but surely capturing the trade of Newfoundland, which now shows every sign of commercially drifting away from the empire. Canada rapidly is losing a valuable market right at her own doors, and the knowledge of this fact has stirred the Dominion government to make strenuous efforts to induce the Newfoundlanders to enter the Canadian confederation.

Newfoundland's imports from Canada and Great Britain have decreased steadily during the past ten years, while there is an increase of over $1,250,000 annually in imports from the United States. Newfoundland hitherto has been the fourth largest consumer of Canadian products. The natural inclination of its trade and the sympathies of its people now appear to be toward the United States. The country benefits by being the slaughter market of both the United States and Canada, and the people know that so long as the island maintains its isolation and keeps aloof from the Canadian confederation it has both American and Canadian houses competing for its trade. Newfoundland fishermen are at present able to purchase the common necessaries of life cheaper than Canadians can buy them in the Dominion.

These are some of the statements recently made by E. M. Jackman, the minister of finance and customs for Newfoundland, and they afford strong reasons why the people of that island so strongly resent the invitation of Canada to come into the confederation. The bait supply, which Newfoundland holds, is the key to the fisheries of the north Atlantic waters, and this key exerts a powerful leverage as to treaty making, either with France or with the United States. According to Mr. Jackman, the astonishing growth of Newfoundland trade with the United States has been along the lines that Canada could have supplied, but the superior enterprise of Americans has snatched the prize completely from the hands of Canadians.

The one consideration for which Newfoundlanders are anxiously striving is reciprocity with the United States. Should this be obtained, Newfoundland will practically become a commercial appendage of the United States. Against this situation Canada resolutely has set her face, and the strongest influences undoubtedly will be brought to bear upon the imperial authorities to disallow any commercial treaty which would be so prejudicial to the trade interests of the Dominion.

Armenian Lecturer Keeps House In Open Air.

Delaware, Ohio, May 17.—Rev. S. S. Yenovikian, a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university and a lecturer well known in church circles in Ohio and surrounding states, has been evicted from his house by order of court.

Rev. Yenovikian recently purchased a home and before full payment was made had a slight misunderstanding with the man from whom the lecturer bought his house. The result was that a constable had to be called to move the furniture. The household goods were placed in the street, where the minister began to arrange things for housekeeping, just as if there were a roof above him and walls separating his effects.

Toward dark he makes up his bed and retires for the night.

Passersby are attracted to the ridiculous scene, and as they walk by his bed at a late hour the minister greets them with a pleasant "good evening."

Mr. Yenovikian is an Armenian missionary. He made a sensational escape from Turkey and has not been with his family for about seventeen years. He dare not return to them, neither can he obtain permission for the members of his household to come to his home here and join him, although he has appealed many times to the Washington officials.

The minister is very proud and will not ask any aid of Delaware people.

His open-air home is visited by quite a number of curious people.

BRET HARTE'S FOLKS

Are Poor, and One Son Nearly Blind.

London, May 17.—It seems a thousand pities that the family of such a genius as the late Bret Harte should be left in straitened circumstances, but such is the case. Mrs. Bret Harte and her children, who live in Bayswater, would find it difficult to make both ends meet were it not for the fact that they have a large number of staunch friends in the American colony in London. Miss Harte's musical career has been a long uphill struggle. In these days, when only the very best singers get a chance on the concert platform, it is difficult to get even a hearing, but Miss Bret Harte, whose voice is sweet, though scarcely big enough for any large hall, gave a fairly successful concert a few days ago and hopes to get a few engagements for "at homes" during the season. To add to their troubles, one of the sons is threatened with complete loss of sight. His eyes have gone from bad to worse and he is to be sent to Switzerland, where a great oculist may perform an operation.

WILL LEFT BY WENTZ

In Which He Bequeathed Thousands to Cincinnati Girl.

The Young Man Had an Unhappy Love Affair.

Richmond, Va., May 17.—One of the darkest and most mysterious tragedies ever committed in these wild mountains resulted in the death of Edward L. Wentz, the young Philadelphia millionaire, whose body was found a few days ago near Big Stone Gap, Wise county. A coroner's jury composed of men in the employ of which Mr. Wentz was general manager, has rendered a verdict of "Death from the accidental discharge of the pistol of deceased."

Public opinion without hesitation proclaims it murder or suicide. There is ground for accident and murder theories, for the young man and his company had made many enemies among the quick-to-shoot miners. The Virginia Coal and Iron company, through Mr. Wentz, its general manager, had pressed the moonshiners with a relentless hand.

James Daniel, one of a gang of moonshiners, had been killed as the result of a raid on an illicit distillery, and that was enough to have started a feud with the malignity of a Corsican vendetta. As the agent controlling 100,000 acres of mountain land, peopled with hundreds of squaters, he had dispossessed many mountaineers who claimed his homestead because of right or descent from a long line of ancestors. As keeper and "justice" of this great estate he had punished a trespasser for cutting timber, and on the day he was last seen alive he was on a mission to prosecute a man.

There is but one ground on which a supposition of suicide can be based, and that is that the young man had an unhappy love affair. He is understood to have been engaged to Miss Cornelia Brockmeyer, of Cincinnati, an estimable young lady, but his family, for several reasons, objected to the match. He left a will in which he is said to have given his house in Big Stone Gap to the wife of his borther, Daniel Wentz, his horse and dogs to his brother and a portion of his fortune to his brothers. To Miss Brockmeyer the will bequeathes $100,000.

The only thing of which the public can be certain is that Mr. Wentz is dead, with a bullet hole in his heart. His body, resting in an easy position, was found in the exact spot over which three searchers swear they walked, with their eyes open, seven months ago. His revolver and his eyeglasses lay twenty feet away. His right arm was broken and his front teeth were out. The ball, which had pierced his heart and was imbeded in the skeleton, fitted the revolver, which had one shot fired.

Wentz built a handsome cottage at Big Stone Gap and had furniture in it sent from the city. This furniture was never unpacked and the house is unoccupied to this day. He is understood to have been disappointed at the opposition of the family to the match and it is also reported that last July he became dissatisfied with his position and resigned. The fact of the resignation is denied.

Be this as it may, young Wentz had made a will prior to his disappearance, and in this will he is understood to have left a portion of his estate to Miss Brockmeyer. It is also stated that no portion of the estate is left to the parents of the deceased.

An Open Letter.

From the Chapin, S. C., News: Early in the spring my wife and I were taken with diarrhoea and so severe were the pains that we called a physician who prescribed for us, but his medicines failed to give any relief. A friend who had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand gave each of us a dose and we at once felt the effect. I procured a bottle and before using the entire contents we were entirely cured. It is a wonderful remedy and should be found in every household. H. C. Bailey, Editor. This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

SLOWLY STRANGLED

By Her Head Being Caught By Box.

Bucyrus, Ohio, May 17.—A frightful and peculiar accident took place at the home of J. T. Lutz, south of this city. Mrs. Lutz went to the barn to bring in some chickens from a sitting hen. The nest was in a piano box which sat parallel to the mangers.

She got into the box by raising the lid, but her weight overbalanced the box and it fell. The woman evidently felt the box going over, and in order to see what the trouble was, she thrust her head out of a hole at the top, just in time to have her head caught between the edge of the hole and the railing of the manger close to which the box fell. The hole in the box was not large enough to allow the woman to get her hands out to extricate herself and she was slowly strangled to death.

Her son found the dead body a few hours later.

PET SNAKE IN HER BOSOM.

Girl With Peek-a-Boo Waist Created a Panic.

San Francisco, May 17.—A pet snake and a peekaboo waist made a combination that brought Miss Bertha Chapman into the public eye, and also upon the school board's "carpet."

Miss Chapman is a teacher in naiure studies in the Oakland public schools, and took the snake to her classroom, to demonstrate to the pupils that instead of being dangerous the wiggling little serpent was realy lovable. She tied it in a knot that looked like a pretzel and the class was delighted.

On her way home, however, the enthusiastic naturalist put the pet in the bosom of her waist, where it behaved itself until its keeper boarded a crowded street car. Then it poked its flat head out through the insertion of the lace bodice and darted its forked tongue affectionately at a woman near by.

This started a panic that has caused all Miss Chapman's trouble.

ENDEARING LETTERS

Are Read In a Sensational Divorce Case In Ohio.

Evidence That the Defendant Slapped Her Mother-in-Law.

Youngstown, Ohio, May 17.—One of the most sensational divorce cases that have been on here is that of Actor Harrison J. Wolfe against Mamie St. Clair, or Marie Barringer, of Columbus. He charges that she received the attentions of other men, among them Burnell Gunther, son of the millionaire candy manufacturer of Chicago; Harry E. Speaks, of Columbus, an official of the Ohio Central railroad, and others. The defendant did not appear in court, neither did her attorneys, Ricketts & Ricketts, of Columbus. Attorney Frank L. Oesch represented her.

The plaintiff, Jack Williams, as he is known in private life, was on the stand first. He said that his wife, while they were living in the city, struck his aged mother because the latter's way of feeding their child did not suit her.

Williams said that he had discovered letters in a masculine hand coming to his wife, and that they separated in August, 1903. He returned to Columbus, her home, after he had repeatedly written and telegraphed her to come back to him, and went to the room where his child was sleeping. Beside the child he found this telegram:

"Chicago, Aug. 3, 1903.

"Miss Marie Barringer, Columbus: Wish you would come on at once. Let me know. "BURNELL."

A photographic copy of a letter written by Gunther from Chicago was produced. It reads:

"Now try to arrange for stock here (Chicago) and not in Milwaukee, then you can be near where I am and at the same time we can be together more. I don't want you to go out to supper with other men and I don't believe that you do." It was signed, "Yours lovingly, Burnell."

Another letter, dated Aug. 14, 1903, read:

"When are you going to come and see your Burnell?"

One of the letters, said to have been written by Speaks, and dated Tiffin, read:

"Yours received. When do you figure to return to Columbus, and on what line. Let me know and I may be able to join you somewhere along the line. Dislike this writing with a 'bridle on,' but guess we must observe the restraint for the present at least. Did you receive my letter?"

Another read:

"This is a nice 'little inn.' I would make it convenient if 'some one' were here. Bye, bye. Devotedly, H."

Depositions were read from people in Philadelphia to the effect that Mrs. Williams had been seen in a saloon with other men.

Mrs. Williams, mother of the plaintiff, testified that the wife had said that she hated her husband so that "she would like to put a dagger in him."

Other testimony showing that she swore when angry was introduced.

CORTELYOU FOR CHAIRMAN

Secretary of Labor May Head National Republican Committee.

Washington, May 17.—George B. Cortelyou, secretary of labor and commerce, it seems very likely now, may be selected as chairman of the national Republican committee. While in no sense endeavoring to anticipate the action of the Chicago convention, or that of the national committee to be chosen at that convention, President Roosevelt and members of the Republican party generally have canvassed for months the subject of the national chairmanship. From time to time the names of various prominent Republicans have been published in connection with the chairmanship, but the gossip about the matter had no firmer basis than conjecture. To the late Senator Hanna the president expressed the desire that Mr. Hanna might see his way clear again to assume the responsibilities of national chairman. That expression met the approval of Republicans generally. To no one else, however, has anything so nearly approximating a proifer of the chairmanship been made. Several widely known and influential Republican leaders have been considered for the important position. Some time ago the name of Secretary Cortelyou was suggested. It met instant favor. It is known that Mr. Cortelyou sustains very close relations not only with President Roosevelt, but with the party leaders through the country. He is regarded as being admirably equipped for the position, possessing fine executive ability and a thorough knowledge of men and affairs. For several years he has been intimately identified with political management, scarcely any man sustaining more confidential relations with President McKinley, Senator Hanna and President Roosevelt than he. If he should be elected national chairman he would resign his position in the cabinet and devote his time to the work of the committee. In a measure this would involve personal sacrifice.

It is asserted that no decision has been reached, but prominent men in the councils of the Republican party have impressed upon the president the desirability of Secretary Cortelyou's selection. It is reasonably certain that J. W. Blythe, of Iowa, will be prominently identified with the conduct of the Republican campaign in the West, and it is likely that he may be the vice chairman of the national committee, or a sub-chairman in charge of the Western end of the campaign. For a time he was urged by Senator Allison for the chairmanship, but it is probable he will occupy the position here indicated.

Cornelius N. Bliss, of New York, for many years treasurer of the national committee, probably will again fill that position.

TURNED TO FIGHT

And the Pretty Girl Victim Escaped.

Painesville, Ohio, May 17.—While returning from Painesville to her home on the lake front, Charlotte Brooks, a pretty school girl, was held up by two men and nearly choked to death. A quarrel between the men saved the girl.

The girl had reached a lonely place when a man sudenly stepped to the horse's head and another sprang into a carriage, clutching her neck. Her collar was torn open. She was unable to cry out.

In his efforts to hold the horse the man in the road droped a pail filled with wine. This angered his companion, who turned on the man, releasing his hold on the girl. She then saw her opportunity, and with rare presence of mind called to herhorse and drove away rapidly. Her throat bears the marks of the man's fingers.

Two men named Louie Alec and Stephen Condeco have geen arrested.

MERCER'S PLAN

Of Selling Timber Brought Out In Commonwealth Trial.

Former Indian Agent Under a Fierce Cross-Examination.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 17.—Captain Mercer's testimony in the Commonwealth lumber suit threw a flood of light on his methods of disposing of the timber on Indian lands, and explains in large measure why the government scored him so severely in its amended answer in the present suit.

In his direct examination he explained that he was busy with other affairs and made the best arrangements he could for the disposal of the timber. Under cross-examination, which was unusually searching, he admitted that the description of the lands from which the dead and down timber was to be cut was generally furnished by the persons who desired to purchase the logs. He admitted that Ray W. Jones of the Commonwealth company had furnished him with such descriptions, and he allowed him to go ahead and establish camps on the land with nothing more than a verbal agreement that the cost of removnig the timber, which the company was afterwards to purchase for $5.50 a thousand, was not to exceed $4.2 a thousand. The company had operated under this verbal agreement from November until Jan. 29, when it had given him the written contract signed by Doucette, one of its workmen.

He then testified that he preferred to have the firm that purchased the logs also act as logger in removing them from the land, as it would naturally cut them in merchantable lengths, and could not refuse to buy what it had cut. It would also be responsible for any trespass committed.

The district attorney thereupon asked him if he considered Doucette a responsible party and he said that he knew nothing about him, but the company was behind him. He was asked if he did not realize that in accepting a contract from Doucette, a company workman, he was relieving the company from responsibility and substituting an irresponsible party, and he said he did not understand it that way, although he admitted that the company had made no written indorsement of the Doucette contract, and had objected to signing a contract itself on the ground that some of its officers were out of the state and could not be consulted. Then District Attorney Houpt took up another line of questioning.

"You say, captain, that it was your policy to have the purchaser of the logs also be the logger?" he asked.

"That was my desire."

"Was it also your policy to have the purchaser of the logs select the scalers?"

"To a limited extent. I had no objection to it."

"Did you usually permit the purchaser of the logs to select the scalers as you did in the Commonwealth case?"

"I expect more than three-fourths of the scalers in the whole operation were recommended as in the case of the Commonwealth by the loggers or the purchasers."

"Did it ever occur to you, captain, that by allowing the same man to be the logger, purchaser and scaler of the logs that the Indians and government did not get very much protection?"

"No, sir, it did not occur to me in that way."

"Do you think it is a good business arrangement?"

"I think it is."

It is expected the case will reach the jury this evening.

MUST LEAVE THE LANDS

The Marshals Ordered To Drive All Sooners From The Reservation.

Washington, May 17.—Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock, through the department of justice, has directed United States marshals in Minnesota and South Dakota to take immediate action towards removing all the "squatters and sooners" who are swarming on the lands to be opened in June and July.

These lands include the Chippewa reservation and Red Lake lands in Minnesota, and the Rosebud reservation in South Dakota.

The general land office has been notified that since the issuance of the proclamation of the president opening the lands of the Red Lake reservation in Minnesota and the Rosebud reservation in South Dakota, they are being swarmed by "sooners" who are laboring under impression that they will be given first selection when the formal opening takes place.

It is altogether improbable that Land Commissioner Richards will change the order designating Thief River Falls as the point where the auction sale of Red Lake lands will begin June 20. The Crookston people are up in arms and have vigorously protested to Congressmun Steenerson and asked that he have the sale ordered to take place at Crookston, inasmuch as the local land office is located there.

But the general land office insists that the convenience and welfare of the settlers should first of all be taken into consideration and that it would be a decided hardship for them to go to Crookston to make entry after being awarded the land for which they are the highest bidders. Commissioner Richards says that he is looking to the interests of settlers before that of the interests of any town or any special business interest.

The prospective purchasers of Red Lake lands will all have to go to Thief River Falls anyway, to look at the lands on which they propose to bid and it would only add to their expense and hardship to go to Crookston to make the entry.

TWO NEW STAKES

Added to Program For Grand Circuit Races.

New York, May 17.—Two new stakes of $10,000 each have been added to the program for the Grand Circuit races in New York this year, raising the aggregate of prize money to be distributed among the trotters and pacers next August to something like $100,000.

In compliance with requests from horse owners all over the country the Empire City Trotting club has decided to open a guaranteed stake of $10,000, all trotters of the 2:14 class being eligible, to be decided at the Empire track in the week beginning August 8.

Brigton Beach will duplicate the offer one week later. The stakes will be known as the Knickerbocker and Long Island respectively. Entries for both will close June 2.

TORTURED BY FANATICS

Charges Made Against Members of Religious Cult.

Chicago, May 17.—Another chapter in the charges which have been made against Otoman Zar Adusht Hanish, in connection with the insanity of Miss Emma Reusse, of St. Paul, who is now in the Elgin asylum for the insane, was added by Mrs. John Tradup, of Snakopee, Minn., a sister of the demented woman.

Mrs. Tradup declared that Hanish's teachings caused Miss Reusse to fast until she became insane, and that he or some member of his Mazdaznan cult pricked the back of the victim between the shoulder blades with needles, completely covering a space four inches square, and that the lacerated flesh was rubbed with olive oil many times, causing the sufferer intense agony.

"I have learned that this was done to drive out impure spirits, according to the creed of the sun worshipers," said Mrs. Tradup. "I was horror-stricken at the asylum in Elgin on Saturday when the physician in charge showed me the cruelly torn back of my poor sister.

"I hastened back to Chicago and went to the apartments formerly occupied by my poor sister. Mrs. Strong, a high priestess of the Hanish temple, whom I saw, told me that the pricking of the back with needles and the use of olive oil was one of the ceremonies to be undergone by those who entered the inner circle of the Hanish cult."

The people of Duluth are very curious set, judging by the manner in which they crowded the Metropolitan opera house last night to find out "Why Girls Leave Home." Every seat was filled, and then a number of theater goers were turned away because they did not wish to stand up during the performance, which will be repeated tonight and tomorrow afternoon and evening.

The cast was a good one, and the play itself, a melodrama of five acts and seven scenes, affording, as it does, several opportunities for exciting situations, was thrilling.

The girl in this case, Pearl Sherwood, ably taken by Ellen Boyer, left home, or came very near leaving home, because of the obstinacy and unreasonableness of her brother, who, as her only protector, and in his anxiety to see that she came to no harm, went too far in his demands, using harsh words and measures. She seeks out bad company more to spite him than anything else, and with one Sam Stone and other low men and women frequents wine rooms. She will go no farther, however, greatly to the chagrin of her tempter, and preserves her honor intact for her handsome lover, Joseph White.

Things finally come to such a pass between the girl and her brother that he strikes her down in their home one night. He thinks he has killed her, and before he finds out that she is still alive she is spirited away by an evil woman who has an old score to settle with the brother. The girl is detained and locked in the room of the woman's low dive, but by vigorous use of chairs, folding bed, fists and water pitcher, finally manages to make her escape. She arrives at the prison just in time to save her brother from suicide. This prison scene, where his enemy, in the guise of a friend, smuggles in a knife, so that the brother may commit suicide, is one of the most stirring in the play. The scenic effects are good.

There are some very handsome men in the cast and one or two attractive girls. John Webster gives a splendid rendition of the part of Dan Sherwood, the quick-tempered brother. He is intensely realistic, and makes the most of his opportunities to send cold shivers down the backs of his audience. Robert Smiley makes a handsome lover, and is entirely satisfactory in the part of Joseph White. Walter Gilbert and Gene Gauthier as Johnny Hobbins and Minnie Sherwood, youthful lovers, delight the audience in a number of amusing situations, and give an excellent account of themselves. Ann Schaeffer as Dolly Fletcher, the evil woman, leaves little to be desired in the way of clever acting. The other characters are equally well taken.

OTIS SKINNER.

Otis Skinner will appear at the Lyceum this evening and tomorrow evening in "The Harvester," in which he is making a short tour.

"The Harvester" is an adaption of a notable Parisian success, "Le Chemineau," by John Richepin, the distinguished French damatist and "poet of the people." Richepin is a big figure in the drama of today, indeed, in modern literature, and hence this first presentation of his first work to receive production in this country is attracting widespread attention.

"The Harvester" should not, by reason of its title, be confounded with "rural" plays. It is far different in character. It is said to follow the structure of Richepin's original work closely and to preserve the lyric quality of the gypsy-Frenchman's poetic pastorals. The locale, however, has been changed from a Normandy village of today to the fair valley of the Saguenay, French Canada, in the year 1850.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Spark From Miner's Lamp Sets Fire In Republic Mine.

Marquette—A spark from a miner's lamp started a fire in the Republic iron mine at the 1500 foot level and 200 feet from the shaft. The blaze threatens extensive damage.

Bessemer—The Colby is the first mine to move its stock piles, loading and shipping beginning over both railroads for the Ashland docks.

Circuit court convened here. The only important criminal case is against Adolf Johnson for assaulting and resisting an officer.

James Sullivan, Con Geary, R. N. Sleight, L. S. Rice, F. A. Healy and John Hanoushek were elected delegates at the Democratic county convention here today to the Detroit convention for electing delegates to St. Louis.

The delegates were not instructed and stand about evenly divided between Parker and Hearst, though all prefer a new man.

Hancock—Active mining operations at the Mishwabik property, in Keweenaw county will be resumed in a few days. Additional machinery has been installed. The Mishwabik is to be consolidated with the Federal Copper company, and one tract of the Union Copper Land and Mining company.

Marquette—Republicans of the twelfth district nominated H. Olin Young, of Ishpeming for re-election to congress. J. H. McLean, of Ironwood, and A. W. Mills of Menominee were chosen delegates to the national convention. They are uninstructed.

Houghton—The Mohawk Mining company will place a contract for the dredging of the channel at the pier and dock at the stamp mill location on Traverse bay.

Calumet—The Trimountain Mining company has a force of men at work erecting a new dry, or miners' change house, to replace the one recently destroyed by fire.

Wakefield—John Cagliardi, an Italian miner, was instantly killed by a cave-in of stope in the Sunday Lake mine. He had a large family in Italy.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Four Murder Cases Develop In Past Few Weeks.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck—Four murder cases have developed in this judicial district in the past few weeks. Art Van Verste is in jail in Emmons county, charged with a criminal operation resulting in the death of his daughter. John Brown is under arrest at Richardson, charged with the murder of his 12-year-old son.

John Hauser, of Mercer county, shot and killed W. F. Keletz in a row over some cattle. Officials here received word of the shooting of Ole Zinar, a prominent ranchman of Dickinson, by B. K. Climie. The trouble arose over the whitering of some cattle. Climie was in this city a few days ago and brought suit against Ziner.

Grand Forks—At a meeting of the board of directors of the newly organized Audubon society of North Dakota, the following officers were elected: President, Dr. O. G. Libby, Grand Forks; vice president, W. E. Hoover, Park River; secretary, Miss Elizabeth Abbott, Grand Forks; treasurer, C. F. Foster, Pembina.

The capital stock of the Grand Forks Central Creamery association organized about a year ago, will be increased and the field of the association broadened. The creamery has been operated to its greatest capacity, and has been unable to supply the demands made upon it. It is proposed now to operate a launch on the Red river and gather cream from points twenty miles north and the same distance south, making daily trips in each direction.

Fargo—J. E. Wiant, the missing postmaster from Parik, N. D., has returned to Stutsman county after an unexplained absence of many months. He went to St. Paul and Chicago with some cattle early in the winter and disappeared. He makes little explanation of his absence other than to say he has been suffering from rheumatism.

A big sale of Southern cattle will be held in Fargo June 7. Prominent breeders of this state and Minnesota will be represented. The auction will be conducted by Col. Wood, of Nebraska, aided by Col. Wilson, of Fargo.

The Tenney drug store has been sold to C. E. Wilson and T. A. Boss.

Ashley—C. C. Hammond heads the McIntosh delegation to the Republican convention at Grand Forks. The Republican convention here was an exciting affair. It took seven hours for the county central committee to hear one contest and the convention to elect the delegates.

Minnewaukan—O. I. Hegge, Republican candidate for state treasurer, was allowed to name the delegates to both the state conventions. Judge Cowan was unanimously indorsed for re-election.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Arlington—Mayor Glendenning is at the point of death with heart affliction.

Mrs. P. C. Paulson died suddenly from a ruptured blood vessel. She was about 70 and leaves a husband and several grown children.

Deadwood—Business men will attempt to outdo themselves in all former carnival events this fall. At the same time the Black Hills Traveling Men's association will hold a special carnival, joining with the Deadwood Business Men's club.

BAD DREAMS

Indicate Proper Diet, Usually Due to Coffee.

One of the common symptoms of coffee poisoning is the bad dreams that spoil what should be restful sleep. A man who found the reason says:

"Formerly I was a slave to coffee. I was like a morphine fiend, could not sleep at night, would roll and toss in my bed and when I did get to sleep was disturbed by dreams and hobgoblins, would wake up with headaches and feel bad all day, so nervous I could not attend to business. My writing looked like bird tracks, I had sour belchings from the stomach, indigestion, heartburn and palpitation of the heart, constipation, irregularity of the kidneys, etc.

"Indeed, I began to feel I had all the troubles that human flesh could suffer but when a friend advised me to leave off coffee I felt as if he had insulted me. I could not bear the idea, it had such a hold on me and I refused to believe it the cause.

"But it turned out that no advice was ever given at a more needed time for I finally consented to try Postum and with the going of coffee and the coming of Postum all my troubles have gone and health has returned. I eat and sleep well now, nerves steadied down and I write a fair hand (as you can see), can attend to business again and rejoice that I am free from the monster coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days trial of Postum in place of coffee will bring sound, restful refreshing sleep. There's a reason.

ARCHDUKE ARRESTED

In Mistake For a Fugitive Embezzler.

London, May 17.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail says that Archduke Franze Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, arrived in Hamburg Saturday incognito, on his way to England. He was about to take a boat to the steamer when he was arrested by a detective, who thought he was a fugitive Austrian embezzler. He explained his indentity, whereupon the detective said: "Any one can say that." But he finally succeeded in convincing the detective he really was the pesonage he represented himself to be.

LETTER TRAVELED

Around the World After a Debtor.

Chicago, May 17.—A telegram in a letter that followed a man from Chicago to Montana, London, Paris, South Africa, South America, Mexico and South Africa again was delivered four and a half years after it had been sent from the Auditorium hotel, according to Clerk Shafer and M. C. Dobson.

The latter, who received the belated message, told of the circumstances. The telegram, Mr. Dobson said, referred to a $39 account. It reached Montana just after the addressee had left. The letter continued its journey and finally it was handed to Mr. Dobson in Pretoria.

The mining expert entered the Auditorium yesterday.

"Hello, Shafer," he said, "I came to pay my bill. Got your telegram two months ago in South Africa."

SENSITIVE ABOUT IT.

John S. Sargent, while he was painting the portrait of James Whitcomb Riley in Philadelphia, narrated some of the vicissitudes of a portrait painter's life.

"Once, I remember," he said, "I did a half length of a rich Londoner. The man was a coarse, high-colored type; he made a good subject. When the portrait was done he stood off and and studied it very closely.

"'Well?' said I.

"'Well,' said he, 'it is excellent. Only,' he added, 'you have left out one very essential feature.'

"'Excuse me, but,' I faltered, 'I thought you wouldn't care to have the —er—art reproduced.'

"'Hang it,' he said, 'I'm talking about the diamond pin, not the wart.'"

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

Social, Musical and Art Circles.

A more brilliant social function than the formal opening of the Northland Golf club's new club house at Thirty-eighth avenue east, Duluth has not had. All society was out and the affair was a very handsome one. While most of the social entertainments in the new club house will probably be informal in nature, this was of the formal and the women were beautifully and elaborately gowned.

This being the first entertainment in its new home the club did not limit the attendance to its membership, but widened its invitation list very largely. Nearly 600 guests were welcomed and entertained with cordial hospitality.

The guests were received in the main room on the first floor by the members of the board of directors and their wives, the receiving party being Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Hoopes, Mr. and Mrs. W. Presecnitm, and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. House.

On the second floor, in the dancing hall, Flaaten's orchestra played for those who desired to dance and it is needless to say the floor was filled throughout the evening.

In the dining room just off the main room on the first floor, and so arranged as to be almost a part of the room, refreshments were served and also punch.

The club house, with its many gables and spacious verandas on three sides, facing on Superior street, yet partly hidden by little knolls, is a typical country house of the bungalow style, and carries the idea of solid comfort in every feature.

The porches are plentifully strewn with out door chairs, rustic rockers and rattan furniture.

Entering the reception hall at the east end, one is greeted with an air of solid comfort that is augmented at every turn. In this hall is the steward's office, the entire furnishings being in weathered oak.

The main or "living room" adjoins. The cheerful flicker from the six-foot logs burning in the huge fireplace, together with the light from myriads of incandescents, reveals walls done in a peculiar deep golden yellow, while a rich royal Wilton rug, specially designed to harmonize, covers almost the entire floor. The woodwork is all in weathered oak, a high stein rail entirely encircling the room, being a feature. Furniture in great profusion, chairs, settees, divans, rockers, tables and odd seats, all in harmonious mission style of weathered oak, provides ample facilities for rest and conversation. The windows here, as throughout the house, are draped with a deep green rustic net.

The main dining room, decorated in red is furnished with numerous small tables for seating four. The chairs are done in red leather, the entire furnishings, including the built-in buffet, king of rich Flemish oak in minion style.

The porch dining room, glass encased on three sides and natural shingle finished at one end, is furnished in lighter might mission style, the chairs and tables all being of a light green tint.

The private dining room also on the main floor is very artistically done and received much admiration last evening. The floor, as all the floors is, of polished oak, the walls are done in Scotch plaids and the windows in green net. A huge buffet of United Crafts production harmonizes with artistic furniture of "fumed" oak with green leather seats. A great extension table takes the place of the small tables in the public dining rooms, to properly provide for dinner parties, etc.

The men's room or grill room in the rear affords a convenient smoking and lounging room. Direct access to the golf links is had from this room, adjoining which are bath rooms, locker rooms and toilet rooms.

The oaken stairway, covered with soft Algerian carpet, leads to the dancing hall on the second floor, which is finished entirely in natural hardwood shingles, arched and trussed most artistically. The ladies' locker room and a delightful little tete a tete rest alcove adjoin on either side.

Altogether the club has a very handsome home, in originality of design, completeness of detail, and beauty of furnishings and fittings throughout. It is a home that will compare favorably with the town and country clubs of many cities far larger than Duluth.

Twins, Boy and Girl.

Twins, a boy and girl, arrived yesterday afternoon to gladen the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Williamson, of London road. Congratulations upon the happy event have been pouring in from their many friends.

A "GYM" FROLIC.

Young Women's Christian Association to Have One.

The thirty-first evening of this month, which will be two weeks from this evening, the term of the gymnasium classes of the Young Women's Christian association will end. The end of the gymnasium classes at all associations is marked by some special frolic of some sort, and the plans for the local association have not been made. There is a possibility the plans will be secret, and everybody knows how well a secret can be kept by women members in an organization of women. However, it will be a frolic of delight.

At "gym" frolics in other cities fancy dress parties have been given; again, the girls dressed in their "gym" suits, and even again they have been known to supply the dearth of men at these performances by the only obvious means. Not that men would not attend the frolic, but it is an utter impossibility to have them when the members wear bloomers! But by actual demonstration it has been proved that men are not the only ones who can assume the attire of men and carry it off as bravely with the "lord of creation" air.

As has been said the plans are not yet definite, but the date is definite, as is also the air of anticipation which the members are carrying around with them. The day is being marked on calanders and mentally remembered, and the first frolic in the new gym will doubtless be a delight to "those present."

Events of Interest.

Tomorrow afternoon the Ladies' Aid society of the Endion M. E. church will meet with Mrs. B. Magle, of 1710 London road, at 2:30, and at 4 o'clock the meeting of the Missionary society will be held.

• • •

The L. Y. club have invitations out for another dance, to be given this evening at Harmonie hall, at Lester Park. The party promises to be as delightful as the previous ones.

Personal Mention.

Miss Belle Tucker who has been a nurse at a hospital at Eveleth, returned to Duluth yesterday to visit her sister, Mrs. H. B. Sutherland, of Lakeside.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Poehler returned yesterday from a two weeks' fishing trip.

• • •

Mrs. J. B. Hanson and daughter, of 1631 East Third street, left yesterday for a visit at Fargo and Valley City, N. D.

AN ATTRACTIVE HOME.

It Constitutes a Woman's Greatest Triumph.

Despite all the discussions as to whether women are or are not as clever as men, there is one fact that remains unchanged—the happiest woman on earth is the one who makes a success of her home. An attractive home is woman's greatest triumph. No amount of male intelligence or goodwill can make up for the lack of her efforts in that direction. What a delight to her husband and comfort to her women friends is the maker of a cozy home! It is not always the result of a neat and prim housewife; it is the true artist who has, perhaps, received the highest education that achieves success in the home. When ambitious women declare that they could not endure a domestic life, it is evident that they do not understand the art of being domestic.

In it there is scope for the display of every talen and artistic taste. Take the art of arranging flowers, for example. Few women have any idea of the possibilities in that line. The same bunch of flowers would be hardly recognizable at the hands of different women. By the way, speaking of flowers reminds me of the clever idea which the Japanese have on this subject. Instead of adding just a few sprays of green to a bunch of flowers, they till the vase with green and add a few flowers here and there. The expense is much less and the effect is perfectly charming. Two pennyworth of asparagus green and four chrysanthemums would make a huge floral display in a Japanese drawing room. Green is always delightfully refreshing, and I often wonder why it is used so sparingly in American bouquets. Every one is consciously or unconsciously affected by the cheerfulness of a room. Flowers have a potent charm of their own, and a few pennyworth will last a week if properly cared for. The best way is to remove them at night to a cool place. If that is impracticable, keep them away from the direct rays of gas or electric light. Cut the stems each morning, singe the cut ends, and replace them in fresh water.

Heel Hints.

Not even the woman who likes high heels knows the precise technical name of the particular height she tilts around on. Of the military order alone there are four different heights, with as many different names.

Up to one and one-fourth inches a heel is military.

Up to one and five-eights inches it is Cuban.

Above that it is a Spanish heel.

When it soars above two inches it is Castilian.

In the same high heels, the French heel, that which ranges in height from one and one-fourth to two inches, is the Louis XV.

Te DuBarry runs from two to three inches—and there are women who wear it, really.

THE EVENING STORY.

THE WIDOW INTERFERES

By Helena Smith.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The widow was in a delicate violet gown, and against the soft green cushions made a fascinating picture. She knew it. Certainly the widow was all that the name implies in its most romantic sense. Just now she looked pensive.

"How did you ever come to get into the affair, anyway?" asked Kingsley.

"Probably the feminine instinct to become involved in a love affair, even if it is some other woman's," replied the widow with a demure smile.

"But you aren't obliged to have affairs by proxy," said Kingsley grimly. He passed his egg-shell tea cup to be refilled.

The widow set the saucy little brass kettle humming before she answered.

"Of course I did it for Nella," she explained. "I'm very fond of Nella."

"It's a very trying situation—if you are fond of Nella," said Kingsley, smiling broadly. "Do you think she will understand how disinterested you were?"

"She will probably be ungrateful," sighed the widow. "I have hop s of encouraging one of them to be sensible and to go back to her again. Then she needn't know of the vacillation."

"Have you decided which one to present Nella with?" asked Kingsley.

"I hope you don't blame me," the widow sighed. "My idea was to make everybody happy. I was just teasing them, as it were, to see which of the two was most worthy of her. As the confidant of all three my position was to say the least perplexing. I really didn't encourage them—I never encourage people—"

Kingsley laughed.

"Oh, no," he exclaimed. "Certainly not."

"But I really didn't," she protested. "I would sit by the hour and listen to those two geese rave about her—and I talked nothing but Nella. As her friend I could do no more."

"But the fact remains these two rivals have forgotten all about Nella—are, in short, infatuated with you—and each insists upon giving up Nella to the other. There's a situation!"

The widow cast her eyes modestly down to the tips of her Du Barry slippers. She seemed to be the only excuse needed for such vacillation on the part of Nella's followers.

"I am naturally sympathetic—people delight in pouring out confidences to me," she murmured. "Those young men thought as Nella's friend I might help their cause. They cultivated me. If afterward—"

"It must have bored you."

"It did—rather. Of course, I grew to know them well. You were actually nice and I was trying to make up my mind which to advise her to take—then they spoiled it all by—"

"Which of the two have you decided to accept—for Nella?" demanded Kingsley, dryly.

"Danvers is rich," said the widow. "And Nella likes luxury. I know the dear child couldn't get along without all the frills she has always had. He is, moreover, good looking and his family is excellent. A good catch. Nella could never have the wolf on her calling list. If she should open the door and find such a creature standing there—no—Nella could never run the risk of harboring the wolf on her doorstep. She had better take Danvers. I think I shall write her to that effect—though I rather expect she may drop in."

"And Gaskell?"

"Oh, he would be perfect for her—so clever, handsome and sure to be a tremendous success sometime. Not much money—but that doesn't count so much if one is in love."

"Consistency," began Kingsley, but the widow threw a pillow with such dexterity, diverting his mind.

"Well—which one have you decided to take?" queried the man. "Isn't it difficult to eat your cake and have it, too? Wouldn't your own choice necessarily be the choice you should make for Nella? It takes a woman to get herself—and others—into a complication."

"You aren't original—but you are distinctly disagreeable," complained the widow. "I am sorry I told you anything about it. I thought you might help me decide what to do. Shall I tell Nella?"

"She doesn't suspect the truth?"

"Nella is very stupid. Were it anyone else I could call it conceit. She is so sure of them—and evidently considers me past being attractive. It was quite too bad of her to say she trusted them with me as if I were her mother."

"She was thinking of a stunning young stepmother, no doubt," said Kingsley, striving to conceal a yawn. "But did she appear serious about either of these young Romeos?"

"No—o. She just said 'Pauline—take the two—study them and help me decide which is the better man. Please devote time to it.' So I began to be nice to them both—and they naturally were pleased to drop in. It has been a bit troublesome to keep the accounts separate, though. Can I help it if they have learned to like me a bit in the meantime?" demanded the widow, naively.

"But you are going to send one of them back to Nella. That's truly generous of you," drawled Kingsley. "You are indeed a diplomat."

"But I am not going to take one myself," cried the widow. "The game ceases to be interesting when I have decided for Nella."

"It was not honorable in either of them," said the man. "They have both proven unworthy, have they not?" he demanded.

"It was rather foolish of them—wasn't it?" smiled the widow.

Kingsley looked at the widow.

"Not so very," he said with the stern lines in his face softening. "But it was wicked of you."

The violet gown certainly was a dream—the widow had reddish gold hair and her eyes just the shade that matches. And then she had a way of glancing up at one that was really most distracting. Kingsley had an artistic appreciation.

"You are beautiful," he said, almost as if it hurt him to make the admission. "The most beautiful woman I have ever seen."

The rosebeaf skin took on a deeper pink and a light came into the widow's eyes no one had ever seen in them before. As Kingsley looked into them he reached forward and kissed the alluring red lips. Then he seemed to wake from a dream.

"Forgive me," he said with a stern, white face. "Though I can never forgive myself—for forgetting." He stood before her a tall, grave figure. The widow extended her hand.

"But I am not angry," she said, softly. "I am glad—very glad." Her voice was low and thrilling.

"I came to tell you something," he said, quietly. "But it will be very hard to do so—now."

The widow came over and put her hand on his arm and looked up into his face.

"Oh—don't you understand? I don't care for either of them—I know you have been desperately jealous—but I forgive you, silly." She threw her head back and smiled up at him, her eyes sparkling. "Of course I knew the reason you haven't been here much was because you were bothered at always finding those two boys about the place. But I don't see why you gave up your happy hunting ground to anybody."

Kingsley frowned like one who has been misunderstood.

"It wasn't that—you know—Why—hang it all—I've been—"

"You talk like an embarrassed schoolboy," said the widow, looking at him keenly, for she thought something was wrong.

As they stood facing each other a young woman swept into the room unannounced.

"Have you told her about our marriage?" she demanded, abruptly. "Wasn't it delightfully romantic and wild and unconventional?" Then she rushed to the widow and gave her what passes among society women for a kiss. The widow stared incredulously and passed her hand over her forehead. Kingsley was the first to speak.

"I was about to tell her—just as you entered," he said.

"You see, Pauline, dear, I decided for myself, after all. But it was good of you to take those two infants off my hands—they were such bores. Besides, they kept nicer people away," flashing a glance at Kingsley. "Clever of me, wasn't it?"

The widow was very pale. The room seemed whirling around her.

"Surely it is all a jest," she said with an effort. "You two—it is quite impossible—" She held the back of the chair to steady herself. Then she looked keenly at the girl. "Yes—I can see it is true, now—and you are indeed very clever. She turned to Kingsley. There was something in his face as she met his eyes that she did not understand at first. Then slowly her eyes filled with tears. Kingsley held out his hand and put hers in it for an instant.

"Good bye," he said, steadily. The girl was frowning impatiently.

"Perhaps you regret—" she began in a crisp tone. The widow interrupted with a laugh.

"Don't be absurd, Nella. Why, he asked me to lure away those two boys so the field would be clear for him. You both owe me a debt of gratitude. And now let me give you a little surprise. I'm going abroad to travel for several years. Surely a widow is the most enviable creature in the world—the new Mrs. Kingsley excepted."

"We thank you for interfering," said Kingsley. "You couldn't have managed better."

"Widows are very clever," murmured Nella, as she went out smiling to herself. "In my pre-existence I must have been a widow!"

From the doorway Kingsley turned and looked back. Then he was gone.

"It's just as well that I accepted the colonel," said the widow. "Though I was quite sentimental—for a moment. But who would have thought it of Nella!"

FURNISHED FROM DULUTH

Panton & White Company Provide Golf Club-house Furnishings.

It is interesting to know, and a matter for congratulation, that the entire interior furnishings of the Northland Golf club's new club house, which was formally opened with a handsome reception last evening was the work of a Duluth concern. The building itself is of a very handsome and striking design, and the furnishing throughout are in keeping. In everyway the club house is artistic and elegant, and complete harmony characterizes every feature of its interior decoration. Beautiful in every way was the verdict of everyone who visited it last evening.

The entire furnishings is the work of the Panton & White company. The furniture, which is of a very rich and artistic design, the rugs, draperies, china and silverware, the dainty napery and even the kitchen utensils were provided by this company, and furnish a striking evidence of the facilities of this modern store for executing orders for high class and complete outfits for home and clubs.

are convinced that the enemy is too weak to carry it out. As further showing that Kuropatkin never had any intention to stop the northward advance fifteen miles of Hai Cheng, many of their wounded entering there.

The nearest fighting expected before the Japanese reach Newchwang will be at Tashiichao, but it will not amount to much. This city is now guarded by 300 Chinese police and everything is quiet. The Japanese force at Kai Chau is reported 20,000 strong.

ALLIANCE WITH JAPAN

Would Be Fatal For China, Says Official.

Ilao Yang, May 16—(Delayed in Transmission.)—A Chinese official asserted today, in a speech at a dinner given in his honor, and in that of the other Chinese officials by the military authorities of Liao Yang, that Japan wants an alliance with China, in order to use her. The official further declared that the Chinese considered it their duty to preserve good relations with Russia, whose frontier adjoined China's. He said:

"An alliance between China and Japan would be fatal. Japan made war on us once and Russia's intervention caused her to leave us in peace. An alliance now would enable her to use us and then again attack us."

In hunting for Chinese bandits the Cossacks burned the village of Shontaidza. The military authorities have now organized a subscription for the relief of the villagers, who will be given employment on the railroad.

The Chinese report that Gen. Ma is in the district of Cheng-Te-Fou, province of Chili.

A detachment of Russian troops recently crept upon the rear of the Japanese advance, on the road from Feng Wang Cheng, to Liao Yang, causing the enemy to fall back slightly.

BESIEGING PORT ARTHUR.

London, May 17.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Morning Post, cabling under date of May 16, says, that according to a native report from Port Arthur, the Japanese are vigorously besieging the fortress night and day by land and sea, that sixty Japanese warships and transports have been sighted in Blackney bay and that heavy firing has been heard in Kin Chau bay.

DIETZ HOLDS THE FORT

While the Sheriff Shows the White Feather.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 17.—Advices received here say that Sawyer county is almost in a state of anarchy, there being no leader to carry out the court's injunction and arrest John Dietz, who is holding up the drive of the Chippewa Lumber and Boom company at Thronapple river. The posses organized last week have been disbanded, as Sheriff Peterson has shown no disposition to head them.

Since the opening of hostilities between the authorities and Dietz, the sheriff has kept himself at Hayward, and is said to have stated that he does not intend to be a target for the outlaw's bullets. Under such conditions there is no hope of capturing Dietz for some time.

Sheriff Peterson was asked to request state aid, and Governor La Follette may be asked to send companies of the state militia. Sawyer county has plenty of arms and ammunition, but no organized force of men to use them.

On Saturday Dietz left his fortifications at Thornapple dam and went to Philips, a distance of twenty-five miles, for supplies of food and ammunition. He returned Sunday and is now able to withstand a siege of several weeks. No attempt was made to capture him on the way or at Phillips.

JAP HURLS

Big Irishman From Third Floor of Building.

New York, May 17.—Tuoro Noro, a Japanese, 22 years old, when he heard a crash against his door on the third floor of 63 Cherry street, thought some one was trying to break in, so he ran to a door and peered into the dark hallway. There he beheld a grizzly bearded man whom he mistook for a Russian.

There was a fight in progress. It lasted only long enough for Noro to seize the stranger, lift him over the well hole inside the stairway and let go. The supposed Russian dropped to the first floor, where he lay until the arrival of a surgeon, who took the man to a hospital suffering from numerous contusions. A policeman took the Japanese to the station, and he was locked up on a charge of assault.

The injured man proved to be James Donovan, an Irishman. He will recover.

THIEF RIVER FALLS

Would Take a Land Office From Crookston.

Thief River Falls, Minn., May 17.—The Commercial club held a mass meeting for the purpose of discussing matters relating to the sale of the Red Lake reservation lands, which will take place here on June 20. It was decided to make an organized effort at this time for the permanent removal of the land office from Crookston to Thief River Falls.

The club will point out to the commissioner of the general land office, who will be present at the sale, the fact that there is no homestead land west of the Soo line and that with the construction of this new railroad Crookston ceases to be the most convenient point for settlers from this district to make their entries; also that by moving the land office to Thief River Falls the homesteader will save much time and expense in the transaction of his business.

The peresent time is considered favorable for such a movement by reason of the fact that Crookston is involved in a controversy with Congressman Steenerson and both Minnesota senators over the location of the present sale.

Daniel Shaw, P. W. Mabey and W. C. Smiley were appointed a committee to prepare a statement of the conditions and set forth the arguments for the removal of the land office, and an appropriation was made for printing and disseminating literature bearing on the matter.

HULL RENOMINATED.

Des Moines, May 17.—Congressman John A. T. Hull was renominated for the ninth time by the Republicans of the Seventh district this afternoon.

POSITIVE DENIAL

By Eddy of Forming Combine With the Collins Leaders.

Says Dunn Is In Lead Outside of Twin Cities.

St. Paul, May 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank M. Eddy, of Glenwood, in a dispatch from Sauk Center, brands as pure fiction the story that he and James A. Martin had talked of a plan whereby the Collins men should throw their strength to Mr. Eddy.

"The report is an absolute fake as far as I am concerned," says Mr. Eddy. "The story is made entirely out of whole cloth and you cannot make my denial any too strong for me. In no talk with Mr. Martin or any of the Collins men has any suggestion of this nature been made to me. I see no reason why any such combination should be made and I would not be a party to it, were there a movement of this kind on foot. Since I entered the gubernatorial contest I have played my own hand and I intend to do so until the finish."

Judge Collins said last night regarding the report:

"The story is too ridiculous and too absurd for me or any other self-respecting man to recognize. I am simply getting tired of denying such reports in which there is not even the semblance of truth. I am in the gubernatorial contest to stay, and never have I been more confident of victory than at the present time."

Well-informed politicians in the Twin Cities believe that there is no truth in the report further than that some Republicans throughout the state have come out for Eddy as a result of the scramble between Judge Collins and Mr. Dunn. It is reported, for instance, that C. C. Eastman, of Wadena, who has been supporting Judge Collins, has approached some of the Dunn men with a proposal to quit the fight between Dunn and Collins and to support Eddy. T. T. Ofsthun, of Glenwood, who has been a Collins man, has come out for Eddy as a result of the feud between Dunn and Collins. There are several similar instances, but no well-informed politician in St. Paul believes that Judge Collins has ever harbored the idea of stepping out of the race and supporting Eddy. Judge Collins, having resigned practically a life term on the supreme bench, has too much at stake to quit the fight before it is half over.

Frank Eddy recently made a statement to a prominent Minneapolis politician which gives a good idea of the Glenwood candidate's view of the gubernatorial situation outside of the Twin Cities. He said, among other things, according to the Minneapolis politician:

"Robert C. Dunn is far in the lead in the country districts outside of the Twin Cities. Even should Judge Collins carry Hennepin county he will not get enough delegates to win the fight. Bob Dunn, on the other hand, will not have a majority of the delegates unless he carries Hennepin county. Therefore, should the St. Cloud candidate get Hennepin county, I shall have as good a show as either of the other candidates."

• • •

As the Republican campaign advances, there are incerasing indications of a vigorous contest for the nomination of four justices of the supreme court. Besides the present justices, whose terms expire this year, Justices Lovely, Brown, Lewis and Douglas, there are practically three candidates in the field at present. They are Judge E. A. Jaggard, of the Ramsey county district bench, Judge David Simpson, of the Hennepin county bench, and Judge D. B. Searle, of St. Cloud.

Although the supporters of Robert C. Dunn, of Princeton, say they are taking no part in any contest other than the governorship, it is known that they favor the candidacy of Judge Searle, of St. Cloud, knowing that the success of the St. Cloud judge will weaken the candidacy of Judge Collins, who comes from the same town. Judge Jaggard, of St. Paul, also is a strong Dunn supporter, and Judge Simpson, of Minneapolis, is not staying awake nights in the interest of Judge Collins, since the Collins men turned him down for Douglas when the appointment of a justice in place of Judge Collins was under consideration.

CONTINUES STRONG

Wheat Advances Again With Strength Coming From Chicago.

Heavy Advance In May Price There—Flax Is Dull.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 17.—Wheat sentiment continued bullish today and the market had a sharp advance with Chicago again leading in the rise. The congested condition of Chicago stocks continues to be of much concern and has caused a rise in the May option price in that market of 4¾c from the closing price of Saturday. Foreign markets were all stronger. Liverpool closing ⅜c higher, Paris ¼@½c higher, and Berlin and Buda Pest 1¼c higher. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 3,37,000 bus., in the world's visible supply of wheat, a decrease of 4,237,000 bus., east of the Rockies and an increase of 466,000 in Europe and afloat.

In Duluth the July price gained ⅞c, in Chicago the same, in Minneapolis 1¼c and in New York 1¾c. Duluth September was ⅜c higher and Minneapolis ⅝c.

Car receipts at Duluth were 10 against 32 a year ago and at Minneapolis 41 against 77 a year ago, making a total for the Northwest of 51 against 109 a year ago. Chicago received 11 against 49 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 155,501 bus., last year 235,380 bus. Shipments 284,391 bus., last year 284,731 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 119,099 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d higher. In the Chicago market July corn closed ½c lower. July oats closed ½c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 287,600 bus., last year 354,610 bus. Shipments 645,000 bus., last year 425,670 bus. Clearances were 92,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 1,422,000 bus., in the world's visible supply of corn.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was quiet and the price strong. July opened ⅛c higher at 91⅛c, sold at 91⅝c at 9:46, at 91¼c at 10:10, and bulged to 91⅝c at 11:15. Its strength continued for some time longer and at 12:10 it sold at 92⅜-⅝c. It reacted then to 92c at 1 o'clock and closed at 92⅛c. This was an advance for the day of ⅞c. The May option advanced 1¼c closing at 92⅝c. September was ¾c stronger, closing at 81⅝c.

Cash sales were very slow. From May price to 3c over was paid for No. 1 northern.

Flax was very dull. May and July closed without change. September ¼c lower and October ¼c higher.

Following are the closing prices:

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Sentiment In the Wheat Pit Again Bullish.

Chicago, May 17.—On account of the small amount of contract grain, sentiment in the wheat pit today was bullish. Small local receipts—only 11 cars—further accentuated the strength. Shorts were the principal buyers and the selling was from scattered sources. July opened 1¼c to 1½c up at 85⅞c to 86¼c, and held steady within the opening range. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 262 cars, against 127 cars last week and 158 cars a year ago.

The market became strong as the session advanced, one of the predominating influences being small receipts estimated for tomorrow. Strength in outside markets also helped the price here. July advanced to 87¾c, but reacted on profit-taking. Final figures being up ⅞c at 86¾c.

Strength in wheat and a decrease of 500,000 bus in contract stocks caused firmness in corn. July opened unchanged to ⅛@¼c up at 48c to 48⅜@48½c. On realizing sales due to excellent weather, the price settled back to 47¾c. Local receipts were 71 cars, with 1 of contract grade.

Liquidation was quite general during the latter part of the day, the market becoming weak. July closed with a loss of ½c at 47½c.

In spite of firmness of other grains, a little easier tone was manifested in oats. Favorable weather for the growth of the new crop was the depressing influence. July opened unchanged to ⅛c lower at 38½c to 38⅝c and sold off to 38¾c. Local receipts were 124 cars.

Provisions were firm under the influence of higher prices at the yards. There was some covering by packers. Offerings were rather light. July pork opened 5c higher at $11.32½ and advanced to $11.37½. Lard was up 2½c at $6.47½. Ribs were unchanged at $6.55.

Close: Wheat—May, 93⅝c; July, 86¼c; old, 87⅝@88c; September, 80½c; old, 81½c. Corn—May, 46¾c; July, 47½c; September, 47c; December, 42½c. Oats—May, 41¾c; July, 38¾c; September, 30¾c. Pork—May, $11.25; July, $11.37½; September, $11.55. Lard—May, $6.35; July, $6.47½; September, $6.62½. Short ribs—May, $6.32½; January, $6.72½. Ribs—May, $6.35; July, $6.47½; September, $6.62½. Rye—May, 75c; July, 66c; September, 62c; August, 65c. Flax—Cash, Northwestern, $1.08; Southwestern, 99¾c; May, $1.06; July, $1.06; September, $1.04½. Timothy—May, $3.00; September, $3.20@3.30. Clover—May, $10.75. Barley—Cash, 39@57c. Cash wheat—No. 2 red, $1.06@1.08; No. 3 red, $1.05@1.06; No. 1 hard, 92@96c; No. 3 hard, 88@93c; No. 1 northern, 90@98c; No. 2 northern, 92@97c; No. 3 spring, 87@96c. Oats—No. 2, 47c; No. 3, 38@39c. Corn—No. 2, 49@50c; No. 3, 48@49½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: "Whenever one buys wheat now it is necessary to pay a high price," says John Washburn, of the Washburn-Crosby Milling and Elevator company. "It does not make any difference in which direction you turn for your wheat, you have to pay a big price to get it. We have big stocks at Minneapolis, more than we had last year, but we have most of the wheat visible up there. Stocks are small. I am not as bearish on wheat as some of my neighbors up in the Northwest."

Henry L. Little wired from Minneapolis: "There is no better demand for flour up this way. The country receipts of wheat are increasing a bit. Receipts in here ought to be a trifle heavier shortly. Mills are running lighter this week than last and will run still lighter this week. Of course, they are earning all the time in this country, but stocks east of us are still very heavy. I suppose there are at least 250,000 bbls of flour at Western lake ports to go east as soon as boats run. There is no chance of business abroad unless the markets come nearer together."

"At the expense of exciting some criticism," says George C. Irvin, of Buffalo, "I predict that before June, 1905, America will be importing wheat, and American millers will be howling for remission of the Canadian duty."

• • •

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—Sentiment is still bullish on the small contract stocks. Other conditions and influences are not much talked of at the moment. Liverpool was quiet and a shae higher. Broomhall's report of crop conditions in Europe are generally favorable except as to parts of Russia. The weekly government weather bulletin says an improved condition is reported east of the Rockies, with the exception of southern Ohio Valley where it is very poor. The local short interest has been much reduced the past two days. A good scalping market is likely.

Corn—It was dull and dragging on the small volume of business. Some complaints are coming from Kansas of too much rain, low temperatures, etc. The cash situation is dull by reason of the strike. Think the prevailing local sentiment is bearish, but otherwise there is not much pressure on the market.

Oats—There is still some unliquidated short interest in the May and that option and the cash prices are well maintained. Local traders are rather bearish on the whole. The market is not very active one, however, and the volume of outside business is small.

Provisions—Receipts are a little below last year and the weight is less. The distributive demand is good especially for meats and shipments are daily in excess of year ago. There is not much speculative snap, however, to the market and the best that can be said of it is that the selling is not so great and there is perhaps some improvement in the class of buying.

• • •

Coe Commission Co.: Wheat — The shorts in the Minneapolis market who held onto their lines yesterday were treated to the same dose here Tuesday that the shorts had to swallow in Chicago yesterday, when they tried to buy wheat this morning, they found the market bare of offerings and the result was a very sharp up-turn of 2 cents a bushel in the July the first 2 hours of the session before there was any halt in the upward movement. At this writing, the market is holding steady around 86 cents, being only ¼ cent below the high point. Chicago May is strong feature in that market again today, which would indicate that there was more truth than idiom in the report of practical exhaustion of the contract article in that market, and unless all signs fail the July shorts will be in even a worse predicament than the May shorts are. Any material advance in the July is bound to carry the Sept. with it. The latter, being the less liable to manipulation, will be the safer purchase of the two. We do not think you need to be afraid of Sept. wheat around 80 cents. Do not see how it can sell much under that unless this country will raise a bumper crop and that is out of the question from present indications.

Corn and Oats—Prospects of large acreage in both corn and oats seem to discount all other considerations, and both are a little easier despite the strong wheat market. Believe wheat offers much better opportunity for the speculator than either corn or oats.

Provisions—Are strong on small receipts of hogs and a firmer market at the yards. There was a good demand for the product all morning, from commission houses and packers.

• • •

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat—Wheat was a very strong market, much stronger, indeed, than the trade anticipated after yesterday's rapid advance. There was considerable profit-taking on the opening bulge, which only carried prices back to the previous close. The trade was larger, but still mostly professional. The long wheat disappeared and it is little difficulty to say who took it. Northwestern markets, especially Minneapolis, which lagged yesterday, were relatively stronger during the first two hours. A lot of No. 2 red sold here at a fancy price, and the cash news was generally strong. Flour advices had a better tone. Receipts everywhere were light. Certificates for 75,000 bus of No. 1 northern were canceled yesterday. Foreign markets were uniformly high. On the other hand, there were unfavorable features on the weather map. The advance has been pretty rapid, and while we hardly think conditions are right for a big advance, we favor purchases on the sharp breaks, but advise caution about going long wheat after such a big advance. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 5 cars.

Corn—Yesterday's closing prices were barely maintained, and after the market was rescued from an early break by the continued strength in wheat and the covering of several short lines put out yesterday. Late in the session the market again turned weak. Our opinion is unchanged. We think corn a sale. Estimated receipts tomorrow, 35 cars.

Oats—Little interest was manifested in the oat market. The tone was weak and prices dragged, excepting in the May which held relatively firm. Illinois crop advices were good. The sample market was steady at yesterday's figures on light offerings. Contract stocks decreased 47,000 bus, making 1,500,000 bus decrease in three weeks; 86,000 bus of standard were loaded from store. The facts are sufficient to account for the relative strength in the market.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to B. E. Baker: Market views are usually conflicting, some good judges of speculation who have been pessimistic for a long time being of the opinion that as prices have sagged pretty steadily since the first of the month, and as the short interest is large, a sharp rally is due. The consensus of opinion of intelligent opinion, however, is bearish for the pull, and even the foreign observers concede that for the present, at least, it is idle to look for anything more than temporary upturns. The calling in of loans by the banks, though believed to be indicative of higher rates for money, occasions no alarm. The reason why this change is viewed with comparative indifference is that everyone is well aware that in the event of a moderate further advance in call money, Russell Sage and the trust companies will be heavy lenders. Rather than permit the money to be idle in the banks, they will draw it out and lend it, which would speedily pull bank loans down $40,000,000 or $50,000,000. Such, at least, is the calculation of competent authorities. Referring to the day's price movements, unbiased critics agree that the strength of Steel and the weakness of Sugar and Brooklyn Rapid Transit were equally surprising. It has been and still is confidently believed by well-informed people that increased depression will characterize Steel preferred the present week. The short interest in this stock si large, and to that fact and manipulation is ascribed its better tone. There is a theory that when bears stop buying the sharp will make a lower record.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: Not much change in prices. The general market shows a little rally early on covering of shorts and on traders playing for a reaction after several days' decline. The covering of Steel is said to have been large. Very little improvement, however, maintained at the close. There is no improvement in outside investment buying. Stocks are not high and may not go off much, but we see nothing of encouragement in the way of a bull market at present.

• • •

Dick to B. E. Baker: It is estimated that the short interest in Steel preferred has been reduced by 25,000 to 30,000 shares during the past two or three days.

• • •

Evans to Paine, Webber & Co.: Liquidation was again in evidence from the opening to the close yesterday. In the last hour the room element who are all bearish, covered up on the theory that a rally was due and the market advanced fractionally on their purchases. There was no snap in the trading and the close was heavy. After the steady decline we have had for several days past, prices should rally. Such a rally may come at any time, but I think prices eventually are going lower and stocks should be sold on all strong spots.

• • •

Coe Commission Co.: The stock market opened firm fractionally over yesterday's closing. While the trading this morning has not been very active the market has ruled strong. As soon as the shorts stopped pounding the market, prices rallied very easy. Any covering movement on part of shorts would give us a sharp advance all along the line especially in the standard shares. In view of the large gold exports and the continued bear effort the past week or two the market is doing remarkably well. This is due to the fact that stocks are held in strong hands and therefore entire absence of liquidation is very noticeable. Stocks which have had the most break should be bought for a point or two. Sales to noon 177,600 shares.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market made a fairly good recovery from low prices of yesterday. There was not much snap to the buying. The greater part of the rallying force seems to come from the fact that the market is oversold, while the selling of long stocks is at all times of a very limited volume. Export continues very satisfactory, the prospect now being that 15,000 tons will go out this month. As the situation now stands we would rather buy coppers than railroads.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 17.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 5 points. This was a very poor response to higher cables and following the rise the market showed weakness under liquidation and local bear pressure with the old crop months selling down to a net loss of 9@11 points while the new crop rounded steady by expectations of a bullish weekly report at midday was net 4 points lower. Liverpool broke after the local opening, and New Orleans also showed weakness. Spot houses seemed to be selling here and trading as a whole was confined chiefly to the local contingent.

Spot closed dull, 15 points decline. Middlings, uplands, $15.65; ditto gulf, $13.90. Sales none. Futures closed steady. May, $13.19; June, $13.29; July, $13.40; August, $13; September, $11.70; October, $11.26; November, $11.16; December, $11.15; January, $11.16.

LIOA YANG

Will Be on First Line of Russian Defense.

Antung, May 10, (via Seoul, May 16.)—The concentration of the Russian forces at Liao Yang will make that place the first line of defense and the first great battle will probably be fought there. No important aggressive action by this army is expected in the near future. Since the Russian fleet at Port Arthur has been bottled up, the Japanese find it possible to safely use this port as a base and to abandon most of the land transportation through Korea, using the regular army transport equipment for conveying munitions from Antung to the front. The Chinese do not object to Japanese occupation, because the newcomers give employment to thousands at good wages and furnish a market for provisions at inflated prices. Many Japanese shopkeepers are already established here. The river has not yet been opened to foreign commerce.

The correspondents who remain at headquarters visited the Russians wounded, who expressed satisfaction at their treatment. Their only complaint concerning provisions was that they received no bread, the Japanese army not being provided wnth stores of that kind.

"STAND PATTERS"

Will Control the Iowa Republican Convention.

Das Moines, May 17.—With Secretary L. M. Shaw, of the president's cabinet and Senators Allison and Dolliver and every Iowa member of the lower house in congress in the city to attend the state Republican convention, which meets tomorrow, the indications point to one of the largest attended affairs of its kind in the history of the state. The convention has 1320 delegates. It will convene at 11 o'clock in the auditorium, with Hon. John N. Irwin, of Keokuk, as temporary chairman. Of the thirteen hundred delegates over one thousand are conceded to be with the "stand patters," and the only discussion before the delegates at the present time is the wording of the resolution upon the tariff question. It is conceded that the plank will be worded just as the "stand patters" desire. The district caucuses will be held at 9 o'clock. Delegates to the national convention will be chosen by the second, fourth, fifth, sixth, ninth, tenth and eleventh districts. The first, third and eighth have already chosen their delegates, and this afternoon the seventh will pick out two men to represent the district at Chicago.

DULLNESS RULED

In the Stock Market But Closing Was Quite Firm.

When the Shorts Ceased Pounding, Prices Rallied Easily.

New York, May 17.—The opening trading in the stock market today was light and the majority of prominent stocks were higher, but there were a number of exceptions among minor stocks. Consolidated Gas rose 1½, Erie, 1st prefcrred, ⅞, and U. S. Steel preferred ½. Other wise the changes were small fractions.

Speculation lacked a decisive tone during the first hour. Leading stocks alternately advanced and receded slightly. U. S. Steel preferred crossed 53 but lost the rise on heavy sales. Consolidated Gas reacted a point, and over night declines of as much were made by Colorado & Southern first preferred, and Denver & Rio Grande. Republic Steel preferred gained 1. Amalgamated Copper, Metropolitan Street railway, Brooklyn Transit, St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, Atchison and Pennsylvania were sold freely. A rise of a point in Brooklyn Transit steadied the market.

Prices held pretty firmly at the rally, but the market became very dull at slightly above last nights level. Consolidated Gas rose 2⅜. Bonds were steady at noon.

What few stocks were dealt in between 12 and 1 o'clock brought higher prices, especially Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and People's Gas, which ruled from ⅞ to 1 over yesterday.

Profit-taking by the room operators tuned the market downward, but the reactions were scarcely noticeable in the more active stocks. Rubber preferred dropped 3⅝, despite its favorable earnings reported and the common. Ice preferred and Hocking Valley yielded 1. Consolidated Gas fell down over a point from its best.

The heavy tone of the market prompted a renewal of liquidation in the Eries, which forced them a fraction under yesterday's close. United States Steel preferred, also reacted to below last night, Colorado Fuel lost 1½, Chicago Terminal preferred 1¾c, Long Island 3 and St. Joe & Grand Island first preferred 5. Brooklyn Transit and Consolidated Gas rallied to the best and steadied the market. The closing was quite firm and very dull.

ATTEMPT TO ROB U. S. MAIL

Chicago, May 17.—Three highwaymen attempted to rob a United States registered mail wagon early today near the Chicago and Northwestern station. The accidental discahrge of a revolver frustrated their plans and they escaped after a street duel with the police. It was this wagon that Marx, Van Dine and Neidermeier, the car barn bandits, planned to rob during their brief career as bandits. Their plans miscarried, however. The police believe today's highwaymen were inspired to attempt the daring crimes by the story of the men hanged on April 22.

The contents of the wagon were valued at several thousand dollars. When the driver of the wagon, E. J. Graff, was driving past an alley, three men ran into the street in front of his team. Two of the men tried to stop the horses by grabbing the bridles and the third undertook to climb on the seat. The one who was making the effort to get on the seat fired a shot, which was apparently accidental and the horses jumped. Graff plied the whip at the same time, and the team lunged ahead. Shots were fired after the wagon, but the driver would not stop.

Two policemen saw one of the men and fired at him. The highwaymen returned the fire and ran, making good their escape. The other men slipped away during the revolver fight.

NAGELSCHMIDT SENTENCED.

New York, May 17.—Betram Nagelschmidt, formerly a member of numerous German societies and for a dozen years cashier of a large furniture company has pleaded guilty to embezzling $13,000 and received a sentence of not less than two years in prison. Nagelschmidt, who was decoyed back from Canada claimed to have used his employers' money while taking part in the ceremonies attending Prince Henry's visit.

MARCHAND LEAVES ARMY.

Paris, May 17.—Col. Marchand's career in the French army closed at noon today when his period of arrest for publicly criticising his superiors expired and the official acceptance of his resignation was handed to him. In an interview he said he would give out a statement "answering the falsehoods of the military authorities."

ATTORNEYS TO MEET

Will Discuss Location of New Court House Thursday Evening.

Lawyers Are Generally Opposed to the Present Site.

The first public meeting with a view of getting an expression of the sentiment of the public relative to the location of the new court house for St. Louis county will be held in the Duluth Commercial club rooms Thursday evening. The attorneys of the city have taken the initiative in the matter and called a meeting of members of the bar for the express purpose of getting a fair expression of public sentiment.

It is the attorneys who are, perhaps, most affected by the location of the court house, so far as the transaction of business is concerned, and it is expected that the meeting will be very largely attended by the local legal talent.

It is intended to have a discussion of the county court house site, from all points of view. Those will be heard who desire the old site as well as those who desire a court house site nearer the business center and one that can be readily reached within a few minutes' walk rather than by a ten-minute street car ride.

So far as inquiry has been made among the local attorneys, the general sentiment is very strongly in favor of a site nearer the office district of the city rather than for the old site. There are some who believe that the present site is good enough for all purposes and these will have ample opportunity of explaining the advantages, while those who desire the site nearer the business section will have every opportunity of convincing their brethren on the other side why it is more convenient to have a court house nearer their offices.

The attorneys from outside the city are practically a unit in declaring for a court house site nearer the Union depot. They declare that it is an imposition on them to pay railroad fare to the county seat and then have to pay a street car fare to and from the court house with the prospect, many times, of losing their train on the return trip to the ranges.

As an instance of the inconvenience that the Duluth attorneys claim to be put to because of the present site of the courthouse, one of them calls attention to the situation yesterday when a jury was being drawn in the White murder trial in the afternoon. This jury was not completed until late when another jury was drawn in Judge Dibell's room.

Attorneys who had cases on call for yesterday were compelled to wait about the courthouse all the afternoon, doing nothing, but just staying there to see if the juries would be completed in two rooms so their cases could be reached in a third room.

If the courthouse was nearer the office district of the city, this attorney claims, they could have remained in their offices and transacted the business that was piling up, when a 'phone call would have enabled them to reach the courthouse in a walk of two or three minutes.

As it is, the attorney claimed, that to depend on reaching the courthouse after a telephone call, is a risky matter because of the delay in getting up the hill by street car. If the car is on time it takes ten miutes from Sueprior street and there are many occasions when the cars are delayed and great annoyance is caused.

The district court judges are decidedly opposed to holding cases for 20 minutes to half an hour for an attorney to get up to the courthouse from the city and past experiences has demenstrated that they do not make a practice of doing so.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS

Several notable figures in the railroad world will be here today and tomorrow. Marvin Hughitt, president of the Northwestern lines, is expected in this evening on a special train on his regular inspection. It will be his first visit for a year.

He will be accompanied by J. T. Clark, second vice president, and C. W. Johnson, chief engineer of the lines, and their trip is in the nature of a regular inspection of the company's property. They left Chicago and went to Ashland, over their own line, and will probably come over from Ashland over the Northern Pacific to Superior, where they will take the Omaha's own tracks to Duluth.

On inspection trips the operating officials usually look at the track, the bridges and the buildings of the company to see what condition they are in, while the traffic officials confine their observations largely to the condition of business and the manner of conducting it.

Tomorrow W. C. Rowley, of Detroit, general freight agent of the Michigan Central, and W. C. Lewis, of Bay City, assistant general freight agent of the same company, will be here to visit with the commercial agent, S. Jerome Bigelow. They are making their annual visit to their outside agencies and studying business conditions with a view to improving anything that may be found to make better. They will probably go from here to the Twin Cities.

MANY REASONS

Why Rea Bros.' Cascarin Is Now the Most Popular Laxative.

There are thousands of people in all parts of the country who suffer from diseases that the local practitioners are unable to cure. If they knew of a prescription that they could get filled for a few dollars, they would gladly do it. Doctors advertise your favorite prescription, say just what you know it will do and what it will cure. This was the way that the newly celebrated treatment, Cascarin, jumped from a sale of a few bottles to One Hundred Thousand in eight months, and it has cured thousands of people.

Cascarin is a formulated prescription now being used by the most noted specialists throughout this and foreign countries. It is one of the most valuable and truly scientific remedies of this advanced age. In diseases of the stomach, intestinal indigestion, constipation, appendicitis, diseases of the liver, and diseases of the kidneys, Cascarin has proven of inestimable value.

Mrs. Derrig's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Derrig, of 229 North Fifty-first avenue west, who died at St. Luke's hospital Thursday last, at 4:55 o'clock, after an operation for strangulated hernia, was held from the St. James Catholic church, in West Duluth, yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, the service being read by Rev. John Fehely.

The funeral was conducted under the auspices of St. Elizabeth's court, No. 229, C. O. F., of which organization the deceased was a member. The attendance was very large, many following the remains to Calvary cemetery, where interment took place.

Mrs. Derrig left a husband, Michael Derrig, a daughter, Miss Mary Derrig, and two sons, Peter P. and Anthony A. Derrig, all residents of this city.

CAUSED HIM TO LOOK UP

The trial of L. A. Van Praagh was continued in the municipal court this afternoon before Judge Windom.

B. N. Wheeler was placed upon the stand by the prosecution and testified that he was reading in his library Sunday afternoon and the noise from the game was sufficient to cause him to look up from his book and wonder what was the matter.

Under cross-examination he testified that he was opposed to Sunday baseball.

The prosecution rested its case shortly before 3 o'clock and Mr. Van Praagh was placed upon the stand in his own defense. He stated that he and A. W. Kuehnow, the treasurer of the club had gone among the spectators and requested that they refrain from any unseemly noise or disturbance. He also stated that no peanuts, popcorn or drinks of any kind had been sold on the ground.

It is possible that the case will go to the jury late this afternoon, unless it is delayed by the argument of a motion.

The Sale of Beautiful Man Tailored Suits For Women Continues.

The story has been told—of why, and how we're cleaning up our first stock of Tailored Suits. The selling yesterday and today shows plainly that thrifty women quickly appreciate values, for it took more than a double force of salespeople to wait on the trade—the fact that our store has only been opened a short while assures women of getting absolutely new, this season's styles! The fabrics, too, are as new as they are beautiful—the colors include a very wide range in plain shades as well as fancy mixtures.

Suit Note.

Many of the hundred Suits placed on sale at Half Price have been sold. There still remains, however, a goodly choice for those who can get here tomorrow.

And we shall add a few more from our regular lines to make the stock more complete in colors and sizes!

New Styles in Covert Coats.

Late arrivals are now here direct from best Eastern makers.

BLEEDING AT NOSE

Brings Joseph A. Mannheim Very Near to Death's Door.

Joseph A. Mannheim, ex-alderman from the Third ward, and a Democratic candidate for mayor at the last election, is in a very critical condition as the result of excessive and continual bleeding at the nose.

Mr. Mannheim has been ill for several cold and was confined to his home for coud and was confined to his home for over a month. Sunday he recovered somewhat and left the house for the first time. He was suddenly stricken with a severe hemmorrhage of the nose and medical aid was hastily summoned. It was some time before the flow of blood could be stopped. The hemmorrhage returned twice during the afternoon and evening and the loss of blood left him in a very weak condition.

Yesterday Mr. Mannheim attempted to return to his office in the Universal bakery, but he had scarcely reached there before he was forced to return to his home with another severe hemmorhage. The doctors had even greater difficulty in stopping the flow of blood on this occasion.

Last evening the blood commenced to flow once more and continued for several hours, leaving him in a very weak condition. A fair night's rest left him somewhat recuperated, but the hemmorrhage started again this morning and life had almost left him before the doctors in attendance could stop the flow of blood.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon he was reported to be in a very weak and critical condition, although the flow of blood had been stopped. Should another severe hemorrhage attack him it might prove to be fatal.

Mr. Mannheim is lying at his home, 19 West Fourth street, and is being attended by Drs. Linneman and Coillus.

He has been very prominent in local politics, having served as county auditor and alderman, in addition to being the president of the Hearst and Bryan and Towne Democratic clubs. Since retiring from his position as alderman he has acted as manager of the Universal bakery in partnership with J. J. Haley. He is one of the oldest residents of Duluth, and his numerous friends in the city are anxiously awaiting for some favorable news from his bedside.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon Mr. Mannheim was somewhat improved.

TRY NEW SHELL.

Oarsmen Delighted With the New Craft.

Last night the Duluth Boat club got out and tried the new shell and found it in every respect what a first-class boat might be expected to be. The fact that it is stiffer and firmer than older craft is a point in its favor, and the way it is said to carry the eight through the water is a caution.

Every evening the eight will take out the new boat for a practice row, and beginning about Thursday night the men will sleep at the boat house so as to get up early and get the benefit of a morning trial. Later a second eight will be put in the old shell to go out and act as a sort of pacemaker for the racing crew.

DEADLOCK UNBROKEN

Springfield, Ill., May 17.—Conferences to break the deadlock in the Republican state convention seeming fruitless, the delegates today faced a prospect of further stubborn balloting. J. H. V. Neville, of Governor Yates' campaign committee, said that no agreement between Yates and any of the candidates had been reached, but that if the balloting failed to produce results before 4 o'clock this afternoon, further efforts would be made to get the candidates together.

The thirty-fourth ballot (official) resulted: Yates, 431; Lowden, 466½; Deneen, 389½; Hamlin, 111; Warner, 32; Sherman, 50; Pierce, 22.

The first change in the roll call on the thirty-fifth ballot was in the first commissioners district, which abandoned its fractional divlison and gave Yates a vote. Kane county now changed back from Lowden to Yates with twenty-five of its votes, amid great cheering among the Yates' men. Will county returned to Yates with its twenty-five votes. The result was: Yates, 483; Lowden, 405½; Deneen, 391½; Hamlin, 109; Warner, 35; Sherman, 49; Pierce, 23.

The Half-Price Sale at the Silberstein & Bondy Establishment.

Theatening weather failed to keep away an anxious throng of eager women from the suit sale this morning. From the time of store opening the spacious suit department of the big concern was thronged with women willing and anxious to avail themselves of the heavy cut in price. Two hundred and fifty of the finest suit creations and 75 stylish raincoats were placed on sale at exactly half-price. Following their usual custom about this time of the year the firm commence preparations for showing summer lines. No half way measures are taken when the proper time arrives. Half-price is the lever which quickly produces the desired effect. The arrival of many heavy shipments of summer lines requires the space occupied by a large part of the suit section. The sale continues tomorrow.

METHODISTS DEBATE WARMLY

Los Angeles, May 17.—The Methodist general conference today took up the report of the judiciary committee on the question of districting the bishops and a heated debate ensued. Dr. Buckley and Dr. Neeley engaged in a verbal encounter, in which Dr. Buckley charged Dr. Neeley with misrepresenting the statements of Bishop Harris on the general superintendency of bishops.

The committee on state of church, having in charge the consideration of the proposed change of the rules in regard to dancing, card playing and theaters, has decided by a vote of 55 to 43 against recommending any change.

At the afternoon session the episcopacy committee recommended the election of eight new bishops. Th recommendation was adopted and the election will be held tomorrow morning.

St. Paul, May 17.—A special to the Dispatch, from Helena, Mont., says: The safe in the office of the Billings Brewing company was dynamited today and papers money and diamonds valued at $7,500 were taken. Fred Stephens, the watchman was shot and seriously wounded by the burglars who escaped.

SO YOU MAY KNOW

The merchant must have "elbow-room" in his newspaper advertising. Economy of space is not economy at all—it is the other thing.

It is better to know a few things about advertising that are true than a great many things that are not true. Here is one thing that is true and worth remembering: Store advertising should be as full of prices as a society news column is full of names.

The merchant whose store is interesting to himself can make it interesting to others. The merchant whose store bores him will not make his ads. very spirited or alluring.

The value of advertising space and the value of an egg are subject to the same rule. A "doubtful" egg, you know, is dear at any price.

A railroad without a time-table or a regular train schedule would attract comment, but would not make much money. But a merchant who advertises only now and then will attract neither comment nor money.

Every merchant who advertises attracts, gradually, a clientele of readers—many of whom have never yet visited his store. When they do visit his store they feel as though they had known him for a long time.

JAPANESE TROOPS MOVE IN BEHIND GEN. KUROPATKIN'S ARMY TO CUT OFF RETREAT

Two Divisions Have Already Arrived In the Vicinity of Harbin.

Japs Who Landed at Kai Chou Are Expected to Occupy Newchwang.

Gen. Stoessel Writes That He Saw Submarine Sink Petropavlovsk.

Rome, May 18.—According to the telegram received here from Tokio, two Japanese divisions have arrived near Mukden with the object of cutting General Kuropatkin's line of retreat northward.

Tien Tsin, May 18.—Lloyd's Agent at Newchwang has telegraphed under Tuesday's date as follows:

"The Japanese division which landed at Kai Chou, May 16, under heavy firing of the Japanese men of war is marching toward Newchwang. Evacuation by the Russians has been nearly completed. The Japanese are expected to arrive shortly. All is quiet at Newchwang and shipping shows favorable progress."

Che Foo, May 18.—As a result of the engagement which the Japanese had on Monday with the Russian garrison at Kai Chou, on the west coast of the Liao Tung peninsula the Russians were driven out of Kai Chou, which is the nearest point to Newchwang with the exception of the Liao river, where there is sufficient water to allow of the landing of troops.

Chinese who recently arrived here from Newchwang, while confirming the above, also say that the Japanese are skirmishing on either side of the railroad north and south of Kin Chou.

Circulars have been posted at Newchwang and in its vicinity, signed by the chief of the Japanese army, advising the Chinese to maintain order and secure stocks of provisions and transport wagons, for which the Japanese will pay full value.

The small Russian guard remaining at Newchwang is ready to leave on the near approach of the enemy.

Quantities of wood and oil have been placed on board the Russian gunboat Sivouch, in Newchwang waters, to be used in destroying her by fire when the last Russian evacuates Newchwang.

JAPS PREPARING

To Make a Land Attack on Port Arthur.

London, May 18.—A dispatch to the Central News from Liao Yang, dated today, says that according to news which reached there today from Port Arthur there have been no further attacks on the beleaguered port since May 13. The Japanese who landed at Pisewo, it is added, appear to be pushing preparations for a land attack which it is expected, will be accompanied by a renewal of the bombardment by the Japanese fleet. The Russians sustained no losses during the Japanese operations having for their object the clearing of Russian mines from Kerr bay.

MET DEATH BRAVELY.

Details of Execution of Two Japanese Officers.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—Details have been received here from Harbin regarding the execution, April 21, of the two Japanese officers, Yukoka and Oki, for attempting to dynamite bridges and destroy telegraph communication on the eastern Chinese railroad.

The prisoners admitted they were part of a detail numbering 100 men whose purpose it was to destroy the railway at various points. When told that they must have been extremely brave people, they replied:

"Not at all, we were only carrying out our duty and the order of the mikado."

Both prisoners were executed April 21, between the new and old towns of Harbin, in the presence of a large crowd. They were shot instead of being hanged, upon order of General Kuropatkin. A strong guard was thrown about the spot to hold back the public at a distance of 400 yards. No photographs were allowed to be taken.

The younger prisoner refused to allow bandaging of his eyes. When told it was necessary according to Russian law, he asked that an exception be made in his favor. The elder Japanese, a staff officer wept and fainted but finally allowed himself to be blindfolded calmly. One of the men was a Catholic and made his final confession to a Russian priest, there being no representative of the Catholic priesthood in Harbin.

IT WAS A SUBMARINE BOAT

That Sunk the Petropavlovsk, Writes Gen. Stoessel.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—The admiralty is now convinced by mail reports received from Port Arthur that Vice Admiral Togo used submarine boats in his operations. A letter from Lieut. Gen. Stoessel says that he was standing on Golden Hill when the Russian battleship Petropavlovsk went down and he saw a submarine boat torpedo the battleship. Lieut. Schreiber claims he distinctly saw the periscope of a submarine boat and could trace the course of the vessel. Officers of the Russian battleship Pobieda testified that a submarine boat discharged a torpedo against their ship and they fired at the submarine boat, hoping to sink it, but failed.

The same letters describe the reverence of the Russians for the overcoat of the late Admiral Makaroff when it was taken out of the water. On its approach they bared their heads, made the sign of the cross and prayed for the repose of the admiral's soul.

It is officialy denied that Viceroy Alexieff has gone to Liao Yang to assume command of 20,000 troops there and that Gen. Kuropatkin has left Miao Yang for Harbin. It is said that Kuropatkin is either at Liao Yang or in its vicinity.

DAILY SKIRMISHES

Are Occurring Along the Liao Tung Peninsula.

Washington, May 18.—The Japanese legation has received the following cablegram from Tokio:

"The commander of the landing forces in the Liao Tung peninsula reports that between the fifth and sixteenth instant there have been daily skirmishes, Japanese detachments successfully driving the enemy back and destroying the telegraph and railway. At Pulantien and vicinity on the sixteenth after serious fighting the Japanese occupied the heights 3½ miles from Kin Chow. The Japanese casualties were 146, including nine officers killed."

JAPS LAND AT HUANG TSIA TUNG.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—The following telegram from Gen. Kuropatkin to the emperor, under date of May 16, has been given out here:

"Towards noon seventeen steamers approached Sinng Yue Cheng and opened fire upon the town, while five vessels approached the shore.

"At 1:30 p. m. the enemy landed at Huang Tsia Tung and commenced a march in the direction of Kai Ping."

GEN. ZASSALITCH RELIEVED.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—It is announced that Lieut. Gen. Zassalitch has been relieved of the command of the Second Siberian army division and that Lieut. Gen. Count Keller, former governor of Ekaterenslav, has been appointed to suceed him.

Since the battle of the Yalu it has been predicted that Gen. Zassalitch would not long retain his command, but there has been no disposition to act hastily. The emperor's advisers could not forget that while Zassalitch did not carry out the plan of operations which had been previously determined upon, he had displayed a stubborn resistance, which showed to the enemy and to the world that the Russians had not lost the courageous spirit of past generations.

What will become of Zassalitch, whether he will remain in the far East or be assigned to a less important region, cannot be learned, but it is emphaticaly stated that there is no intention to disgrace him and that if he returns from the far East it will be on sick leave and at his own request. It is generally believed that he will find it convenient to make such an application.

RUSSIAN GRAVES FOUND.

Seoul, May 18.—The Japanese consul at Ping Yang wires that over thirty graves have been found near Anju. The rereating Cossacks carried fourteen wounded with them. Four of these men died at Kai Chong. They reached Min Yeng on Saturday last, forcing Korean coolies to carry the wounded and grain loot which they had seized at roadside villages.

CLARK, GIBSON AND TOOLE

Chosen as Three of Montana's Delegates to St. Louis.

Great Falls, Mont., May 18.—Senators W. A. Clark and Paris Gibson and Governor J. K. Toole were unanimously chosen as three of Montana's delegates to the national convention at St. Louis last night by the Democratic convention with three more national delegates and six alternates to be elected. The effort of the Hearst followers to secure the endorsement of the convention for the candidacy of the New Yorker for the Democratic nomination for president met with defeat in the committee on resolutions, the platform adopted calling for an uninstructed delegation to St. Louis. The Hearst contingent is said to be a strong one and resolutions of instructions may be proposed on the convention floor.

The convention endorses the Kansas City platform, lauds the national policy of reclaiming the western lands and denounces the withdrawal of desert land entries in sections where it is evident the government cannot promote irrigation systems.

A MESSAGE RECEIVED FROM PORT ARTHUR

Russian Admiralty Receives Official Dispatch From Wittsoeft.

Communication With Besieged City By Means of Chinese Runner.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—The admiralty received today an official dispatch from Rear Admiral Wittsoeft, believed to have been dated from Port Arthur May 14, reporting that there had been no fighting afloat since the telegraph lines were cut. The dispatch established the fact that while the telegraph line is severed, a system of communication by means of Chinese runners had been inaugurated. In order to deliver the Liao Yang dispatches entrusted to him, the runner had to pass through the Japanese lines already thrown across the narrow neck of the peninsula just above Port Arthur. The passage of the runner was dangerous, but the task was light compared to what it will be when the Japanese forces closely invest Port Arthur. Nevertheless, the authorities express confidence that arrangements have been made to insure the frequent transmission of dispatches, which, if captured, are unintelligible to the Japanese, as they are in cipher.

One of the reasons for the desperate effort of the Russians to get to Port Arthur what is officialy called an "ammunition train" has been revealed by information which leaked out today. Gen. Stoessel was exceedingly anxious to be provided with balloons, having little need for more ammunition, great quantities being stored in the fortress. The highest point of the fortress is the Eagle's Nest, from which much of the surrounding country can be seen, but balloons will facilitate observations. A complete Russian balloon equipment for Manchuria had been previously captured by the Japanese fleet. Recognizing the need of providing Gen. Stoessel with all the requisite instruments to defend Port Arthur, Gen. Kuropatkin is believed to have sent balloons on the "ammunition train." The Russian balloons are stationary.

"If the Japanese try to drift balloons over Port Arthur and drop explosives on the fortress," an officer said today, "the world will hear of the first battle in the air."

LOWRY BEHIND TALK OF THIRD CANDIDATE

Papers He Controls Talk Against Both Dunn and Collins.

St. Paul, May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Politicians in St. Paul believe that Thomas Lowry of Minneapolis is behind most of the talk of a "dark horse" candidate for governor. Mr. Lowry, through the papers which he controls, does not hesitate to state that neither Dunn nor Collins is acceptable to the people of the state and that it is time to decide on a third man.

The president of the Twin City Rapid Transit company has not been on the best of terms with Governor Van Sant and his political associates since the governor consented last fall to an increase of more than a million dollars in the assessed valuation of the street car company. Shortly after that event he announced in his papers that the governor was a dead duck, and it was thought for a time that Mr. Lowry would support Judge Collins. It now appears that the street car magnate considers the judge either out of the race or in too close political connection with the Van Sant crowd, and that it is time to decide on Eddy or a new man entirely.

Whoever is behind the "dark horse" movement, it seems to be gaining ground. A Dunn supporter says that he can prove that C. C. Eastman of Wadena, formerly one of Judge Collins' staunch supporters, has made overtures to the Dunn men to quit the gubernatorial fight in Wadena county and decide on Eddy or some third man. It is also reported that John C. Eastman of Thief River Falls and Oscar Hallam, of St. Paul, formerly two sturdy Collins men, are in favor of a new candidate.

The Dunn men say they are standing pat on the Princeton candidate and the Collins' leaders in St. Paul are as emphatic in their statements that they will see the judge through to the finish.

* * *

"This talk about a third man or a dark horse candidate for governor is all bosh," said a Dunn Republican last evening. "I am for Robert C. Dunn first, last and all the time, for his record as a public official commends him to me as the most available man yet mentioned. However, I have no criticisms to make against either Eddy or Collins and should either of them receive the nomination the nominee will receive my hearty support.

"One of these three candidates should be nominated, and I believe that one will be, the dark horse talk notwithstanding. This talk is an old trick of foxy politicians, but it does not meet with the aproval of the people. We hear the same talk in Illinois, where for days different candidates and their friends have been wrestling with a deadlock, but the 'new man' suggestion has not met with favor. Illinois will nominate one of the candidates now being balloted for, and all will enthusiastically support the nominee.

"The contest between Dunn, Collins and Eddy is intense, but not bitter. The friends of each are Republicans and will support the sucessful candidate. Any one of the three men, if nominated will be elected by an overwhelming majority. I believe, of course, that R. C. Dunn will be nominated in June and that he will be elected by the largest majority ever given a Minnesota candidate for governor."

* * *

Robert Jamison, private secretary of Governor Van Saut, says that there is no truth in the report that he plans to get in the congressional race in Hennepin county against Loren Fletcher.

"I have no ambition to go to congress," said Judge Jamison yesterday. "If I had, I should think that this is the most favorable time for a man to come out. I am trying my level best to keep out of politics."

There is a report that Minneapolis politicians not favorable to the candidacy of Loren Fletcher are again trying to induce Frank M. Nye to become a candidate. It is reported that a fund of from $10,000 to $15,000 is being made from contributions from prominent business men to start the campaign.

"I don't know whether there is any movement of this kind on foot or not," said Judge Jamison, "but I have always wanted to see Mr. Nye get into the race."

DR. AMES MAY BE TRIED IN ST. PAUL

St. Paul, May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A third trial of Dr. A. A. Ames, former mayor of Minneapolis, on the charge of "grafting" may take place in St. Paul. It is reported that his attorneys are striving to bring about this coup.

The defense has asked for a speedy retrial, maintaining that as the jury that tried Ames a second time in Minneapolis last week disagreed, the accused is ready to meet the issue again at anytime.

When the time for the next trail is designated counsel for Dr. Ames will ask for a change of venue to the Ramsay county district court.

The case will probably be moved for trial early next week.

There is a possibility, however, that it may go over until the next term of court.

MAN THOUGHT DEAD

Writes For Money to Return Home.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 18.—because he was in need of money, Ferdinand Pifer, who has been thought dead for two years, has made his presence in this world known. Ferdinand Pifer was a farmer who lived in Wheaton, near here, with his brother, Rudolph Pifer. Each owned three forties of land. On Easter Sunday, 1902, while Rudolph was attending church, Ferdinand disapeared. A note was found in his room stating that he would never return, and that it would be useles to look for him. No reason could be assigned for the deed, and it was finaly decided that he had committed suicide. In the letter asking for $50, Ferdinand states that he became tired of farm life, and wanted to see something of the outside world. He is now in Montana, and, like the prodigal son, wants to return to the good old farm.

STEAMER GOES ASHORE.

St. Johns, N. F., May 18.—The Allen line steamer Hibernian, which sailed from Montreal May 14 for London, went ashore last night during a dense fog at Stormy Point. The crew and passengers are safe but it is feared the vessel will become a total wreck.

FOLLOWERS OF LA FOLLETTE IN CONTROL OF WISCONSIN REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

Governor Has 580 Delegates to 485 for the Opposition.

Factional Feeling Is Keyed Up to the Highest Pitch.

The Anti-Third Termers Threaten to Hold Separate Convention.

Madison, Wis., May 18.—Factional feeling between the Republican factions prior to the opening of the Republican state convention at the University gymnasium today was keyed up to the highest pitch. The question, "Will there be a bolt of the anti-third termers?" was asked on every side, and remained unanswered in any definite way. The nearest to an answer was a shake of the head and a shrug of the shoulders in a way significant to convey that there might or might not be a bolt. Such a state of affairs never before existed in Wisconsin. The key to the situation was apparently held by Former Congressman Samuel A. Cook of Neenah, candidate for governor, with over 120 delegates pledged to his support. Without the adherence of Mr. Cook to any plan of withdrawing from or bolting the regular convention, such a plan could hardly avail anything tangible, as the bolters would not have controlled anywhere near a majority of the delegates.

The state central committee, which worked late into the night, settled but two contests, reducing the number of

ILLINOIS REPUBLICANS GROWING RESTLESS

Forty-One Ballots Have Been Taken With No Signs of Nomination.

Springfield, Ill., May 18.—Restlessness was on the increase today among the delegates to the Republican state convention. Many announced an intention of going home, leaving a few of their associates to vote their respective delegations. In the rank and file there was a growing inclination for a recess of thirty days, but so far as known none of the candidates is favorable to such a course. Appearances indicated that the breaking of the deadlock would be long deferred if the event should await an agreement between candidates. All night Governor Yates and his campaign committee remained at work on the upper floor of the Leland hotel, conferring alternately with the Deneen and the Lowden leaders.

It is stated today that while a combination between the governor and one or the other of the Cook county candidates was somewhat nearer than ever before, although nothing had been concluded. Neither Yates, Deneen or Lowden were willing to concede that his chanes were less promising than those of rivals. No one of the candidates seem willing to enter a combination which would eliminate himself.

Chairman Cannon called the convention to order at 11:12, and at once directed the clerk to call the roll for the thirty-ninth ballot. The ballot stood: Yates, 483; Lowden, 396½; Deneen, 442½; Hamlin, 112; Warner, 36; Sherman, 2; Pierce, 30.

The fortieth ballot resulted: Yates, 482; Lowden, 396½; Deneen, 440½; Hamlin, 111; Warner, 40; Sherman, 2; Pierce, 30.

The forty-first ballot follows: Yates, 484; Lowden, 399½; Deneen, 433½; Hamlin, 111; Warner, 41; Sherman, 2; Pierce, 31.

At 12:40 p. m. the convention took a recess to 3 p. m.

CONVENTION OF MICHIGAN REPUBLICANS HARMONIOUS

Only Disagreement Whatever Is On the Question of the Resolutions Reclaring For Primary Reform —An Address By Senator Burrows.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 18.—With no prospect of a fight, except on the question of the resolutions declaring for primary reform, the state Republican convention was called to order here today to select four delegates-at-large and four alternates to the national convention; elect a new state central committee, and a chairman and nominate fourteen presidential electors. It was conceded before the convention began that three of the delegates-at-large would be Thomas J. O'Brien, of Grand Rapids, D. M. Ferry, of Detroit, and Capt. Thomas Walters, of Ishpeming, with Ralph Lovell, of Saginaw, and Frank H. Gilchrist, of Apena, contesting for the fourth place. President Roosevelt was endorsed. There were indications early in the day that Hitt would be endorsed for the vice presidential nomination.

The fight over the state issue of primary reform was expected to be pushed by Congressman William Alden Smith, who was a member of the committee on resolutions. The element in the party that does not favor a direct voting primary law was admitted in most quarters to control both the resolutions committee and the convention. Congressman Smith declared before the convention was called to order, however, that he would force the delegates to take action on the primary reform issue, "if he had to bring in a minority report from the resolutions committee, favoring a direct vote on nominations for governor, lieutenant governor, members of congress and the state legislature."

The convention was called to order at 11 o'clock by State Chairman G. J. Diekema, who in his address, warmly commended President Roosevelt for his attitude toward the trusts, the colored race, the keeping of treaty obligations and the recognition of Panama.

Chairman Diekema introduced Senator Burrows as temporary chairman, who said:

"So far as the platform of the Republican party is concerned, it is already written, not by any one man or set of men, however eminent, but it is found in the history of the Republican party and imbedded in the constitution and laws of the United States. As to our candidate, the sovereign people have already nominated Theodore Roosevelt, and it only remains for the national convention to ratify and confirm that choice.

"Our antagonists are not so fortunate. Divided in council and bankrupt in principle, their warring factions can find no common ground either for assault or defense. No man in their organization is wise enough to forecast their platform, and their leading and most promising candidate for the presidency dare not speak. On the contrary, the principles and policies of our party are known and read of all men.

"Under the guidance of the Republican party the United States has advanced to the position of a world power among the nations, and its sphere of influence touches every part of the inhabitable globe. From this commanding position it cannot and will not retreat, but under the leadership of the Republican party advance to the conflicts of the twentieth century with undaunted courage and unshaken confidence."

The convention then recessed for two hours.

FOGLED WITH A TORPEDO.

Independence, Iowa, May 18.—Alice and Abbie Aderman, twin daughters of F. L. Aderman, of Fairbank, who are attending school here, had a narrow escape from a torpedo explosion. While walking on the Illinois Central railroad track they picked up a track torpedo and not knowing its nature exploded it with a stone. One girl was cut upon the head and face and the other had her hand badly mutilated.

Emma Hardwick, of Westburg township, has sued her father-in-law for $25,000 damages for alienating the affections of her husband, George Hardwick.

UNIFICATION

Of Methodist Book Concern Recommended By Committee.

Los Angeles, May 18.—The report of the book committee, which will be presented to the Methodist conference today, is as follows:

Resolved, first, we approve the general principle of unifying the book concern by consolidating its manufacturing departments and placing them under one management.

Second, we recommend that the bishops be requested to appoint a commission of one from each general conference district, and one or two at large so as to provide an uneven number in the commission and not including therein members of the book committee, but at least half the persons so appointed shall be laymen with power.

Third, that after having duly considered the recommendations of said report the commission, if it shall adopt a plan, shall proceed to outline and determine the same for consolidating the manufacturing departments of the book concern and for their future administration under one official management.

Fourth, that upon the completion of said general plan, the book committee shall at once proceed to carry the same into effect and shall present to the next general conference the necessary disciplinary changes.

Fifth, that if the commission fails to adopt a plan of consolidation, it shall make a complete report of all its doings to the general conference of 1908.

A man who deserts his love and leaves her to face her fate as best she may is a rather difficult material of which to make a hero, but Otis Skinner invests the character with an imaginative charm, and fascination that make it a most delightful impersonation. It is in "The Harvester" that Mr. Skinner has chosen to make a short tour among Northwestern cities, following his regular season in the Shakesperean drama in company with Ada Rehan. The play is adapted from the French of Jean Richepin and Mr. Skinner has laid its scene in Canada. It is an idyllic picture and strongly suggestive of Arcadian beauty and charm. Into the humble people of a little Canadian community this strangest of characters, the harvester, fals. He is a type of the gypsy, a man to whose nature it as necessary to rove—to follow the road—as it is to eat. He may for a time rest content in one community, but eventually there comes to him "the call of the road," the restless desire for action, for the free and open life, and he is powerless to resist. The idea of life in one community, owning one little piece of land on which he shall spend his days living within the circumscribed limits of one little village, eating three meals a day and knowing that he will always have them—it is intolerable and he cannot do it. "Why one does not have time to work up an appetite between the meals" he laughs, and then tells of the real hunger that comes to the man who does not know where the next meal will come from and whose stomach is pinching and gnawing before he finds it, and then the satisfaction of that dinner! He is a philosopher, a wanderer, vagabond, gentleman and always singer, debonair, handsome, knowing not a care, going on his way, spreading joy, laughter and good feeling wherever he goes, his power seeming to extend not only over man but beast as well. The pure joy of living is uppermost in him.

To properly appreciate any character it is essential that one get into the spirit of it, but far more than ordinarily is that true of this. To him who cannot feel the instincts, the irresistible call that are moving within this strange man, the character cannot present much that is attractive, but to him who can appreciate the emotions that sway this wanderer, who can see the poetry, the wild love of nature, the desire for the larger freedom that is part of his nature, there is a wealth of delight as he watches Mr. Skinner's matchless portrayal.

The first act presents the harvester at work in the fields with his song ever on his lips and his soul free from care or burden. 'Toinette, the village beauty, is in love with him and he with a passion knowing no curb but when the realization comes to him that he must marry her and settle there, he cannot do it. Torn as he is with love for 'Toinette, the road calls him with a force that he is powerless to resist and he goes, leaving her sinking to the ground as the curtain falls.

Eighteen or nineteen years later he returns. 'Toinette is married to Francois, the former foreman of the farm, and their life has been a happy one. One son, Tony, is really the child of the Harvester, and out of the fact that this is known to but one person, and that the old village miser and skinflint, and that Tony desires to marry his daughter, grows a complication that threatens to destroy the peaceful home. Francois has been a paralytic confined to his chair for ten years. It is at this moment that the harvester again reappears, not knowing at the time that it is the same village.

The march of time can be seen in his appearance, though the strength and virility of youth are still there, and he is the same singing happy wanderer, magnetizing all about him and infusing into them his exuberant spirits. He soon finds out the state of affairs and learns that Tony is his son. A wonderful joy and enthusiasm at having a son comes over him, though coupled with it is grief at being unable to acknowledge him. But he proceeds to straighten out the difficulties of the young people and bring them to the happiness they desire. Into the home of Francois and 'Toinette he brings sunshine and his merry song, and lightens the burdens of both.

It is in the last act of the play that Mr. Skinner does his most magnificent work and it is of a character so artistic, so true and so real as to permit the use of the most superlative of adjectives. The difficulties of those he loves have been surmounted, the home is happy, he is loved by every inmate, and every desire is that he remain there upon the hearthstone, but again there stirs within him the restless desire to wander. "The call of the road" is again upon him. He struggles between the cold desire to be on the highway with his song on the lips and his heart free from care, tearing at him with equal force is his affection for those he loves. 'Toinette has always loved him, and has never even felt harshly toward him, realizing his true nature, and that bound to one place, he would have been like a bird in captivity. Francois is dying but the feeling that he is looked upon as certain to step into his place, is intolerable. That he should be regarded as a pensioner stifles him, and yet battling against the call, is the love in his heart. It is a most beautiful conflict of emotions, a study in the art of expression that is nothing short of superb. Throughout the act there is not a moment when one cannot see the stir within the man. One of the most perfect things in the art of facial expression is that of Mr. Skinner when 'Toinette chides her son for ridiculing the harvester's desire to be on the road and then tells him of the fascinations which it has for one of the nature of the harvester. As he listens to her luring words and her graphic depiction of the life, every word she utters is pictured in his face. Whatever one may think of the play, and not all will like it, the power of Mr. Skinner's character is unquestioned. One should hardly close, too, without reference to Mr. Skinner's matchless elocution. It has recently been said of him by eminent critics that he is the finest elocutionist on the stage and the praise is well deserved.

Mr. Skinner's company is a magnificent one. Lizzie Hudson Collier is a splendid 'Toinette, being satisfactory in every phase of the character. A superb piece of work is the Francois of J. M. Colville. Mr. Colville is an actor of recognized talent having been leading man to many of the leading lights of the stage and his impersonation of the paralytic was strikingly realistic and forceful. George Clarke was excellent as Pierre, Maud Durbin makes a pleasing Aline and the other members were all fine.

The play will be repeated this evening.

"WHY GIRLS LEAVE HOME."

The Vance and Sullivan production of "Why Girls Leave Home" is catching the favor of the patrons of the Metropolitan. The house was again filled last evening and the drama was applauded from the start to finish with much gusto. The company presents it excellently and the play is one of very strong interest. It will be played again tonight.

Tomorrow night the Kennedy Stock company will resume its engagement at the Metropolitan, presenting "Faust."

AL. FIELD'S MINSTRELS.

Al. G. Field's minstrels will be at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday with a matinee Saturday. The comedians this year, include, in addition to Mr. Field himself, Harry Shunk, Tommy Donnelly, Lew Spencer and Lester Fairman, among the best colored fun makers now before the public. To say nothing of the inimitable work of Mr. Field, that has made him a household word in all parts of the country, Shunk, Donnelly and Spencer stand at the head of their profession.

ISABEL IRVING.

Isabel Irving, one of the most charming actresses of the American stage and who has several itmes been seen in Duluth in productions of high merit, notably "The Prisoner of Zenda," will be at the Metropolitan, Monday, May 30 and 31, presenting "The Crisis" and playing the charming character of Virginia Carvel.

WEST DULUTH

Lodge Fram, No. 5, Sons of Norway, fittingly observed May 17, Norway's independence day, at the Great Eastern hall last night. The pleasing program of musical numbers and addresses interested a large audience, which had gathered to assist in celebrating the day.

The program was opened by an orchestra selection. L. J. Nordheim delivered the address of welcome. Rev. H. K. Madson spoke eloquently on "The Seventeenth of May," dwelling upon the significance of the day, and what it meant to all patriotic sons of Norway. "America" was the subject of a speech by John Jenswold. He spoke of the part the Norwegians had played in building up this country, and particularly of prominent men of the race who are now influential residents of Minnesota. A recitation by Mrs. S. K. Madson was well received. Several selections were rendered during the evening by the Morris quartet.

BEAUTIES OF SPRING

As J. J. Frey Finds Them Along the Mississippi.

The Herald is in receipt of a letter from J. J. Frey, written on one of the Burlington and Chicago trains as it bowled along down the Mississippi valley. After speaking of the beauties of spring along the river, Mr. Frey, who is bound for his old home in Wisconsin, says:

"Considering the time of the year the river is very low and traffic not very brisk. Farmers seem to be through with their spring seeding and are getting ready to plant their corn and potatoes. As we pass through the cities one after another a person can note but little change made in the last ten or fifteen years, and most of them have nothing in sight for the future but a farming community back of them. One must travel over a good deal of country to find a city so well located, and with a great future in store, as Duluth. The time is coming, and that not far distant, when Duluth will enjoy a greater and more substantial boom than it has ever had in the past."

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The West Duluth and Big Duluth baseball teams will meet on the Fifty-second street diamond next Sunday.

Richard De Banister and H. E. Barnes, who have been employed on the brick work at the blast furnace, leave tonight for their homes at Sharon, Pa. The other Pennsylvania workmen will remain in the city until the work of construction at the plant is completed. Just now there is a slight delay owing to the non-arrival of material.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Allyn Scott, 5803 Olney street, will leave tonight for St. Louis, Mo., to attend the World's fair. It is thought the trip will improve the health of Mr. Scott, who has been ill for several weeks past.

M. Jacoby left today for St. Paul on a short business trip.

The social given by the A. O. H. lodge at Gilley's hall last evening was a success in every way. The silver set which was raffled off was won by Joseph McCormick, who held the lucky number, 0093.

The contractors now at work digging the West Duluth sewer find that there is still about three feet of frost in the ground. The extreme severity of the past winter caused the ground to be frozen to an unusual depth.

John Cashin, who recently took an office in the Torrey building, again has his headquarters with J. A. Scott, on Central avenue.

W. J. Sullivan left for Virginia, Minn., today.

Edward McDowell has removed with his family from Duluth to the residence formerly occupied by Julius Lindgren, on Fifth street, near Fifty-third avenue west.

The Young Nationals defeated the Little Stars on the West Duluth ball grounds yesterday afternoon by a score of 10 to 8.

James Young, a former resident of West Duluth, now engaged in farming in Kansas, was in the city yesterday.

F. R. Leonard has returned from Marshalltown, Iowa, where he went to attend the funeral services of his sister, Mrs. A. B. Dumont.

For wall paper go to Nygren's.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kalon, North Fifty-third avenue west.

White Pine Lung Balsam will cure that cough. At Nygren's.

Wesley Boardman, an employe at the blast furnace, suffered a scalp wound, caused by a falling piece of iron yesterday. The injury is not a serious one.

Miss Rose Sullivan left today for Ashland, Wis., for a visit with friends.

Miss Grace Fielding, of Manistee, Mich., is a guest at the home of Mrs. E. G. Hanson, in West Duluth.

Paints and oils at Nygren's.

The West Duluth W. C. T. U. will hold its thirteenth anniversary meeting Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. N. C. Hendricks, 831 North Fifty-seventh avenue west.

City Water at Menominee Shows More Germ Life.

Menominee—Since the ice has gone out of the bay, the city water at Menominee shows more germ life and fresh sewage than before. The last analysis made by Professor Davis was from a sample of water taken from the French Catholic church. The analysis showed 685,000 bacteria in a glassful. Of that number 10,000 were liquifying bacteria and thirteen species were found in former samples. The last three samples analyzed have shown the colon or intestinal germ. Professor Davis has made a partial analysis of the Stephenson artesian well water and says that it contains no intestinal germs, as the water is not contaminated with sewage. The water is almost chemically perfect, but contains too much mineral substance to be used for continuous drinking purposes. The amount of solid matter found in the sample was fifteen times the quantity found in any sample of the city water, principally lime and magnesia.

The Paint river drive will be the first of the log drives on the tributaries of the Menominee to be finished this spring. The Brule drive will be a close second. Word has been received at the Boom company's office at Menominee that the drive on the Paint has passed the second dam, and is moving along fast. It will be out of the mouth of the river in a very few days. The Brule drive has also passed through the second dam and should be through in two weeks at the latest.

McMillan—The Danaher Hardwood Lumber company has a force of one hundred men at work cutting the right-of-way preparatory to building a railroad south from McMillan, Luce county, to hardwood timber in Lakefield township. The logs will be transported from McMillan to Dollarville over the South Shore road. The Danaher company expects to be able to begin the manufacture of lumber by the latter part of June.

Sault Ste. Marie—The fight over the closing of business places Sundays has come to an end at the Soo. The warrants made out in Judge Couch's court have not been signed by the complaining witnesses and no arrests will be made. The Retail Dealers' association held a meeting to discuss the matter. Soon after a representative called on J. P. Haller and told him they were satisfied to let the matter drop in case he would cease his investigations of the qualifications of the men who appear on saloon bonds. Haller was informed that the action against the merchants was taken without the knowledge of a majority of the members of the association, who wished to avoid friction with the business interests of the city. Mr. Haller readily agreed to the proposition. The matter is now out of his hands anyway, it being up to the council. Whether the council committee appointed to look into the matter will do anything remains to be seen, but it is probable that in case things quiet down there will be no request for further action.

PIANOS TO BE BURNED

On Beach at Atlantic City Next Week.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 18.—The old-fashioned square piano, once a token of wealth and luxury in a home, is to be made a burnt offering to propitiate trade at the national convention of piano men at Atlantic City next week.

Nor are the piano men content with offering one as a sacrifice. They propose to collect all the old-fashioned square pianos they can secure—all that are now extant, if possible—form them into a huge funeral pyre on the beach and set fire to it. A permit for the beach fire has been secured, and delegates under the solicitation of Philadelphia men have agreed to ship the pianos.

The old piano went out of manufacture twenty years ago, and is to be sacrificed because it interferes with trade.

CHINESE PORTS OPENED.

Pekin, May 18.—An imperial edict voluntarily issnued today opens to the commerce of the world the ports of Chi Nan Fu, Wei Shi En and Chou Tsun, on the Shan Tung peninsula.

Tie-Up on the Lakes Far Reaching In Effect.

Steamer Russia Arrives Here—Lumber Boats Due.

Nothing like the present tie up of the vessels on the great lakes has ever been known. Once there was a strike of the engineers which held the vessels from starting as soon as the lakes would permit, and the delay in that case was about ten days, while during the present trouble it is estimated that at least three weeks have been lost in which the big freight boats could have been doing business.

Some people who have been figuring on the general cost of the strike put the loss at $8,000,000 per month in wages. There have been estimates made that 150,000 men have been thrown idle by the situation. One of the greatest sufferers in this respect, outside the vessels themselves, is the Iron Range railroad, which is employing a great many less men than at this time last year, for the reason that there is no ore movement to the docks.

Various estimates have been placed on the reduction and some say that the company is not using more than about half the number of men it was working a year ago. Outside the regular passenger trains, there is only a comparatively small movement over the road.

Two of the largest companies which carry freight on the lakes are the Pittsburg Steamship company and the Gilchrist line, which alone have over 200 vessels, and at an estimate of twenty men each these two companies alone would use 4000 men. All the other freight lines which would use men would have many more thousand and the greater number of trains tied up owing to full stockpiles and nothing to move away the ore leaves several more thousand men idle.

The ore handlers at all the docks have to be reckoned as well as the tug men, who are not doing anything. There are the people who supply the boats with food and other necessaries who are also affected and other interested connecting industries, which are very extensive. The offices of the various companies have not employed their summer forces and some offices have cut down what they already had, temporarily.

Whether the tie up will result in radical action by the vessel owners against the masters and pilots, who are not willing to accept last year's wages, is a much-mooted question. One vessel owner a few days ago expressed himself as of the opinion that the end of the contract system of labor on the lakes would soon be reached.

"Then it will be an open shop," said he. To bring this about it would be necessary, probably, for the vessel owners to induce some of the old sailors, who have the necessary experience, to get licenses from the government.

The hope is expressed in every quarter that the conference of the Lake Carriers at Chicago, tomorrow, will result in some action which will see business begun. The general impression is that June 1 will see it.

RUSSIA ARRIVES.

Another Boat Comes From Lower Lakes.

The steamer Russia, of the Port Huron and Duluth Transportation company, arrived at Duluth at 12:45 o'clock today from Buffalo. This was the only boat to arrive in the local harbor up to an early hour this afternoon, though several are expected this evening and tonight.

Among the vessels due in the local harbor tonight are the Viking and Vinland, from the lower lakes, loaded with coal. The Myron, with a cargo of salt, and towing four barges light for lumber, is also due tonight. Her barges are the Delaware, Peshtigo, Jenness and Goshawk.

The Bon Ami, of the White Line Transportation company, started this morning on her first trip of the season to the Michigan copper country. There was more freight than she could take with her, and some of it had to be left behind. She also had a large number of passengers on board. From now on the Bon Ami, which has made three trips up the north shore this spring, will run regularly down the south shore, leaving Duluth Wednesdays and Sundays.

The America, now running on last year's schedule, cleared again this morning for Isle Royale, Port Arthur and other shore points. She also had a number of passengers. Owing to the late opening of navigation, passenger traffic on these boats is now heavier than it has ever been before at this time of the year.

The Pittsburg Steamship company is providing board and lodging for about forty oilers and firemen in Duluth. The men are not under pay. They take their meals on the steamer Douglas Houghton, and sleep on the several steel corporation ships now tied at the Missabe dock.

Andrew Haas, formerly chief engineer of the Peavey line, is chief engineer at the new A. B. Wolvin. Joseph Hayes, formerly chief engineer of the Pittsburg Steamship company, is at Lorain now to inspect the engines of the new monster freighter. She was expected to begin loading today.

STAND PATTERS IN CONTROL

Elected 1000 Out of 1332 Delegates In Iowa Convention.

Des Moines, May 18.—Every seat in the auditorium was occupied today when Chairman Spence of the state central committee, rapped for order in the Republican state convention to select delegates for the national convention. In the boxes were Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, Senator Allison, Senator Dolliver and Iowa's delegation in the lower house of congress.

The one theme for discusion among the delegates was the wording of the resolution upon the tariff. The issue of the campaign preceding the convention had been whether the tariff should be revised and as to a declaration for Canadian reciprocity. The stand-patters, who were opposed to both suggestions, selected 1000 out of the 1332 delegates to the convention. Having control of the convention, their leaders proceeded to define their wishes regarding the wording of the plank under discussion.

Hon. John Irwin of Keokuk was introduced as the temporary chairman of the convention. He spoke in part as follows:

"Let us make no platform on the tariff question beyond announcing our allegiance to the principle of a tariff for protection. Let us raise no ghosts from past conventions and platforms of the party, but let us quietly and decently ask that in the mellow richness of the present, the dead past shal bury its dead. Let us leave the tariff plank to the wise men of the Republican party when it meets in national convention where all needs will be considered and all interests will be heard, and than a platform will be made upon which we can all stand over which we can all rejoice.

"The Democracy claims that the tariff is the mother of trusts. By the same token the women are the mothers of measles. The mothers of the land have children and the children have the measles. Kill all the industries of the land and you will surely kill all the trusts, and abolish all the mothers of the and and you will just as surely abolish all the measles. Congress has dealt the trusts a blow under which they are now trembling, although every Democratic justice on the supreme bench of the United States filed a dissenting opinion.

"The Republican man today is well. He is exceedingly and exasperatingly well. Why then the need to give him pills? If this great and splendid fabric of prosperity which has been built with so much labor and care and which has brought content and happiness to every family in the land, is to be purged and cut away, let Republicans stay their hands and let Democratic doctors write the prescription and apply the knife.

"If this great system under which and through which we have prospered, as no nation in the world ever prospered before is to be crushed; if reciprocity is to be used in a sense that Blaine never meant and McKinley never dreamed of; if the tariff which as a whole has stood firm and solid against all and every frontal attack is now to be torn down in detail; if the foundation is to be sapped by removing a stone here and a stone there; if the free traders, under the guise of reciprocity, fear to attack the tariff as it stands now in the robust strength of its 'altogether' but, as pretended protectionists, stab it here and stab it there, then in the name of all that is great and noble in Republican history and memory, let no Brutus' dagger be found reeking with blood in a Republican hand; let no echo of a Judas kiss be sounded from Republican lips.

"The Republican party made the tariff when the country was in sore need and the Republican party will revise and amend the tariff in part or in whole when convinced that there is need for revision, and that the time for revision has come.

In the selection of delegates to the national convention there was no opposition to Senator W. B. Allison, Senator J. P. Dolliver, J. W. Blythe, and Governor A. B. Cummins for delegates at large.

The following district delegates to the national convention were chosen: First—Marsh W. Bailey, Washington; C. A. Carpenter, Louisa. Second—G. W. French, Davenport; George M. Curtis, Clinton. Third—O. M. Gillette, Independence: E. S. Ellsworth, Iowa Falls. Fourth—A. H. Gale, Mason City; Harry Green, Decorah. Fifth—J. W. Doxsey, Jones; E. L. Clarke, Linn. Sixth—H. L. Waterman, Ottumwa; John A. DeMuth, Albia. Seventh—Judge J. H. Henderson, Indianola; Dr. J. J. Hostetter, Colorado. Eighth—W. P. Peckman, Appanoose; H. R. Jaqua, Taylor. Ninth—George Wright, Pottawattamie: W. S. Ellis, Montgomery. Tenth—Mahlin Head, Greene; E. K. Winne, Humbolt. Eleventh—R. L. Cleaves, Cherokee; A. Van Der Meide, Orange City.

The vote on delegation stands twenty for the stand-pat idea and six opposed.

The most interest was centered in the selection of the committee on resolutions. Out of eleven districts held, the stand-patters carried all except the second and eleventh.

THREW BABE IN RIVER.

The Insane Act of a St. Paul Woman.

Des Moines, May 18.—Swinging her 3-year-old baby girl about her head so as to give to the body the greatest momentum, Mrs. Trussles, a demented woman from St. Paul, today threw her offspring from the Walnut street bridge into the Des Moines river. Then she leaped in close to the spot where her child went down. A riverman saw the act, rowed to the spot and rescued both. The child may die.

Will Fall In Line.

Extensive mention of the new furnishings of the new offices of the Omaha and South Shore has been made and it appears that two other leading railway offices are not to be behind. The Great Northern office in the Spalding will go into the hands of painters and decorators in a few days.

It is said that the Northern Pacific office in the Providence building, which has been shared by the office of a coal company, will be used exclusively by the railroad company in a short time, if negotiations can be carried out.

Will Run Special.

On Saturday a special train will be run by the Great Northern from Duluth to Minneapolis for the Knights of Pythias and their friends who wish to attend the big initiation ceremonies there. One thousand candidates are expected to be taken into the order and among features of the occasion, which will last Saturday afternoon and Sunday, will be a Cincinnati team with a $50,000 ritual equipment.

The special train will leave here at 10:45 a. m. and be due at Minneapolis four hours later. It will carry several coaches and a dining car. A good many of the general public are expected to take advantage of the excursion rate.

JURY CASES ON TRIAL.

Two Civil Suits, One a Damage Case.

Besides the White murder trial, there are two other jury cases being tried in district court. These are not likely to be finished before tomorrow evening.

In Judge Ensign's room the case of Samuel Johnston against James Marma is being tried. Johnston is suing to recover $96, which he claims is due on a note given in payment of a life insurance premium. The defense is made on the claim that Marma agreed to pay a certain amount monthly to apply on the premium and did not know he was signing a note when papers were presented for his signature.

In Judge Dibell's room testimony is still being introduced in the case of Charles Carlson against the Peavey Elevator company for injuries which he alleges to have received when the scaffolding fell inside the concrete elevator on Rice's Point, killing several of the employes.

Carlson claims that the scaffolding was of inferior material and he asks $10,335 in damages. The elevator company makes its defense on the claim that the men knew of the nature of the material in the scaffolding and had been to guard against just such an accident as finally occurred.

Mission Conference.

The quarterly mission conference of the Swedish Baptist churches in Duluth and Superior will be held this week at the Bethel church, Ninth avenue East and Third street, Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Rev. O. Bodien and Dr. A. Gordh, of Minneapolis, will take part in the conference, together with the following local ministers: Rev. Henrickson, A. Edstam, C. A. Aldeen, O. Ellison, the latter of Superior.

In Hearst's Interest.

James R. Bennett, of St. Cloud, was in the city yesterday looking up the interests of William Randolph Hearst for the presidential nomination, as well as to secure influence for himself as a delegate-at-large to the St. Louis convention. Mr. Bennett expressed himself as confident of the outcome in general, and appeared very sanguine.

Order Fifty Uniforms.

Fifty uniforms have been ordered by the local recruiting office to meet the needs of new men who enlist. There are a dozen or so candidates who have been passed on who only await the regulation military clothing to enable them to go into service.

Failure of navigation to open has been the cause of more men than usual to enlist at this time of the year and as a consequence the local agency has been unable to keep up with the requirements for new clothing. Uniforms each consist of one woollen blanket, blouse, forage cape, canton flannel underdrawers, light woolen undershirt, dark blue flannel shirt, stockings, suspenders, trousers and shoes.

DECIDE ON UNIFORMS

Maroon uniforms with white trimmings will be worn by the Coppers Baseball team during the coming summer. Manager Resche held out for plaid uniforms with green stockings, pink caps, yellow belts but the players appealed to Judge Windom for an injunction to prevent the disturbance of the public peace and welfare in this manner. They secured the injunction and modest maroon suits have been ordered.

The team is willing to play any of the local amateur teams for the sake of the advertisement it would give the latter, but no really serious work is contemplated until the Superior Coppers are met.

Some marvelous trick plays are being invented by the Coppers, and they cheerfully predict that the entire science of baseball will be revolutionized before the season ends.

Two official scorers have been appointed. They were drafted from the clerical force in the city clerk's office, as being especially adapted to the work after their experience in figuring up election returns.

CELEBRATE DAY.

Vaarbrud Templars Honor Norway's Independence.

One of the most interesting programs commemorating May 17, Norway's Independence day, was that given at Victor's hall, Grand avenue and Fifty-sixth avenue west, last night, under the auspices of Temlet Vaarbrud Templars. The exercises consisted of recitations, music and speeches. The hall was attractively decorated with American and Norwegian flags.

One of the most interesting numbers was the reading of a paper by O. Pederson, which told of the events leading up to the declaration of independence by the people of Norway in 1814. It was narrated how, on April 10, 1814, representatives from all over the nation gathered in the little old church of Eidsvolds, 112 men in all, to begin their work of framing a constitution for the nation and preparing declarations. The work was completed May 17.

The exercises were closed by the audience singing "America."

A NEW PRINCIPLE IN MEDICAL SCIENCE.

For years it has been the practice of medical men to treat patients suffering from piles by local, external applications. These treatments give but temporary relief, but have never affected a positive cure.

After months of research and study, accompanied by actual experience with various patients, Dr. C. A. Perrin arrived at a positive conclusion as to the exact action of the various parts of the bowel system, under different conditions, and when subjected to various prescriptions.

He finally prepared that wonderful internal remedy known as DR. PERRIN'S PILE SPECIFIC, which is put up in bottles, retailing at all reliable drug stores for $1.00 each. This internal remedy has been on the market for the past ten years, and in all of that time there has been but three cases where a positive cure has not been effected.

Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific is sold under a positive guarantee by the druggist making the sale, to refund the full purchase price, providing the remedy fails to cure. This is the absolute proof of its merit. Any man or woman who suffers from blind, bleeding, itching or internal piles can try this internal remedy with the absolute certainty that it will cost nothing unless it cures. Here is what one sufferer says of this wonderful remedy:

Dr. C. A. Perrin, Helena, Mont.—I wish to thank you for the cure your wonderful medicine has done for me. I had the piles some five years, and under the advice of a doctor had them removed by the knife and felt free for awhile, but they returned and I at once got a bottle of your Perrin's Pile Specific and one bottle has entirely cured me, and I am as good as I ever was.
Yours truly,
JACK SULLIVAN.

Better get a bottle of your druggist today and get relief from present and future suffering.

DAVIS ALLEGES BLACKMAIL

Has Gen. Pearson, Formerly of Boer Army Arrested.

New York, May 18.—Gen. Samuel Pearson of Scranton, Pa., who served under Gen. Louis Botha in the Boer war, and Cornelius W. Vanderhoodt, a foreign correspondent, of Baltimore, Md., and Washington, were arrested in this city yesterday on the complaint of Webster Davis, who was assistant secretary of state under President McKinley, and were held in $1500 bail each by Magistrate Cornell, charged with "suspicion of blackmail."

Mr. Davis claimed to have received letters from Gen. Pearson, and also a letter unsigned, threatening his life unless $20,000 were forthcoming. The two letters written by Gen. Pearson were simply requests for an audience. The arrests were made in Mr. Davis' apartments, where the two prisoners had come by appointment, the police having been previously notified. Mr. Davis says that on their arrival he asked the men what they wished to see him about, and they told him they were asking an accounting of certain money belonging to the Boer government.

After reading the threatening letter, Magistrate Cornell said that while he did not see what the defendants had to do with the case, he would hold them on a short affidavit to give the police an opportunity to investigate.

When seen in the Jefferson market prison, Gen. Pearson said:

"I understood that the Boer government entrusted to Webster Davis about $40,000 in gold bullion. I have a war claim against the Boer government for $55,000, and when I learned Mr. Davis knew something about the gold I determined to ask for an accounting. If he has got the money I want to know about it. I did send Mr. Davis a note or two, simply asking for a meeting with him. In the second letter I think I demanded an accounting of the $40,000 of gold bullion, threatening legal steps if such an accounting was not forthcoming."

CARRIED DEAD BODY

To Show Friends "How Nice He Looked."

Terre Haute, Ind., May 18.—Mrs. Daisy Markim has been adjudged insane, the particular testimony heard being of her conduct at the time her husband's dead body was awaiting burial.

She went into the death chamber, and, gathering the body in her arms, carried it into another room, where some women friends were spending the night. The women ran from the house in horror. Mrs. Markim called to them that she wanted them "to see how nice he looked." Men called by the women prevailed on Mrs. Markim to let them replace the body on the bier.

A few days after the funeral Mrs. Markim was found throwing money into the street. She was taken into custody. Later she was released, as she had become rational, but again it has become necessary to place her under restraint. She will be taken to the central hospital for the insane, where once before she was an inmate.

REPLY BY ELKINS

To Recent Article By Grover Cleveland on Bond Sales.

Claims That Ex-President Does Not Give All the Facts.

Washington, May 18.—To one man in the senate more than any other ex-President Cleveland's recent article on the bond sales of his second administration recalled some vivid reminiscences. This was Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia. He had fought with much energy the proposition for a second private sale, and was responsible in a large degree for arousing public sentiment against such transactions. And for his earnestness he was excoriated by senators of both parties and metaphorically put upon the senatorial gibbet for thirty days, the period during which the advertisements for popular subscriptions had to run. But the high figure bid for $100,000,000 (the second issue), vindicated Mr. Elkins' judgment and showed, as he had asserted was the case, that there was more than $600,000,000 of gold in the country.

"When Mr. Cleveland undertakes to write the history of the bond sales," said Mr. Elkins last night, when he was asked how he agreed with what the ex-president had written, "I do not see why he should ignore what was done in the senate." Turning to the files of the Congressional Record in his library, he took down a volume of the proceedings of the Fifty-fourth congress, first session, where, after a little searching he found the resolution, submitted to the senate by him on Dec. 13, 1895, stating "that it is the sense of the senate that hereafter no bonds of the United States shall be sold at private sale, or under private contract. And in case of any sale of bonds under existing laws, the same shall be made only after due advertisement of such sale and proposals invited, and then only to the highest bidder."

"I do not wish to unduly advertise the part I took in pressing that resolution," said Mr. Elkins, "but the main facts are in the Congressional Record and speak for the truth of history. They do not bear out the claims made that private sales were at all necessary. The debate in the senate on my resolution for a week, beginning Jan. 3, 1896, and lasting during the morning hours daily, was followed suddenly by an announcement at the treasury department that it had been decided to offer the bonds at public sale. In the meantime the New York World had been vigorously opposing the proposed private sale. That paper undoubtedly deserves credit for the stand it took.

"At the outset senators wanted my resolution sent to the committee on finance, which action I vigorously opposed, notwithstanding the constant charges that I was making a mistake. You will see from the Congressional Record that when I called up that resolution on Jan. 3 it was resisted. My colleague, Mr. Faulkner, observed that he would not object to its being taken up for the purpose of remarks, but would object to its being called up for action. After there had been debate on the resolution, my motion to take it up for consideration was adopted by a vote of 48 to 6.

"The facts were Mr. Cleveland had sold $62,500,000 of bonds," continued Mr. Elkins, "at 104½, when the same bonds were selling on the market for 113 and upward. According to the newspapers it was charged at the time that Mr. Morgan made $1,000,000 out of the contract. It was said he came over to Washington, closed up the deal in one night and went back to New York in a private car. That was pretty good profit for one night's work, wasn't it? The margin of profit on the deal, it was charged, was approximately $6,000,000, which was divided among the other bankers who were to supply the gold.

"In the face of many offers to buy the bonds at prices far in excess of what had been realized at the private sale of $62,000,000, preparations were going forward for another private sale of $100,000,000. Mr. Pulitzer, of New York, offered to subscribe for $1,000,000 of the bonds. During the debate Senator Hill, of New York, who had been trying to delay consideration of my resolution, asked if my state of West Virginia would take $1,000,000 of the bonds, and I answered him in the affirmative. I constantly insisted that a good deal of gold still remained in the country, in spite of the shipments abroad, and that the people were willing to sell it to the government at more advantageous prices than the bankers with whom Mr. Cleveland was negotiating."

Mr. Elkins' speech, which he delivered in spite of warnings by his colleagues that he would bring on a panic, contained some very forcible arguments for the public sale of bonds, which Mr. Cleveland in his article says was not feasible in the preceding February. Mr. Elkins, in that speech of Jan. 3, 1896, touched upon the cost of civil war loans. He showed that nearly all the great war loans of the government in the time of its perils were popular loans. They were generaly floated on a commision to bankers, and in most cases these commissions did not exceed 1½ per cent. In discussing that subject before the senate, Mr. Elkins made these observations:

"It is said that the total amount of commissions paid for floating the war loans aggregating more than $2,500,000,000 was about $5,500,000, while the profit to the syndicate that purchased $62,000,000 of bonds in February, 1895, under private contract with the secretary of the treasury, is estimated to be greater than this vast sum. Of the 5-20 loan of 1862 514,000,000 were placed with the people, and the great 7-20 loan of 1864-65, amounting to $829,992,500, was a popular loan. As I understand the cost to the government in the way of commissions for floating these two great loans with the people, amounting to more than $1,300,000,000, was about half of the estimated profits made by the syndicate on the purchase of the $62,00,0000 they bought in February under private contract.

"These war loans were first advertised. They were floated on the basis of a commission and not by selling outright to a syndicate under private contract. If the government, when it was in peril, could make popular loans on the basis of 1½ per cent commission, why can we not do the same thing now in a time of profound peace?"

In the same speech Mr. Elkins pointed out that in previous bond sales, especially when Mr. Sherman was secretary of the treasury, insistence had always been placed on public sales after advertisement for 30 days. He cited how the first of the Cleveland bond issues, that of February 1, 1894, had sold for 117, as had the second, of November, 1894, those having been however, 5 per cent bonds, while the bonds of February 1, 1895, had been 4 per cents. He likewise cited the law that hedged about every quartermaster and other subordinate official of the government, so that he could not buy or sell $100 worth of property without giving notice of the sale and inviting proposals.

"Why is it, or how is it," asked the senator, "that the president of the United States and the secretary of the treasury should enjoy privileges, lifting them out of this policy or general rule? Surely if an officer of the United States cannot sell a small amount of property without public advertisement and due notice, why should the president of the United States and the secretary of the treasury be permitted to sell $100,000,000 of public property without giving notice of the time and place of the sale and inviting bids from the people?"

The resolution which Mr. Elkins forced upon the attention of the senate never came to a final vote, but after it had accomplished the purpose for which it was introduced—that of compelling the president to dispose of the bonds at public auction sale, and also that of demonstrating that the public had gold and would sell it to the government at more profitable figures than would a private syndicate of bankers—the resolution was referred to the senate committee on finance. There it was allowed to die.

"Mr. Cleveland should give all the facts in his article," concluded Mr. Elkins. "The fame of his second administration rests on three things—his policy in the Venezuela imbroglio, his attitude toward the Chicago strike and his stand on the money question in saving the country from bankruptcy. He did save the country from a silver basis, but he could have done it without selling bonds at private sale, after a conference between J. Pierpont Morgan, Mr. Stetson and Secretary Carlisle, at rates which meant a great and unnecessary loss to the government."

Curse OF DRINK

DRUNKENNESS CURED TO STAY CURED BY WHITE RIBBON REMEDY.

No taste. No odor. Any woman can give it in a glass of water, tea, coffee or food, without patient's knowledge.

White Ribbon Remedy will cure or destroy the diseased appetite for all alcoholic drinks, whether the patient is a confirmed inebriate, a "tippler," social drinker or drunkard. Impossible for any one to have an appetite for alcoholic liquors after using White Ribbon Remedy. It has made many thousands of permanent cures, and in addition restores the victim to normal health, steadying the nerves, increasing the will power and determination to resist temptation.

Indorsed By Members of a Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Mrs. Anna Moore, Press Superintendent of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Los Angeles, Cal., states: "I have tested White Ribbon Remedy on very obstinate drunkards, and the cures have been many. I cheerfully recommend and endorse White Ribbon Remedy, and advise any woman to give it to any relative suffering from drunkenness."

Sold by druggists, 50c and $1.00, and by Max Wirth, 13 W. Superior St., Duluth, Minn.

PANTON & WHITE COMPANY
THE BIG GLASS BLOCK STORE
WHERE QUALITY IS PARAMOUNT

"Half price" badly beaten by our 2 grand reduced-price suit lots.

Regular prices of ladies' suits at the Glass Block are lower than so-called "half price" at the little shops. Even if a few suits are thrown out at half the MARKED prices, the same things will be found at still lower prices here. The evidence of excessive "asking prices" could not be stronger, and people who have paid them can readily see how they have been fooled. "You can't fool all the people all the time," so the store that makes the LOWEST PRICES ALL THE TIME must benefit in the end by such tactics.

ONE RACK OF SUITS SOLD BY OTHERS UP TO $35, FOR $16.50

Some of them are closing out of lines not to be re-ordered. Some of them are new suits—bought to close out ladies' tailors' lines. ALL of them are strictly stylish and up-to-date suits—ALL styles, Eton, blouse and hip jacket suits, with dress skirts and walking skirts. Silk or satin lined, trimmed with bands and braids, solid colors and mixtures, voiles, etamines and cheviots. Choice of any suit on this rack, Thursday, $16.50.

ONE RACK OF SUITS SOLD BY OTHERS UP TO $18.00, FOR $9.75

These are suits of the less expensive kind, but they are all strictly fashionable and worthy. We know of $20.00 being "asked" for exactly similar suits in Duluth, so even "half price" is higher than Glass Block price. Beautiful Etons, blouses and jacket suits, Scotch mixtures and plain cheviots. Splendid bargain in every suit on this rack, Thursday, at $9.75.

Our wonders in millinery increase with the season's advance.

We have a few trimmed Hats remaining from the lot of 200 offered last Saturday at $1.98. Hats for ladies, misses and children in the lot—all new and stylish, and prettily trimmed for summer wear. You can take your pick from the lot—worth up to $7.50 Thursday for ---------- $1.98

But we have other trimmed hats, which while they will cost you more, are just as good values. Glass Block trimming in millinery is getting more popular every year, because it equals the finest creations of the best milliners, at a much lower price.

We can easily prove to you that:

Milliners' $9.00 hats are equaled by our bargains at ------- $4.95
Milliners' $7.50 hats are equaled by our bargains at ----- $3.95
Milliners' $5.00 hats are equaled by our bargains at------- $2.95

Children's hats—We are showing hundreds of styles not to be found anywhere else. Why select from a small assortment at high prices, when you can just as well have your pick from the Glass Block's hundreds at lower prices.

Cloth tams and caps—for boys and girls—straw sailors, ribbon trimmed for boys and girls. Trimmed hats in every shape, for girls and misses of all ages. You will buy here if you compare qualities and prices.

The "walking skirt sale" continues.

This is the season to buy your separate skirts for spring and summer runabout wear. There's positive waste in buying these walking skirts anywhere but at the great sale which has been so popular at the Glass Block for a week. To the great purchase of 500 skirts we have now added a hundred or more of our regular walking skirts, so that the range of sizes is again complete and every woman who comes Thursday is sure of a fit, in a stylish skirt, at about half its regular value. Four lots to choose from and hundreds of pretty styles, all in the very latest cut and tailor making.

$2.98 Walking Skirts worth to $5.00. $3.98 Walking Skirts worth to $7.00. $4.98 Walking Skirts worth to $9.00. $5.98 Walking Skirts worth to $12.00.

Rain proof and dust proof cravenette coats.

We are leading admirably in furnishing these popular coats of the present season. Our styles comprise all that stands approved of fashion—plain coat and auto styles, fancy flowing sleeve and gathered belt styles with trimmings of bands, fancy buttons and figures. Cravenettes in light tan, olive and grey, exclusively to be found here and uniformly priced far below all others at the head of the lakes—up to $24.50 and as low as—

WISCONSIN FOR WALL

The Democratic Delegates Formally Instructed For Him.

Adherents of Hearst Were Defeated From the Start.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 18.—The supporters of Edward C. Wall defeated the adherents of William R. Hearst in the Democratic state convention yesterday, a resolution instructing the Wisconsin delegation to the national convention at St. Louis to vote for Mr. Wall having been adopted by a viva voce vote. In addition the convention adopted a platform which "recognizes the last national platform as the code of national Democracy until a new platform is adopted."

Among other things the platform favors the enforcement of laws against "trusts," tariff for revenue only; repeal of tariff on all trust-made articles; deposits of surplus public moneys in safe bank depositories; an income tax law and the election of United States senators by direct vote.

The following is the unanimous report of the committee on resolutions:

The last national platform is the code of national Democracy and should be recognized as such, until a new platform is adopted at the St. Louis convention, expressing the position of Wisconsin Democrats upon those issues, which are now regarded as of paramount importance.

One—We favor the stringent enforcement of the laws against unlawful and monopolistic combinations of capital to the end that so-called "trust organizations" may be exterminated.

Two—We favor a tariff for revenue only.

Three—We favor the repeal of all tariff taxes on all trust-made articles.

Four—We favor free and uninterrupted commerce between all people of the United States.

Five—We favor deposits of surplus moneys in safe bank depositiroles, upon adequate security and at current rates of interest.

Six—We favor the enactment of laws prohibiting all railway corporations from engaging in or carrying on any business except that of the common carrier.

Seven—We favor the speedy completion of the Panama canal and regret that our government should have permitted this great project to be stained with evidences of dishonorable intrigue against the integrity of a friendly republic.

Eight—We favor an income tax and an amendment to the constitution, if necessary to accomplish it.

Nine—We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

A supplementary resolution with a long preamble eulogistic of Edward C. Wall, of Wisconsin, was then read. The resolution is as follows:

Resolved: We, the Democrats of Wisconsin, in state convention assembled, do therefore instruct our delegates to the national convention, to be held in St. Louis, to place in nomination the name of Edward C. Wall before that convention, and to use all honorable means to secure for him the Democratic nomination for the presidency of the United States.

We also instruct our delegates to vote as a unit for him until the nomination shall be made, or his name shall be withdrawn by a vote of two-thirds of the Wisconsin delegates elect.

A motion to adopt the platform as a whole brought Mr. Cleary, of Grant county, a supporter of William R. Hearst, to his feet, who moved to amend so as to adopt all the report except that portion instructing the delegation to vote for Wall. The amendment was lost by a vote of 304 to 226, and the resolutions were adopted as a whole by a viva voce vote.

Mayor Rose reported that while the committee was unanimous on the platform proper, that there were two dissenting votes against the adoption of the supplementary resolution instructing the delegates for Wall.

The following were elected delegates-at-large:

Timothy E. Ryan, Waukesha; David S. Rose, Milwaukee; Neal Brown, Wausau; Charles H. Weisse, Sheboygan Falls.

Alternates: Col. George W. Bird, Madison; Dr. W. A. Anderson, La Crosse; Jason K. Wright, Marinette; Hugh J. Gallagher, Darlington.

Electors-at-large: P. H. Martin, Green Bay; Charles A. Vresch, Milwaukee.

Dr. Reinhart, Dentist,
wishes to announce that he is now located in rooms 2, 3 and 8, Banning Blk., Second avenue west and Superior St.

CONDUCTORS ARE ANGRY

Demand Proof of Alleged Theft From Great Northern.

St. Paul, May 18.—The discharge of twenty-one conductors on the Great Northern railway during the past month by General Superintendent Slade, who, it is alleged, charges that the discharged men were collecting fares for which they made no return to the company, has been the subject of one conference of the general grievance committee of the conductors and the officials of the company and may be followed by trouble involving the whole system.

Chairman McMillan, who met with the conductors of the Northern and Dakota divisions, at Grand Forks, has returned to St. Paul to reopen the subject with headquarters officials, and to demand that satisfactory evidence of violation of the rules be given by the Great Northern or the discharged men be reinstated.

The discharge of the men was without notice and was followed by no explanation, until the men one by one appeared in St. Paul and demanded the reason for the action.

Mr. Slade informed each that private detectives, hired by him, have colected evidence against the discharged men. Proof was refused, and the men assert that their requests for an opporunity to enter a denial was summarily refused.

EXPENSIVE TRESPASS.

Lumber Company Must Pay $18,138 More.

Fergus Falls, Minn., May 18.—In the timber trespass case of the United States government against the Commonwealth Lumber company, the jury brought in a verdict assessing the company $18,138. This is in addition to $10,541, which it paid in a pervious settlement with Capt. Mercer, the government Indian agent, and which amount the court directed the jury to take into consideration in deciding the amount to be awarded. The case has been a sensational one and was stubbornly contested.

FOUR INDIANS KILLED

In Wisconsin Within a Period of Ten Weeks.

Shawano, Wis., May 18.—Particulars of the fourth Indian killing in this county in ten weeks were brought here yesterday by officers from the Green Bay agency at Keshona, who reported the death of Moses Shawanopanass at the government hospital from the effects of revolver wounds inflicted by George McCall. Both men are of the Menomonie tribe.

Shawanopanass and other Menominies started Sunday morning for South Branch to attend a medicine dance, at the home of one Palmo, also a Menomonie. Here McCall discharged his revolver. One version is that he was testing the revolver by shooting into the ground, and another that he was trying to shoot a member of the party.

While one Indian caught McCall from behind, Shawanopanass caught his wrists and was shot through the abdomen. McCall then disappeared and has not been seen since.

ROCK ISLAND WINS CONTEST.

Minneapolis, May 18.—In the fourth state interscholastic oratorical contest, including the Rock Island, Ill., Grinnel, Iowa, West Superior, Wis., normal schools and Stanley Hall, of this city, Miss Lucy Brennan, of Rock Island, won the first place by a unanimous vote of the judges. Her subject was "A Child's Dream of a Star" by Dickens. The Illinois school will receive a trophy, a handsome loving cup which will be held until next year, when the annual meeting is held.

MASCOTS' JEALOUSY

Led to a Lively Scrimmage on a Warship.

Philadelphia, May 18.—Jocko, the pet monkey of the cruiser Dixie, and Mickey, the goat mascot of the cruiser Columbia, mixed up at League Island navy yard. Result: Three visitors knocked overboard, thrilling rescues, several spring hats ripped to bits and the loss of a huge bunch of Mickey's whiskers.

There has been blood upon the moon since the arrival of the Dixie last week. Until that time Mickey was the idol of the yard. When Jocko came, however, things were different. The simian immediately became a warm favorite. Mickey, from his behavior, evidently felt the slight.

Today the yard was crowded with visitors and many were on the Dixie, with Jocko as the center of attraction. Mickey, who has the freedom of the yard, wandered up the gang plank of the Dixie. A sailor from the Columbia who happened to be on board, knowing the goat's habits, drew a clay pipe from his pocket and placed it in the goat's mouth. The beast puffed delightedly and immediately Jocko was forgotten.

Jocko watched jealously for a moment and then sprang at his rival. A whirling, biting mass flew round and round the deck. The brutes struck a dignified old man, who fell off the gang plank into the water. A small boy was their next mark, and he got a ducking. An apprentice seized the animals, but Mickey indignantly butted him away and the embryo jack went overboard like the others. A squad of marines finally separated the pair, while sailors rescued the trio that had fallen overboard.

BODY OF HUBBARD

Reaches St. Johns, En Route to New York.

St. Johns, N. F., May 18.—The sealing steamer Aurora, bringing Messrs. Wallace and Elson, with Leonidas Hubbard's body, arrived here today. The body, which was enclosed in a hermetically sealed lead coffin at Battle Harbor, is in a fair state of preservation, though it was hauled 550 miles across a trackless wilderness. It will be sent to New York by the steamer Silvia Wednesday night. Wallace and Ellson will accompany it.

It pays to advertise in The Herald. Ask Bayha & Co.

FRANK WHITE'S FATE NOW WITH JURY

The fate of Frank White, who shot and killed Jerome Manaige, bartender at the Northland saloon, on West Michigan street, is now in the hands of the jury. The case was submitted late this afternoon, the arguments for White and the court's charge being delivered when the afternoon session began.

The first part of the morning session of court was given up to the finishing of the cross-examination of White and his redirect examination, and was followed by the state's argument to the jury by County Attorney McClintock.

A strong plea was made by Mr. McClintock for the conviction of White for murder in the first degree. The county attorney characterized White's actions throughout the trouble as those of a coward and urged the jury not to turn loose on the community a man of his disposition, one that carried revolvers about in his pocket with so apparent little regard for human life.

Mr. McClintock held that all the witnesses heard in the case have agreed in the main, that there was not a vital point where any particular difference was shown in the testimony.

As to Manaige's motive in following White after the first shot in the saloon, Mr. McClintock went even farther and said that it was the duty of Manaige to have followed White, after the law had been violated by the first shot, and to have arrested him though he might have gone to extreme lengths to acomplish it, even to the killing of White. He argued that no contradictory testimony had been given by the defense to show that Manaige pursued White for any other purpose than to arrest and turn him over to the police.

The county attorney ridiculed the idea that White wished to avoid trouble by pointing out that the accused, even after being put out of the saloon and warned not to come back, deliberately went back to the building and then commenced shooting at Manaige.

He held there was not the slightest evidence brought out in the trial that Manaige was a bad character or that he was otherwise than a peaceable and law-abiding citizen.

Mr. McClintock had talked to the jury thirty-five minutes when court adjourned.

Frank White went on the witness stand yesterday afternoon to testify in his own defense. His was the only testimony that the defense has offered during the trial, all the witnesses of the shooting affray that were known, being called to testify for the state.

White claims that the shooting was entirely accidental and his defense was practically given in a few sentences during his examination yesterday, when he said:

"I was intoxicated, helpless and feared that my life was in danger.

"I meant to frighten my pursuer, not to murder him. There was no murder in my heart.

"The bullet was fired, but how it happened I cannot explain."

The state rested its case about 4 o'clock, being unable to locate the cripple Gerlach, over whom the trouble in the Northland saloon was started.

Attorney Green, counsel for White in outlining his case to the jury said he would show that White with a man named Weston and the cripple Gerlach, went into the Northland saloon several times during the day of the shooting, April 26, in fact spent the greater part of the day there drinking. Mr. Green said Manaige, himself, served them with drinks and that finally the cripple refused to take any more liquor on White's invitation and Manaige interfered, threatening to throw White from the saloon. He claimed that White, who was then very much intoxicated left the saloon but returned shortly afterward, when Manaige was inclined to resume the quarrel and was taking steps to throw White from the place when the latter backed toward the door and drew a revolver with the intention of frightening the bartender.

Mr. Green said that while White was stepping from the door to the sidewalk the revolver was accidentally discharged, that White was frightened by the occurrence and started to run across the street, being followed by Manaige. It was alleged that White repeatedly warned Manaige to keep away but the latter stuck to the pursuit, calling White bad names. Mr. Green said that during the pursuit the revolver in White's hand was again accidentally discharged and again after the men had clinched.

When called as a witness, White stated that he was born in Michigan, his father having lived in Canada. He claimed to be a tailor by trade and said that three weeks before his trouble he arrived in the city from the woods, where he had been during the winter months.

White related his meeting and forming of a friendship with Weston and the cripple Gerlach, and said they had been rooming together since coming to Duluth.

Acording to White's story, Manaige, the bartender, attempted to prevent Gerlach from taking a drink when White told Manaige to leave them alone, that they were capable of taking care of themselves. He claimed that Manaige then attempted to strike him in the face and he left the place.

As to his movements after leaving the Northland saloon, White said that he and Weston went to the Sailors' Home saloon where they had a few drinks and about half an hour later he went back to the Northland saloon to see Gerlach. He claimed that he had no intention of resuming the quarrel.

White claimed he was very drunk when he entered the saloon the second time and that he was so frightened after the first shot that he started to run, with Manaige in pursuit. He testified that while they were running Manaige exclaimed:

"I am going to get him."

White claimed that he merely flashed a gun to frighten Manaige away and did not understand how the revolver came to be exploded. He said the pursuit continued and that when near the viaduct he was so frightened and weak he could hardly stand and that he then turned and tried to frighten Manaige, who seized him by the neck and a scuffle was begun during which the third shot was fired, in some manner not to be explained.

White denied emphatically that he made a statement to Officer Roberg that he hoped that Manaige would die.

During his entire examination, White was very careful in every statement that he made and his testimony was practically unshaken by the cross-examination.

County Attorney McClintock questioned him as to the two revolvers which he had in his possession and White said he knew only one of them was loaded, but when he pulled a gun he did not know whether he had the loads or the empty revolver.

Mr. McClintock asked White how it happened that there should be three accidental shots all of which took effect, but White said he was unable to explain how it happened.

White said he had no recollection of pulling to trigger of his revolver.

In his closing testimony this morning White said the two revolvers he had were given to him, one by Weston and the other by Gerlach. These, he said, were his only personal effects at the time the trouble occurred.

He reiterated his testimony of yesterday in that he was frightened and did not know what he was doing.

When cross-examined by Mr. McClintock and pressed to tell why his recollection of the trouble is now so vivid, when he claimed to have been very drunk at the time of the shooting, White replied that the things which transpired all came back to him after he was placed in jail. He declared that it was not an uncommon thing for a man to remember afterward what he did while drunk and had no recollection of doing when he was in an intoxicated condition.

White admitted that he called on nobody for protection while attempting to run away from Manaige, and said he fired only to scare the bartender. Manaige, he declared, looked mad and not like a man who was simply trying to arrest him.

Mr. McClintock asked what he, a Scotchman, was doing with a Scandinavian crowd, and White answered that when a man is drinking he is liable to go into any place.

Weston, one of White's companions at the time of the trouble, was not available for a witness for the reason that after the shooting affray in this city he was arrested in Superior for a hardware store robbery and sent to the Wisconsin penitentiary.

Gerlach, the crupple, asked County Attorney McClintock if the state would pay his fare back from the Twin Cities, if he should be wanted as a witness, and on being told that it would, he disappeared and has not been heard from since.

MALARIA

Chills and fevers are rampant at this season of the year, and unless checked and cured at once with Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky, will undermine the constitution and pave the way for typhoid, bronchitis, pneumonia and consumption.

Mr. W. Everett Gunby, 420 E. 11th St., Wilmington, Del., Pronounced Incurable, Finds Health and Strength in Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

"Malaria entered my system," he says, "and was followed by lung trouble. Doctors said I could not be cured, but, thanks to Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky, I am today as strong and healthy as any man living, and am at my work as an engineer daily."

Malaria is a germ disease and

is the greatest nerve destroyer in the world. It is an absolutely pure tonic and stimulant, which purifies, strengthens and invigorates every organ and part of the human body and enables each to perform its function naturally and to throw off and resist disease.

For half a century "Duffy's" has been prescribed by more than 7000 doctors and used exclusively in 2000 hospitals for the cure of malaria, chills, typhoid and low fevers; nervousness, indigestion, dyspepsia; bronchitis, grip, coughs, colds, pneumonia and consumption, and for all run down, weakened and wasting conditions of body, mind and muscle.

It contains no fusel oil and is the only whisky recognized by the government as a medicine.

CAUTION—When you ask for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It is the only absolutely pure medicinal whiskey, and is sold in sealed bottles only; never in flask or bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and be sure the seal over the cork is unbroken.

All druggists and grocers, or direct, $1.00 a bottle. Medical booklet free. Duffy Malt Whisky company, Rochester, N. Y.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Howard—Henry Krantz was arrested on a charge of causing the death of Mrs. Humphrey Davis, an aged widow living at Canova. She died, the doctors say, from the effect of a criminal assault, and she made an ante-mortem statement accusing Krantz of the crime. He was arraigned and took a continuance. He stoutly declares his innocence.

Yankton—Tony Giesler, of Hudson, was found unconscious near the Milwaukee railroad track. His skull is fractured. It is supposed he fell from a train.

Pierre—Reports from many sections of the state tell of the use of traction engines for breaking prairie. This manner turning over prairie sod, with a gang of several plows, is said by those who have tried it to be much cheaper than the use of horses for the same work, as one engine will do the work of several plow teams.

Deadwood—The hotel building owned by Charles Jolitz was set on fire. The landlord found John Elmer, a well-known house-mover, standing close to the fire. Jolitz gave chase with a gun and captured Elmer and took him to the county jail, where he is held for arson. There is said to have been a misunderstanding between the two men for some time.

The Catholic sisters have planned to double the capacity of St. Joseph's hospital, which will cost $22,000. Surgical operations from all parts of the Hills are performed at the rate of from ten to twenty a week. As many as fifty have been treated at the hospital at one time.

None of the local contractors put in bids for the new government building in this city, for the reason that they considered the appropriation too small to complete the building according to the plans. The bid of $161,889, made by W. H. Maxwell, of Marquette, Mich., is believed to be too cheap to carry out the plans. One local contractor figured that it would cost $200,000 for the cut stone and brick alone. The building is to cover about a block of ground in the heart of the city and will be of cut stone.

Vermillion—Fruit growers of Clay county held a meeting at the court house for the purpose of perfecting a fruit growers' association. The meeting was well attended, and in the election of officers E. L. Collar was named as president, F. E. Jones vice president, S. M. Totten secretary; A. Carpenter, E. L. Collar and S. M. Totten directors.

The object is to arrange for the shipment of fruit daily. A general manager will be appointed to look after shipments and orders and the growers will work as a unit in disposing of their crops.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Lidgerwood—While driving home William Simon, a well-to-do farmer, was thrown from his wagon. His spinal column was injured, a rib crushed and an ear nearly torn off.

E. A. Movins received a telegram from Tucson, Ariz., that his son Leonard, who had been sick there since last September, died this morning. The remains will be brought here for burial.

Grand Forks—Frank O'Reilly, aged 12, was probably fatally injured by William Bolanger, a boy of the same age. They were playing bandit, when O'Reilly was shot through his left lung with a rifle bullet.

New Rockford—At the county convention held at Sheyenne to select delegates to the judicial convention at Carrington a delegation favorable to the incumbent, S. L. Glaspell, was selected by a vote of 41 to 19.

Minot—John Kelly died at Rugby as the result of a fight May 10. L. L. Deveraux, it is charged, struck Kelly on the head with a monkey wrench.

SHERIFF'S RETURN

To the Lone Star State and How He Explained It.

The Texas Lady Postmaster Said, "Bill, Let's Dust."

Washington, May 18.—The Hon. William Sanger, sheriff of Arnim, Texas, who married the lady postmaster of this now famous "hats off or no mail order" and left for Washington on his honeymoon more than a month ago, has returned to his home in the Lone Star state and intends to stay there, for the present at least. Just why he gave up his expressed intention of paying a visit to Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow and putting up with him for a week or so he explains in a letter received at the postoffice department the other day. This is what Mr. Sanger has to say about his troubles:

"Dear Friend Bristow: I'm sure feeling small and picayunish these days—me being accustomed to keeping my word; but you, being a married man, can understand that it ain't always possible to pick your own trail and romp along frisky and uncaring when there's a woman yoked up with you. That's the way it was with me.

"We left town all right after the boys gave us a send-off, and jogged along gradual and aimless—the same being considered right and proper under the circumstances—till we came to New Orleans. Of course, I ain't excusing myself none to speak of, but we sure did like that place and we fooled around there till one day Mrs. Sanger—the same which is the lady postmaster—says to me, right serious and concerned: 'Bill, let's dust. You ain't no giddy millionaire, and if we hit the trail much longer in the direction we've been going, when it comes time to turn around we'll sure have to jog home in short hikes and camp, frequent, so as to ease our feet.'

"And when I took stock I sure did feel little and onery—me realizing the truth of her remarks.

"We sure had our troubles after we got back home. When we set out from New Orleans for our shack we agreed not to let on about not getting up to see you, previous to going me having been some free and open in my conversation about what we was intending to do—and we was lying real ornamental and coming along fine when one day the mayor—which ain't been none too friendly since I took up with the lady postmaster—says to me:

"'Bill, was the president good to you?'

"'Good to me?' I says, plumb disgusted. 'Don't you suppose the president has got something else to do besides being good to an onery cowpuncher and greaser-chaser like me? You get that loco weed out of your system and don't ask such fool questions.'

"The mayor he looked at me sharp and he says, quiet and calm, like he does when he thinks he ain't feeling that way:

"'Course you saw the president, Bill. You wouldn't go to Washington without seeing him.'

"'Oh,' I says lying some plentiful and ornate, 'I went up to see him, but he was mighty busy and I got tired of waiting.'

"Then the mayor he jumps up and howls gleeful and ribald, and the rest of the boys they follow suit.

"'Bill,' says the mayor, hopping round some undignified, 'you're a good liar, but you ain't good enough to rop- this bunch of longhorns. You ain't been to Washington at all.'

"Well, I saw it wasn't no use to stretch my tongue superfluous and unnecessary and I grinned sheepish and gives in. And then I says to the mayor:

"'Just tell me how you know.'

"Well, after the boys had resumed their guns, and Sam—which is the barkeep—had dusted the plaster off the counter and set out the drinks, the same being on me, the mayor he chuckled some more and he says:

"'Bill, you're plumb ignorant and you need a guardian. Why don't you read the papers some? I suspicioned when you says you hadn't seen the president that you were sure lying hard and desperate about this Washington trip, and I was plumb convinced when you said that about waiting at the White House. There ain't no cow-puncher or similar specimen that ever went to Washington what had to wait more than five minutes before the president sashayed out and went for him, and usual they sleep at the White House and take their meals with the family. If you and your lady had showed up in them parts you sure would have been treated that way.'

"'What does he do it for?' I asks, plumb unbelieving and mystified. 'He sure ain't got no call up there for friends what can handle their armament speedy and accurate.'

"'Well,' says the mayor, sort of stumped, which was told by the critical way he tasted his liquor—he not being partickular in his brand—'I ain't worked that out yet. You and me sure ain't ornamental to society, and we ain't up on politics, and so I ain't fixed and certain in my mind about his reasons.'

"I sort of thought maybe the mayor might be lying—he being right noted for the frills he can put on a straight story; but a lunger named Norton—which is here for his health—told me the same thing.

"'That's what makes this man Roosevelt so popular in a community like this,' he says, 'I didn't say nothing, and in a minute he says, sort of arguing: 'That's what makes him so strong in this town and other places like it.'

"'I heard you, son,' I says to him, 'and I was just reminded of poor old Coffin Charlie, the best undertaker you ever saw. This town had a boom once, account of the gold in the vicinity—of which it hain't none—and Charlie was the undertaker in those days.

"'The town was real proud of Charlie, we being the only one in these parts that had a real sure enough undertaker who knew his business, and we was all mighty nice to him. Some of the boys was so tickled with the style he done things in that they was real active and friendly drumming up trade and seeing that Charlie didn't stop no lead on his own account.

"'And we was real respectful to him, account of his calling, and everybody turned out with him every time there was a funeral, even when he planted Old Mexico, who got his branding irons mixed and went out sudden without any mourners what declared themselves. But Charlie didn't appear to appreciate it none to speak of, an' finally he got so he did all his planting of an afternoon so he could have the morning for his bronco busting aspirations—and he sure wasn't no adept.

"'After a while the boys got to treating him casual and friendly and just like one of themselves, till one night he didn't get to the floor quick enough while Kid Peters and Old Man Handy—him that used to deal in Sam's place—were having a little argument, and he stopped three loads from the Kid's forty-four.

"'We gave him a fine funeral, but we was all agreed that it was plain to see that if he'd stuck to his undertaking and hadn't mixed aroun' so promisc'ous he'd been alive right now.

"'It's sure sensible and cautious, down this way, to stick to your own line of business and let your friends know what it is.'

"'And this lunger Norton he agreed there was some sense in what I said.

"'Well, pardner, I've been sure garrulous and talkative, but I'm going to quit right now and take something for this here cramp in my hand, which I'm right confident can be treated internally.

"'My lady—meaning Mrs. Sanger—says things are all right in the postoffice and that she ain't got no kick coming. I hang around there considerable these days when everything's peaceful and quiet and the greasers ain't plentiful, and I've been noticing that everybody is sure polite and gentle when they're in the postoffice.

"'A woman which is determined and can handle her armament some casual and flippant—the same being traits belonging to Mrs. Sanger—can do a whole heap to elevate the manners of a town. I'm hoping to see you soon. Regards. So long.

"WM. SANGER."

SCHOOL GIRLS

Take a Long Tour Like Ordinary Hoboes.

New York, May 17.—Twenty-one daredevil school girls have been missing from Rosemary Hall, Rock Ridge, Conn., since Thursday night, when they started on their annual week's cross-country walk.

When they left each girl carried a knapsack. In it were fork and knife, tin plate, tin cup and an extra pair of shoes. Each young woman wore a felt hat, a sweater, a short skirt and walking boots.

They avoid villages, cooking their meals in the woods and fields, and finding a farm house to shelter them at night. Each morning they are off at daybreak. While they set out to make 100 miles in three days their record at the end of the tramp usually is about half that distance. Most of them are daughters of wealthy parents, and they come from all parts of the country.

ROBBED HIMSELF

Is the Opinion of the Chicago Police.

Chicago, May 17.—In spite of his protestation that a robber slashed his satchel with a knife and robbed him of $1,205, at the City hotel, Sixteenth and State streets, Arthur Bristow, a farmer of Bedford, Iowa, is being detained by the Twenty-second street police until they can satisfy themselves that he did not rob himself.

Bristow came to Chicago Saturday with eighty horses, which he sold at the stock yards. After requesting and securing his pay in cash, he says he hurried down town to catch a train back to Iowa. He now declares he missed two trains in succession and went to the City hotel to spend the night. The alleged robbery took place while he slept in a chair in the hotel.

The police refuse to believe the story. They say the satchel that contained the money was cut from the inside. Capt. Backus of the Twenty-second street station, nevertheless, says the case will be thoroughly investigated.

PRINCE LUN SURPRISED

To Find That Everybody In America Is Educated.

Chicago, May 17.—Prince Pu Lun, of China, has made an address in Chinese to an audience of 700 students at the University of Chicago. His remarks were interpreted by Gen. Wong, a Yale graduate. The prince said in part:

"From the time I landed at San Francisco during my entire visit to your country I have been most surprised to find that every man and woman in America is educated. This I believe is the basis of the success of the American people."

Gen. Wong also spoke, making a plea for the easy admission to the United States of Chinees students. He said:

"One-fourth of the Chinese students who were in this country when I was in college at Yale have since fallen in battle, shot in front. To get shot in front was something they learned in America."

NOT HEARD FROM.

Steamer Conemaugh Last Reported on Feb. 28.

New York, May 17.—The International Navigation company's steamer Conemaugh, which left Seattle for New York Dec. 13 last, has not been heard from since Feb. 28, when her captain telegraphed the New York agents that he had touched at Coronel for coal. At the offices of the American line it was said today that they had no fears for the safety of the boat. They thought it quite possible in view of the poor quality of the coal which the captain reported as being all that he could secure at Coronel, that he might have been obliged to caal at some other South American port to replenish his bunkers. The Conemaugh has a general cargo of Pacific coast freight. She was originally the Sacra Bosca, which was burned to the water's edge at Newport News some years ago.

INSTRUCTED FOR HEARST.

California Delegates Wheeled Into Line.

Santa Cruz, May 18.—By a majority of nineteen votes the Democratic state convention last night instructed the delegation to the national convention at St. Louis to vote for Congressman W. R. Hearst for president. The vote stood: For instruction, 365; against 346.

The day was consumed in attempting to affect permanent organization, drafting resolutions, oratory and clearing the desks for a vote.

Floodwood—George Blackwood, J. W. Meddaugh, Jacob Schumacher.

Pike Lake—H. C. Kendall, Jeff Daniels, Hugh Cox, Rufus Johnson.

Eveleth—Charles McNamara.

The following is addressed to the veterans by the committee:

"Comrades: The children expect you to attend their exercises which have been prepared at great expense of time on the part of both pupils and teachers, of which they want that we should show our appreciation. Most of our number say that they are no speakers, but what is wanted is not so much speaking as the presence and interest on the part of the old in the lessons of patriotism learned by the young. Remember how, when we were boys, we enjoyed the appearance of the survivors of the war of 1812, at the Fourth of July celebration, and thus understand what the presence of the veterans of the civil war is to the school children of today. Principals of the schools will not call on any visitors to speak who have not consented to do so, and will much appreciate a note from each of you stating to the principal of the school you are to attend your acceptance and intention to act upon your detail.

F. H. BARNARD,
S. F. WHITE,
Committee."

Democrats Drop Bank Directors For Electors.

New York, May 18.—A committee of three appointed by Chairman Meyer of the Democratic state committee, to investigate the eligibility of James T. Woodward, Harry Payne Whitney and Isidore Straus, national bank directors, as candidates for electors on the Democratic national ticket, have finished their report.

They have decided to recommend that the three names be dropped from the ticket. The committeemen express some doubt as to whether national bank directors are actually ineligible under the law, but deem it best to take no chances.

BATTLESHIP PULLED OFF.

Rhode Island Not Injured By Muddy Experience.

Quinc, Mass., May 18.—No attempt was made to float the battleship Rhode Island yesterday, owing to the ten foot drop in the tide, but about an hour before high water last night six tugs took hold and succeeded in pulling the big vessel off the flat into the basin.

The Rhode Island rested on an even keel all day on the flat with her stern almost out of the water, but the bed was an easy one, so that as soon as the full force of the flood tide struck her she readily yielded to the steady pull of the tugs.

No attempt was made to dock her tonight nor was there an examination of her hull, but it is believed that she sustained no injury from her ten hours' repose on the mud bank.

HE SWORE

When He Was Arrested on Wife's Complaint.

Evansville, Ind., May 18.—Louis Mason so far forgot himself last Friday as to use profane language in the presence of his wife. Mrs. Mason is opposed to profanity, and in order to break her husband of the habit swore out a warrant for his arrest. Mason was found at his home by the officers who went to serve the warrant and quietly submitted to arrest. He was at a loss to know what crime he had committed, and when told that his wife had caused his arrest on account of the language he used merely remarked:

"Well, I'll be ——."

Mrs. Mason says her husband has a large vocabulary of cuss words, which he brings into use every time he drinks more than he should. She says he came home the other evening and made use of the entire list, directing the invectives at her. She believed if he has to pay a fine for the offense he will be cured of the swearing habit.

SMALLPOX PATIENTS MARRIED.

Boonville, Ind., May 18.—Justice Thomas B. Youngblood yesterday married William Walker, in quarantine as a smallpox patient, and Miss Maud Cox. The couple stood in the front door of the quarantined house and Justice Youngblood pronounced the ceremony from the opposite side of the street. The bride and groom had been betrothed for some time.

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free. Reg. sizes 50c, $1.00.

FIVE THOUSAND FOR WAR FUND.

Belgorod, May 18.—A deputation from the government of Koursk has presented the emperor with $5000 for the war fund. In bidding farewell to the Thirty-first artillery, which will leave in a few days for Manchuria, the emperor presented the brigade, in the nameo f the emperess and himself, an ikon of St. Nicholas.

GROSS EARNINGS

Of Minnesota Railroads Show Increase Over 1902.

St. Paul, May 18.—The Minnesota gross earnings in 1903 of railroads doing business in the state were $6,898,735.42, or $599,608.93 more than in 1902. The taxes on these were nearly $2,000,000, about $50,000 more than in the previous year.

S. G. Iverson, state auditor, has received reports from all companies except the Great Northern and the Wilmar & Sioux Falls, a branch of the Great Northern. From figures in the office of the state railroad and warehouse commission it is ascertained that the earnings of the Great Northern were approximately $17,800,000, as compared with $16,754,263.48 in 1902, and that the earnings of the Willmar & Sioux Falls were about $75,000. The taxes on this amount of 3 per cent amounts to $534,000, as compared with $502,627.90 in 1902.

Half a Bottle Made Her Well

Paine's Celery Compound

GIVES ALMOST INSTANT EFFECT.

Most Wonderful Restorer in The World.

"I Just Take a Few Doses of Paine's Celery Compound and I am All Right Again."

BRACES, INVIGORATES, CURES

"I Wish I Could Tell Every Woman in the Land, Paine's Celery Compound is the Most Wonderful Restorer in the World."

"I wish I could tell every woman in the land how much Paine's Celery Compound will help them.

"I can never thank the friend enough who told me to try Paine's Celery Compound. I had almost given up in despair. I was so nervous, tired and run down. I had no appetite, was constipated and could not sleep.

"I got ONE BOTTLE, and when I had taken HALF OF IT MY bowels were regular, my appetite came back and I commenced to sleep well. Now when I overwork and begin to get nervous and cannot digest my food properly, I just take a few doses of Paine's Celery Compound and am all right again.

SPRINGFIEILD, VT.

Mrs. NELLIE BAKER.

"It is the most wonderful restorer in the world. Before I learned what Paine's Celery Compound would do I had tried all kinds of medicines and nothing had helped me."—Mrs. Nellie R. Baker, Springfield, Vt.

Try Paine's Celery Compound today. You will feel better at once. Learn how much better you can feel. Go to your druggist. Get one bottle. Feel just ONCE that abundant new nerve force made by Paine's Celery Compound. You will NEVER AGAIN be contented with low spirits and poor health.

All doctors know the celebrated formula of Paine's Celery Compound. It is neither a secret nor "patent" medicine. Its merits are approved by every school of medicine.

It gives your system nature's nerve food—Celery—and through the inner nerves gives instant power and vigor to every organ and function of the body.

"The only Real Cure—for Blood, Bowels, Stomach, Liver or ANY organ—is that which cures the REAL CAUSE. Treating symptoms is mere waste of time. The Cause of nearly all disease and pain is in the inner nerves."

—Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D., of Dartmouth University—Famous Discoverer of Paine's Celery Compound.

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

Social, Musical and Art Circles.

Yesterday afternoon the last meeting of the domestic science classes of the Young Women's Christian association was held. No special celebration marked the the close of the classes for the summer. The department has been under the direction of Miss Alice Keepers during its first year, and has been successful. Classes in cooking and sewing have been carried on, and a great amount of good accomplished. The cooking classes have been most popular, and housewives and girls that expect soon to be housewives have profited by the instruction, as have these for whom they cooked at home. One class was formed for the servant girls and several were sent by the employers at their expense.

The sewing classes have been popular, especially with those young women who were anxious to make their own shirt waists. There has been an attendance during the year of between fifty and sixty.

During the summer Miss Keeper's successor will be elected by the board and the department is expected to accomplish even more during the next year.

Saturday evening, at 7 o'clock, the postponed annual membership meeting will be held. At this meeting the reports for the year will be read, and if a quorum is assembled, the election of four or five members of the board will take place. Fifty members are the necessary number to be present before business may be transacted. Saturday evening many of the members will be down town, and at 7 o'clock the meeting will be held, to last three-quarters of an hour.

THE SHIRT WAIST SUIT.

One of Shortcomings to Be Guarded Against.

With the prediction of frosts by the weather man the feminine mind turns inevitably to the shirt waist suit. This year more is heard of the shirt waist suit than ever before, and every class of goods, from the loveliest silks to the 45-cent goods, reduced to 15, are placed alluringly before the purchaser as "our special importations this year for shirt waist suits." The term has an attractiveness that is almost irresistible. It brings at mere mention a cool sunshiny, grass sparkling, lake dancing summer morning with yourself in a shirt waist suit of your favorable color, or the goods the clerk is shaking temptingly before you, trim, taut, secure, and, above all, with that indescribable style that good tailoring gives, and which a shirt waist suit is supposed to have. Alas and alack! Realization brings disappointment. In spite of the fact that nearly a ten-years' war has been waged against the divorce evil of skirts and waists, many of the shirt-waist suit wearers this year will sally along with a belt midway between the belt of the waist and the band of the skirt. The new wide belts ought to help some, and with the numerous contrivances on the market for just this need, no excuse is permissable for the deplorable condition.

The girls and young women of the present day are a puzzle to one old-time mother, who thinks the present day girl could be called the safety-pin girl. The safety pin has shown so much in the last few years that a girl was complemented the other day in this wise: "A Jim-dandy girl, trim and taut, in other words, no safety pins showing." Be the clothes ever so pretty and the weather ever so lovely, she is undone when the placket or belt line is. Gear up! And in the provision for the shirt waist suit of this summer provide a few good old-time hooks and eyes for the securing of the waist and skirt, that the realization of the shirt waist suit may come nearer the anticipation of the same.

PROGRESSIVE GAMES.

Some Rules Suggested For General Guidance.

The Des Moines News gives the following rules for private progressive parties:

A—On entering.

1. Give as brief a greeting as possible to your host and hostess.
2. Wedge your way gently but firmly through the guests to the table where prizes are displayed noting:
   a. Money value of each.
   b. Use that each might be to you.
   c. Taste displayed by the hostess.
3. Next find table assigned you so as not to delay the businesss of the evening.

B—During the game.

1. Guard your hand and your manners.
2. Remember your grammar. Do not say "Has the bell rang?" nor "I done that well."
3. If ignorant of the game, play a bluff and look serene.
4. If your partner does not know it, remember he may know something else.

C—On leaving.

1. If successful, carry the cut glass creamer and sugar bowl or the wine set or soup tureen in a nonchalant manner under the left arm, as otherwise you may seem to be carrying off the dinner service of the host.
2. If unsuccessful—go home anyway.

Woman's Happiest Age.

When a girl is 18 she thinks the best time of a woman's life must certainly be from 18 to 22. When she has passed her twenty-second year, she is decidedly of the opinion that from then until the age of 28 realy marks the limits of the best time, and when 30 comes on the scene she is ready to give way to those who believe a woman to be then at the zenith of her life.

It is generally maintained that after 25 the average woman begins to attain her physical and mental perfection, and after that for some eight or ten years after this she still retains her charms undiminished. After this time, of course, it depends entirely upon the woman whether she chooses to advertise her years, or by her charming personality and clever dressing conceal all ravages of time.

SPEAR NAMED FOR JUDGE

The Ohio Republican State Convention a Tame Affair.

Columbus, O., May 18.—The Republican state convention reconvened here today with a small attendance outside of the 951 delegates. There was little in the convention proceedings to attract crowds.

As the temporary organization was made permanent, Governor Herrick again presided. The reports of the committees were adopted without incident, including that of the committee on resolutions, presented by its chairman, Senator Dick, who received an ovation.

William T. Spear, of Warren, was nominated for supreme judge on the third ballot. Lawson Emerson, of St. Clairsville, was renominated for clerk of the supreme court.

Governor Myron T. Herrick, Senators Foraker and Dick and G. B. Cox were made delegates-at-large to the national convention at Chicago, amid great excitement.

The convention, at 1:30 adjourned, after adopting the Eagle as an emblem.

DELIGHTED WITH IT.

Oarsmen Greatly Tickled With New Shell.

No crew ever went from Duluth to a shell contest as well boated as the Duluth Boat club eight will go to Madison. The members do not seem to be able to say enough in praise of the new craft, which is being taken out every day. The crew is said to be showing up unexpectedly well.

The practice course is a straight one, secured by sighting from the electric light station stack to the old Superior elevator, after leaving the boat house 300 feet. The first eight, which is to race, goes nearly over the course when it is picked up and paced on the home stretch by an extra eight in the club's old shell. Last night there were twenty oarsmen out, both eights and a four being in circulation.

CARRIE OWES FIFTY

Because She Wagered That President Used Tobacco.

Chicago, May 18.—When Mrs. Carrie Nation visited the office of the anti-cigarette league last week she poked her umbrela through a picture of President Roosevelt.

"He's a smoker and chewer," she said.

"The president is a nice man and would not use the filthy weed," rejoined Miss Lucy Page Gaston.

"Prove it and I'll give the league $50," said Mrs. Nation.

"Yesterday, in Williard hall, Miss Gaston exhibited this message, addressed to her, from the White House:

"The president does not, and never has, used tobacco in any form. William Loeb, secretary to the president."

"We will get a new picture with part of the $50," said Miss Gaston, cheerfully.

DEMOCRATS CARRY DENVER

According to Returns Whole Ticket Is Elected.

Denver, May 18.—On the face of returns which are still incomplete the entire Democratic ticket has been elected in this city. Robert W. Speers' majority over John W. Springer, Republican, for mayor, probably will be over 3000. Republicans intend to contest.

RAILROAD NEWS

No Rate of One Fare to Twin Cities Yet Made.

Would Be Disastrous to Make An Open Rate.

Announcement made locally of a one-fare rate to the Twin Cities from all points in Western Passenger agency territory, to be in effect for sixty days this summer, seems to have been premature.

General Agent George M. Smith of the Omaha wired General Passenger Agent Teasdale, at St. Paul, as to the matter and received this reply:

"Do not know where such information was obtained. We have no knowledge of any such rate being made to the Twin Cities, and do not think there is any liability of any such rate being made. There will be a summer tourist rate from all W. P. A. territory to the Twin Cities, and also to Duluth, the basis to both points being practically identical."

An open rate from all points in Western Passenger territory to the Twin Cities, it is said, would paralyze ordinary local business, as it would in effect be the reducing of rates on all ordinary business which obtains profitable, regular rates. It would mean that for a period of two months, according to the announcement that was made, Duluth people could go to the Twin Cities for one fare for the round trip, as well as people in all other sections of the Western Passenger association's domain, which includes considerable space in Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin. The public would welcome the rate, but railroad men say it is doubtful whether such a rate would be likely, as it would be too general.

One possible reason suggested as causing such a rate is said to be the desire of the Western lines to divert some of the World's fair excursion business into this region.

Mr. Teasdale's telegram does not specify just what the rates will be to the Twin Cities and Duluth, but it is thought they will be the same as last year.

New Road Nearly Ready.

F. D. Lyon, of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific road, was here yesterday from the Twin Cities. He says the company expects to have passenger trains running over the new line between St. Louis and Kansas City by June 5. There is already considerable competition between the two points, the Burlington, Wabash, Missouri Pacific and Chicago & Alton each having a line between the two cities.

"We will be the shortest line between the two cities," said Mr. Lyon, "and in order to do this the company has in many cases stayed away from some towns of pretty good size. This permits it to get a straight road. A lot of men from this vicinity have done work on the road, which was being hurried all winter to get through in time for the World's Fair business. Our people got laborers from the Twin Cities and Duluth constantly to open the road and at one time had 5000 men at work along the line."

Business Openings.

A book entitled "Business Openings Along the Great Northern," has had its fifth edition issued by the road, and it describes the needs of stations on the company's lines. Hotels wanted mostly in small towns are, 59; banks, 37; barber shops, 33; blacksmith shops, 34; drug stores, 57; brickyards, 24; canneries, 22; creameries, 34; furniture stores, 22; hardware stores, 35; harness shops, 34; laundries, 19; lumber yards, 25; meat markets, 33; physicians, 53; restaurants, 26; starch factories, 13, and shoemakers, 21.

Wants Excursion Rate.

Nelson Thomasson, a real estate dealer of 85 Dearborn street, Chicago, has written the Commercial club of this city to ask the co-operation of that body in securing a round trip rate of $10 from Chicago to Duluth for the summer season.

Mr. Thomasson would like to see an open rate that all could get the benefit of. The one way rate is $13.55, and if such a rate were secured it would make it worth while for Duluth people who wanted to go down to send to Chicago for round trip tickets, if they were unable to buy them from scalpers in Duluth.

Railroad Personals.

E. A. Lindgren, immigration agent of the South Shore, is at his desk again after an extended illness.

B. B. Mitchell, general freight agent of the Michigan Central, and W. C. Lewis, assistant general freight agent, were among the local visitors this morning.

WANTS TILDEN PLATFORM

Judge Parker Thinks It Should Be Short and Sane.

New York, May 18.—"From my conversation with Judge Parker at his home, I am convinced that he is in favor of a short, sane and conservative platform in the coming campaign; something that the whole people can understand and approve of. I remarked to him at the dinner table in his home, that we ought to have a platform this year like the Tilden platform of 1876. The judge said, 'yes, that was not a long platform' and he repeated it, word for word. I believe Judge Parker would make as conservative a president as Washington himself."

Col. John S. Cunningham, president of the Tobacco Growers' association of North Carolina and a member of the Democratic committee of that state, thus expressed himself at the Waldorf-Astoria after his return from a visit to Judge Parker at Esopus.

Col. Cunningham, with ex-Lieutenant Governor Sheehan and Mrs. Sheehan spent Saturday with the Parker family. The Southern visitor was enthusiastic in discussing with a reporter, the New York jurist as the coming leader of the Democratic party in the presidential campaign.

"I had known Judge Parker by reputation many years," said Col. Cunningham, "and was more than pleased with the opportunity of meeting him in person. I very much liked his democratic manners.

"I look upon him as a man of great ability and I think he is without doubt the most available man for the presidential candidacy. I think he will be elected and I am convinced that he is the best qualified and most conservative leader since the days of Tilden. My opinion is that in the national Democratic convention he will have the support of the entire South.

"I believe that Judge Parker will be nominated as soon as the convention meets in St. Louis. I think that the state conventions when they meet should indorse Judge Parker and instruct their delegates to the national convention for him.

"The North Carolina state convention will meet next month and I am confident that it will unanimously instruct for Parker. There is absolutely no other candidate down there."

WOMAN'S WIT

Saves the Life of a Telegraph Operator.

Snoqualamie, Wash., May 18.—Mrs. A. J. Barlow, wife of a section foreman in Snoqualamie, saved the life of C. J. Ingraham, a telegraph operator, who was shot by a bandit, and then telegraphed the alarm to headquarters, resulting in the capture of the outlaw.

Ingraham was shot twice in his office by a robber, who then looted the place. Mrs. Barlow heard the shots and found Ingraham lying on the floor, desperately wounded.

In response to her telegrams to the train dispatcher a special train was sent for Ingraham, whose wounds she meanwhile had dressed. He was taken to a hospital while a detail of railway men captured the robber.

Madison and Return $9.65.

May 16, 17 and 18, Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets to Madison and return, account Republican state convention, at one fare, $9.65 for the round trip. Good returning until May 21. For tickets and full information call at city ticket office, 332 West Superior street.

A SENSIBLE SUGGESTION.

The city water board, after consideration of the matter of a secondary water supply for the western end of the city, has made a report to the council favoring a reservoir at West Duluth instead of laying a second main. The board contends that the proposed secondary main along the point of rocks would be both costly and inefficient, and claims that the reservoir could be built for half the cost of a secondary main laid the entire distance.

This appears to be a sensible suggestion, and the only ground for criticism is that the board has been so slow to make it. Breaks in the main that supplies that end of the city are of frequent occurrence, and it is only good fortune that serious fires have not occurred as a result. The city can amply afford to make this outlay as no doubt it will be the means of saving the amount in reduced cost of insurance within a very short time.

The board's suggestion that the remaining $40,000 of the $100,000 bonds voted four years ago be sold and the money placed at its disposal so that the reservoir can be built the present season is a good one and should be acted upon by the council at once. The need is imperative and the expenditure would be a matter of municipal economy.

TRUE CIVILIZATION.

Prince Pu Lun, heir apparent of the Chinese throne, is doing the Pike at St. Louis. Recently he was given a reception by the people of St. Louis and officials of the World's fair. That China is making progress in the ways of true civilization is made evident by the very fact of this prince's visit to this country. It is further made manifest by some sentiments he expressed when interviewed by a reporter. Speaking of the matter of "the Yellow Peril," he said it was an "empty alarm." Why should China be a menace to other nations, he asked, when its northern portions are as sparsely settled as our own Western states; when there are railroads, schools, colleges and factories to build; when the vast mineral wealth of China is virtually untouched, and when there are so many openings in that country for progress and prosperity? In concluding his interview, he said:

"Would it harm the world did we embrace progress and do these things that we have to do? So many of the white people seem to think that civilization and progress consist wholly in soldiers and battle-ships. In China we hope to become so far civilized that we won't have either soldiers or battle-ships."

Prince Pu Lun's opinion is only that of one man, but it is an indication of the workings of the Chinese mind. The same sentiments are often given expression by other distinguished members of that nation.

How often of late have Americans turned a look of inquiry upon the people of these heathen lands only to be taught that in reality they are more civilized than ourselves. True civilization will only come when armies and navies are entirely abolished. Is it any wonder that China resents the invasion of foreigners who bring with them ideas of conquest and slavery?

IN A NEW GARB.

Judge William J. Gaynor's solution of the trust problem is a very simple one. In a recent address before the American Social Science association in Boston, he said:

"The greatest commercial crime of our day and generation is favoritism in freight rates.

"Freight favoritism is the mother of trusts. The first trust was built up wholly by discrimination on the part of the railroads.

"All we need is for the government to appoint a general freight agent for every road."

Now, is that not grand? So simple, you know. But, come to think of it, the same plan has been proposed before, and after all Judge Gaynor has said nothing new, although he has garbed the thought in somewhat different language from that used by the ordinary socialist.

Before the government appoints a freight agent for every road it must first obtain the power, and when it obtains that power the government would be the practical owner of every road in the country. The next step would be to guarantee a certain interest on the stock and bonds and then go ahead operating the railways.

This New York judge may have found the true solution of the transportation problem, but before the government appoints the freight agents the people will take a vote on the question of government ownership, and it is plainly evident that the time is soon approaching when they will demand the opportunity.

THE TURNER CASE.

Sustaining the action of the United States immigration authorities at the port of New York in ordering the deportation of John Turner, an Englishman, and a self-confessed anarchist, Chief Justice Fuller contended that this nation had the right under the constitution to exclude any or all foreigners if it sees fit and that, therefore, under the law excluding anarchists, Turner would have to go.

The chief justice said that the matter of abridging free speech, of religions or political liberty was not a question in this case, because these guarantees applied only to citizens, and Turner was not a citizen, but an alien. He intimated in his decision that should an attempt be made to deprive an American anarchist of the privilege of giving public expression to his doctrines there might be difficulty in doing so.

The opinion of the chief justice is important in that it recognizes the authority of any nation to keep out foreigners if it so desires. He says "it is an accepted principle of international law that every sovereign nation has the power, as inherent in sovereignty and essential to self-preservation, to forbid the entrance of foreigners within its dominions." You notice he did not say white nations, or civilized nations, but every nation.

That is good doctrine. It is good democratic doctrine. It is just doctrine. That justifies the Indians in resisting European invasion. That justifies the Filipinos in resisting American invasion. That justifies the Kaffirs in resisting Boer invasion, it justifies the Boers in fighting England, and again it justifies the Boxers of China in antagonizing the forcible entrance of foreigners in that country.

If America has the right to deny admission of Chinese that are guilty of no crime (and who will deny that right?) then have not the residents of Thibet a right to resist the invasion of their country by the uniformed and armed representatives of English greed?

No man has a moral right, not even the bearer of a Bible in one hand and rum in the other, to go into another man's country unless he is invited. Neither the Filipinos nor the Porto Ricans ever invited the United States to come and save them from themselves. When the Turners and the Chinamen and the paupers desire admittance to America let them organize an army sufficiently large to establish their right by might. Until then it is unlawful for them to come until invited.

A JUST DECISION.

The question often arises, when a man seeks and obtains employment at a dangerous occupation, whether he does not himself assume a risk. It is certain that he does assume the risk of any injury caused by his own carelessness or negligence, but the courts of the country have generally held that the employer is responsible for any injury he sustains as a result of the carelessness of a fellow employe. Millions of dollars in damages have been awarded to men who were injured as the result of fault of their co-workers on railroads and in other dangerous occupations.

Now comes the supreme court of the United States with a decision which completely upsets all precedents and makes it practically impossible for any man injured while in the employ of a corporation to recover damages through the federal courts unless it be the fault of the company itself. The decision is a sweeping one and will be far-reaching in its effects. It was given in a case wherein a locomotive fireman on the Northern Pacific railroad was killed as a result of wrong orders given by a telegraph operator. The wife of the dead man sued for damages, and the case was carried to the supreme court. By a vote of 5 to 4 the court decided that "the negligence of the operator was the negligence of a fellow-servant of the fireman, the risk of which the latter assumed."

A dissenting opinion was delivered by Justice White and concurred in by the chief justice and Justices Harlan and McKenna. In this dissenting opinion the view was expressed that the operator was the agent of the employer and as such his negligence rendered the employer liable for damages or death caused thereby. The opinion was further expressed that the court's decision would create much confusion.

The dissenting opinion is the one that has been upheld by the courts generally for years and the majority opinion is in the nature of a revolution. But to many people who have given this matter unbiased thought this decision will come as a confirmation of a just conclusion. When a man accepts employment in a dangerous occupation he certainly should assume the risk. When he is injured as the result of the error of a fellow-workman it is the latter who should be responsible for damages, not the employer. The fact that the fellow employe is often without means to pay damages does not alter the moral obligation. It is not fair to rob Peter to pay Paul, neither is it fair to rob a corporation to pay the debt of an employe.

Let us suppose, for instance, that a man of small capital starts a small factory. As a result of the error of one of his employes another is injured. Why is the owner responsible? How can he look into the future and protect himself from the employe who is liable to make mistakes? It would be just as reasonable to make him responsible for any injury he inflicts upon himself through his own fault.

The way out is for men engaged in dangerous occupations to insure themselves against injury from accidents caused by themselves and by fellow employes. The employer should be responsible for the consequence of his own carelessness, but that is all.

THE FIELD SURVEY.

If there was nothing for disease germs to feed upon none would live in the human body. It is quite plain that the germ is not the cause of disease, but a result. The body that is fortified by good blood and right living can resist all the germs.

The mayor of Detroit, Mich., at a public meeting recently subscribed $25 toward a fund to assist the cause of the union miners in Colorado. A few nights later he ordered his police force to break up a meeting in the streets which was being addressed by a man named Philip Engel, who was speaking on the rise and fall of nations and the cause and effect thereof. HOTEL GOSSIP

P. A. Nicholas, who was at the Spalding a couple of days ago, hails from Geneva, N. Y., which is at one end of the Seneca lake, one of the most picturesque of the small bodies of water in the United States, and on the other end of the lake is the famous Watkin's Glen. The neighborhood is a great one for grape-growing and wine-making. Cayuga lake and Keuka lake being near by and both being surrounded by fertile land which is very healthy for vineyard cultivation. Cornell university is on Cayuga lake.

Mr. Nicholas was at one time a member of the board of supervisors at his home town, and while the Democrats were in the minority, on account of his favorable standing, he was elected president of the board, despite the Republican majority of two which controlled the body. According to what Mr. Nicholas says, there were consolations in belonging to the minority, for one well-known man of the neighborhood, who made exceptionally good wine, used to come around every little while and give each Democratic member three bottles of his wine, which was famous for its quality, as the maker was not making a product to sell, but for his own family's use. But the Republicans on the board did not go dry, although the wine man never made them a present of the wet goods. The Democrats were always liberal and "set 'em up" to their political adversaries.

Mr. Nicholas has some land interests in this vicinity which he came up to look after. It is his first visit to this section of the United States, and he was considerably interested in the development of the region. He is a cousin of Hamilton M. Peyton, of this city.

He was born in England and is 29 years of age. He is proprietor of a department store, but it is said he contemplates taking up the profession of law.

"I wonder how far north the wild geese go to raise their young?" mused an old hunter the other day. "They must go away up north far beyond Winnipeg, and you'll notice that they usually stop at Devil's lake both going and coming. They certainly get somewhere well out of reach of hunters.

"They fly in a wedge just like the flying wedge you've heard of in football games. Their flocks are always three-cornered. The leader may be a few feet ahead of the flock, which comes along behind in triangular shape, with the front corner directly behind the leader and the sides sloping off in either direction.

"They're mighty keen when they're picking in some white field. They land on a wheat stubble to get a little grain, and you can't steal a march on them to save your life. They have sentries out in different directions, and when anyone approaches it is literally impossible to deceive them. The sentry nearest the enemy gives a warning to the flock and they get a move on in double quick time. People have no idea of the sharpness of these birds, and I sometimes think that instead of being called wild they ought to be called civilized, as they certainly are up to tricks about as keen as most birds that are called wild."

* * *

There are people who are particular and people who are not. Particular people who have peculiar names are those who get the worst of it in many instances through mispronunciation of their cognomens, and some of them don't hesitate to make known the fact, and correct any false impression that exists as to how their names should be called, or their titles.

A local railroad man who represents a well known Vanderbilt property was telling a reporter an item not long since about the expected arrival of some friends of his who belong to the same company.

"They will visit the local agent while here, will they?"

"They will visit their district passenger agent," was the smiling rejoinder.

"Well, if someone called up your office and asked for the local agent wouldn't you willingly adopt the title if you thought there was a chance to carry a carload of people?"

"Well, that would be telling. But we ought to get these things right, and I ought to as well as the newspapers.

"I remember an instance that I ran across of miscalling a man of some prominance and was jumped for it. I was down in New York and was with a friend of mine. We visited the office of F. H. Heinze, the copper miner, who is a brother of August H. Heinze, the Montana copper king. The latter looks after things at the mine while F. H. handles the New York end.

"We waited in the ante-room for some little time. I wanted to see Heinze about some copper shipments as I was then looking after some freight business for an eastern road.

"Pretty soon he came out and spoke to us, asking which was I, calling my name. I answered I was the one and said:

"'Is this Mr. Heinze?' making it one syllable and calling like you would Hines.

"He bristled right up. He said 'My name is Hein-ze, sir, not Heinze.'

"I apologized. He's a big man and I did not much mind it, although I guess if I could have made him buy a drink I would have done so. I have had people slam my name around all over the country till you wouldn't recognize it but I did not care. Of course any person is entitled to have his name called according to the proper pronunciation, but there's no use of a fellow with a queer name getting gay about it. He ought to make allowances."

JUST FOR FUN.

Baltimore American: Naggsby—Was Braggsby surprised when he was nominated for the governorship?

Waggsby—Surprised! I should say so. Why, he was so taken aback that he almost forgot the speech of acceptance he had prepared in advance.

New Yorker: Agent—Madam, could I sell you this book of fairy tales?

Mrs. Muchwed—No; I've been married four times, and fairy tales are a chestnut with me.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: "You say the thoughtless act of Mrs. Stingyleigh caused her husband a serious relapse? What did she do, in Heaven's name?"

"Why, she came right into the sick room arrayed in a very expensive spring hat and dress."

Boston Transcript: Walker—But there is one insuperable objection, at least to my mind, to the automobile—the terrible odor it emits, you know.

Shofer—But, my dear fellow, you forget that it is somebody else who gets the smell.

Chicago News: "When I married you," sneered the aristocratic husband, "your father was in trade."

"True," replied the wife, with a sigh long drawn out, "and I was badly sold."

Yorkers Statesman: He (during the quarrel)—Well, I don't seem to cut any ice in this world!

She—Well, it's a safe bet that you'll not be in the kind of climate where you will be able to cut any in the next.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: It's very easy for a clever man to get around a woman—with his arm.

No man can break a girl's heart as easily as some other man can repair it.

It's mighty curious, but the fewer square feet there are about anything a woman wears the more cubic yards of money she puts into it.

When the open-work shirt waist season comes a man always has the embarrassed feeling he has the first time he is ever in a Turkish bath.

It's mighty hard to make a woman believe that if her husband used her sewing machine oil on his razor he could cut himself so often.

A Campaign Programme.

My Uncle Jim's a candidate;
They chose him from the lot.
He says they will elect him
To the office, like as not.
It ain't his wondrous learnin'
Nor his talent that commands,
He hasn't got much money,
But he's great at shakin' hands.

There's somethin' awe inspirin'
In the way he clears his throat
And stands with one hand stuck inside
His new Prince Albert coat.
It's finer than the music of
A dozen big brass bands
When he says "How-dy-do" an' goes
To work a-shakin' hands.

He ain't a-makin' lengthy talks,
Like he made in the past;
I honestly believe he's got
The right idea at last.
He smiles with patronizing pride,
His bosom broad expands,
An' he don't say another word,
But keeps a-shakin' hands.
—Washington Star.

More Thibetan Stupidity.

New York World: Including the casualties at Gyangtz in their last engagement with the British the Thibetans have now sacrificed nearly 1,000 tribesmen to a Quixotic defense of their native land against the peaceful promises of trade benefits, along with a few Maxims, and only desire to interview the Dalai Lama at Lhasa. It is a heavy price to pay for the crass stupidity which cannot discern the inward benevolence of the motives of Col. Younghusband's "diplomatic mission."

What Reporters Are For.

New York Sun: A Tammany alderman warned the reporters from the newspapers in these portentious phrases yesterday:

"Gentlemen, your days are numbered. The time will soon came when the editors will no longer require your services. The time is coming when facts and statements will be prepared and typewritten copies sent direct to the editors of the newspapers."

The waste basket of every editor in Christendom is overflowing this minute with "facts and statements" contributed by watchful friends; and when the reporters are discharged all the rascals and frauds in the land will rejoice with the politicians.

Quay's Indian Blood.

Springfield Republican: There is an interesting explanation of Matthew S. Quay's kindly thought for the Indian, so often moving him to valuable service. He is a 20th part Indian himself. Way back in the 18th century an ancestor was stole by the Delawares, brought up as an Indian and married a woman of the nation. From that marriage Quay is descended. Now that he is anticipating death he is preparing souvenirs and heirlooms for his friends and family in the shape of sketches of his connection with the Delaware nation, and photoraphs of himself in the costume of a Delaware chieftain.

One the Complement of the Other.

At a social gathering not long ago a member of the ultra swell set who had just sued her husband for divorce and won a verdict was chatting with a bachelor whose gallantries are matters of frequent comment. The hostess remarked to Harry Lehr: "Mrs. Blank and Mr. Dash seem to be getting along nicely together." "Nothing more natural, my dear madam," was the reply. "She is a grass widow and he is a rake."

The Effect of Black.

London News: On the bare arm paint a broad line in Indian ink and expose the arm to the strong sunshine. A slight inflammation sets in on the unprotected skin, but not under the black paint, which excludes the light rays (but, of course, not the heat rays). Some days after the skin is darker (sunburned), except where the Indian ink was painted, there is a white line in the skin. Exposing the arm again, the inflammation sets in only in the white line. The brown pigment caused by the sun (sunburned) at the first exposure protects the skin against the chemical rays. Therefore are negroes black, and travelers of white skin may protect themselves in the tropics from the sun by black or red paint.

Confession of a Clergyman.

Detroit News: "In my younger days," said a clergyman today, "I used to talk much of the beauty of death—how sweet to step from a world of sin and care to one of joy and peace and light, etc.

"One day I fell sick. I consulted a doctor. 'Tell me the exact truth as to my condition,' I begged. 'Well, said the man of pills, 'you may live six months in this climate. You have a fatal disease. You must go to a dryer region—or die.'

"Well, I forgot all about sin and care and joy and peace and light. I revolted at the thought of dying. I got sore on the angels. I didn't want to see 'em. I just wanted to stay in this old world of my acquaintance. I made a hard fight. I won.

"But now when I talk of death I speak of it as something to be shunned. I paint no more roseate pictures of flower-laden caskets and nodding hearse plumes."

A Bargain Spoiled.

"Mom," said little
Johnny Cupp,
"Let's trade baby
For a pup.

"I kin git Bill
Sinks to trade,
Skin 'im in the Deal thet's made."

When his mother
Said: "No, sir,"
Johnny made a Face at her.

Nature's Lesson.

Smooth down those wrinkles in your heart
And iron out the pain:
Remove those gray hairs from your soul,
Those "crowfeet" from your brain.
Go join the Do Not Worry club
Of birds and beasts and things—
The bullfrog has no voice at all
Yet tries his best to sing.

When sorrows sting and worries cling
And fortune aims a blow
A tuneful stunt at whistling
Will banish half your woe.
God give us lungs and throat for songs
And not for whimpering—
The bullfrog has no lungs at all,
And yet he tries to sing.

Pease Pen Points.

Anoka Union: Joel Heatwole writes as a man with grievances, by the way he lashes C. A. Smith.

It begins to look as though the delegates might have something to say or do at the next Republican state convention. Hope they will.

The Union would be more than pleased to see a kink or two taken out of the Republican state central committee at the next state convention.

Rumor has it that Billy Hearst is to start a paper in Minneapolis, and it is said he can start out with a circulation of 80,000. It is told that when a paper reaches a certain circulation it has gained the maximum, and can charge only so much for advertising. The highest price has been reached. Hearst can take 80,000 from his Chicago edition and not feel it or affect advertising rates, and transfer them from Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, the two Dakotas, to the Minneapolis edition.

Antony and Cleopatra.

When Cleopatra was a queen
She dwelt in splendid pomp;
A giddier gal was never seen—
She was the village romp.

She met Marc Antony one day,
When he blew in from Rome,
And for her, so historians say,
He left his happy home.

He moved his Sataroga trunk
To Cleopatra's flat;
She called him "Anty" (this was bunk)
And he called Cleo "Pat."

I wasn't there, but I have heard
They carried on just frightful;
The climax, it may be inferred,
Was not at all delightful.

Marc's neighbors back in dear old Rome
Began to knock and knife,
Until the gossip reached his home
And exercised his wife.

Then Marc committed suicide,
A reckless thing to do;
And Cleopatra up and cried
And then remarked, "Here, too."

She sent to Keeley's for a snake
And let it bit like fury;
The coroner arranged a wake
And hustled up a jury.

The Keltic Kraze.

Have ye noticed yet, mavourneen, who's the poet o' the day?
'Tis the wild and mystic Irishman that pipes the Keltic lay
Of the chin, white soul with the red, red hair
That sings in the twilight dim—
Osh, Moira!
Fiona!
And the Kelt is in the swim.

There is aye the cold old mother-sea, the ocean dread and cast;
There's the faery this and the faery that, and the wind that blows from the Past;
There is aye A Voice [in brackets] speaks,
And a green-clad child slim—
Ah, Norah!
Go bragh Yeats!
And the Kelts is in the swim.

There'll be poethry yet, ma colleen, in the diggin' o' the spuds;
Sure, now, an' there'll be poethry in the washin' of the duds;
The shillaly will be swung about
As the staunch old Keltic limb—
Arrah, now!
Bejabbers!
And the Kelt is in the swim.

LA FOLLETTE CONTROLS WISCONSIN CONVENTION

lette would have a majority of delegates, and quite a few to spare.

The Baensch delegates, at a long drawn-out caucus, perfected a "steering" committee and planned to march to the convention today with the avowed purpose of demanding what they consider their rights, namely, the seating of all the delegates claimed in the Baensch column. Only a portion of the Cook supporters attended the caucus, and only as individuals.

Senators Spooner and Quarles and Congressman Babcock were today counselling "no bolt."

The city is crowded with strangers, and every train today brought a large number of crowded coaches.

The plan of the governor's followers, it was said today, would be to renominate the present state ticket from top to bottom and to elect Governor La Follette to head the delegates-at-large to the national convention. The latter part of the program, it was said, might be overthrown, and Senator Spooner might head the national convention delegation. The general opinion seemed to prevail that this honor should be accorded to the senior senator.

A new departure in Republican politics in Wisconsin is the election of officers, usually elected by the various congressional district caucuses, by the state convention. This state of affairs came to light today when the time came for the caucuses to meet. The call, which was issued by the state central committee, it appears did not call for caucuses, but simply the establishment of different headquarters. This, it was stated, would result in a defeat of the anti-third termers for district officers.

The latest phase of the factional fight brought out a new plan of the anti-third termers. It was said now that they would go into the convention, all who could, and in the event of not being accorded their alleged rights, would hold a little convention of their own in the regular convention hall and later adjourn. In doing this they believed they would be acting lawfully. After the preliminary meeting, an adjournment would, it is said, be taken to another hall and a complete ticket nominated.

The appointment of delegates, as decided by the state central committee, after deciding the contests, gave to La Follette approximately 580 and to the opposition 485 delegates.

When the time came for calling the convention to order, there still remained many vacant seats. At the entrance assigned for the reception of delegates was stationed a small army of deputy sheriffs, deputy sergeats-at-arms and policemen. The delegates were compelled to enter single file and no person without a badge was able to get beyond the reinforcements.

The anti-third termers marched in a body 550 strong, but only those who could display a badge were admitted.

As soon as the delegates were seated Gen. George E. Bryant, chairman of the state central committee, called the convention to order and introduced the Rev. E. G. Updike, who offered prayer.

Gen. Bryant then ordered the roll call. At this point, Malcolm G. Jeffries, of Janesville, demanded that a temporary organization be effected before the roll call and demanded that his protest be recorded. No attention was paid to the protest. This was in accordance to the plan of the anti-third termers. The roll call then proceeded.

After roll call Gen. Bryant introduced Irving Lenroot, of Superior, as temporary chairman.

Mr. Lenroot eulogized McKinley and referred feelingly to the national calamity which resulted in the demise of the late president. Continuing he said:

"Theodore Roosevelt became president and since Lincoln's time the Republican party has not had a greater leader, nor our country a greater statesman. In the past four years of Republican administration, great results have been achieved. The financial policy of the Republican party is now so firmly entrenched in public opinion that it is no longer a political issue. Our policy with reference to the Philippines and other islands of the sea has been so wise, so just and so human that 'imperialism' the danger cry of the Democracy four years ago is heard no more.

"The Panama canal, the dream of decades, will soon become an accomplished fact.

"One of the tenets of the Republican party is the protection to American industries by means of tariff schedules. That policy has made the United States the greatest nation in the world and its people more prosperous and contented than any other on the globe. That policy has become so firmly established that no serious effort will be made to overthrow it. The Republican party will insist upon a tariff that, in the words of President Roosevelt 'shall always protect the conditions of American life by a duty at least equivalent to the difference in the labor cost here and abroad. Some schedules will be revised by the Republican party, the friend of protection, and not by its enemy, the Democracy.

"The laws placed upon our statute books by the Republican party in reference to unlawful combinations and monopolies have been vigorously enforced, and the great 'merger decisions' recently affirmed by the United States supreme court has proved to be a salutary check upon the organization of great combinations.

"The great breeder of monopolies has been the granting of discriminating rates and rebates by the railroads to favored shippers. The Standard Oil company is the greatest monopoly in the world. It has become such through the granting of rebates, preferential rates and drawbacks by railroad corporations. No individual, no manufacturing concern can long continue to prosper, when competitors receive special favors denied to others. The present Republican administration has amended and strengthened the interstate commerce law in some respects, but it still falls far short of affording the public adequate protection.

"In this matter our president will be supported by every true Republican and good citizen of our country and the immediate necessity for the legislation advocated by him is strongly emphasized by the fact that transportation charges in the United States have materially advanced during the past four years, as is conclusively shown by the report of the interstate commerce commission for the year 1903."

The speaker endorsed the administration of Governor La Follette.

Public service corporations came in for a good scoring "in preventing the enactment of laws imposing upon them the same burdens of taxation as are borne by individuals."

Mr. Lenroot was enthusiastically received and was applauded many times throughout the delivery of his speech. Especially was this marked when he referred to La Follette and the state issues. Roosevelt's name was warmly applauded.

POSTMASTER AT MARKESAN.

Washington, May 18.—The president has appointed Ernest S. Mottram postmaster at Markesan, Wis.

SHRINERS LEAVE

Forty Go to the Gathering of Sons of the Desert.

Twenty-Five Candidates From Duluth Will Learn Mysteries.

Over two score of the faithful sons of the desert allied with the Mystic Shrine left this afternoon at 1:55 over the Northern Pacific for St. Paul to attend the annual meeting of their tribe in that city. A North Coast limited observation car was attached to the train for the especial use of the Arabs. According to tradition, all such journeys are made by camels, but owing to the press of general business the nobles decided to go by steam power and exchange experiences in mysticism on the way down.

Cocoanuts and camel's milk are said to have been plentifully supplied on the train. Some of the "Solomonic reflections for the benefit of the Neophytic pilgrims en route to the hippodromic festival of the Bad'a'ones" are as follows:

"Rely not upon thy friend's word during this journey; he hath an affliction, a convenient forgettery; some call it abatement of thought, others allenation of mind. We call it a simple case of lying.

"We are assured of a large class of candidates and every opportunity will be afforded the timid novice to escape prominent notice.

"The gladiatorial ordeal will not be beyond the endurance of the strong; and the weak, if they present a request from their family physician, will be permitted to go way back and sit down' where the heat may scorch, but cannot burn.

"Bury your sorrow and care, look for the bright things everywhere, and live in the atmosphere of fun, fun, fun.

"In making the passage over the bridge of Al Hotama, which is finer than a hair and sharper than the edge of a sword and beset on either side with thorns, don't fail to 'Hang on to the rope.'

"If you think anything has been omitted, let it be known, there is always something left—

"Tell not thy spouse as to thy home coming, thou'll't not know, we care not, bring thy pass key—yea, and the key hole."

Among the features of the evening after three blasts of the Imperial Bean Bruno Gaikman Ridler of Barodu will be wailing dervishes, droning eunuchs, bewitching houris, Zingari dancers, majestic slaves, the rajah's chanters and the "captivating Fatinitza, whose beauty bewitches and beguiles all neophytes."

Following are among those who undertook the pilgrimage today:

Neophytes or candidates: B. A. Marshall, J. U. Sebuenios, Cameron Hewitt, F. D. Adams, John Saari, W. W. Brooks, G. S. Munsey, George Lurch, Fred Lurch, A. W. Shaw, J. E. Watt, G. H. Good, T. J. Michaud, Percy Armitage, G. H. Thompson, E. S. Saunders, A. W. Lane, Charles Trezona, W. A. McCurdy, T. A. Stewart, L. A. Johnson, W. H. Vaughn, John Harkey, J. O. Norlander, James Kelley, A. W. Holmes.

Accompanying members: H. Van Brunt, J. P. Johnson, G. H. Harris, P. Bayha, J. A. Watterworth, C. H. Lutes, John Rossman, L. P. Totman, George Lounsberry, E. G. Wallander, C. J. Dahl, W. J. Bates, Seig Levy, Edward Hazen, A. W. Kuehnow, M. J. Bryan, H. Nesbitt.

ALL WERE BLACK ONCE,

Says Bishop Turner of African M. E. Church.

Chicago, May 18.—"God never made a white man. In the beginning all men were black, but in their wanderings on the earth many of them have become bleached. And in their unnatural pallor many of the bleached men, all of whom were made black at the begining, now look with contempt and indifference, often with prejudice and hate, upon their brothers, the negroes, who have retained the color that God gave them."

Such was the declaration of Rev. H. M. Turner, senior bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal church, in an address in Quinn chapel before one of the sessions of the church's annual conference.

APPROPRIATES SWEET STUFF

James Ransom Steals Preserves and Falls Into the Toils.

James Ransom, alias "Sharkey," does not find living expensive in Luluth. It is true the rents may be high for him, but he has an easy method of acquiring food and clothes.

Yesterday he found himself short of grub so he is claimed by the police to have entered the basement of the confectionery store at 504 West Superior street, and to have appropriated about 100 pounds of cheese and some twelve quarts of preserves, which he feared would spoil if left in the basement during the warm summer months.

The proprietor objected to this cornering of the cheese market, and fearing that the diet of cheese and preserves would not agre with Sharkey, asked the police to arrange for his board with Sheriff Butchart.

The police investigated the matter and finally located Sharkey.

When he was brought in to leave his monogram on the police register, he had some extra clothing with him that looked as if it might have been borrowed from some woodsman without his consent. It was confiscated by the police, who are looking for the original owner.

Sharkey was arraigned before Judge Windom this morning on the charge of petty larceny. He pleaded guilty to the charge, admitting he had taken the preserves, but disclaiming the cheese. He could give no explanation as to how the cheese had escaped, but intimated that it might not have been fastened and walked off.

The proprietor said it was some choice old cheese, and the court was willing to give the prisoner the benefit of the doubt in this respect, or otherwise the charge might have been grand larceny.

He betrayed a peculiar reticence about the clothing found in his possession, and the police could gain no clew regarding the true owner of the property.

Judge Windom did not look very favorably on Sharkey's taking ways and he sentenced him to pay a fine of $40 and costs or spend fifty days in the county jail.

Sharkey did not have the money, so he was given free board and lodging for fifty days, with the privilege of wielding a sledge hammer on blocks of granite, for pastime.

DIETZ SUPPORTED

By Friends In Fight With Lumber Company.

Barron, Wis., May 18.—All is quiet at Cameron dam, on the Thornapple. The drive has been abandoned for the present. It is definitely known that the stories of shooting told of Dietz are false. All persons acquainted with the facts in the case relative to the dam sympathize with Dietz. No warrant has ben served upon him and none will be.

The brothers of Dietz, at Rice lake, who were on the ground, say there is absolutely nothing in the whole yellow story beyond the dispute between Dietz and the lumber company. The company seems to have quit, pending a settlement.

THREE MEMBERS

Of Family Die Within a Few Hours.

New Haven, Conn., May 18.—The home of John Whipple is literally a "house of death."

Whipple has lost his wife and two children, one a pretty girl of 8 years and the other a new born babe, whose death only just preceded that of the mother.

Cerebro-spinal meningitis came into the Whipple home on Friday, and on Saturday the 3-year-old daughter was dead. With her baby just born, Mrs. Whipple lay ill in bed. In a little while the babe died.

When the undertaker arrived he found doors and windows of the home fastened. The feeble voice of Mrs. Whipple was heard beseeching the undertaker to break down the door. Hastening to neighbors he secured an ax and forced his way into the house of death.

Whipple was found on the floor helpless. Hastening to the bed where the sick mother lay the men saw her breathe her last. In her arms lay the body of her dead child. In the upper room lay the body of the little daughter, who had died.

EX-GOVERNOR MERRIAM

Has Quit the International Mercantile Agency.

Washington, May 18.—Word comes from New York that William R. Merriam has severed his connection with the International Mercantile Agency, of which he became vice president upon its formation soon after he resigned as director of census. The cause of his resignation is not stated. Governor Merriam is expected in Washington next week, but his future movements and business connections are indefinite.

Resumption of Rail and Lake Service.

The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway announces the resumption of rail and lake service, commencing Friday, May 13.

By leaving Duluth Monday and Friday evenings, connection will be made at St. Ignace with the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation company's palatial steamers for Detroit, Cleveland and Buffalo and intermediate points.

By leaving Duluth on Sundays, Tuesdays and Fridays connection is made at Sault Ste. Marie with the Canadian Pacific upper lake steamers for Owen Sound, Toronto, Buffalo and all points east.

WORK IS SCARCE

Many Unemployed Men In Head of Lakes District.

Much Employment That Is Usual, Is Missing This Year.

Employment agencies and laboringmen are complaining that all contract work is very slow in getting started this spring and there is a large army of unemployed in the head of the lakes district.

Few orders are being received at the local employment agencies for men. Now and then an order comes in for a few river drivers, but outside of that work and a few small railroad contracts in Wisconsin, there is practically nothing doing for the employment of a large number of men.

Usually at this time of the year there is a large demand for men to work on railroad extensions, or spur tracks in the mining regions, but this year it is pretty quiet in that line and no contracts of any consequence have been awarded.

Summer logging is not yet well enough under way to create a demand for labor, though many of the woodsmen are staying about the head of the lakes waiting for the lumber companies to call for crews.

A great many unemployed men are reported to be tramping about in the timber districts seeking work at any of the camps that they may find and the loggers are complaining that the lumberjacks who are thus tramping and who have spent all their money, are making expenses run up considerably because of the meals that they get and are unable to pay for. The loggers have made it a rule for the past two years not to feed, free of cost, the wooodsmen who travel about from one camp to another, but under the circumstances, with no work in sight for the men, it is not an easy matter for them to turn a hungry man away because he has no money to pay for a meal.

One employment agent said yesterday that there is really more demand here in the city for labor than from the outside.

The work of repaving East Superior street, beyond Sixteenth avenue, is furnishing work for a number of men, especially the preliminary of getting the old cedar blocks out of the way and the building of a temporary track at the side of the street, by the street railway company.

When the company begins laying its new tracks in the center of the street in the district to be repaved, it will have work for an increased force.

The curtailed output of the sawmills in the Duluth district, which means the laying off of one shift of men at nearly all the mills, has thrown many men on the labor market who formerly earned good wages during the summer season. Some of the mill workers are leaving for other milling points with a view of locating if they can find employment.

What little demand there is for labor on the range is now easily supplied from the range towns direct where idle miners are looking for most any kind of work they can get.

AT CLOQUET.

Cloquet, Minn., May 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Misses Clara and Anna Larson spent Sunday in Cloquet.

Jonas Delia left Monday with a crew of men to break a jam on the St. Louis river about fourteen miles above Floodwood.

Miss Nellie McSyeeney, who is attending the business college in Duluth, spent last week with her parents in Cloquet.

Miss Mae Ryan returned to her home in Duluth last week after a brief visit with relatives.

Mrs. C. L. Dixon entertained St. Andrew's guild in the guild room Tuesday.

The engagement is announced of Miss Florence Marion Phernetten, of Eau Claire, Wis., to Eugene Bauman. Miss Phernetten was a former resident of Cloquet, having been employed as operator in the office of the Bell telephone. Mr. Bauman is a resident of Minneapolis, now employed by the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber company at Scanlon. The wedding will take place in July at Green Bay, Wis.

Jay Peacha, Bob Rogers, Frank Laundry and Dan Girard, four well-known Cloquet boys, enlisted in Uncle Sams' army last week for a period of three years. They expect to see service in the Philippines.

A concert by Duluth talent will be given in the Presbyterian church the latter part of this month.

Mrs. W. F. C. Gadau entertained her friends at cards last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. R. D. Vibert entertained a number of her friends at euchre last Thursday afternoon.

At a meeting of the library board last Thrusday evening a rule was unanimously adopted to govern the circulation of books, that hereafter the exchange of books in the evening be limited to persons of 16 years of age or over, and the librarian was instructed not to issue books during the evenings that the library is open to persons under that age.

Mrs. S. S. Johnson left last Friday for her home on the Pacific coast.

Mrs. Johnson, of Minneapolis, left last week for Spokane, Wash., after an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. Nelson Nesthur.

William McNair has returned from a business trip to Brainerd and St. Paul.

Mrs. Lea, of Carlton, is visiting relatives in Cloquet this week.

Mrs. William Dawson, of Scanlon, was a Cloquet caller Tuesday.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ryan died Tuesday morning.

Mrs. H. Frater left Monday for Duluth, where she expects to spend the summer.

Mrs. John Dorsey and her brother, P. Ronan, spent Monday in Duluth.

Mrs. L. P. Runkle is visiting friends in Superior.

Mrs. J. E. Lynds gave a thimble bee Monday in honor of Mrs. J. J. De Lasculle, of Davenport, Iowa.

Master Orman Harriman entertained a number of his little friends at a birthday party Friday afternoon.

Guy E. Taylor, brother of Mrs. G. M. Johnston, arrived from Rushville, Ill. and has accepted the position of assistant general manager of the McKinnon house.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Miller, of Barnum, and Frank McKee, of this city, took place Saturday, May 7. Rev. H. Foxton performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. McKee will make their home in Cloquet.

Rev. Andrew Nelson spent last week at Marquette, Mich. in attendance at the district convention of the Swedish M. E. church.

The Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church is arranging to give a supper and sale about the middle of June.

Disbrow, Prominent In Nebraska, Arrested For Swindling

Sioux City, Iowa, May 18.—While on his way home to Creighton, Neb., from a Masonic meeting in Fargo, N. D., Dr. A. E. Disbrow, a prominent Nebraska physician and Methodist leader, was arrested yesterday on a charge of swindling Joseph Hannah, of Bellingham, Wash., out of $2000.

While West a year ago he sold Hannah a secret formula for curing the whisky and morphine habits. After getting the money Disbrow left. The formula is alleged to be a fraud. Disbrow was arrested shortly after his return to Creighton by Hannah, but was released on habeas corpus proceedings. He will now have to go to Bellingham for trial.

Deputy Sheriff Parberry of Whatcom county, Wash., is here for Disbrow. The latter said the arrest is an outrage, that his jag cure is good, and that the sale of the formula was regular.

BANK FOR PANAMA.

New York Financiers Make Application to Goverment.

New York, May 18.—Interests identified with the National City bank of this city have, according to the Times, filed with the controller of the currency, an application for permission to establish a national bank on the isthmus of Panama, within the zone under the control of the United States. It is explained at the banking house here that technically the application was made by the National City, because of the provisions of the national bank act For that reason, it was said, the application was made by men prominent in the National City bank, including James Stillman, William Rockefeller and other representatives of Standard Oil interests.

It is stated by the Times that, under existing law, no national bank could be chartered for the canal zone and the application is merely to take advantage of any opportunity which may arise in future.

COURTMARTIAL FINISHES.

San Francisco, May 18.—The courtmartial convened to try the case of Lieutenant William B. Aiken has finished its labors at the Presidio. Only one witness was called, and that was Dr. Edmund D. Shortridge by the prosecution. The court then held a private session and a verdict was arrived at. It will be several days before the evidence will be handed to General MacArthur for his perusal and it will take some time to get the documents into shape. The verdict will not be given out before next week.

MRS. EDDY EXPLAINS

New By-Law Regarding Membership In Lodges.

Boston, May 18.—Mary Baker G. Eddy, pastor emeritus of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, who framed the recent by-law on organizations adopted by the church, has given to the Christian Science Journal the following explanation of this by-law:

"I beg to inform my beloved members of the mother church that the by-law in article XXVI of its manual, does not require members of benevolent and progressive organizations such as the Free Masons, Odd Fellows, temperance societies and those of similar cult, to resign their membership. It specifies in plain English that individuals who become members of our church shall not thereafter be made members of clubs or other organizations not named in its manual, and wherefore? Because our religious denomination demands the faithful attention and labor of its members in all philanthropic, therapeutic and progressive Christian work for the human race and relies upon the adequate, scientific source and resource therefor."

LITTLE BOY DROWNED

While Playing on Boom In Longyear Lake.

Chisholm, Minn., May 18.—Elmer Homberg, the 8-year-old son of Magnus Homberg, a woodsman, was drowned in Longyear lake Sunday morning. Elmer, with his sister, who is about 11 years old, was playing around the sawmill and ran out onto a large boom of logs. The girl attempted to persuade the boy to return to shore but he gave no heed to her warnings. The sister returned to the house, a short distance away, and informed her parents of the boy's danger. When the father and mother reached the lake the lad had disappeared and it is supposed that he slipped down between the logs and was unable to regain the boom.

HYDE'S APPEAL

Awaits Result of Fraud Charge Trial.

Washington, May 18.—The interior department has suspended indefinitely all action on the land cases in which F. A. Hyde is a party, and the contest between him and the state of Minnesota over a small tract of swamp land near Virginia is one of them.

Hyde's appeal was filed over a month ago, forwarded from the general land office to the secretary of the interior. It is now on one of the shelves in the office of the assistant attorney general for the interior department, awaiting action in criminal proceedings against Hyde for alleged land frauds in California.

CURE FOR LOCKJAW.

Nerves Affected Are Treated Directly With Anti-Toxin.

New York, May 18.—Two successful experiments in the treatment of tetanus have been made lately in Gouvernor hospital by a new mode proposed by a celebrated German. The patients treated were two boys, one of whom ran a nail into his foot. Instead of injecting anti-toxin into the blood of the patient whose foot was hurt, the physician made an incision at the groin, where the leg nerves join the trunk nerves, and the nerves themselves were injected with anti-toxin. The effect was beneficial at once. The patient left the institution completely cured. The other boy was treated in a similar manner and is getting well.

TAKE LAST GAME

White Sox Win Deciding Contest In Superior Series.

Gilbert's Wildness and Six Errors Cause the Defeat.

Although they were outbatted by Cameron's Colts yesterday afternoon, the White Sox succeeded in taking the deciding game of the series by the score of 8 to 4.

The victory was largely owing to the loose playing of the Superior team, and the wildness of Gilbert. The young southpaw pitched a magnificent game except for his wildness, and had he been given good support he would probably have pulled out a victory. He passed two men to first at critical moments, hit three with pitched balls and had a wild pitch to his credit, but only six hits were secured off his delivery. They were well scattered and had it not been for the six errors of the Superior team he would probably have pulled out a victory.

The Duluth team played a pretty game in the field. There were two excusable errors by Wilkes and Noldin, but otherwise they gave the pitcher perfect and snappy support. Noldin allowed nine hits, five of which were in the fifth inning.

Duluth started the scoring in the first inning. Corrigan got one of Gilbert's shoots in the center of his back, went to second on a wild pitch, to third on Ball's out and came home on Randall's out.

Three more came in the third. Corrigan, the first man up, secured the first hit off Gilbert's delivery. Ball reached first on Egan's error, and two bad errors by Cameron allowed Randall to reach first, and both Ball and Corrigan to score. Hughes drew free transportation and Zink reached first on a fielder's choice. Randall scored on Martin's long hit to center field. Laggar and Wilkes died at first.

The fifth run came on Martin's long drive over the left field fence in the fifth inning. Again in the seventh the White Sox started after Gilbert. Ball flew out to Foster, Randall singled, stole second and got to third on an error by Keas, which also allowed Hughes to reach the initial sack. Hughes stole second, in the opinion of Umpire Peterson, although the decision looked raw from the grand stand and the Superior players kicked strenuously. With two men on bases, Zink drove out a pretty single scoring them both. He went to second on Martin's out and came home on Lagger's hit over the short stop's head.

Noldin pitched magnificent ball until the fifth inning, allowing neither a hit or a run. In the fifth, however, he let up, and Foster started off with a single. Simonds followed with a double and Rogers and Gilbert both got singles, scoring Foster and Simmonds. Rogers was caught at third, however, and Keas and Cameron died at first.

In the sixth Chandler secured a double, Foster was given four bad ones and Simmonds brought in Chandler with a hit. Foster was caught at the plate, Rogers sacrificed and Egan struck out. One more run was added in the ninth on Noldin's fumble of Simmonds' grounder and Gilbert's double.

JUSTIFIES PLAYING

Jury Acquits Van Praagh Charged With Sunday Ball Playing.

Finds That Game Did Not Disturb Peace of Day.

"Not guilty" was the verdict returned by the jury in the case of L. A. Van Praagh, the manger of the Duluth Baseball club, who was accused of disturbing the peace and dignity of the Sabbath day by playing baseball on Sunday.

L. C. Harris, attorney for the defendant, admitted that Mr. Van Praagh had participated in a game of baseball on Sunday, and the only question on which there was any contention, was whether or not the game had disturbed the peace and quiet of the day.

The testimony of all the witnesses, both for the prosecution and for the defense, was to the effect that the game had been a very quiet one.

Mr. Harris requested the court to instruct the jury that no offense had been committed under the law, unless the conduct of the defendant in playing ball was such as to interrupt the repose and quiet of the day. This was in accordance with the statute of 1886. A former statute made ball playing on Sunday prohibitory.

The instructions of the court were unbiased and brief, and the jury retired shortly before 5 o'clock.

After deliberating about two hours a verdict of not guilty was returned.

The intimation previous to the trial that a decision by Judge Gaynor in Brooklyn with reference to playing ball on Sunday might be used in the trial was not borne out. As a matter of fact Judge Gaynor's decision did not pass upon the question of playing professional baseball on Sunday. In a letter to the Brooklyn Eagle he stated that the prosecution had not seen fit to bring that question to an issue.

NOLDIN IS OUT

Manager Van Praagh Transfers Big Southpaw to Superior.

Fans Will Miss Him, But One Pitcher Had to Go.

"Buck" Noldin, the big southpaw of the Duluth team, has been released by Manager Van Praagh to Superior, and will wear a Superior uniform during the coming season.

"Noldin is a good man," said Manager Van Praagh this morning, "but I have four pitchers without him and I have no use for his services. Superior wanted him and I let Cameron take him. Shaw, Gehring, Soukalik and Owens are still on the list and they ought to make a winning quartet."

Noldin pitched with Duluth during the latter part of last season and while somewhat erratic the general opinion of the fans seemed to be that he had a great wing. He has all kinds of speed and curves, and while he is apt to have off days, he generally pitches winning ball.

The Duluth fans will be sorry to see him go, but one of the five had to be released and after giving them all a fair trial Van Praagh decided to release Noldin.

No further changes are contemplated at present, and it is likely that the Duluth team will carry two pitchers and an extra outfielder for a month or two at any rate. Wilkes makes an excellent utility man and can play almost any position in the field. It is likely that Lagger will play the regular outfield position and Wilkes will be used as utility man, relieving any of the players who may be laid up by illness or other reasons. He covered third base yesterday in good style and he also plays a beautiful short.

Hughes and O'Leary will both be retained for some time to come. Two catchers are necessary for there is not another man on the team who can go behind the bat, and if only one catcher were carried an accident to him would about put the team out of business. This reduces the team to fourteen men.

No game will be played this afternoon. The men are stiff and sore from continued practice in the cold weather, and they are taking a rest preparatory to the opening of the season, tomorrow. Manager Van Praagh will accompany the team on the present trip. The players will leave over the Northern Pacific this evening for Fargo.

"Rusty" Owens will leave Minneapolis today and join the team in Fargo. He will be in the box tomorrow, if he is in good condition when he reaches that city. O'Leary will catch. "Jimmy" Foulkes will probably pitch for Fargo.

MYSTERY

In Death of Harvey Bradley In Texas.

Crookston, Minn., May 18.—It develops that there is a mystery in the death of Harvey Bradley, whose remains were shipped to Warren from Beaumont, Texas. He was discovered lying dead in a large oil tank at that place. The report that came to relatives here said he had fallen into the tank and was drowned. He was field manager for the Tice and Bradley company, and it was supposed he went to the top of the tank and was overcome by the gas and fell in. Holes were cut to let the oil out so that the men could go in and get the body.

This report was accepted as true at the time, but recent developments are of a more sensational nature. It seems that the opening at the top of the tank is several feet long, but only about twelve inches wide, and it would have been impossible to have pushed his body through without force. That he was dead at the time he fell in was proved by the post-mortem examination, for there was no oil on his lungs, and he could not have taken a breath after striking the oil. He had been in the tank two hours, according to his watch, which stopped as soon as the oil penetrated its works, the hands indicating about the minute he fell in. His remains were brought home by two brothers, who were with the same company, and they are much dissatisfied and may push an investigation.

CO-EDS IN TROUBLE

For Kidnaping Two Freshmen In Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., May 18.—Ten pretty co-eds at the State university, members of the junior class, have been notified to appear before the chancellor and explain their unruly conduct last week when they drove up to Nebraska hall in a hack and kidnapped the first two members of the freshman class who appeared.

The girls fought against capture, but were bustled into a hack and taken to the residence of one of the kidnapers, where they were undressed so that they might not seek to escape. They managed, however, to find some old dresses and were rescued at the end of a ladder by some freshmen.

It is expected that possibly three of the girls may be either expelled or asked to absent themselves for the remainder of the term. This is the first time any girl has been on Chancellor Andrew's carpet.

$1,000 for skillful spellers

if you can put together enough combinations of letters that could properly be

Pronounced Egg-O-See

You can share in the distribution of $1,000 in cash to be paid those who send in before June15,the word Egg-O-See spelled in the greatest variety of ways. This sum will be divided as follows:

To the one sending the greatest variety of spellings	$100.00
To the second sending the greatest variety of spellings	75.00
To the third sending the greatest variety of spellings	50.00
To the fourth sending the greatest variety of spellings	25.00
To the fifth sending the greatest variety of spellings	10.00
To the 740 sending the next greatest variety of spellings $1.00	740.00
Total	$1000.00

The prizes will be awarded immediately after the close of the contest.

Everyone can compete. It will be found equally interesting to the older people as well as children to whom we have paid thousands of dollars since last spring.

The only conditions are that you must send in your list on or before June15,1904; that the spelling must be such as could properly be pronounced Egg-O-See, and for every five different ways of spelling Egg-O-See you must send in one of the little folders, same as used in the school children's drawing contest, found in each package of the food—that is if you spelled the word 15 different ways you would need three of the folders. Be sure and write your name and address plainly. It is permissible to have others assist you. So when you have found all the ways of spelling Egg-O-See you can devise, ask your friends to assist you. Here are a few ways of spelling Egg-O-See: Egg-O-Sea, Egg-Oh-Cee, Eg-Ocy, Egg-O-Cie. Save the folders from Egg-O-See and it will be easy for you to get one of the prizes. We do this to further familiarize the people with the merits of Egg-O-See, the best of all flaked wheat foods.

EGG-O-SEE

It is now conceded that Flaked Wheat is the most healthful, economical and convenient of all foods. Egg-O-See has become the standard of these foods for two reasons—First it is incomparably superior in purity and flavor, and a large package retails for 10c.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR THE GREEN PACKAGE.

If your grocer does not keep it, send us his name and 10 cents and we will send you a package, prepaid.

WEALTH IN AN OLD TRUNK

Supposed Valueless Estate of Miser Makes Sister Independent.

Worcester, Mass., May 18.—A snug estate, amounting to about $32,000, of which $17,000 was in cash, and which has been accumulating for many years under the watchful eye of a Mendon miser, was discovered in the Worcester county probate court here, when Judge William T. Forbes opened an old trunk supposed to contain all the worldly possessions of Charles S. Harris, who died at Mendon on April 5. The discovery was brought about by the application of Lydia P. Harris, of Coventry, Conn., for the appointment of Henry S. Parker, of Coventry, as administrator of the estate of the dead man, her only brother.

After the filing of the petition the matter fixing the administrator's bond had to be considered by Judge Forbes, and he asked for an inventory of the property. During most of his life Harris boarded at the home of Abion A. Gaskill, in Mendon, and Gaskill was ordered to produce Harris' personal effects in court. It was thought that the dead man had no estate of any great value. The only visible property Harris left was an antiquated trunk, which Harris sent to Worcester by express. It was opened in the office of Judge Forbes, and those present, including Harris' sister, who is nearly 90 years old, were surprised when they discovered that the old box contained cash and bank notes to the amount of $32,000.

The discovery of the money almost overcame the sister, who had not expected to get anything more than a few dollars and some trinkets. Now she has enough to more than keep her in comfort for the remainder of her days.

A JONES PICNIC

To Be Held In Pennsylvania In July.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 18.—Every one in this part of the state blessed with the name of Jones is to attend a Jones picnic at Scranton some time in July, when there will be a thoroughly Jones day. No one who is not a Jones will be allowed to attend; the motormen and conductors of the cars running to the picnic ground are even to be Joneses, and so are the policemen and the waiters. Joneses will make speeches and sing songs; there will be a Jones baseball team opposing another Jones team; Jones choruses will sing in competition, and everything will be Jones. Scranton will contribute, among others, an ex-district attorney, an alderman, a city assessor, a deputy county treasurer, a sergeant of police and two patrolmen, a mail carrier and a councilman, while Wilkesbarre will be represented by a district attorney, a county detective, a chief of police and a councilman.

The program for the day will be: Chorus, the Jones Choristers; address, "Jones in Finance;" song, "It was Jones;" address, "Jones in Law;" song, "Did You See Jones?" address, "Jones Behind the Gun;" song, "There Goes Jones;" address, "Jones at School;" song, "Hi Jones;" address, "Jones in History;" song, "Good Boy, Jones;" address, "Jones in the Pulpit;" song, "Call Again, Jones;" address, "Jones Behind the Counter;" song, "Who Saw Jones?" address, "Jones in Coal;" song, "It's Nothing But Jones."

Cured His Mother of Rheumatism

"My mother has been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism," says W. H. Howard, of Husband, Pa. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all times walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried, in fact; she is never without it now and is at all times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with." For sale by all druggists.

LAUNCHING OF SHIP

Big Battleship Rhode Island Leaves Ways at Quincy, Mass.

One of the Finest War Vessels In the World.

Quincy, Mass., May 17.—The battleship Rhode Island was successfully launched today at the yards of the Fore River Ship and Engine company.

After the vessel had left the ways, the great craft had attained such headway that she could not be stopped in deep water and her anchor failing to hold, her stern was forced into a mud bank. Three tugs made fast to her as soon as possible, but the tide fell rapidly and they were unable to move her. A naval inspector who was present expressed the opinion that as the bottom was soft the ship would not be damaged in the least.

Congress in March, 1899, appropriated money for three seagoing coast-line battleships carrying the heaviest armor and most powerful armament for vessels of their class, and provided for two more by the act of June 7, 1900.

The bureau of construction and repair fully carried out the evident purpose of congress, for the design of the Rhode Island and class represents five most powerful battleships.

Of the five vessels appropriated for, three were required to be sheathed and coppered, and two without sheathing; immediately after being contracted for, however, the navy department took this question under consideration and decided to omit all outside sheathing and coppering, so that each vessel of the class is now a counterpart of the other, except for minor modifications incident to construction.

The general dimensions and chief characteristics of these vessels are: Length on load waterline, 435 feet; breadth, extreme, at load waterline, 76 feet 2½ inches; trial displacement, about 14,948 tons; mean draft at trial displacement, about 23 feet 9 inches; greatest draft, full load, about 26 feet.

In the 16,000 tons represented in each of these vessels, the many antagonistic qualities essential to a perfect fighting machine have been compromised and incorporated in proportion which experience seems to have pointed out as the most desirable and efficient. To begin with, these battleships will have a speed of at least 19 knots, which compares most favorably with any battleships under construction abroad, as well as with any in the projected stage.

The Rhode Island will be propelled at this high speed by twin-screws driven by two 4-cylinder, triple-expansion engines of about 19,000 indicated horsepower, having a stroke of 4 feet, running, under conditions of maximum speed, at about 120 revolutions per minute. The steam necessary to this power will be supplied at a pressure of 250 pounds per square inch, by Niclausse watertube boilers, placed four in each of six independent watertight compartments.

The Rhode Island will carry four 12-inch guns, forty calibres in length, mounted by pairs in balanced turrets one turret being located forward of the superstructure, and the other aft, and each having a total arc of train of 270 degrees. Of the eight 8-inch guns, forty-five calibres in length, which will be carried on this vessel, four will be mounted by pairs in turrets, superposed upon the 12-inch turrets above mentioned, and four in two broadside turrets slightly forward of amidships, the amidship turrets having a total arc of train of 180 degrees. In the Rhode Island there will be a broadside battery on the gun deck of twelve 6-inch rapid fire guns, fifty calibres in length, mounted six on each side, each with a total arc of train of 121 degrees. The secondary battery will consist of twelve 3-inch fifty calibre rapid fire guns, twelve 3-pounder, semi-automatic, eight 1-pound heavy automatic, two 30-calibre machine guns and six 30-calibre Colt automatic guns, all mounted in commanding positions and having large arcs of fire. The Rhode Island will also be fitted with submerged torpedo tubes.

The magazines will be specially fitted to enable them to carry, with absolute safety in all climates, the new smokeless powder. Provision will be made in the magazines for the storage of at least sixty pounds for each of the 12-inch guns, 250 rounds for each of the 8-inch guns, 200 rounds for the each of the 6-inch guns, 200 rounds for each of the 3-inch guns, and a plentiful supply of ammunition for the smaller guns.

So much for the vessel's offensive qualities. To make her defensive qualities proportionately great, she will be provided with a turtle-back waterline belt, 8 feet 8 feet in width amidships, 11 inches thick at the top and 8 inches at the bottom, tapering to a uniform thickness of 4 inches at the ends of the vessel. She will also have a casemate armored belt extending over about 245 feet of her length, of a uniform thickness of 6 inches, rising from the top of the main belt to the upper or main deck, thus covering the aft end to the barbette of the 12-inch turret by a 6-inch armored bulkhead, and having at its forward end an armored bulkhead of 6 inches thickness extending from side to side, thus forming a citadel or redoubt within which the 6-inch guns will be mounted. Within this citadel or redoubt, and extending from the forward turret to the after turret, light armor 1½ inches and 2½ inches in thickness, will form sub-divisions of the gun enclosures, thoroughly protecting the gun's crew from flying splinters and fragments of bursting shells. The barbettes for the turrets of the 12-inch guns are to be 10 inches in thickness for that portion outside of the redoubt or citadel, reduced to 7½ inches in thickness within. The turrets themselves will be protected by armor 12 inches in thickness.

The 8-inch turrets will, in all cases, whether superposed or independent, be protected by 6 inches of armor, with 6½-inch port plates, and their barbettes will be protected by similar armor. The conning tower and its shield will be 9 inches in thickness, and the armored tube, 5 inches thick, will be of sufficient size to receive all voice pipes, wiring, etc. In addition to the conning tower, there will be, aft, a second tower known as the signal tower, which will be constructed of 5-inch armor. From the bottom of the waterline armor belt there will rise a curved turtle-backed nickel-steel protective deck 1½ inches thick on the flat and 3 inches thick on the sloping sides, to make assurance doubly sure that no projectile of the enemy finds its way into the vitals of the ships. As an additional protection to stability, a cofferdam belt, 3 feet in thickness and packed to a density of eight pounds to the cubic foot, will be worked along the two sides, above theprotective deck, for the entire length of the vessel.

The material of construction is the high quality of steel which has entered into all the vessels of our navy. The main or upper deck, in addition to being built of steel, will be the only one upon which wood is to be laid. The lower decks will all be of steel, covered with linoleum. The use of wood in the construction of this vessel will be limited even more strictly than it has been in the latter battleships, and all wood-work above the protective deck, except deck plank, will be fireproofed. Bilge keels and heavy docking keels are fitted.

It is proposed to make all of the vessels of this class flagships, and to do this it is necessary to make provision for the accommodation of one flag officer, one commanding officer, one chief of staff, nineteen ward-room officers, ten junior officers, eight warrant officers and 772 crew, including sixty marines, making a grand total of 812. Both officers and crew will have wash rooms, bathrooms, and other similar conveniences such as will place the comfort and healthfulness of these vessels very high in the scale.

The applications of electricity on board are very much wider than in the case of any other battleships in existence; with the possible exception of the Kearsarge and Kentucky. All of the turrets have electrical turning gear, and the ammunition hoists, blowers to the turrets, keeping up a powerful ventilation, the general workship, and practically all of the auxiliaries, outside of the engineers' department and excepting capstan and steering gear, are to be electrically driven. To provide for the power required for these purposes, there will be installed eight engines and dynamos, mounted on combination bed-plates, two having a rated output of 1250 amperes at 123 volts, and six with 625 amperes at 125 volts.

In this class of vessels, all of the latest approved equipment will be provided for accommodation of the officers and crew, the ventilation and drainage being of a high standard; the hospital quarters airy and commodious; the bakery and galleys, with their issuing rooms and refrigerating plant, having been worked out with a view to thorough efficiency; laundry and drying rooms are fitted with the latest machinery, electrically-driven; and the living quarters are carefully protected by insulation from cold in winter and excessive heat in summer. Take it all in all, the designs of the Rhode Island class embody the latest developments in naval architecture, and these vessels will prove most formidable additions to the fighting strength of the navy.

MASTER OF CEREMONIES

To Be Appointed For President of World's Fair.

St. Louis, May 17.—A master of ceremonies for President Francis, who will decide all questions of rank and precedence at public functions, during the World's fair, is to be appointed by the executive committee of the exposition. Confusion in regard to dates of public appearances of President Francis necessitated the appointment. The hanging of the 400 photos of distinguished society women in the house of the board of lady managers at the World's fair was finished today. There are photos of the majority of the leading society women of the country. The names will not be made public until later.

The British commission has sent a cablegram to London to inquire as to the date of the official birthday anniversary of the king. It is desired by the commission to give a reception in the British pavilion on the date set for the observance of the anniversary in England.

The Mississippi building, which is a replica of "Beauvoir," the home of Jeff Davis, was formally opened today. The opening of the 120-day butter test of dairy breeds, which was to have begun today with Jersey, Holstein, Short Horn and Brown Swiss cows as contestants, has been postponed until June 1, because of the delay in arrival of a large number of cows.

SHE RISKS DEATH

To Avoid an Alleged Persecution By Mrs. Louise de Lang.

Countess Esterhazy, Afflicted With Malady, Sails For Europe.

New York, May 18.—"If I were not afraid it would be too great a gratification to that woman to know she had made me suffer I would say that I am leaving the United States because I can no longer endure the torture imposed upon me by a mortal disease and the persecution of that woman."

So spoke the Countess Esterhazy, who sailed for Europe on the Minnehaha.

Her bitter and scornful utterance of "that woman" expresses hatred and contempt of Mrs. Louise de Lang, who brought suit against her last January, asking $100,000 damages for the alienation of the affections of her husband by the countess.

Last Monday the countess came to New York from Washington quietly with her maid, and in order to escape observation excluded herself in a suite in the Hotel Martha Washington.

She explained that her desire in keeping her presence in the city unknown was to elude the watchful Mrs. de Lang, who also is in New York.

"I had been in Baltimore visiting my relatives," explained the countess, "and consulting an eminent specialist. I was informed that it was impossible to do anything for me, and I must merely abide by the will of God. I am frightened at the thought of crossing the ocean in my present state of health but I would rather take the risk than stay on the same soil with that woman.

"I shall join Prince Esterhazy in London, and go with him to the Esterhazy estates in Hungary.

"No, I do not know that woman, I never met her and never saw her that I know of. How should I? Such persons as she is have never been my associates."

The countess has the pride of birth and the bearing of a woman of extensive social experience. She was a Carroll of Maryland, and the best blood of that state runs in the veins of her kinsfolk. Her first husband was General Griffin, of Ohio, to whom a memorial was recently erected at West Point.

After his death she married Count Maxmillian Esterhazy, who was in the diplomatic service, and with him spent much time abroad and was well known in the society of several European capitals. In recent years she has spent most of the time in Washington, having lived during the last year at the Everett, in that city. She is between 60 and 70 years old, but exceedingly well preserved and retaining much of the charm that made her so fascinating in her younger years.

Her voice and accent are those of the South, and she is an easy conversationalist. She has many devoted friends, all of whom are eager to avow their belief in her innocence.

Mrs. Louise de Lang, who brought the suit in Washington, has had almost as eventful a career as the woman whom she is suing. She is young, but she was married several years ago to a Mr. McDowell. Her mother is a widow, living in Warrenton, Va., and she has a brother in the consular service. Her father was the late Governor Moore, well known in Washington.

The countess alleges that Mrs. Louise McDowell was not legally married to Mr. de Lang, and therefore has no right to sue for the alienation of his affections.

The countess met Mr. de Lang, a handsome Swiss, who had been divorced from his first wife in Chicago, at Deer Park, Md., in the summer of 1902.

Mr. de Lang himself now alleges that their marriage was not legal, because in this country both civil and religious ceremonies are required. The de Langs only had one ceremony. The de Langs formed in Manassas, Va., in February, 1903.

An attempt was made to serve the papers in the suit against the Countess Esterhazy on Jan. 2, 1904. An officer called for her at her apartments in the Everett. She evidently expected the suit, for she evinced no surprise, but refused to accept the papers. They were placed on her shoulder and fell to the floor.

The charges in the bill simply alleged that the Countess Esterhazy had, from Aug. 3 to Dec. 31, 1903, "wickedly and maliciously alienated the domestic and social affection of Martin de Lang," on which account the plaintiff claimed that her domestic and social affections had been damaged to the extent of $100,000.

Friends of the countess say that a French maid, who had been discharged, was responsible for much of the trouble, having maliciously uttered many false statements.

An attempt was made to serve a summons on the countess by an officer of the court of the District of Columbia, when she left Washington last week, but she ignored the summons. The validity of the summons was attacked, on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction and that the witness had not had sufficient notice.

A motion to quash the motion was dismissed because of want of jurisdiction.

The question of contempt on the part of the countess is under advisement.

It is stated by personal friends of the countess that she is by no means a wealthy woman and could not pay $100,000 if such judgment were obtained against her. Her income is derived from the Esterhazy estate in Hungary.

The physical affliction of the countess makes it difficult for her to go about and she has had three falls. As she is a very heavy woman the danger from such accident is very great.

EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION.

Large Increase In Attendance on Second Day.

St. Louis, May 17.—The second days' session of the National Editorial association was marked by a large increase in attendance, as a great number of delegates arrived during the early morning. Before the session was called to order, a band composed of young women from Oklahoma played a number of national airs, so thoroughly inspiring the assembled delegates that they burst into song accompaniment.

When the convention was called to order, Col. John Lyman of Louisiana, read a paper by Joseph Pulitzer of New York, entitled "Institute of Journalists." This was followed by a brief address from Sir Hugh Gilzean-Reid of London, president of the world's press parliament.

Reports of committees then occupied the attention of the convention and the transaction of routine business was taken up.

NORWEGIAN CELEBRATION

Bauta Sten Dedicated at Fargo With Imposing Ceremonies.

Fargo, May 17.—Thousands of Norwegian visitors gathered in Fargo today to participate in a dual celebration. The independence day of their nation was being observed, and the dedication of the Bauta Sten, in honor of Norway's poet, Bjornstjerne Bjornson.

The stone is a block of granite secured from Norway. It rests on a pedestal built in the center of the North Dakota agricultural college campus. It is thirteen feet high, with a medallion of Bjornsen on one side.

Hon. John W. Arctander, of Minneapolis, delivered the unveiling address.

The silken cord which held the covering around the Bauta was pulled by Miss Helga Trovaten, daughter of the editor of the Fram, and the monument was greeted with enthusiastic applause. Governor White accepted the monument on behalf of the state. An appropriate program of Norwegian songs and speeches followed.

SERENADERS SHOT BY THE HIRED MAN.

Detroit, May 17.—A Journal special from Romeo, Mich., says that sixteen members of a charivari party organized to "serenade" Robert Robertson, a farmer living six miles from here, who was recently married, were wounded last night when Frank McFadden, Robertson's hired man, fired six shots from a shot gun at the serenaders. A farm hand whose name is unknown, was seriously wounded and may die and two young women named Borland, who lived near the Robertson farm were among the wounded.

Several officers have gone to the place today to investigate the shooting.

CONSUMED BY A FIRE THAT WATER WILL NOT QUENCH

Only those who have experienced the awful itching and burning of Eczema can know how it feels to be consumed by the blistering, fiery acids oozing out through the pores of the skin. There is no other skin disease that compares in severity with Eczema. It begins as a mere redness of the skin, or comes in little watery blisters and pimples, discharging a thin sticky fluid which hardens into scabs and scales, leaving a raw and inflamed surface as they peel off, while the itching is almost intolerable. Eczema is the most vicious and violent of all skin diseases, appearing in many different forms; the dry and scaly kind with brownish white crusts, which gives the skin a rough, leathery appearance, and producing sometimes painful fissures and sores. In other cases the skin has a swollen, moist appearance, with occasional profuse discharges of watery matter. But all the varieties and types of this aggravating disease are akin and are caused by impure blood and an over-acid condition of this vital fluid that seems to set the skin on fire, kindling a flame that water will not quench, and an itching, stinging eruption that lotions, soaps, salves and powders cannot suppress. As the poisonous acids in the blood increase the eruption spreads and becomes more angry looking, and the itching and burning more unbearable. Eczema is the commonest of all skin diseases, and the most aggravating and treacherous, disappearing at times, then returning suddenly and in a severer form than ever. It is particularly bad in warm weather, because at this season the skin is reacting and the blood is making extra effort to throw off the morbid secretions and acid impurities that have been accumulating during the long winter months, and there is an overflow of the acrid matter and acid poison through the pores, producing irritation and redness of the skin and all the terrors of Eczema. Soothing applications are beneficial and advisable, but not curative, because the seat of the disease is in the blood, and external or surface treatment cannot change bad blood into good blood or purge the system of impurities. Only a blood purifier can do this, and while treating the skin the blood must be looked after or the disease is sure to return when the blood is again overcharged with acids.

Dear Sirs:—In the summer of 1898 I was attacked with a breaking out, which doctors said was Eczema. It commenced on the inside of my arms and gradually spread. The doctors who examined me said they could cure it, and treated me for some time, but it grew worse all the while. I then wrote you, and upon receipt of a reply to my letter I got six bottles of S. S. S. and began taking it according to directions.

I had used four and a half bottles before seeing any effect at all; then the Eczema seemed to get a great deal worse, but I kept on taking the medicine, and in three or four days the eruption commenced to shed off. I could rub it off like bran, and this was the end of the Eczema. I took in all nine bottles, and never spent that much money for anything that did me so much good. Have felt better in every way since. I am 68 years old, and was so stiff that I could hardly walk and was compelled to quit work, but since taking S. S. S. have been on the go all the time. Very truly, J. G. McNAIR.

Garth, Va.

S. S. S. to purify and cleanse the blood, and some non-irritating, soothing salve or lotion, is the proper treatment for all forms of Eczema. S. S. S. has made some remarkable cures of this stubborn skin disease—cases that had become chronic from long neglect or wrong treatment. S. S. S. is the only guaranteed strictly vegetable blood remedy. It is without a single mineral ingredient, but of medicinal roots that come from the fields and forests or Nature's store-houses. S. S. S. combines both purifying and tonic properties that enter into the circulation and destroy the impurities, and at the same time tone up the general system. Skin diseases are, after all, only symptoms of impure and vitiated blood and external signs of disordered systems, and when you cure the blood the eruptions disappear.

If you have Eczema or any blood disease, sore or eruption, write us and our physician will gladly advise you and furnish any information desired without cost to you. Book on the Skin and its diseases free.

IS GIVEN A PAROLE

Modern Jean Valjean Who Is Dying With Consumption.

Wife Pleaded For Release For Sake of Their Babe.

Elmira, N. Y., May 18.—Harry Roberts, a latter day Jean Valjean, will in a few days be again a free man. The board of managers of the New York state reformatory here has granted permission to General Superintendent Scott to release Roberts on an invalid parole as soon as the young man's friends in Berwick, Penn., would guarantee that propre care will be given to him, for the reformatory physician has said that poor Roberts will no longer be able to earn a livelihood at his trade, as he is marked for death by consumption.

Roberts had served six years and eight months in the reformatory for third degree burglary when one day in August, 1900, when working on the lawn of the institution, he walked away unnoticed by the guard and escaped. It was a foolish act, but he was urged to it by two companions, who escaped with him. He was about to be released on parole.

He changed his name to Morris McDale and went to Berwick, Penn., where he obtained a job in the American Car Works as a laborer at $1.50 a day. He was a natural mechanic and a man of executive ability, and soon became foreman of the shop at $3.50 a day. He married one of the finest girls in the village.

For four years as Morris McDale he was one of the most esteemed men in Berwick. His record as a man and a citizen was excellent. Three months ago a baby came to brighten his home, but the happiness of the young husband and father was of short duration. He met a familiar face on the street one day. The stranger said: "Hello, Harry," and passed by. McDale's face flushed, he felt discovery. He brooded over it. He could not leave the place. He must await the inevitable. Another stranger approached him two weeks ago with the same greeting, but no sooner were the words uttered than he felt manacles on his wrists. The stranger was Officer H. M. Riffe, of the reformatory. McDale, now Roberts, the convict, agreed to go back to serve 16 months in the reformatory without a requisition. The agonized wife, learning for the first time her husband's disgrace and her own humiliation piteously begged the officer to restore her husband to her. She pleaded for the sake of the babe.

Crowds of citizens looked on with indignation and some with tear-stained eyes. They hired a carriage for the proscribed man and escorted him to the depot as though he was an honored guest about to be feted.

Prominent citizens wrote to Governor Odell for a pardon, and the Elmira papers started an investigation into the true facts of the case and brought it to the attention of the reformatory. Many papers printed sympathetic editorials and public sentiment became insistent on the release of the unfortunate man. When the board met in monthly session Saturday they unanimously decided to grant release to Roberts, but it is a broken-hearted physically shattered man that will walk out from behind those prison walls, a once promising man, to whom life holds a future steeped in misery.

TRYING TO SAVE $77,000

British Consul's Widow at Boston Involved In Lawsuits.

Boston, Mass., May 18.—A number of questionable transactions in which Willoughby Stuart, former British consul here, is said to have been the person reaping the profit, and involving about $77,000, form the basis of four suits, one at law and three in equity, which Mrs. Stuart is prosecuting or defending in the supreme court, the evidence now being heard by an auditor appointed for that purpose. These suits will bring to light considerable of the record of the husband, who was committed to an insane asylum soon after it was learned that notes bearing the forged signature of Mrs. Stuart were being sold around town at much less than their face value.

Mrs. Stuart is the daughter of the late Arloch Wentworth, whose will, leaving the greater part of his fortune of $7,500,000 to charitable institutions and for founding a school, was successfully contested by her. Now she seeks to have certain mortgages, assignments and notes bearing her forged signature canceled.

One of the actions is a suit at law brought by the Newton Center Savings bank against Stuart and his wife to recover on three promissory notes aggregating $20,000, alleged to have been signed by Mrs. Stuart or by her attorney. Mrs. Stuart denies that the signatures are hers or that the notes were given by her authority. The other three cases are similar except that Mrs. Stuart is the plaintiff. One of them is against E. D. Chamberlain, the plaintiff seeking to have set aside and canveled a mortgage upon property on Court street given her by her father. The mortgage was for $30,000, and Mrs. Stuart claims that the note and mortgage were not signed by her or with her authority. In this same case there is also a petition for an assignment of a lease given as security for a note of $7500 on the same grounds.

The Boston Towboat company is sued to compel the cancellation of an assignment of thirty-one shares of stock in that concern, given to the Medford National bank as security for money loaned to the former British consul. Mrs. Stuart also asks the court to set aside an assignment of 115 shares of stock in the New York Central & Hudson River railroad. In these two latter transactions Mrs. Stuart asserts that the signatures on the notes and assignments are forgeries.

OBJECT TO SCHOOL

"Jim Crow" Sentiment In Sheffield, Mass., Again Asserts It.

Negroes Want to Go Where White Children Are Taught.

Sheffield, Mass., May 18.—Trouble is brewing again among the negroes of "New Guinea," and if the attempt to segregate their pickaninnies from the white children at the public schools is not abandoned at once a violent revolt may occur.

"Jim Crow" sentiment still abounds in this Berkshire hills village, despite a warning given to the white citizens last winter when the "Plains" school house was burned mysteriously.

Feeling is high in the town, not only among the negroes of the "New Guinea" settlement, but among the whites as wel. Both sides are stubborn and each declares it will win.

Surveyor J. W. Curtiss, of Great Barrington, almost set fire to the powder train on Thursday last when he visited the negro colony, a mile to the west of the village proper, and set stakes for a new school house.

It was noised about that the town selected had listened to Mrs. B. B. Glenney and were not only to keep the negro children from the village schools, but were to build for them a cheap structure in their very precincts and thus keep the streets of Sheffield free from the colored child. Mr. Curtiss was besieged with questions and there were theats of violence.

There are about a score of negro families in the "New Guinea" colony and, perhaps, two score children of school age. The negro children were all sent to the "Plains" school house, a half a mile from the village, and a young negro woman was hired to teach them.

In the winter the selectmen were forced to provide conveyances to bring the negroes from "New Guinea" to the school. Attendance began to fall off until less than ten went to the school. Then one extremely cold night the house was burned to the ground. Foot tracks in the snow led to and from "New Guinea."

The negro children have since gone to the vilage school. Everything was peaceful with the negroes, but the white people wriggled uneasily. The town sent more soldiers to the front in the civil war than any other town of its size in this rock-ribbed red abolition state, but evidently their descendants like negroes at a distance.

Mrs. Glenney came forward recently, it is rumored, with a new plan. She advocated building for the negroes a school house in their own district and agreed to pay part of the expense. A graduate of Tuskogee or Hampton was to be employed, not only as preceptress of the school, but also to inculcate higher moral views among the parents.

Reports of Mrs. Glenney's philanthropy reached "New Guinea." When Mr. Curtiss surveyed there, only one reason could be thought of. The "Jim Crow" idea had come up north and the negroes were to be ostracized as not being equals with the whites.

The town fathers admit that Mr. Curtiss' surveying visit was preliminary to building in negro district, but refuse to give further details.

CONDITION OF CROPS

As Shown By Weather Bureau's Weekly Report.

Washington, May 17.—The following is a summary of the week's crop bulletin, issued by the weather bureau:

"The week, especially the latter part, was much too cool in all districts east of the Rockies and respecting temperature was less favorable than the preceding week.

"While planting has been delayed in portions of Nebraska, Iowa and Missouri, this work, as a whole, has made favorable progress in the states of the Missouri and Upper Mississippi valleys and has proceeded uninterruptedly in the Ohio valley. Planting is in progress in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Michigan and New England, but has not begun in Wisconsin and New York.

"Heavy rains prevented the completion of spring wheat seeding in portions of North Dakota and Minnesota, but seeding is practically over elsewhere. The early sown is coming up and growing nicely in the Dakotas and Southern Minnesota, but variable conditions are reported from Iowa.

"With the exception of variable conditions in Iowa and unpromising in Missouri, the general outlook for oats in the principal oat-producing states is promising.

"The fruit outlook is generally promising, except for peaches in the more northerly sections. In the Southern states, however, a good crop of peaches is promised.

"A general improvement in grass is indicated, except in portions of the Ohio valley, where it is backward.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

New York, May 17.—Frank Adee, president of the Seawanhaka Boat club, of Brooklyn and vice president of the Middle States Regatta association, is dead. He had been identified with amateur boat racing for more than thirty years and won many races in his younger days with the sculls and sweeps.

New York, May 17.—John Kennedy, a prominent contractor of Brooklyn, one of the survivors of the famous charge at Balaclava, is dead from pneumonia. He was born at Belfast in 1835, served in the Crimean war as a gunner in the Royal Horse artillery, took part in its greatest battles and, after serving fourteen years under the British flag, came to America, where he amassed a fortune as a contractor and builder.

Whooping Cough.

"In the spring of 1901 my children had whooping cough," says Mrs. D. W. Capps, of Capps, Ala. "I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with the most satisfactory results. I think this is the best remedy I have ever seen for whooping cough." This remedy keeps the cough loose, lessens the severity and frequency of the coughing spells and counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. For sale by all druggists.

GILLESPIE IS VICIOUS

Guarded By Two Officers to Prevent an Assault.

Rising Sun, Ind., May 17.—Today when James Gillespie was taken from jail by Sheriff Rump and Deputy Overly there was a crowd of newspaper men present, in anticipation of a renewal of hostilities between the sheriff and the prisoner. In view of Gillespie's decided display of ill feeling toward the sheriff last evening, the prisoner was held by the arm by two officers, Gillespie speaking to the reporters, saying:

"How would you like to take this picture—two men to keep me quiet?"

Deputy Overly said: "I can take you easily myself."

"Oh, yes," said Gillespie, pointing to a small boy, "that fellow can take me easily enough."

He walked quietly to the courtroom. The sheriff reported to the court the conduct of Gillespie when taken to the jail last night. Judge Downey administered a rebuke to the prisoner, and warned his counsel that if any further misconduct took place, he would order the prisoner put in irons.

SHRINERS TO MEET.

Pilgrimage To St. Paul Wednesday Night.

Tonight in St. Paul the Ancient Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine will have a characteristic celebration, and a number of the faithful from this vicinity are expected to attend. A summons having been issued which reads, in part, as follows:

"Nobles of Osman:

"Give heed to this proclamation.

"It has come to the ear of your potentate—through his many avenues of information, also by the prayer of the Nizan of Doolooth's faithful Rajah Van Brunt, that various and Sundry Sons of the Desert are weary of the paths of the unregenerate, and are desirous of joining the Caravan on its Pilgrimage to the Holy City of Mecca, that will take the trail across the hot sands of the desert.

ORDER FOR HEARING PROOF OF FOREIGN WILL—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis, ss. In Probate Court, General Term, May 2, 1904:

In the matter of the estate of Catherine Selden, deceased;

Whereas, certain writings purporting to be duly authenticated copies of the last will and testament and codicils of Catherine Selden, late of Oakland County, Michigan, deceased, and the probate thereof in the probate court of Oakland County, state of Michigan, have been delivered to this court;

And whereas, Ethel I. Little (formerly Weaver) has filed therewith her petition, representing among other things that said Catherine Selden lately died in said county of Oakland, Michigan, testate, possessed of certain real estate, situated in said county of St. Louis, Minnesota, and that said petitioner is the executrix named in said will and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to said Ethel I. Little issued thereon;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument and the said petition be heard before this court at the probate office in said county, on Tuesday, the 31st day of May, A. D. 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that no ice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at the city of Duluth in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., this 2nd day of May, A. D. 1904.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE—

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of twenty-two hundred five and 59-100 ($2205.59) dollars, principal and interest, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Lucy M. Kennedy and W. A. Kennedy, her husband, mortgagors, to Maria Dewey, mortgagee, bearing date the tenth day of May, 1900, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis, and state of Minnesota, on the eleventh day of May, 1900, at 4:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 190, of mortgages, on page 52.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Maria Dewey, mortgagee, to Rolla Porter Chadbourn, by written assignment dated the 23d day of September, 1903, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds, on the 21st day of April, 1904, at 8 o'clock a. m., in Book 147, of mortgages, on page 417.

And no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz.:

All the tract or parcel of land lying and being in the county of St. Louis, state of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered thirteen (13), in block six (6), Lester Park, First Division, according to the plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said county and state, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the tenth day of June, 1904, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and seventy-five dollars, attorneys' fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 27th, A. D. 1904.

Assignee of Mortgage.

A. L. AGATIN,
Attorney for said Assignee.

Duluth Evening Herald—April-27-May-4-11-18-25-June-1, 1904.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage made by Ronald M. Hunter and Josephine C. Hunter, his wife, mortgagors, to the Laurel Glen Cemetery Association of 1894, a corporation, mortgagee, bearing date the tenth day of April, 1897, and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 10th day of April, 1897, at 3:40 o'clock p. m. in Book 179 of Mortgages on page 5.

Said default consists in the failure to pay seven hundred eighty-nine dollars, principal and interest, due and unpaid upon the notes secured by said mortgage, and in the failure to pay twenty-one and 42-100 dollars, delinquent taxes upon the mortgaged premises for the years 1901 and 1902, paid by the mortgagee on March 30th, 1904, whereby there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice, including taxes so paid, the sum of eight hundred ten and 42-100 dollars.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to statute in such case provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described and situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, to-wit:

Lots number nineteen, twenty and twenty-one in block number one in Hunter's Park, First Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said county at the front door of the county court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county at ten o'clock in the forenoon on Saturday, the 28th day of May, 1904, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt and interest and seventy-five dollars attorneys' fees, as stipulated in said mortgage, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption as by law provided.

WHEAT IS HIGHER

Market Has Another Advance and Shorts Are Pressed.

May Wheat at Chicago Very Strong—Flax Is Dull.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 18.—This was another day of higher prices in the wheat market under the influence of decreased receipts and the covering of shorts who were pressed considerably. Flour millers report some improvement in the demand for wheat though not a marked one. The foreign markets do not follow the advance in American markets, the weakness being due to the large supplies. Liverpool closed ¼@⅜d lower. Paris 1¼c higher and Antwerp unchanged. Crop reports are generally favorable. There is no export demand for wheat worth speaking of.

The Duluth market closed ¼c higher for July. Minneapolis had the same advance. Chicago was ¼c lower and New York ¼c higher. In Chicago the May option advanced 1⅜c, making 6¼c in three days. Duluth September was ¼c stronger and Minneapolis September ¼c higher.

Car receipts at Duluth were 3 against 17 a year ago and at Minneapolis 75, against 94 a year ago, making a total for the Northwest of 78 against 111 a year ago. Chicago received 4 against 4 last year. Winnipeg receipts were 127 cars.

Primary receipts of wheat were 183,881 bus, last year 250,368 bus. Shipments 196,640 bus, last year 335,25 bus. Clearances: of wheat and flour aggregated 134,175 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d lower. In the Chicago market July corn closed ⅛c higher. July oats closed unchanged. Primary receipts of corn were 216,520 bus., last year 406,350 bus. Shipments, 340,643 bus., last year 704,197 bus. Clearances were 10,367 bus.

Trading in the Duluth market was low. July wheat opened ⅛c higher at 92¼c, sold at 92¼c at 9:34, settled back to 92¼c at 9:38 and advanced to 93c at 10:10. It then reacted to 92⅝c at 10:30, advanced again to 93⅜c at 10:55 and reacted to 92¼c at noon. Another bulge carried it to 93⅜-⅞c at 12:20 and it closed at 93⅝c, an advance of ⅛c. The May option was firmer closing ⅝c higher, closing at 93⅜c. September gained ⅛c, closing at 81½c.

Cash offerings were very light and from May price to 3c over for No. 1 northern was paid.

Flax was extremely dull. The July option closed ¼c higher at $1.08. May had the same advance. September was ⅛c higher.

Oats and rye were unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—In store, No. 1 hard, 94⅝c; No. 1 northern, 92⅜c; No. 2 northern, 92¼c; on track, No. 1 northern, 92⅝@93⅜c; No. 2 northern, 89⅜@93⅜c; macaroni, No. 1, 89c; No. 2, 87c; May, 93⅜c; July, 92⅝c; September, 81½c. Flax, in store, $1.06⅛; to arrive, $1.06⅛; May, $1.09½; July, $1.08; September, $1.06½; October, $1.08¾. Oats, on track, 42c; to arrive, 42c. Rye, on track, 67c; to arrive, 67c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 2; last year, 17; flax, 5; last year, 6.

Receipts—Wheat, 11,585; rye, 649; flax, 3616.

Shipments—Wheat, 27,775; oats, 4760; flax, 7,352.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Values Were Firm on Small Receipts.

Chicago, May 18.—Wheat values were firm today on smaller receipts here and at Duluth. The smallness of contract stocks continued to be the chief factor. July opened a shade down to a shade up at 87⅝c to 87¾c and sold up to 87⅝c. September opened ⅛c lower at 81⅝, but a fair demand from local shorts quickly sent the price of that option up to 81⅝c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 78 cars, which with local receipts of four cars—one of contract grade—made a total of 82 cars for the three points against 81 cars last week and 122 a year ago.

A bulge to 88c for July and 81⅞@⅞c for September followed a report from Northwest of greatly reduced spring wheat acreage. The influence of reports of heavy foreign buying in New York was also apparent in the advance. Prices later yielded, July closing steady at 87⅝c.

Reports of fair cash business in corn caused firmness in options. July started unchanged to a shade higher at 47⅛c to 47⅜@⅝c and held within that range. Local receipts were 29 cars, but one of which graded contract.

Corn strength held on a rumor that the visible supply estimate on Monday will show a large decrease. July touched 48⅝@⅝c. Late liquidation by scalpers with profits caused a decline to 47¼@⅜c. The loss was partially regained, however, and the close was firm at 48c for July.

Trade in oats was slow. A tendency toward weakness on rumors of decreasing Eastern cash demand was offset by firmness here in wheat and corn. July unchanged at 38⅜c. Local receipts were 31 cars.

Provisions were about steady in absence of any large offerings. July pork was 2½c lower at $11.35. July ribs were unchanged at $6.47½. Lard was unchanged to 2½c lower at $6.45 to $6.47½ for July.

Close: Wheat—May, 96¾c; July, 86⅝c; old, 87¾c; September, 80¼c; old, 81½c. Corn—May, 47¼c; July, 48c; September, 47⅝c; December, 42⅝c. Oats—May, 41¾c; July, 38⅜c; September, 30⅝c; December, 30⅝@⅞c. Pork—May, $11.25; July, 11.35@11.37½; September, 11.55@11.57½. Lard—May, $6.37½@6.40; July, $6.47½@6.50; September, $6.65. Ribs—May, $6.40; July, $6.50; September, $6.65. Rye—May, 73c; July, 61c; September, 63c; August, 67c. Flax—Cash, northwestern, $1.09; southwestern, $1.09; May, $1.01½; July, $1.03½; September, $1.06½. Timothy—May, $3.05; September, $3.20. Clover—May, $10.75. Barley—Cash, 33@57c. Cash, wheat—No. 2 red, $1.06@1.08; No. 3 red, $1.06@1.06; No. 2 hard, 93@96c; No. 3 hard, 89@95c; No. 1 northern, 96@98c; No. 2 northern, 92@97c; No. 3 spring, 86@96c. Oats—No. 2, 40½c; No. 3, 40c. Corn—No. 2, 49@51c; 3, 48½@50½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—As usual the short interest is walking the floor first. There is quite a scattered long interest. It is difficult to tell the amounts of holdings. May and September wheat are about unchanged from yesterday. It was the third day of the local effort to advance prices, and the market was on the whole fairly steady. Cables are indifferent to the advance here. There is a great deal of radical talk about the cash situation, but with practically no export demand, the large percentage of mills shut down for lack of flour, sensational cash situation is no doubt due partly to enhanced view of holders. The whole situation is an unsettled one, with sharp possibilities on either side of the market.

Corn—It was the same quiet market as of late. There is considerable local bearish sentiment, and they sell corn one day on their estimate of what the new crop is likely to be and buy it back the next for lack of pressure from any other course except their own selling. In the meantime the buying is not of a noticeable character and the cash situation is very dull in the absence of lake transportation.

Oats—The situation is much the same as in corn. The demand is a matter of estimate. Cash oats are in strong hands and the Patten interests seem bullish on May. Local sentiment is rather favorable to the bear side of July and September, and outside interest is small.

Provisions—The market is practically unchanged. It is also a very quiet market. Receipts of hogs continue about the same as a year ago, but the distributive demand every day, as shown by the shipments, are a little better than they were. The packing interests continue to buy moderately, apparently in the way of taking off their hedges against cash stuff. On the other hand, there is not much short interest, and the weak feature is that scattered outside holders are loaded up.

* * *

B. E. Baker's Chicago Grain Letter: Wheat—The trade in wheat was smaller, but the market proved to be an active one within a comparatively narrow range. The professional element was bearish, working for a break after the quick advance, but the price level was rather stubbornly maintained and the source of strength was somewhat puzzling. The cash news was of much the same character as that on which the market was bulled on the advance. The effectiveness is to some extent lost, excepting in the May which continues to move upward. Minneapolis stocks decreased 700,000 bus for this week, with two-thirds of the milling capacity working. Foreign markets lost yesterday's advance. The weather present and prospective is seasonable in respect to precipitation and temperatures. Just prior to the close there was a report of 50,000 bus of No. 1 northern sold at ½c over May. New York places export sales at eleven loads. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 3 cars.

Corn was rather erratic, weak early and later strong on covering by local professionals, influenced no doubt by the tone of wheat. This buying has probably left the pit situation weak at the advance. The news was scant but bearish. The demand is limited. The lake situation is further complicated by the strike of the elevator men and the boats which have reached Buffalo are unable to unload. Country purchases through Illinois and Nebraska steadily increasing in volume, 100,000 bushels of No. 2 corn were loaded from store yesterday. Car receipts for 58,000 bushels were cancelled. The sample market was quiet and prices unchanged. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 45 cars.

Oats—There was a dull trade in oats with the speculation largely influenced to a large extent by the course of corn. At the start there was a general disposition to sell on the fine weather and the stock demand. Private crop advices are of a uniform optimistic character.

Estimated receipts for tomorrow 90 cars.

* * *

Coe Commission Co.: Wheat—Cables did not reflect our advance of yesterday. The weather is about all that could be desired for the growing crop. Our market opened strong and has ruled so all forenoon. The Minneapolis shorts in the futures are becoming nervous over the way No. 1 northern wheat is going out of Chicago. There were 340,000 bus. No. 1 northern sold in Chicago yesterday at ½c over their May price to Eastern millers. The short interest has been materially reduced the past few days, enough so that we may get a little reaction. On any set-back would buy the July wheat, and stay long on the September. Don't believe you will see wheat sell much under 90 cents on the next crop, even if we do raise an average crop, which is very doubtful. Don't sell wheat short, but buy it on the breaks.

Corn and oats—Dull, but steady. No trade of importance in either cereal. The sentiment in both corn and oats is rather bearish. There is, however, no selling pressure. We believe that the July options can be safely bought on breaks for a scalp.

Provisions—Receipts of hogs, 12,000; market steady to strong. The provision market very dull, although holding steady. Believe that the liquidation is over and provisions are very close to the bottom.

TO EXAMINE APPLICANTS

Several Civil Service Examinations In Duluth In June.

Civil service examinations for positions in the Philippines will be held in Duluth four days next month, June 8, 15, 22 and 23. The first will be to secure eligibles from which to make certification to fill vacancies in the position of civil engineer, bureau of forestry. The salary attached to this position is $2400 a year.

Most of the applicants locally, will it is expected, be for the positions of bookkeeper and civil engineer. On June 15 applicants for the position of assistant in the physiology and pathology department will be examined.

On June 22 and 23 examinations for persons qualified in bookkeeping, finance, chemistry, civil engineering, electrical engineering, agriculture and the Spanish language, for service in the Philippines, will be held. Those receiving appointments will draw $1200 and $1400 yearly salary. The time allowed for this examination is two days of seven hours each. The first three subjects will be given on the first day and the remaining subjects on the second day. The age limit is 18 to 40 years. There will be eight subjects, as follows: Thesis, correction of rough draft manuscript, mathematics, history and civil government of the United States, general history and geography, colonial government and administration, political economy and education and experience.

Examinations for bookkeepers in the Philippines will be held June 22. The commission is experiencing considerable difficulty in securing eligibles for this position, and particularly urges qualified persons to enter the examinations. The salary attached to the position is $1200 per year.

In both of these last examinations the applicants must submit to the examiners a recent photograph of themselve, which will be filed with the examination papers and used as a means of identification in case the applicant receives the desired appointment. This prevents any "ringers" getting into the service.

VERY DULL STOCKS

And Drift of Prices Was Downward Toward Close.

Decline In Steel Preferred Was a Dominating Factor.

New York, May 18.—The London market led the way today to higher prices and the opening response in the stock market here was general. Gains were quite uniform, but were restricted to a small fraction in all cases and the volume of business was very light. Consolidated Gas was a notable exception to the general tendency with a decline of ⅝.

Opening gains were added to slightly, but were curtailed later when United States preferred met pressure. That stock encountered selling orders after it crossed 53. Erie first preferred also fell back on realizing, and Consolidated Gas established a loss of 1¼. Realty preferred moved up ⅞ and Rubber preferred 1¼. The engagement of $2,500,000 gold coin for export tomorrow was a weight on the market.

Cessation of selling led to a slight recovery in prices. The market was without interest and became practically stagnant. Kansas City Southern rose ⅞ and Westinghouse Electric recovered its early loss and sold a point higher in addition. Otherwise the market was at a standstill.

The market was almost motionless and only specialties moved appreciably. Kansas City Southern rose 1¼ and the preferred 1⅞. Lackawanna lost 2 and Chicago & Eastern Illinois certillicates 2¼.

Kansas City Southern rose 1¾ in all and the preferred 2⅞. The drift of prices was slowly downward. United States Steel preferred declined to ½ under last night, and was a dominating influence. Erie first preferred was lifted ⅞ over last night. The closing was steady but almost inactive.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to B. E. Baker: Comment on the market outlook tonight suggests continued dullness, but bearish sentiment is modified to the extent that speculative conditions are likely to be the basis of a temporary recovery and some of the shrewdest of the professional traders are disposed to buy stocks for a turn. That the short interest, generally speaking, is fairly large. There is little pressure to sell long stocks and prices of late have declined five to ten points. Whatever expected upturn will materialize and what it will amount to if it does largely depend on the will of the Standard Oil people who for weeks have been carrying the bulk of the stocks and have at the same time discouraged all attempts to bull the market, their object being to keep speculation quiet and fluctuations narrow while the payment for the Panama canal was being financed. Brokers say that the persistent efforts to bid prices up and force shorts to cover are the salient feature to the market, the somewhat over-sold condition of the majority of stocks being an incentive to manipulate of this sort. In certain individuals, however, there is evidential pressure to sell under which prices may decline later in the season, a marked rise in them. There is believed that such buying is in progress in Brooklyn Rapid Transit, notwithstanding the latter's recently disappointing movements.

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The list generally shows about as little change from yesterday as is possible. Neither is there any change in the character of news or current operations. Bankers are trying to head off the gold exports by selling long time bills of exchange. We see nothing in the outlook except dullness. The short interest may cause temporary rallies but a sustained advance at this time seems hardly likely. The whole situation is dull and uninteresting.

* * *

Coe Commissino Co.: The stock market up to this writing has ruled extremely dull, although firm and fractionally higher. London came strong, ⅛ to ¼ above parity. The market is largely oversold and should rally from two to three points on the technical position of the market alone. We favor the purchase of the Western railroad shares. Sales to noon 87,700 shares.

* * *

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The way things look to me the market is temporarily oversold and stocks should therefore have some rally. Brooklyn Rapid Transit and St. Paul should be good if anything is. If the rally extends far enough stocks can be sold. The situation does not justify heavy commitments in the bull side. Recent letters cover my views in full.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 18.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 4 points to an advance of 4 points with the new crop months showing relative firmness on rather less favorable weather news. Cables were about steady and after a slight decline on the old crop the list was rallied to a net gain of 4@6 points by Liverpool and German houses as well as by covering and some wire house buying. A little later the market declined again and by the end of the first hour had carried prices down to about the low point of the morning. Trading was moderately active but largely for local account and the market after the early trading showed comparatively narrow and irregular fluctuations with the new crop months continuing relatively steady.

Futures closed steady; May, $13.01; June, $13.10; July, $13.21; August, $12.86; September, $11.62; October, $11.17; November, $11.07; December, $11.08; January, $110.7.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co., wires: After a further rally this morning the market sagged off all day. It seems the buying was mostly for foreign account. There is a rumor from abroad that something is being done in diplomatic circles that may result in the early termination of the Russian-Japan war. This is probably the cause of the London bullishness. As yet we see little in the situation to encourage one to trade either way. The price of copper was again reduced ⅛c on the metal exchange. London quotations, however, closed at an advance. We do not get any bearish information on the Amalgamated outlook. The buying continues good, however.

NORTH DAKOTA REPUBLICANS

St. Paul, May 18.—A special to the Dispatch from Fargo says: When State Chairman Hanna called the Republican state convention to order shortly before noon today nearly every one of the 500 delegates was in his seat. While he was rapping for order a large curtain on the back of the stage was dropped, presenting to the view of the delegates a picture of which President Roosevelt on horseback as a cowboy was the central figure. Thereupon the delegates became wildly enthusiastic. Senator La Moure of Pembina was selected as temporary chairman, and W. H. Jewell as temporary secretary. After the appointment of committees a recess was taken until 2 o'clock this afternoon. Prior to the meeting of the convention an executive meeting of the state central committee was held to consider the contests which were brought before the committee yesterday and which were not disposed of. The committee finally seated the "Reorganizers" in Ward county and turned down Maj. Murphy's faction by a vote of 28 to 8. nI Kidder county P. J. Lyon's faction was seated.

Letters of administration on the estate of Lois A. Homet, deceased, late of the county of Bradford, state of Pennsylvania, being granted to Joseph A. Homet.

ON FIFTH AVENUE

City Authorities Investigate Condition of Refuse Dump.

Will Prevent Its Further Use and Provide For Covering.

The unsanitary condition of the dump on Lower Fifth avenue was investigated yesterday by Health Commissioner Murray, Aldermen Sang and Waugh of the council committee on drains, sewers and sanitation, and Aldermen Wing and McEwen of the Fifth ward.

The dump has been used for three or four years past by the wholesale houses, and it is in a very unsightly and unsanitary condition. The visit of the aldermen and the health commissioner was made with a view of determining the cheapest and most prompt method of abating the nuisance. To merely stop the wholesale houses from dumping tthere would be of no avail, and to remove the refuse would involve a heavy expense to the city.

Health Commissioner Murray suggests that a warning be issued to the people who have been using the spot as a dumping ground to cease depositing refuse there, and that the spot be covered with clean earth. The loads of clean earth that are being taken to the Eleventh avenue dump from the different cellars which are being excavated can be diverted to the spot, and the refuse can be covered before the warm weather arrives.

The aldermen concurred in the suggestion of the health commissioner, and a man will be engaged for a month to watch the place and direct the teamsters where to dump their loads.

The wholesale houses will be notified to dispose of the manure from their stables and other refuse in some other manner.

The dump is situated on the property of the Northern Pacific railway, and an attempt will be made to force the railway to bear a part of the expense of hiring a dumpman, as the company did not prevent the wholesale houses from depositing refuse on the ground. The refuse was being used to fill in a deep pond, and the railway company was thus being benefited by having new land formed.

TYNER DENIES ACCUSATIONS

Aged Defendant Presents Piteous Appearance on Stand.

Washington, May 18.—James N. Tyner, the aged defendant in the Tyner-Barrett conspiracy case, today denied the accusations on which he and his nephew were indicted in connection with their duties as law officers for the postoffice department. In the examination General Tyner's answers were unhesitating. Frequently when the examination branches to charges of collusion between the two defendants to perform some dishonest acts, tears streamed down General Tyner's cheeks and brandy was used to restore the witness to composure sufficient for him to continue. Mr. Worthington told him to rest when he liked, but the witness answered: "I will get through with it if I can."

When he concluded he was taken to his home for Major Conrad, special counsel for the government announced that he would not take the responsibility of cross-examination.

ELECTION OF A PRESIDENT

Still the Exciting Topic Among Women's Federation of Clubs.

St. Louis, May 18.—The president's address, the reports of the general officers, standing committees and representatives of foreign women's clubs, were the features of the second day of the seventh biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in session at the Odeon.

The question of the general election still maintains its preference among the delegates. The partisans of the several candidates for president are very active and there was considerable campaigning before the session of the federation convened. There is a growing disposition on the part of several delegations, that of New York, in particular, to induce present incumbent, Mrs. Dimies Denison, of New York city, to announce her candidacy for re-election. Mrs. Dennison, however, is very reluctant to do so and has repeatedly said that she will not allow her name to be used.

Before the regular session of the federation convened, there was a conference in the Ionic hall of the Odeon on "Library extension." There were many delegates and visiting club women present.

WITHOUT A SLATE

The Republicans of Nebraska Went Into State Convention.

Lincoln, Neb., May 18.—Conferences between friends of candidates for state offices lasted through the night, but no agreements were reached and on everything save governor, treasurer and attorney general, the Republicans of Nebraska went into convention at 2 o'clock today without a hint as to probable results. The most vigorous contest was over the office of secretary of state. The attendance was one of the largest in the history of the state, the Auditorium being filled with visitors and more than 1000 delegates when Chairman Baldridge called the convention to order. Mr. Baldridge said:

"What has the Democratic party to offer to the people as an inducement to change administrations? What issue can it present with any confidence in its acceptance? The very current of events has emphatically repudiated every position the Democratic party has taken on every question during the last half century. The stern logic of facts revealed by the march of time has proved the falsity of its tenets, the fatulty of its leaders and the folly of its hopes. The issue of imperialism, injected into the last campaign by the Democratic party, the horrible nightmare of those self-chosen guardians of the constitution and the declaration of independence, has been so wisely and so beneficently settled by the Republican party that it cannot even be referred to by the opposition during the coming campaign without loss of adherents.

"The bugaboo of free silver has lost its errors even to the unthinking; it has been consigned to the tomb of buried issues, and only the political shade of William J. Bryan, playing the role of resurrection angel, keeps the vigil and hovers o'er its resting place. But it is dead—too dead to smell—and even the idiocy of the Democratic party, always to be depended on to do the wrong thing, is not idiotic enough to resurrect it.

"And the tariff, well, the tariff is like the poor—it is always with us. It has been drawn into every campaign by the Democratic party, when all other issues have failed it, and the same old creature in the same old garb may be drawn out again during this campaign. No line of cleavage can be drawn now between the parties along this question. Too many of the thinking Democrats are with us on this question. The old Democratic doctrine of free trade has been repudiated time and again by the people, and it is as dead as free silver.

"The Democratic party dare not reaffirm in its St. Louis platform, a single vital issue upon which it has heretofore fought its battles. They have all been repudiated—utterly repudiated with the indelible stigma of public abhorrence.

"Its dearth of leaders is as great as its dearth of issues. It dare not nominate its former standard bearer, twice defeated, nor its other former standard bearer, twice elected. Its ranks disorganized and shattered, it has few to champion and none to lead. And we have the sad spectacle of a once glorious Democracy approaching a campaign, torn by internal dissensions, dejected, dispirited, without an issue or a leader, not knowing what to do, but Micawber like, waiting for something to turn up at St. Louis in July, only to be turned down by the people in November."

KUROPATKIN FALLS BACK

Russian General Retreating Before the Japanese Advance.

St. Petersburg, May 18.—Confirming the intimation that it is Gen. Kuropatkin's purpose to avoid a decisive combat with the Japanese at this stage of the war, the statement was made by the general staff today that the commander-in-chief is making preparations to fall back on Mukden and then on Harbin.

While the superior numbers of the enemy compel a retirement, it does not follow that Gen. Kuropatkin will not strike a stinging blow should a strategical mistake be made which will enable him to throw a stronger army upon one of the advancing columns of his antagonist. The most exposed portion of Gen. Kuriko's command is that which moved directly northward, evidently with the intention of gaining the road to Mukden, down which it will march as soon as the other columns are within supporting distance. Unless caution, heretofore the conspicuous feature of the Japanese campaign, is observed, this column, it is believed here, will fall the victim of its temerity, as Gen. Kuropatkin is known to be holding it under close surveillance.

Kuropatkin's decision to withdraw from Liao Yang can only mean, according to the experts that there will continue to be affairs of outposts unless another Gen. Zassalitch should develop.

The controlling strategic point at Hai Cheng, will not be held, as believed, Kuropatkin deciding it to be unwise to isolate more troops, who would, not being as well supplied as those at Port Arthur, find it difficult to subsist until relief arrived. This is one of the reasons that dictated the withdrawal of the Russians from Newchwang, the details of which have not yet been made public. The experts say that the debarkation of Japanese at Newchwang at this time, would be nothing more or less than a strategical blunder advantageous to the Russians, as they are still holding the railroad and could rush a force there, fall on the Japanese and retire before a column could get between them and Liao Yang.

The general staff confirms the announcements of the abandonment of Kin Chou by the Russians after the dismantling of the forts and the removal of the guns to Port Arthur.

Chicago, May 18.—A special to the Daily News from Che Foo says:

The Daily News dispatch boat Fawan while passing Port Arthur(about 10 a. m. today heard six heavy explosions. They appeared to proceed from the inner harbor and suggested the idea that the Russians were blowing up their ships and docks.

BALLOTING FOR BISHOPS

Will Take Some Time to Determine the Results.

Los Angeles, May 18.—The crowd that besieged Hazard's pavilion today seeking admittance to the Methodist conference in order to observe the balloting for bishops, which had been fixed as the special order of the day, was unusually large. Recess was taken at 11 o'clock and upon reassembling Bishop Hamliton, who presided asked the delegates to devote ten minutes for prayer, seeking divine guidance in the important duty before them.

The tellers were then appointed and the first ballot for bishops was cast. The result may not be known today, as it will require considerable time for the tellers to tally up the votes for the many candidates. It was the opinion of many delegates this morning that the work of selecting the eight bishops will require several days, possibly a week.

It's a Great Sale of Women's Tailored Suits in Newest this Season's Styles at Exactly HALF PRICE!

WE HAVE JUST OPENED UP NEW LINES OF WOMEN'S

BEAUTIFUL TAILORED SUITS—

In Summer Weight French Voiles—in black, blue, champagne, grey, brown and novelty mixtures.

Mohairs, Brilliantines and Sicilians—in plain colors, Shepard checks and novelty effects.

Novelty Mixtures that are entirely new—styles that are absolutely new and different from any heretofore shown—from orders placed by our Mr. Gidding on his recent trip East and which have just arrived—some are entirely over silk—some jackets only silk lined, in dress length skirts or the new "Board Walk" length skirt.

Also complete new lines

SHIRT WAIST SUITS—

Of Silk, Mohair, Linen, Voile or Lawn, in new effects for summer wear. Styles that will not be shown by any other house at the head of the lakes.

We've taken more suits out of our regular stock to fill up the gaps in sizes and colors that were sold.

The values are unmatched, as you will readily see by comparison! And, let us say it again—every suit is this season's style! No left-overs from past seasons—no passe styles and cloths—that fashionably-dressed women would not have at any price!

Every garment is made as well as nimble tailors' fingers are able to make them—trimmed as well as expert designers are able to trim them—and, fit as well as good clothes could possibly be made to fit!

Don't take it for granted that all half price suit sales mean half of real value! for very often an article is marked too high in the first place and half would then, perhaps, only mean that you are paying full price!

This sale was started with an idea in mind of cleaning up every one of our wool Tailored Suits so as to make room for more summery lines, such as Voiles, Mohairs, Brilliantines, Silks, Linens, Lawns, Net, Etc.—and we're doing it right in the heart of the season, when women want them most—instead of waiting until the season is nearly over. You can choose NOW, from three special racks out on our floor—that includes every size and the season's best shades—and at half their regular prices—

HATRED IN FAMILY

Shown By Witnesses In the Gillespie Trial.

Rising Sun, Ind., May 18.—Mrs. James Boyle was the first witness today for the state. She testified that while she was at supper, on the night of Dec. 8, Mrs. Belle Seward came into her house a very short time before they heard a shot fired at the Gillespie house. She also testified to conversations with Jim Gillespie at different times, when he spoke unfeelingly of his sister. The witness said James Gillespie had not had any verbal communication with his mother for the past three years.

CHARGES DISMISSED.

Interstate Commerce Completes Investigation.

Washington, May 18.—The investigation of the charges made some time ago against Edward. A. Mosely, secretary of the interstate commerce commission, has been completed. The result shows that some of the charges were unfounded in fact, that others were satisfactorily disposed of by the answers by Mr. Mosely or by the assumption of responsibility by the interstate commerce commission and that still others grew out of some objectionable methods in certain features of administrative detail.

After giving the case careful consideration, the president, having dismissed the charges against Secretary Mosely, has directed that steps be taken at once to bring about such changes of administration as the investigation has shown to be desirable.

ADMIRAL TOGO REPORTS THE LOSS OF BATTLESHIP HATSUSE AND THE CRUISER YOSHINO---TWO OTHER SHIPS REPORTED LOST

LA FOLLETTE NOMINATED BY REGULARS; BOLTERS WILL NAME COOK OR BAENSCH

Some Stirring Times Among the Republicans of Wisconsin.

Anti-Third Termers Go By Themselves and Hold Convention.

Madison, Wis., May 19.—The indications before the two state Republican conventions were called to order today were that the one at the University gymnasium would be attended strictly by the La Follette faction, and that the anti-third termers, composed largely of Baensch supporters, would be joined by the Cook forces. It was conceded that La Follette would head one state ticket and Cook the other, the Baensch strength going to Cook. Emmet R. Hicks, of Oshkosh, manager of the Cook campaign, said today that the Cook delegation would become part of the convention which had a majority of legally accredited delegates, and that in his opinion the opposition to La Follette composed the legal body.

A meeting of the Cook delegates was held this morning at the Park hotel to determine their own attitudes relative to the La Follette and anti-third termers. It was announced that they would not give recognition to the La Follette gathering by being present as Cook men, and that not until the legal right of the Baensch delegates from the counties in question was determined would they sit in the convention at the Fuller Opera house. Their leader, E. D. Hicks, it was decided, would take his men into the anti-third term convention when the credentials committee determined who the rightful delegates were.

THE REGULAR CONVENTION.

Madison, University Gymnasium, May 19.—Permanent Chairman Lenroot, presiding at the Republican convention attended by the La Follette delegates, rapped the gathering to order by 9:40 o'clock and inquired if the committee on resolutions was ready to report. Chairman Chynoweth of that committee reported that he had a communication from one of the members of the committee which was sent to the secretary's desk for reading. It proved to be the resignation from the committee of Charles F. Pfister of Milwaukee, one of the anti-third term leaders. The resignation was accepted and Fred C. Lorenz of Milwaukee was named to fill the vacancy. The convention became informal while the committee on resolutions conferred.

Several hundred delegates' chairs were empty and it was said all of the Baensch and Cook delegates were attending the anti-third term convention at the Fuller opera house.

Chairman Chynoweth reported that three members of the resolutions committee, Messrs. Reynolds, Bennett and Riordan, failed to meet with the committe, but that as prepared the report was signed by eight members of the committee.

The platform strongly indorses the national administration and the state administration of La Follette.

The platform as read was adopted unanimously. The roll call showed that 585½ delegates were present.

State Senator John M. Frear of the Eleventh district, placed in nomination for governor Robert M. La Follette. His speech was highly laudatory of the governor and an endorsement of his official acts throughout two administrations. Several seconding speeches were made and the nomination was made by acclamation.

On motion of Senator Miller of Dane county the rest of the state officers now holding office were renominated and voted upon collectively. They received the 585½ votes in the convention and were declared unanimously nominated. The list follows:

Lieutenant governor—James O. Davidson, Soldiers Grove.

Secretary of state—Walter L. Houser, Mondair.

Attorney general—L. M. Studevant, Neillsville.

Treasurer—John J. Kempf, Milwaukee.

Insurance commissioner—Zeno M. Host, Milwaukee.

Railroad commissioner—John W. Thomas, Chippewa Falls.

The following is an abstract of the La Follette platform:

"The Republican party of Wisconsin, through its chosen representatives, in regular convention assembled, reaffirms its steadfast support of the enduring principles of the Republican party as expressed in national platforms, and wrought out day by day in the administration of the affairs of the national government by Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt. We record our unqualified approval of the progressive, patriotic and courageous administration of Theodore Roosevelt. Facing the gravest responsibilities, required to deal with new and unsettled problems at home and abroad, he has at all times, and under all circumstances, with marked wisdom and foresight, so discharged the duties of his office as to command the confidence and admiration of his countrymen.

"We commend Mr. Roosevelt's firm enforcement of law and preservation of peace, as especially evidenced by his conduct in settling the coal strike in Pennsylvania and prosecuting the merger litigation in the Northwest. We firmly adhere to the fundamental Republican doctrine of protection to American labor, and believe that the aim of a truly protected policy should be to stimulate competition in the home market and not destroy it by favoring trust combinations. We, therefore, believe in a readjustment of tariff schedules in all cases where protection is employed for the benefit of capital only to the injury of the consumer and workingman.

"The Republican party of Wisconsin gives its unqualified approval to the recommendations of the interstate commerce commission and of President Roosevelt and pledges its support to the president and to the commission in their efforts to secure relief from the increasing burden imposed on the people by these public service corporations."

Governor La Follette was escorted to the convention hall by a committee appointed to inform him of his nomination. He was introduced by Chairman Lenroot as "the present governor and the next governor of Wisconsin."

The reception accorded him was enthusiastic in the extreme. A delegation of students joined in the greeting and gave him the university yell.

Governor La Follette made a ringing speech of acceptance and was frequently interrupted with applause. The governor's speech, in the main, was confined to state issues.

Governor La Follette spoke for nearly an hour, after which the convention took a recess until 3 o'clock, when the election of delegates-at-large to the national convention was the order of business.

The slate, which it was said would go through, was: Governor Robert M. La Follette, Isaac Stephenson, W. D. Connor and James H. Stout.

THE BOLTERS IN CONVENTION.

Madison, May 19.—M. G. Jeffries, of Rock county, called the temporary anti-third term organization to order, and introduced Delegate F. D. Lake, of the Winnebago county delegation. Mr. Lake stated, amid thunderous cheers, that thirty delegates from Winnebago county, in the Cook column, had entered the convention. This was an indication that the Cook forces were coming into the convention.

The report of the credentials committee was adopted, the members finding that the delegates from the contested counties were entitled to seats.

In order to prove their findings, the committee responded to a demand on the part of the convention for a statement of facts in regard to St. Croix county. Spencer Haven, of Baldwin, made a statement declaring the convention to have been illegal. The participation of Senators Spooner and Quarles in the convention was solicited by a committee appointed by the chair, as follows: Ex-Governor Edward Scofield, ex-Governor Upham and C. C. Rogers. They left the hall amid cheers to invite the senators to be present.

J. R. Dennett, of Ozaukee county, moved that the temporary organization be made permanent. Chairman Jeffries responded in a whisper, having lost his voice in the parliamentary battle in the gymnasium yesterday. The motion carried, and the chair announced that Senator John C. Spooner and Senator Joseph V. Quarles had consented to appear and speak before the anti-third term convention at the time the report of the committee on resolutions was received. This committee was not ready to report. The convention was then adjourned to 2 o'clock this afternoon.

THE STALWARTS BOLT.

Madison, Wis., May 19.—The stalwarts made a determined fight in the regular convention yesterday to secure the substitution of the minority report for the majority in the case of the contested delegations. In each instance, the minority lost, and the majority report was then adoted as a whole by a vote of 564 5-6 to 470 1-6.

Immediately, ex-Assemblman Cowling took the floor and stated that he had been asked to suggest to the convention that the names of United States Senators Spooner and Quarles be not mentioned for national delegates by this convention.

The time for a bolt of the "anti-third terners" had arrived and M. G. Jeffries, of Janesville, then announced that a caucus of the anti-third termers would be held at the Fuller Opera house at 8:30 o'clock last night.

Senator Hudnall, of Superior, moved the temporary organization be made permanent.

A majority of the Baensch delegates declined to vote while the Cook delegates acted upon their determination not to participate in the convention. The vote carried, 574 5-6 to 129 2-3 in favor of permanent organization.

P. W. Chynoweth, of Madison, then moved that the chair appoint a committee on resolutions and an adjournment of a few minutes was taken. Included in the committee, as named by the chair, was Charles Pfister, of Milwaukee, and Senator Riordan, of Eagle River. Emmett R. Hicks, leader of the Cook forces, declined to serve on the committee. An adjournment was then taken until this morning.

The anti-third term faction in the Republican state convention, which bolted the convention, met in the Fulton Opera house last night, with M. B. Jeffries, of Janesville, as chairman. Temporary organization was effected and an adjournment was taken until morning. Col. W. B. Anderson was nominated as secretary of the convention, and Graham L. Rice, formerly railway commissioner, was made sergeant-at-arms. The plan of the bolters is to nominate ex-Congressman S. A. Cook for governor.

FIRE AT VERNDALE.

Verndale, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two barns, owned by A. A. La Loue and Howard Bemis, were burned yesterday with their contents, which included farm machinery. The loss is $700 or $800. Boys playing around the barns are supposed to have set them on fire while smoking cigarettes

PSEUDO PRESIDENT AND BIG BLACK NEGRO

Enter Carriage at Capitol, While Picture Machine Is Worked.

Washington, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the meanest political schemes ever attempted was started in front of the capitol building today. Whether or not it will be successful remains an open question. Shortly before noon an open carriage drove up to the east entrance, containing a man made up to resemble the president. The make-up was so perfect that the capitol police were deceived. The man raised his silk hat and bowed several times to the few people assembled. In a moment more, a big black negro approached. He was welcomed by the pseudo president and invited into the carriage. As he entered the vehicle a revolver dropped from his pocket. He descended and picked it up and again entering the carriage was rapidly driven away.

In the meantime a kintescope operator was working his machine at close range, and it is presumed that he has secured several hundred films which apparently show the president in the act of inviting a negro to ride with him, and this directly in front of the main entrance to the capitol. The supposition is that these films were to be exhibited throughout the country for the purpose of creating race prejudice. The capitol officials seemed to be dazed and made no effort to prevent the use of the camera at the grounds, which is open violation of the law unless a permit is first obtained. Efforts are being made this afternoon to ascertain who was the man who impersonated the president and to discover the owner and operator of the moving picture machine. Thus far no clue has been obtained.

WOMEN'S CLUBS HOLD FIRST MEETING IN FESTIVAL HALL

Special Exercises Commemorating the Acquisition of the Louisiana Territory Were Held and a Bronze Tablet Was Unveiled.

St. Louis, May 19.—For the first time in the history of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, special exercises commemorating an anniversary, formed part of a biennial program when today's session of the seventh biennial, which convened last Tuesday, was called to order in Festival hall at the World's fair grounds by Mrs. Dimmines T. S. Denison, president of the federation.

The exercises were arranged in honor of the Louisiana purchase, and to the club women of the country was accorded the honor of holding the first meeting in the immense auditorium, which will be the scene of so many distinguished gatherings during the exposition period.

The feature of the program was the dedication and unveiling of a bronze tablet, given by the women of the United States in commemoration of the acquisition of the Louisiana territory. In the center of the tablet is a figure of "Progress," leading the pioneer settlers toward the setting sun and the towering spires of Western civilization. Above the relief is the following inscription:

"Presented to the city of St. Louis by the General Federation of Women's Clubs in commemoration of the acquisition of the Louisiana territory."

Below the relief is the following inscription:

"The acquisition of the territory is a credit to the broad and far-sighted statesmanship of the great men to whom it was immediately due."

"It followed inevitably upon the great Western thrust of the settler folk, a thrust which was delivered blindly, but which no rival race could parry."—Roosevelt.

There was only one session of the biennial today. The delegates arrived at the World's fair grounds early and proceeded immediately to Festival hall. The interior had been elaborately decorated with national flags and the color of the Louisiana Purchase exposition and the general federation. Owing to the fact that the great organ had not been completed, the musical part of the program was slightly changed, a military band being substituted for the proposed organ recital.

SEATTLE WOMAN DROPS DEAD AT SISTER'S HOME IN ST. PAUL

St. Paul, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Stella Hammond, a sister of Mrs. Joseph Napoleon Savard, who came to St. Paul from Seattle to be with her sister during the period following a dangerous operation for cancer of the stomach, dropped dead from apoplexy at the Savard home, 585 Mississippi street, this morning. The stroke came with terrible suddenness while she was talking with members of the family, and death followed shortly.

Mrs. Hammond was but 30 years old, and apparently in good health. The intense strain following the operation upon her sister, is supposed to have contributed to her sudden death.

Mrs. Savard was operated on at St. Joseph's hospital Tuesday. The operation, by which a part of the stomach was removed, is one of the rarest and most difficult in surgical science.

Four surgeons participated in the operation, which lasted from 8 o'clock until 12 o'clock Tuesday morning. A part of the stomach was removed and a tube inserted by which the patient may receive nourishment.

Five days must elapse before it is definitely known whether the operation will be successful.

BANDIT CARRIES OFF AMERICAN

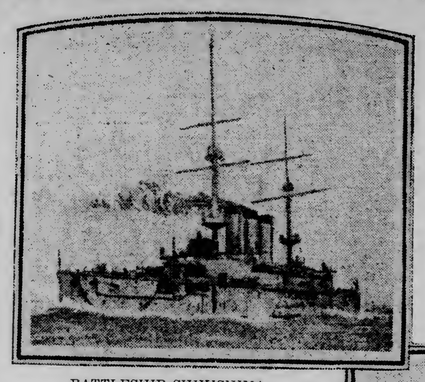
Tangier, Morocco, May 19.—An American citizen, named Perdicaris, and his stepson, a British subject, were carried off by the well known bandit, Raisuli, and his followers, last night, and will doubtless he held for a heavy ransom. The captives were staying at Perdicaris' summer residence, only three miles from Tangier, when the bandit attacked and captured them.

Perdicaris is of Greek origin, but is a naturalized citizen of the United States. He is very wealthy and has lived in Tangier for years. He married an English woman, whose son is his companion in captivity.

Foreigners are much excited by this bold raid, so near Tangier, and attribute it to the supineness of the government in failing to punish the bandits who last year captured Walter B. Harris, the correspondent in Morocco of the London Times, and their failure to deal with general lawlessnesss.

DRS. SPELLMIER AND M'DOWELL ELECTED METHODIST BISHOPS

Los Angeles, May 19.—The second ballot for bishops was announced in the Methodist general conference this morning. Those receiving more than 125 votes were as follows: Dr. Henry Spellmeier, Newark, N. J., 612 (elected); Dr. W. F. McDowell, New York, 510 (elected); Dr. J. W. Bashford, 424; Dr. T. B. Neely, 372; Dr. J. R. Day, 295; Dr. R. J. Cook, 312; Mr. J. W. E. Bowen (colored), 268; Dr. H. C. Jennings, 265; Dr. L. B. Wilson, 208; Dr. William Burt, 194; Dr. George P. Eckman, 190; Dr. C. W. Smith, 180; necessary to a choice on this ballot, 461. A third ballot was taken this morning and will be announced this afternoon.



BATTLESHIP SHIKISHIMA.

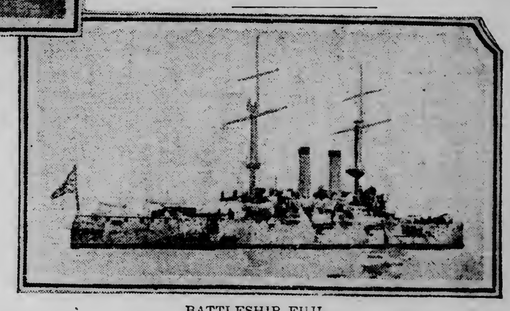
Battleship Skikishima Said to Have Struck a Mine and Gone Down.

Battleship Fuji Also Reported In Collision With a Mine.

Yoshino Collided In a Fog and Went to Bottom.

But Ninety of Crew Were Saved From Wreck.

Big Battleship Hatsuse Struck on a Mine.



BATTLESHIP FUJI.

Tokio, May 19.—Vice-Admiral Togo has reported as follows: "A report from Rear Admiral Dewa says that the cruisers Kasaga and Yoshino collided during a fog off Port Arthur on May 15. The Yoshino sank, only ninety of her crew being saved. "On the same day the battleship Hatsuse struck a Russian mine and sank."

Che Foo, May 19.—A party of thirteen Russians arriving from Dalny this morning by junk are authority for the statement that during a bombardment of Port Arthur by the Japanese Monday afternoon the Japanese battleship Shikishima and the cruiser Asama struck mines and sank.

The Russians say that the Shikishima sank two minutes after running on the mine and that the Asama was being towed away by a vessel of the bombarding fleet when she also went down.

The thirteen Russians seem to have obtained their information from the commanding officer at Dalny who showed them, they assert, a telegram from Port Arthur that the bombardment commenced at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon, and that two hours later the Shikishima struck the mine and was soon at the bottom. During the confusion that followed, according to the story told, the Asama also struck on a mine and was taken in tow but was settling so fast that it was found necessary to abandon her.

A number of Russian torpedo boats then went out but the Japanese received reinforcements and the Russians retried.

Today's arrivals say that the entrance to Port Arthur was blocked but one of the sunken steamers was removed and entrance is now open but it is still dangerous and the Russian fleet has been ordered to remain in the harbor until the arrival of Admiral Skrydloff, who will take command.

Communication north of Dalny has been completely severed.

The Shikishima is a first-class battleship of 14,850 tons displacement. She is 400 foot in length, 75 foot beam and has a draught of 27 feet and an indicated horse power of 14,500. Her armor belt is nine and four-tenths inches thick and her turret armor is fourteen and six-tenths inches thick. Her deck armor is of three and five-tenths inches. She carries four 12-inch guns, fourteen 6-inch guns and twenty quick-firers. She has five torpedo tubes, speed is reckoned at 18 and five-tenths knots and she carries a complement of 741 men. The Shikishima was built on the Thames in 1898. According to recent list of Japanese officers, Capt. Itoragaki was in command of the Shikishima.

Che Foo, May 19.—(3 p. m.)—People just arrived here from Dalny have reported to the Russian consul that the Japanese battleship Shikishima sank in two minutes after contact with the submarine mine and that there was no time to save the crew. The accident happened, it is said, within sight of Port Arthur.

The battleship Fuji, not the cruiser Asama, which struck the mine on the port bow, had a heavy list and was also down by the bow, but was righted and went off in tow of the other cruisers. It is thought impossible, however, that she could reach port.

The rumor at Dalny, to the effect that the Asama had sunk in Kerr bay, probably refers to the sinking of the steel cruiser Niyaka, which took place there recently by coming in contact with a submarine mine.

The Russian consul personally had a telegram from Dalny saying that it is rumored there that two Japanese battleships had been sunk off Port Arthur.

Refugees coming in say that the town received no damage from the bombardment and that considerable land fighting is going on to the north of Dalny.

RUSSIANS VACCILLATING.

They Move Out and In of Newchwang.

Newchwang, May 19.—A courier of the Associated Press, who arrived here shortly before midnight, reports that the Japanese fleet was sighted from Tower Hill, ten miles north of Kai Chou, on Monday. The bombardment of the coast was extensive, covering a distance of twenty-five miles. Only the Japanese marines, it is reported, were landed. This, however, is not confirmable. The Japanese force marched several miles inland, destroyed four miles of railroad and other property, captured a Russian commissary train and returned with a number of carts, animals and native drivers. The Japanese then re-embarked and left the vicinity of their landing place. The transports shortly afterwards could not be seen from Tower Hill, but their course was southward. It is believed now that the landing was a feint to cover movements elsewhere.

A regiment of Russian infantry returned here yesterday. It was reported at 10 o'clock last night that batteries of artillery will reach here today. The Russians seem to be bewildered and disheartened and unable to form lasting plans. Officers who left here (though their personal baggage remained at Newchwang), after bidding touching farewells to friends in Newchwang, returned a few hours later and began directing the work of building entrenchments a mile south of here. But this task was abandoned in a few hours. It is believed here that the Russian authorities at Mukden are responsible for this vacillation.

In addition to the recrudescence of military activity, the sailors are refitting the gunboat Sivouch, which had been dismantled and loaded with wood and oil in order to destroy her, as well as two small river boats in the mud dock.

The Russian statements in regard to the situation are absolutely unreliable. Many Japanese spies are here or in this vicinity. One spy has been executed. It is believed he was an officer of the Japanese army.

A correspondent of the Associated Press made an attempt to reach Ki Chou, but was stopped by Russian scouts and compelled to return to Newchwang.

The Russian civil authorities here are making desperate efforts to induce the Chinese guilds to take over the municipal government of Newchwang but the guilds do not show any disposition to do so.

The Chinese here have ceased displaying the Russian flag.

Bandits continue capturing rich Chinese, holding them captives until ransoms are paid. The Chinese victims make no complaints, fearing assassination.

Newchwang is filled with bandits armed with rapid fire pistols, concealed in their garments.

There are unconfirmed reports that the Cossacks continue to harass the rear guard of the Japanese army advancing from the Yalu river.

EMPEROR'S BIRTHDAY.

St. Petersburg Takes a Holiday In His Honor.

St. Petersburg, May 19.—St. Petersburg had a holiday today in honor of the birthday of Emperor Nicholas, who was born May 18, 1868. The city was ablaze with color, the principal streets were gaily decorated, the street cars, displaying flags, moved slowly on the Nevsky and other thouorghfares, the ships moored in the sparkling Neva were dressed and the churches were thronged during the morning with officials and other persons offering prayers for the emperor and the success of the Russian arms in the far East. At noon the dingy fortress on the banks of the Neva fired an imperial salute of 121 guns. In pervious years it had been customary for the emperor to hold a grand reception at the winter palace, but the absence of his majesty made it impossible today. The joy of many officials was increased by promotions and decorations, which were gazetted in the Official Messenger this morning.

Peasants in holiday attire, were grouped at the street corners studying Gen. Kuropatkin's bulletins reporting that the Japanese are falling back, but the news apparently did not occasion satisfaction, because it was known even to the loweliest that Kuropatkin will not strike, and that some time must elapse before Russia can make her might felt. Therefore, no impatience was displayed at the failure of the Russian commander-in-chief to follow up his advantage. There was only muttered approval of the policy of waiting until the reinforcements, to which the emperor was bidding farewell, reached Manchuria.

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND

Men Required to Guard the Manchurian Railway.

Miandonha, (a station on the Manchurian railway), May 18, (delayed in transmission.)—The task of safeguarding the railroad against the constant and determined attacks of Japanese and Chinese agents has caused the Russian military authorities unremitting labor. The line must be preserved at all hazards, especially for use in case of retreat; and the task is entrusted to a separate corps of frontier guards, made up of fifty-five mounted squadrons, fifty-five foot companies and six batteries of artillery, altogether 25,000 men. The road which is 1400 miles long, is divided into sections of thirty-three miles, each guarded by a detachment of troops, which is expected to constantly patrol. The smallness of the detachments makes this duty exceedingly onerous. It is a matter of comparatively little difficulty for a Japanese spy or a Chinese bandit to steal up to an exposed point and dynamite it before the patrols discover the danger.

PRAISE JAP BULLETS.

Make Small Wound With Good Stopping Effect.

Liao Yang, Wednesday, May 19.—The Russian army surgeons are praising the Japanese bullets. They inflict a small, clear wound, though they possess good stopping effect. Captain Vorobeff was struck by twenty bullets during the fighting at the Yalu river, but he survived and is expected to recover. Several gunners of the heroic Third battery are convalescent though their intestines were pierced.

The last train load of men wounded at the Yalu has gone north after the soldiers receiving decorations personally from General Kuropatkin.

DIRECTORS RESIGN.

Not Pleased With the Delay of King Leopold.

Brussels, May 19.—M. Devolder, a prominent banker and former minister, and Col. Thys, one of the chief promoters of commercial enterprises in the SCongo Free State, who, it was announced in February last, visited the United States having been intrusted by King Leopold with matters in connection with the railroad from Hankow to Canton, have resigned from the directorate of the Hankow-Canton railway.

The newspapers attribute this action to the failure of King Leopold to carry out arrangements which Messrs. Thys and Devolder had concluded in America in accordance with the king's instructions.

QUAY SEEMS BETTER.

Pittsburg, May 19.The condition of Senator M. S. Quay is reported to be somewhat improved today. No unfavorable symptoms have shown themselves for several days.

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

Social, Musical and Art Circles.

The joys of living in the suburbs are many. There is the fresh air and the freedom and the chickens that you feed all year and will not lay except when eggs are so cheap anybody can have them, and then there is the ride home on the nice smooth running ars, if you do not live at Woodland. The department stores in Duluth are good, too, but there is a lack in their treatment of the suburbs of the city in the delivery line. Lakeside and Woodland are the greatest sufferers at the present time, as West Duluth has stores of its own, and in an emergency wants may be supplied at home, but for the other suburb dwellers the delivery twice a week is a trial. At present but two deliveries a week is made by any of the stores, and this necessitates customers often waiting three and four days before their goods can be delivered. If one cannot or does not care to wait, then must the bundles be carried home on the car, and then the cry of the business men and the business women is raised, "Why don't these housekeepers do their shopping and go home when we're not on the cars, or if they must, why will they have such bundles."

A daily delivery to Lakeside and Woodland is an attraction that will bring trade to the department store that first inagurates the change, or if one store feels that the expense of the wagon is greater than the trade calls for, a wagon owned in common by all the stores that would make this daily trip might be a good idea. It is needed, and it must come, and if every resident of both suburbs would ask after the purchase of even a spool of thread, "Have you a daily delivery to Lakeside or Woodland?" as the case might be, it might help in bringing sooner this convenience that is so greatly needed.

LAKESIDE CLUB.

Another of Its Delightful Entertainments.

The third of the Lakeside club entertainments is announced for Friday evening, at Harmonie hall, at Lester Park, on hand bills like unto those that were distributed to announce the coming of the circus, which is eminently proper, as "more fun than a circus," or "a barrel of monkeys," are the phrases most used in describing the pleasures of these entertainments. It is another evening arranged by the committee of the club simply to give the people of Lakeside pleasure. It is announced as being without price, and the hope of the committee that it shall be without pain.

The last appearance in America of the Posy Sextet will take place at this time, but it is also probable that like Patti's farewell, the coming generations of Lakesiders will listen to their "art," which can be called by no known name, with wonder. The program follows:

Piano solo .. ..
Miss Ursula Joerns.
Vocal solo .. ..
James A. Wharton.
Musical glasses .. ..
W. H. Stone.
Mandolin and Guitar club .. ..
"Positively the last appearance in America" .. ..
Posy Sextet.
Piano solo .. ..
Mrs. E. F. Bird.
Vocal solo .. ..
Mrs. H. S. Clothier.
Trombone solo .. ..
Frank S. Huse.
Vocal solo .. ..
C. McCauley.

Junior-Senior Reception.

The date of the Junior-Senior reception has at last been decided upon. The Juniors have this year had no end of trouble in securing a date that would not interfere with "exams" or other school affairs, but the affair, which is the biggest social event in school life, has been set for Monday, June 20. The dance will be given as in the last few years, at the Spalding and the Juniors each year make a party "nicer, bigger, better and sweller" than ever before. The party is always a delightful one as there are no jaded people or tastes and the dance is enjoyed to the utmost.

FOR PROF. GRIGGS.

Literature Class to Give Reception Tuesday.

The Ladies' Literature class will entertain at an afternoon reception Tuesday in honor of Professor Edward Howard Griggs, who will lecture in Duluth Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week at the First Methodist church. The reception will be held at the home of Mrs. Henry C. Marshall, of 2302 East Fifth street. The class invites all club members and holders of tickets for the lectures to attend the reception and especially desires that all men who would enjoy meeting Professor Griggs would avail themselves of this opportunity. The coming of Professor Griggs is attracting much attention and many will be delighted at this opportunity to meet him.

Events of Interest.

The wedding of Miss Lulu Clippert, daughter of Mrs. Frank Clippert, and Walter S. Petty, took place last evening at the home of the bride's mother, at 2719 West Second street. The wedding was a quiet home affair, only the immediate friends being present. Rev. I. I. Gorby read the service and Mr. and Mrs. Petty will be at home at 306 West Fifth street.

* * *

Miss Mary Dillon, of this city, and H. C. Corey, of Superior, were married yesterday afternoon by Rev. R. J. Mooney at the parsonage.

* * *

Last evening the last meeting of the Duluth Art club for this year was held at the library. The meeting was well attended and half of the evening was given to a social session. The club has accomplished much during its year's work and the enthusiasm of the members has lasted throughout the year, which has been longer than usual. The club will resume its work in the fall.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. W. E. Jones and Miss Agnes Jones have gone for a ten days' visit with friends in the Twin Cities. After their return they will be at home at 1220 East First street.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Adams, with Miss Helen Wishart as their guest, left yesterday for a trip to the Mesaba mines.

* * *

Mrs. C. P. O'Donnell left last evening for Indianapolis, where she will join Mr. O'Donnell. They will make their home there.

THE EVENING STORY.

A DEAL IN WHEAT

By J. C. Plummer.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

There was a financial crisis in the home of Capt. Soloman Peebles. The butcher and the grocer each had menaced the unfortunate mariner with legal proceedings if their accounts were not settled forthwith, and the furniture man hinted strongly at removing the parlor suit if the balance owed thereon was not paid, a dire threat, which, if accomplished, so Mrs. Peebles said, would forever disturb her rest in the grave. Added to this, Mrs. and Miss Peebles were without proper attire to appear before their neighbors without a feeling of deep humiliation.

"I can't understand it," said Mrs. Peebles, for the hundredth time, "why you can't make money. There's Capt. Lanyard, not as good a sailor as you, and yet he lives fine."

Capt. Peebles, who had ben beating the devil's tattoo on the table during this address, flung his hat on his head, said something which caused his wife to elevate her hands aloft, and left the house.

Luck and Capt. Peebles did not get on together. Always a careful master and latterly an over-careful one, he was constantly having accidents. From sticking on a bar to fouling a wharf, his craft was always paying damages or expenses, until shipowners dropped him. He was too old and fat for a mate, and it would have been folly to work for 'foremast' wages with his family. Hence the straightened condition of the Peebles family at present.

One thing, amid all his troubles, Capt. Peebles had kept intact his home. Purchased in installments, the fruits of hard toil and privation, he regarded it as a refuge for him and his family that should never be touched, and yet when he left the house he had resolved to sacrifice it.

"I will lend you $200 on your house, Peebles," said John Simms, capitalist, "and what's more, you sign the mortgage and I won't require your wife's signature, nor will I record it until necessary. You pay up your debts as you agree and pay up the mortgage as you can."

With the money in his pocket and trouble in his heart, Peebles walked homeward, feeling as does a sailor when he abandons his ship. His home was gone, he could never repay the mortgage under the present frown of fortune.

At the street corner he met Capt. Lanyard.

"Hello, Peebles," said he, "you look as if you had been dismasted in a squall."

However reticent a man may be about his own troubles, sometimes they gall him so that it is a relief to talk of them, and Peebles told Lanyard the whole story.

"Whew!" said Lanyard, "that's tough. Why don't you make some money?"

"But how?" asked Peebles.

"Speculate," replied Lanyard. "The time's gone by when a man can make any money sailing schooners for wages and gratuities. I wouldn't be master of any ship built, and I have money in bank and in my pocket. Now, I never met a belated craft on the sea that I did not have provisions and spare spars to give her, and I'll help you, Peebles. Buy wheat."

"Wheat!" ejaculated Peebles.

"There was a curbstone broker in New York who thought himself lucky if he had a bloater for his Sunday dinner. He went to Chicago and he's made a fortin, and, as I did him a favor or two when he was poor, he gives me some tips and they never go wrong. Here's a letter from him saying 'buy wheat, September wheat. The government report will be out next week and it has leaked. It will show a damaged condition and wheat will go up 5 or 10 cents with a jump.' There you are, buy September wheat."

"I've only $200," said Peebles.

"Plenty," said Lanyard, "buy 5000 bushels, put up your $200, and when it goes up to where you'll have $250 profit, sell her out. It's as easy as heaving a log."

"S'pose it goes down?"

"It won't go down. This fellow is never wrong. I'm going to buy 20,000 bushels. See Comstock and tell him I sent you."

Peebles walked on thinking deeply. This was the secret of Lanyard's prosperity. Why shouldn't he do as well?

He heard himself hailed and saw Josiah Boggs, a ship owner, beckoning him. "Peebles," said Boggs, "I've made up my mind to sell the Mary Jane. I'll take $5000 for her. Nose around among your sailor friends and sell her, and I'll give you 5 per cent."

Five thousand dollars was dirt cheap for a schooner like the Mary Jane and Peebles felt he could sell her. There would be $250, which would see him square even if the wheat deal went wrong. Things were turning.

The next morning Peebles went down to the wharf early, but he did not succeed in selling the Mary Jane. About noon he went in Comstock's office.

"I'll deal for you with pleasure, Capt. Peebles," said Comstock. "Just write your order on this blank and drop in about an hour later and I'll tell you at what price you got it."

An hour later he returned.

"You're in at 87," said Comstock. "Here's your sales ticket and receipt for your $200."

"My wife'll find this piece of paper and raise thunder," mused Peebles. "I'll tear it up," and he did.

The following morning, for the first time in his life, he looked at the Chicago quotations. Horror. September wheat closed at 86½. He was $25 loser already.

He hunted up Lanyard, who laughed at him. "What's a half cent?" he asked. "You can't hit the exact bottom. It'll come out all right; rest easy."

The balance of the week wheat wobbled between 86½ and 87, causing hope and despair to Peebles, but on the following Tuesday he opened the paper to be confronted with this item of news:

"Big slump in wheat. Government report unexpectedly favorable. September wheat drops 6 cents and closes at 80."

He felt the blood dry in his veins. Hatless, he rushed from the house to Lanyard's.

"That gentleman looked like a West India island after a hurricane.

"Awful, isn't it?" he muttered. "I'm teetotally busted. I'm sorry I met you, Peebles, but the tip never went wrong before."

"I'd kill myself," mused the unhappy Peebles, "if I only knew how. I came near drowning twice and I won't try that way. I saw a man die of pizen once and that sickens me of that, and I'm sure I couldn't hit myself with a pistol."

It was a horrible day and a sleepless night for Peebles. All was lost and Simms would never forgive him for not paying his debts with the loan. He would record the mortgage and drive his wife to despair.

He slunk out of his house in the morning and by obscure streets made his way to the wharf, hoping to sell the Mary Jane. A man grasped him by the arm. It was Comstock, the last man he wished to see, for undoubtedly he owed him something.

"I congratulate you, Capt. Peebles," said the broker. "You are a man in a hundred to sell wheat when all the world was buying."

"Sell it!" gasped Peebles.

"Yes, you ordered me to sell 5000 September at 87 and I gave you your sales ticket. Come down and I'll give you a check for $500."

Peebles tried to say something but only gurgled. "I meant to buy," he stammered, "but I was thinking of selling the Mary Jane."

"I don't know that lady," said the broker. "Come down and get your money."

When he returned to the house Capt. Marsh awaited him. "I'll take the Mary Jane," said he.

"And I'll take a tenth interest and command her," said Peebles.

DID ADDIE PROPOSE?

Kingston, N. Y., May 19.—Marion Lewis, a 20-year-old boy living at Verona, near Syracuse, has been arrested in a $10,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by Miss Addie Fluckiger, of Ellenville, and is now in the Ulster county jail.

The principal question to be determined when the case is tried is whether Miss Fluckiger took advantage of her leap-year rights to propose to the boy she is now prosecuting.

Lewis went to Ellenville early this year to visit his aunt. While there he met Miss Fluckiger, who is one of the most prominent workers in the local W. C. T. U., through whose ceaseless efforts the "lid" in Ellenville has been kept on very tight. The W. C. T. U. waged a strenuous campaign against sin and intemperance and part of its campaign was a series of evangelical services.

Up-state country villages have but infrequent advantages of opera and theatricals, and anything that furnishes excitement is hailed with joy. Lewis naturally, therefore, drifted into the meetings which were naturally being held.

Miss Fluckiger was one of the leading spirits in the evangelical meetings, and a part of her duty was to look after strangers who attended them. In this way she met young Lewis.

Talks of temperance led to talks of matrimony, Miss Fluckiger claims, and it was during one of these pleasant conversations, she alleges, that Lewis proposed marriage. She accepted his proposal, and when he tried to back out of it she entered suit for $10,000 and had him arrested.

Lewis' story differs from that of Miss Fluckiger. He admits that he attended services at which Miss Fluckiger was present and that he met her there. But he denies that he proposed marriage to her. On the contrary, he says, Miss Fluckiger, taking advantage of the fact that this is leap year, proposed to him.

He denies that he consented to the proposal. But even if he did accept the proposal, he sets up in his answer, the contract is not binding, because he was then under the age of 21 years, and as a contract made with a minor is void, he asks that her complaint be dismissed.

Oliver P. Carpenter, of this city, has been appointed guardian ad litem for the boy in the breach of promise suit.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

General Strike of Shingle Weavers Has Been Declared.

Calumet—A general strike of the shingle weavers has been declared, and but few upper peninsula and Wisconsin mills are manufacturing shingles, the owners having refused to grant the wage scale demanded by the unions. The mills of D. F. Daley, the Bay Shore Lumber company, Marinette Lumber company, Sawyer-Goodman company and others on the Menominee river are closed and several hundred men are out. In addition, strikes have been declared at the mills of the Cedar River Land company at Spalding, the Lindsley Bros. company at Alfred, the Wolverine Cedar and Lumber company at Northfield, the Jerry Madden Shingle company at Rapid river, the Morgan company at Forest City, Ira Carley at Ingalls and a half dozen others. About 2000 men are out in the district between Marquette and Green Bay, Wis. The saw and shingle mill of the White Marble Lime company has been closed at Manistique by a strike of the shingle weavers. About 120 men have been working there.

Owing to the situation on the great lakes the Calumet and Hecla Mining company has been forced to close its Buffalo smelting plant, the supply of mineral at that point having been exhausted.

Iron Mountain—No sooner had the Traders mine resumed operations and given 100 men employment, with prospects of many more being taken on, than it was forced to close down because of lack of transportation facilities on the lakes.

Escanaba—Unless plans now under way miscarry, Escanaba will have a baseball team made up of champion timber this season. Monied men are lending their support and a stock company probably will be formed. Charles Follo has been selected to act as manager and already has a number of speedy players on the string.

Menominee—Along the north side of Grand avenue, at Menominee, under the sidewalk, but a few inches under ground, lies the gas main for that street. The city ordinance provides that as soon as a wooden walk on that street is condemned it must be replaced by one of cement. In order to build cement walks this pipe must be removed. It was placed there by permission of the city, and the question now is whether the city will have to stand the expense of having the pipe removed and laid in some other part of the street, or whether the expense will fall on the property owners. The matter has come up in the council, but no decision has yet been reached.

The Menominee River Boom company has started sorting operations and the logs are now coming through the sorting gap. Two gaps are being operated and about 200 men are employed. The force will be increased until about 350 men will be working by the first of July. Several years ago five gaps were kept in operation.

Found a Cure for Indigestion.

I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find that they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different remedies. HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Posse That Killed Sully In Pursuit of Other Desperadoes.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Chamberlain—The posse that killed Jack Sully, the notorious cattle rustler, on Tuesday, is still in pursuit of other members of the gang and sensational developments are looked for at any time. Warrants are out for four other men, and as all are fully as desperate as was Sully, and have repeatedly declared that they will not be taken alive, another battle seems certain if Deputy Peirie and posse succeed in getting within reach of them. The storm center appears to be in the vicinity of Joe Blackbird Island.

Aberdeen—William F. Sidow, one of the early settlers and a retired farmer living in the city, died suddenly of heart disease, aged 56. He came here from St. Charles, Minn., in 1882. Last January he suffered a stroke of paralysis and had not been in good health since.

The trustees of the Home Building and Loan association have adopted a resolution authorizing the officers to establish an independent lumber yard here, the claim being made that the lumber companies having yards here are in a combination and have placed prices of building material above a reasonable profit.

Belle Fourche—A large quantity of sugar beet seeds has been received by farmers in this vicinity, and extensve experiments will be made. It is understood Eastern capital has been represented here for a location for a sugar factory.

Deadwood—The Society of Black Hills Pioneers will hold its annual picnic on June 11.

The case of arson against John Elmer has been dismissed. It was charged that he set fire to the Friendship hotel.

Pierre—A passenger train ran over and ground to a pulp Jenner H. Gould about five miles east of this city. He was lying on the tracks.

Redfield—The officers of the National Guard of South Dakota met with Adjut. Gen. Conklin, to arrange the time and other details for the annual encampment. It is probable that the date decided upon will be June 24.

Redfield college is much interested in the meet of five South Dakota colleges at Huron May 19 and 20. Mitchell, Yankton, Brookings and Huron will contest in track work, baseball and oratory.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bathgate—The Standard Oil company will move their tanks from Neche to this place this month. The roads out of Bathgate are better.

A PROMINENT ODD FELLOW

Threatened With Bright's Disease.—Pe-ru-na Restored Him to Health.

O. FRED LINDSTROM, PAST GRAND MASTER I. O. O. F.

O. Fred Lindstrom, Past Grand Master Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Past Chancellor Twin City Lodge, No. 63, Knights of Pythias, also Past Chief Patriarch, Ridgely Encampment, No. 22, writes from 1923 University Avenue, St. Paul, Minn.:

"Peruna has my hearty endorsement. There is no medicine I know of that can compare with it. I contracted a severe cold several years ago, which from neglect developed into urinary trouble, and threatened Bright's disease. As one of my friends was cured of Bright's disease through the use of Peruna I thought I would try it also, and used it faithfully for three and one-half months, when my health was perfect once more. I have never had any trouble since, and therefore think it is but just to give it unlimited praise."—O. Fred Lindstrom.

Catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining of the kidneys, also called "Bright's disease," may be either acute or chronic. The acute form produces symptoms of such prominence that the serious nature of the disease is at once suspected, but the chronic variety may come on so gradually and insidiously that its presence is not suspected until after it has fastened itself thoroughly upon its victim.

At the appearance of the first symptom Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once at the very root of the disease.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case.

Address Dr. Hartman, president of the Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

LOOKS OVER HIS FARM

Senator Pugh Inspects Crop and Dodges Political Headquarters.

State Senator T. M. Pugh returned today from a three weeks' visit at Mankato, Blue Earth county, where he has a farm of 300 acres and has been looking it over with a view of sizing up the prospects of the crop year.

"Everything is looking fine down there," said Mr. Pugh, this noon. "The crops are all looking excellent, and we will certainly have a great yield. The season is not quite so far advanced as it should be, but the trees are all leaved out and the farmers are putting in their corn.

"The country about Mankato is one of the greatest farming and dairy sections in the state, especially in the dairying line. The farmers calculate to make more money out of their dairy products than anything else.

"The land in that part of the state is, of course, nearly all improved, and is worth from $50 to $60 per acre.

"You would be surprised to see the large number of young men who are leaving that older settled country and coming up here to secure new and cheaper farming lands which they will themselves develop. There are too many of them in Blue Earth county and they have found out that there is plenty of room for them to expand up here. They are a good class of citizens, too, all of them being practical farmers."

Senator Pugh says he did not hear a breath of politics out in the country where he stayed and though he came back by way of the Twin Cities he did not hunt up any political headquarters.

TRAVELS OF A PENCIL.

Small Piece Passes Around Through Girl's Body.

New York, May 19.—A piece of slate pencil two-and-a-half inches long and sharpened to a needle-like point, has been removed from the right hand of Rosalie Layko, a 9-year-old Brooklyn school girl. The pencil had been working its way about the child's body since January last, when she swallowed it while at play. Efforts to remove it from her stomach then proved of no avail, and for several weeks she has complained of pains in the side and shoulder. Finally the object moved down through her arm and caused the hand to swell. The doctors were greatly astonished upon applying the lancet and encountering the hard piece of slate. They say there is no record of so large a substance passing through the human body in a similar manner.

RELEASED PRISONER.

Sneak Thief Forcibly Obtained Keys To Jail.

Milwaukee, May 19.—A Journal special from Monroe, Wis., says: W. F. Cleveland, a sneak thief, who after serving a short term in jail, was released a few days since, returned to the jail and demanded the keys of Mrs. John Gardner, wife of the sheriff. Upon her refusal to give them up he placed a handkerchief, saturated with chloroform, to her face and threatened to kill her if she did not give him the keys. He then took the keys and released Henry Jacobson, held for forgery, both getting away clear. Mrs. Gardner was discovered about an hour later and although not seriously hurt, is suffering from a nervous shock. Both men are still at large and it is thougat they made their escape in an auto car.

J. L. DODGE DEAD

Great Barrington, Mass., Man Having Vast Interests Here.

Duluth Property Valued Near Million—Ninety Years Old.

An Associated Press dispatch from Great Barrington, Mass., this morning announced the death in that city of John Langdon Dodge, millionaire and former president of a national bank of Great Barrington.

Mr. Dodge in the accumulation of his vast wealth made a large amount of his money in Duluth where he had many investments.

He was well known to many Duluth people, particularly the older residents.

"I regret very much to hear of Mr. Dodge's death," said Judge Ensign, who probably knew him as well as any Duluthian. "He was a typical New England business man, close in his dealings but honest in the strictest sense of the word. He was a man for whom I have always had the greatest of respect.

"I have the impression that Mr. Dodge came from Ashtabula, O., where his people formerly resided, but I am not certain as to that information.

"I have been told that in his early days Mr. Dodge was a clock peddler by profession, traveling through the South and the West. However that is almost traditional, too.

"Later he went to Great Barrington, Mass., and started the Mohaiwe bank, which was at first a state bank, of which he became president. After the passage of the national bank act the institution was changed to a national bank, and is still in existence.

"Mr. Dodge was a cousin of J. D. Ray, and came to Duluth in its early days to visit. He made some investments here and loaned considerable money, in fact continued to make investments and loan money in Duluth on real estate and otherwise for more than twenty years.

"Up to the time of his death he was a large holder of Duluth realty, and owned considerable stock in Duluth banks.

"Mr. Dodge accumulated great wealth. He had a beautiful home in Great Barrington, residing with his married daughter. He had two children, a son dying several years ago.

"Mr. Dodge was a man over 85 years of age, possibly nearer 90 years, yet he took quite an active interest in his business affairs up to within a few years ago."

John L. Dodge was the owner of a great amount of property in Duluth, in fact some estimates place the value of his holdings of all kinds in this city at very close to $1,000,000. His property is nearly all unimproved, but lies in the central portion of the city. He owns a great deal in Portland division and many lots on Superior street and First and Second streets. He was a stockholder in the American Exchange, First National and City National banks. Not all of his investments in Duluth were fortunate, but on the whole the profit side is several times in excess of any losses he may have sustained. He often visited here, though not since about 1893.

Some seven or eight years ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis in New York city, James C. Hunter, cashier of the American Exchange bank, was with him at that time.

He was 90 years of age and his wife has been dead for some years. From the union there were two children, a son and a daughter. The son, however, died. The daughter is married, has a number of children and resides in Great Barrington, Mass.

WILSON ON GOOD ROADS

Secretary of Agriculture Addresses National Association at St. Louis.

St. Louis, May 19.—The National and International Good Roads' convention was held today in the Missouri state building, in the exposition grounds, to which it adjourned yesterday from Central Music hall, in St. Louis. The forenoon session was devoted to numerous addresses. The Rev. Dr. R. A. Holland, of St. Louis, offered the invocation, after which Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson was introduced. Secretary Wilson said in part:

"Road building in the United States has, in the past, occupied the same position in the minds of men as all other agricultural subjects have held. It has been left to the localities of the several states and territories to make such roads as their intelligence and ability enabled them to construct. There has been no chair in any college or university, where practical road building has been taught as a part of a young man's education. This has been the case with most agricultural matters. A large percentage of the taxes paid by our people into the treasuries of their respective units of government has been for education, but very few have had in view the training of the people who cultivate the soil and who use the public roads more than other classes.

"Road making has not improved very materially since Macadam applied broken rock, but it has become an economic question of great importance to the American people.

"We have established within the department at Washington, an office for the study of road material. We are calling upon young men who have graduated in engineering institutions to take practical work with us, so that we may be able to supply the demands coming from all parts of the country for men ekilled in the art of road making.

Our laboratory is designed to assist each locality in determining the use of the materials it may happen to possess. Few of our towns and cities have facilities for doing this work. Many of the failures in road building in the past are due to the use of materials unsuited to the conditions of climate and traffic.

"The work of the department of agriculture along the line of road building is intended to be educational and experimental as it is along other lines in which it is engaged. I am well satisfied that the condition of the public roads at the present time is a correct indicator of the amount of educational work that has been done along the line of road building.

"I am well satisfied that when the people are thoroughly informed in the several tates and territories with regard to the science of road building, there will be no hesitation in levying taxes to carry on the work.

"Each section of our country has problems peculiar to itself, and to the end that all should have consideration, the department of agriculture has a scientific agent in each of our great subdivisions, bringing them into touch with the laboratory at Washington.

"The question will be with us always, and road making will be cheapened as research adds to our knowledge of materials. The knowledge of road making will grow as related sciences are developed."

A workman employed on some excavation work at the corner of Fourth avenue west and Third street, was overcome by gas this morning, and was in an unconscious condition when taken from the trench. The ambulance was summoned to take him to the hospital, but he recovered before reaching his destination, and insisted on returning to his work, claiming that he felt no ill effects from the accident.

Still another nasal hemorrhage, which lasted from 10 p. m. until after midnight, attacked Joseph A. Mannheim yesterday, and this morning his condition was very critical. He has been resting quietly during the day, however, and is a little stronger than last evening.

Ten North Dakota people who made stone and timber entry on land in this district at the opening of a township on the twelfth of last January, today completed final proof at the Duluth land office. Those in the party are: Misses Louise Benham, Lillian B. Wisner, Lizzie A. Welch, Lizzie J. Larimore and Messrs. James Bell, Clay Larimore, Jamison Larimore, W. J. Welsh, Arthur Stonehouse and John Pifer.

While no meeting of the public affairs committee of the Commercial club has yet been called it is believed that it will be held next Wednesday evening.

Fog last night made it impracticable for the Duluth boat club eight to get up speed in its practice. The air was so heavy with the dampness that the men could not see far beyond the end of the boat, which made fast rowing out of the question, as it would endanger the boat.

W. H. Cole goes tonight to Saginaw.

G. A. Holt is going to Chicago this evening.

W. O. Root starts tonight for Peoria, Ill.

E. R. Jones was a passenger today for Oshkosh.

Mrs. C. H. Bagley goes to Chicago tonight.

F. B. Smith, chief engineer of the Pittsburg Steamship company, goes to Chicago this evening.

D. W. Freeman went to St. Louis today.

Miss M. A. Wayne leaves tonight for Liverpool, Eng.

E. Z. Triggs will be a Marquette passenger tonight.

Assistant General Freight Agent Still, of the Northern Pacific, is in the city today. Barring the influence of the quiet navigation situation Mr. Still says business is in pretty good condition.

N. A. Linderberg, deputy customs collector, left for St. Paul last night.

HALF A CENTURY OF SUCCESS.

Because it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it in the fifty years since it was prescribed for the late Rev. Father John O'Brien of Lowell, Mass., by whom it was recommended and from whom it derived its name, Father John's Medicine is guaranteed to cure any cough, cold, throat or lung trouble, or the money is refunded. It builds up the body and restores health and strength to those who are weak and run down. Aside from the purpose in calling your attention to this old remedy, it is important for you to know that it is not a patent medicine and that it is free from opium, morphine or other poisonous drugs, upon which so many so-called "immediate cures" depend for their effect, and which are dangerous—you are warned against them. This old remedy and its history are vouched for by reliable indorsements. Father John's Medicine is for sale by L. W. Leithhead Drug Co.

FEE IN THE WELL.

"The queerest fee I ever had offered to me was by an old farmer up in Monroee county," said a prominent physican, who is also something of a sportsman, to the Philadelphia Record. "I was up there last year for the trout fishing, and one evening I was summoned from the hotel where I was stopping to attend an old woman in the neighborhood who had suddenly been taken ill. After I had fixed her up her husband said to me: "Doc, I don't know what your charge is, but I ain't got no ready cash about me. I'll tell you what I'll do, though. See that well over there? There's one of the finest treut you ever see in that there well, an' if you can ketch him he's yourn." I had no tackle with me, and as I had to return to the city the next morning I missed the opportunity to collect my fee.

PREPARING FOR IT

Iron Range Road Getting Ready For Opening of Traffic.

All Will Be Ready For Opening of Navigation.

Einiges and cars are being overhauled by the Duluth & Iron Range road at Two Harbors, in preparation for the opening of ore navigation, which the road hopes to see in full blast soon. Of the sixty-nine engines of the company, twenty-six are now in use, twenty-two ready for service at any time, and some of the others are either being repaired or awaiting their turn at the hands of the machinists.

Cars are being inspected and oiled up, also, and as soon as the situation between the masters and pilots and the vesselmen is amicably arranged the company will be in a position to put steam in pretty nearly every locomotive it owns.

ST. LOUIS TRAFFIC

Will Not Be In Full Blast Until June.

William J. Leahy, assistant general passenger and ticket agent of the Chicago Rock Island & Pacific railway, was in Duluth today on a visit to the various passenger officials located here. He was accompanied by W. L. Hathaway, district passenger agent at Minneapolis.

Mr. Leahy appears to be sanguine over the outlook for the passenger business and says it is now very good on the Rock Island system.

"So far as the World's fair business to St. Louis is concerned we can tell that it is picking up, but it is not what we expect it to be from the first of June on," Mr. Leahy said. "We have not looked for any large revenue from this source prior to that date, but every indication is that business on this account will be large. You have to wait for the schools to close to get a fair idea of the traffic for such an occasion, as then the whole families can go, children and all.

"It is an enormous undertaking, the St. Louis exposition, and nothing like it has ever been seen. I was down there not long ago and I was surprised at the stupendous character of the show. All the buildings were completed and they had an astonishing number of men at work unpacking cases and putting exhibits in place. The weather has been more favorable to the work lately, so that progress could be made on the grounds."

Some railroad people appear to think that the regular California tourist business the coming winter will suffer from the traffic carried to and from St. Louis. There are said to be a great many people who will take in the fair who will abandon their California trips for the purpose.

A Bullet Proof Vest.

It is reported that a vest made of bullet proof cloth was recently sent to the president, to be worn as a protection against assassination. If this cloth will do all that is claimed for it, its discovery will be a most valuable one, especially to all public men. While it is good policy to protect the system from danger on the outside, it is equally as important to protect it from the inroad of disease on the inside. For this particular work Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is highly recommended by physicians everywhere. It will tone up and strengthen the system so effectually that disease cannot find a foothold. Then it also cures indigestion, dyspepsia, bloating, dizziness, insomnia, liver troubles and malaria, fever and ague. A trial will convince you of its value.

BARBER'S SON FIRST VICTIM

Of His Complaint Against Boys Who Annoyed Him.

New York, May 19.—Otto Rappold, a barber, whose shop is at 335 West Seventeenth street, has been greatly annoyed by boys playing craps in front of his window.

It is a matter of real peril to a client, he explained to the police, when, having the man in the chair properly lathered and his gleaming razor poised, the stillness is suddenly broken by a series of wild, piercing yells of "Hi! Yi!" "Come seven! Come eleven!" "Ow! Wow!" and the like.

The barber grew nervous, his patrons apprehensive, as the crap game went on from day to day. The barber would not—could not—keep on shaving. He went to Police Commissioner McAdoo and complained. The game, he said, took its most violent form Sundays.

Capt. Martin Handy sent out a detail of six nimble policemen to capture the crap shooters. They found a group of the boys at it last Sunday morning, cracking their fingers and emitting Comanche-like yells as the dice fell for good or ill.

There was one particularly strenuous lad, with a shrill voice like a million crickets, whose manner of puntcuating the game with noises attracted the especial attention of the capturing party. They seemed to realize in him the the justification of Barber Rappold's complaint. They pounced on him and bore him away, struggling, to the West Twentieth street police station. The barber was sent for to make a complaint.

"Ah!" exclaimed Rappold, as he hurried off to the station. "Now I get some satisfaction—yes—ha! ha!"

"My son! My son," he gasped. "This is one outrage—yes! Why did you arrest him? O, this is terrible!"

It took four policemen to keep him from laying hands on Martin Kehoe, who was in charge of the capturing squad.

Justice Wyatt convicted young Rappold and remanded him for sentence today.

And the blow almost killed Rappold senior.

MOVED THE STEER.

"Nerve is as neccessary to a cow-puncher as fingers are to a piano player," said the cowboy the other evening, to the Standard of Anaconda, Mont. as he carefully placed his thumbs in the armholes of his vest in order to better display that garment, which was rich and gaudy and the pride of its wearer.

"What do you know about cowpunching?" asked one of his hearers. "And what do you know about nerve?" chimed in another.

"Oh, I know something about both?" was the reply. "I used to be a cowpuncher and I had nerve until I lost it by an experience on the range that turned some of the hairs in my head gray, although I was not 21 years of age. You know, I came up the trail from Texas, and, if I say it myself, I took delight in riding horses that bucked their back teeth out. Why, I used to ride the double jumpers and never touch leather at all. But, of course, that is ancient history.

"I am a regular old woman about a horse now, and if a cow says 'moo' behind my back I am so startled that I almost turn wrong side out in my frantic efforts to get away. It all came about this way. If you fellows will light up a fresh one with me I will tell you. It is only a short story, but it is one of the awful things in my life that is most real, and even to this present time I have horrible recurrences of the thing in my dreams and wake up in such terror that I am almost paralyzed. It was in the eastern part of this state, on the spring round-up, and we were moving a big cavvy of cattle north to the home ranges, when along about ten o'clock one morning, a big steer, 'sullied,' as the boys used to call it when a steer would refuse to go on. This fellow was a simple terror and absolutely refused to move. We shot around him and yelled at him until we were hoarse, but he only switched his tail and pawed the ground the more. His quick, angry snort was a signal for any of the riders near him to vamoose, for one of those horns in a horse's flank means not only death to the horse, but probably to the rider as well. Finally, as the herd moved on, the boys left him alone, backed up against a sagebrush with a mean look in his eye.

"At camp, after dinner that day, I told the foreman that if he wanted me to, I would go back and bring the steer up to the main herd. The fellows all guyed me and told me not to get hurt, etc., and above all, not to drive the critter too hard.

"Well, all the same, I went back by my lonesome, and there old Mr. Steer was as sullen as ever. Apparently, he had not changed the position of his feet in the least.

"Without deciding on any definite plan, I took my rope down and made ready to rope him. The first throw landed the loop around his horns. When my horse began to pull the rope snug taut and the saddle, leather creaked and groaned, but the steer moved not. Move? Why, he never batted an eye. I was in for it now, and and so I rode rapidly around the animal three or four times and then tightened and down he came. All four feet in the tangle. My horse, which was a gentle old roping beast, settled back to hold the rope tight as I dismounted to look around and consider what ought to be done. I certainly was in for it. To leave the steer there in that shape meant sure death for him. To cut the rope from around his legs meant that he would kill me when he got up. It was three or four miles over to camp, and besides the camp was moving as fast as I could walk. I would have had to have walked, as the horse was needed to hold the steer down. Finally I determined on a plan of action.

"I tied a big red bandanna handkerchief around his eyes to blind him, tailed him down with one hand (that is, held him down by pulling the tail tight across his flank) and with the other hand I loosened the rope. And now, just as I was about to let him up, I felt that the crisis had arrived. If he saw me I was a goner, that was all there was to it. Nothing on earth could save me. I had no six-shooter and would not have dared to risk it if I had. The more I thought of it the weaker I got, and the cold beads of perspiration began to stand out on my forehead. The great, strong beast had long since ceased to struggle. But when the weight of the rope was withdrawn from his body and I relaxed my hold on his tail, with a mighty bellow he struggled to his feet. If one man can stampede all by himself, I stampeded then and there to my horse. Absolutely terror-stricken, I made for safety in the saddle. When within about 10 feet of the horse I glanced back and saw the steer with the handkerchief about his head. On one side it slipped below the eye. He had this exposed eye fixed on me and was making for me at a furious pace. On he came, with head lowered and turned to one side. My gentle old horse was standing with his head from me, quietly browsing the grass. I had no sooner gathered up the reins and swung into the saddle than I dug my spurs cruelly into his sides, and at the same instant the steer struck him full tilt from behind. This was more than horse flesh and blood could stand. Surprised and pained at his harsh treatment, that old horse put his head between his legs and the way that he went bucking around that sage patch would have astonished the natives. Why, it seemed to me that he went 14 feet high and turned around while up in the air.

"The old rascal went back to his colthood days, and say, he had a sidestep back that would have put to shame anything that Buffalo Bill ever showed to the public. And I stayed with him. It was the last bucking horse that I ever rode and it is the last that I ever will ride unless some one ties me on.

"The steer didn't know what to make of all the fun and didn't do a thing but cock his tail on an angle of 45 degrees and scoot over the prairie after the herd. I followed on the dead run when my horse decided to stop bucking. The steer and I arrived at the place selected for the night camp at the same time, and maybe you think that the boys weren't surprised to see us. 'How did you get him started?' they yelled. 'Oh, I just got him started,' I laconically answered, and the next morning I resigned and left for the railroad. No, siree, I am not looking for a job at cowpunching."

NORTHERN LEAGUE

Opening Games of Season In Red River Valley.

Outlook Is Bright and Close Race Is Expected.

At 3:30 o'clock this afternoon three baseball games will commence in three different cities in the Northern league. Duluth is lined up against Perry Werden's bunch of Fargoites. Superior is playing at Grand Forks, and last year's champions are playing at home with Crookston.

The Duluth team left last evening over the Northern Pacific for Fargo. Manager Van Praagh accompanied the bunch and will remain with them for a few days, before he turns the men over to the guardianship of Capt. Frank Martin.

"Rusty" Owens will probably pitch for Duluth this afternoon and either Foulkes or Souders will probably twirl for Fargo. The Fargo team was beaten in practice game with Renville last Saturday by the score of 4 to 1. Werden's men secured but one hit off Holland, the Indian pitcher of the Renville team. Souders and Foulkes pitched good ball for Fargo, but the Indian had the better of the argument. The two teams will line up as follows this afternoon:

Duluth—		Fargo—
Zink	first base	Werden
Martin	second base	Mehl
Ball	short stop	Burrows
Quillan	third base	Lynch
Corrigan	left field	Traeger
Lagger	center field	Furlong
Randall	right field	Ross
O'Leary	catcher	Buckwalter
Owens	pitcher	Foulkes or Souders

* * *

Up in Grand Forks, where they never do things by halves, the mayor has issued a proclamation asking all of the business men to close up their stores for the afternoon and turn out to the ball game. A brass band will be in attendance and the mayor will pitch the first ball across the plate. The Grand Forks and Superior teams will line up as follows:

Grand Forks—		Superior—
Scharnweber	first base	Cameron
Dillon	second base	O'Den
O'Brien	short stop	Egan
Hutchinson	third base	Keas
Martin	rifiit field	Kilroy
Hanrihan	center field	Foster
Nagel	left field	Chandler
Rogers	catcher	Cheek or Brown
Simmonds	pitcher	O'Brien, Newmeyer or Sorenson.

* * *

Winnipeg and Crookston will fight it out in the former city. Crookston claims to have a bunch of world-beaters this season and they should at least give the Champs a run for their money.

On Monday the teams will shift. Duluth will go to Crookston, Superior to Winnipeg and Fargo to Grand Forks.

The season opens this year very auspiciously. All of the teams in the league are undoubtedly faster than last season, and the race for the pennant promises to be close. The teams have had an even start and as far as can be judged from the spring practice there should be no runaway race such as the Winnipeg and Grand Forks teams made last season. The different cities in the league are more enthusiastic than ever over the game, and judging from the interest shown in the preliminary work, the attendance should be ample to warrant the increased expenditure in the matter of salaries.

STAND PATTERS WIN IN IOWA

Elect Twenty Delegates and Dominate the Resolutions.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 19.—Iowa's long fight between stand pat Republicans and liberals upon the issue of tariff revision and reciprocity ended in a complete victory for the former in today's state convention for selecting delegates to the national convention. Of twenty-six delegates chosen, twenty are stand-patters and only six are liberals.

The resolutions endorse the adjustment of Alaskan boundary dispute, the work done in China, praise Secretary Shaw and Secretary Wilson; endorse President Roosevelt; take delight in the American navy, and has the following to say on the tariff question:

"We believe in the protective tariff, which builds American factories, makes possible great, and small American industries and gives employment to American labor. We believe in the American home market for the products of American farms, factories and shops. We believe it wise to seek markets abroad by sacrificing some part of the markets at home and equally unwise to legislate in a manner to provoke American industries to making war upon each other. Under the protective system, newly inaugurated in 1897, the country has enjoyed unusual prosperity. Protective duties have kept work and wages at home and have furnished the revenue with which to pay the expenses of a foreign war, with which to rebuild the navy, to enlarge and newly equip the army, to extend our coast defenses and have made possible the nation's expansion. Fortified by the advantages and benefits of a great home market the American manufacturers have thus had the courage and the capital with which to invade foreign markets. Our tariff system by giving assurance to the world that the revenues are ample has advanced the credit of the nation to the first position. The same policy has converted our people into lenders instead of borrowers. We declare for faithful adherence of this system which found its highest fulfillment in laws bearing the names of William McKinley and Nelson Dingley."

The delegates-at-large named were: United States Senator William B. Allison, Dubuque; United States Senator J. P. Dolliver, Fort Dodge; J. W. Blythe, Burlington; Governor A. B. Cummins, Des Moines.

Their alternates were chosen as follows: Frank R. Crocker, Chariton; Frank Simmons, Ottumwa; D. H. Bowen, Waukon; C. W. Crimm, Estherville.

JEWS ARE LOYAL.

Poltava, Russia, Wednesday, May 18.—The emperor during his visit here today was waited upon by a depatation of Jews, who assured his majesty of the loyalty of themselves and their co-religionists.

ATTORNEYS' MEETING

Discussion of Courthouse Question Will Bring Out Many.

Opinion Will Be Very Strongly For Changing Site.

"If you have any doubts as to what the wishes of the members of the bar in this county are in regard to the location of the new courthouse nearer the business portion of the city, just attend the meeting at the Commercial club rooms this evening," said one of the Duluth attorneys yesterday, who up to the present time has not indicated his personal choice either one way or the other.

Local attorneys who have been active in getting the notice of the meeting to the members of the St. Louis county bar, claim that the attendance at this evening's session, will be very large and that it will be the largest representation of the legal talent ever before called together in the county. Invitations to attend the meeting have been sent out to all the members of the bar in the range towns and, as most of these are very much interested in having the site of the new courthouse nearer the depot, the outside representation is expected to compare favorably with that from the city of Duluth.

Several of the local attorneys, who are known to be strongly in favor of a court house site nearer the business center, have begged off from being interviewed relative to their sentiments, until after the meeting tonight. They claim that every attorney in the city will have an opportunity, this evening, of going on record either for a new site, or for the present location of the courthouse and that, after the meeting, all the publicity that is given the courthouse matter will be the more desirable.

It is not to be supposed, however, that unanimous opinion will be in favor of building the new courthouse nearer the business section of the city, for there are members of the bar who are very much opposed to making any change on the ground that while the old courthouse may not be so conveniently situated as it might be, the county would be foolish to give up a valuable site and go to the expense of purchasing another. This claim is based on the reasoning that, unless the county builds on the old courthouse site, it will lose all title to the ground.

Those in favor of the change of sites either say that the question of buying another site and losing the old one should not be an argument against a change, or that it is a matter for the courts to decide whether the county really will lose the old courthouse site if it chooses a new location.

Opinions among the best legal talent of the city differ considerably as to the question of the county's losing title to the old courthouse grounds and it is quite likely that some interesting discussion will be developed along that line this evening.

The result of the meeting will probably be the appointment of a committee of attorneys to meet with the board of county commissioners and urge on that body the desires of the majority of the members of the county bar, whatever that may be.

As the matter now stands the county commissioners are on record as favoring the old site, or rather the majority as favoring the old site with the acquisition, through condemnation proceedings of the rest of the block in which the courthouse and jail now stands.

DIETZ TO BE BOMBARDED

Deputy Sheriff of Hennepin County Arrives on the Scene.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 19.—The situation on Thornapple river, where Dietz is holding up a log-drive of the Chippewa Lumber and Boom company, has again taken on a war-like aspect, after five days of peace.

Deputy George Loth of Hennepin county, Minn., and three companions, are reported to have arrived upon the scene determined to capture Dietz, dead or alive. Intrenchments have been thrown up and Loth intends to storm Dietz's fortifications with artillery. Loth is said to know every inch of the country, and it is the general opinion that he will succeed in either killing or capturing Dietz. Assessor Bing, who has just visited Dietz, claims that the latter has been reinforced by his two brothers, who declare that they will stand by him to the end.

ELECTORS RESIGN.

New York, May 19.—James T. Woodward, Harry Payne Whitney and Isidor Straus, Democratic candidates for the electoral college, have sent their resignations to the state chairman. All are national bank directors and Mr. Woodward is president of the Hanover National, of this city. Their withdrawal from the ticket is the result of a report by a special committee, which recommended such a course, in view of doubt as to their eligibility under the constitution.

BUBONIC PLAGUE SPREADS.

New York, May 19.—Eighteen new cases of bubonic plague have been reported in Antofagasta in the last two days, says a Herald dispatch from Valparaiso, Chile. Five have proved fatal. There are fifty-six plague patients now in the lazaretto.

DISPOSAL MADE

Of the Funds Allotted For the Irrigation Projects.

An Explanation Is Made By the Geological Survey.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The geological survey has issued the following statement, explaining what disposition has been made of the irrigation funds:

An apportionment of $27,000,000 of the reclamation fund for the construction of fourteen irrigation projects in the arid West has been decided upon by the secretary of the interior, who has approved the plans of the engineers for works in the following states: Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming.

Actual construction has already begun on the Salt river project in Arizona, and on the Truckee project in Nevada. Each of these projects involves a constructive cost of three million dollars.

UNCOMPAHGRE PROJECT, COLORADO.

The sum of $2,500,000 is reserved for the completion of the Uncompahgre project. This project is located in Montrose and Delta counties in Western Colorado on the west side of the main range of the Rocky mountains. The source of water supply is the Gunnison river, from which it is expected that water will be taken by means of a tunnel about six miles in length, beginning in the Grand Canyon of the Gunnison and serving water in Uncompahgre valley a few miles northeast of the town of Montrose.

The Uncompahgre river flows through a broad, fertile valley, but its flow is quite inadequate for the irrigable lands. The Gunnison river, flowing through one of the most remarkable canyons in this country, carries a comparatively large volume of water, but little of which can be utilized in its drainage basin. It is proposed to divert a portion of this stream's flow in a tunnel cut through the mountains upon about 109,000 acres of land, a considerable portion of which is in private ownership in small tracts. When complete, this will be one of the most remarkable engineering feats in the world.

MINIDOKA PROJECT, IDAHO.

In Idaho the sum of $2,000,000 has been provisionally allotted for the construction of the Minidoka project in the valley of the Snake river. The area to be irrigated is about 120,000 acres. Practically all of the land under this project belongs to the government. It is proposed to divide the lands into tracts of forty and eighty acres each, thus creating 1400 new farms with homes for 7000 people.

This project contemplates the construction of a dam fifty feet high and 572 feet long, which will convert a canyon on the Snake river into a reservoir thirty-five miles long. Gravity canals run on each side of the river will cover 68,000 acres, in addition to this 17,000 horsepower will be developed at the dam, which will be used for pumping a supply of water to irrigate about 53,000 acres of land lying above the gravity canals. Fifteen huge pumps, each having a capacity of about 110 second feet, or 50,000 gallons a minute, will be installed.

YUMA PROJECT, CALIFORNIA.

For California the secretary has set aside $3,000,000 for the construction of an irrigable work on the Colorado river above Yuma. The irrigable lands in the Colorado basin consist almost entirely of long, narrow valleys, ranging from five to ten feet in elevation above the stream in low water. A high percentage of these lands is inundated by the annual rise of the river, which occurs about July 1. The stream bed is of a shifting nature.

The general program for irrigation development along this stream is to be first—the irrigation of the valley lands in the immediate vicinity of the river in the territory of the United States. There are two reasons for this plan. First, the length of the canal line to reach these lands will be at a minimum, and second, probably one-half the water applied for irrigation on these lands will return by seepage to the river to be available for use above.

Extensive examinations for bed rock have been made along the stream, but no satisfactory bed rock has been found at any point. Any storage on the Colorado, if as far as now known, will have to be accomplished in the upper reaches of the stream, and explorations are now being carried on in Colorado and Utah with this in view.

The September water supply is sufficient to irrigate 520,000 acres of land. There are 300,000 acres of land in the bottoms above the Yuma project, and 400,000 acres are involved in the Yuma project. Assuming that 50 per cent of this water returns from the 300,000 acres irrigated, there would be sufficient water for the irrigation of about 940,000 acres of land. The bottom lands in the valley of the Colorado river in the United States aggregate about 400,000 acres.

Levee surveys are being made to study the overflow problems near Yuma; canals are being located in the field and estimates prepared; diamond borings are being made at Dill Williams dam site; measurements of river flow; evaporation and seepage losses are being carried on in the canals.

MILK RIVER PROJECT, MONTANA.

For the completion of the Milk river project in Montana $1,500,000 has been apportioned. This project in its entirety contemplates the storage in St. Mary lakes of the flood waters of St. Mary's river, a tributary of the Saskatchewan river in Hudson Bay drainage.

The flood waters are to be diverted either through a canal to Milk river, and allowed to flow down that stream through Canada and again be diverted in Montana above the point where it empties into the Missouri river, or by means of a canal connecting with Cut Bank creek, a tributary of the Marias river, using the latter stream as a natural channel for fifty miles, and again diverting the water through canals upon the valley of the Lower Milk river.

Owing to the international complications which it is feared would arise, the Canadians already being users of the waters of the Milk river, it is probable that the plan of keeping the waters wholly within the United States will be adopted.

Milk river rises in the undulating foothills of the Rocky Mountains near the boundary line of Montana and Canada. Its headwaters flow northeasterly into Canada and the stream continues for about 100 miles entirely parallel with the international boundary, and then turns southeasterly, passing through the northern part of Montana and emptying into the Missouri river. The valley through which the stream passes is broad and contains many thousands of acres of excellent arid land. The summer flow is not sufficient for the irrigation of any considerable part of this area, and the reinforcement of the supply by utilizing the stored waters of St. Mary lakes will add greatly to the productive area of this section of the state. It is probable that the first operations of the engineers will be confined to canal construction in the lower valley to utilize the unappropriated flow of the Milk river. About 250,000 acres are involved in the whole project, and 68,500 in the first section.

NEBRASKA IRRIGATION PROJECT.

When it was determined that the Sweetwater reservoir probably could not be filled, owing to an inadequate water supply, search was made for other reservoir sites and one was found on the North Platte river about three miles below the mouth of Sweetwater river. This is at the beginning of the canyon through the Rattlesnake range of mountains. A dam constructed here will be seventy-five feet in length at the bottom, 200 feet high, and 250 feet long at the top. Surveys show the superficial area of the reservoir thus created to be about 23,000 acres, and the capacity 1,000,000 acre-feet. It is probable that it will hold all the flood and surplus water flowing in the North Platte river to this point. The waters thus stored will be used on lands in eastern Wyoming, in the Goshen Hole region of the North Platte river, and in western Nebraska.

HONDO PROJECT, NEW MEXICO.

The Hondo project, in New Mexico, is located on Hondo river, a tributary of Pecos river, in Southeastern New Mexico, about twelve miles southwest from the town of Roswell, in the county of Chaves. The river is torrential in character and the ordinary summer supply is already appropriated.

It is proposed to construct a reservoir in a depression near the river, divert the storm or flood waters and unappropriated waterflow into the reservoir, and hold it for use during the irrigation season, to irrigate lands lying east of the reservoir and south and southwest from Roswell. These lands are adjacent to productive fields near Roswell, and with an assured water supply could be put into cultivation at once.

The area to be irrigated under this project embraces about 20,000 acres, and the cost will probably be about $200,000.

FORT BUFORD PROJECT, NORTH DAKOTA.

This project is located on the west or left bank of Yellowstone river, the canal heading near Glandive, Mont. This project involves a canal about eighty miles long and covers 60,000 acres of land in Montana and North Dakota. The cost of the headworks is placed at $72,000, and that of other constructions and excavations $1,375,000, or a total of $1,650,000, an average cost per acre of $25.

MALHEUR PROJECT, OREGON.

This project contemplates the reclamation of land in Eastern Oregon near Snake river, in the vicinity of the towns of Vale and Ontario. The irrigable tracts include about 40,000 acres of good bench land lying on the north and south sides of Malheur river. Two reservoir sites of sufficient capacity to retain all the flood waters have been found on the stream and have been surveyed.

BELLE FOURCHE PROJECT, SOUTH DAKOTA.

This project involves the reclamation of lands in the northeastern part of the Black Hills, in Butte and Meade counties, South Dakota, by the diversion of the waters of the Belle Fourche river and the storage of its flood water in basins east of the town of Belle Fourche. These basins are to be converted into storage reservoirs by the construction of embankments of earth closing their outlets. From the reservoirs, which are filled by a large feeder canal from the river, the water will be distributed to lands in the Belle Fourche valley, where it is thought at least 90,000 acres may be reclaimed, about one-half of which is in public ownership. Power has also been developed at the Dry creek reservoir and employed to elevate water to Upper Indian creek flat, where some 15,000 acres of land are located, nearly all in public ownership.

The reclamation works, it is estimated, will cost about $1,250,000.

UTAH LAKE PROJECT, UTAH.

Utah lake is in effect a large storage reservoir, catching the mountain flow and delivering it into the canals. Unfortunately, however, the lake is too large for effective use and the losses by evaporation are far in excess of the amount put to beneficial use. An extension of irrigation in Salt River valley is dependent upon the ability to reduce the loss by evaporation and to handle Utah lake more effectively.

The lands which will probably be included in this project are probably all in private ownership, and comprise an area of about 70,000 acres. The entire bed of Utah lake, covering 140,000 square miles, has been contoured at intervals of one foot, and all the principal streams flowing into the lake have been systematically measured at the flood season and at low water.

One million dollars has been set aside for this project.

BIG BEND PROJECT, WASHINGTON.

This project contemplates the reclamation of a large body of land surrounded partly by the Columbia river, which flows along the northerly and westerly sides. The lands in 154 township have been withdrawn from entry pending an investigation of this project.

A number of reservoirs in connection with this project have been discovered and all public lands within their area withdrawn from entry for reservoir purposes. Considered as a whole, the Big Bend project embraces the largest area of irrigable land of any project under consideration by the government. The secretary has set aside $1,150,000 for the continuance of the work on this project.

CODY PROJECT, WYOMING.

This project contemplates the reclamation of land on the north side of Shoshone river, in the town of Cody, in Bighorn county. The irrigable land extends along the river for a distance of about forty miles and comprises approximately 30,000 acres, most of it being high grade agricultural land. In addition to this land, about 9000 acres on the south side of the river may be reclaimed and several thousand acres more in the drainage area of Clark Fork. All of the land lies at an elevation of from 4150 to 5150 feet above sea level. Shoshone river discharges a relatively large amount of water, and its summer flow has not been entirely appropriated. Six miles above the town of Cody the river enters a canyon cut through solid granite for a distance of a mile and a half. At the upper end of this canyon it is proposed to construct a dam of uncoursed masonry. The dimensions of the dam will be: Height, 170 feet; length on bottom, 65 feet, and length on top, 150 feet. This dam will form a reservoir in the basin above the canyon, with a capacity of 159,500 acre-feet. The stored water will be used to reinforce the summer flow. The estimated cost of this project is $2,250,000.

HAD OTHER PLANS

Why the Handsome Whitney Residence Has Been Sold.

Children Preferred Not to Live In the Old Home.

New York, May 19.—Through the appointment of the Morton Trust company as special guardian of Dorothy Whitney, the first step was taken by which James Henry Smith will shortly come into possession of the magnificent city home of the late William C. Whitney.

The purchase of the Whitney house at Sixty-eighth street and Fifth avenue has been practically completed by Mr. Smith, as all interested have agreed to the sale, and it only remains to complete the necessary legal formalities required under the will of Mr. Whitney.

The Morton Trust company was named by Justice Bischoff in the supreme court in proceedings instituted by her brother, Harry Payne Whitney, to obtain authority from the court for the sale of the dwelling, and it is thought that within a few days the necessary forms will have been complied with and the property will then pass into the possession of Mr. Smith.

The will of Mr. Whitney provided that the house should remain in the possession of his daughter, Dorothy, for two years, at the end of which time it was to become part of the residuary estate. The will also stated that the two stepchildren of the testator, Adelaide and Bertie Randolph, should make their home in the house.

It developed very shortly after the death of Mr. Whitney, however, that the arrangements he had for his daughter and stepchildren did not meet with their approval. Because of the associations connected with the house which continually reminded them of the happier days spent there when Mr. Whitney was living, it was soon decided that it would be much more agreeable for all of them to dispose of the house and adjust their lives along other lines than those provided by Mr. Whitney. Miss Dorothy Whitney has arranged to go abroad to complete her education, and the two stepchildren have other plans than those contemplated by Mr. Whitney.

The offer from Mr. Smith for the house was one that was favorably regarded by Harry Payne Whitney and his sister, and the two step-children of Mrs. Whitney, and it was decided at once to accept it. The provision in the will, it was found, could be waived by the consent of all concerned, and the preliminary steps to procure legal authority to make the sale were made.

Mr. Smith will become the owner of what is regarded as the most magnificent dwelling in the city of New York by the purchase of this house, the very wall and ceilings of which are formed of sections of old European palaces and the furniture of which has been brought together from a hundred different sources, although retaining perfectly the central idea of a dwelling of the early Italian renaissance.

In his petition for the appointment of a guardian, Harry Payne Whitney set forth that it is for the best interests of his sister, stepsister and stepbrother that the house should be sold, as it is such a valuable piece of property that it would be impossible to rent it, and that even if rented it would be impossible to obtain a rent commensurate with its value.

Mr. Whitney stated that an advantageous offer has been received, the sum offered exceeding $1,300,000, and that as his sister and stepbrother and stepsister have no desire to live there, the sale will prove vastly more to their advantage than keeping the house in their possession for two years, as provided by his father's will. Miss Whitney, he states, is at present living with him and intends shortly to leave for Europe, where she will remain for several years.

It is also stated that Miss Whitney's income under her father's will be $250,000 per annum, although she has little other property besides her interest in the estate.

The personal property conveyed by Mr. Whitney's will is in excess to $1,000,000. Harry Payne Whitney asserts, and the real estate is valued at $750,000 outside of the house on Fifth avenue.

ADDRESS BY WATTERSON

Speaks Before the National Editorial Association at St. Louis.

St. Louis, May 19.—The National Editorial association held its final session today. The forenoon session was devoted to addresses and the afternoon to election of officers and completion of routine business.

Col. Henry Watterson of Louisville was introduced. Col. Watterson took for his topic "The Editorial Page," and spoke in part as follows:

The editorial page is valuable in the degree that it aids the reader to digest the news. It should either be reformed or abandoned. Under a certain spell which has crept upon the modern newspaper it is becoming, if it has not already become, a rather useless appendage—not even ornamental—reminding one of those clusters of artificial flowers which at the more pretentious railway eating houses are supposed to decorate the tables and to deceive the wayfarer. Yet ought the editorial page after the exhilaration—the distractions and excitements—of the news pages, to be as a raised dais in the center of a great hall, a seat of rest and charm; an elevation from which to survey the passing show, having its lights adjusted the better to set forth this passing show, and its ready chorus to explain it.

Disinterestedness being the soul, good humor is the solar system of the editorial page, which should be held subject to these precepts:

Write of a man nothing you would not say to his face, and might not say in the hearing of decent people.

Avoid equally intimation and intimidation, making no suggestion you are not prepared to reduce to assertion and to sustain with proof.

The "leading article," being the rationale of the most important and interesting piece of the day's news, should have a beginning, a middle and an end; should be concise and incisive; seeking to assist the reader in his effort to comprehend the situation.

Satire should keep within the bounds of the probable; wit under the restraints of sense; and even invective—shorn of adjective and adverb, and stripped to the waist—should strike out from the shoulder to hit only above the belt.

The part paragraph should be allowed to die a natural death. No flowers.

The editorial page thus conceived and executed, thus inspired and partitioned, could not fail to impress itself upon the thought of the time, at once a power and a feature, an arm of the service and a commercial asset.

Under the rule of a supervision wholly adequate it would soon rival the news departments in point of popular consideration and interest. One single editorial embodying the qualities outlined and appearing each day of the year, would come to be sought by intelligent readers as an essential part of their morning paper; how much more a page covering the entire range of the day's doings, dealing with each topic according to its quantum and its kind, "from gay to grave, from lively to severe."

Except it be thus delivered, the editorial page were best extinguished. To set apart a certain number of columns for the equivocal dignity of large type; to fill these columns with perfunctory matter; with matter as lifeless as dolls stuffed with sawdust; equally wanting the elements of conviction and continuity; one thing today, another tomorrow; unirradiated by any gleam of light, undiversified, even by a trick of fancy, uniform only to dullness, is to disfigure the page, to degrade the editorial. But dilected and made up by a man of intelligence, not necessarily what is called an able or a brilliant man—merely a man of sound understanding, constant and conscientious in his work, upright and elevated in his purpose, having a sufficient knowledge of affairs, an honest heart and a level head—the good of such an adjunct of the daily news—such an index to the History of Yesterday—were incalculable; and, though it lead to a personal journalism somewhat discredited of late, it will at least embody a responsible journalism; decies, which, indeed, as all of us should agree, were better honored in the breach than the observance.

CONNECTIONS ARE SEVERED

Korea Annuls All Treaties With the Russian Government.

Washington, May 19.—Minister Allen cables the state department from Seoul today as follows:

"The Korean government by an imperial decree issued last night has annulled all treaties and agreements with the Russian government. This annulment comprises the Yalu timber concessions."

Seoul, May 19.—The Korean government has annulled the Russian Yalu and Tumen rivers timber concessions, granted in 1896. The Russian companies interested were backed by M. Beezobrazoff, the friend of Viceroy Alexiff, and reputed moving spirit of the Russian war party, and many Russian noblemen. There have been frequent differences between the Russian semi-official concerns and the private Japanese lumbermen, which constituted one of the annoyances which indirectly led to the war. Korea, in severing diplomatic relations with St. Petersburg, has not felt bound to respect Russian commercial contracts.

It was announced May 6 from Tokio that Korea had recalled her minister at St. Petersburg.

MEMORY IS POOR

Alfred Scrase Does Not Remember Passing Forged Check.

Professes Ignorance of All Events Leading To It.

One of the most complete lapses of memory that has been heard of in district court for some time is that of Alfred Scrase, the young man who was indicted by the grand jury for forgery in the second degree, and who was tried today before Judge Cant.

The information against Scrase is that he passed a forged bank check for $30 on Joseph Kenny, of the liquor firm of Cargill & Kenny, the morning of April 30 last. The check contained the forged signature of John McAlpine, a well-known local lumberman, and was made payable to Alfred McCarthy.

Scrase, who was the last witness in his own behalf, just before the noon adjournment of court, declared that he recollected nothing of the occurrence. He said he had been drinking all the previous night with some friends, but was reluctant to concede that he was very drunk.

Mr. Kenny, on whom the bogus check was passed, testified that Scrase, whom he had known some months by the name of "Al," came into his saloon at an early morning hour asking for a drink, and stating that he had been out in the woods for John McAlpine, and would get a check as soon as the latter was in his office, when he would pay for the drink.

He said Scrase came in later when Patrick Hogan was getting a check cashed at the bar, and laid down a check for $30 signed with Mr. McAlpine's name. Mr. Kenney says he saw it was not indorsed, so he handed it back to Scrase with the request he indorse it, which the latter did, using a pencil loaned him by Hogan.

The money was paid over and Mr. Kenny after indorsing teh check with the firm's name sent it to the American Exchange bank for collection.

Colin Thompson testified that as soon as he saw the check he pronounced it a forgery and laid it to one side, sending for Mr. Kenny.

According to Mr. Kenny's account he next saw Scrase in jail, that same afternoon. When asked why he attempted such an offense, Scrase denied doing so. He refused to turn over the remainedr of the money to Mr. Kenny amounting to about $21, until told that it would be attached anyway and that he would have to pay a laweyr.

Patrick Hogan corroborated Mr. Kenny's statements as to the events as they transpired in the saloon, even to Scrase's giving back a $5 bill to Kenney and asking him to take out the price of the drink obtained early in the morning.

W. B. Moer, attorney for Scrase, objected to the introduction of any evidence on the ground that no indictable offense had been committed. When Scrase endorsed the check he signed it "John McCarthy," instead of "Albert McCarthy," who was the payee, and Mr. Moer contended that the check was so irregular under those circumstances as to be of no value, and one that would be thrown out at any bank at which it should be presented. His objection was along the line of that made when he entered a demurrer to the indictment, and was overruled.

Three men who had formerly known Scrase in the woods, were called to testify as to his general reputation for honesty.

Scrase, when called to the stand, said he had been employed for about ten years past in the Northern Minnesota woods, five years with one company.

He claimed that the $21 found on his person at the time of his arrest was the money remaining from his roll when he struck town some days before. He could remember absolutely nothing about going into Kenny's saloon, meeting Hogan or presenting any forged check.

Scrase's case was given to the jury about 3 o'clock this afternoon.

DIETZ IS DEFENDED

Brother Says He Has Violated No Court Order.

St. Paul, May 19.—In a letter to the public and published in the Dispatch today, W. W. Dietz, former sheriff of Barron county, Wis., and brother of J. J. Dietz, who it has been alleged has kept the officers of Sawyer county at bay with guns, says his brother is not a desperado and has committed no act in violation of a court order.

He says that surveyors engaged by his brother established lines showing the dam in dispute to be on land owned by J. J. Dietz and these lines were confirmed by surveyors sent out by the Chippewa Lumber company and that after the company discovered that the dam was on Dietz's land it offered him $500 to allow the company to use the dam and flowage rights. This offer was rejected and a few days later the company got out an injunction.

The writer claims that no order of the court was served on his brother by the sheriff, nor on Mrs. Dietz, the owner of the land.

He says the sheriff of Sawyer county was not in person in command of the posse, as required by law, but remained behind, but that those whom he sent shot indiscriminately at everything in sight. He says further that the sheriff has not notified J. J. Dietz that he has a warrant for his arrest, and that the deputy sheriff told him that the people of Rice Lake were with J. J. Dietz and had remonstrated to Governor La Follette against the statement that Dietz was a desperado, saying that he was a peaceable and law-abiding citizen, having held several township and county elective offices.

JUDGE BAENSCH FAVORS COOK

Withdraws In His Favor At Anti-Third Termers' Convention.

Madison, May 19.—The afternoon session of the anti-third termers' convention was called to order by M. G. Jeffris at 2:15 o'clock. Mr. Jeffries was unable to speak but announced his appointments through Assistant Goldin. As Mr. Hicks led the Cook deelgates into the hall, the crowd cheered. As he mounted the platform to take his seat, he announced the intended participation of Senators Spooner and Quarles in the convention was instrumental in pulling the Cook delegates into the convention.

Upon roll call of the counties, the vote was announced, showing 567 delegates to be legally seated. The required number being 533, the majority was declared to be present. Immediately afterward, Judge Baensch, of Manitowoc, appeared on the platform and released the delegates instructed for him and expressed his desire to support Cook. He was cheered for ten minutes. Mr. Baensch said:

"Party duty is higher than personal ambition. The necessity of party peace at this time is absolutely essential. Therefore, in the interest of harmony I release my delegates and promise my support to the nominee of this convention."

The ticket it is predicted will probably be named by the anti-third-termers this afternoon is as follows:

Governor—Congressman Samuel A. Cook, Neenah.

Lieutenant governor—George H. Ray, La Cresse.

Secretary of state—Theodore Golden, Janesville.

State treasurer—H. August Luedke, Milwaukee.

Atterney general—Judge Classon, Oconto.

Railroad commissioner—Jonas Hirsch, Watertown.

Insurance commissioner—Charles Barker, Milwaukee.

The first three named were said to be practically certain of nomination. The others have strong rivals for the honors of the convention.

EDDY HAS A FOLLOWING

That Fact Is Admitted By Both Collins and Dunn.

St. Paul, May 19.—The Dispatch, which favors Eddy's candidacy, says today: Robert C. Dunn and Judge Collins, rival candidates for the Republican nomination for governor, candidly acknowledge that they do not know "where they are at."

Both also acknowledge that Frank M. Eddy is a foeman worthy of their steel and they wish him luck if he plucks the plum.

"Everything is moving nicely," said Judge Collins, when questioned as to his campaign by the Dispatch today. "I am enjoying good health, if that helps any," cautiously added the judge.

Some one at this juncture spoke contemptuously of Frank Eddy's candidacy.

"Mr. Eddy has a following," corrected Judge Collins quickly. "He is a candidate," he added. "I don't think you can speak of him as the third man that some think is bound to come."

The utmost enthusiasm is displayed at the Dunn headquarters, but even there the answers are evasive when questions are put as to Mr. Dunn's campaign. One of the office attaches admitted today that Mr. Eddy was a candidate, and he added, "if Mr. Eddy is nominated, Mr. Dunn will support him."

Dar Reese, an ardent Dunn supporter, scouts the third man cry. "The race lies between Mr. Dunn, Judge Collins and Frank M. Eddy. We believe Mr. Dunn will be nominated, but, if Mr. Eddy is named, we will just be as prompt as anyone to espouse his cause."

HAMBURG BELLE OUT.

New York, May 19.—Hamburg Belle, winner of last year's futurity, has been declared out of the Brooklyn handicap to be run at Gravesend next week.

ANTI-COMBES MAJORITY.

Paris, May 19.—The parliamentary commission on the budget was selected today. It contains an anti-Combes majority. T his is considered to be a significant reverse for the premier, which will probably lead to a renewal of the discussion of his retirement.

JAPANESE LOSS

Admiral Togo Sends More Details of Sinking of Ships.

Loss of Shikishima and Fuji Not Yet Confirmed.

Tokio, May 19.—Giving details of the disaster to the Hatsuze and Yoshimo, Vice Admiral Togo says:

"At 14 minutes past 1 in the afternoon of May 15, in a deep fog off Port Arthur, the Kashuga rammed the Yoshimo, sinking the latter in a few minutes. Ninety of her crew were saved.

"The same morning the Hatsuze while cruising off Port Arthur covering the landing of the soldiers, struck a mine ten knots southeast of the harbor entrance. She signalled for help and instantly struck another mine. She sank in half an hour. Three hundred of her crew were saved by torpedo boats."

St. Petersburg, May 19.—The admiralty has no confirmation of the reported destruction of the Japanese battleships Shikishima and Fuji.

"I have always had the belief," said one of the most prominent admirals of the general staff, that the Shikishima would pay for the Petropavlovsk."

The report of the sinking of the two Japanese ships might be well founded as the official press dispatches from Liao Yang report the Japanese fleet as cruising off Port Arthur daily at a distance of eight miles or less, in order to throw shells into the fortress. After the Petropavlovsk was destroyed the Russians attempted the same plan as the Japanese, that of sending out torpedo boats at night to place floating mines where the enemy had appeared a few hours before. Mines were especially planted off the Liao Ti Shan promontory which was a favorable point from which the Japanese armorclads bombarded Port Arthur.

A copy of the Vladivostok Vostochny Vestnik, which has just reached this city, expresses fears that the next bombardment of the Japanese will be more effective than that of March 6. It says it is expected the enemy's ships will take up a position in Amur bay, now free from ice, in which they could not maneuver in March, compelling them to fire from Usuri bay. The paper foresees great loss of life when the Japanese again shell Vladivostok. The authorities there have ordered hundreds of non-cobmatants to leave the city.

The paper also reports that 2500 Japanese who disembarked at Plaksin bay in the northeast of Korea, in the beginning of March, intending to proceed to Mao Sahn, turned back because of the hardships they suffered along the route.

Tokio, May 19.—Gen. Kuriko reports that the Japanese losses at the battle of Kiu Lien Cheng May I were:

Killed, 5 officers and 218 men; wounded, 34 officers and 783 men. Thirteen hundred and sixty three Russian dead were buried and 18 officers and 595 men were made prisoners. The Japanese captured 21 quick-firing guns, 8 ammunition wagons, 1417 shells, 8 machine guns and 37,000 shells for these guns, 1021 rifles and 350,000 rounds of ammunition, 63 horses, 10 wagons and 1244 coats and 50 tents.

At Peng Wang Cheng the Japanese captured 350 shells for mountain guns, 198,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, 1720 coats, 40,000 loaves of bread and other supplies, together with a quantity of tools and telegraph stores.

It is unofficially reported that small skirmishes are taking place south of Kin Chou. The Liao Tung peninsula the Japanese line extends from Chinchaton to Chuleshan across a ridge of hills a mile and a half north of Kin Chou. Kin Chou is seven or eight thousand metres north of the narrowest part of the peninsula and forty miles north of Port Arthur. The Japanese line therefore is less than forty-five miles from Port Arthur.

Chicago, May 19.—A special to the Daily News from Che Foo says: While cruising off Dalny this morning, the Daily News dispatch boat Fawan was stopped and examined by the Japanese cruiser Kasuga. The Japanese officers informed us that two Russian destroyers have escaped from Port Arthur and are still at large. They stated that the Russians are using Chinese junks to place mines in the path of the Japanese fleet patrolling the peninsula coast. They also informed us that they had sunk a tug and several junks that were discovered placing mines.

In consequence of this promiscuous mining, the Japanese fleet is moving to a greater distance off the coast and all other navigation in these waters is suspended.

Mukden, May 19.—The momentary relaxation of the Japanese advance, specifically from the south as officially reported indicate a temporary withdrawal from the position won during the fighting which apparently ended May 17.

Well Qualified to Rule.

New York American: King Peter is now to be officially recognized by the United States. We have been rather dilatory about this, owing to certain trifling irregularities in the manner of his succession to the throne of his swineherd ancestors, but all is now forgiven and forgotten. As to Peter's competence there can be no question; he inherited that. True, his forefathers had not the advantage of centuries of training in the gilded courts of Europe, but they had the society of the pigs.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE—Default having been made in the payment of the sum of one thousand and twenty-one ($1,021.00) dollars, principal and interest, which is claimed to be due and is actually due at the date of this notice, upon a certain mortgage with a power of sale therein contained, duly executed and delivered by Tracy R. Fairchild and Rossanna Fairchild, his wife, mortgagors, to The Farmers Trust Company, Limited, of Manchester, England, a corporation, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of March, 1894, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis county, Minnesota, on the 26th day of March, 1894, at 10:50 a. m., in Book 99 of Mortgages, on page 104;

Which said mortgage together with the debt thereby secured was duly assigned by said The Farmers Trust Company, Limited, mortgagee, to Charles A. Turning, by an instrument in writing, bearing date the 21st day of April, 1904, and recorded in the office of the said register of deeds of St. Louis county, Minnesota, on the 16th day of May, 1904, at 9 o'clock a. m., in Book 184 of Mortgages, on page 511.

And no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof;

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz.: All that tract or parcel of land in the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota described as follows, to-wit: lot numbered one hundred and sixty-seven (167) in block numbered forty-two (42), Third (3rd) Division of Duluth Proper, according to the accepted plat thereof of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for said county of St. Louis, with all the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis county, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth in said county and state, on the first day of July, 1904, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and seventy-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated, May 19th, 1904.

SOUTHERN PREJUDICE.

To show the peculiar reasoning that emanates from the Southern states with regard to the negro question, The Herald quotes an extract from the editorial page of the Journal of Montgomery, Ala. This opinion was written in commenting upon a news dispatch from Newcastle, Ind., reporting that two colored girls would be in the graduating class of the Newcastle high school this year. The Alabama paper said:

"The Journal is not quite sure that it understands the peculiar tastes of a people who prefer that their daughters shall grow up and mingle in schools on terms of social equality with negro girls, and would deny the right of the negro man to work alongside in the workshop with their boys. Our Northern neighbors can see no harm in one and resent the other. They accept the negro on terms of social equality in their schools and around their homes, and yet they would not consent for that same negro to enter the field of industrial pursuits in competition. The South welcomes the negro in industrial competition, in all industrial pursuits, and encourages him along these lines. But it does not take him in on terms of social equality in their homes, or allow him in their schools, but gives him schools just as good, and the white people tax themselves to do this, giving the race its full proportion of the taxes collected for school purposes."

The reason that this paper is not quite sure that it understands, is because it evidently does not want to understand. Because white children attend school where there are colored children does not place them on a social equality nor compel them to receive one another in their homes. The school is a public institution that should be free and open to the children of all citizens irrespective of color, race or rank. No doubt these colored girls who are about to graduate from this Indiana high school are the superiors, morally and intellectually, of many white children who attend the public schools of that city. But that does not place them on a social equality with these. Neither is the white child placed on a social equality with all the other white children who attend the public schools. The white child is better than the negro child if he is better and he is not if he is not. But whether better or worse he is not compelled to associate with negroes outside the school room unless he so desires. And if he considers himself too nice to attend the same school then he has the opportunity to go to a private school.

Any man has the right to refuse to work alongside another, no matter what his race. That right is constantly exercised both North and South by members of one white nationality as against members of other white nationalities. The negro also has the right to refuse to work with white men if he so desires.

As to the matter of living in the same hotel, that also is a matter of individual preference. Some white men are just as offensive as any negro can possibly be. Yet when a man seeks hotel accommodations he is sometimes compelled to be in the neighborhood of offensive white men. If he does not like it he has the privilege to go elsewhere. There are plenty white men who would not be entertained at first-class hotels, and the hotel proprietor ought to have the right to refuse to entertain anybody, no matter what his color. Hotels are not run by the public. They are private institutions, and the owner should be the judge of his own guests.

It is not true that the white people of the South welcome negro competition in all industrial pursuits. The negro there is permitted to compete in only the most menial occupations. The same disposition is manifested in the North, but not to such a marked extent. The Alabama paper itself admits Southern discrimination when it says in the same article: "As a matter of fact, and to be perfectly candid, the South feels more concern in the uneducated than in the educated negro. The North would be entirely welcome to the latter, while the South would resent any effort to remove the former."

This is the truth, not the assertion that the South welcomes the negro in all industrial pursuits. The South does not want the educated negro because education makes him competent to compete in the higher occupations. If the South insists on retaining the uneducated and driving out the educated negroes then the North ought to be perfectly satisfied with that arrangement. Anyway the majority of people here are satisfied to share with him the privileges of public institutions.

RELIGIOUS FANATICISM.

An interesting case of religious frenzy is related in a dispatch from St. Paul. Three men named respectively Dahlin, Olson and Mulwick were shingling a roof from a rather flimsy scaffold. One of the braces which held the plank snapped, and Dahlin and Olson were dropped to the ground, a distance of 30 feet. Dahlin was injured about the chest and body and was unable to move, but Olson was less seriously hurt. Mulwick saved himself by falling backward upon another roof.

"I was on the plank with the other men," averred Mulwick, "but when it cracked I felt God reach out and push me onto the roof. He saved me from injury because I have salvation."

Olson, on the way home, burst into tears and prayed God to forgive him his sins. "I told my folks when I left home in the morning that I knew that God could only save me through some accident. If I had not believed in him I should have been killed."

"He was as badly hurt as Dahlin," said the other man, who evidently had much to do with stirring up this religion, "but by grace he overcame his injuries."

It was evidently a portion of these "saved" fanatics' belief that Dahlin was the man God desired to punish. Perhaps He did not also push Olson onto the roof and prevent him from falling because he was not quite as good as Mulwick and needed a severe shaking up in order to bring him to a full realization of God's saving grace. Dahlin was probably in their estimation an unconverted sinner, so he was badly injured.

If all three had "religion" no doubt they would have built their scaffold strong enough so that the accident would not have happened, but "God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform," and so the whole thing was planned so the sinner would get the worst of it.

This may sound rather silly and even sacrilegious to many readers, but it is in line with a great deal of the so-called religious teaching of the past century and some that passes for religious teaching today. Happily the American people generally have passed the period where they can take seriously any such absurdity. But no matter how much "religion" of this kind a man takes on board, he is always mighty pleased that he is allowed to remain on earth a little while longer notwithstanding the fact that a beautiful home with streets paved with gold awaits him beyond the skies.

THE SPLIT IN WISCONSIN.

The long-continued and bitter fight between the La Follette and "stalwart" factions of the Republican party in Wisconsin has resulted in the bolting of the "stalwarts" from the regular state convention at Madison and the holding of a rump convention. The result will be the nomination of two complete state tickets, and the carrying of the fight to the Republican national convention at Chicago, where contesting delegates will put in an appearance. Governor La Follette and his friends had complete control of the convention when it met yesterday, the state central committee having decided a majority of the contests against the "stalwart" faction. These contests were largely trumped up with the deliberate purpose of defeating the decision of the people at the primary caucuses in favor of La Follette. The railroad corporations of the state spared no effort or expense to defeat La Follette, and corruption and political trickery of the basest sort was used throughout the state, while all the influence of Senators Spooner and Quarles and all the federal officeholders was turned against the governor. But the rank and file of the party were with La Follette, and the "stalwarts" were beaten. Any ticket they may now name wil be buried out of sight at the polls in November.

NOT SO BAD.

Before the American flag was hauled down in Cuba there were many American imperialists to assert that it would a great mistake and that the island would immediately revert to savagery and anarchy. These people made the same claims with regard to Cuba that they are making in respect to the Philippines today. Had the late President McKinley lived, so that Mark Hanna and his associates could have continued to control the administration, there is little doubt that the United States authorities would still be in control of that island.

Instead of reverting to anarchy the Cuban people and government have made better progress than they did when under American control. On Saturday next Cuba will celebrate the second anniversary of her political independence. Beginning her third year she can show to the world a plethoric government treasury and substantial industrial progress. According to statistics gathered by the New York Sun, during the fiscal years 1901 and 1902, Gen. Leonard Wood, who was then military governor of the island, overspent his revenues by about $1,500,000. During the fiscal years 1903 and 1904 the Cuban government has so conducted its affairs that, in addition to the $540,000 nominally left in the treasury by Gen. Wood, it has accumulated a reserve fund in cash to the amount of about $4,500,000. On April 30, the treasuer of the island reported on hand a balance of $5,090,900.

Although President Palma's administration has been obliged to meet expenses of administration which did not fall upon the government of intervention, this saving has been effected with no sacrifice of the institutions established by American authority. Schools and sanitation have been maintained according to the original design. Roads have been built in country districts, and the rural police increased in number and in efficiency. Gen. Brooke laid the foundation upon which Gen. Wood built, and the administration of President Palma suffers in no way by comparison with that of Gen. Wood.

There is likewise reason for satisfaction with the condition of Cuba's national credit. Her 5 per cent bonds are quoted in the market at practically the same price as the recently issued Japanese 6s, and they are not, like the Japanese bonds, secured by a first lien on customs receipts. Cuba's small issue of 1896, bearing 6 per cent, is quoted on the Havana exchange at 1.08 and 1.09 in Spanish gold, equivalent to par in American gold.

Why the people of the Philippines could not do as well as those of Cuba if given the opportunity is not made plain. The verdict of Admiral Dewey that they are better fitted for self-government than the Cubans has not been disputed even by the imperialists, who endorsed the admiral's opinion when they thought it was a strong argument in favor of making Cuba an American colony. But whether they are or not furnishes no reason why the greatest American republic should withhold from the Filipinos a promise of ultimate independence. If the Cubans can do better by governing themselves, why not the Filipinos and Porto Ricans?

THE FIELD SURVEY.

Admiral Dewey is satisfied that the American navy is the best and most efficient in the world. Gen. Miles expresses similar sentiments in regard to the army. The American people will only be satisfied if both are kept up to that high standard in the future. Self-satisfaction, however, is sometimes a danger to be avoided. Even if our army and navy are the best in the world there is still room for improvement.

Governor Odell of New York has vetoed the bill granting the privilege to a corporation to use the water in Niagara river for power purposes, which would destroy the beauty of the falls. He gave as his reason, the sentiment against marring the beauty of the falls. A much greater wrong which this veto prevented was the proposal to give away this great privilege without recompense to the people of the state. The people could much better afford destruction of the beauty of the falls than to give away this great heritage to private monopoly.

HOTEL GOSSIP

Four members of the Ottis Skinner company that were frequently heard from during the performance of "The Harvester" were not seen by the audience, and many who heard them did not know but what they were members of the cast.

They are the boys' quartet which sang the Christmas carol in the last act and also in the various choruses of Mr. Skinner's individual songs. Mr. Skinner is a capable musician and directs a chorus of voices behind the scenes at every performance. The groundwork of this chorus consists of the boys' quartet, while the male members of the cast assist, and to see Mr. Skinner getting the music under way and keeping it there is a very interesting sight. He goes at it with a vim and vigor that leaves no doubt of his earnestness and his experience.

But the four boys are interesting characters. They are Frank Young, aged 14, soprano; Floyd Gillie, aged 16; Fred Erickson, aged 16, and Alfred Carey, aged 14. All are from Chicago save Carey, who hails from the city of Minneapolis. The first three were formerly with the Bush Temple minstrels and were in the Palmer newsboy quintet which traveled with that organization. The minstrel company did not do a very good business when it went out last fall, but did not fall as flat as it might have. All the boys, when the organization decided to give up the ghost, were able to ride home on the cars if they wanted to. And most of them wanted to except Erickson. He had been on the road not a great many years, and had heard the proverbial tale of how people out barnstorming frequently get the worst of it at the hands of fate and have to walk home, but as yet he had not come in contact with such an experience. He wanted it, though, and when a young Chicago boy wants a thing, and wants it hard, it is not much use to get in the way.

It was at South Bend, Ind., about seventy-five miles east of Chicago, that Erickson and the others were stranded with the minstrel aggregation. The only thing that Erickson could think of to make the experience thrilling was to walk home. He did not have to, for he had plenty of money to ride with, like the others, but the idea was not nearly so romantic.

"Boys, let me tell you something," said he, after he had gathered the other four to him.

"Well, go ahead," came in chorus.

"Let's have some fun."

"Good," they all cried. "What is it?"

"Let's walk home."

There was a unanimous groan.

"Let's don't," they chimed.

"Well, if you fellows dont, I will," said Erickson.

He argued with them at length on the delights of travel in the Hoosier rural districts in the cool of the beautiful and rare days of November, but they would none of his counsel. There was only one thing for him to do, and that was to go it alone. But he was game.

He checked his baggage from South Bend to Englewood, or Grand Crossing, or some other one of those high-sounding suburban stations at the city of zephyrs and labor difficulties, and after doping up a few handkerchiefs, socks and some light lunch, he bade them adieu and turned his face to the pike and his back to the town that Studebaker's wagon has made so famous.

The others stood on the street and watched him.

"He'll only want to fool us," said one.

"Sure. He's going a few blocks and then he'll hide a while and come back," was another's expression.

"No he wont do either of those things" a third interrupted. "He's going to wait until our train goes and then he'll take the next train home and lie low for a couple of days. Then he'll come out and tell us all about it."

They stood on the curb for a long while watching Erickson disappear, for he kept straight down the road and evidently remembered Lot's wife and her experience, for he wouldn't look back.

The others began to think that maybe, after all, he would walk the entire distance, and went disappointedly back to their hotel and got ready to take a train for Chicago. Not many hours after they landed in Chicago they sent word to Erickson's house to inquire about him, but nothing was heard about him there, as the folks did not know when he would be home.

In a couple of days the young singer showed up after his 75 mile tramp feeling as good as could be. He had walked the 75 miles without any mishap and said he would not have missed it for a good deal.

The three Chicago lads who form the majority of the quartet are like a miniature set of "The Three Guardsmen", and are practically inseparable, as they have been traveling together ever since they met. After going off the road owing to the termination of the Bush Temple Minstrels they went back to Chicago and played engagements around that city and in the near town until they were engaged for "The Harvester." They did their work in the various clubs, including the Chicago Athletic club and other famous organizations.

The same company will present "The Harvester" next season, all the people having been engaged.

MICHIGAN'S BLUE RIBBON.

Pittsburg Dispatch: Hon. Chase S. Osborn, of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., has taken the blue ribbon for oratorical florescence at the dedications of state buildings on the St. Louis exposition grounds. Among the bouquets he tossed was: "Michigan with its pelagian lakes and pellucid streams, its iridescent skies and evanescent troubles, here greets her sister states and wishes them, Skoal!"

And yet back at home his Norwegian word is causing a deuce of a time in editorial sanctums. Queries are coming in fast as to what "Skoal" means. One tantalizing editor grows facetious over the question, and, while assuring his correspondent that it's a mouthfilling and useful word, carefully abstains from sharing his knowledge of its meaning. Mark Twain was wont to use the word "aegis," not that he knew that "it meant anything, but its sound pleased him." The Detroit Journal also neglects to print what "Skoal" means, but refers its interrogator to the dictionary, where, if not that, strings of other words may be found, built it hints that it knows by observing that Mr. Osborn meant nothing uncomplimentary, and that the reference is not to any specially superheated region, and then graciously remarks, "Skoal your own self, Mr. Osborn!"

But one more polite and serious editor prefers to air his hair-trigger wisdom and gravely announces that the word means "Hail!" and that in "The Skeleton in Armor" Longfellow sings:

There, from the flowing bowl,
Deep drinks the warrior's soul,
Skoal! to the Northland! Skoal!

Michigan is generally a very placid state, the celery beds of Kalamazoo exercising influence on the nerves, but "Skoal" has disturbed the normal serenity from the peninsula down.

He Saved His Own.

Washington Post: We can hardly blame J. Pierpont Morgan for claiming a proprietary interest in the country after he saved it, in response to an appeal from President Cleveland.

As You Make It.

To the preacher life's a sermon,
To the broker it's a jest;
To the miser life is money,
To the loafer life is rest.

To the lawyer life's a trial,
To the poet life's a song;
To the doctor life's a patient
That needs treatment right along.

To the soldier life's a battle,
To the teacher life's a school;
Life's a "good thing" to the grafter,
It's a failure to the fool.

To the man upon the engine
Life's a long and heavy grade;
It's a gamble to the gambler,
To the merchant life is trade.

Life's a picture to the artist,
To the rascal life's a fraud;
Life perhaps is but a burden
To the man beneath the hod.

Life is lovely to the lover,
To the player life's a play;
Life may lead a load of trouble
To the man upon the dray.

Life is but a long vacation
To the man who loves his work;
Life's an everlasting effort
To shun duty to the shirk.

To the heaven-blest romancer
Life's a story ever new;
Life is what we try to make it—
Brother, what is life to you?
—S. E. KISER, in Chicago Record-Herald.

Like the Le Sueur Fiend.

Pittsburg Dispatch: John D. Crimmins, during his tour of Italy, did not neglect to visit the Florentine villa of Mark Twain. Mark Twain welcomed Mr. Crimmins and told him an amusing story.

"Lying," he said, "is a noble accomplishment, and it should be encouraged. When we hear a good lie we should repeat it, giving to the liar the praise that is his due.

"There is a good liar in Florence. His name is Pietro. To incite Pietro to one of his loftiest flights I said to him the other day:

"'Did you ever hear, Pietro, of the fish that lived on frost?'

"'No,' said he.

"'Well, this fish,' I explained, 'haunts the Maine coasts. It comes ashore every morning before the sun has melted the frost, and from the rocks and tree trunks and grass blades it scrapes with its blunt teeth enough of this cold food to last it for the day. It can never be caught in the water, for the reason that it will not raise to bait. Sometimes, though, men catch it ashore with their hands. Its flesh is considered a delicacy and brings $2.25 a pound.'

"Pietro sneered.

"'Now, I will tell you,' he said, 'about my uncle's mule. My uncle kept this mule in a wooden stable, and he fed it on popcorn. One day the stable took fire, and the popcorn in the mule's stall, shooting up into the air, descended all about the unfortunate animal in soft white flakes. These flakes the mule mstook for snow. He imagined that he was in a snowstorm, and froze to death.'"

Look at the men—agile, keen, quick of movement, still in the game of life, of use to their family, age and race. Turn to their consorts—save a few exceptions for our chivalry, they are obese or scrawney, hebetudinous or jerking, flabby bundles of tissue hanging in folds; each fold, to the esoteric eye, full of burnt-out tissus juice, poisoning the individual with the ashes of her own life.

TWENTY YEARS AGO IN DULUTH

Taken From the Columns of The Herald of This Date, 1884.

John Tischer was married Saturday evening to Miss Lipscum. The young people will commence housekeeping at once.

Capt. Wells and assistants went to Superior this morning to make soundings. He would know a trifle more about Duluth harbor if he occasionally made a few soundings here.

Capt. Edward Napier's handsome side-wheel steamer Grace Grummond arrived from Chicago Saturday evening. She has been fitted up expressly for the Agate Bay route.

The passenger rate to Agate Bay was cut to 50 cents for the round trip.

The Duluth Lumber company has chartered the Bay City tug, Grace Darling, to do their log towing.

The work of driving poles for the elevators is nearly finished.

The schooner Bell Stevens arrived from Beaver bay with a load of lumber for Gibbs & Mallet.

Four large steamers went aground in the harbor and they sounded a fire alarm to draw the people together so they could see for themselves the condition of the harbor.

Murd Matheson is now pilot on the propellor R. G. Stewart. Murd is said to be one of the best pilots on Lake Superior.

The tug Annie Dobbins has left Cleveland for Duluth.

Coroner Thompson went before Judge Martin this mornign and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Capt. Fred H. Bishoff, of the steamer Martini, which ran down the Rice's and Connor's Point ferry boat. 1

C. W. Armstrong's mammoth roller skating rink was opened on Saturday evening. There were probably 1000 persons present. Professor Frank L. Crocker gave an exhibition. Franklin W. Collins, on behalf of the management, delivered a short address, dedicating the building to the people of Duluth. At the Palace rink there was also a large attendance, with a two-mile race between Professor McGill of Fargo and Max Stevens, a Duluth boy.

FOR YOUR DAILY SMILE.

Judge: "Do you really think that he is in earnest in his courtship?"

"Certainly. He offered to deposit a certified check with his proposal."

Toronto Star: Judge Knox—You are charged with arson.

Prisoner—Call my wife. She can swear that I never started a fire in my life.

Ally Sloper: Kind Lady—Ah! my poor man, I suppose you are often pinched by cold and hunger, are you not?

"But, mamma, he hollered ten times as loud as he whispered."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Le Sueur Sentinel: During the three terms that Doc Ames, Democrat, was mayor of Minneapolis, no taint of graft was upon his administration. Whence then the offensive odor of the fourth term? The answer has just been given. Having learned after he became a Republican that one Col. Tanner was the official graft collector for that party from the gamblers and harlots, Ames conceives the idea of having some of that "easy money" himself, and hence his trouble. How true it is that "evil communications corrupt good manners."

International Falls Echo: What puppets men are, to allow partisan politics to sow dissension between friend and friend. There are causes greater than friendship, but friendship need not be sacrificed to them. The bigot or fanatic is far from being imbued with the spirit of true religion. So it is that the partisan has a narrow and totally wrong view of politics.

Grand Marais Herald: It's a pretty sure thing that Cook county's five votes in the Republican state convention will be for Dunn for governor. If there is any Collins sentiment in the county, nobody has the courage to whisper it.

St. Cloud Times: From present indications Minnesota and the Northwest has a big start on a bumper crop, which will go a long way towards discounting the distraction that "Teddy" and "Willie" are kicking up for this fall.

Reaping the Whirlwind.

New York World: The report that the Thibetan lamas are going from valley to valley preaching a holy war will add to the general anxiety with which the Younghusband expedition is now regarded in Great Britain. It is already painfully apparent that there will be no parade to Lhasa and that there will be no further repetition of the Guru shambles. The Thibetans are preparing to do a little of the slaughtering themselves, and Great Britain is likely to pay all that the advantages she gains in Thibet are worth. Russia never committed an act of more ruthless and cynical aggression than the one in which the British are now engaged in Thibet, and there will be no general regret if the experience is sufficiently costly to teach Mr. Balfour and Lord Curzon a lesson they will remember to the end of their lives.

WISDOM OF BABES.

Chicago News: One day while 4-year-old Margie was walking with her nurse the latter pointed out a cemetery. Margie was much interested and upon returning home said: "Oh, mamma, nurse showed me where the dead folks live."

Small Freddy had just been put into long trousers. "Say, mamma," he asked, "am I a man now like papa?"

"I suppose so," she replied.

"Well, then," he continued, "I guess I'll take a dime out of my bank and go down to the barber shop and get shaved."

Little Flossie had been presented with a small candy cat by her aunt and it furnished amusement for nearly a week. One day it was missing, however, and her mother asked her if she had lost it.

"No, mamma, me didn't losed it," replied Flossie. "Me des' played wif it till it dot so dirty me des' had to eat it."

"Mamma," said 5-year-old Elmer, "am I as tall as you?"

"Of course not, dear," she replied. "Your head only comes up to my waist."

"But I'm as tall as you are the other way, mamma," persisted Elmer, "for my feet reaches the floor the same as yours does."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

Bachelors as Bad Citizens.

G. R. Sims in the Referee: The greater number of young men who can afford to get married and don't are actuated by purely selfish motives and want to live selfish lives. The bachelor from choice is neither a good citizen nor a good patriot. A grave source of danger to the country is that poor men marry too early and rich men too late.

As the Sermon Struck the Deacon.

Kansas City Independent: A self-conscious and egotistical young clergyman was "supplying" the pulpit of a country church. After the service he asked one of the deacons, a grizzled, plain spoken man, what he thought of "this morning's effort." "Waal," answered the old man slowly, "I'll tell ye! I'll tell ye in a kind o' parable. It reminded me of Sim Peck's fust deerhunt, when he was green. He follered the deer's tracks all right, but he follered 'em all day in the wrong direction."

HUGO AND CLAGUE

Appear to Be the Leading Candidates For Speaker.

Verdict In Trespass Case Revives the Talk of Eustis.

St. Paul, May 19.—(Special to The Herald)—The visit of Representative N. F. Hugo of Duluth to St. Paul has revived talk of the approaching contest for the speakership in 1905. Politicians in St. Paul seem to think that the fight will be principally between Representative Hugo of Duluth and Representative Frank Clague, of Lamberton. R. J. Wells, of Breckenridge; W. A. Nolan, of Grand Meadow, and a few others have been mentioned, but there seems to be no serious movement in their behalf yet.

"I look for a warm contest between Hugo and Clague," said a prominent representative who was in St. Paul yesterday. "Both are strong men, and made excellent records in the last legislature. Mr. Hugo is an unusually successful business man, and many representatives believe that he will display as much sagacity as speaker as he has done as a business man. Then there is no doubt of his nomination and election as a representative of the Fiftieth district.

"Mr. Clague, on the other hand, is a strong man in many respects. He is a lawyer of recognized ability, and would undoubtedly make a good speaker.

"The geographical location, in my opinion, will cut quite a figure in the speakership contest. Mr. Hugo comes from a section of the state that has not had many speakers, and a feeling prevails that Duluth, the growing city of the Northwest, should be recognized. Mr. Clague, on the other hand, coming from Redwood county, will get considerable strength from the southern and western parts of the state."

There is an amusing fact in connection with Mr. Hugo's candidacy for speaker. Many people have been mistaken to believe that Former Mayor Hugo is the candidate. A few days ago one of these Republicans entered the editorial rooms of a St. Paul daily and began to tell what a fine speaker Mayor Hugo would make. This gentleman predicted that the mayor would win out on the first ballot.

"If people continue to mistake N. F. Hugo for T. W. Hugo, the Duluth candidate will win hands down," said a St. Paul Republican yesterday in a vein of humor. "Mayor Hugo has a host of friends all over the state, and if they keep on working for 'Hugo for speaker,' Hugo will certainly land the plum."

R. E. Patterson, state boiler inspector, says that the people of Duluth are talking more about the strike on the lake than about politics. He says the report that he is a Collins man is not true.

"I don't know how the talk of my being a Collins man started," said Mr. Patterson. "Perhaps it was because the people wanted to draw me out and find where I stood."

* * *

The conviction of the Commonwealth Lumber company, of which Lieutenant Governor Ray Jones, of Minneapolis, is president, on a charge of cutting timber from government lands, has revived talk of William Henry Eustis, of Minneapolis, for the Republican nomination for governor. The candidacy of Lieutenant Governor Jones has been one of the principal influences that have kept Mr. Eustis out of the race. Now should there be opposition to Jones on account of his connection with the timber trespass case, there will be a better opening for Mr. Eustis.

The position of the Eustis men is this. Hennepin county is entitled to a prominent place on the ticket. The lieutenant governorship is not of great importance. No one cares for it in particular, and besides Hennepin cannot push the claims of Lieutenant Governor Jones in view of the verdict that his company has taken timber from government land. It is extremely doubtful that Hennepin county can land a place on the supreme bench, and the best thing to do is to quit the fight between Dunn and Collins and support Eustis for governor.

While the verdict at Fergus Falls is a blow to the friends of the lieutenant governor, the Dunn men say it practically vindicates Mr. Dunn's action in not insisting on treble penalty in timber trespass cases.

"The United States sued for $115,000, treble the value of the timber," said a Dunn supporter yesterday. "The jury awards the United States $18,000, half the value of the alleged trespass. This shows that a state auditor cannot always collect treble damages."

* * *

P. J. Schwarg, of Dodge Center, candidate for the Republican nomination for state treasurer against Julius Block, is in St. Paul. Mr. Schwarg says he is satisfied with the progress he is making.

"It couldn't be better if I had the making of it myself," said he. "I am getting lots of encouragement wherever I go."

* * *

Senator J. T. Alley, of Buffalo, is of the opinion that Frank Eddy, of Glenwood, will hold the balance of power in the Republican state convention. Should Mr. Eddy fail to carry the day, Mr. Alley believes, most of his strength will go to Judge Collins, which will practically mean the nomination of Collins.

* * *

An atmosphere of confidence has prevailed at the Dunn headquarters the last few days. The Dunn men believe that their candidate has been going ahead by leaps and bounds since the report of the public examiner and Mr. Dunn's exposure of Judge Collins' connection with the Great Northern.

FOREST RESERVE

In Northern Minnesota Will Be Selected Soon.

St. Paul, May 19—Officials of the state forestry board are about to make selection of the 20,000 acres set apart by the last United States congress for an experimental forest reserve for Minnesota.

The lands to be selected are in the northeast part of the state, preferrably St. Louis county, and will be taken from the public domain. There are many thousand acres of land in Northern Minnesota which have not been taken, either under the homestead laws or under the timber and stone acts, and any of these are eligible to be selected by the Minnesota board, but the state hopes to be able to get a tract of available lands in one body rather than in scattered areas.

Gen. C. C. Andrews and Professor S. B. Green of the state experimental farm, comprising a majority of the executive committee of the state forestry board, expect to go to Northern Minnesota within the next two weeks, accompanied by a practical surveyor, to make the selections. The lands granted by congress are classed as second or third rate vacant lands, and the grading of the lands is determined by the surveyor's field notes.

THE STAGE

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

METROPOLITAN—Kennedy Stock company in "Faust."

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Friday and Saturday with matinee Saturday, Al Field's minstrels.

OTIS SKINNER.

Otis Skinner and his company produced "The Harvester" for the second time at the Lyceum before an audience of fair size. While this was one of the most artistic productions Duluth has had for many months, the star an actor of the first magnitude and his company a superb one, the patronage accorded it was only ordanary. It should have been of the very best.

KENNEDY STOCK COMPANY.

This evening at the Metropolitan the Kennedy Stock company will resume its run, producing the famous play, "Faust."

FIELD'S MINSTRELS.

Burt Cutler's concert operatic band will be one of the many features of the Al G. Field minstrel show this season. The organization is composed entirely of solo musicians and their concerts at the noon parade and in front of the theater before the evening performance, are rare treats. The Cutler array of musicians head the minstrels in the grand parade, and a change of program is billed for each exhibition. Two free concerts are given at 11:30 a. m. and 7 p. m. daily. The minstrels will be at the Lyceum tomorrow and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoon.

NUDE BODY FOUND.

Insane Man Wandered In Mountains and Perished.

Billings, Mont., May 19.—After a search for three days the naked body of P. A. Nadeau, who wandered from the ranch of W. A. Wells, about sixty miles south of Billings, near Prior mountains, was found Tuesday night. Nadeau had been a resident of this city for about twenty years and was a painter by trade. He was subject to epileptic fits and was a hard drinker.

He left Billings about a week ago to do some work for Mr. Wells, and on Thursday last became violently insane and was placed in a bunkhouse by Mr. Wells and tied down to a bed. Near midnight he left the house and wandere away, and though he was followed in a few minutes by the men about the ranch, he was not found.

HOIST BY OWN PETARD.

Luedtke's Tramp Saved Life of His Wife.

La Crosse, Wis., May 19.—After placing a tramp in his wife's bed for the purpose of scaring her from home so he would not have to support her, and failing to frighten her into departure, Fred Luedtke yesterday attempted to kill her with a revolved. The tramp he had engaged prevented the tragedy and saved the woman. Leudtke was arrested.

YALE STUDENT

Is Enjoined From Hypnotizing a Widow.

New Haven, Conn., May 19.—Alleging that he is exercising a hypnotic influence over Mrs. Levinia H. Foy, widow of a millionaire corset manufacturer, who is 90 years old, trustees of the Foy estate obtained an injunction against H. Hurd, a senior in Yale, to restrain him from holding any communication with the widow.

Hurd, it is alleged by relatives, has been able to induce her to give him money. Gen. George M. Harrison, Mrs. Foy's son-in-law, alleges that the widow is wasting her estate. Hurd is without means and lived in the Foy mansion as caretaker for a time.

Two Kinds of Baths.

One Cleanses the Skin and the Other is More Far-reaching In Results—For it Cleans Out, and in a Thorough Manner the Entire System.

A bath is a tonic. It is the cheapest medicine known. But it only makes the skin clean. It does not go below the surface, where are coiled many feet of flexible tubes, called the bowels. And it is just as necessary to cleanse the bowels as the skin.

Now the difference between Beecham's Pills and a bath is this: the bath cleanses the outside and Beecham's Pills purify the inside of the body. These vegetable Pills, without pain or griping, gently stimulate the bowels and cause them to eliminate the impure matter. What a bath does for the skin, Beecham's Pills do for the bowels, only they go at it in a different way.

OPENED AT ST. PETER

Minnesota Conference of Evangelical Lutheran Augustana Synod.

Rev. Dr. Fremling of West Union Is Re-Elected President.

St. Peter, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The annual meeting of the Minnesota Conference of the Evangelical Lutheran Augustana synod of North America was officially opened in the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church here on Tuesday evening. The full morning service of the church was used. The president of the conference, Rev. J. Fremling, D.D., of West Union, Minn., delivered the annual sermon. He had chosen Matthew 18:15-22 as his text. His subject was, "The Power of the Christian Church to Forgive and Retain Sins." In a very able and forceful manner he presented the Biblical theory and practice with regard to this subject.

Rev. Dr. M. Wahlstrom welcomed the conference to St. Peter in behalf of the city, the school and the Lutheran church.

The regular sessions of the conference were opened at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. At roll call nearly 300 pastoral and lay delegates responded to their names.

The president read his annual report, which was very hopeful. The work in the different fields has been prosecuted with force and success during the past year. The educational, missionary and charitable work, as well as the regular work in the congregations, has made very good progress during the year and shows encouraging results. The conference owns and controls the following institutions: Gustavus Adolphus college, at St. Peter, Minn., this school has five departments and 26 professors and 350 students; the Bethesda hospital and Deaconess institute, at St. Paul, Minn.; the Orphans' home, at Vasa, Minn., where about seventy children at present are cared for.

The president's report was received and handed to a committee consisting of one pastor and one layman from each of the thirteen districts into which the conference is divided. This committee shall prepare resolutions and present to the conference with respect to the points mentioned in the report.

All the old officers were elected to serve another year. They are: Rev. J. Fremling, D.D., of West Union, Minn., president; Rev. L. A. Johnston, of the First Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church, St. Paul, vice president; Rev. J. A. Krantz, of the Elim Swedish Lutheran church, Duluth, secretary; Rev. G. Rast, Red Wing, Minn., treasurer.

The secretary of the home mission board, Rev. C. O. Lundberg, presented the report of that board. This report was quite a voluminous document and gave a clear view of the board's operations during the past year. The mission field of the conference is very extensive, including Alberta, Manitoba and Ontario, Canada; Ward and Henry counties, of North Dakota; the Black Hills district in South Dakota; Northern Minnesota and Northwestern Wisconsin. Throughout this entire territory there are tens of thousands of Swedish Lutheran people scattered. Among those, fifteen missionaries have been laboring with good success. The work is carried on in both the Swedish and English languages. The board has expended $10,000 in this work, but this sum is altogether inadequate for the great needs of the field.

At 1:30 p. m. the musical profession of Gustavus Adolphus college gave a very well received musical recital.

At the opening of the afternoon session of the conference the Rev. Crawford was given an opportunity to address the meeting on the work of the Anti-Saloon league of Minnesota. In a lucid, forceful manner he presented the principles and methods employed by the league in fighting the liquor forces of this state. The conference passed resolutions recommending the work of the league.

HUSBAND GONE

And Chicago Woman In Sad Predicament.

Chicago, May 19.—From the bedside of her dying baby, Mrs. Nellie Butler has turned to make one last appeal to her missing husband to return to her. Yesterday's papers contained the following notice:

"James F. Butler is hereby notified that his baby, Francis, is dying at the Home of the Friendless; wife wants him to come at once."

Last night no answer had been received to this plea, and the baby is expected to die hourly. Morris Butler, 5 years old, is ill with the measles, and Lawrence, 3 years old, has the chickenpox.

Nine weeks ago Mrs. Butler was living happily with her children. Her husband, a chemist, drawing a good salary, while often despondent for causes which he would never reveal to her, was kind to her and to her children. Then he disappeared. Today she is working in the Home of the Friendless for $12 a month, that her children may have medical treatment, and that she may not have to accept charity.

When Mrs. Buler found herself without money and with her children falling sick, she tried to find work, but was unsuccessful. Neighbors offered to help her, but she refused all charity.

It is thought Butler has committed suicide.

BISHOP BURGESS

Warns Clergy Against the Divorce Evil.

Garden City, N. Y., May 19.—In his charge to the clergy of Long Island Bishop Burgess proposes measures to counteract the divorce evil.

"Never marry a divorced person," he told the assembled clergymen. "Even if you marry the innocent party you have, however, unintentionally violated the high ideal which it is the duty of the church to place before the world. The church must keep her record clean in this respect if she is to do her work in America."

HERDERS' ARGUMENT HAD FATAL ENDING.

St. Paul, May 19.—A special to the Dispatch from Helena, Mont., says: Jack Hackett and Howard Isbell, two sheep herders employed by M. Redenbach near Harlem became involved in an argument as to their respective merits as marksmen. Hackett picked up a rifle and fired as Isbell, missing him. Isbell stepped outside the cabin and fired through a window at a lamp inside so Hackett could not see. The bullet glanced and struck Hackett, killing him. Isbell surrendered to the sheriff.

STAGE BEAUTY

Applies Horsewhip to Boston Silk Seller.

Boston, May 19.—Miss Emelie Benner, a stage beauty and actress, publicly horsewhipped Albert S. Livermore, manager of the Salter Silk company, of Boston, in the lobby of the Adams house.

"How dare you slander my good name?" she cried as she raised her whip and moved in the direction of the man. Livermore tried to persuade the actress to meet him elsewhere, to leave the hotel, and denied he had slandered her.

Miss Benner declared that Mr. Livermore had been the "angel" of a company playing "Loop the Loop," of which she was a member. Mr. Livermore said he never saw the young woman nor ever heard of her before.

CONVICTION QUASHED

Of Man Who Advertised With the Flag.

Albany, N. Y., May 19.—That portion of the flag law enacted by the state legislature of New York in 1903, which prohibits the use of the American flag or any representation of it, for advertising purposes, has been declared unconstitutional by the court of appeals in the case of Jacob McPike, of New York city.

That portion of the act that provides that those who "shall publicly mutilate, deface, defile, defy, trample upon, or cast contempt, either by words or act, shall be guilty of misdemeanor, is by implication upheld as constitutional.

McPike was convicted under the provision of the law relating to the use of the flag for business advertisements, and the court overruled his conviction.

GIRLS HAD NO HATS.

Fate of Inmates of a State Home.

Trenton, N. J., May 19.—From girlhood to young womanhood without a single new hat, or, in fact, one of any kind, is a condition which has been the fate of numerous inmates of the state home for girls in this city.

The trustees decided last week that instead of having church services at the home they would hereafter permit the best girls to attend the city churches in company with teachers. Then the discovery was made that out of 124 inmates of the home only four had hats.

A purchasing committee made a quick trip to local millinery establishments and purchased all the hat frames necessary. These were taken back and the school girls were put to work trimming them. Each inmate made her own hat.

GREEKS VIOLATE LAW.

Have Extensive Padrone System In New York.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 19.—Through the story of George Ceacoptes, a Greek boy, 16 years old, the immigration inspectors here have been put on the track of an extensive padrone system, involving Greek proprietors of shoe-shining parlors in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago. The lad told his story after he had caused the arrest of his "boss," Peter Harris, who controls several parlors in this city. Ceacotes is in a hospital as the result of a beating his "boss" gave him.

The boy told the officers that he had been brought from Greece by a padrone in New York. He said hundreds of Greek boys were brought here each year. Their fair was paid and they were to receive $10 a month and food and clothing, provided they remain a whole year with the boss.

The boys were usually discharged for something before the end of the year.

They received no money except the tips from customers.

HE SAW AND WANTED HER.

One of the muiscal shows now playing on Broadway has lost a chorus girl who was a member of the company when it opened here a week ago, says New York Sun. This is the reason:

On the opening night the wardrobe mistress discovered that she did not have the fleshlings six of the chorus girls were to wear in one scene. The girls were to wear knickerbockers and half length hose. The fleshlings were to cover their legs from where the stockings ended to where the knickerbockers began. When the wardrobe mistress couldn't find the fleshlings she appealed to the stage manager.

"They'l have to go on without 'em," said that functionary.

They did. How many people in the first night audience noticed the bare knees no one knows, but at least one man must have used his opera glasses with results. He was engaged to one of the bare-kneed misses and after the show he delivered this ultimatum:

"That's the limit. Now you quit the stage or our engagement is off."

He has money and the chorus girl gave a quick decision. She resigned the next day and she is to be married within a month.

Leland Estate Assets Sold at Auction Realize Small Amount.

William M. Prindle, trustee of the estate of Charles F. Leland, former president of the defunct Commercial Banking company, yesterday afternoon conducted the sale of office furniture, notes, judgments, stocks and other securities remaining to the estate. A total of about $1500 was realized from the sale.

Most of the stocks and securities sold at very low prices. They had been listed in the estate at face value.

Although the attendance at the sale was large the bidding, except in a few instances, was not spirited. In most cases the bids were started at below a dollar ,and advanced by 25 and 50 cent leaps.

C. W. Elston, for $905, purchased a note for $900 and another for $500, made by W. B. Hawthorne, and secured by a trust deed to the southeast quarter and the southwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 11-47-17, in Carlton county.

Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, in block 7, Macfarlane's Grassy Point addition to Duluth, subject to taxes amounting to $114.59, were sold to T. T. Hudson for $25.

Various blocks of stocks were secured for a price less than the individual shares were reputed to be worth. About the lowest figure secured was a bid for 96,000 shares of capital stock of the Consolidated Copalquin Mines company, limited at par value of 50 cents, each, the highest bid for which was $75. The insignificant sum of $3 was secured for 18,240 shares of the capital stock of the La Porte Consolidated Gold Mining company, of California; 35 shares of Lake Shore and Lake Superior Telephone stock brought $30.60; 125 shares of the Duluth Zinc company stock was sold for $50 and 475 shares of the capital stock of the Yaqui Copper company, of par value of $10 each, brought $213.

Mr. Leland's petition for discharge in bankruptcy will be heard by Judge Page Morris Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Twenty-five per cent has been paid creditors of the Leland estate in dividends, two dividends of ten per cent and one of five per cent.

WHITE IS LUCKY

Murder In Third Degree Is Verdict of Jury.

Imprisonment From Seven to Thirty Years Is Punishment.

Convicted of murder in the third degree, Frank White, the slayer of Jerome Manaige, the bartender of the Northland saloon, faces a term of imprisonment in the state penitentiary at Stillwater anywhere from seven to thirty years. Judge Cant will decide what is the proper punishment for his crime.

The verdict in the case was returned by the jury at 10:30 o'clock last evening, after a deliberation of about six hours.

White was present at the reading of the verdict and took the matter very coolly, remarking afterward that "it might have been worse."

Outside of that expression of his feelings, he refuses to make any further statement, but it is understood that the verdict is the best that he expected under the circumstances.

The verdict of murder in the third degree is no surprise, for it was pretty generally conceded by those who heard the trial that the jury would not find White guilty of murder in the first degree.

The general prediction was that murder in the second degree would be the verdict.

White's case was very ably handled by W. E. Green, whose argument to the jury was made shortly after 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Green insisted the county attorney had not proved that White shot Manaige after deliberation and with criminal intent. He claimed that the evidence went to show that what his client did was done on the spur of the moment, when, in the heat of passion, frightened by pursuit and too intoxicated to fully realize his offense, he turned and shot Manaige down.

FRANK WHITE.

Mr. Green declared that the jury should pay no attention to what White might or might not have said following the shooting, that the thing of most importance was his state of feelings when he fired the last two shots, one of which proved fatal to Manaige.

Mr. Green referred to what he termed the county attorney's attempt to make Manaige out a "saint or archangel," because he claimed to have been protecting the cripple, and declared the state had forgotten that, at the time, Manaige was intoxicated, and that there could be no worse combination "than whisky and a half-breed."

In concluding his argument Mr. Green made a strong plea for either acquittal or for a verdict of manslaughter in either the first or the second degree.

Judge Cant's charge to the jury was concise and clear. He carefully explained the different degrees of murder as recognized by law and the degrees of manslaughter. Judge Cant warned the jurors that they were not to be carried away by the closing arguments of the attorneys, but to weigh deliberately and carefully all the evidence submitted in the testimony of witnesses and render their decision accordingly.

He said if the jury found that White took the life of Manaige in self-defense, a verdict of not guilty should be returned, but if, on the other hand, it was found that the killing was unjustifiable, a verdict in one of the murder degrees, or of manslaughter, should be returned, as the jury might elect.

The court declared that after the first shot was fired in the saloon by White, Manaige had a perfect right to attempt to secure his arrest, and White had no right to make a resistance unless fully convinced that his life was in danger, or that he was threatened with great bodily harm.

The court pointed out that the question of drunkenness did not enter into the matter except in so far as it had been established that White was too drunk to be able to think and premeditate action.

CURES
RHEUMATISM!

Shawano, Wis., March 30th, 1904.

MEDERINE REMEDY CO., Duluth, Minn.

Dear Sirs: A year ago last February I was taken with a most severe attack of Inflammatory Rheumatism, so that it was impossible for me to help myself. I called a doctor and he prescribed some medicine for me and I doctored with him for two months without any help. Then I went to taking patent medicin, but they did not help, and I was nearly discouraged, till finally I saw your advertisement and started to take MEDERINE. After I had taken three bottles I was able to work but I finished the whole course and am perfectly cured. If not it would have come back before this time. I most gladly recommend Mederine for Rheumatism. One of my children is taking Mederine for Eczema with great success.

Yours truly, A. O. ANTES, Shawano, Wis.

Mederine is sold at $1 per bottle or 6 for $5 by all dealers. Write for booklet.

WILL DISCUSS IMPROVEMENT

Garfield Avenue Property Owners to Hold a Meeting.

A meeting of the property owners on Garfield avenue, the council committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks, and Aldermen Schaffer and Olson of the Sixth ward will be held this evening in the council chamber for the purpose of discussing the proposed improvement of Garfield avenue from the viaduct to the St. Louis river channel.

Several plans of improving the street have been suggested and the council wishes to learn the sentiment of the property owners in regard to the matter. The meeting was called for this purpose and an attempt will be made to decide upon the cheapest and most efficient method of making the street passable.

IN NEED OF RAIN.

Cloquet River Low and Logs Hung Up.

Some of the log drives on the upper tributaries of the Cloquet river are said to be hung up because of lack of rain, the water being very low. The logs thus delayed belong to the Weyerhaueser interests and the Brooks-Scanlon company.

The heavy snowfall of the past winter caused high water in the logging streams for a time this spring, but since that time there has been an absence of the usual heavy spring rains and the rivers have subsided until the outlook for the lumbermen who have logs way up the streams is not especially encouraging. Some of the lumber concerns are hoping for June freshets to help them out. In case these fail it is likely that many thousand feet of logs cut for the mills this season will have to lie over on the river banks until another spring.

STATE CONVENTION OF IDAHO REPUBLICANS.

Pocatello, Idaho, May 19.—The Republican state convention yesterday elected the following delegates to the national convention: United States Senator W. B. Heyburn, C. B. Hall, of Grangeville; W. Boraha, of Boise; F. R. Cooding, of Shoshone. D. W. Standrod, of Pocatello, and J. M. Stevens of Blackfoot. Standrod is the Idaho member of the national committee and Goodin is the chairman of the state committee.

The resolutions endorse Roosevelt in the strongest terms possible for nomination for president and commend Senator Heyburn and Congressman Fereier.

SOUTH CAROLINA DELEGATES.

Columbia, S. C., May 19.—The South Carolina Democratic state convention yesterday elected as delegates at large to the St. Louis convention, Senator Tillman, Governor D. C. Heyward, Mayor R. H. Rhett, of Charleston, and Gen. Will Jones, the state chairman of Columbia. The senator and governor were elected by acclamation. The only other candidate was United States Senator Latimer, who was not present in the convention. The delegates were not instructed, but the unit rule was adopted.

THE GREATEST PREVENTIVE OF DISEASE,

Rea Bros.' Cascarin, Made From Roots, Barks, Herbs and Berries.

Disease never enters until the system is unable to defend itself. Nor does Nature strike without giving fair warning. These warnings are so plain that a child can observe them. Slight fever, coated tongue, loss of appetite, headache, pain in the limbs, slight jaundice, depression of spirits, sleeplessness, troublesome dreams vertigo, buzzing in the ears and irregular heart action. Do you recognize the symptoms? They warn you that you have intestinal indigestion resulting from fermentation or decomposition of food. You need a laxative tonic that will clear out the cause of the evil and tone up the irritated walls of the canals. If not attended to at once, serious illness may result. Cascarin is what you need. It is a mild liquid laxative, easily taken, being pleasant to the taste. Cascarrin does not gripe and leaves no unpleasant effects. It cleanses the whole system, thereby preventing disease. Try a bottle today. You will find it the best laxative you ever used and the only one worth using. At all druggists, one size, 50c.

QUESTION OF ORE

Will Soon Become an Important One to Furnaces.

Pig Iron Lower With Little Inclination to Buy.

Cleveland, May 19.—The Iron Trade Review, in its current issue, says:

While the iron trade drifts, with pig iron declining, the developments in respect to ore traffic on the lakes have reached a point from which they may soon pass to a position of first importance. The masters and pilots have taken a stand that now threatens a stubborn strike and this makes the question of ore supply of immediate interest. In addition to the 4,500,000 tons of ore officially reported as on dock at Lake Erie ports on May 1, careful estimates (but not based on official figures) put the amount of Lake Superior ore in furnace yards on that date at close of 7,000,000 tons. The reduction in the past two weeks makes the amount of such ore now available about 10,500,000 tons, or somewhat less than five months' supply at the present rate of consumption.

Some merchant furnaces in the central west are preparing to blow out in the next few weeks, so that ore consumption will be reduced to that extent. While the above 10,500,000 tons of ore will run the furnaces into October if evenly proportioned, there are interests whose furnaces would be forced to stop much before that for lack of ore. In addition to the demand that wages in many cases be raised on a declining market, the issues between the Masters' and Pilots' union and the Lake Carriers involve the principle of pay according to service and the owners are taking a very firm stand. It is a struggle that may easily grow to national importance. Meantime the ore market is as dull as it could well be.

Pig iron centers report lower prices and little inclination by consumers to consider purchases for the third quarter. Southern iron is freely offered at $9.50, for No. 2 foundry, Birmingham and sales on analysis have been at the equivalent of $9.25.

It pays to advertise in The Herald. Ask Bayha & Co.

LOTTERY TO GO

The Vested Right of the Panama Company Is Lost.

Other Gambling Institutions on Isthmus Will Be Curbed.

Washington, May 19.—So many questions are settled in the instructions issued by the president to the Panama canal commission that some of the most important ones are hardly understood. There are points of special interest in the United States, of unusual moment to Panama, and of great significance to the Pacific coast countries of Central and South America. These matters include the provision for making the necessary contracts for the engineering and construction work, the regulation of the Panama's railroad's traffic contracts or agreements, and the drastic control of the lottery and other gambling concessions on the isthmus.

Probably there is surprise mixed with dissatisfaction in Panama and Colon over the president's tart instruction that the commission shall enact laws annulling these privileges or concessions. A quiet but thorough agitation which has been going on in the United States secures very substantial results in this provision. While not much has been said in public, nearly all the denominations have been working to secure regulations which would free the United States from any moral taint with regard to the lottery.

Public sentiment on the isthmus as in all Spanish-American countries, takes a different view of this subject. That is why the president's instructions are not likely to be received with overwhelmingly approval. A goodly number of foreigners, including Americans, who always do as the natives do, and soetimes go them a little better, also may find fault with the president. But he is quite sure to receive support at home.

The Panama lottery is one of the firmly established institutions of the isthmus. Nominally, it is a company, but the stock is held by a few individuals. The corporation owns a fine building in Panama fronting on the plaza and near the cathedral. It has agencies all over the isthmus and the selling of lottery tickets is a regular business. The venders peddle them on the train, and their commissions enable them to make a good living. The drawings, being under state control, are honest. Formerly part of the revenues went to the charities and the support of the church. I do not know how that is now.

The other gambling privilege is purely an American concern. That is, American citizens have the franchise, or did have it. They paid Colombia for the monopoly, just as the lottery paid for its privilege.

The chief asset of the gambling concession was the roulette wheel. Many vivid and realistic descriptions have been given of the scenes around the wheel during the high carnival of French extravagance and corruption. They did not vary greatly even in dull times, for there never was a period when the wheel was not surrounded by groups representing a dozen different nationalities. In Colon the sailors were the chief patrons. In Panama the patronage came more from the inhabitants and persons connected with the canal work, as well as from the travelers up and down the Pacific coast.

One of the partners in the gambling franchise was noted for his geniality. The other was equally noted for his sourness. The sour man was mostly at Colon. The genial one had his headquarters at Panama. The latter was one of the most obliging and best-informed men on the isthmus. One evening while sitting in front of the hotel with several persons who were strangers I made some comment on local conditions, and the man next to me very courteously explained that I was mistaken. Then he gave me the facts and a great deal of really useful information. Incidentally remarking about my failure to pick up some comparatively rare coins, he obligingly said he thought he had some in the safe, and, disappearing for a moment, brought them out. "We get a good many queer coins, you know," he said, as he handed them around, and refused to take more than the face value for them. Then he strolled away, and I asked who the obliging stranger was. "Why, he's ——. He runs the roulette wheel," was the reply.

In as much as he had not forced his acquaintance on any one, there was no reason why anybody should take offense, and no one did. Later, when he returned, he drifted into a philosophical discourse on gambling and systems and human nature. The percentage of the roulette wheel, he told me, was 55.6 against 44.4. I thought that was pretty heavy odds against the player, but the roulette man explained that it not only gave a fair margin after paying for their franchise and the expenses of running the business, as well as for occasional losses from counterfeit coins which were worked in on them in the hurry of the play.

His discourse in regard to systems in gambling was especially instructive. He told how the only system in which the player stood any chance was by doubling up on losses in a certain proportion, and returning to the original hazard on winnings. It seemed as if he were giving information which would put him out of business. But to a chance remark to that effect, he calmly replied: "Well, I have run the roulette wheel for a good many years, and I am not out of business yet."

Human nature, acording to the roulette proprietor, is the element which beats any system of gambling. Leaving out human nature he was of the opinion that mathematical calculations on the doctrine of probabilities would enable some players who had systems to beat the game. "They never do it, though," he added, and then he gave the circumstances of a case which is famous along the Pacific coast, though I suppress the names. It was a commercial traveler of Jewish birth who, while stopping in Panama, announced that he had an infallible system and drafts with him for $19,000 to prove it if the proprietors of the roulette wheel would give assurance that he could play the limit. His drafts were verified and then, not only the roulette proprietors, but all the rest of Panama gave the promise that there would be no hindrance to his play. At the same time the financial responsibility of the wheel was guaranteed. Times were dull in Panama then and the town wanted to keep that $19,000.

Of course, there could only be one end to the story. Along with other listeners, I waited for it somewhat impatiently and as the details of the system were explained broke in to inquire if the roulete proprietors followed Monte Carlo and bought the player with the system a steamship ticket. "We didn't have to," said the gambler quietly. "He got away with everything we had. That was the case where human nature worked to our disadvantage. He played his system up to the turning point. Then his nerve failed him and he flunked on it. You see, that's always human nature—to drop the system at some point or other. If he had gone a little further we would have had him and his drafts and the big gold watch he sported. Just by that queer kink in losing his nerve at the wrong time for us he got away with all we had, and I didn't hear of him losing it anywhere else. But he was an exception and he simply had luck."

I do not recite this incident either as an encouragement to gambling or as a discouragement. It is merely an illustration which, perhaps, has been duplicated elsewhere than in Panama. The moral, if any, is that the roulette wheel in Panama and Colon heretofore has drawn its revenue chiefly from players who followed systems.

It is possible that the owners of the roulette monopoly will make complaint that their vested rights are interfered with, and they may even think that the snap in the president's order is aimed directly at them. But, whatever their grievances or the complaints of the lottery owners, there is no remedy. The republic of Panama in the treaty concedes the United States sovereign rights to the exclusion of its own sovereign rights, power or authority over the canal zone. Nobody supposes that gambling will be done away with entirely on the isthmus. Doubtless the roulette wheel and the lottery will move outside the zone, but there will be no moral reproach on the United States, and even the evil itself may be somewhat curbed. Getting five miles either way from the central belt is going far into the tropical jungle, and the gambling instinct will have to be pretty strong to brave the hardships.

ATHLETIC FIELD

Outdoor Plot of Y. M. C. A. Being Put In Condition.

Offers Remarkably Good Advantages For Summer Athletics.

A crew of men was yesterday put to work on the new outdoor athletic field of the Y. M. C. A., located twenty-five feet west of the association building. When this field is completed, and the training apparatus which it is proposed to set up on it is put in place, the local organization will have one of the finest equipped indoor and outdoor fields for gymnasium work in the country.

The vacant lot, stretching from Superior to Michigan street, measures 75 by 100 feet. It is to be made perfectly level and covered with two inches of fine cinders. The work, it is expected, will be completed within the next two weeks, and as soon as the apparatus is in place the training will begin.

One great advantage of the new field is its nearness to the association building. The boys can don their gymnasium suits, go out and take their exercise and then return to the rooms and take their bath while still warm. This advantage is one lacked by many gymnasiums, whose outdoor fields are more frequently half a mile or more away from headquarters.

One of the leading attractions of the grounds will be a first-class tennis court. There will also be oportunities for pole vaulting, high jumping, broad jumping, hurdling, shot putting, running, baseball practice, outdoor basket ball and probably some class work. The director of athletics, Professor Maxwell, has done considerable outside athletic work, and at the state meet at Geneva last year carried off more prizes in the contests than did any of his 110 competitors, who were selected from the cream of the athletic element in the state.

"I don't believe there is another association in the country the size of ours that numbers so many good athletes among its members, nor another city with Duluth's population with an equaly large number of athlets," said Professor Maxwell yesterday. "By athletes I mean all round men who are reasonably good in all classes of both indoor and outdoor work. A good football or baseball player is not necessarily an athlete. He is alright in his favorite sport, but when it comes to vaulting, jumping, horizontal bar work, etc., he frequently cuts a sorry figure. We have a bunch of fellows here who wil make a good showing in whatever physical contest they may care to enter, and they are therefore athletes in the true meaning of the word."

To meet the expenses of the new field in part each member will be charged $1 for the season. Quite a number have already availed themselves of the privilege.

ONE BISHOP ELECTED

Methodists Choose J. F. Berry By a Large Majority.

One Hundred and Twenty Received Votes on First Ballot.

Los Angeles, May 19.—The Methodist general conference yesterday voted for eight bishops, but elected only one, J. F. Berry, editor of the Epworth Herald, who received more than two-thirds of the entire vote cast on the first ballot. One other ballot was taken, but the result of this was not made known. One hundred and twenty received votes on the first ballot. Those having more than fifty are as follows: J. F. Berry, 531; Henry Spellmeyer, 479; W. E. McDowell, 429; J. W. Bashford, 366; Thos. B. Neely, 326; J. R. Day, 270; R. J. Cook, 263; J. W. Brown, 242; H. C. Jennings, 173; L. B. Wilson, 173; G. P. Eckman, 166; G. P. Bocktel, 116; D. W. Smith, 125; W. A. Quayle, 108; F. F. Bovard, 93; A. B. Leonard, 76; W. P. Crawford, 74; Robert McIntyre, 63; M. C. Mason, 66; G. M. Taylor, 73; E. F. Downey, 58; J. F. Goucher, 68. Total votes cast, 741; of which 11 were defective, making the total legal vote cast, 730. Necessary to choice, 487.

It was practically a foregone conclusion that Dr. J. F. Berry would be named as one of the eight bishops to be elected, and it was no surprise to the delegates when it was announced that he had been elected by a decisive majority on the first ballot. Dr. Berry received an ovation when the figures were announced, the entire assembly arising and applauding him as he was escorted to a seat among the bishops on the platform.

As will be seen, Dr. Henry Spellmeyer failed of election by only eight votes and Dr. W. S. McDowell by 58. Dr. Bashford and Dr. Neely were the next nearest in the order named and it is thought that several of these candidates wil be named on the next ballot. Dr. J. R. Day of Syracuse, N. Y., Dr. R. J. Cook, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Dr. J. W. E. Bowen (colored) are the next highest in the order named.

Dr. Bowen is the candidate of the colored delegates and it is believed that he will receive their solid support on the next ballot. While receiving a considerable number of votes from other delegates, the opinion was expressed by more than one delegate that the representative of the colored church had probably received on the first ballot the highest number of votes that will be cast for him.

Dr. J. M. Buckley, the New York editor, was honored with twenty-three votes.

Robert McIntyre and F. E. Boyard are both Los Angeles ministers. M. C. B. Mason (colored), who received 66 votes, stated to the conference after the first ballot that he was not a candidate and requested the delegates not to vote for him. The first ballot was taken just before noon and the conference adjourned until 2 p. m. Upon reassembling at that hour the secretary announced that the tellers would not be ready to report until 4 o'clock and upon motion of Dr. Buckley a further adjournment was taken until 5 o'clock.

Successive adjournments did not break the intense interest in the result of the balloting manifested by the throngs of spectators, who filled the boxes and crowded the gallery and balcony. Each reconvening witnessed the same large assemblage and general impatience to hear the teller's announcement. Hearty applause greeted the appearance of the tellers on the floor, and this quickly subsided to absolute quiet when their report was handed to Presiding Bishop Merrill for announcement. A storm of applause followed the first words of the report showing Dr. Berry elected by a vote of 531. After the reading of the entire list of candidates voted for, 120 in number, a second ballot was ordered and at once proceeded with. Upon retirement of the tellers the conference adjourned until morning.

The committee on temporal economy decided to recommend to the general conference that the size of future general conferences be reduced from a basis of two delegates to every forty-five members of annual conference to a basis of two for every sixty members. This would reduce the size of general conferences to 550 members instead of 750 members on the basis of the present church membership.

NOT TO HUDSON BAY.

Professor Leith Denies Report of Journey.

Madison, Wis., May 19.—Professor Leith of the university, who recently returned from St. Louis, denies the report published in a Milwaukee paper some time ago as to explorations around Hudson bay. In addition to the regular field work of the members of the geological department of the university for the United States geological survey, exploration for ore in charge of Professor Leith will be continued in Ontario in the interests of mining organizations. The university is not making donations for this purpose, as was reported.

The field of explorations is not limited, but will be closer to the north shores of Lake Superior and Huron than to Hudson bay. The members of one of the parties which left for the woods Tuesday were: A. R. Schultz, R. J. Holden, C. H. Wegeman, graduates, and Mr. Katz, a junior. The members of another party which leaves at the close of the school year are: A. W. Lewis and Julius Warner, who will be graduated this year; R. C. Allen, '03, and G. W. Crane, '05.

These students are for the most part advanced students in geology. Camp hands, cooks and packers, to the number of eight, have been engaged to go with the party. Both parties and certain additional work will be under the direct supervision of W. N. Smith, on leave of absence from the United States geological survey, who left with the party. Professor Smith will visit the parties in the field from time to time.

MITCHELL INQUIRES

Into Cause of Present Deadlock on Lakes.

Cleveland, O., May 19.—John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers, has sent a letter to Paul Howell, of the Masters' and Pilots' association, inquiring into the cause of the present deadlock between the masters and pilots and the lake carriers. The tie-up on the lakes is affecting the coal mining industry, hence Mitchell's inquiry. Howell has replied stating that a number of independent vesselmen are paying the wages and complying with the conditions asked for by the masters and pilots. Capt. Howell asserts that the Lake Carriers' association is attempting to disrupt the organization of the masters and pilots. He declared that the men will win or "meet their Waterloo."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, which was duly executed and delivered by Peter P. Bjerre and Ellen M. Bjerre, his wife, mortgagors, to John F. Duncan, mortgagee, bearing date November sixteenth (16th), 1891, and which was duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis county, Minnesota, on December eighth (8th), 1891, at eight o'clock a. m., in Book ninety-eight (98) of mortgages, on page one hundred seventy-four (174); and, whereas, Clara L. Duncan has been duly appointed executrix of the will of said John F. Duncan, deceased, by the Orphans Court of Union County, Pennsylvania, whereln said John F. Duncan resided at the time of his death, and a duly authenticated copy of her appointment as such executrix has been filed for record in the office of the register of deeds for said St. Louis County, Minnesota; such default consisting in the non-payment of the principal sum of eight hundred ($800) dollars thereby secured, and interest thereon from the 1st day of November, 1894, and also in the non-payment of taxes for the years 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, 1901 and 1902, and special assessment for street improvements, all of which have become due, and which said John F. Duncan was compelled to pay, and did pay, amounting to the sum of $152.75;

And, whereas, there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of fourteen hundred four ($1404) dollars, principal and interest, together with the additional sum of $152.75 for taxes and assessments so paid.

And, whereas, said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the default above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: Lot numbered twelve (12), in block numbered two hundred three (203), West Duluth, Third Division, according to the recorded plat thereof in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the thirteenth (13th) day of June, A. D. 1904, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and said assessments and taxes paid thereon, and fifty dollars attorneys' fee stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated April 28th, 1904.

Wheat Market Has Another Sharp Advance, Chicago Leading.

Congested Condition In May Option There —Flax Firmer.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 19.—The congested condition of wheat at Chicago continues to be the controlling factor in the market and it is leading to a better cash demand all around. Duluth shippers believe that if navigation would open, there would be an active demand for wheat that would carry out practically all there is here at this time. The cash price is steadily gaining on the July in this market, as well as in Chicago. In Chicago May wheat today had an advance of 2¼c, closing at 93c, and during the morning it sold at $1. The July advanced 1¾c. In Duluth, the July advanced 1c, and the May 1¾c. In Minneapolis, July wheat was up ⅞c, and in New York 1c. The September in Duluth advanced ⅛c, and Minneapolis ⅜-¼c.

The short interest in Chicago is believed to be largely reduced, but there is still a closely held line of May and the contract wheat stock has little chance for replenishment.

The Liverpool market closed ¼-⅜c higher. The visible supply on Monday is expected to show a decrease of about 3,000,000 bus. Argentine shipments are estimated to be only about 2,000,000 bus this week, as compared with 3,064,000 bus last week.

Car receipts at Duluth were 8, against 16 a year ago, and at Minneapolis 46, against 112 a year ago, making a total for the Northwest of 54, against 128 a year ago. Chicago received 2, against 11 last year. Winnipeg receipts were 43 cars, against 373 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 112,855 bus last year 226,516 bus. Shipments, 301,684 bus last year, 263,146 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 32,340 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ½d lower. In the Chicago market July corn closed ½-⅝c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 260,400 bus, last year 470,528 bus. Shipments 385,800 bus, last year 160,955 bus. Clearances were 2460 bus.

In the Duluth market trading in wheat was very light, in fact, there was little to do but mark up bid and asked prices to follow those of other markets. The July option opened 2c higher at 92¾c and advanced steadily to 94c at 11:25. It then reacted to 93¾c at 12:45 and closed at that price, which was 1c higher than yesterday. The May option closed 1¾c higher at 95¼c and September ⅛c higher at 81¾c.

Cash prices continued to range from May price to 3c over for No. 1 northern and offerings were very light.

Flax was even duller than wheat. July sold ½c up to $1.08¾ and closed at $1.08¾. May also advanced ¼c. September ½c and October 3c.

Rye made an advance of 1c and oats were unchanged.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—In store, No. 1 hard, 95¾c; No. 1 northern, 93¾c; No. 2 northern, 91¾c. To arrive, No. 1 hard, 96¾c; No. 1 northern, 95¾c; No. 2 northern, 93¼c. On track, No. 1 northern, 93⅞-96⅝c; No. 2 northern, 91¾@94¾c. Macaroni, No. 1, 98c; No. 2, 85c. May, 93¼c; July, 93¾c; September, 81¾c. Flax, in store, $1.07; to arrive, $1.07; May, $1.06¾; July, $1.08¼; September, $1.10; October, $1.09½. Oats, on track, 42c; to arrive, 42c. Rye, to arrive, 68c; on track 65c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 8; last year, 16; flax, 3; last year, 8.

Receipts: Wheat, 10,635; barley, 3372; rye, 1443; flax, 10,492.

Shipments: Wheat, 4167; barley, 2254; rye, 10,089.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Talk of Squeeze For Shorts Gave May Strength.

Chicago, May 19.—Talk of a squeeze of shorts in May wheat gave strength to that month and influenced the deferred deliveries today. Added to this factor were receipts so light as to make a record in small movement with practicall no contract stocks. The effect was an advance of ¼c to 1⅛@1⅜c in July at 87⅝c to 87⅝@88c, at the start, followed by a further gain of 1½c. September was unchanged to ⅜c higher at 81⅞@82c. Notwithstanding the loss of a small part of the advance on selling by scalpers, there was no indication of weakness. Minneapolis and Duluth reported 54 cars received which with 2 cars locally, none contract grade, made 56 cars, at the three points against 70 last week and 139 a year ago.

A scramble to cover by May shorts, which caused the price of the month to soar to the dollar mark, carried July to 89½c, the close being firm at 88¾@7⅝c, a gain of ⅞@1c. September showed less tendency to advance, but held steady, touching 82⅜c, after a break on realizing by longs to 81⅝c. The close was firm and ⅛@⅜c up at 82c.

The small proportion of the short interest in May steadied the corn market, though the weather was shown to be all that could be asked for the growing crop. July was unchanged to ⅛c higher, at 48c, and under the influence of buying by some of yesterday's sellers, made a further gain. September was up a shade to ⅛@¼ at 47⅜c. Local receipts were 6 cars.

The market was steady, in sympathy with wheat, there being little change in values. July declined to 47⅝c under selling pressure by local long holders, but a firmer feeling prevailed and a reaction to 48½c followed. The close showed a gain of 1@1⅛c at 48¼@⅜c. September closed unchanged at 47⅜c, having kept within a narrow range throughout.

Oats followed the trend of other grains with a gain of 1⅛@¼c to ⅜c in July, at 28⅝c, and with September up ⅛c at 28½c. Local receipts were 88 cars.

Provisions were slow. There was a disposition on the part of commission houses to sell lard, July pork was a shade up at $11.35. July lard was a trifle lower at $6.47½. July ribs were unchanged at $6.50.

Close: Wheat—May, 95c; July, 87⅝c; old, 88¾@7⅝c; Sept. 80½c, old82c. Corn—May, 48c; July, 48⅛@¼c; Sept, 47⅜c; Dec. 42⅝c. May (1905) 42⅝c. Oats—May, 47¾c; July, 28⅝@¼c; Sept. 28½; Dec. 31. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Minneapolis: The Market Record has received reports from nearly every miller and grain dealer in the Northwest giving their views in regard to seeding, acreage as compared with last year and amount of old wheat in farmers' hands. In Minnesota and South Dakota seeding of wheat is finished, except in portions of the Red River valley in Minnesota. In North Dakota only about 65 per cent has been finished. Seeding was conducted more or less during the week and it is now generally understood that the amount of the land seeded is about three-fourths of the area intended to be put into wheat. The land not now seeded is low or flat lands where work has been delayed owing to the too much moisture, in some places ponds of water yet cover it. How much of this unseeded ground intended for wheat will finally be put into other grain is problematical.

* * *

Coe Commission Co.: Wheat—Cables were again disappointing this morning. Weather fine all over the Northwest; light rains in the Ohio valley, Illinois and Missouri. Our wheat markets opened strong and there was good demand for all the options. Also belated shorts in Chicago May had the screws applied to them and they bid the price up to an even dollar. The old July was also very strong, making a gain of 1⅞c in the first two hours of the trading. The Minneapolis July was also strong, advancing 1¼c. There was some profit-taking at the advance which resulted in a fractional reaction up to this writing. Looks as if there would be something doing in the July before long. Advise buying early. Corn and oats—Strong in sympathy with the strength in the wheat market. They are a purchase on breaks for a turn.

Provisions—The list is weak again today. On any further break would buy pork and lard. As we have suggested before, scalping operations in provisions on the long side will be profitable, taking profits whenever in sight.

* * *

Cincinnati Price Current: Wheat crop is progressing favorably. There is no new news. Oats have a good average condition. It is unseasonably cool for corn, retarding growth and planting. There is ample time for full acreage. Grass crop good. Interior movement light.

* * *

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market was again controlled by the one item of small local contract stocks. The May is congested and there are probably concentrated holdings in excess of the local stocks of contract wheat. There is also, we think, quite a little scattered long interest. The shorts have been covering freely and the interest must have been reduced considerably the last two days. There is the same bullish sentiment and talk on the July as heretofore on account of the small stocks. Outside of that conditions are unchanged. The September drags slowly after the action of the rest of the market. We look for an unsettled and active market favorable for scalping operations.

Corn—Market was quiet all day. The shipping situation is quiet. There is a good deal of local bearish sentiment, but it is a little timid by reason of its numerous unsuccessful efforts to break prices.

Oats—The holdings are concentrated and there is undoubtedly quite a liberal short interest which from present indications will have to go to the captain's office. The July sympathized somewhat with May, but the September was unchanged and dull. The trade is not large, and the market on the whole is a very quiet one.

Provisions—It was a heavy market with poor support. Hogs are in excess of a year ago, there was quite a little selling pressure through brokers and apparently for local and packing interests. The estimated stocks of provisions are 51,000 bbls pork, and 21,000,000 lbs ribs. This was partly responsible for the weakness in the market. It is a disappointing action to those who are hoping for better prices.

* * *

Bartlett, Frazer & Carrington, Chicago: The position in cash wheat is becoming more acute. May shorts are practically at the mercy of the situation. Cannot see how the July will escape a whirl sooner or later. The open trust is sufficiently large to cause congestion any time. Good thing to be long some around at present prices. The September will, we think, grow in favor right along. We believe it will creep up to between 85 and 90 before the trading world realizes the position that we will be in when new wheat commences to move. The first run of wheat will be grabbed by the millers everywhere at first prices, whatever they may be, and the speculative short will, we think, get very little if any relief from the first thirty to sixty days developments.

Broomhall: Our Argentine agent estimates the week's wheat shipments at about 2,000,000 bushels and corn about 800,000 bushels, which compares with 3,064,000 bushels and 864,000 respectively a week ago. Weather conditions in Argentine continue favorable.

DULLNESS RULED

In the Stock Market With Small Volume of Business.

Steel Preferred Closed Fraction Over Wednesday Night's Price.

New ork, May 19.—Very light orders appeared for execution in the opening stock market today and the resulting price changes were small both ways. A decline of ½ in Western Union was the most conspicuous change.

Selling orders predominated in the market. The weakness of several active specialities induced larger offerings of the active railroad list. Realty pfd was forced down 1¾ to 59, and Sugar and Delaware & Hudson lost a point. United States Steel pfd, Copper and Brooklyn Transit all yielded large fractions, as did Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Eric, Atchison and Baltimore & Ohio.

Declines reached ⅞ to 1¼ in Western Union, Republic Steel pfd, Toledo, St. Louis & Western and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie pfd. One sale of American Coal was at an advance of 20 points over the preceding sale. The general declining tendency was arrested and the market became lifeless. Bonds were heavy at noon. The market did not vary enough during the midday hour to call for comment.

A slight selling flurry relieved the market of its inanimation for a time, but after the decline was checked speculation again became stagnant. Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Consolidated Gas declined a point and several other favorites nearly as much. Hocking Valley preferred sold down 1⅜ and Anaconda 2.

The market slowly hardened, carrying United States Steel preferred a fraction over last night and reducing losses elsewhere. Specialty preferred rose 2¾ over last night. Kansas City, Southern preferred ⅝ and International Power 1, and Western Union recovered a point of its loss. United States Rubber preferred lost 7⅞. Chicago Great Western preferred A 1, Lackawanna 2 and La Clede Gas preferred 4½. The close was dull and firm.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: There is not enough activity to furnish a line on the market. Some securities may be affected by special developments and act independently of the general list but it is almost impossible to pick out these. Brooklyn Rapid Transit might be one of them. The next bull campaign will, in my judgment, start from a considerably lower level. From indications which have observed the public have gradually picked up a good deal of Missouri Pacific. As it is not too good a stock anyway, it would not be surprising if Missouri Pacific had a severe break this summer and you might sell it on a scale up. This stock used to sell at 10 and if worth 90, St. Paul is surely worth 180 from a standpoint of real value.

* * *

Evans to Paine, Webber & Co.: I think the decline in Erie stocks is discounting reduction of dividend on first preferred, which will have to be made eventually. On any further pronounced weakness it might pay to buy fer a turn, but I do not think it is time to buy anything yet.

* * *

Waldorf to B. E. Baker: Brokers who have been in close touch with the market movement since the Northern Securities decision was handed down, have a theory that the rally of the last day or two will soon be followed by increased activity and a decline. They point out that most of the small shorts have covered and that, with the big men idle, there is no other buying power enough to lift the market out of its rut. Large gold exports and indications of another poor bank statement Saturday, account for this bearish feeling. As to the gold movement the belief of well informed persons is that only a sharp advance in money rates can stop it. It is also probable that, owing to the difficulty of securing gold bars for shipment, coin will be taken in large amounts by foreigners.

Whether Harriman, Rockefeller and Gould own the Erie and whether the recent bad statements of this company and the great decline in its securities have been part of manipulation to facilitate the accumulation of stock at low prices are questions that are being discussed. Indications are that there are real grounds for the contention that ownership of this trunk line had passed, since the dissolution of the voting trust from Morgan and Hill to the interests above named, who it is expected intend to establish closer traffic relations between the Erie, Missouri Pacific, Wabash and other western properties which they control.

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: What few changes there are in the market require a microscope to find. There is a little strong-arm work in Realty preferred, but the list generally, while slightly irregular, is practically without change. There is nothing in the gossip, and in fact it may be said there is no gossip. The market is purely a waiting one, with professional traders doing what little there is, selling one day with not much effect either direction. It is quite likely that the bank statement will again be unfavorable, and while money is still cheap, it has a slightly hardening tendency. There is no public interest whatever.

Coe Commission Co.: The market is again back in the rut, with trading to noon each day less than 100,600 shares.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The day's operations developed nothing new. Steel preferred was sold down and seemed to be oversold recovering and showing more strength than any other stock, on the list. There seems to be no public interest and practically all of the traders are bearish. The market, when it becomes active again, will have either a good advance or decline. For the present it will pay to watch it; copper was lower in London and there seems to be manipulation for lower prices. We know of a sale of a round lot of Loke copper yesterday at 12½cents. The best information we get makes us believe the metal market is all right.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 19.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 1 point following steady cables but almost at once broke sharply under continued heavy liquidation and bear pressure with July inside of the first half hour declining to 13.02 and the general list showing net declines of 6@19 points. New Orleans was believed to be an active seller here. Immediately after the local opening Liverpool also turned much easier, declining in keeping with the losses here, and New Orleans developed pronounced weakness. Prices at the end of the first hour were at practically the lowest for the session.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 13.40; middling gulf, 13.65; sales, 1200 bales. Futures closed steady; May, 12.57; June, 13.04; July, 13.15; August, 12.78; September, 11.57; October, 11.15; November, 11.08; December, 11.07; January, 11.11.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, May 19.—Close: Money on call easy, 1¾@2 per cent, closing bid 1¾, offered at 2; time loans firm, 60 and 90 days, 2 per cent; six months, 4. Prime mercantile paper, 3¾@4¼. Sterling exchange easier, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.86.80 for demand and at $4.84.90@4.84.95 for 60 days' bills; posted rates, $4.85½@6 and $4.87½@8; commercial bills, $4.84¾. Bar silver, 55½c. Mexican dollars, 44½c. Government bonds steady, railroad bonds heavy.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 19.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $173,959,907; gold, $75,165,130; silver, $51,713,119; United States notes, $7,766,288; treasury notes of 1890, $55,455; national bank notes, $13,222,154; total receipts this day, $1,704,67; total receipts this month, $27,230,503; total receipts this year, $478,832,773; total expenditures this day, $1,530,000; total expenditures this month, $71,000,000; total expenditures this year, $526,138,560; net deposits in national banks, $128,739,560.

"SOCIAL SECRETARY"

Is the Newest In Large Eastern Stores.

New York, May 19.—"Something of a new profession that will affect the lives of women all over the world" was told at the meeting of the American Institute of Social Science in the United Charities building.

The "new profession" is that of "social secretary," an officer of a firm and particularly of firms where girls are employed, whose business is to stand between the employers and employed, and in a way acting as arbitrator and investigator of grievances.

In the case of department stores, where the "social secretary" is always to be a woman and the nature of her duties may be summed up in a question which Dr. William H. Tolman, director of the institute asked in the course of his remarks:

"What would you think of a mother with 2000 children?"

A sympathetic shudder ran through the audience, largely made up of women.

"Imagine 50,000 women workers," Dr. Tolman went on, "mothered by social secretaries seeking to make their life work easier. Think of their task guarding these 50,000 young girls from temptation. 'I always watch the blondes,' a social secretary said recently, 'particularly the blondes, for they always remind me of the moth and the flame.

Mrs. Isabelle F. Nye, a social secretary in a department store in New York, and Mrs. Elizabeth C. Wheeler, with a similar position in Providence, told of their experiences. They supervise the girls in all their relations, advise them as to their home lives and their love affairs and criticize their dress and general behavior.

RAILROADS KICK

Tie-Up on Great Lakes Is Very Irksome to Them.

Steamers Russia and Myron Collide—Navigation Formally Open.

No class of men are jumping on the masters and pilots for tying up navigation by their demands any more than the railroads, for they generally place the blame on the men. All the railroads in this neighborhood are affected by the condition and they are particularly badly off, owing to the lack of coal which is usually handled to different points on land after it arrives from the East at the head of the lakes.

One well known railway official said this morning that while business outside of the latitude where it might be affected by the failure of freight to land by water was pretty good, he thought that some means might be consistently used to urge upon the masters and pilots the enormity of the trouble they have brought about.

"I certainly hope that something will be done to bring these men to their senses," said he. "It is a case of the higher paid class of labor making everything as bad as possible for the poorer paid classes of labor. Not only that, the captains are paid by the season and the others by the time they work. They want the vessel owners to give up all their rights, according to the way I see it. They have asked that the owners relinquish the right to discharge them or the men under them and they want more money than they have been getting."

On the other hand, one steamboat man who talked about the matter said he was inclined to think the vessel owners had brought the condition on themselves by their actions.

"Every other class of labor on boats but the captains has been given more wages right along in the last few years, while the captains have been working for practically the same wages as they got ten years ago," said he. "For instance in the other departments the wheelsmen who got $25 per month a few years ago are now getting up as high as $35 per month.

"At the conference in Cleveland today between the vessel owners, if they should decide to let things stay tied up and not accept the offer of the masters and pilots it looks to me as though they would make every member sign some sort of bond or agreement not to run his boats. By doing this they would prevent some weak-kneed fellow from breaking loose and leaving the carriers' association.

"Many boats are under expense of one kind or another whether they are running or not and the result is that the owners are liable to get very tired of a tie-up and want to get enough out of their property to pay those expenses."

It appears that one reason the various harbors of the masters and pilots association voted against going to work at last year's prices was the lack of conciliatory terms used to interest them in that direction, at least President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association asserts this to be the case. After the advisory board returned to its various homes from the meeting with the owners the harbors called their meetings.

The postal card sent out for the Chicago meeting read as follows:

"American Association of Masters and Pilots of Steam Vessels, Chicago, May 10, 1904.—Dear Sir and Bro. A special meeting will be held Wednesday evening, May 11, at 7:30, to decide whether or not we will call for strike against the Lake Carriers' association. J. E. Kohnert, C. C."

The full text of the statement sent out by General Manager Coulby, of the Pittsburg Steamship company, is as follows:

"There seems to be an impression that I am not in accord with Mr. Livingston's statement of the lake carriers' side of the present deadlock with the masters and pilots as published in the daily papers. I desire to state that Mr. Livingstone handed his written statement to me before it was given to the press, and it exactly coincided with my understanding of the situation.

"After the committee of Masters' and Pilots' association at their recent meeting with the executive committee of the Lake Carriers' association had not only voted to accept the compromise agreement we had arrived at, but had unanimously agreed to recommend its acceptance in all their harbors. I must admit I was greatly disappointed at the outcome. I fully realize that the tieing up of our lake commerce is throwing into enforced idleness many thousands of men who are anxious and willing to work and who have been out of employment all winter, many of whom have large families dependent upon them.

"This spring I have been on committees dealing with seven labor organizations, with six of which we have made satisfactory contracts, which I think should be sufficient evidence of our fairness in dealing with labor organizations.

"After the action of the masters and pilots on our compromise proposition, and the arbitrary position taken by their executive officers during the last few days in insisting on the enforcement of their exposé facto ruling made April 12, that men who were not notified prior to Jan. 15 of the discontinuance of their employment should be considered as engaged to the same boat, or a better one, for the coming season, and the threat that if any owner appoints any other captain to the boat she will not be allowed to sail this year, coupled with their demands that the men shall receive a full season's pay whether they work or not and their similar demands, raises a very serious question in my mind whether it is possible for us to deal with this organization for our captains or not. H. COULBY."

LAKE CARRIERS

Show No Sign of Wavering at Present.

Cleveland, May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—No sign of wavering was shown by the Lake Carriers toward the masters and pilots when they gathered in session here today. The situation is dominated by the strong position of the iron mining companies. There seems to be little hope of a break among the captains, but the position of the mates is not so strong and if a break comes in the ranks of the union it is evident that it must be from the mates rather than the captains. It is believed that the action of the meeting now being held will be to sustain fully the executive committee in rejecting the offers of the union.

VESSELS COLLIDE.

Russia and Myron Strike In the Harbor.

What might have been a disastrous collision ocurred between the steamers Russia and Myron about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, just off the end of Northern Pacific dock No. 2, owing, it is understood, to a misunderstanding of signals. A portion of the Myron's stem was carried away, but the vessels managed to slow up and steer clear of each other before more serious damage was done.

Each captain blames the slight collision to the crew of the other boat. It is generally reported, however, that if one boat is more to blame than the other it is the Russia. Both were making for the Cutler dock. The Myron whistled her signals and was answered by the Russia, but, it is claimed, the Russia did not follow out the signals and the collision was the result.

The Russia is the property of the Port Huron & Duluth Steamship company, and arrived yesterday from Buffalo with a cargo of salt and cement, the latter taken on at Alpena. The Myron is also from Buffalo, with a load of salt.

The Myron arrived yesterday with four barges, the Goshawk, Peshtigo, Delaware and Jenness in tow. The barges were all light. The five boats will be loaded with lumber for the lower lakes.

The steamer Viking with the Vinland and Agnus Smith in tow arrived in the local harbor last night, the two first loaded with coal for the Philadelphia & Reading company. The Agnus Smith is light. The three will be loaded with lumber. The Jay Gould, from Chicago, also arrived last night, at 9:15 o'clock.

The Skater, an excursion boat, is expected from Ashland today to go to the Superior dry docks for repairs. The steamer Newsboy is being repainted and is undergoing a thorough overhauling generally. She will make her first trip up the St. Louis about June 1.

When the steamer Russia arrived yesterday large crowds of freight handlers applied for the chance to unload her. It is said that there were ten men to every job. Ordinarily there is plenty of work for all at the docks at this season of the year, but this year the tie-up of freighters in the Lake Carriers' trouble has resulted in many men being left without employment.

NAVIGATION OPEN.

Is Now on In Meaning of Grain Rules.

With the arrival of the steamer Russia yesterday afternoon navigation at Duluth is formally opened. She was the first boat to come from Lake Erie, and under the interpretation of the rules of the Duluth board of trade, that constitutes the opening.

Shippers who have sold grain to go forward on "the opening of navigation" now have ten days in which to get their grain loaded out, or they will be in default on their contracts. Not a great amount of grain is affected, for the reason that under all sales made within any recent time a strike clause was inserted in the contract. There is some, however, that must go out or be in default. The amount is estimated at not to exceed 100,000 bushels.

No boats have come in as yet that can be depended upon to land grain, and unless some come within a very short time, there will be nothing for shippers to do but default on their contracts.

In store at the head of the lakes there is a large amount of flour, more than a quarter of a million of barrels. This is also to go out as soon as boats can be had, but whether any of this is subject to rules similar to those that cover grain is a question that concerns the railroads. It is not believed, however, that any of it is so affected.

MARINE NOTES.

By Sunday the White Line expects to get the Easton's propeller in shape so she may leave the dry dock and start on her regular trip on that day. The line may arrange to have its five boats a week in service next week. Every effort is being made to this end.

The enrollment of the steamer Herman Witt has been recorded at the local customs office. Herman Witt is named as the new master.

The tug Ashland from Ashland has come to Duluth and will go into dry dock No. 2 as soon as the Whitney comes out, which will probably be in a couple of days. The tug needs a new shaft and new propeller, which will be put in. She will probably be scraped as well.

FURNITURE STOLEN

James Creevy Under Arrest Charged With Serious Crime.

Valuable Goods Taken From Storehouse—A Prison Offense.

A series of bold and systematic thefts is alleged to have been committed by James Creevy, who was placed under arrest by Detective Terry of the local police department this morning.

Creevy is claimed to have stolen goods to the value of over $200 from the storage barn of Ribenack Bros. A large quantity of furniture is stored by them in a barn just back of the headquarters of the fire department on West First street, between Sixth and Seventh avenues. Much of the furniture is new, and some of it is to be used in the new hotel which is being built.

Creevy is claimed to have driven up to the barn with a wagon on several occasions and to have appropriated a number of articles which were stored in the barn. The articles which were taken are too heavy to be carried away by hand. Among the things stolen were various parts of a large kitchen range, the iron bases of seats such as are used in a restaurant, a heavy boiler and several pieces of furniture. The stolen goods were sold to second-hand dealers on the Bowery.

The loss of the goods was not discovered until this morning, when Mr. Ribenack had occasion to visit the storehouse. He noticed that the barn had been entered and a number of articles removed, and he notified the police.

Inquiries were made and a woman who lives in one of the adjoining houses stated that she had seen a man drive up to the barn and remove the goods described. She was able to give a fairly good description of the man, and Mr. Ribenack recognized him as James Creevy. Shortly before noon when walking along West Superior street with Detective Terry, Mr. Ribenack noticed the man for whom they were searching, and the officer immediately placed him under arrest and locked him up in headquarters.

Some of the second-hand dealers were summoned to police headquarters, and they are claimed to have identified Creevy as the man who sold them the goods.

A charge of grand larceny will be preferred against Creevy, and he will be arraigned in the municipal court before Judge Windom this afternoon for a preliminary hearing.

Creevy had little to say when locked up at headquarters, and did not either admit or deny his guilt.

WEST DULUTH

"From the number of men hanging about the streets you would think there were a good many in West Duluth who were unable to find employment," said a Central avenue merchant this morning. "This is not the case, however. It is true there are quite a few idle men waiting for the summer work on the docks, but this number is not so large as the appearance of our streets would indicate.

"Most of the loungers, if you notice closely, you will find the transients, commonly known as hoboes. About as many are in evidence one day as another, but a careful inspection develops the fact that the faces are new ones each day.

"Every spring Duluth, West Duluth and cities throughout the Northwest generally are thus afflicted with men of the road. Like fish, they start out and go as far as they can every spring. The fish, however, heads upstream, while the hobo goes wherever his fancy wills. East, west, north and south, all seems one to him, though I suppose they have their reasons for going where they do. I have never made a close study of this rather interesting class, however, so am not prepared to dwell upon their peculiar roving habits. Anyway, we will see more or less of them all summer now, and until late in the fall, although they are more plentiful now than they will be a little later."

Good Time for All

TO PLAY BIG DULUTHS.

West Duluth Ball Team Arranges Game For Sunday.

Two valiant but unsuccessful attempts were made by the Hibbing baseball team to defeat the local league aggregation. The range men feel that if they cannot win a victory from Duluth's first team, they will avenge themselves on one of the second best nines, and with that object in view have challenged the West Duluthians to a game at Hibbing next Sunday.

The West Duluth team is hardly in a position to accept the challenge, for arrangements for a game on the local grounds with the Big Duluth have practically been completed. The latter contest will probably be pulled off, and a date arranged with the range men later. Hibbing was twice defeated by West Duluth last year, and the locals are of the opinion that the feat can be repeated again this season, for the West Duluth aggregation is thought to be stronger now than it has been for some time past. They have suffered but one defeat this year, and that was at the hands of the fast Cloquet bunch last Sunday. This game might have been won instead of lost but for two most unfortunate errors.

The Big Duluths are looked upon as being one of the strongest, if not the strongest team in the city league, and the West Duluthians will have a good chance to show the stuff they are made of in Sunday's contest.

COMMITTEES TO MEET.

As announced last week a meeting of the executive committee, in charge of the proposed West Duluth Fourth of July celebration, together with the sub-committees, will be held in the Commercial club rooms this evening. L. S. Neuman is chairman of the executive committee.

As yet the general plan for the celebration is only vaguely outlined but from now on frequent meetings of the various committees will be held till all the plans are laid and perfected. The committee appointed to look after the getting of necessary funds have met with gratifying success, it is understood, and little trouble is anticipated in providing all the money needed to insure the success of the undertaking.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Lee Roe is quite ill at his home, 615 Fifty-sixth avenue west.

William Stoddy is in the city from Kelsey.

The stone crusher plant, which has been shut down two days for repairs, will commence work tomorrow, with seventy-five men employed.

The Twentieth Century Progress club is planning on giving a free entertainment for members and their families at the old St. James Catholic church, on Fifty-seventh avenue west, next Monday night. Now that services are being held in the new church building the old structure will be used as a hall for meetings and entertainments.

The Royal Neighbors gave a very enjoyable social dance at Schell & Wade's hall last night.

Dance by Uniform Rank, No. 1555, M. W. A., Friday, May 20, at Great Eastern hall. Tickets, 75 cents.

West Duluth merchants continue to kick vigorously because the West Duluth business streets are not sprinkled daily. Especially dusty is Central avenue, where the work of paving is not yet complete.

Mrs. E. O. Armstrong, of Scanlon, is visiting with friends in West Duluth.

H. R. Patterson has removed his household effects from 423 Fiftieth avenue to 719 North Fifty-fourth avenue west.

Thirty Samaritans from Bay View Heights will attend the council of the Alpha lodge in Duluth tonight.

Members of the A. O. U. W. lodge have postponed the raffle of the handsome lodge pillow for one week. It wil be held June 1 instead of May 25.

William Mallough is confined to his home with a bad attack of rheumatism.

M. J. Fillatrault and Messrs. McDowell and Phelps made a trout fishing trip to Rock Dam yesterday. They had fair success, and each had a string of trout to show for the day's pleasures.

Andrew Johnson, 75 years of age, died at the Red Cross hospital yesterday.

The Dozen club enjoyed a tally-ho ride to Lakeside yesterday. Luncheon was served at Lester Park in the evening.

The Young Giants baseball team was defeated yestrday afternoon at the West End grounds by the West Enders, the final score standing 11 to 6.

F. J. Peterson, formerly of West Duluth, now a resident of Portland, Ore., is in the city.

A daughter was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. George Wells, Fifty-fourth avenue west.

The Petruschke box factory has resumed operations after being shut down two days for repairs.

At the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club tomorrow evening the matter of having the club see that steps are taken to have the curfew law enforced will probably be brought up. It is claimed boys are becoming unruly at the library and on the streets evenings, when they should be at home.

FOR USING SIDEWALK

Max Blume Was Arrested For Occupying Too Much Space.

Max Blume is accused by the police of keeping a store that disgorges its contents on to the sidewalk each morning and leaves but a narrow passage for the use of the citizens.

Blume keeps a furniture store at the corner of First avenue west and First street, and he has been warned several times by the police not to use the sidewalk for a storage place. This morning an officer went into the store to repeat the warning and to advise Blume to clear away the stock kept on the street. Blume is claimed to have intimated to the officer that he was looking for a bribe in return for overlooking the shortcomings in regard to keeping the sidewalk clear, and within five minutes he found himself in police headquarters.

"I'm a taxpayer," he expostulated to the police.

"So are a number of other merchants in the city," responded Chief Troyer, "but that doesn't entitle them to use the sidewalk for a store room."

Blume will be arraigned in the municipal court this afternoon.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION

For Thirteenth District Is Held at Frazee.

Frazee, Minn., May 19.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ninth annual convention of the thirteenth district W. C. T. U. was concluded last evening by an address by the state president, Mrs. Bessie L. Scovell, of Minneapolis. The gold medal contest was very interesting. Seven young people were contestants, and Miss Pearl Bigger, of Elliot, won the coveted prize. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. D. Graham, Frazee; vice president; Mrs. S. S. Jones, Frazee; secretary, Mrs. Craigie, Detroit; treasurer, Mrs. Amanda E. Butler, Fergus Falls.

Delegates were present from Moorhead, Detroit, Wadena, Campbell, Elliot, Fergus Falls, Frazee and other points.

EXECUTOR WINS

Suit By Widow of Late Senator Stockbridge.

Lansing, Mich., May 19.—The supreme court has affirmed the decision of the Kalamazoo circuit court in construing the will of the late Senator Francis B. Stockbridge, which has been the subject of long litigation between the widow of the former senator and James L. Houghteling of Chicago, the executor.

Senator Stockbridge left a number of annuities, among which was one of $20,000 to his widow. Evidently intending that the estate should be settled in five years he expressly limited the annuities to that period.

The executor has been unable to close up the affairs of the estate, although nearly ten years have elapsed. Some of the annuities have not been paid for years.

The charges of improper conduct by the executor, made by Mrs. Stockbridge were not sustained by the court.

PORTER SOLD

"An Old Master" For Only Ten Dollars.

New York, May 19.—Thomas A. Duffy a porter in the rooms of the Knickerbocker Art galleries, who sold a young woman an old master for $10 that is worth at least $1000, wishes to trade back. So do his employers. They have advertised for the young woman to call. The painting is 200 years old.

It had been set aside unmarked and to the untrained eye it looked like a shabby affair. A week ago last Saturday a young woman drove up to the artrooms in a victoria and said she dropped in to see what she could find in the way of an old church. The salesman was out and nobody in the store except Duffy, an obliging young Irishman.

In looking about the store the young woman's eyes fell on an oil painting. "How much for that?" she asked. Duffy gave it a jab or two with his broom to get the dust off of it and said: "Ten dollars, ma'am." Within five minutes the young woman had paid $10 and hurried away.

FORTUNE IS READY

For John Corbett Who Came to Minnesota.

La Crosse, Wis., May 19.—If John Corbett, who some years ago went to Lanesboro, Minn., near here, from his home in St. James, Mich., can be found he will fall heir to a large fortune left by his elder brother, Jeremiah Corbett, who died in Michigan last week. John Corbett conducted a farm near Lanesboro until a few years ago, when he disappeared and all trace of him has been lost. It is believed that he either moved to another locality in Minnesota or went farther West.

REPUBLICANS OF ILLINOIS SHOW NO SIGNS OF AGREEING

Conference After Conference Held Without Result—A Movement to Compromise on Hamlin Fails to Meet With General Approval.

Springfield, May 19.—Delegates to the Republican state convention expected no nomination for governor today. Conferences held during the night had for their purpose a combination to nominate Hamlin. This movement is said to have had the influence of Senator Cullom back of it and to have had the moral support of Speaker Cannon. The combination contemplated the union of the Deneen-Hamlin-Sherman forces with accession from Lowden's county delegates sufficient to nominate.

The most strenuous efforts, however, apparently failed to secure enough delegates to assure the success of the plan.

As a result it was thought improbable that a shife to Hamlin would occur today.

The Yates people did nothing during the night in the way of attempting combinations. They decided merely to stand pat until the opposition exhausted its efforts at combinations.

When the convention assembled Congress man Fuller of Boone, offered a resolution providing that unless the convention made a nomination for governor at the present session, the roll call on governor be suspended and that the convention proceed to nominate the remainder of the ticket.

Yates men entered a protest and demanded the roll call.

Yates called his men about him and in the confusion shouted: "All vote 'No.'"

J. H. Burke, of Cook county, a Deneen delegate, raised a point of order that it would require a two-thirds vote to adopt the resolution.

Mr. Cannon ruled that a majority could decide the question.

"Then we demand a roll call," said Burke.

"One-fifth of the convention can demand a roll call," said Mr. Cannon.

Almost all of the Cook county delegates and a large proportion of the Yates delegates sprang to their chairs and the chair ordered the roll call. Yates passed the word to vote "No" and the resolution was lost by 301 to 1201.

Congressman Fuller in introducing his resolution to proceed with the selection of the balance of the ticket if a governor was not nominated on the first ballot, said:

"Nineteen years ago today on the 19th of May the greatest deadlock in the history of the state of Illinois was broken and John A. Logan was elected senator of the United States. Let us do as well today and act here regardless of personal preferences and end this deadlock in the interest of the Republican party of this great state of Illinois."

After the resolution had been voted down the roll call was called on the 48th ballot which resulted as follows: Yates 486, Lowden 397½, Deneen 432½, Hamlin 112, Warner 41, Sherman 2, Pierce 31.

The forty-ninth ballot resulted: Yates, 487; Lowden, 399½; Deneen, 391½; Hamlin, 111; Warner, 39; Sherman, 42; Pierce, 32.

On the fiftieth roll call the official vote stood: Yates, 486; Lowden, 389½; Deneen, 431½; Hamlin, 113; Warner, 40; Pierce, 32.

At 12:05 the convention took a recess to 3 p. m.

A merchant with a big store, a big stock of goods, clerks and equipment, who expects to do business without advertising, is like the man who pays a lot of money for fine gas fixtures but hopes to get along without having a meter put in and the gas turned on, "because of the expense." In both instances costly equipment will give poor results.

The cuticle covering the human anatomy is entirely renewed every few years—not a particle of the old skin remaining. A store undergoes this change every few weeks or months, according to the advertising enterprise of its owners. The progressive store of today is completely a new store as compared with itself a few months ago.

You know more about advertising now than you did a few years ago. If this were not true you would probably be using no more space in The Herald now than you did then.

Advertising which "sells the goods" is, ordinarily, successful advertising—but no advertising will sell the goods if it is addressed to people who are unable to buy them.

TWENTY-SECOND YEAR. LAST EDITION. FRIDAY, MAY 20, 1904. TWO CENTS.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

WILL MERRIAM ENTER THE CABINET AS THE SUCCESSOR OF SECRETARY CORTELYOU?

Rumor About Former Governor Current at Washington.

Reported That He Is Being Backed By Senator Nelson.

General Belief Was James A. Garfield Would Succeed Cortelyou.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A rumor is current here today to the effect that ex-Governor William R. Merriam, of Minnesota, late director of the census, is to be invited into the cabinet to succeed George B. Cortelyou as secretary of the department of commerce and labor. It is asserted that Senator Nelson is backing Merriam and further that there had been a tacit understanding between President Roosevelt and Senator Nelson when the bill creating the new department was pending in congress, that the new portfolio should go to Merriam. For some reason this agreement, if it ever existed, fell through and Mr. Cortelyou was selected. Now that Cortelyou is about to retire to assume the management of the Republican national campaign, the old Merriam story is revived.

Whether there is any foundation in fact for the rumor, it is impossible to learn. The general belief here has been strong, ever since it was announced that Secretary Cortelyou would retire to become national chairman, that President Roosevelt would invite James A. Garfield, of Ohio, former civil service commissioner, and more recently head of the bureau of coporations in the department of commerce, to enter the cabinet as successor of Cortelyou.

JEWS OBJECT

To Clauses In London Alien Immigration Bill.

New York, May 20.—A deputation from the Jewish board of deputies has visited the home office, says a Times dispatch from London, for the purpose of offering objection to some of the clauses of the alien immigration bill, which many Jews believe had its origin in anti-semitism.

Lord Rothschild, in introducing the deputation, made some interesting statements relative to the Jews in London. He said that although the Jewish community did not know the exact number of Jews in England, they had arrived at the conclusion that there were now 120,000, inborn and aliens, in the whole of the administrative county of London. He urged that the pending bill should be made to correspond with the law of the United States allowing those having friends in the country willing and able to care for them.

AROMA COFFEE COMPANY.

Duluth Concern Files Articles of Incorporation.

St. Paul, May 20.—Special to The Herald.)—Articles of incorporation were filed with the secretary of state for the Aroma Coffee company of Duluth, with a capital stock of $25,000. The company will blend and sell coffees, teas, spices and deal in baking powders. Henry Lyman Caldwell, Jr., L. E. Caldwell and James Reid are named as incorporators.

GIGANTIC COKE OVEN

Will Be Built at South Chicago Costing $1,000,000.

Chicago, May 20.—Ground has been broken at South Chicago for a gigantic coke oven, to cost $1,000,000. The Semet Solvay company is behind the enterprise which will be pushed to completion as rapidly as possible. Before June 1, it is promised, more than 1000 men will be employed on the work of construction.

Many experiments in coke production have been made outside the anthracite fields, but always with indifferent success as the quality of the coal was found to be faulty. It is not explained what coal wil be converted into coke in the new ovens.

FOR RUSSIAN RED CROSS.

New York, May 20.—At the dinner given by the Slavic alliance at Delmonico's last night $2500 was subscribed for the Russian Red Cross society. Of this amount $2000 was given by a man who refused to permit his name being made public.

SUB-TREASURY IN DEBT.

New York, May 20.—The sub-treasury today has a debit balance of $9,415,178 at the clearing house. Of this amount $9,000,000 represents a treasury warrant received yesterday by J. P. Morgan & Co., from the state department at Washington. Morgan & Co., are the financial agents of the Panama republic to which government has now been paid the full $10,000,000 due on account of the Panama canal.

DUNN TO SOON SPRING ANOTHER SENSATION

Unless Collins Men Quit Calling Him "Corporation Candidate."

Meanwhile Dunn Says His Campaign Is Progressing Splendidly.

St. Paul, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)— The recent statements of R. C. Dunn of Princeton, concerning Judge Collins' connection with the Great Northern railroad in 1994, have not stopped the Collins men from proclaiming Mr. Dunn as a "corporation candidate" and there are indications that Mr. Dunn will make more important disclosures before the campaign is over. The next sensation will concern Judge Collins' attitude when he was offered the appointment of United States senator by John Lind to succeed Cushman K. Davis. The Dunn men say that if Judge Collins' intentions were carried out at that time, the affair would have "disrupted the Republican party."

The Dunn men say there is no necessity for making these disclosures now, because everything is going on finely for the Princeton candidate since the report of the public examiner.

"I only wish the public examiner would make his reports periodical," said Mr. Dunn the other day. "Then there would not be a semblance of a chance for my opponent to win. I wouldn't want the next report to be made for a few weeks, however, for I have not got through receiving the benefits of the first one."

That political opponents can secure comfort from the same facts and conditions is evident from the talk of the Dunn and Collins men on the recent tilt between the two candidates. Each candidate claims that the affair terminated in his favor. Said a Collins man yesterday:

"I think that Dunn has got his foot in it now, and I don't believe that he will ever get it out. If anyone was disposed to doubt that Mr. Dunn is Jim Hill's candidate, he certainly has changed his mind after Mr. Dunn's own statement that Mr. Hill wanted him to have the figures on the contributions to Judge Collins in 1894 because it would help 'Bob.'"

The Collins supporters are waging their campaign along this line, and it is a safe guess that before very long Mr. Dunn will become provoked and make other sensational statements.

Frank Eddy, of Glenwood, who is coming into the limelight owing to the activity of the Lowry interests had a side-breaking laugh the other day over R. C. Dunn's story that when he met James J. Hill and Louis W. Hill in front of the Dispatch building and J. J. Hill told Dunn about Judge Collins' contributions, the president of the Great Northern railroad did not know Mr. Dunn and had to be introduced to him by Louis W. Hill.

"That is enough to make a horse laugh," said Mr. Eddy. "To think that President Hill of the Great Northern did not know R. C. Dunn. Dunn is certainly a master at telling stories; he ought to be a dramatic reader or an actor."

* * *

Interest is revived in the congressional race in Hennepin county by the definite announcement of Loren Fletcher's candidacy for the Republican nomination. Simultaneous with Mr. Fletcher's entry into the race, comes the report that Frank Nye will reconsider his statement of a few weeks ago refusing to become a candidate and that the contest for the nomination will be between Nye and Fletcher.

"I have decided that I will be a candidate again this fall and I hope to be nominated for and and elected to that office," says Mr. Fletcher. "No one can expect me to be satisfied with the result of the election two years ago. I am not willing to retire under such conditions and will not until I have a fair hearing at the polls next November. This is a Republican district and it was through no fault of my own that I was not elected. Conditions occurred at that time that never occurred before and are not likely to occur again. I am a Republican and I believe in supporting the nominees of the party when fairly put in nomination by a majority fairly expresesd at the primaries."

* * *

Col. A. B. Allen, of Morton, editor of the Morton Enterprise, and a strong supporter of R. C. Dunn, is in St. Paul. Although Col. Allen lives in the Seventh congresional district, he does not take Frank Eddy's candidacy seriously and he believes that Dunn will get a majority of the delegates of the district.

* * *

Former Representative John O'Neill, of Park Rapids, who has been in St. Paul several days, says that Dunn will get most of the counties in the Sixth congressional district. Hubbard county, he says, will be for Dunn, the Princeton candidate will carry Crow Wing and Morrison without fail, and the Dunn men are gaining ground in Cass. Mr. O'Neill says that John King, of Walker, is out for the Republican nomination for railroad and warehouse commissioner and that Representative Hinds will have no opposition for renomination.

The Democratic city and county committee of St. Paul and Ramsey county has issued a call for the county convention at Duluth June 22. F. A. Pike has been elected chairman of the executive committee. The few Hearst men in St. Paul are doing scarcely anything, and the prospects are that the Ramsey county delegates will support Parker or whatever candidate the conservative element in the party favors.

Senator E. B. Hawkins, of Hibbing, who is at the Ryan hotel, says the talk of him for governor is "taffy."

"In the first place I am not eligible," said Senator Hawkins. "Then I have no ambition in that direction. It is just a little newspaper talk among the boys in Hibbing."

"It seems to be the general impression that R. C. Dunn will carry St. Louis county and the Eighth congressional district. I don't believe that the Collins men will make any serious attempt to get St. Louis county.

"Everything is rather quiet on the range. This is because of the vessel trouble, and then there, perhaps, is not as much ore to move as last year. I don't look for much trouble in moving the ore."

A BRITISH SORTIE ON THIBETANS

London, May 20.—A British force made a sortie this morning in order to clear a house 600 yards from the compound, which the Thibetans had occupied with sixty men, says a dispatch from the Times correspondent at Gyang-Tse, Thibet.

Everything was carried out successfully just before dawn. The British casualties were insignificant. The enemy resisted a quarter of an hour, and it was necessary to blow in the main doors. The guns from Jong joined in, but made poor practice in the darkness. The situation remains the same. The flight of the Chinese, said to have been representing Gen. Ma, was, apparently, followed by greater activity in placing the Chinese quarter of Gyang-Tse in a state of defense. This quarter is in front of Jong, directly facing the British camp, and the intrusion of the Thibetans is of considerable importance as corroborating the entire rejection of their old subservience and unwillingness to allow the middle kingdom to exert an influence in public affairs or maintain the social supremacy which hitherto has been as unquestioned as that of the British in India.

GEMS WERE STOLEN FROM COFFIN

Albany, N. Y., May 20.—A large quantity of jewelry, undoubtedly that taken from the coffin of "Lady Mary" Livingston, in the recent mysterious raid upon the Livingston family tomb, on the Livingston estate, below Hudson, and valued at thousands of dollars, has been found by the police in a raid upon a "growler gang" in a low resort on South Lansing street.

Thomas King and others arrested, classed by the police as "hoboes," who refuse to give any place of residence, had the jewelry upon their persons and concealed about the house. Some of the jewelry is modern, but most of it is very old and marked with the Livingston and De Peyster monogram and with the names of women of the Livingston family.

The Livingston vault was entered one night several weeks ago and the coffin of "Lady Mary" Livingston was broken open. The theory was advanced at the time that the deed was done for the purpose of securing valuable jewels said to have been buried with the body.

FARMER HOLDS UP LOGGING TRAIN

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 20.—Angry over a right of way, John Brown is holding up a Pere Marquette logging train on the Mahin branch, near Kalkaska, says a special to the Evening Press. Brown built a fence around eleven loaded cars to assert his rights to the property. An engine smashed through his fence, but was prevented from getting out by large trees, which Brown had felled across the track immediately after the engine ran in. When the train crew started to remove the obstruction Brown prevented them with a loaded rifle and still maintains a blockade. A special train has gone from Traverse City bearing officials and detectives, who will attempt to straighten out the tangle.

ILLINOIS CONVENTION ADJOURNS TO MAY 31

Repeated Conferences Fail to Bring About an Agreement.

Springfield, Ill., May 20.—A conference between Frank O. Lowden and Charles S. Deneen, following a previous conference by each with Governor Yates, brought fresh disappointment today for the delegates to the Republican state convention. The rival candidates reached no conclusion as to a plan by which the convention deadlock could be broken. A report circulated that Lowden would withdraw was generally discredited. The delegates faced a prospect that balloting would continue all day and that the convention would then take a recess.

The convention was called to order by Chairman Cannon. The fifty-ninth ballot was immediately proceed with, and resulted as follows: Yates, 483; Lowden, 393½; Deneen, 385½; Hamlin, 113; Warner, 53; Sherman, 46; Pierce, 29.

At 10:37 Senator Gardner moved a recess to May 31. A roll call was orderd.

As the roll progressed it became evident that the negative votes on the question of adjournment had not come from the delegates, who, with few exceptions, eagerly grasped the opportunity to get home. The vote stood: Yeas, 1414; nays, 88. The convention, at 10:50, broke up and the delegates rushed from the hall, cheering, the band, which began to play "Home, Sweet Home."

The recess to May 31 was taken by unanimous agreement among the candidates for governor. A meeting at which all were present was held in the adjutant general's office during the fifty-eighth ballot and the agreement was reached with practically no discussion.

WOMEN'S CLUBS REBEL AT THE IDEA OF NON-SECRET BALLOT

Proposition For an Oral Ballot Was Voted Down and an Amendment Providing For Ballot Boxes Was Adopted Unanimously.

St. Louis, May 20.—The seventh biennial of the general Federation of Women's Clubs reconvened today in the main hall of the Odeon.

The first order of business was the consideration of the report of the committee on nominations and elections, submitted by Mrs. Conde Hamlin, chairman. Owing to the hearing on the election of president that the adoption of changes in the rules would entail, the majority of the delegates were early on hand, and the electioneering, that was temporarily interrupted yesterday, was resumed with vigor.

Those interested in the candidacies of several of the women whose names were mentioned prominently in connection with the presidency made claims of pledges, but refused to make known the strength of their respective candidates, for political reasons.

A substitute for the recommendation of the committee on methods and providing that the ballot boxes be used, instead of sending individual ballots to the platform to be counted by the tellers there, caused a storm of objection.

The substitute provided for an oral vote by states, the ballot of each delegation being announced from the floor by the state federation presidents.

Mrs. Williams, of Minnesota, declared that the oral method of voting destroys the secrecy of ballot. The substitute for the amendment was defeated and the amendment providing for the use of the ballot boxes was unanimously carried. The business session of the general federation adjourned without taking definite action on the point whether the new method should be used or not at the election of general officers of the federation next Wednesday.

HARRIMAN SUIT AGAINST THE SECURITIES COMPANY BEGINS

Newark, N. J., May 20.—The case of E. H. Harriman and Winslow S. Pierce against the Northern Securities company and that of the Northern Pacific railway, being a petition for an injunction to prevent the carrying out of the plan for the distribution of railroad stocks held by the Securities company, was called before United States Judge Bradford today. This suit is similar to one heretofore dismissed by the United States circuit justices at St. Paul, the Northern Pacific, however, being made a co-defendant in the present action. Neither Mr. Harriman nor President Hill, of the Northern Securities company, was present when the case was called. Attorney Thatcher was present, representing the Oregon Short line bondholders, to protest against the suit on the ground that the trustees of that line, who had been named in the petition, had no right to interferecourt said he would be heard later. with the plan for distribution of Northern Securities assets, the bondholders insisting that the plan proposed was perfectly just and equitable.

Much time was occupied at the opening in the exchange of legal papers among counsel. Argument was about to begin when Attorney Thatcher petitioned the court to be prepared. He said he did not want to ask to intervene at this time of the proceedings or to be placed on record as one of the litigants. His client, he said, simply wanted the court to hear his views.

Mr. Lindabury held that the request should not be granted unless the petitioner was willing to go on records.

Judge Bradford said that while the action might be a little irregular still he would grant the request his object being solely to get at all the facts in the case.

Mr. Thatcher said it would take about 40 minutes to present his views and the

MINERS ISSUE A STATEMENT ON THE COLORADO SITUATION

Denver, May 20.—A statement has been issued by the executive board of the Western Federation of Miners relative to their views of the strike situation in Colorado and the imprisonment in a military bull pen of Charles H. Moyer, president of the federation. The issues involved will be presented to the convention of the federation to be held in Denver next week. In connection with its reference to "the infamy and barbarism of military rule in Colorado," the statement says:

For sixty days the president of our organization has languished in the confines of a bull pen, held under the plea of "military necessity." When did did "military necessity" become a part of the law or constitution of the state, enabling a corrupt executive to deprive a man of his constitutional liberty?

The statement goes on to say that the governor has but sixteen soldiers on duty in San Miguel county, yet continues the reign of martial law. The statements says:

If the life of Charles H. Moyer shall be sacrificed to appease the wrath of corporate hate, then there will be forced upon the peaceful, law abiding and liberty lovinng membership of our organization, the ancient words in the old Mosaic law: "An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth" and here in the Rocky mountains may be reared a monument commemorating thereon when despotism met its downfall and manhood its regeneration.

BROKER CONCLUDES TO KEEP LOTS

New York, May 20.—Through a misunderstanding on the real estate exchange, J. C. Davies, a broker dealing in suburban lots, has made a small fortune. He bought at auction for $815 a block of miscellaneous securities worth more than $18,000.

Some time after the auction had been closed it was learned that a representative of the owner who was to have been present to support the market and keep the stocks from being sacrificed, had misunderstood the matter and was absent. Davies offered to cancel his purchase if it could be shown that the securities belonged to a person who would be seriously hurt financially. This brought to light the fact that the sale was for the estate of Theodore Havemeyer and the dealer in suburban lots took up his bargains.

JAPANESE TROOPS FORCED TO RETREAT TO FENG WANG CHENG BY RUSSIAN ARMY

Twenty Thousand Japs Came Unexpectedly on 32,000 Russians.

Not Desiring to Fight, They Retreated Gracefully and Rapidly.

Considerable Loss of Life By Cossack Attacks on Jap Flanks.

Newchwang, May 20.—The reports of the Japanese retreat to Feng Wang Cheng are officially confirmed.

The Japanese, numbering 20,000 men, came upon 32,000 Russians in a strong position on Monday, sixty miles west of Feng Wang Cheng. It being unwise to risk a battle, the Japanese retreated in good order and with great rapidity.

An unofficial Russian authority says a pitched battle was not fought, but rumor says there was considerable loss of life on both sides during the clashes, with the Cossacks harrassing the flanks of the Japanese. This division, presumably was executing a reconissance. The pursuit was checked when the main body of the Japanese was rejoined.

This news, aparently, accounts for the withdrawal to an unknown desination of warships and troops from Tower hill, ten miles north of Kai Chou, Liao Tung peninsula and of renewed defensive activity at Newchwang. No news has been received here from Port Arthur.

St. Petersburg, May 20.—An official report has been received to the effect that Gen. Rennekampf's Cossacks fell on the Japanese column advancing on Feng Wang Cheng on Wednesday and that the Japanese were compelled to retreat for a distance of twelve miles.

The Russians have evacuated Kai Hing or (Kai Chou, about thirty-five miles south of Newchwang) without a fight.

Tien Tsin, Thursday, May 19.—It is announced from authentic Russian sources that the Japanese army from the Yalu today sustained a severe defeat and was driven back to Feng Wang Cheng.

Newchwang, May 20.—It is reported from a reliable source that the Japanese army from the Yalu river has received a heavy blow and been driven back to Feng Wang Cheng.

Che Foo, May 20.—Heavy firing was heard in the direction of Port Arthur early this morning. Chinese arriving from Dalny say that the Russians regained control of the railway, but lost it again. Port Arthur is well provisioned and prices are only slightly above normal.

RUSSIANS JUBILANT

Over Their Victory Near Feng Wang Cheng.

Newchwang, Thursday, May 19.—The Russians are jubilant over their reported victory, near Feng Wang Cheng, and consider that it being Emperor Nicholas' birthday the victory is "good medicine" for the Japanese.

The latest authentic reports show that there are two divisions of the Yalu army. One is moving on Hai Cheng, and the other was going towards Liao Yang. It is believed the Russians concentrated their forces and struck the enemy south of Liao Yang, driving the Japanese back. The reports say that the Japanese loss was heavy.

It is understood that the siege guns removed from the Newchwang fortifications and taken to the Hai Cheng fortifications were mounted there today. A field battery was also placed in position.

The Russians claim that they will place 3000 men in Newchwang in a few days, but this is believed to be an exaggeration. The Japanese control the railroad south of Wa Fang Tien, and the Russian force between there and Newchwang is small, consisting of a few scouts. Almost all the railroad wires are down, but the Russian military telegraph line between Newchwang and Port Arthur is working and the Japanese are tapping it.

The emperor's birthday was elaborately celebrated here.

JAPANESE DISASTERS

Restore Spirit of Russians to Great Extent.

St. Petersburg, May 20.—With greater calm than has been felt since the beginning of the war, Russia today faces the situation in the far East. The disasters sustained by the Japanese fleet have strengthened the national spirit, and the officials carefully point out that they restore in a measure the prestige lost by the past untarnished successes of the enemy. Should the persistent reports of the Japanese army having been driven back to Feng Wang Cheng prove true, then the authorities and people will feel that Russian progress has been vindicated and that the two belligerents can recommence the war on a more even footing.

The first effect of the Russian successes will, it is believed, be apparent in the behavior of the Chinese, whose attitude has been decidedly hostile to the Russians, and to bring their change about it is expected that the Russian agents in China will follow the Japanese plan of fully informing the Celestials of the losses inflicted on the enemy. Although in St. Petersburg there is individual enthusiasm over the Japanese disasters near Port Arthur, there will be no collective demonstration. The wholesale rejoicing will come with the announcement of an achievement of a more thrilling character, which will appeal to the volatile side of the Russian people.

Everywhere today one hears praise of the Russian torpedo boats in stealing out in the darkness, perhaps through a line of small boats of the enemy, to plant mines where the heavier of the enemy's ships had cruised a few hours before. But, after all, it is pointed out, there remained a big element of chance as to whether the enemy would return. The authorities had almost come to the conclusion that the catastrophe which they had prepared would not come because of the cleverness of Vice Admiral Togo in keeping away from the dangerous waters, as if aware of the Russian operations.

The tone of the comments of the newspapers this morning is sober, while at the same time recognizing the importance of the Russian success, and is well expressed by the Russ, which says:

"Japan's losses jeopardize her mastery of the sea. It is a streak of bad luck, like ours. The forces are now about equal, without the Baltic squadron. It is not for us to rejoice, but it was not worth while to bring the Kasuga from Genoa to sink the Yoshino."

The Bourse Gazette remarks:

"The news of the enemy's losses will cheer Russia and make amends for the treacherous Japanese attack at the outbreak of the war. It is now the enemy's misfortune to experience the deadly effect of submarine mines, which have done us so much damage. Great is Russia's god. The war has entered on a new phase, hastening the Russian victory."

The Listok observes:

"There is no intention to celebrate the Japanese losses by a torchlight procession. It is not our custom to make a national rejoicing over an enemy's misfortune. None the less it is impossible to conceal the fact that the nation is greatly impressed by the catastrophe to the Japanese fleet, which goes to show more how accidents may upset the best laid plans."

The Gazette makes the most caustic comment of any of the Russian papers. It says:

"It is just retribution for the treacherous attack on Port Arthur without declaring war, and the dastardly onslaught on the Varlag and Koretz. The mines laid by our brave sailors have done their work, and all reproach for the Petropavlovsk disaster is wiped out."

AN UNFORTUNATE DAY

For Japanese Navy, Cables Vice Admiral Togo.

Tokio, May 20.—Vice Admiral Togo's full report is as follows: "It is regretable to have to report a third misfortune. At 5 o'clock Sunday morning I received a wireless message from Rear Admiral Dewa, saying that on that day, at 5 in the morning, while returning from the work of blocking Port Arthur, he encountered a dense fog, north of the Shan Tung promontory. The Kasugo collided with the port stern of the Yoshino, which was sunk. Boats from the Kasugo saved ninety of her crew. The dense fog still continues.

"This has been a most unfortunate day for our navy. Whilst he fleet was watching the enemy, off Port Arthur, the Hatsuse struck one of the enemy's mines and her rudder was damaged. She sent a message for a ship to tow her, which was being sent, when another message brought the lamentable report that the Hatssue had struck another mine and immediately began to sink. The Hatsuse was then eight knots off Liao Te Shan promontary. No enemy was in sight. It must have been a mine or a submarine boat. Three hundred of the officers and crew were saved. The Hatssue sank in thirty minutes. While sinking sixteen of the enemy's torpedo craft appeared and were driven off.

"Our fleet report is somewhat vague, owing to the fact that some of the messages were received by wireless telegraphy."

MANY OFFICERS LOST

In Sinking of Cruiser Yoshino and Battleship Hatsuse.

Tokio, May 20.—The loss of life incurred by the sinking of the cruiser Yoshino, included Captain Sayeki, Commander Hirowateri, three first lieutenants, five second lieutenants, five midshipmen, paymaster, surgeon, three engineers' cadets and eight boatswains mates. Of the crew the number of those lost is unknown.

Those who went down with the battleship Hatsuse when she foundered were Commander Teukamoto, Commander Visccunt Nire, Commander Arimori, five second lieutenants, five sub-engineers, two surgeons, six midshipmen, four cadet engineers and ten non-commissioned officers. It is not known yet in this case how many of the men perished. The Hatsuse was surely sunk by coming in contact with a submerged mine, and not by the attack of a submarine boat.

The report that the battleship Shikishima was damaged and the battleship Fuji sunk is denied here.

NORTHERN LEAGUE OPENS ITS SEASON

White Sox Lose to Fargo In a Brilliant Contest.

Superior Defeats Grand Forks and Winnipeg Wallops Crookston.

Grand Forks	1	0	1	.000
Crookston	1	0	1	.000

The Northern league season opened yesterday most auspiciously. The weather man treated all of the cities in the way they deserved, and bright, warm spring weather was reported. Half holidays were celebrated and record-breaking crowds attended the three opening games.

The attendance figures would do credit to the major leagues. In Fargo 1800 people turned out to see Werden's bunch wallop the White Sox. Up in Grand Forks 2000 fans were disappointed to see Cameron's colts walk away with the scalp of the home team, while 4300 Canucks danced a war dance over the grave of the Crookston nine. Nearly 10,000 people in all paid their money to see Northern league games yesterday, and the managers should certainly have no kick coming.

All of the games were close, well-played contests, and promise well for the quality of ball that is to be put up in the league this season.

WHITE SOX TRIMMED.

Shaw Goes Up In the Air In One Inning.

Fargo, N. D., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—After making a short speech extolling the great national game, Mayor Wall of this city threw the first ball over the plate and the Northern league season was onened, as far as Fargo was concerned.

The Duluth and Fargo nines paraded the streets previous to the game, with two brass bands heading the procession. The weather was ideal and the crowd was an enthusiastic one. Business was practically suspended for the afternoon and Fargo turned out to see the great national game. A cheering crowd of 1800 fans awaited the players when they arrived at the grounds and the two nines were greeted with an ovation. The band discoursed popular music, the Fargo bunch walloped the White Sox, the crowd ate peanuts and drank pop, and pence reigned. Everything passed off like a charm, and Fargo was the happiest town on the map last night.

The game itself was a brilliant contest. Foulkes and Shaw were the opposing twirlers, and the Fargo boy had the better of the argument, although with the exception of the sixth inning Shaw was invincible.

SUPERIOR VICTORIOUS.

Wins Ten Inning Game From Grand Forks.

Grand Forks, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The league season opened here yesterday with Superior and Grand Forks as the opposing teams. Grand Forks lost after a fast game. It took ten innings to decide which team was the better. The weather was all that the fans could wish for, and the attendance was the largest in the history of baseball in this city.

Carriveau was on the slab for the Tigers and Kilroy did the twirling for Superior. Anderson was the first man up to bat for the visitors. A slow ball to the pitcher and then to first base told his tale. Keas did not do so well, and struck three times at the Dakota atmosphere. O'Dea got to the first corner on an error by Brown, and Cameron did the same thing as Anderson. The Tigers had a shorter tale to tell, three up and three out. The ball touched the ground once. Score 0 to 0.

In the second inning Chandler was issued a pass, and Symons made good on a fielder's choice, O'Dea going out to second. Egan was unable to find Carriveau, and Rogers was thrown out on first. Kilroy issued Dunn a pass, and Cole sacrificed. Hanrahan gave O'Dea a pop up, and Brown drew a pass. Cheek sent a nice one to the man in the right field but he was unable to hold it, and Dunn scored. Carriveau was thrown out on first. Score end of second inning: Grand Forks, 1; Superior, 0.

The third inning was a heart-breaker for the fans. Anderson drew a pass, and Keas took the first hit of the game. O'Dea went on an error by Dunn, and Anderson scored. Cameron took a hit and scored Keas. Chandler drew a pass and Symons cleared the bases with a two-bagger. Egan found another two-bagger, scoring Symons. Rogers and Kilroy failed to reach first. Four hits and six scores made the fans draw a long breath, and the Tigers staggered. Still there was hope O'Brien was called to the slab. Three visitors up and three out.

The Tigers closed the fourth inning by taking two scores after two men were out. Brown got a three-bagger, Cheek and O'Brien found a single. Score end of fourth inning 6 to 4 in favor of the visitors.

In the fifth inning Rogers took a hit for the visitors and Sharne did likewise for the Tigers but neither side scored.

In the sixth inning three men faced O'Brien. The Tigers led off with a hit by Hanrahan, and Brown sacrificed. Cheek and O'Brien each took a hit, bringing in Hanrahan. Sharne ended the inning by giving Cameron an easy one. End of sixth, Grand Forks, 4; Superior, 6.

On the visitors' side of the seventh inning there was nothing doing but the Tigers encouraged by the plucky efforts of O'Brien to save the game, played hard. Martin was safe on an error by Keas. Dunn failed to see first. Cole sent another to Keas and it went through him. O'Brien scored on the error. Hannrahan was thrown out on first. Brown took another hit and scored Cole, but was thrown out on second.

Three men faced O'Brien again in the eighth. O'Brien's single, and Sharne's two-bagger together with Nagel's hit told the story of a run for the Tigers. Score at end of the eighth, 7 to 6.

The ninth was interesting. Keas was issued a pass. O'Dea sacrificed. Cameron took a hit and Hannrahan fumbled the ball letting in Keas. Chandler and Symons each flew out to Hannrahan, retiring the side with one score. The Tigers had a chance to win in the last half. Dunn led off with a hit. Cole and Sharne sacrificed. Brown sent a fly to the left fielder retiring the side without a score.

The tenth inning was on and O'Brien handed the game to the visitors after putting up a desperate fight to tear victory from what seemed sure defeat. The bags were full and O'Brien gave O'Dea his base, forcing Egan in. The Tigers failed to score and the game was lost.

The score—

	R	H	E
Grand Forks	0 1 0 2 0 1 2 1 0 0—7	13	3
Superior	0 0 6 0 0 0 0 0 1 1—8	7	2

Batteries: Superior—Kilroy and Rogers. Grand Forks—Carriveau, O'Brien and Cheek.

Summary: Bases on ball—Off Carriveau, 3; off O'Brien, 3; off Kilroy, 3. Three-base hit—Brown. Two-base hit—Scharnweber, Symons and Egan.

CHAMPIONS WIN.

Crookston Loses to Winnipeg But Not Disgracefully.

Winnipeg, Man., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The league season opened here yesterday with Crookston opposing last year's champions. A program of speeches had been arranged for the opening, but the crowd of 4300 fans called for the teams to play ball, and the speeches were cut out.

The game was ragged at the beginning, but after the fifth inning both teams took a brace and played fast ball. The visitors outbatted the home team, but errors at inopportune moments allowed the Champions to pull out a victory. Bemis and Martin were the opposing pitchers. Neither was hit hard, but they were both subject to skyward flights.

Coppers Wipe Earth With Morning Newspaper Ball Players.

Sporting Editor Conceals the Affair—May Try It Again.

A motley collection of alleged baseball players drawn from the ranks of a certain newspaper that is published in Duluth each morning, had the temerity to challenge the Coppers' Baseball team to a game yesterday afternoon at the ball park, and got shown up in proper order.

The Coppers simply wiped the ground with the audacious amateurs and so decisive and overwhelming was the defeat that the newspapermen chloroformed the sporting editor when he was about to write an account of the disaster, in order that their humiliation might not be brought before the public.

About 3:30 o'clock the "baseball club that made Duluth famous" stepped on to the diamond at athletic park, and like lambs led to the slaughter the newspaper men followed. Too late they realized the results of their audacious challenge, and when Officer Steele swung his arm and shot something that looked like a miniature thunderbolt across the plate, the pen-wielders saw that they were up against the real thing.

At this juncture one of their men refused to offer himself as a martyr to the cause and Secretary Lahti of the department had to fill the vacancy. "Si" Bennett also had to be drafted, but in spite of these additions to the team the Coppers left them at the post.

They managed to worry through two innings before the policemen discovered what easy marks they really were, and then the slaughter commenced. A weak and futile attempt was made to keep tracks of the runs, but it failed utterly. The most conservative estimates, however, place the final score at 17 to 6 in favor of the coppers, although some of the supporters of the policemen claim that between twenty and twenty-five of their men crossed the plate. The coppers were willing to concede the point, however, and the result of the game will be recorded in the annals of history as 17 to 6.

This was accomplished without the aid of the new uniforms, which have not yet arrived. Had the uniforms been here the game might have been turned into a cricket match, and a couple of centuries run up.

The coppers have challenged the newspaper men again and are willing to put six of the latter out in each inning, instead of three.

The winners lined-up as follows: Catcher, Twohy; pitcher, Steele; first base, Ed Schulte; second base, Blackwood, short stop, Bailey; third base, Kennell; right field, Frank Schulte; center field, Anton Schulte; left field, P. McDonald.

At the earnest solicitation of the friends and relatives of the members of the other team, their names are withheld from publication.

The score by innings was as follows:

Duluth's "finest" ...1 0 4 2 2 1 1 2 4—17
The Motley Throng..1 0 0 0 2 2 1 0 0— 6

Batteries—Steele and Twohy; Wilson and Armstrong. Umpire—There wasn't any. Time of game—About three hours. Attendance. 13.

DIED ON SHIPBOARD.

Bride Arrives In New York a Widow.

New York, May 20.—On the passenger list of the North German Lloyd steamship Wilhelm der Grosse were the names of "Herr and Frau Harrison." The man was a good-looking Briton of middle age and the woman, who is now his widow, is not more than 25 years old and is handsome and well educated.

The tragedy of his death caused her to reveal his right name, which, she says, is Patrick Burns. She says that he is a well known London architect.

Sunday evening, while Mr. Burns was descending the main companion way, he fell the length of a flight of stairs. Two hours later he died in the arms of his wife.

They were married in London on May 1. They went to the continent, and at Bremen boarded the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, intending to come here, proceeding later to San Francisco and to China, and finally to return to England, making a honeymoon tour of the world.

VOTE WILL BE CLOSE

Among Cumberland Presbyterians on Plan of Church Union.

Sentiment of Delegates Seems to Be Evenly Divided.

Dalas, Texas, May 20.—When the general assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian church assembled at 9 o'clock this morning there was a noticeable increase in the number of delegates present over yesterday's attendance. Judge W. E. Settle, of the Kentucky court of appeals, who was yesterday elected moderator, was in the chair. After the usual devotional exercises it was announced that the regular order of business would give way to the reports of the committee on fraternity and union. This report, which was read and generally discussed, occupied the entire morning session.

The report of the educational society emphasized the necessity for an increase in the number of probationers for the ministry. For the past two years the diminution has been more than forty per cent of the average of the ten years preceding 1900. The demand for college bred men is rapidly increasing, and the colleges are not keeping pace with the demand, because there are not enough probationers listed by the presbyteries. Nothing is being done for the colored Cumberland Presbyterians except to give to their schools the interest on a sum of $1800. The assembly is urged to seriously consider the situation and devise means for helping them. The board received during the year $11,204 and disbursed $11,338, the balance on hand being $1861. The permanent investment fund amounts to $8570.

The board of ministerial relief reported a substantial increase of receipts during 1903, the increase, mainly from legacies being nearly $6000. The total receipts were $14,514, and the expenditures $9142. The endowment fund is now $29,673, exclusive of the Thornton home, valued at $10,000.

The report of the board of Sunday school and young people's work showed that it had received $3575 and had on hand Jan. 1 a balance of $2445.

The Endeavor societies raised $2069, and the Junior Endeavor society $1179. The plans of the board look to the development of Christian Endeavor societies and other organizations for young people.

The report of the general assembly trustees showed that they had received from various sources $1066, making a total of $3951, which had been invested. The total amount of invested funds is $13,852.

The educational commission reports that in addition to the $750,000 for the endowment and equipment of the James Millikin university, $35,000 have been added to the endowment of Cumberland university, $40,000 to that of Waynesburg college, $5000 to Auburn seminary. About nine-tenths of the $1,000,000 endowment has been already secured, and the commission recommend that more than that amount be raised before the centennial anniversary of the church in 1910.

The permanent committee on temperance reported that owing to lack of funds it had been unable to provide any special literature on the subject.

The evangelistic committee submitted recommendations for systematic evangelistic work in the synods and presbyteries.

The committee on fraternity and union reported what had been done to bring about "the closer co-operation and organic union of all Presbyterian churches in the United States." And submitted the text of the joint report on union, which they recommended be adopted and its provisions carried out.

The board of publication reported a substantial growth in every department of the business. The assets Jan. 1, 1904, $266,776 and the liabilities $51,147.

The report of the board of missions stated that there was much encouragement in the financial statement; there having been an increase in number of congregations contributing, and the offerings for home missions exceeding those of 1902 by $253, and $2505 for foreign missions. The total receipts were $54,337, of which $13,810 were for foreign missions, $20,523 for home missions, and $5264 for church erection. The liabilities are $42,964, with resources of $35,789. A number of inviting fields have been opened, especially in the south and southwest, but by reason of the lack of funds the board has not been able to enter them. Five new stations have come under their care. In the foreign field, fourteen missionaries are at work in Japan, six in China and five in Mexico.

The report of the Western section of the Presbyterian alliance set forth that special attention has been given to the spiritual welfare of American and European residents in foreign seaports and to the use of the Bible in the public schools of the United States.

A canvass of delegates by the Associated Press representative today discloses a sentiment about evenly divided on the question of church union. There are several prominent and pronounced opponents to the plan of union, while the committee report has many staunch supporters. It will be almost impossible to forecast which side is in a majority until the final vote is taken.

LEADS THE LIST

Of Nations as an Exporter of Domestic Products.

Contest For Supremacy Between Britain and United States.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, May 20.—(Special to The Herald)—It is quite apparent that the United States is to lead the list of nations as an exporter of domestic products in the fiscal year which ends with the coming month. The contest for supremacy as an exporter of domestic products has been for several years between the United Kingdom and the United States. Until a comparatively recent date the United Kingdom stood at the head of the list. During the past few years, however, the United States has on several occasions exceeded slightly the figures of the United Kingdom, and the latest statements of exports make it evident that in the fiscal year 1904 the United States will be considerably in the lead. The figuress of domestic exports of the United Kingdom for the nine months ending with March, 1904, were $1,073,538,366, and of the United States, $1,149,339,670, the total domestic exportation of the United States for the nine months in question being thus $76,000,000 in excess of that of the United Kingdom.

These figures, it will be observed, end with March. For the month of April the figures of the United States, as announced by the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, are $107,602,056 of domestic exports in April, 1903. While the figures of the United Kingdom have not yet been received, it is apparent that no sufficient change could possibly occur in the two months to reduce the certainty that the total exportation of domestic products from the United States in the fiscal year ending June 30 next will exceed that of the United Kingdom or any other country.

A further study of the exports of the United States compared with those of other principal countries shows that not only is the United States the largest exporter of domestic products, but that its exports have grown with greater rapidity than those of any other country. The Department of Commerce and Labor through its Bureau of Statistics, publishes a table showing the total domestic exports of the leading nations in the years ending December 31 from 1890 to 1903, and a study of this table shows the relative growth of those countries in their exportation of domestic merchandise.

This table shows that the domestic exports of the United States grew from $854,000,000 in 1893 to $1,457,000,000 in 1903, an increase of $603,000,000, or 70 per cent; those of the United Kingdom, from $1,063,000,000 in 1893 to $1,415,000,000 in 1903, an increase of $353,000,000, or 33 per cent; those of Germany, from $785,000,000 in 1893 to $1,185,000,000 in 1903, an increase of $450,000,000, or 60 per cent; and those of France, from $624,000,000 in 1893 to $804,000,000 in 1903, an increase of $180,000,000, or but 30 per cent. Austria-Hungary showed a growth in domestic exports of from $327,000,000 in 1893 to $428,000,000 in 1903; British India, from $310,000,000 in 1893 to $408,000,000 in 1903, and Russia, from $378,000,000 in 1891 to $352,000,000 in 1901. Argentina and Japan show respectively a large percentage of increase in their domestic exports; those of Argentina from $90,000,000 in 1893 to $213,000,000 in 1903, which is by far her largest figures of exports, and those of Japan from $56,000,000 in 1893 to $142,000,000 in 1903.

In the matter of excess of exports over imports the United States stands in marked contrast with the other countries of the world. Her excess of exports over imports in 1903 was $462,000,000, the next largest excess of exports being British India, $152,000,000; Argentina, $87,000,000, Russia, $87,000,000; Austria Hungary, $48,000,000; Chile, $19,000,000; Australia, $15,000,000; Mexico, $31,000,000, and Egypt, $11,000,000. In excess of imports over exports the United Kingdom is, of course, by far the most marked example, the excess of imports over exports being $1,226,000,000, against an excess of exports of $462,000,000 for the United States. Germany shows an excess of imports over exports amounting to $238,000,000; Netherlands, $134,000,000; Belgium, $90,000,000; France, $82,000,000; China, $72,000,000; Denmark, $68,000,000, and Switzerland, $59,000,000.

The table which follows shows the domestic exports of certain principal countries of the world in the years 1902 and 1903 compared with 1892 and 1893:

SWALLOWED THE DIAMOND

Prisoner's Ruse to Destroy the Evidence of Theft.

Miles City, Mont., May 20.—A man supposed to be one of Billings' $8000 diamond robbers was arrested here Wednesday night in the Montana saloon. He appeared in the resort Wednesday morning and wanted to sell a big stone valued at about $150 for $40. W. K. Boucher, the night bartender, scented something wrong, and to hold the man for a time told him he wanted to buy some smaller stones.

The fellow said he had smaller ones and promised to come around in the evening when Boucher went on the shift again and show them. Boucher notified Chief of Police Hawkins, and when the man came around in the evening the local police massed outside the screen while the diamond man was in the bar room. The officers made a rush and captured him, but before they could pinion his hand he swallowed the stone. He was taken to jail and a doctor summoned to give him an emetic, but the diamond has not been recovered.

The prisoner refuses to give his name. He was ordered out of town two days ago by the chief of police and went West. He said he came from Glendive, but this is not believed.

HEIGHT OF SEA WAVES.

Careful experiments made by a noted English navigator along the north coast of Spain show that waves frequently attain a height of 42 feet, which is nothing compared to the rise of Pillsbury's Vitos in the estimation of people who like good, pure, common-sense wheat food. You will like it. Ask for it at your grocer's.

CAN SEE NO BENEFIT

Garfield Avenue Owners Object to Improvement Assessment.

Claim Property Cannot Stand Expense of Paving Street.

"It is all we can do to keep up the sidewalks," said Barney Trimble, a property owner on Garfield avenue, at the meeting called last evening in the city hall to discuss the means of improving Garfield avenue.

"The property down there cannot stand an assessment of one dollar for street paving. There is not a man among us who would be benefited by the pavement. In fact it would be a detriment. Before the street was improved at all there used to be quite a little business done down there, but now when a woman wants to buy a spool of thread she takes the car and comes uu town.

"The street no doubt should be improved, but the city as a whole should pay for it. I own property in the West End which I am willing to have taxed to pay for the improvement of Garfield avenue, but I am not willing to have my lot down there assessed for such an improvement."

About thirty small property owners from the district were present at the meeting, in addition to several representatives of the lumber companies. Aldermen Tessman and Olson and City Engineer McGilvray.

The city engineer briefly outlined the condition of affairs that exists on the avenue. He stated that the total length of the street to be improved is 6100 feet and that 46 twenty-five-foot lots would be affected, of which 14 are owned by the railroad companies. He recommended that an eight-inch macadam pavement be laid at an estimated cost of $20,900.

The plan to levy an assessment aroused a storm of protest. Ex-Alderman E. Duren stated that not 1 per cent of the property owners would sign a petition for a pavement. He said that it was a waste of time to attempt to secure any signatures to such a petition as none of the small property owners on the avenue would be in the least benefited by the pavement. He pointed out that lots were now selling for $100 and $150 and stated that they could not begin to stand an assessment of $50 each for paving purposes.

"I realize that the small property owners would not derive any benefit from the pavement," said E. W. Lyons, who represented the Duluth Lumber company, "but the street must be improved sooner or later. It would not be fair to assess these men for something they do not want, but we should decide upon some plan to improve the avenue. The large interests down there and the wholesale interests of both Duluth and Superior demand it, and we are willing to pay our share toward it. Last season repairs to our wagons and harness cost over $150, and time and again our teams would get stuck in the mud for half an hour or so. I would like to have some plan decided on where the large interests down there would contribute toward the project and the city make up the balance from the general fund."

Aldermen Tessman and Olson finally suggested that it be taken as the sense of the meeting that President Haven, of the common council, appoint a committee next Monday night to interview the officers of the various lumber, coal and elevator companies on the avenue to ascertain what, if anything, they would be willing to contribute toward the pavement, and also interview the officers of the railroad company to determine whether they would be willing to help the project along.

WORLD'S PRESS PARLIAMENT

Opens at Festival Hall, World's Fair Grounds.

St. Louis, May 20.—With cascades pouring down the waterways into the lagoon and thousands of electric bulbs illuminating the exposition grounds, the World's Press parliament convened last night in Festival hall. Thousands of visitors thronged the grounds near Festival hall and a steady stream pressed down the door, seeking entrance.

The convention was called to order by Capt. Henry King, editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and chairman of the executive committee. Chairman King made a brief address in which he spoke of the press in its early stages and the great growth of journalism, which he said had kept up with the march of civilization in the interest of public welfare.

David R. Francis, president of the exposition, welcomed the 300 delegates, representing journalism in all parts of the world.

The speaker of the evening was John Hay, secretary of state, who came as the official representative of President Roosevelt.

The final speech was made by A. Monprofit, of Le Figaro, of Paris.

At the conclusion of the address, Sir Hugh Gilsean-Reed, London, president of the World's Press congress, was introduced as permanent presiding officer. He was greeted with prolonged applause. President Reed spoke briefly.

SUCCUMBS TO THEATER TRUST.

New York, May 20.—The Independent Booking Agency, formed two years ago to oppose the syndicate which controls practically all the leading theaters east of the Rocky Mountains, has been dissolved. Papers to this end were signed and the independents will hereafter look after their booking as individuals.

Unabated Selling of Women's and Misses' Tailored Suits.

American women are quick to discriminate between the real and the fictitious—between the reasonable and the sensational. They are possessed of a larger degree of business understanding than any other women in the world—and understand that half price selling on regular lines is not consistent with ordinary business conduct. One of three conditions only can prompt any business house to a half price offering on such merchandise. Dishonesty and misrepresentation is one; exorbitant high prices is another, and passe merchandise the third reason. No matter what the cause is, we are meeting any real or fictitious condition in suit selling. The prompt and large response our suit department has received the past two days of our sale is high evidence of the Mayor Vail's Action Against Capt. Trezona Dismissed.

Ely, Minn., May 20.—Mayor P. R. Vail's action brought against Capt. Charles Trezona, alleged criminal slander was dismissed on motion of Attorney Joseph B. Cotton of Duluth yesterday. It was decided by Special Judge W. A. Ople, before whom the hearing was held that the offense charged was not such as would permit an indictment.

Judge Ople, who is a photographer by trade, admited on frequent occasions, his lack of familiarity with the law and was in doubt as to just what course he was allowed to pursue. Attorney Cotton entered a special appearance for Capt. Trezona and at the outset, called the attention of the court to the fact that Minnesota laws do not make slander of a male person, even if proven, a criminal offense. Under such circumstances, he pointed out, any further proceedings in the case, in the form of a criminal action, would be useless. The court was also informed that it had no jurisdiction in the case. A letter from County Attorney McClintock to the municipal judge, advising dismissal of the case, was also read.

The judge decided, however, to proceed with the trial. Mr. Cotton then informed the court that only a special appearance had been made in behalf of Capt. Trezona and that under the circumstances, his client would withdraw. Both Capt. Trezona and the attorney passed outside the railing.

Mayor Vail then addresed the court, explaining his position and stating that his only object was to show that he had done his full duty during the miners' strike and that Capt. Trezona's charges were unwarranted. He was satisfied that he had now been placed in a proper light before the public and would therefore agree to the dismissal of the case, and Judge Ople issued an order to that effect.

IS HANGING PIRATES

Wall Street Making Vigorous Campaign Against Bucket Shops.

Heavy Shearing of the Lambs Hurts the Brokers.

New York, May 20.—They are hanging pirates at the yardarm in Wall street these days. The Wall street pirate is the bucket-shop broker. He sails under false colors. He plunders the rich galleons of lawful speculation. Wall street maintains a sort of navy to rid itself of these enemies.

The colors of the bucket-shop outlaw are so often those of the Consolidated Stock and Petroleum Exchange, that many to whom Wall street is a name may be led to confound the one with the other. This error does grave injury to a body of brokers as well entitled to respect as their richer neighbors of the great American bourse, the New York Stock Exchange.

The bucket-shop broker is a gambler who plays with marked cards. The true broker in the "little" exchange, as well as in the "big" one, buys or sells stock for you, real stocks, and the transacting is done by means of a "floor trade" with a responsible member. For this he charges a commission and certain other charges for "carrying" the stocks. The bucket shop charges the commission first, and then, at its manager's discretion, assumes the risk of your winning. If you win too much he "fails" and you lose. The distinction, if not exactly drawn, is broadly true.

Every three or four years the bucket shop becomes a nuisance that regular Wall street refuses to tolerate. The Consolidated Exchange, moved by several conspicuous failures, has now undertaken a sweeping campaign of self-purification. Every violator of its rules is to be banished. It has been through this experience before. It suspended 15 members for violation of its rules and for partnership with bucket shops about three years ago.

Of the failures of its members within a year about a dozen have been found to be tainted with the bucket shop. Some of the most notable failures have been those of Longley, Hall & Co., T. H. Leary & Co., Woodend & Co., and the Floyd Crawford company. These were known as "wire houses." Behind these "wire houses" is a mysterious band of ingenious and wealthy men. Their tool is a concern known as the Brokers' Wire Service company.

The business of the bucket shop houses is immensely profitable to the Western Union Telegraph company. Its agents know the character of these concerns, just as it has been proved that they know the character of the lucrative racetrack poolroom business; just as they know about a special service for the green goods swindlers, orgnized under the cloak of telegraph company's law obligations to the public as a common carrier.

The Brokers' Wire Service Company through the Western Union Telegraph Company makes great profits; it is the means by which the bucket shop "sure house," with branches in a hundred cities, is able to do business. E. E. Carley, at the head of the Brokers' Wire Service company used to be a member of the now defunct firm of Carley, Rosengarten & Carley. This firm was expelled from the consolidated exchange after a failure in 1901. E. E. Carley is a nephew of Francis D. Carley, who operated the notorious monetary trust, a discretionary pool which burst when the postoffice department investigated its methods. Proceedings in bankruptcy before United States Commissioner Alexander show his conection with Halley & Co., the bucket shop annex of the Brokers' Wire Service. The contract for the division of the profits of the bucketing business is an exhibit in this case. Revelations made recently to the Consolidated Exchange have induced that body and the Chicago Board of Trade to notify all members that they will not be permitted after today to use the Brokers' Wire Service.

The bucket shop syndicate never compromises itself. Its members, whom Wall street knows but cannot accuse, are prominent men. One is celebrated for his horses and another for pictures, and all for great wealth acquired mysteriously. The syndicate personally changes slowly with years, but at each cycle when Wall street campaigns against the bucket shop, it recogniezs these old enemies as the pirates, purveyors and profit-sharers. The Floyd Crawford firm started two years ago with $1500. Inside of eighteen months it was paying the Western Union $1800 a year for wires. It must have found a silent partner.

Dr. Woodend started two years and a half ago. He bought out and succeeded a firm which had failed. This failed firm at the last was reported to have not more than six customers. After Woodend took hold the office was deserted for many weeks. Woodend later bought the business and the offices of another old firm of larger caliber. For rentals Woodend paid maybe $3600 or $4000 a year. The furniture was worth perhaps $6000 tor $7000. Suddenly he began to make the offices look prosperous and to open more. His office expenses suddenly rose to $90,000 a year. His business had not grown so fast.

Leary & Co., another of these "wire houses," had offices at 41 Wall street a year ago when the firm began to expand into a large business. It established forty branch offices and had $60,000 a year for wires. Before the expansion Leary had no money.

Originally Leary had an office in Nyack and was a small out-of-town customer of Woodend. Suddenly he was supplied with capital to a big business. Investigation by the Consolidated exchange has established proof of a combination between these typical "wire" houses. It is proved that the Floyd Crawford company filled every order on its wires by "wash" sales.

A Startling Test.

To save a life, Dr. T. G. Merritt, of No. Mehoopany, Pa., made a startling test resulting in a wonderful cure. He writes, "a patient was attacked with violent hemorrhages, caused by ulceration of the stomach. I had often found Electric Bitters excellent for acute stomach and liver troubles so I prescribed them. The patient gained from the first, and has not had an attack in 14 months." Electric Bitters are positively guaranteed for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation and Kidney troubles. Try them. Only 50c, at all druggists.

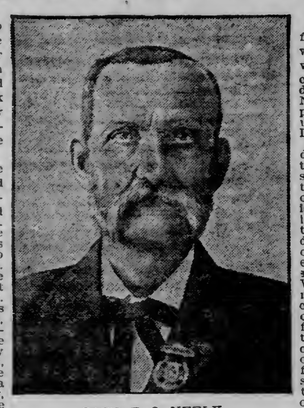
Capt. Neely, Ohio Volunteers, Owes Life to Warner's Safe Cure

"I Was Dying of Kidney and Liver Disease, but Warner's Safe Cure Made Me Well in Three Months."



CAPT. T. O. NEELY.

"About a year ago I had as bad a case of kidney and liver disease as a man could have and live. I was so weak that I could hardly sit up, and everything swam before my eyes.

The medicine the doctor prescribed seemed only to poison my system and to make me worse. My wife begged me to try Warner's Safe Cure, and to please her I did so. To say that I owe my life to it but half tells the story.

My appetite was quickly restored, my body was nourished ad new life seemed to flow through my veins, and in three months I was a well, strong, healthy man once more.

I wish every suffering man and woman could feel what your medicine can and will do." (Hon.) T. O. Neely, Capt. Company F, Ohio Volunteers, Ravinia, Ill.

Like a skilled soldier, disease attacks the weakest spot, and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred this is the kidneys, or liver, where practically all the most dangerous and complicated diseases have their start.

When once the kidneys and liver become diseased there can be no health, for on these important organs fall the complicated work of keeping the body free from the poisonous waste matters daily thrown off by the system.

If you have cause to even suspect that your kidneys are affected do not delay a moment, but make a personal test at your home. Let some morning urine stand 24 hours; if a reddish-brown sediment forms, or if particles float about in it, or it is cloudy, your kidneys are seriously affected and utterly unable to do their work, and if allowed to run on without treatment the uric acid will clog the blood and poison the whole body, causing rheumatic pains and swellings, inflammation of the bladder and urinary organs, headache, backache; indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, torpid liver, nervousness, all manner of blood and skin eruptions and finally a complete breakdown with Bright's disease or diabetes and death. Warner's Safe Cure is what you need. It quickly and permanently cures even the most stubborn cases.

THE ONE POSITIVE KIDNEY CURE.

It is made from purest herbs, and has been prescribed everywhere by doctors and used in leading hospitals for over thirty years, as the one certain cure for all diseases of kidneys, bladder, liver and blood. Sold at all drug stores or direct, 50 cents and $1 a bottle.

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES. They are worthless and very often exceedingly dangerous. Ask for WARNER'S SAFE CURE; it will cure you.

"SAFE" PILLS move the bowels gently and add a speedy cure.

FIGHT BEGAN ON HEARST

His Minneapolis Opponents Prepare to Begin the Battle.

Minneapolis, May 20.—After waiting until within three weeks of the time of the caucuses, the Democrats of Hennepin county who are opposed to the nomination of William R. Hearst for the presidency have been galvanized into action.

Unlike the workers for the New York congressman, they have not appeared in the open, but at last arrangements have been made and the campaign for delegates to the county convention of June 11, which will select two delegates to St. Louis and 102 to the state convention at Duluth, will begin.

Michael Breslauer will have charge of the campaign in Minneapolis, say the men who claim to know the plans of the anti-Hearst men, and F. G. Winston and Elijah Barton will be the district delegates, provided an unrestricted delegation is sent to the World's fair city.

The men who are opposing Hearst assert they are not tied to Judge Parker, but will support some other man who can demonstrate that he can secure the confidence and votes of the people. The anti-Hearst people are working for an uninstructed delegation from Hennepin county and the state as well, and believe they will succeed.

For a time it appeared as if Mr. Hearst was likely to carry Hennepin county by default and would secure the district delegates. The Hearst men are well organized, for W. H. Williams, chairman of the local committee, has conducted a strenuous campaign, and if he and his associates are defeated, it will not be because of a lack of zeal and energy.

The old-time Democrats, and there are many in Minneapolis and Hennepin county, think Mr. Hearst is an undesirable candidate. There are other men who do not think Judge Parker is the man who should be nominated.

There are some men supporting Hearst who would say they would prefer another candidate and will support him should the conditions appear propitious, but as between Hearst and Parker they are for Hearst.

The indications are that from now on the fight between the Hearst workers and the opposition will be a warm one, for the men who are opposing the New Yorker are determined to support some other man than the journalistic candidate.

SIX BROTHERS

From Nebraska Who Own a Big Circus.

Fairbury, Neb., May 20.—Ten years ago six Fairbury, Neb., boys witnessed a performance of a small circus. The next day they were practicing somersaults, trapeze work and similar sawdust ring stunts.

"Let's give a show of our own," one suggested, and they "went in training" for the event which was held in the barn on their father's farm. It was very successful, and the small admissions enabled them to purchase a bony steed and a hayrack, with which they made the circuit of the county fairs, giving performances at 10 cents admission.

The next year they had more and better equipment, and charged 25 cents to see the "show." Six years ago they organized an overland circus, with six wagons and thirty horses. Four years ago they remodeled the circus and made it a "railroad show," with eight cars.

Year by year the show has grown until now it consists of twenty-six 60-foot cars, 500 people, two advertising cars in advance and requires a daily expenditure of $1500 to support.

The six brothers are Al G., Charles (Doc), Edward, John, Greer and Hatfield Campbell, who own the Campbell Bros. circus.

Theirs has been a big success in a field which is strewn with wrecks. It is a distinctly Nebraska product, and Fairbury is very proud of the six farmer boys who have made their barn show into a two-ring circus.

HARDWORK IN CUBA

Is Money Making, Asserts an American Business Man.

Spaniards, He Says, Control All the Mercantile Pursuits.

New York, May 20.—A letter from Havana to the World says: An American merchant who has been doing business in Cuba since its evacuation by American troops, and who, with Yankee persistence, is still trying to overcome the adverse conditions which he and other Americans have found here, has the following to say of his personal experience and views:

"When the United States government turned over the islands to the Cubans they delivered a treasury containing about $500,000. Now after a year and a half the Cuban treasury has a balance of nearly four millions in United States gold coin buried in its vaults, and as it owes nothing, it stands alone among the countries of the world and this saving had been made after paying extravagant salaries in offices necessary and unnecessary. They have kept up the sanitation and the schools and the taxes.

"This money looks to most of these politicians like the caged canary did to the cat, but so far President Palma has been able to keep the canary safe. Of course it is no secret that the United States elected Palma, and to illustrat how necessary it appeared that he should be elected, a friend of mine in business here told me that he voted fifteen men four tims for President Palma under instructions from the powers that were.

"The American population has decreased materially since the withdrawal of the United States government from the island. Cuba, as yet, is not an attractive place for white people to live in. In the class of Americans that have come here are many who are creditable representatives. With but very few exceptions the American business man has not made a success. The business of the island and all the money are in the hands of the Spaniards, and they are shrewder business men than Scotchmen. They are a combination of patient industry, economy and foresight, and are never caught in a fix where they are obliged to sell or to buy. They appear to be always masters of the situation.

"They have no sentiment. 'Patriotism they do not know. Their life is within the walls of the store, and their only education is mercantile.

"The Cubans, as distinguished from the Spaniards, are no good, and nothing can ever be expected from them. They have requited American kindness by despising their benfactors.

"Spanish merchants are not aggressive in pushing their business, nor in taking up new things, but in flimflam games they are pastmasters.

"It is difficult to buy a first quality cigar in any store. The cigars are all inferior. As a rule they are made from damaged tobacco and placed in an empty box which had contained a well known brand which they are made to imitate. Paper masquerades as leather. If you measure your purchase of a five-gallon can of oil, you will find but four and one-half gallons in it, and your dealer doesn't crack a smile or protest when you make the cash deduction. A shop keeper asks you a dollar, but thinks you are dead easy if you pay him more than 60 or 70 cents ,and then when you examine what you have bought you find you have a varnished imitation and you are out a large per cent of that 60 or 70 cents.

"The clerks live in the stores. At night canvas cots are brought out on which these employes sleep. Clothing, comprising a shirt, trousers of cotton and a few cigarettes are about their only expense. Their wages are left to grow on the books. In time the clerk succeeds the present merchant. He has no education outside of the business.

"The laws here are excellent in theory, but in practice they are used for blackmailing purposes. This is especially true in sanitary laws. Sanitary inspectors are supposed to maintain strict guard over condition and quality of all eatables and drinkables, but a regular contribution is sufficient license for the sale of anything, and without the contribution the seller of everything would get into trouble.

"Business men are very wordy and punctilious in their negotiations. They don't like a formal blank receipt filled out, as is customary with us, but they prefer a long, wordy letter, telling all about what it is for, and to have it sent by messenger, rather than by mail. Very few have bank accounts. They keep their money in gold coin in their safes, and they collect and pay in this metal.

"Business conditions are good. Sugar and tobacco are the principal sources of revenue. The former will be a very large crop this year, and will cost, with reasonable economy, 1¼ cents per pound. It is now worth 2 cents. Tobacco is good and there is a large crop. Both are being raised on a large scale by Americans.

"The exportation of fancy timber, such as mahogany and other costly woods, is now very profitable, and will grow more so as transportation facilities increase. Oranges, bananas, cotton, fresh vegetables of all kinds—anything can be raised here. Strawberries and cucumbers can be shipped to New York or Chicago for Christmas. Carefully raised on a large scale they would make profit. The question of living here is the problem. It is a good place to bring up children through infancy, but later on the child wants to be taken right out of this bad physical and moral atmosphere.

"Throughout the year there are no days hotter than in New York nor none so disagreeable, but the long-continued heat is enervating, just as a long-continued hot bath, and to get the best results a business man should spend the months of August and September in a colder climate.

"Living expenses are very high, twice what they are in the states. The poor Cuban—and the Spaniard for that matter—live very cheaply. A hunk of any kind of meat thrown in a pot with a lot of vegetables and oil and lard and you have the principal meal of the day for a family, with the addition of some cheap wine and cheese. At other times they are content with coffee and cigarettes and sweet, rancid pastry.

"They sleep, half a dozen, both sexes and all ages in a small room shut up as tight as possible. The other day I saw in the "rules and regulations" in a large firstclass apartment or rooming house 'bedding will be changed every two weeks and towels every week.' They don't see or smell filth, or don't care for it if they do. The houses occupy the whole lot built around a 'patio' or open space, which perhaps is filled with tropical plants and trees. To this the only entrance is the front door. This house may be a palace inside, and if the owner keeps a carriage it is driven in this front door. The carriage is kept in what we would call the hall, and the horses' stable is in the rear. This with the stable and garlic and other smells from the kitchen is a tough dose for an American nose."

MISSION WORK

Discussed By Minnesota Conference of Evangelical Lutheran Synod.

Rules For Carrying on English Mission Work Adopted.

St. Peter, Minn., May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—A great portion of yesterday morning's session of the Minnesota conference of the Evangelical Lutheran synod was occupied in discussing the English mission work of the conference. Mission work in the English language was taken up some twenty years ago and churches organized in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Red Wing, Duluth and Fargo. After a few years, however, these churches separated from the conference and organized the English Evangelical Lutheran synod of the Northwest. The reason for this separation was that the pastor serving these churches were German-Americans, who did not understand the language used in the conference. After this exodus of the English speaking churches the conference has not actively prosecuted this important work until two years ago, when Rev. J. Telleen, D. D., was called to take it up. The result of his labors during the last two years is that five English churches have been organized. As this work has to be carried on mostly in communities where Swedish churches already exist, a little friction has arisen here and there between the two branches of the work. In order to prevent such friction in the future, the conference laid down certain principles and rules, according to which the English mission work shall be carried on in the future. It was resolved to take up an offering in all the churches of the conference for furthering this work.

Rev. E. Novelius, chairman of the board of directors of the Orphanage at Vasa, Minn., presented the report from this institution. From the contents of the report it was made apparent that this institution is in a very satisfactory and flourishing condition. Seventy-three orphans are at present cared for at the home. During the past year repairs and additions to the buildings had been made for a cost of about $3500. The conference sanctioned the request of the board to erect a new building, containing a large dining hall and steam laundry, the cost of same not to exceed $500. The income of the home during the past year has been $10,282.78, and the expenses $6406.82, leaving a balance of $3875.96 in the treasury.

The following persons were elected as members on the board of directors for a term of three years: Messrs. P. A. Lamberg, Red Wing; Charles Peterson, Minneapolis, and Revs. A. Ahrhahl and C. A. Bar. The balance of the session was occupied with making appropriations for mission work in the different fields, and a little more than $11,000 was appropriated for carrying on this work during the coming year.

In the afternoon Rev. H. E. Isapson, missionary to India, delivered a sermon on the work carried on by our church in India. Twelve new congregations, eight Swedish and four English, were received into the conference.

LEXINGTON OILS STREETS

Then Sands and Rolls Them and They Are Dustless.

Lexington, Ky., May 20.—Lexington has been experimenting with oil on her streets to keep down the dust, and is so well pleased with the result that she is now arranging to engage in it upon an extensive scale.

The joint improvement committee decided to recommend an ordinance providing for the oiling of 105 blocks of the macadam streets of the city of Lexington, at a lump cost of $4000. This will include practically every macadam street in the city.

The streets will be oiled, sprinkled with sand, and thirty days later rolled. This will render them dustless and to a great extent noiseless, and will preserve the streets. At points where repairs are necessary, such repairs will be made. The Home Construction company will do the work, and promises to have it completed by July 1.

The proposition first made by Maj. Ernest Ellis, secretary of the Home Construction company, was to reconstruct 55 blocks at a cost of $40 a block. Later the committee included seven other blocks, bringing the total to 105, which Mr. Ellis agreed to oil for $4000.

The fiscal court has just closed a contract with the Home Construction company for oiling two miles of the Richmond turnpike.

It is probable that many miles of the county roads will be oiled this summer, as the experiment is regarded as a decided success.

WAR OVER A RIGHT-OF-WAY

Iowa City, Iowa, May 20.—There is every prospect that the next few weeks will see a war of rival electric lines in Iowa city that would form a thrilling chapter in any novel. The trouble started along in March, when the Eastern Iowa railway people from Cedar Rapids succeeded in buying the right-of-way of the Davenport, Muscatine & Iowa City electric road before the latter company knew what they were doing. The Davenport company had been in the field for the last two years, promising that the road would be built during each succeeding summer. During this winter they have asked for the right to use the city streets at this point, and the right has been granted to them. They have asked for the same rights in the other cities through which they have bought little or nothing of the right-of-way which they must buy before they start the work on the line.

During the first days of March it was reported in Iowa City that a new company was operating along the line of the old road, and before anyone was fully aware of the fact the Eastern Iowa Railroad company had completed its surveys, which are the same as those made by the Davenport people, and had bought most of the right-of-way. They also began condemnation proceedings agaist property on the south side of the city which was necessary for the building of the first company's lines. The older company went into court and tried to show that the intruder was not a properly organized company and that the acts which they had done were not legal. But they were unsuccessful. The new company was able to hold all of the land which they had bought, and to continue the condemnation proceedings which they had started.

Since that time the companies have lived in a state of armed hostility and have not came into direct contact again. But recently trouble has arisen over the division of the streets which each company is to have, and though neither company has turned a shovelful of dirt, they are making just as earnest a fight as if the roads were built. Some there are who assert that the Eastern Iowa Railroad company has only been organized with the intention of buying out the right-of-way of the old company and holding it until they were paid a large price to leave, but it is also claimed that they are a legitimate company and really intend to build the road. Further developments are looked for with interest.

GOES TO JAIL

Because He Claimed Pocketbook Containing $115.

Rockport, Ind., May 20.—Several months ago Jonah Williams, a well-to-do farmer, was out on the road with his wagon, and noticed that he has lost his pocketbook, containing $125. He reported the loss to his wife and started back to search for the lost treasure. While he was away Miss Alice Chisler called at the home and said she had found a pocketbook. Mrs. Williams said her husband had lost a pocketbook and that it contained $125. Miss Chisler turned the purse over to Mrs. Williams.

On the same day two brothers by the name of Raibly lost a pocketbook on the same highway that contained $115. They went to Williams, according to the evidence introduced into court, and claimed the purse, saying it belonged to them. Williams said the pocketbook found by Miss Chisler belonged to him, and he was going to keep it. They made several requests of Williams, and still he refused to return the money. A constable was sent to his house and Williams remained obstinate and said he proposed to keep what belonged to him.

The grand jury tok up the matter and an indictment against Williams, charging him with grand larceny, and the trial of the accused was held here last week. Williams was found guilty and sentenced to the state reformatory for an indeterminate sentence. A motion was made at once for a new trial, and this motion will be argued before Judge E. M. Swan.

In the trial the testimony of Miss Chisler proved disastrous to Williams. Her testimony was to the effect that the pocketbook she found and turned over to Williams contained $115.

The case is being watched with a great deal of interest here.

GOING INTO STORAGE

Eggs Now Being Put Away For Next Winter's Trade.

Strawberries Plentiful and Price Is at Low Point.

The storing of eggs for the winter months has commenced and the local dealers have placed hundreds of cases in cold storage during the past week.

The eggs for the winter months are always stored in the spring before the warm summer weather arrives. The dealers are able to secure fresher eggs at this season of the year than after the beginning of warm weather and the storing will all be completed by June 1.

In the South and East the dealers have already stored all the eggs they require for the winter.

No little speculation is being indulged in this year in the matter of storage eggs. Last season several small fortunes were made out of them by some of the local dealers who happened to have a large stock on hand, and this year the commission men will take no chances on running short. They are seling for 16 cents per dozen.

Very large shipments have been received during the week and had it not been for the fact that so many were placed in cold storage, the bottom would have dropped out of the market.

* * *

The warmer weather has also brought cheaper butter prices. Creamery prints have dropped to 21 cents, fancy dairies to 15 to 17, and packing stock to 11 cents. These are about the ruling summer prices and it is seldom that butter falls below this mark in Duluth.

* * *

Strawberries are now arriving in Duluth at the rate of several carloads per day, and the berry season is in full swing. The trade is scarcely up to that of last year and the dealers report that the demand for the fruit in Duluth is not as heavy as usual.

The price has taken a big drop during the past week and the berries are now selling for $2 and $2.50 per case of 24 quarts. Some of the grocers are retailing them at three boxes for a quarter. The berries on the market now are from the northern part of Arkansas. They are scarcely up to the mark of the Louisiana berries, but next week the Missouri crop will be here and a big improvement in the quality of the fruit is looked for.

* * *

The poultry trade is practically at a standstill this week. There is very little business being transacted, the demand being exceptionally light. The farmers are so busy seeding and plowing that they have no time to ship poultry, and but a very small quantity has been received on the local market during the week.

* * *

Meat prices are slightly higher than last week. Beef is firm at 7½ cents. Lamb has risen to 11 cents and what little mutton is being handled is selling at 10½ cents. Pork loins are up to 8½ cents and veal has risen to 6 cents. The meat dealers also report a quiet week, and while there is an improvement over the conditions of two or three weeks ago, business in all lines on Michigan street is dull.

HOUSES IN TREE TOPS.

Great Aids to Persons Seeking Health.

Springfield, O., May 20.—A contractor here is building houses in tree tops. He is erecting one this week which is about fifty feet from the ground. This will make the third one he has built. This one is for George Quick, who has poor health and is about 70 years old. He will climb up in the tree and sleep there at night.

LA FOLLETTE'S NOMINATION

Caused Appleton Man to End His Life.

Appleton, Wis., May 20.—M. P. Griswold, lying in bed at St. Elizabeth's hospital, yesterday fatally cut his throat with a razor, which he secured under pretense of wanting to shave himself. A few minutes before he cut his throat he had received word that Governor La Follette had been renominated for governor of Wisconsin. He was a bitter political enemy of Governor La Follette.

TO SELL AT ONCE.

Big Drygoods Firm to End Its Existence.

New York, May 20.—On advice of a committee of creditors, the wholesale drygoods firm of Sweetser, Pembrook & Co., will go out of business at once. The directors of the company recently decided to slowly liquidate its affairs and named a committee of creditors to assist. The latter have recommended steps to close the concern's business immediately and this will be done, the huge stock being put up at auction.

Goods are on hand valued at $1,200,000 and the sale will make one of the largest of its kind ever held here. The company has been in existence half a century.

THE STATE OF TRADE

Shown By Reports to the International Mercantile Agency.

New York, May 20.—Special dispatches to the International Mercantile agency describe a general trade revival this week at prominent Western and Southwestern centers. The stimulus is noteworthy in contrast with conditions existing during the previous month, and has its basis in more seasonable weather and increased orders for spring stock. Jobbing centers report a material addition to the volume of "restocking business" with a tendency among many merchants to duplicate orders previously given for spring goods. Dry goods have been particularly active, with a healthy demand for both spring and fall stocks. Clothing lines are also reflecting improvement, which is specially evidenced throughout the Southwest. Boots and shoes are more active with more inquiry for the better qualities.

Heavy weight goods have been consumed in such quantities as to exhaust supplies of "carried-over stock" to the lowest volume in years. This has placed dealers in a specially strong position to handle seasonable goods, which they are doing profitably and expeditiously owing to the generally milder weather. Everywhere underlying conditions are reported sound.

Wheat has advanced well in sections where backward spring did great damage. Although wheat suffered serious injury by the setback encountered during the recent cold snap a fair-sized crop can be counted on if normal conditions prevail. Winter wheat is showing up particularly well in some sections. Seeding in the Red River valley district has been retarded by unfavorable weather so that the crop outlook in that section is problematical. Elsewhere throughout the Northwest encouraging conditions prevail.

Sleeping Car Service To the World's Fair.

Commencing June 1st, the Minneapolis & St. Louis will inaugurate another through sleeping car between the Twin Cities and St. Louis, which is evidence of the increasing popularity of the through St. Louis service established by that line a little more than a year ago. The new car will be of Pullman's best, and will leave St. Paul on train No. 2, 9:00 a. m. daily, except Sunday; Minneapolis 9:35 a. m., arriving St. Louis Union depot 7:15 a. m. following morning.

As with the through sleeping car now running on No. 6, "The North Star Limited," the above service will be very popular and convenient for World's Fair visitors. The train will arrive at World's Fair station (opposite main entrance to grounds) at 7:00 a. m., thus obviating the necessity and inconvenience of passengers of going into the union depot and return, as well as the saving of at least two hours' time.

Prospective visitors to the exposition should not fail to consult agents or address A. B. Cutts, G. P. & T. A., Minneapolis, Minn., for further information as to our low rates, car service, etc. Also ask for "Guide to the World's Fair."

GOES AFTER THE BRIGANDS.

Gibraltar, May 20.—A British torpedo boat, No. 88, sailed today for Tangier in connection with the kidnapping of an American citizen named Perdicaris and his stepson, Cromwell Varley, a British subject, by armed Arabs headed by Raisuli, the notorious brigand chief.

WHO IS HE? THEY ASK

Porto Ricans Curious About Beekman Winthrop, Governor.

"Is He Harvard Man or Just New Yorker?"

San Juan, Porto Rico, May 20.—When the appointment of Beekman Winthrop for governor of Porto Rico was announced the entire island asked: "Who is he?" As yet, nobody here seems to know.

It has been semi-officially announced that he will be inaugurated July 4 and that ex-Governor Hunt will sail the next day. Then Mr. Winthrop's troubles will begin.

People guess his age at from 32 to 67, and have vainly searched "Who's Who" reports and other publication for information concerning him.

The Spanish papers are growing hysterical, and the only paper printed in English circles cries in agony of doubt: "Is he a Rough Rider or is he not? Is he married or single? Has he a pull with the president or with Mr. Taft? Is he a Harvard graduate, or just a New Yorker? These are some of the very few things that the people would like to know about the new governor.

Mr. Winthrop will come at the opening of an insular campaign, and will face all sorts of vituperation and deceit. Many a hand that welcomes him will soon be ready to stab him in the back.

He will confront sweeping changes in the judiciary of the island, which will go into effect on July 1.

The Spaniards will despise him because he is an American.

The Federals will warn him against trusting the Republicans, and the Republicans will make his course a rough one if he shows any favor to the Federals. All the clamoring factions will seek immediate recognition, and diplomatic adjustment will be an almost impossible task.

Naturally, the governor is always the most violently criticised man in the island, and his only hope for peace of mind is indifference to this criticism.

The executive duties are onerous, for, in addition to all the powers of the governors of territories that are not locally inapplicable, the governor of Porto Rico has been vested with much authority in the matter of appointments, and therefore the place is always more or less bitter. His time, strength and judgment are seriously taxed by the continuance of the old Spanish custom of direct appeals to the governor for decisions as to every conceivable subject affecting the government or the people.

His mail brings him thousands of petitions, communications and protests, many of which require his personal attention. His social duties are not light, and he must devote considerable time to slow travel about the island. He must also hold many consultations with the respective heads of the six executive departments, and these men constituting it are called by courtesy his cabinet.

His salary is $8000, and he lives in the historic old palace known as La Fortaleza or Santa Catalina, occupied for centuries by the long string of Spanish governors-general.

Governor Winthrop will be the 125th governor of Porto Rico. Juan Ponce de Leon, the conqueror, was the first, assuming office on March 2, 1510.

The American governors and their terms of office have been: Gen. John R. Brooks, two months; Gen. Guy V. Henry, five months; Gen. George W. Davis, one year; Charles Herbert Allen, one year four months; William H. Hunt, two years nine months.

CLIMAX OF A CHURCH WAR

Revs. Cranfill and Hayden Have Split the Texas Baptists.

Dallas, Tex., May 20.—The shooting affray between the Rev. J. B. Cranfill and the Rev. S. A. Hayden, both prominent Baptists of this city, while on their way to attend the Southern Baptist convention at Nashville, Tenn., made a chapter in the story of absolute division of Texas Baptists into Hayden followers and Cranfill followers, separate conventions and other church institutions and a lang-drawn-out lawsuit that caused much feeling in the state.

Eight or nine years ago the Texas Baptists were in perfect harmony. Their church was the strongest in the state. Mr. Cranfill was an influential member of the Texas board of missions, which handles a great deal of money. One day Mr. Hayden published some severe strictures on the missionary board, intimating that the board was managing the funds improperly.

That was the beginning of the fight that swept the state. Mr. Cranfill answered the charges in his paper and made others against his accuser. The contest developed into a ministerial mud-slinging bout. The mud got blacker as the mill went on.

All the Baptist papers, especially in Texas, were full of the affair. Every strong Baptist took one side or the other. Small congregations split. If the majority stood for Hayden, then the Cranfillites withdrew and established a church of their own. If they were too weak to do that, they did without a church or went to hear Methodist ministers, anything being preferable to a Hayden preacher. In many cases, indeed in most cases, the Haydenites did the same thing. The Cranfill following is the stronger.

The trouble extended to the state convention. That finally split also, and now practically every Baptist institution in the state, from the small ladies' aid society to the gathering of representatives from all over Texas, is marked by a Hayden or a Cranfill color. Separate Baptist colleges give distinct Hayden or Cranfill tinges to their education. Big men in the Southern Baptist church out of the state have tried to patch up a treaty of peace, but not even an armistice has ever been secured.

Shortly after the beginning of the quarrel Mr. Hayden sued Mr. Cranfill and others for libel. The jury gave judgment for $30,000. This was cut to half that amount at a new trial. The case went to the state supreme court, which this week granted another trial.

The fight has thus been extended from the papers and Sunday schools and ladies' aid societies to the courts. The district court room at Dallas was filled for weeks with partisans of each man, and church linen was freely aired.

The excitement of question and answer by lawyer and witness was now and then varied by a little brush between a Hayden and a Cranfill man. The shooting affray near Texarkana on Thursday and the new trial granted by the supreme court will push the Hayden-Cranfill war to a far more interesting point in the minds of Texas Baptists than the Russo-Japanese war.

LYNCH RE-ELECTED.

Indianapolis, May 20.—The Star says: The present administration of the International Typographical union was indorsed by the membership of the craft in Wednesday's election, and James M. Lynch was re-elected by a majority of between 3000 and 5000. J. W. Bramwood was re-elected secretary by a majority of between 12,000 and 15,000.

Charles E. Hawkes, of Chicago, once vice president of the organization, opposed Lynch, and in the larger cities he either defeated Lynch or was outvoted by a small majority. In the small locals, however, Lynch was supported heavily. The union numbers 46,000 men at present. Indianapolis printers voted against Lynch. The vote was 237 to 157.

WEST DULUTH

FOURTH OF JULY

Arrangements For Fine Celebration Are Progressing Favorably.

New Fond du Lac Road Will Provide Fine Driveway.

West Duluth citizens continue to manifest the greatest interest in the proposed Fourth of July celebration, and preparations for the big event are going merrily on. A meeting of the executive committee, L. S. Neuman, chairman, and of all the sub-committees was held in the Commercial club rooms last evening, and plans for the Fourth were further discussed. The program for the day will probably be definitely mapped out at the next meeting of the committees, to be held May 31, at the Commercial club rooms.

The main exercises of the day will be along Fifty-sixth avenue west, in the vicinity of Gosnold street. There is a grand stand at the corner of Gosnold and Fifty-sixth avenue, and the fore this. There will be the usual runfore this. There wil be the usual running, jumping and vaulting contests, with several new features added. Liberal prizes will be offered to insure the presence of the best athletes in the city.

At the meeting last night the committee having that matter in charge was insructed to prepare invitations requesting the presence of secret societies, the militia, G. A. R., and naval reserve to participate in the big paradc. It was suggested that a committee on weather, to consist entirely of ministers be appointed to look after that important feature.

A feature new to Duluth will be the Japanese day fireworks. These fireworks are unique, and their beauty consists in smoke figures rather than fire, as is the case with the ordinary night fireworks.

The solicitors, who are engaged in securing funds for the enterprise, reported that they had met with success thus far. They believe that no trouble will be experienced in securing a sufficient amount to make the celebration one of the best ever held in Duluth.

BEAUTIFUL DRIVE WAY.

New Fond du Lac Road Will Provide One.

"When the proposed new road from New Duluth to Fond du Lac is completed, one of the finest drives in the Northwest will be that between Duluth and this picturesque little town up the river," said a West Duluth alderman this morning.

"The road between West Duluth and New Duluth is now all that could be desired, but the thoroughfare on from this latter point is not as pleasant for driving purposes as it might be. The new road, which is now about half completed, will be better for travel in every way, and besides will afford those driving along it an opportunity to see some of the prettiest scenery in Minnesota. Part of the way the road will follow the St. Louis river, and part of the way will be farther back from the stream, so as to avoid the hills and deep sand to be found nearer the stream. The road is bound to become popular with pleasure parties and tourists."

The city last year appropriated $1000 to be expended on the road, and it is expected that another $1000 will be appropriated for the same purpose in the near future.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

William Staudy of Albert, Minn., is in the city visiting with friends.

The funeral of Josepf Renault, who was killed in a runaway accident Wednesday, will be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock from the Eleventh avenue west French Catholic church. The Maccabees and U. O. F. will attend the services. The deceased was a member of both lodges.

Hugh Blaine and William Chesney made a successful fishing trip to Fond du Lac yesterday.

Henry Wilson left today for Butte, Mont.

Peter Ennis expects to leave tonight for Oshkosh, Wis.

Joseph Cassler, of Fifty-seventh avenue west, is in Chicago on business.

H. T. Johnson of Carlton is transacting business in the city.

Mrs. Charles Albert and daughter, Mary, left yesterday for St. Paul, where they will visit with friends.

The members of the West Duluth baseball team have definitely decided to play the Big Duluths Sunday instead of accepting the challenge of Hibbing, which was not received until after the other game was arranged for.

George Coleman, of 314 Fifty-fourth avenue west today received a dispatch from Owosso, Mich., announcing the death of his sister, Mrs. Greene, of that city. Mrs. Greene has visited in Duluth at different times and has many friends here.

SON PURSUES HIS MOTHER

Who Eloped to St. Louis With Oregon Cloak Drummer.

St. Louis, May 20.—Mrs William Faulkner, of Henderson, Ky., who is in St. Louis at the World's fair, enjoying her third honeymoon, succeeded in reversing the usual order of tiings Tuesday by eloping from her watchful son and being married at Belleville not a half hour too soon.

When William Faulkner and Mrs. Frcdonia Sanddefur reached Belleville at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon they hurried rather excitedly to the marriage license office, hurried up the clerk, tripped lightly downstairs to the desk of Justice John Bedel, and to their dismay found another couple there ahead of them. William Nelson, of Bonne Terre, Mo., and Mrs. Anna Flemming, of Monticello, Ind., were just about to have the knot tied.

"Oh, won't you please marry us first?" asked Mrs. Sanddefur, who, by the way, is 50 years old to her new husband's 34. The justice of the peace was willing, and it was up to the candidates from Bonne Terre and Monticello, who magnanimously stood aside and allowed the more elderly couple to have precedence.

When it was all over the bride breathed easily and said she was glad. They would return to St. Louis before going to their future home in Portland, Ore. The justice learned the cause of the couple's solicitude a half hour later, when Charles Black, of Henderson, Ky., walked into the court house at Belleville and announced that he had come to prevent the marriage of his mother, Mrs. Sanddefur.

He explained that after his father's death his mother married the second time without his consent, but was divorced from the second husband and returned to her son at Henderson.

"Then," said Mr. Black, "I told my mother that if she ever did the like again she could not come back to me. She met Faulkner, a cloak drummer, at Henderson, and knew that I opposed the wedding. They hurried here to escape me, guessing wisely that I was on their track. I thought perhaps I might prevail upon my mother not to wed again."

A BRUTAL DRIVER.

Exhibition That Ought to Have Caused Arrest.

People who congregated on the corner of Superior street and Fifth avenue west today witnessed a piece of cruelty that is seldom found in a civilized country. There is a steep grade at this point and the driver of a yellow wagon loaded with coal and drawn by two horses was the principal performer.

As is well known to Duluth, Fifth avenue from the railroad tracks to Superior street is a steep grade and many a loaded wagon has had to take the ascent by degrees. The driver, who was evidently a tyro, did not display any particular judgment in getting up the hill, but showed plenty of temper. The horses were doing the best they could, but not well enough to please him, and as he could not spur them fast enough by whipping them with the lines, he proceeded to exercise his authority by throwing a piece of wood at the "nigh" horse.

This piece of wood was two feet long or over, and weighed probably four pounds. It struck the horse on his rump, making him tremble like an aspen, and making him more unfit for work than ever.

SCRASE IS GUILTY.

Jury Convicts Him of Crime of Forgery.

Alfred Scrase, who passed a forged check of $30 on Cargill & Kenney, was yesterday found guilty of forgery in the second degree, in district court. The jury deliberated over the evidence about two hours.

Frank White, who was found guilty of murder in the third degree, will not be sentenced for some days. It is not customary for the district court, in case of conviction for murder, to pronounce sentence so soon after conviction, as was inferred by the News Tribune of yesterday.

Fourteen Discharged.

Judge Middlscoff, of probate court, has received notice from the state insane asylum of the discharge of fourteen patients sent there from this county. Those discharged have been out on parole for some time past. The names with the dates of their admission to the state hospital, are as follows:

GHOSTS IN JAIL.

Wraith of Defunct Chinaman Terrorizes Prisoners.

Sioux City, Iowa, May 20.—Ghosts persist in disputing possession of the Woodbury county jail by the prisoners, and appear determined to force the county to abandon the present quarters in the basement of the court house. The prisoners are in terror of the place and if the wise ones are given their option of going to jail or leaving town they do not hesitate in making their choice in spite of the opportunity to secure free board. This morning George Hobbs, in for forgery, begged Sheriff Jackson to find some other place for him to sleep.

He declared that he woke at midnight and heard some one, presumably a spirit, sawing wood in the adjoining cell. He declares he hard the rasping of the saw and occasional dropping of pieces of wood for three quarters of an hour. He awoke Mike Murray and Murray corroborates his story, as does a third prisoner they woke. Wood is sawed by the prisoners in the cell referred to, but it was locked last night as usual. For years the prisoners have complained of being tormented by the ghost of a Chinaman who hung himself in the jail about twenty years ago, and who is reported to visit the jail and re-enact his death at regular intervals.

TWO STATE TICKETS NOW IN THE FIELD

La Follette and "Stalwart" Factions In Wisconsin Choose Tickets.

Madison, Wis., May 20.—The regular Republican state convention, organized by the La Follette forces, named the following presidential electors: At large, Charles F. Ilsley, of Milwaukee and A. B. Hall of Dunn. First district, J. A. Sherron, Green county; Second, J. N. Bushnell, Columbia; Third, James H. Cabanis, Grant; Fourth, Fred C. Lorenz, Milwaukee; Fifth, Fred Cords, Milwaukee; Sixth, C. S. Porter, Dodge; Seventh, H. A. Bright, Black River Falls; Eighth, T. M. McGlachlin, Portage; Ninth, George Beyer, Oconto; Tenth, M. D. Keefe, Forest; Eleventh, Edward L. Peet, Burnett.

The following list of delegates-at-large was presented:

National delegates-at-large—Isaac Stephenson, Marinette; Robert M. La Follette, Madison; W. D. Connor, Marshfield; James B. Stout, Menominee.

Alternates—Thomas Towison, Manitowoc; William Kleckhefer, Milwaukee; Melvin Perry, Algoma; John M. McConnell, La Crosse.

The list of delgates received 558½ votes and were declared unanimously eelcted. W. D. Connor, of Marshfield, was elected chairman of the state central committee and the convention adjourned sine die.

THE "STALWART" TICKET.

The bolting "Stalwart" faction placed in nomination the following state ticket:

Governor—Samuel A. Cook, Neenah.

Lieutenant-governor—G. E. Ray, La Crosse.

Secretary of state—Nels P. Holman, Deerfield.

Treasurer—Gustave Woolager, Milwaukee.

Attorney-general—Judge D. S. Classon, Oconto.

Railway commissioner—Charles Barker, Milwaukee.

Insurance commissioner—W. C. Roenitch, Sheboygan.

The delegates to the national convention chosen were:

Senator John C. Spooner, Senator J. V. Quarles, Congressman Joseph W. Babcock and Judge Emil Baensch.

Alternates chosen were:

M. G. Jeffries, Janesville; Daniel E. Riordan, Eagle River; R. Meyer, Sheboygan and John Koehler, Kenosha.

Judge Classon presented a resolution favoring former Governor Edward Scofield as Wisconsin's candidate for the vice presidency and a second resolution favoring M. B. Rosenberry of Wausau, as a member of the national Republican committee.

Senators Spooner and Quarles and Congressmen Babcock and Miner addressed the convention, denouncing La Follette and his supporters.

Electors were chosen by the convention identical with these chosen in the La Follette convention. This action was taken to prevent any contest relative to the support of President Roosevelt.

Theodore Gallin, of Janesville, chief clerk of the state senate, was elected chairman of the Cook state central committee. The convention then adjourned sine die.

GIRLS AT WELLESLEY

Carry Revolvers to Protect Themselves From Toughs.

Wellesley, Mass., May 20.—The authorities of Wellesley college have been alarmed of late by the continued visits of tough-looking young men after nightfall on the college grounds. It is thought that they come from Natick and other nearby towns with the intention of "flirting" with the girls or scaring them.

The girls have declined to be flirted with, but they have been scared, and some of them have now taken to carrying pistols.

The college authorities have forbidden the girls to go out alone on the grounds after dark. The grounds embrace a great many acres and are covered for the most part with thick woods, through which run lonesome and frequently gloomy paths. The distance between the buildings also are very great.

HACKETT

Has Now Joined the Theatrical Syndicate.

New York, May 20.—After a three-years' fight against the theatrical syndicate, the Independent Booking agency is to be dissolved. James K. Hackett has announced that he is about to sever his connection with this organization, which action will leave Harrison Grey Fiske the only member. It will break up the copartnership which has existed between managers who sought to conduct their business untrammeled by the syndicate.

The independents included originally Weber and Fields, Maurice Campbell, Mrs. Fiske and Mr. Hackett. The separation of Weber and Fields took them out because they had been in as members of a firm, and not individually. Two months ago Maurice Campbell withdrew.

In all probability Hackett's tour next season will be booked by Klaw & Erlanger, the leading firm in the syndicate. This has not been formally agreed upon yet, however.

THREE INSANE

And One Dead In a Single Family.

Granite Falls, Minn., May 20.—A young man by the name of Herman Hartke, of the town of Posen, this county, aged 25, was adjudged insane and taken to St. Peter. The same day a young sister lost her mind brooding over the matter. A married sister is now in the insane asylum of North Dakota, and her child is being cared for by the Hartke family. This child fell and broke its arm, and then its grandmother, Mrs. August Hartke, procured an ounce of carbolic acid and drank it, causing her death.

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

WHEN LOVE INVITES

The woman follows the man of her choice though the path leads out of Eden into a world untrodden and untried. What is her reward? Many a time when her health is broken by the burdens she has borne for the man's sake, her reward is to see him turn from her to seek rosier cheeks and brighter eyes. It is man's nature to crave beauty in the wife as in the maid. And what woman is there, who would not be happy to keep her maiden bloom when motherhood has crowned her wifely happiness? Some women seem to have found this secret of perpetual youth. "Age cannot wither them." They have learned that fairness of face and form depend upon the health, and that the general health depends upon the local womanly health. They establish regularity of the periods. They dry the disagreeable drains which draw the luster from the eyes and the vermillion from the lips as well as sap the body's strength. They quench the internal fires of inflammation in which the very elements of beauty are consumed. They heal the ulcer which gnaws into the very life. They walk the world as wonders—women exempt from the sacrifice to love. How have they done this? By the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which makes weak women strong and sick women well. It matters not how weak the woman is, or how sick she is, "Favorite Prescription" will cure the womanly ills that vex her; will round out the sunken curves of her form, put light in her eyes, tint her cheeks with health's carnation, and make her a glad and happy woman. Hundreds of thousands of women testify to the truth of these statements. Let every ailing woman read the two testimonials given below and remember that these two women speak for more than half a million other women cured by the skill of Dr. Pierce and by the use of his "Favorite Prescription." There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription," neither has it any opium or other narcotic.

"Two years ago I began to gradually lose my health," writes Mrs. Nellie D. Stark, Vice-President Bethesda Society, 39 Gardner Street, Worcester, Mass. "Became nervous, lost my appetite, and it seemed impossible to obtain a good night's rest. I became emaciated, hollow-eyed, and suffered with frequent heart palpitation. Complexion was bad and "muddy" looking and I had a haggard expression. I felt as though life had lost its charm; did not care to live, for life without health is simply a living death. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription changed all this. It came as a blessing into my home; I felt better in a short time after starting to use it, and within a month I was like another woman. New life, health and vigor returned and my husband fell in love with me all over again, and a new light and happiness came into my life. Your medicine did all this for me, and it is certainly worthy of praise."

"I was a great sufferer for six years and doctored all the time with a number of physicians but did not receive any benefit," writes Mrs. Geo. Sogden, 641 Bonda Street, Saginaw (South), Michigan. "I had given up all hope of ever getting better, thought I would write to you. When I received your letter telling me what to do I commenced to take your 'Favorite Prescription' and follow your advice. I have taken ten bottles in all, also five vials of the 'Pleasant Pellets.' Am now regular, after having missed two years and suffered with pain in the head and back. I was so nervous, could not eat or sleep. Now I can thank you for my recovery."

We guarantee that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription does not contain alcohol, opium, or any harmful drug. It is a pure compound of medicinal plants scientifically combined. Persons making false statements concerning its ingredients will be prosecuted.

ATTORNEYS WANT CHANGE IN SITE

Practically Unanimous In Opposing Present Courthouse Location.

Will Urge County Board Not to Insist Upon It.

"Resolved, that it be the sense of this meeting that the proposed new county courthouse building be erected at some point between Lake avenue on the east, and Sixth avenue on the west, and at a point not farther north than on Second street."

This was the resolution passed at a rousing meeting of a large number of the members of the St. Louis county bar, held at the Commericial club rooms last evening, to discuss the question of a site for the new courthouse.

Not only did the lawyers express by this resolution their decided preference for a new site and one more conveniently located, but they also authorized D. G. Cash, who acted as presiding officer, to appoint a committee of five to attend the next meeting of the county board and place before the county commissioners all the arguments it is possible to make why the new building should not be erected on the old site, but at some more centrally located point.

This committee will also confer with the Duluth Commercial club and the West Duluth Commercial club, before the county board meeting, with a view of securing committees from those two business organizations to also interview the county commissioners as to the preferences of the business men and the people at large.

Ever since the last meeting the board of county commisioners there has been a great deal of dissatisfaction because of the action of the commissioners in practically deciding on the old site for the location of the new building, when they directed the county attorney to begin condemnation proceedings to secure the east half of the courthouse square.

Until last evening no decisive step had been taken by the objectors to the old site, and the lawyers have mercly taken the initiative in the matter with the hope of so stirring up public sentiment against the action of the commissioners in selecting present courthouse site, that the board will rescind its action relative to the beginning of condemnation proceedings and select a site that will be more agreeable to the majority of the people.

* * *

The meeting was called to order shortly after 8 o'clock, D. G. Cash being the unanimous choice of those present for chairman and Henry S. Mahon was elected secretary.

Among those present were the following attorneys: L. C. Harris, H. H. Phelps, T. S. Wood,, A. N. McGindley, D. G. Cash, Alexander Marshall, A. L. Agatin, H. S. Mahon, W. G. Crosby, J. M. McClintock, M. C. Palmer, H. H. Hawkins, Frank A. Day, W. D. Bailey, H. J. Grannis, John H. Norton, A. H. Crassweller, R. R. Briggs, O. H. Simonds, C. E. Adams, Warren Whipple, T. J. McKeon, C. D. Keyes, W. E. Green, W. O. Pealer, William Harrison, S. T. Harrison, H. B. Fryberger, T. C. Himebaugh, D. M. DeVore, C. S. Wilson, E. F. Alford and Walter Case, of Cloquet.

Besides the lawyers there was a sprinkling of business and professional men from various parts of the city.

Henry S. Mahon stated the object, that the meeting was called to discuss the location of the new county courthouse and get an expression of the wishes of the legal fraternity as to the advisability of selecting the old. He called attention to the fact that the county commissioners had already instructed the county attorney to begin condemnation proceedings to secure for courthouse grounds the remainder of the block in which the present county buildings stand.

A. L. Agatin, examiner of titles under the Torrens law, was called upon to give some information as to the present title of the courthouse grounds. Mr. Agatin said that he had not gone into the matter to any extent and his information was based largely on hearsay. He said he had read the deed one day while looking for some other papers in the vault of the register of deeds.

Assistant County Attorney W. G. Crosby came into the meeting at this juncture and he was called on to give the attorneys an idea of the present conditions. Mr. Crosby said, in part:

"The deed which runs to St. Louis county from Judge Ensign is without any mention of the word 'trustee.' This transfer was made on condition that the county commisioners erect, maintain and use buildings for county court and county offices.

"In the absence of any word to indicate that the use is to be perpetual, a question arises as to whether or not the county has fulfilled the conditions. The contention of the county at the present time is that the conditions have been fulfilled.

"Whether other questions are involved in the suit I am not at liberty to say now. I understand that Judge Ensign never claimed any interest in the property save as a trustee.

"On instruction of the county commissioners I have commenced an action which is to clear title and to decide whether the county has a right to the courthouse property now occupied. The papers were served on Judge Ensign about ten days ago.

"So far as the other suit is concerned—the condemnation proceedings—at a meeting before the last one the commissioners directed me to start proceedings but as there was a string attached to their instruction I waited until the last meeting and explained what the beginning of condemnation proceedings meant. After some discussion, however, I was instructed to go ahead. Some of the commissioners had evidently understood at the previous meeting that no steps were to be taken to acquire any new property until settlement was made on the question of title of the old site. I have not yet started the condemnation proceedings.

"There has been no regular action taken by the commissioners to indicate their choice of a site but they have been talking it over and most of them seem to favor the center of the block where the courthouse now stands as a site for the new building.

"The starting of the condemnation proceedings will entail some expense and the inference will be that the commissioners will build there.

"Mr. Kugler was the author of the resolution to start the proceedings."

In response to T. S. Wood's question as to the approximate cost of the rest of the courthouse square, Mr. Crosby said his estimate offhand would be about $40,000.

* * *

Judge McGindley started the general discussion by moving that a resolution be adopted that it should be the sense of the meeting that the county board should proceed without delay to purchase a more centrally located site and start to build the new courthouse just as soon as the funds are available.

Mr. McGindley then proceeded to make a statement as to what he believed the conditions to be. He said that years ago somebody donated the county grounds for a courtyard on which it built the present "remarkable structure." He declared that the county has not one cent invested in the property, and its sole investment on the property has been the erection of a jail.

"What is the use," said Judge McGindley, "of people situated as we are here, to want somebody to give us ground on which to build a courthouse? We ought to go to work in equity and pay back the donors a fair rent for using the ground for the past twenty-five years. We have no right to the ground. What if it is a total loss—there are men right here who have lost more money through bad investments than the courthouse grounds are worth, yet they are solvent.

"This is no time to play the baby act and place ourselves in the light of paupers. The county commissioners ought to be rebuked for trying to impose on us so. It is absurd. Here is a county with 140,000 people, and property worth millions of dollars. If we have to go out in some sequestered vale to build a new courthouse, in God's name let's go where it can be seen. Let's go out to the normal school district. The street railway company will get just as much money and will have to expend only a little more power.

"It's a cheeky performance to undertake to put up such a job on the people of this city and county and the county commissioners ought to be ashamed of themselves."

* * *

H. H. Phelps then spoke. He said in part: "I have been afraid that this matter was going by default. I am glad to see this meeting. Duluth is a peculiar city in the matter of its topography. This city will continue to stretch out, the bulk of the population will reside far from the business center, but the business center will always be right where it is now.

"The people living far out will always have business to transact down here, and in connection with their trading they will have more or less business to transact at the city hall or the courthouse. It will be an imposition to subject them to the inconvenience of coming to the business part of town, pay two fares to go up the hill and back, and then make another trip to the city hall in another direction. That is not fair.

"There has been considerable discussion in the West Duluth Commercial club relative to this courthouse site matter and a resolution of the club, asking that the new building be erected as soon as possible and as close as possible to the business portion of the city has been sent to the county commissioners, but has received no consideration at their hands. Commissioner Kauppi was present at the meeting when the resolution was passed and he expressed himself in accordance with the sentiments there given.

"I had come to the conclusion that two or three county commissioners were going to build the new courthouse where they want to without regard to our desires or to the convenience of the public.

"I believe that The Herald ought to have our vote of thanks for the stand it has taken in this mataer of sites and for the interest it has shown in taking up and spreading the notice of this meeting.

"I believe that the lawyers ought to take a hand in the matter. If the majority of the people wanted the old site then I would favor it, but I know they do not want it and that they do want it in some locality where the courthouse will be more conveniently reached.

"I believe that the sentiment of the majority of the people is that the city hall and courthouse ought to be under one roof. That would be the greatest convenience and we ought to have a proper site for that purpose.

"Just remember that this courthouse building is not a matter of convenience to ourselves alone, but for our posterity. I hope that public sentiment will be so aroused that the county commissioners will not dare to build on the old site."

* * *

L. C. Harris was called on for an expression of his sentiments. He said:

"I am opposed to the old site. The only reason that I have heard advanced for the old site, in fact the only reason that can be advanced is the financial consideration of the value of the old site. Everybody must concede, so far as the question of convenience is concerned, that the courthouse is now in an out-of-the-way place.

"Now let us consider this matter of expense, considering that we might lose the old site by moving. It seems to me that if we are to lose the old site and its buildings, the county will lose more to build on the other half of the block at the old site than it will lose by purchasing and using a new site elsewhere.

"We all know that in a city the size of Duluth thousands and thousands of people visit the court house during the course of the year, some of them on the average of five times a year. Some have to go there very often. Nearly every person takes a car to go up there and a car to come back, thus spending 10 cents. In the course of a year the amount of money paid in street car fares will run up to a very large figure. I believe that if we took every cent spent for car fare and capitalized it at a rate of interest that could be easily procured, the sum total would be more than the cost of a new location and building. If the court house were located near the business center not a cent would be paid out by the people in car fare.

"Now as to the matter of convenience: Whenever an attorney goes to the court house he loses a great deal of time. For instance during this term I have already lost thirty-six hours from my business simply from staying up there to watch the calendar.

"Our clients are certainly gullible if they think that their attorneys are going to donate this loss of time. I tell you it gets into the bill in one way or another and the client pays for the extra time in the end. If the people look at it from this point of view they cannot say that the lawyers are the only class of people to be benefited by a more conveniently located court house.

"Then, too, we must remember that Duluth is not the whole county. The range trains bring hundreds of people here every day, possibly most of them taxpayers. Many of these people come down to transact business at the court house and we should make it as convenient for them as possible. As the conditions now are, they come in on trains arriving at noon. After getting their dinner they have scarcely time to transact business at the court house and catch the afternoon trains home.

"Then there is another consideration: It is getting to be the practice in many cities of consolidating the city and county government under one roof. It is only a question of a little time when this city will need a new city hall. Duluth and St. Louis county could, when that time comes, combine their building funds and build a magnificent structure that would satisfy our civic pride and result in saving money to both the city and the county.

"We have here a federal court that is going to have more frequent sessions as time goes on. Our district court will have an increased business as the county and city grows. There are times when some of the lawyers have cases on call in both the federal and the district court.

"I believe it would be a matter of greatest convenience to have the next county court house built within a block or two of the federal building.

"It strikes me that the man who claims we ought to build on the old site for fear we are going to lose some money does so as a protest to cover up something, or else he reflects on the good sense of the taxpayers of this city and county."

* * *

S. T. Harrison said: "It seems to me that half a block is enough for a courthouse. The county commissioners should not condemn the other half of the block where the court house now stands. If they do we must build on it for common sense will tell anybody that while the new court house is building the old courthouse must be used, in fact there is not another building in the city that would be suitable for county court house purposes if the old building were torn down to permit of a new building on its site.

"Now the taxpayers of this county do not want a new court house building on the other half of that block. If we must stay in the block the old location is by far the best, but the old building cannot be torn down until the new one is ready for use.

"We can come down to the center of Duluth and get a block for at least $80,000.

"We should have a reasonable limit within which to build a court house and that is why I suggest Lake avenue and Sixth avenue west on two sides and Second street as the farthest point north. There are some good sites within those limits."

At this time, Mr. Agatin suggested that the location of a new building should be made with an idea to symmetery, that it would be absurd to build a handsome structure on the old site.

John Norton was in favor of the courthouse location more centrally located. He said a courthouse should be built with an eye to the esthetic as well as to utility. He advocated the idea of a joint county courthouse and city hall.

O. H. Simonds concurred with the other attorneys as to the selection of a more convenient site and said that it would not be easy to find another city in this state where the municipal and the county buildings are so inconveniently placed as regards each other. He held that the attorney is a representative man and that when he speaks for convenience he speaks for the people he represents.

"We want a central location and a fine building," said Mr. Simonds, "and this county is in good financial condition to build it now."

William Harrison suggested the idea of bringing influence to bear on the county commissioners to drop further action until special legislation can be had to get the courthouse and city hall under one roof.

L. C. Harris suggested a committee to interview the commisisoners and to get the cooperation of other bodies in the matter of a new site. He said there was another matter to consider. Whether the taxpayers desire the new courthouse built under the direction of the county commissioners or by a commission to be appointed by the judges of district court.

After H. H. Hawkins and others had spoken for a new site, Alfred Jacques made the only talk of the evening in favor of the old site. Mr. Jacques declared that the reasons given by the others for a change of sites did not appeal to him. He believed the old site the best fitted in every way for the erection of a new courthouse and denied that it was so great an inconvenience to go up there as some had inferred. Mr. Jacques held that if the courthouse were built nearer the business center the noise and crowds would be annoying features. From a sentimental point of view he thought the old site the best, that it was given to the county for the purpose and he did not like the idea of doing away with the old habit of going up the hill to the courthouse.

LIFE SENTENCE

Given Indian For Murder In Second Degree.

Aitkin, Minn., May 20.—Sandy Boy, a Sandy Lake Indian, was brought into court here, and, pleading guilty to murder in the second degree, was sentenced to Stillwater for life by Judge McClenahan, of the district court.

The crime for which the Indian was sentenced was the murder of another Indian named Joe Agonosh, Nov. 3 last, north of McGregor. Sandy Boy tried to pick a quarrel with Agonosh, but the latter walked away and tried to avoid him. Sandy Boy then deliberately shot Agonosh in the left eye, instant death resulting. There has been bad blood between the Indians for some time.

George Cati is now being tried for the murder of Christ Hanson, a young man who lived at Minneapolis, which also occurred a short distance north of McGregor, on Jan. 25. Cati was a teamster and Hanson was riding with him. Hanson was found a few hours afterward, and the physicians ascertined that he had been struck thirty-seven times on the head with a hammer. Hanson lived a couple of days and he charged Cati with making an attack upon him.

NINE NOLLES FOR DR. AMES

The Single Remaining Case Will Go Over the Term.

Minneapolis, May 20.—Former Mayor A. A. Ames will probably not be tried next week. The case in which he is charged with receiving a $20 bribe from Bessie Lee will probably be continued over the term, and all of the other nine indictments now standing against him nolled.

Dr. Ames' attorneys urged an immediate trial, but it is hinted that they are not extremely averse to a continuance. County Attorney F. H. Boardman said yesterday that the Bessie Lee case would probably be reset for next Monday, and that he would be ready to proceed with the trial at that time.

But the fall cases take precedence on the criminal calendar, and with one manslaughter and numerous other cases waiting, the men actually in prison cannot be disposed of before the end of the term. For that reason Judge Elliott, in charge of the criminal calendar, will not be able to take up the Ames case again this term, and so stated yesterday.

The only thing left is to secure another judge to take charge of Dr. Ames' third trial. Each of the other judges has enough civil business to occupy his time for the rest of the term.

Dr. Ames' lawyers will undoubtedly ask a nolle for the other indictments if the case goes over the term, and owing to former continuances, the motion will have to be granted.

It is rumored that the defense is preparing a little coup in the way of habeas corpus proceedings, by which it is hoped to bring directly before the supreme court their contention that Dr. Ames cannot be legally tried on the Bessie Lee indictment, owing to his plea of former jeopardy.

The plan is for the Ames bondsmen to surrender their principal, who will then promptly apply for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that he is unlawfully held owing to former jeopardy on the same charge.

In case the writ is issued, the question would be argued in the district court and if decided against the defendant, an appeal would be taken and heard immediately by the supreme court.

If a writ is denied the defendant will apply to the supreme court and the argument heard there first hand.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Former Newberry Man Killed Mother and Sister In Finland.

Newberry—Word has been received that Carl Carlson, who was last winter deported to Finland, became hopelessly insane after reaching home, and in a fit of ungovernable rage murdered his mother and sister. He was fatally wounded before he was overpowered, dying the following day. Carlson was an inmate of the Luce county house and was afterward committed to the Upper Peninsula hospital for the insane. Later he was deported to Finland.

Munising—The C. H. Worcester shingle and tie mill at Munising has commenced operations for the season. L. F. Chapman is the local manager. The mill has been remodeled and now all shingles are made by the thousand. About fifty hands are employed at present.

Manistique—Joseph Prato, who had been ill at Camp 6, out from Manistique, for several days, was found to be suffering with smallpox and has been quarantined in a shanty near the camp. A considerable number of men were exposed to the disease, and close watch over them is now being kept.

Sault Ste. Marie—Mitchell Fitzer, arrested at the Soo, has been bound over to the next term of the United States district court at Marquette under bonds of $500. It is alleged that Fitzer smuggled half a dozen cheap watches into this country. They were worth about $2.50 each. Some of the officers believe the young man was ignorant of the fact that he was violating the law.

If Miss Marjorie Esler maintains her present intentions the name of the man who so brutally assaulted her near the Fourth street bridge at the Soo, will never be made public. Miss Esler, it is said, undoubtedly knows who her assailant is, but for reasons known only to herself refuses to tell either the police officers or others. She has been moved from the hospital and has returned to the home of her mother on Sugar Island.

Charles Ahearn swore in the trial of Frank Chapel that he paid between $800 and $1000 "protection money" to Chapel to keep the police from closing his gaming rooms. Chapel is charged by the grand jury with conspiracy to defeat the ends of justice.

Iron Mountain—Frank Jackson, aged 20, who several months ago disappeared from Niagara, Wis., in a mysterious manner, has not been found and the St. Peter and Paul societies of this city are offering a reward for his body, dead or alive.

ASSEMBLY OF PRESBYTERIANS

Several Annual Reports Made to Convention at Mobile.

Mobile, Ala., May 20.—Several reports which will be taken up later, were today given out at the general assembly of the Southern Presbyterian church in the United States. The executive committee on ministerial relief reported that there has been on the role for the year the names of 152 beneficiaries—forty-three ministers and 106 widows and thirteen orphans. The treasurer's books show credits to the annual fund of $19,803 which is an increase of $2767 over the credits of the preceding year and an increase of $9237 over the average annual receipts, not including legacies under the old regime known as the invalid fund.

The credits to the endofment fund aggretate $21,052, being an increase during the year of $13,765. The total amount on hand for both funds was $40,855, which is an increase of $16,493 over the funds in hand during the preceding year.

The executive committee on home missions reported that the third year of the present administration closes the most successful in all the history of the church. The contributions exceeded last year's by $28,256.

The largest part of the home mission fund is expended in Arkansas, Florida and Texas. The committee suggests that the assembly recognize the great demands under the new plan of home missions, and asks the presbyteries to contribute each its pro rata share of $100,000, in order to assist the weaker presbyteries.

The education committee report shows that the sum of $21,469 has been received this year as against $20,497 last year.

The report of the executive committee of colored evangelization states that thirty partors and evangelists are ministering to eighty-five churches. On a profession of faith 334 members have been received. The committee states that it regards the Sunday schools conducted by white superintendents and teachers as one of the most efficient evangelistic agencies among the colored people. Gifts to the cause for the year were $8612.

The executive committee of publication reports that of the $13,000 outstanding accounts on April 1, 1903, over $10,000 has been closed. Collections for the year for the cause of publication and Sabbath school work amounted to $12,653. The sum of $19,782 was expended in donations and field work.

The report of the treasurer shows a cash balance of $10,766 on hand March 31, 1904.

St. Paul, Minneapolis and Return, $4.30.

May 20 and 21: "The North-Western Line" will sell excursion tickets to St. Paul and Mineapolis at $4.30, for the roun dtrip, account Knights of Pythias celebration.

ISLE ROYALE AS A RESORT

Coming Into Wider Prominence—Large Patronage This Year.

A Kansas state official, residing at Topeka, in writing to a friend in Duluth, makes the perdiction that Isle Royale will become the most popular summer resort along the lakes. The manifold attractions of the beautiful island are fast becoming known to outsiders, particularly through the West, and the man in question, who has spent two or three seasons at the resort, says that the pleasure seekers and hay fever patients will flock to it in ever-increasing numbers until his prediction is carried out. He is again coming to Isle Royale this summer, and will bring with him a party of a dozen or more friends.

If the prediction proves to be a correct one, and local people who have visited the island believe most emphatically that it will, it will be greatly to the advantage of Duluth, for this condition of affairs would largely contribute to the revenues of the Zenith City interests generally, and would be the means of getting more new people here each summer.

Residents of the island are now making preparations to receive their summer visitors, and men who make fishing their business are just about starting in on their season's work. The first contingent of fishermen for the island left Duluth last Sunday, on the steamer America, and lighthouse keepers for the island also left on that boat, relieving the keepers who have been at Isle Royale through the winter. The Booth and White "ne steamers have now settled into their regular runs to the island and other north shore points. The trip to the island is in itself a delight on the modern boats provided, and takes less than twenty-four hours.

BRIGANDS THE SAME

That Captured Times Correspondent Last Year.

Paris, May 20.—United States Consul General Gummer, at Tangier, Morocco, telegraphs confirming the reports that the brigand band which captured Perdicaris, an American citizen, and Cromwell Varley, a British subject, is the same that captured Mr. Harris, the London Times correspondent, last year. Besides capturing the men, members of the band assaulted the women of the Perdicaris party. The British and American representatives at Tangier are taking energetic measures to obtain the release of the captives, and the Moorish authorities are assisting them.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

The Rush For Rosebud Lands Will Be Enormous.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Chamberlain—Although the Rosebud Indian reservation in the southeastern part of South Dakota will not be open to settlers until July 5, preparations are already making to provide transportation for the large crowds expected to take up the 382,000 acres.

The Milwaukee and the North-Western, the two roads which run nearest the reservation, are arranging to take care of 25,000 persons. Railway officials are already receiving 300 or 400 letters a day, making inquiry about the lands.

The Rosebud lands will be open for inspection between July 5 and 25, but before one can go on the land it will be necessary to register at Chamberlain, Yankton, Bonesteel or Fairfax.

Most of the inquiries so far received by the railroad officials come from the central western states, but many are from the East and South.

Aberdeen—No trace of William Ziegler, the alleged murderer of DeWitt Bilby, near Groton, has been obtained during the past twenty-four hours. Ziegler was last seen in Hecla at 9 o'clock Sunday night, and it is believed by the sheriff's office that he is still in that vicinity in hiding. About 100 men are in search for him over the northern part of Brown county, many being stimulated in the search by the statutory reward of $100 and the understanding that the commissioners of the county will make the reward much larger. The description of Ziegler is given as follows: Age 25 to 30 years; weight 170 to 180 pounds; light complexion; smooth face; blue eyes; light hair, quite long, trimmed square at back. When last seen had on striped clothing, light colored coat and vest, new short black overcoat.

Yankton—Tony Geisler, of Hudson, died at Sacred Heart hospital here from wounds received, it is supposed, by falling off the Platte excursion train returning home Sunday night. Geisler was found unconscious between here and Gayville, close to the track. A fracture of the skull over the right ear, in which a large piece of bone was driven over an inch into the skull, was the cause of death.

Fort Meade—The macadamizing of the roads throughout this post is well under way and will make a noticeable difference in the appearance of the place.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Minot—The Soo line agent at this point denies the report published recently that Brakeman W. E. Laning was killed in a wreck a short time ago.

Fargo—Owners of houses in the tenderloin district are up in arms. Some of them are prominent business men. Sheriffs and their deputies served notice on the owners of the property and the landladies of the houses to appear before Judge Pollock on May 28, to show cause why they should not be permanently enjoined from using the property for immoral purposes. The city has levied a system of monthly fines on the houses for some years, which has operated as a license.

Wahpeton—Democrats of Richland county talk of putting J. A. Rickert in the race for county treasurer this year.

LAKE ORE SITUATION

Not Strong, and No Sales Reported Lately.

Cleveland, May 20.—The Iron Trade Review says: Ore sellers, who have tried to find the amount of ore available for furnaces in territory tributary to Lake Superior have figures which show a total of about 11,000,000 tons. This covers the situation as of May 1. Of this total 4,500,000 tons is on Lake Erie docks and about 6,500,000 tons in all furnace yards, including those of the United States Steel corporation, as well as ore stocks at Lake Erie furnaces. The amount computed to be on hand is about a five months' supply at the present rate of consumption.

The lake ore situation is not strong. No sales have been reported lately, but consumers are usually backward about buying, and the reason is well understood, in view of the open ore market. The producers of Bessemer and basic iron are actuated by caution growing out of the narrow market for their product at present and the foundry pig iron producer, by a fear that later developments in the iron ore market may give a competitor an advantage as to price. The first cargo of ore was shipped from the head of Lake Superior early this week. No general movement is yet contemplated or possible. The situation does not warrant the belief there will be any movement of ore very soon. The strike of the masters and pilots of the lakes seems more than ever the beginning of a determined contest, since negotiations looking to a settlement of the difficulty have been abandoned.

MURPHY'S HEALTH

Broken and He Will Seek a Rest.

New York, May 20.—Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany hall, was the central figure in a swarm of rumors last night among the leaders of the organization, of which he is master. Mr. Murphy has not been seen even by his closets friends since the middle of last week, and all efforts to get at him on the part of the leaders who wished to obtain instructions have proved in vain.

It was asserted that Mr. Murphy was on the verge of nervous prostration, and that his physician had told him he could avoid a complete breakdown only by leaving the city at once. It was said that he already had slipped out of the city and taken refuge in Hot Springs, Va.

WILL PLAY FASHIONS

Fast Cloquet Nine Will Come to Duluth for Game.

The fast Cloquet team will come to Duluth for a game Sunday with the Duluth Fashions.

The Cloquet nine claims the amateur championship of Northern Minnesota for 1903 and has won both games played this year, defeating the West Duluth nine and Mork's team. Houle, the Indian pitcher, who twirled for Superior last season, will be in the box Sunday.

The Fashions will have a strong team in the field. Either Lovell or Lowe will be in the box, and Potter will catch. Carroll will cover first, Thompson second and Francis third. Peterson will play shortstop and the outfield will be chosen from Berg, Bennett, Rondeau and Allen.

The game will be called at 3:30 o'clock and it should prove a fast and exciting exhibition.

SEVEN BISHOPS ARE CHOSEN

Methodists Add Drs. Burt, Wilson and Day to List.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 20.—Dr. William Burt was elected bishop on the fifth ballot in the M. E. general conference which was announced this morning. Dr. T. B. Neely was second highest on the fifth ballot with 441 votes. Dr. L. B. Wilson, third, with 422. Dr. R. J. Cook received 374 and Dr. J. W. Ebower 207. J. C. Jennings had 208, George P. Eckman 137, C. W. Smith 134, J. R. Day 131.

Dr. Burt received 534 votes which was considerably over a two-thirds majority of votes cast on the fifth ballot.

Rev. Dr. Wilson, presiding elder at Baltimore, on the sixth ballot received 482 out of 711 votes. Dr. Neely received 442 on th sixth ballot, Dr. Cook 342, Dr. Day 235, Jennings 188, Bowen (colored) 155, Smith 132, William A. Quayle 59, Eckman 50.

The sentiment turned very strong toward Dr. Day and he was elected on the seventh ballot.

Seven of the eight bishops to be elected by the conference have been now chosen. The list so far named stands: Joseph F. Berry, Henry Spellmeler, William McDowell, James Bashford, William Burt, Dr. Luther Wilson and Dr. J. R. Day.

W. F. Siewert, in the Spalding block, has just received all the late and new things in fancy vests, negligee shirts and summer caps, at the regular prices.

TRAFFIC AGREEMENT

Between Pere Marquette and M., M. & N. Roads.

Detroit, May 20.—General Manager Carpenter, of the Pere Marquette railroad system, today announced that arrangements have been made by which the Manistique, Marquette & Northern railroad will work in harmony with the Pere Marquette system, giving the latter road a traffic agreement that will enable it to go after business in the upper peninsula. The car ferry service that has been operated by the Manistique, Marquette & Northern between Northport and Manistique has been abandoned and instead will be operated between Ludington and Manistique. Ludington is a Pere Marquette car ferry port.

POSTMASTER AT OWATONNA

Postmaster General Payne Selects James M. Diment.

Washington, May 20.—Little business of importance was transacted at today's meeting of the cabinet, only four members of the body being present, the other five being out of town.

Secretary Courtelyou and Postmaster General Payne remained in consultation with the president for a considerable time after the meeting adjourned. Their conference related entirely to politics.

Mr. Payne announced that the appointment of the following postmaster had been decided upon:

Minnesota—Owatonna, James M. Diment.

CUBANS CELEBRATE.

Havana, May 20.—The second anniversary of Cuba's independence was celebrated here today. While the day was very generally celebrated by individuals, there were few public demonstrations. All work and business was suspended.

NOVELIST EGGED

By Citizens of Town He Had Ridiculed.

Crawfordsville, Ind., May 20.—When James B. Elmore, the "Bard of the Alamo," wrote his last novel, "Twenty-Five Years in Jackville," the aspersions he cast upon that community aroused the resentment of its citizens. Yesterday morning Elmore visited the town to sell his books, and the people gave him a rousing welcome at the expense of all the setting hens in the neighborhood.

As the "Bard" stepped from the post-office he was greeted by a fusilade of odorous eggs. Volley after volley was directed against him. His nose was broken by a duck egg hurled from a distance of fifteen feet.

Elmore, clutching his bundle of books, ran for his buggy, followed by the hooting mob. The horse and vehicle were battered and besmeared as the bard, lashing the animal into a run, esaped.

He was well enough after reaching Sugar Creek to wash his buggy, and declared when questioned: "I thought before I went there that those Jackvillelites weren't up to pure literature yet. Now I know it."

ORDER FOR HEARING APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATOR—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis—ss.

In Probate Court, Special Term, May 20th, 1904.

In the Matter of the Estate of Mathilda Peterson, Deceased:

On receiving and filing the petition of Charles H. Peterson, of the county of Benton, Minn., representing, among other things, that Mathilda Peterson, late of the county of St. Louis, in the state of Minnesota, on the 6th day of May, A. D. 1904, at the county of St. Louis, died intestate, and being an inhabitant of this county at the time of her death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county, and that the said petitioner is a brother of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to Charles Benson granted;

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before said court on Monday, the 13th day of June, A. D. 1904, at ten o'clock a. m., at the probate office, in the courthouse in the city of Duluth, in said county.

Ordered further, that notice hereof be given to the heirs of said deceased and to all persons interested by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in The Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, the 20th day of May, A. D. 1904.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

FIRES ARE RAGING

Several Blazing in Forests of Wisconsin Visible From Duluth.

One Near Hawthorne Covers Entire Section of Land.

The smoke of no less than nine separate and distinct forest fires in northern Wisconsin, within thirty miles of Duluth and Superior, is visible from Duluth this afternoon. Most of them are comparatively small ones, making their way through dry swamps and sections which have already been burned over, and sending up only little columns of smoke, but one or two have attained large and threatening proportions, and seem to be spreading rapidly.

The biggest fire is reported to be about three miles to the east and north of the little town of Hawthorne. A whole section of land, 640 acres, is said to be already covered by the blaze. There is not a high wind blowing, but in spite of this fact the fire has gained good headway, and it shows no indications of dying away.

There has been so little rain this spring that this section of the country is becoming parched for want of water. In many places through the woods and dead and down trees have become so dry that they burn readily.

Weather Forecaster Richardson says that this is the time for thunder storms and that he looks for showers within a day or two. There is very apt to be rain tonight or tomorrow, but a heavy downpour, such as would be needed to entirely extinguish the forest fires, is hardly anticipated.

Later reports show the Hawthorne fire to be slashings which were recently cut over. Little good timber is left on them to be destroyed, and as far as can be learned there seems to have been no great damage as yet to farmers and settlers, although it is considered very likely that some of them will be burned out of their homes unless the fire is brought under control. Another fire which has attained large proportions is about one mile east of the town of Nebagamon. Owing to the fact that little wind is blowing the town itself is not thought to be in danger at present.

Festival In Minneapolis Takes Place Saturday and Sunday.

Two Hundred Fifty to Go From Duluth and Ranges.

Arrangements have been completed by the local lodges of the Knights of Pythias for the excursion to Minneapolis for the festival which occurs in that city May 21 and 22.

A large delegation of the Knights of Pythias from Duluth and the ranges will attend the festival, the estimated number being in the neighborhood of 250.

The excursion will leave Duluth, carrying the members of the order from this city, Superior and the range towns, at 10:45 o'clock Saturday morning, via the Great Northern road. A special train has been engaged for the occasion, and this will be equipped with dining cars to accommodate the passengers.

The excursion will also carry a great many people who are not members of the order, but who wish to take advantage of the low fare. The return limit expires Monday night, the tickets being good returning over any of the roads to Duluth.

The Knights of Pythias are using every effort to make the excursion a success, and are extending an invitation to the general public to join them on the excursion and subsequent celebration.

Two companies of the uniform rank of the Knights of Pythias will attend from Duluth and go down with the crowd.

PRESS PARLIAMENT

Opens Second Day's Session With Large Attendance.

St. Louis, May 20.—The second session of the World's Press parliament was held today in Festival hall and when the convention was called to order every seat in the hall was occupied by delegates, representing the greatest assemblage of journalists from all parts of the world ever before congregated.

The opening session last night included many friends of delegates and visitors but today the convention was attended almost solely by delegates.

John Ferguson, of Colombo, Ceylon, was the first speaker.

William Hill, of the London Dispatch, made the next address and gave a review of English newspapers.

"The province of the magazine," was the subject of an address by Dr. Shaller Matthews of Chicago.

TO LEAVE THE ARMY.

How a Young Man Got Out on a Bet.

There were four of us in a smoking room of the Pullman as it rapidly sped on toward the Golden Gate, says a writer in the Kansas City Star. Three of the men knew each other. I was the stranger. I soon gathered from their talk that they were old army officers. Now a tale of experiences during the civil war, now a tale of Santiago, now some experience in the Philippines. Finally the telling of tales drifted to some of the ways the soldier takes getting out of the army without deserting. One of these ways is known officially as malinggering, in the pattern of the soldier, "sogering."

I got to know these three fine wearers of the army blue quite well before the broad Pacific came to our gaze, and two of their tales along the line of "sogering" struck me as so good that I repeat them. To beat the doctor, or the surgeon, as he is termed in the army, is considered proper among one class of enlisted men, if a man can "fool" the surgeon and get off from a duty, he is thought to have done only what he was justified in doing. If he can so "fool" the surgeon and higher authorities as to get his discharge from the army, so much the better. The surgeons are pretty well "on to their job," as the phrase goes, but once in a while some smart fellow pulls the wool over their eyes. Insanity is often feigned, but this has its disadvantages, as the man must, if proved insane, be sent to the asylum in Washington, unless his parents can obtain his discharge and take him into their hands for proper care. The two cases told of come under this head. One captain's story ran about in this way:

"A number of years ago I was stationed in the West, and during a time when the Indians were not as good citizens as they are now. We frequently had to make 'hikes' after them and bring them back to the reservation.

"A large batch of recruits—'rookies,' as we called them—arrived at the post. Among them was a big, fine-looking fellow, who showed from his bearing and general get-up that he was 'to the manner born.' Each captain hoped that he would get the fellow in his company, for he had the car-marks of a good company clerk and future noncommissioned officer. The captain who was lucky enough to get him learned nothing about him except that he was from New York and wanted to see life in the army. A little while after dinner at noon the first sergeant looked for the new man, but could not find him about the barracks of the company. He sent men to hunt him in other barracks, but no trace could be found of him. About this time the telephone connecting the commanding officers quarters and the guard house began to 'sound off' most furiously. The officer of the guard replied and the commanding officers' remarks were about like this, and delivered in a most excited tone: 'Lieut. Smith, come over to my quarters at once with half a dozen of the guard. There is a wild, crazy man in my house; one of the recruits that came this morning, and he needs quick attention. Hurry along!' Lieut Smith went at a double time with several members of the guard across the parade ground to the quarters of the commanding officer, who met him at the front porch.

"'That 'rookie' is just wild crazy,' he said; 'take him to the guardhouse and send for the surgeon. He is a fit subject for a strait-jacket.'

"The officer of the guard went into the house and found the fine-looking fellow seated at the dining room table with a glass of whisky and water in front of him. His feet were on the table and he was smoking a cigarette. He asked the officer of the guard to 'join him,' which offer was declined. When told to come to the guardhouse a lively mix-up took place between the fine young fellow and the guard. He was finally overcome and placed in a strait-jacket by direction of the surgeon, who pronounced the man raving mad. What took place in the commanding officer's house was told by the officer next day. He said on his return to his quarters he heard the piano going, and on walking into the parlor he discovered the man seated at the piano and playing some soft piece beautifully. He yelled: 'What are you doing there?' when the man calmly turned around on the piano stool and softly said: 'Hold up, my man, till I finish this piece; it is most lovely. I will attend to your case when I am through, but you must not worry me now.' He then spun around on the stool and finished the piece with a loud finale. By this time the colonel was wild, and yelled: 'What in the blankety blank do you mean by this?' The fine young fellow spun around on the stool, and holding both ears in his hands as if the yelling of the colonel hurt his ears, replied softly: 'Now, my man, if you have any trouble to state to the commanding officer, tell him quietly, but do not yell so, for if you do I will be compelled to send you to the guardhouse, and that quickly. Now tell me what is the trouble, for I will not have any man of my post badly treated, and you appear to be laboring under some excitement as if you were in trouble.'

"The colonel was speechless as the fine young man arose and said: 'Well, come in and have a drink with me. That may make you feel better.'

"The surgeon sent off papers recommending that the man be sent to the asylum at Washington, as he was undoubtedly insane. The father of the fine young fellow got wind of the matter, and in a few days arrived at the post with a discharge for him and took him away. He went quietly, and nothing more was heard of him for some time, when the truth of the matter came out. It seems that the fine young fellow was the son of a rich business man in New York. He was a college graduate and had 'hit the pace' for some time. One day he made a bet of $1000 that he yould enlist in the army and get out within a month without deserting, buying out or making use of any political influence. And he did so with seven days' grace.

The other captain's story ran as follows, so near as I can recall it: The captain was stationed in California at a post nowhere near Indians, except those in front of the cigar stores in the nearby city. Among the batch of recruits came a big, husky fellow, who was very quiet and well liked by the men of his company. In a few weeks the man seemed to grow quieter and to stay by himself and have little to say to anyone. One afternoon he was excused from dress parade by the surgeon on account of sickness. Just as parade was formed the big fellow was seen to rush across the parade in front of the commanding officer. In his hands he carried a pair of lineman's climbers. He stopped at the foot of the tall flagstaff, and before he could be stopped he had strapped on the climbers and raced up the stair. On the crosstrees, half way up, he sat, Old Glory fluttering to the breeze over his head. Parade over, the guard, the officers and many others gathered at the foot of the staff and the man was commanded to come down. He paid no attention to the commands of anyone or to the threat of the commanding officer that he would have him shot if he did not come down. He took from his pocket a pair of field glasses and scanned the country in all directions for about half an hour, when he closed up the glass and descended into the hands of the guard at the foot of the staff. As he was being marched off to the guardhouse he remarked: 'I did not see any coming.' 'See any what?' asked the sergeant of the guard. 'Why, Indians. The Modocs are coming to attack the post, and I am on the watch for them.'

"The sergeant talked with the man, who was quiet and seemed rational on every subject save the one that the post was in danger of being attacked by Indians. In a day or two he was released from the guardhouse, and in half an hour was up the staff again and at the same business of watching for the Indians. No threats or commands would induce the man to come down or make any reply. At the end of three hours he came down 'from off his perch,' and in a day or two papers were sent in recommending his discharge, not on the ground of insanity, which would have necessitated his being sent to the asylum, but on account of unfitness for the service.

"His discharge papers were given to him, and as he passed out of the post a member of the guard said to him: 'Well, how about the Indians now? See any?' The big fellow turned around when off the reservation and out the gate, and with a smile that was 'child-like and bland,' replied: 'Indians, hell! You army fellows certainly are a lot of jays.' He had been a lineman, and not satisfied with the service, had chosen a novel way to get out."

THE WENTZ AFFAIR.

His Death Is Laid to the Moonshiner.

The primitive conditions of life in the mountain counties of Virginia, Tennessee, West Virginia and Kentucky are thrown into strong light again by the discovery of the body of Edward L. Wentz, the unfortunate mine owner who disappeared last October, and, death was due, apparently, to the enmity of the moonshiner squatters on his lands. Wentz was a pioneer of the twentieth century fighting the seventeenth, says the New York Sun. When he crossed the frontier with his army of miners, furnace men, railroad hands, clerks and followers, he invaded a country where civilization had made little progress, where modern industrial organization was unknown, where feuds flourished and where the family or tribe was still the unit in governmental affairs, in practice if not in theory.

There was no question in the law couts of the validity of the title Wentz held to his lands. It came direct from the states themselves. But the men whose families had lived among the mountains with no other title to their holdings than that conferred by undisputed occupancy for a period covering generations cared little for the deeds of record. They felt that the land was truly theirs. They had cleared it, cultivated it pierced the forests with trails that stood for roads, and whatever the earth yielded to man was wrung from it by their labor. No one had ever questioned their rights of possession until this enterprising man from a distant city appeared with strange plans and projects. It was not unnatural that they resented the new order when after many years' delay it came.

The mountaineers looked upon Wentz as an unjust, despoiling enemy, come to oust them from their ancestral homes, and in a country where a man may be murdered because his great-grandfather once insulted some one else's great-grandfather's ancestors are of considerable importance. What right had this outsider to order them to move? The state they knew in the person of the sheriff, a not too popular member of the community in feud days. The United States was active only in destroying the stills on which the mountaineers depended for some of their income and all of their liquid refreshment. To kill the revenue agents was not only allowable, but a duty of every honest man. In such a society as this it is not wonderful that the up-to-date modernity of the Philadelphia capitalist, allying himself imediately with the hated revenue officers, clipping the liberty of the free mountaineers in every way, was unwelcome.

To kill him was the natural and proper method of ridding the community of an unwelcome member, according to the lights that guided them, and not a wicked or criminal act. The effort of some persons to extort a ransom from the Wentz family is the only incident in this interesting case that strikes a false note. Had that effort not been made, the whole story, would have been a simple and straightforward record of a struggle between the old and the new. The demand for a ransom was an artistic mistake. It may be that some one not of the mountain tribes was guilty of it.

The seventeenth century, living in a nook overpassed by progress, opposed Wentz, and he fell before it. It is seldom that a person of his prominence is a victim to such conditions. Usually a subordinate is sent to the front and the owner sits in the background, secure from harm except through his pocketbook. The progress of industry will wipe out such settlements as those in the Old Dominion mountains, together with their antiquated customs and habits, but until the last of them is gone they will continue to furnish tragedies almost incomprehensible to those who dwell in more advanced settlements.

STANLEY'S STORY.

No better epitome of Stanley's career has been conceived than that given by himself in his "story of four fingers," says the New York Tribune. On his return from finding Livingstone, he said, he had the honor of a public reception by the Royal Geographical society, and the especial honor of being presented "to an exceedingly distinguished personage in the scientific world," who regarded him with condescending favor, and even went so far as to shake hands with him. "He gave me," said Stanley, "one finger!"

After his second and third adventures, his explorations of the lakes and his opening of the Kongo to civilization, he was again publicly received, and this distinguished personage regarded him with even more favor than before. Again he shook hands with him. "He gave me two fingers!" Once more Stanley went to Africa to rescue the faithful Emin, and on his return he was a third time publicly received. A third time the distinguished personage condescended to smile upon him still more approvingly than before, and a third time to offer him his hand. "He gave me three fingers!"

Yet once more Stanley appeared in public, with a fair companion, Miss Dorothy Tennant, who a few months later was Lady Stanley. There once more, the distinguished personage was present, and so far condescended as to beam upon him with unreserved approval. "The throng was too great for me to get near him," said Stanley, "but I have no doubt that, had I been able to do so, he would once more have offered me his hand, and on this occasion he would have given me all four fingers!"

When moving why not engage covered vans. It costs no more.

IN AN UGLY QUARREL

Illinois Democrats' Position on the Presidency Still Open.

Hopkins' Determination to Force Carter Harrison Into Retirement.

Chicago, May 20.—Every phase of Democratic national politics in Illinois is subordinated to the determination of John P. Hopkins, former mayor of Chicago, to drive Carter H. Harrison, the present mayor, from public life, and the refusal of Harrison to be retired.

The question of whom Illinois shall be for at St. Louis is an open one. Harrison has a candidate in Representative Williams of this state. Hopkins has no candidate, although he is said to favor Parker.

And William R. Hearst is a large factor in the situation, which is much complicated.

The identity of the candidate for whom the fifty-four delegates from this state will vote is a matter of little concern just now, except to the Hearst people. The politics that is being played concerns the Harrison-Hopkins feud. Hopkins and Harrison have been enemies for years. They have fought one another at every turn.

When Harrison announced, some months ago, that he intended to be the Democratic national committeeman from this state, Hopkins sent out word that Harrison must be defeated. Meantime, Hearst opened headquarters in Chicago and put his agents at work throughout the state.

The primaries for Cook county were held on May 2. Harrison controlled the party machinery. Hopkins, in his anxiety to win, made a combination, either formal or understod, with Hearst and brought forth the anomalous situation that prevailed on primary day.

Hopkins has been a gold Democrat. He was opposed to Bryan. His combination, therefore, was with a man who supported Bryan and free silver. Hopkins and Hearst won. They assert they have elected some 326 delegates to the state convention from Cook county, leaving less than 200 for Harrison. After some days of claims and counter-claims Harrison admitted that Hopkins had beaten him.

This was well enough so far as Hopkins is concerned, on the surface, but Hopkins was not long in discovering that, in his combination with Hearst, he had built a Frankenstein. Hearst immediately announced the victory as his own and declared that the 326 delegates from Cook county elected by himself and Hopkins would go to Springfield and demand instructions from that convention for Hearst for president. Hopkins never at any time has been for Hearst for president, and he is not for him now. He tried to use Hearst as an instrument for the defeat of Harrison, but Hearst, after the victory, declined to be considered only as the means. He declared that he is the end, and is preparing to press his good fortune to the extreme limit.

Hearst's success was not remarkable. He has been making an active campaign for himself in his Chicago papers for a year. He has appealed specifically to union labor and has done many things to show his friendship for all trades organiaztions. Chicago is a great union city. Hearst secured a large following. It is doubtful if he could have won if he had not been aided by Hopkins, but neither could Hopkins have won without Hearst.

Hopkins may have looked far enough into the future to see what Hearst would do or he may not. He says nothing on that point. There never has been a Parker organization in Illinois, and but few workers for Parker have been seen here.

Hopkins dd not use Parker's name as a rallying cry. Hearst was out for himself for president, and he got more votes than Hopkins did for the combination. Hopkins never intended to go so far as to endorse Hearst. The best it was ever planned to give Hearst was one delegate-at-large and a complimentary puff in the formal convention, which would say that Hearst is a great trust buster, but would carefully refrain from saying that he is the right man for the Democratic nomination. Hearst's managers laugh at those propositons, which they have discovered are planned as their reward of merit. They demand everything in sight, instructions, unit rule and glowing eulogy.

This is Hopkins' problem. He has not found a way to solve it at the present time and he is discreetly silent. He is making no propositons and is receiving none. His policy is one of hope and faith in the Democrats in other states. The Illinois Democratic convention will be held on June 14 at Springfield. Hopkins and his managers think by that time enough states will have followed the example of Indiana, New York and Connecticut to show Hearst that he has no possible chance for the nomination, or, if Hearst is obtuse, to make that fact plain to the delegates. Hopkins points to the fact that Wisconsin went against Hearst last Tuesday. He has heard that the South will be for Parker. Reports came from Minnesota that that state will not join Hearst.

Hopkins is pinning his hopes on all these promises and performances. If they do not come out, he has a month in which Roger Sullivan, his strategist, is expected to work out some other plan to defeat Hearst's Illinois aspirations.

The convention was set at as late a date as was possible in order that the Hearst movement might be given ample time to die a natural death after Hopkins had used it.

KID TRAILER CAPTURED.

Culberson, Ont., May 20.—Kid Trailer, a member of the Jones band of outlaws, has been taken prisoner by a deputy sheriff and is in jail at Culberson. Trailer is the man whom Jones rescued from deputies about three months ago. Jones was shot shortly afterward during a fight. "Dutch Henry," now leader of the Jones band, was pursued by Canadian mounted police, who found him on the Canadian side. He escaped after a running fight. The police believe Henry was wounded. Deputies on the American side have taken up Henry's trail.

FOUR MORE TO ELECT

Four Bishops Have Been Chosen By Methodist Convention.

Los Angeles, May 20.—Three additional bishops were elected yesterday at the Methodist general confrence, Dr. W. F. McDowll, New York, and Dr. Henry Spellmier, Newark, N. J., on the second ballot, which was announced at the morning session and Dr. J. W. Bashford, Delaware, Ohio, chosen on the fourth ballot late in the afternoon. The third ballot resulted in no election.

Dr. Joseph F. Berry, of Chicago, was elected bishop Wednesday, leaving four of the eight bishops to be elected.

The fourth ballot, which resulted in the election of Dr. Bashford, presented Dr. William Burt and Dr. T. B. Weely at the head of the list with 460 and 440 votes respectively. Dr. R. J. Cook had 394; Dr. L. B. Wilson, 345; Dr. J. W. E. Bowen (colored), 253.

Dr. Burt made a gain of 121 votes over the third ballot; Dr. Neely gained 33 and Dr. Cook 10. Dr. Bowen lost 18 votes on the fourth ballot. Dr. L. B. Wilson gained 68 votes Dr. J. R. Day, of Syracuse university, had announced his withdrawal from the race, yet he polled 196 votes. The fifth ballot was taken just before adjournment, and as a result, it is reasonably certain that Dr. William Burt is elected as the fifth bishop and perhaps Dr. T. B. Nelly as sixth.

Bishop Spelmier has been a pastor during all his ministerial career and for several years has occupied a charge in Newark, N. J. He has acted as executive manager for the present general conference.

Dr. William F. McDowell is the youngest of the four bishops thus far chosen. He is 42 years old and for the last five years has been secretary of the board of education. Previously he gained a reputation as chancellor of the University of Denver.

Bishop James W. Bashford is 48 years old, a native of Wisconsin, and a graduate of Wisconsin university. He relinquished the presidency of the Ohio Wesleyan university, which he has held for the last fourteen years, to enter the Episcopacy.

THE STAGE

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS.

LYCEUM—Al Field's minstrels, also tomorrow afternoon and evening.

METROPOLITAN—Kennedy Stock company in "Faust," also tomorrow afternoon and evening.

AL FIELD'S MINSTRELS.

Al G. Field's minstrels, "the best of the good ones" played before a packed house at the Grand in Superior last night. The audience was delighted with the entertainment. The organization carries with it some exceptionally fine voices this year and the comedians are picked from the best. The scenic effects are very beautiful. The Mignani family, producing the sweetest music while apparently at work constructing a street railway, and the Walton brothers, acrobats, were features that met with hearty approval. Two other unusual, almost marvelous features, were the Young brothers, in their hoop and boomerang throwing scene, and Percy Leigh and brother in the billiard queu scene. "The Trustees' Meeting" and "The Darktown Circus and Menagerie" were both productive of much amusement.

KENNEDY COMPANY.

The Kennedy company produced "Faust" at the Metropolitan last night before a large and well-pleased audience. As the pathetic story of Marquerite was unfolded, the terrible power for evil of Mephisto, when directed against a woman, became very real, and the tragedy was followed with deep and sympathetic interest. The scenery was good, especially that used for the second act, Marguerite's garden. The mechanical effect of the fourth act was also excellent, and the rain of fire was realistic. The last tableaux was beautiful. Miss Kennedy played a lovable Marguerite, and looked very pretty. J. J. Kennedy was Mephisto, and Royal Stoup appeared as Faust. Both were good. Lewis Stone was cast for Valentine and Miss Hassan for Martha.

The specialties were very good. Baby Dot is in the work this week and this cunning little lady has made many friends. "Faust" will be repeated tonight and the rest of the week.

"A GIRL FORM DIXIE."

"A Girl From Dixie," a musical comedy of much note, will be at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday of next week. The entire New York production with all the original electrical effects will be used the same identically as given durings its successful run of three months in New York.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Dick Whitehead, a negro, was lynched at Seaboard, N. C., by a crowd of negroes, who hanged him for an alleged assault upon a 7-year-old colored child.

About 200 butchers, employed in the pork department of Swift & Co.'s plant in South St. Paul, went on a strike Thursday because of the refusal of the company to discharge a non-union man employed in that department. The other departments are not affected, and it is not expected that the strike will spread to them. The officials of the company believe that the matter will be settled, but they do not intimate that they will accede to the demand of the strikers.

After an exciting chase in Broadway, N. Y., Thursday, a young man, who said he was Arnold Mortimer, of Chicago, was caught and arrested with a $7000 diamond brooch in his possession which he had stolen from Lindo Brothers' jewelry store in Broadway.

EDITORS ELECT OFFICERS.

St. Louis, May 20.—The National Editorial association elected the following officers yesterday: President, Maj. W. M. Screws, Alabama; first vice president, W. W. Folsom, Arkansas; second vice president, W. J. Kline, New York; third vice president, H. B. Warner, North Carolina; corresponding secretary, W. A. Ashbrook, Ohio; recording secretary, J. W. Cochrum, Indiana; treasurer, J. Irving Steel, Pennsylvania. After the delegations had presented the names of their respective executive committee for the ensuing year, the convention adjourned to meet next year at Guthrie, Okla.

WYOMING REPUBLICANS.

Laramie, Wyo., May 20.—The Republican state convention yesterday made the following nominations: Governor, B. B. Brooks; congressman, W. F. Mondell. Senator Warren and Senator Clark, Congressman Mondell, N. K. Boswell, J. E. Cogiff and W. E. Woliver were chosen delegates to the national convention.

MARSHALL IS CHESS CHAMPION.

Cambridge Springs, Pa., May 20.—The International Chess Masters' tournament, which began here on April 25, was concluded last night, Marshall winning the first prize and Lasker and Janowski dividing the second and third prizes. Marco was placed fourth and Showalter fifth, while the sixth prize was divided between Schlechter and Tschigorin. Thus two Americans and five Europeans were prize winners.

IN WOMAN'S SPHERE

Social, Musical and Art Circles.

The clerk at the pattern counter has sorrows that belong exclusively to herself. The trials of the clerks of every department at Christmas time have been written and talked about until a reform is almost threatened, but up to date little has been heard of the life of nervous strain that the poor girl at the pattern counter lives through, not just once a year, but twice, spring and fall.

It may be bad enough to have to wait on a woman who is deciding the goods she will take for a morning frock, or a shirt waist, or a suit, but how infinitely more difficult it is to serve willingly, graciously, gladly and cheerfully the one who does not know how she wants it made, provided, of course, it is to be a home made gown. If a modiste is to make it the trouble, of course, is removed from the girl at the pattern counter. But for those who are to make their summer frocks at home, the question of whether it shall be made with tucks and lace, and a pleated skirt, or with plaits and embroidery and a skirt with shirrings, is one that must receive more careful thought and undivided consideration than the one, "Will you marry me?" which can be answered cheerfully and easily with a "Yes, thanks," the while one is thinking whether a June or a fall wedding will be best.

The girl at the pattern counter has an opportunity seldom equalled of watching the perverseness of feminine minds. In self-defense she offers at times her opinion, and it usually settles the question. Her choice of a skirt or waist is occasionally taken, or else it definitely settles the question by the purchaser immediately deciding upon the opposite. Thee nd achieved is the same, the customer at last decides upon something, and one is rid of her—until she comes back to change it for the one she did not take.

Women are not all the same, but those who come to the pattern counter are the most troublesome of any in a store. The woman who knows the pattern she wants, the size she needs, without looking through all the fashion books displayed, and then getting the one she originally had in mind is as rare as the woman who cares not a continental how her clothes look.

The Lakeside Club.

This evening the Lakeside club will entertain at the third of their delightful informal evenings for the people of Lakeside. The affair will be given at Harmonie hall and a large attendance is assured, as invitations have been scattered lavishly in the form of hand bills. A short musical and literary program will be given, and Miss Effie Brotherton, of West Duluth, who is so popular with Duluth audiences, will recite.

Events of Interest.

The pupils of Miss Mabel Fulton will give a recital this evening at her home, 229 Fourth avenue west. Miss Fulton and Miss Ella Stitt will be the vocal soloists for the evening.

At the devotional meeting this noon at the Young Women's Christian association, C. G. Kinder, of Chicago, spoke. Rev. Kinder is conducting evangelistic services at the First Christian church.

* * *

The pupils of Mrs. K. A. Ostregren will give a recital this evening at the First Baptist church. Miss Alberta McMullen, soprano and Dexter Ostregren, violinist, will assist.

* * *

Tomorow evening the biggest dramatic event of the year to some five hundred school people, the annual senior class play, will be given at the high school assembly hall. As in any number of years gone by the play will be in the entire charge of A. F. M. Custance and its brightness and success is assurred. Two short plays will be given "The Emerson Club" and "Mr. Bob."

Concerning Women.

Italian women are said to spend more on dress than the women of any other nation. Their men attribute this extravagance to the example of Queen Margherita.

Mme. de Thebas, the famous palmist, meditating a visit to London, consulted many people on the subject, among them Sarah Barnhardt, who, to her question, "Should I succeed and be pleased if I went to London?" very pertinently replied, "Look into your hand."

The young duchess of Manchester, who is the daughter of Eugene Zimmerman, of Cincinnati, was one day standing in the hall of an Irish hotel, waiting for her husband to join her, when up rushed an excited American, and asked if she were Miss Shorter, a lady for whom he was waiting. Drawing herself up to her full height, the duchess replied stiffly: "I am the duchess of Manchester." "Indeed!" said her compatriot, "I am from Cincinnati, too."

Twenty-two countries will be represented at the meeting of the international council of women to be held in Berlin during the week beginning June 6, 1904. In nineteen of these countries national councils have been formed, an increase of nine since the last quinquennial meeting, which was held in London. The idea of national councils of women was originated by Mrs. Mary Wright Sewall, of Indianapolis, the present president of the international council.

Here are a few garter superstitions that still survive:

The marriage of a bride who wears any but white garters on her wedding day will have an unhappy ending.

The girl who wears her garters below the knee will early lose her beauty.

To put on the left garter before the right on dressing in the morning will bring bad luck all day.

Gold garter buckles are "lucky" and silver ones the reverse.

The luckiest color for garters are white, blue and black. The wearer of yellow garters will lose a friend within a year.

If a garter breaks in church the wearer's marriage will be happy, but if the accident happens at a dance, it is a sign that the wearer's sweetheart is faithless to her.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Larry Downs, of East Third street, left today for a week's visit at Cloquet.

Miss Hilda Friburg will leave June 16 for Europe, where she will spend the summer.

THE EVENING STORY.

THE PATH HE CHOSE

By Howard Devine.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The two men had been natural antagonists from the time they came to the state—both determined to wrest fame and fortune in the keen strife incident to transforming a wilderness to an empire.

Chamberlain was ardent, impetuous and often rash. There was where he gained his strength with his fellows.

Morton was cold, clear and practical, never losing sight of the end in view or sacrificing a point from motives of sentiment. His hold on his fellows came not at all from friendship or enthusiasm, but from that impulse in mankind which involuntarily admires sheer force of intellect—and the man who wins.

Chamberlain had by far the best start and the most in his favor. He came of good blood and his family had furnished men of mark in many of the walks of life for many generations. He had a good education, and while his immediate family was not at all in good financial circumstances, his connections smoothed the way to business relations which relieved him of many of the financial embarrassments of a young lawyer.

Morton had no family connections but were a handicap to him. What education he had was what he had acquired by his own efforts and by contact with the world, aided by his own native wit and unyielding energy. When he first came to the state he was not admitted to the bar. He was sharp as a steel trap, however, and made himself exceedingly valuable. Soon after he plunged into politics he began to study law, and by adroit manipulation added to indefatigable work succeeded in obtaining his license to practice in just half the time the statutes provided. There were hints of questionable affidavits, but the young man stood so well in his examination that he went through all right. The older lawyers predicted failure. But he displayed a native ingenuity in several important cases which routed his detractors and silenced his critics. At the same time he did not devote his best energies to the law, and from the first succeeded in holding an influential place in the manipulation of the inner workings of politics, and incidentially also was generally on the public pay roll in some capacity.

In the meantime Chamberlain was winning a name and place for himself in the practice of the law. He, too, was deeply in politics, and was an important factor in the party councils. He sought no petty office, and was altogether more popular with the people than with the politicians.

It was between these two strong, promising, virile young men that Helen Winston was asked to choose. The rivalry leaped the bounds of politics and business and invaded the domains of love. Both became ardent suitors of the dashing, black-eyed girl with the musical voice and the soft womanly ways. Through all the years of the upward struggle both wooed her assiduously, and to both she gave warm friendship and cordial good-fellowship—nothing more. As the years grew both became more insistent, but she would not choose. Indeed, she could not fathom her own mind. She liked both—admired both immensely and thoroughly enjoyed herself in their company. Moreover, being a true daughter of Eve, she took not a little joy in having these two brilliant young men dangling in her train. She liked the dash and go of Chamberlain, and was charmed by his scintillating wit as well as his chivalrous and kindly manners. On the other hand, she admired the keen intellect of Morton and stood in some secret awe of his dominating personality. While his wit bit more than that of Chamberlain, it was not less true, and he was good company in all the term implies.

Time ran on and both men in succession became members of the state legislature and occupied strong positions in the upper councils of the party in the state. Morton was particularly strong in practical politics—in that department of activity which produced tangible results. Chamberlain became a power on the stump and his judgment was eagerly sought in the matter of framing platforms and deciding on issues.

Still, Helen refused to decide between them, and both men declined to retire.

Then came a novel situation in the political world, bringing with it a marvelous opportunity. One of the United States senators representing the state died. It was at a time when new industrial conditions had created new issues and party lines wavered. It became plain at once that none of the old leaders and idols could be elected without seriously imperiling the supremacy of the party which had controlled the state for decades. New men were sought, who could preserve the traditions of the party and at the same time satisfy to some extent the demands of the popular trend of thought. In the agitation regarding the senatorial succession the names both of Chamberlain and Morton were mentioned by the newspapers as promising and potent young leaders of the party who were in line with the advanced thought. Singularly enough at this particular time both young men were pressing their suits for the hand of Helen Winston in the most imperative manner. The girl was nearly distracted at the ardent, imperative attitude of her suitors. Finally she made a resolve which she communicated to both.

"I am ambitious," she said. "I like both of you. I do not know how to choose. The United States senatorship is open. Both of you are among the possibilities. Both of you want an immediate answer. I will marry which one of you becomes United States senator."

Chamberlain at first would not hear to the plan. "I do not propose," said he with fine dignity, "to make my wife the prize of a political campaign." But after all, nature triumphed, and his intense desire for the beautiful creature lent him wings in making a campaign.

Morton never wavered. "That settles it," he said, quietly, looking into the depths of her dark eyes with the penetrating glance which marked his most powerful moments. "You may set the date as soon after April 20 as you please—the sooner the better. The legislature elects on the twentieth, and I will be the man."

"You are confident," she said, smiling faintly.

"I have gotten what I wanted in this world thus far by paying the price," he answered, calmly; "whether the price was expressed in dollars, sacrifice or work. I never wanted anything one-tenth as much as I want you. I will pay the price." He left her abruptly.

The campaign was short, sharp and decisive. The vigor with which both Chamberlain and Morton took hold of it soon drove all competitors from the field. But even the desperate energy which Chamberlain threw into it his aspirations and the full exercise of his splendid powers were overshadowed and nullified by the tremendous force displayed by Morton. Morton had a dominant hold on the party organization and a familiarity with men and methods and details beside which Chamberlain proved a mere infant. Morton knew the weakness, the strength, the associations and the relationships of every man in the legislature. He knew how to reach the inner motives of every man of them—and he left no stone unturned. While Chamberlain gave much of his time to the rallying of public sentiment, Morton went only after legislative votes. It was openly talked in political circles that Morton was mortgaging his future in every way in his fight, that every interest in the state that might want any favors from the federal government was receiving substantial assurances of his cooperation in case of his election in exchange for present help. But what puzzled the wise ones was the access to money which Morton seemed suddenly to have acquired. The sums spent in his behalf approached those attributed to the mining kings in the western states when they decided to buy a senatorship. And the puzzling part of it was that Morton was known to be a man of small means. He had always been eager for political power and not at all thrifty in money matters—wanting only money enough to supply his personal needs and willing ever to sacrifice pecuniary rewards in politics and elsewhere in order to attain greater political power.

At any rate, money by the barrel was spent in his behalf; every exertion was made by those in charge of special interests with a weather eye on Washington, and nearly every efficient politician in the state was active in his behalf.

The result was foreshadowed. Morton was elected by an overwhelming vote.

It was the greatest scandal the senate ever encountered. Grave and reverend senators were nearly in tears about it. Senator Morton was charged in criminal proceedings with prostituting his high office for a money price. It was charged that he had represented an illegitimate concern in an illegitimate transaction before a department of the government for a money fee.

The trial dragged wearily at first, but became more exciting as it progressed. Finally it was shown that Senator Morton hade made it a business of representing questionable interests in their efforts to slide under departmental regulations, before the heads of governmental offices and that he had received money fees therefor. He was found guilty, sentenced to a short term in the penitentiary, which involved the loss of his right to hold office and the further loss of his citizenship.

After the sentence had been pronounced and Morton had returned to his hotel under bonds, he was visited by a woman heavily veiled—Helen Winston. The interview was short.

"I release you from your pledge," he said to her in the same cold, clear voice he had ever used. "I played for high stakes and lost. Only one thing I have to ask of you—believe that through it all I have loved you honestly and unselfishly. What I did I would have done for no other reason than my love for you. It was made the price for your hand that I become senator. I became senator and paid the price—but the load I assumed was too heavy, and in paying it I have lost not only you but all else. I do not regret it. If I had it to do over again I would do the same—but you are not interested in this; good-by."

That night Chamberlain called upon her and made a last plea. "You were dazzled with the glamour of apparent success," said he. "Now you see the futility of success won at the price of honor. I love you, Helen. Forget all that has happened and come with me. We will travel the safe and the happy road—and it will not be without success and honor."

She turned away her head and said: "No, not now. Wait for a few months."

On the day Morton was released from his imprisonment three months later he found a carriage waiting. Inside the carriage was a woman—Helen Winston. He started in surprise.

"What, you?" he gasped.

"Yes, dear," she said, simply, "and this is our wedding day. I palliate nothing of your dishonesty—but you did it for love of me. Greater love hath no man. I will go to the end of the world with you."

He looked at her keenly out of his keen, gray eyes. Then the tears welled up—for perhaps the first time in his life.

"The world well lost," he said, as he gathered her in his arms.

The following day Morton and his wife departed for South America.

VALUABLE GIFT TO THE NEW YORK YACHT CLUB.

New York, May 20.—An interesting gift has been made to the New York Yacht club by Philip Schuyler, son of one of the last surviving officers of the famous schooner yacht America. It consists of the original log of the voyage of that vessel to Sowes and Havre in 1851, when she won the America's cup, and other documents containing interesting data o fthe early days of the club, al of which are considered by yachtsmen as records of the greatest value.

Louisville Journalist Would Support Cleveland.

Louisville, Ky., May 20.—Henry Watterson in an editorial announces his readiness to support Grover Cleveland for president. He has been a bitter enemy of the former president for fifteen years and has opposed him in every race. However, he makes the unqualified assertion that if developments indicate that Cleveland can win he is for him. Mr. Watterson says:

"The Courier-Journal will assuredly support Mr. Cleveland. Over and over again Mr. Watterson has protested that he has not a particle of private grief against Mr. Cleveland, that no unkind word ever passed between them, that no personal act either of omission or commission on the part of the ex-president ever gave the editor the slightest offense."

RAISING OSTRICHES.

Novel Industry Being Tried In United States.

The Dark Continent has always had a moonopoly of the ostrich business, but the United States threatens to become a rival in this industry, and may take away the laurels from Cape Colony, which has been one of the great centers for breeding these birds. The story of their introduction into this country by Edwin Cawston, of California, is familiar to the readers of the Scientific American.

The success of Mr. Cawston's work has resulted in two other ostrich farms being established—one near Jacksonville, Fla., and another in Arizona. In connection with the Florida farm is a race track, where several ostriches have been broken to harness and have pace a mile in 2:30. H. J. Campbell, the superintendent, has from 200 to 250 adult birds under his care. As each weighs from 200 to 450 pounds, and their heads are from six to eight feet above the ground when the neck is fuly stretched, an idea of the size of the flock can be gained. They average much larger than the birds shown with menageries, as they have plenty of space to run about in and stretch their legs, so to speak. Their bill of fare is not expensive. When but two or three days old, the chicks display their appetite for such delicacies as gravel and bits of bone, which is really the first "nourishment" they take. Two or three days later they will eat bran, grass, cabbage leaves, etc., upon which they grow rapidly. In fact, a healthy ostrich will increase its size at the rate of a foot a month for the first few months, and be large enough to kick a man over by the time it is a year old. Many accounts have been written of the fierceness of the African ostrich, but most of the statements are exaggerated. During the laying season the males become quite ferocious, and one must be very careful in approaching a nest, as he may get a kick which will not only knock him senseless, but possibly wound him badly, as each bird has upon its feet claws which will cut like a knife. A curious fact is that if a person stoops over when attacked by one of the large birds, he may save himself from the kick, as it cannot exert any force below a height of three feet, owing to the peculiar manner in which the legs are jointed. The keepers at the Jacksonvile farm take with them small dogs which will drive the largest ostriches anywhere about the pen. The birds realize that they cannot harm the dogs with their feet, and fear them more than a man.

Ostriches are much like others birds in hatching and rearing their young. Shortly after pairing off, the two birds will begin to build a nest, or rather dig one out of the ground. The male bird rests his breastbone on the ground and kicks the sand out behind him. When one side is sufficiently deep, he turns around and operates in a like manner, until a round hole about four feet in diameter and one foot deep is the result of his exertions. Occasionally he intimates to the female that help is required, and they take turns. The hen forthwith begins to lay an egg every other day, until twelve or fifteen are located side by side in this hole in the ground; then they scatter a little sand over the tops of the eggs, to protect them from the fierce rays of the sun. This habit has doubtless led to the supposition given as a fact in many natural histories, that the eggs of the ostrich are hatched by the sun, unaided by the bird.

As soon as the full number of eggs are laid, the couple share the labor of hatching, the male bird sitting on the eggs from about 4 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock the following morning. It may be understood with what skill this is performed when it is remembered that 250 to 400 pounds of ostrich are bearing down upon fourteen eggs. At about 9 o'clock in the morning the hen takes his place. The male ostrich, however, with remarkable intelligence, relieves the female for an hour in the middle of the day, while she goes in search of the necessary nourishment. A pair will follow this schedule with regularity for forty days, when the chicks can be heard in the shells.

A fair-sized egg weighs about four pounds, or as much as two dozen hen's eggs. The size of the chick as it emerges from the shell is wonderful. It does not seem as if it could be half as large as it realy it. This is due to the fact that the down and feathers, which cover it before it sees daylight, spread out when it leaves the shell, and nearly double it in size.

When a year old, the plumage of the ostrich is usually large enough and fine enough to begin plucking, which is one of the most difficult and dangerous operations of ostriculture. A few of them are driven into a small corral, when one by one they are pushed into a small angular inclosure, and a long, narrow bag is placed over the head, with a hole in the end to breathe through. Then one man holds the bird while the operator skillfully clips and pulls at the feathers that are ripe. Blinded the bird becomes tame, but care is exercised by the men to avoid the kicks that necessarily are included by the creature in this performance. When a feather root is hurt, injury is done that can never be remedied, for when a "socket" is pulled out, a feather can never grow again. The short feathers are pulled out without any apparent pain to the creature, as they are ripe and would fall off in the course of nature if not extricated by the skilled operator. The heavy wing feathers are cut off with heavy scissors, the stumps being left in the skin. These stumps are ripe for extraction about three months after a plucking takes place.

Strange to say, the feathers secured from the California and Florida birds are of a better quality than those imported from South Africa, and actually command a higher price. Before coming into the hands of the milliner and dressmaker, however, the glossy covering of the bird must be subjected to several processes. The plumes are tied on strings about four feet, singly or in bunches of two or three, according to their size. Then they are scoured, cleaned in soapsuds, and rinsed frequently. Then they are ready for the dyer. After dyeing comes more rinsing in clean water containing starch. Then the feathers are beaten on a smooth board until they are free from all particles of starch. After this they go to the workroom, where skilled operators "finish" them, and here again they are graded. This grading is even more important than the first, and years of practice and observation are required to render the operator throughly competent. Then they go to the sewing department. Each "feather" used in the trade consists of several sewn skillfully together, three, four or five feathers, end to end, according to the value and thickness desired. After being sewn, the feathers are steamed, in order to allow the fibers to assume their natural position, and are sent to the curler, who gives them that graceful shape, both in fibers and stem, so much desired. From the curler they pass to the buncher, who combs them and gives them whatever style is demanded at the time for sale in the open market.

GREAT SEA DISASTERS.

Loss of the Russian flagship Petropavlovsk, at Port Arthur, with Admiral Makaroff and an estimated strength of nearly 800 officers and men, while a severe blow to Russian prestige in the far East, is one of those catstrophes in naval warfare to which an actual combatant is always liable, though happily their occurrence is not common, says the Chicago News. In 1759, when "Hawke did bang Monsieur Conflans," at Quiberon bay, Sir Edward Hawke ordered his pilot to lay the Royal George of 100 guns, alongside the Soleil Royal, the French admiral's flagship. Before this could be done another French ship, La Superbe, of seventy guns, gallantly interposed, and, receiving her opponents' broadside, went down into the deep with her colors flying and 650 souls on board. Her revenge, however, came on Aug. 28, 1782, when the Royal George sunk at anchor off Spithead in a squall.

During a great storm in 1703 twelve men-o'-war went down off the English coast with 1800 men. Many lives were lost when the British warship Ajax took fire in 1807. The British warship Captain turned over in the Bay of Biscay in 1870, about 500 lives being lost. When the Sultan, the sister ship of the Captain, was fitting out at Plymouth, a grim humorist, prophesying her possible fate (happily he proved to be wrong), chalked on her side: "Will leave on Thursday with mails for the Captain."

The fate of the Italian warship Re d'Italia, at the battle of Lissa, the one great fight that has as yet taken place between armored hostile fleets in European waters, should be mentioned. It was on July 20, 1866, that the Austrian Admiral Tegethoff fought Persano's fleet and the flagship Ferdinand Max sent her opponent down with 60 men on board, the Italian ironclad Palestro also blowing up, about a score of lives only being saved.

Fearful loss of life was occasioned by the ramming of the British warship Victoria in manuevers by the Camperdown (1893), w hen over 350 officers and men, including Admiral Tryon, were drown-

LANDING OF TROOPS

Protected By Admiral Hosoya With Third Japanese Squadron.

Rear Admiral Togo Drove Back the Russian Flotilla.

Tokio, May 20.—Admiral Hosoya, commanding the third squadron, reports that with the third squadron, consisting of the Fuso, Heiyen, Tsudushi, Sai Yen and other vessels, he protected the landing of troops at a new unnamed place, probably Taku Shan, yesterday, bombarded the coast and landed a party of bluejackets, who occupied a point of land and raised the Japanese flag, at 8 o'clock in the morning. The landing of troops immediately commenced and was accomplished very quickly.

The report of Rear Admiral Togo, who should not be confounded with the Vice Admiral of that name, and who commands the Japanese fleet sent to attack Kai Chou, on the west coast of the Liao Tung peninsula, south of Newchwang, says he reached Port Arthur soon after the Japanese battleship Hatsuse was blown up and assisted in saving her crew and driving back the Russian torpedo boat flotilla, which came out that evening. Rear Admiral Togo entered Chi Li gulf the morning of the 16th, reconnoitered the coast near Kai Chou and drove the enemy off a range of hills near Tong Shan.

On the 17th, after clearing the sea of mines, Rear Admiral Toga entered Kin Chou bay, from which his gunboats bombarded the railroad bridge, a military train and the enemy's buildings, effecting some damage.

A Russian captured during the recent fighting near Kin Chou, Liao Tung peninsula, reported that the enemy on the Kin Chou peninsula consists of the majority of the Fourth infantry division and all of the Seventh infantry division.

The prisoner adds that one Japanese naval officer and thirty men are prisoners at Port Arthur. They are survivors of the last blockading operation.

RUSSIANS DESTROY BRIDGES.

Liao Yang, May 20.—Forty five battalions of Japanese troops have been landed on the Liao Tung peninsula. In order to embarrass their advance the Russians have destroyed the bridges. The Japanese have retired to Feng Weng Chang though divisions are moving northward their apparent destination being Mukden. The excitement among the Chinese has been increasing during the last few days. The Chinese bandits are causing much trouble and are being energetically hunted by Cossacks.

The eastern Chinese railroad has increased its carrying capacity and for some days past troops have been arriving here in the best of condition.

EXPLOSION AT PORT ARTHUR.

Chicago, May 20.—A special to the Daily News from Che Foo says: At 10:30 this morning a tremendous explosion was heard in the direction of Port Arthur. It was impossible to ascertain the cause.

TO STORM PORT ARTHUR.

Chicago, May 20.—A special to the Daily News from Tokio says: Port Arthur is to be taken by storm the moment the proper preparations have been completed. Siege guns have yet to be placed in position and the land forces appointed for the assault have to be strengthened. The unexpected loss of two vessels has emphasized the insecurity of sea power and the authorities feel that no chances must be taken that would encourage Russia to send out the Baltic fleet, counting on finding a harbor of refuge in Port Arthur.

It is realized that the storming of the fortress will inevitably cost nearly 10,000 but it is said that the waters where the Japanese ships are forced to manouever are becoming so dangerous because of floating mines that heroic measures are imperative. Under these circumstances it is thought that life will be economized by storming the stronghold and eliminating it and the adjacent waters from the area of actual conflict.

Government Wants Damages For Loss of Barracks.

Milwaukee, May 20.—A Journal special from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., says: The United States government has filed notice of a suit against the city for $88,500 damages for the burning of Fort Bradley barracks in January, 1903. A declaration was made by United States District Attorney George G. Covell, of Grand Rapids, that he had a contract with the city to furnish water pressure of eighty-five to ninety pounds, but on the night of the fire there was no pressure and the barracks were a total loss. This will be the biggest case ever brought against the city.

CIVIL CASES ON TRIAL.

Interesting Sidewalk Suit Which Concerns City.

One verdict in a civil action was returned in district court yesterday afternoon, Samuel Johnston recovering a verdict of $91.64 from G. W. Mulligan on a note given to secure payment of a premium on a life insurance policy.

In Judge Cant's room a jury is listening to the evidence in the appeal of the city from the allowance of the claim of Oscar H. Anderson, for the construction and repair of cement and tile walks.

It is claimed on the part of the city that Anderson, after taking the contract, assigned it to John Lowry, who completed the work as stipulated, but that this was a violation of section 277 of the city charter and against the terms of the original contract.

Mr. Lowry, as claimant under Anderson, asks for a judgment of $3439.26, which amount he claims fell due after the work was completed. He claims the work was accepted by the city engineer.

Anderson's claim was allowed by the city council, but when Lowry requested the payment the city clerk refused to recogniez his claim.

H. A. Dancer represents Mr. Lowry and the city is represented by City Attorney Bert Fesler.

PLANS FOR CHURCH UNION

Presbyterian Committee at Buffalo Makes Recommendations.

Buffalo, May 20.—The report of the committee on the union of the Cumberland church and the Presbyterian church of the United States was made a special order for next Thursday.

The report of the committee on a plan of re-union of the two churches makes the following recommendations:

First—That such a change be made in the form of government of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America as will allow additional or separate presbyteries and synods to be organized in exceptional cases wholly or in part within the territorial bounds of existing presbyteries or synods respectively, for a particular race or nationality, if desired by such race or nationality.

Second—The foregoing basis of union and eight covenant declarations shall be submitted to the respective general assemblies of 1904 and the above recommendation, numbered 1, shall be submitted to the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America, meeting in 1904, and this plan of union shall be operative when said basis of union, concurrent declarations and recommendation numbered 1 shall have been adopted in their entirety and where necessary by presbyterian action.

It is further recommended that the congregations throughout both branches observe Sunday, Sept. 18, next, "as a day of fervent and united prayer to Almighty God, that he would grant unto us, all the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord and in the new relation now contemplated, enable us to keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace."

Dr. Hamlin, of Washington, offered a resolution advocating the cancellation of all aspersions cast by previous assemblies on the Southern Presbyterian church. In his remarks he referred to the splendid work of President McKinley in uniting the North and South politically.

THE FISH SUPPLY.

How It Is Kept Up By a Commission.

There is one department in the economics of the national government seldom heard of, but which has been employed since 1871 in work and study to perpetuate and increase the food supply of the storehouses nature has provided in the waters along the coast, in the rivers and lakes, and which, like the oyster deposits, have been depleted or lost their productiveness through one agency or another.

To meet this depletion, occasioned either by enemies beneath the waters or the indifference of man as to how soon these benefactions are destroyed, the United States fish commission has worked for years to discover and apply methods of replenishing the yield, says the Baltimore Sun. It has accomplished wonders in the propagation of young fish by artificial means, and the results attained justify the belief that the American waters can always be stocked with edible fish and that they will continue perpetually to furnish a means of livelihood for an army of breadwinners.

Stations or hatcheries located at suitable points throughout the country are devoted to the cultivation of all those species that are in demand and that would practically become extinct but for the methods of reproduction developed by study and observation. In this way not only the inland waters are kept teeming with food fish, but the ocean as well, it being a well-established fact that the finny tribe selects areas where the conditions of water and of sea bottom, with its plant life, are most favorable to growth. The young fish put into the sea, therefore, are not lost in a great waste, but remain in certain regions, so that the work of the commission is as sure in its results as the planting of seed in the soil eventually will bring a harvest.

The Atlantic and landlocked salmon are cultivated in Maine to restock the depleted streams and lakes of New England and Northern New York. The work in four of the states is with whitefish and lake trout, in order to sustain the great commercial fisheries conducted on the great lakes. There are interior hatcheries in Vermont, Virginia, Michigan, Iowa, Montana, Missouri, Illinois, Texas and Colorado for the important work of maintaining in the inland lakes and streams the supply of brook trout, rainbow trout, black bass, crappie and other food fishes. At Wood's Hole and Gloucester, Mass., cod, lobster and other important marine species are propagated. The eggs of the Pacific salmon are collected and hatched and the fry planted on the spawning beds in California, Oregon and Washington.

Closer to and of greater importance in a commercial sense to Maryland and Baltimore is the work done on the Potomac and Susquehanna rivers, where in the spring time shad are hatched and distributed in suitable waters.

To perform the marine work three vessels are employed, the steamers Albatross and Fish Hawk and the schooner Grampus. The Fish Hawk, which wintered at this port and which recently left here, is commanded by Capt. James A. Smith, of Baltimore. It is in reality a floating hatchery engaged in propagating shad, lobsters and mackerel, collecting eggs and distributing fry, besides making topographical surveys of fishing grounds.

Orders have been received by Capt. Smith to prepare his command to collect for artificial propagation the eggs of the yellow perch in the Chesapeake bay sounds, which suggests that even this fish is becoming scarce. In a report of the fish commission, published in 1897, it is stated that this fish (yellow perch) is so abundant and the supply so well maintained that fisheultural work in its behalf is not now generally required." The report then continues:

"Artificial propagation, in the full sense of the term, has not been attempted with the yellow perch. The eggs have neither been artificially taken nor artificially impregnated, but the brood fish have been impounded and their naturally fertilized eggs hatched. The extent to which this modified cultivation of yellow perch may be carried on in the coast rivers, in the great lakes and elsewhere is almost limitless."

Although but six seasons have passed since this optimistic report, the commission has decided that the time has arrived to consider the future of the yellow perch in its relation to the interests of the fishermen of the Chesapeake. To all concerned it is a matter of commercial importance.

A visit was made to the eastern shore by Capt. Smith to obtain information, to select the best point for his work and to confer with the state fishing commissioner and his deputies. The visit revealed that there has been a noticeable decrease in the catch of late. Capt. Smith's instructions were to go when and where the fish make their appearance in the waters of the Chesapeake and procure all the spawn possible for artificial propagation, this being the first time the method has been resorted to with yellow perch.

The Fish Hawk is now at Chestertown, on the Chester river, Capt. Smith having decided upon that place as the vantage point to gather the spawn, as that tributary is their natural spawning ground. President Warfield of the Chester River Steamboat company has placed a wharf at Chestertown at the disposal of Capt. Smith, and from there boats from the Fish Hawk will make trips among the seine haulers.

The fish selected will be mature and of both sexes. The females will be those whose external appearance indicates that the eggs are still undeposited. In each tank about fifty pairs will be placed and carefully watched. Spawning takes place at night, and the eggs are naturally fertilized. In the morning the eggs hatched are transferred from the spawning tanks to the hatching apparatus.

Spawning begins about March 20 in the Chesapeake, when the perch suddenly appear in great numbers, more particularly in the headwaters of the streams, where they go to spawn. The water temperature must not be less than 45 degrees Fah., while 49 degrees seems to mark the maximum limit. This narrow range of temperature, which bounds the spawning act of the yellow perch, is noteworthy. The period of artificial hatching varies from two to four weeks, according to the temperature. As the fry hatch they pass over from the aquaria into tanks provided with screen overflows, where they are held until planted or distributed in other waters. The percentage of eggs hatched is large. From one lot of 955,000 there were produced 754,000 fry, or 79 per cent. Capt. Smith expects to secure 30,000,000 eggs during his stay at Chestertown, which as soon as hatched will be returned into the Chester river.

The eggs of the yellow perch are among the most remarkable that will have been artificially hatched. The spawn is in one piece, an elongated ribbon-like structure, of a semi-transparent light-grayish color. One end of the large egg-mass, corresponding to the anterior part of the roe, is larger than the other and is bluntly forked. The string is very long, but may be much compressed lengthwise by virtue of its arrangement in regular transverse folus, like the bellows or accordion. When deposited the eggs are in a loose globular form, and after being fertilized and becoming "water-hard" their mass rapidly grows many times larger than the fish which laid them. The length of the strings is from two to more than seven feet, depending on the size of the fish. One fish in hte commission aquarium at Washington deposited a string of eggs 88 inches long, 4 inches wide at one end and 2 inches at the other, whose weight after fertilization was 41 ounces embryo tadpoils, while the weight of the fish before the escape of the eggs was only 24 ounces. The diameter of the egg when deposited is one-thirteenth of an inch. The quantity cannot be easily measured, but the number is approximately 28,000 to a quart.

The United States, important as the advances made have been, is only following precedent in raising fish by artificial means. The Chinese have practiced fish culture from the earliest times. Lucullus had fish ponds at Tusculum, Sergius Orata introduced the culture of oysters in the Lucrine lakes, and eels have been extensively cultivated at Comacchio, in the lagoons of Venice, since the thirteenth century. In Lake Fusaro oyster raising has been carried on since the Roman period, and in former times carp was bred in ponds in large quantities for the markets in Prussia, Saxony, Bohemia and Mecklenberg.

Artificial impregnation of fish eggs was said to have been discovered in the fourteenth century by Dom Pluchon, a French monk, who bred fish in wooden bores having ends of wicked work and the bottoms covered with sand, in which the ova were deposited. The art of the monk seemed to have been lost or forgotten till 1758, when a memoir on the artificial foundation of the eggs of fishes and on the stocking of ponds and rivers by Jacobi was first published in German by Count Goldstein.

The first attempts at the industrial use of this knowledge were made in Hanover. In 1837 Mr. Shaw, a Scotchman, practiced it for the restocking of streams with salmon in his own country, and in 1841 Boccius, a civil engineer of Hammersmith, England, employed the art with trout on various estates. In 1842 Joseph Remy, a French fisherman of La Bresse, in the Vosges, apparently without knowledge of the previous labors of others, resorted to artificial impregnation as an adjunct to his business, restocking the Moselle and other streams, from which he got his livelihood. His operations, brought to the knowledge of Professor J. J. C. Coste, of the College of France, gave rise to the first great interest taken in the modern industry of fish culture.

By an act of congress Feb. 9, 1871, a United States commissioner of fish and fisheries was provided for, whose duty it was to prosecute investigations, with a view of ascertaining whether any and what diminution in the number of food fishes of the coast and lakes had taken place, and to what cause such diminution was due, as well as what remedial measures, if any, should be adopted. Such a work did not come too soon. Nearly every state in the Union has taken legislative action in protecting the fish during spawning season, Maryland being foremost in the good work.

TO STUPEFY ARMIES.

At last it has been discovered how to make a military omelette without breaking the eggs, says the Budapest, Hungary correspondent of the New York World. Hereafter, war may be bloodless; ship's companies; battalions whole armies may be placed hors-de-combat, but only temporarily. In the middle of the wildest charge squadrons of cavalry may be reduced from a state of heroic fury to beatific annesthesia and may instantly be precipitated, in most regular formation, into peaceful slumber.

In a word, a Hungarian scientist, philanthropist, genius has invented a shell which, on bursting, liberates a gas warranted to stupefy all who breathe it without causing any permanent or serious effect.

When such a soporific shell bursts between decks on a battleship, the crew will promptly lie down to sleep and awake, perhaps, to find themselves prisoners in a hostile port.

Let a number of such shells explode over a fortress and not the fortress but the garrison will fall—into coma.

Scientifically speaking, it is entirely possible that this gas-charged shell will do all that its inventor claims. He is now in communication with the Japanese government, so it is not improbable that Port Arthur and Vladivostok may be as quiet soon as the palace of the Sleeping Beauty. The inventor's Hungarian hatred of Russia, dating back to 1848, prevented him from approaching the czar, to whose pacific ideas such a humane shell should strongly appeal.

Of course, such a shell would revolutionize warfare. The hospital corps would become the most important branch of the service, and would need be enormously increased in order that prostrated combatants could be removed from the field and restored to consciousness.

The next Hague convention would have to agree that all who were asphyxiated by this gas should consider themselves dead until the war ended.

And what would happen when opposing artilleries employed the wonderful shell? Each side would surely increase the charge of gas until some would be killed by an overdose of it. Thus the shell's beneficient purpose would be defeated.

FIGURED OUT PROFIT IN PIG.

A Pennsylvania railroad officer has a stock farm on the outskirts of Philadelphia, says the Ledger, and at a recent dinner of the Clover club a friend of the railroader spoke of it, saying: "He runs it on a business-like basis. Sometimes he makes money out of it. Last year he bought a pig for $27, fed it forty bushels of corn at $1 a bushel, and then sold it for $31.50.

"'I made $4.50 out of that pig,' he remarked to me the day after the animal was taken away.

"'But,' I protested, 'how about the forty bushels of corn, at $1 a bushel, that you ed him?'

"'Oh,' commented the gentleman farmer, "I didn't expect to make anything on the corn.'"

CENTRAL LOCATION FAVORED.

As a result of the agitation begun by The Herald on the question of taking steps at once toward the erection of a new courthouse, there was a well-attended meeting of representative attorneys last night, at which the question was discussed at length. The sentiment was practically unanimous in favor of abandoning the site of the present courthouse and securing a more central location for the convenience of those having business with the courts and county offices. It was pointed out that the present location entails great inconvenience upon the public, on account of the time required to reach it, and that as the city increases in size, this inconvenience will become greater. There never will be a better time than the present to secure a site in the central business portion of the city, and it was generally agreed that no time should be lost in taking action and that any attempt to rebuild on the old site on Second street and Sixth avenue east should be resolutely opposed. All who referred to this feature of the subject agreed that combined courthouse and city hall should be erected.

The Herald is glad to see the interest that is being taken in this important question, and that a determined effort will be made to secure a central location, as desired by a very large majority of those citizens who have expressed their views.

WHERE CHIEF CREDIT BELONGS.

Speaking of Miss Helen Keller's purpose to devote her life to amelioration of the lives of the blind, the Commercial-Appeal of Memphis says: "We wish her well, because she is a Southern woman." Why not wish her well because she is a woman?

Why not wish everyone well, no matter of what race, rank or creed, who devotes his life to the welfare of his fellow man? Why not wish everybody well, and not only wish but work to that end?

Charity should begin at home and those nearest and dearest should be our first concern, but it is time that Americans know no North, no South, no nation, no race, when the welfare of mankind is under consideration. It is safe to say that a woman who has gained so much as Helen Keller from the patient, loving labor of others will know neither section nor race in her efforts to ameliorate the condition of those similarly afflicted to herself.

And this recalls the thought that while Helen Keller deserves credit for what she has so far accomplished, if she ever wins enduring fame it will be because of what she may succeed in doing in behalf of others. Really the persons who deserve greatest credit for Miss Keller's accomplishments to date are her teachers, particularly Miss Sullivan, whose able brain devised a plan to bring light to sightless eyes, hearing to closed ears, speech to a silent tongue, and intelligence to a walled-in brain.

Miss Keller acknowledges herself that when Miss Sullivan first took her in charge, she knew less than the animals, that her brain was almost a perfect blank, and that all she possessed was the animal instinct of hunger and thirst and its satisfaction and the desire for freedom. She might be justly called dangerously imbecile, and yet look at the result of Miss Sullivan's work in the splendid Helen Keller of today. It is to this teacher and to the others that devoted their thought and sympathy to the welfare of this afflicted child that belongs the chief credit for her present happiness. That she herself may do as nobly in her labors in behalf of others is the sincere wish of all who sympathize with afflicted humanity.

WHAT PREACHERS SHOULD KNOW.

What a man should know to be a competent and successful preacher of the gospel was recently discussed by Professor G. E. Dawson of the Hartford School of Religious Pedagogy. In summing up, he said:

"Religious education should be conformed in its aim and subject matter to the standards of modern science. In training for the ministry there should be included such courses as laboratory work in physiology, neurology, and psychology, including the study of mental diseases, vice and crime in institutions for defectives and delinquents, research work in sociology, especially as concerns the anti-social classes and institutions; the study of ethnology, with a view of discovering the origin and development of domestic, educational, moral and religious customs and institutions, and educational psychology."

While it is undoubtedly true that the more a man knows the better religious teacher he will be, and while a professor of religious pedagogy ought to know better than the ordinary mortal what is necessity to fit a man for preaching the gospel, The Herald will venture the opinion that the main requisite is a knowledge of human nature. The successful preacher of the future will undoubtedly be the one who has arrived at the conclusion that men who have put aside superstition and religious dogma can only be convinced by an appeal to their reason and common sense. Furthermore he should understand that when a man's own conscience tells him that he is doing no wrong he cannot be convinced that he is doing anything wrong or immoral by the mere say-so of a preacher. Furthermore he should understand that every day is God's day, and that whatever is right on a week day is also right on Sunday, and what is wrong on Sunday is wrong on any day.

If he understands these things, it will be unnecessary for him to be a paragon of erudition and learning in order to assist in elevating the human race and winning men's souls to righteousness. If he does not understand these things all the other wisdom in the world will help him not.

A SENSIBLE VIEW.

"It is noticeable that while Americans talk freely of the ultimate annexation of Canada to the United States," says the Washington Post, "there is practically no growth of annexation sentiment among the Canadians. There has been a decided growth of the spirit of Canadian independence, but they are as proud and jealous of their nationality as we of the United States are of ours, and would as bitterly and persistently resent any proposition looking to a loss of their national identity. This spirit is so strong in Canada that the prospects are all favorable that the descendants of the American farmers who have settled in Canada will become Canadians rather than use any influence in securing annexation to this country. Any thought of Canadian annexation must be classed with the dreams of the future."

This exactly coincides with previously-expressed opinions of The Herald on the Canadian problem. No headway will be gained in endeavoring to force annexation upon Canada, because under present conditions it is impossible. Reciprocal trade relations are possible, however, if the United States broaches the subject in a conciliatory spirit and is willing to grant as much as it receives in the way of reduced tariffs. Free trade would be a blessing to both countries and in time would lead to such amicable industrial relations that the Canadians might change their minds and desire to become a part of this great nation.

While the Americans who are going to the Canadian Northwest will no doubt retain a great love for their mother country and will teach that love to their children, when the time comes for Canadian independence they will be as eager or more eager for it than the old-time Canadians themselves. The time will come when Canada will be a great and powerful independent nation and it behooves the people of the United States to cultivate the good will of their cousins across this imaginary border line.

THE CLUB WOMAN.

It is now said that there is a reaction among the women of the nation against women's clubs. The Rev. W. A. Bartlett, of Chicago, gave voice to this sentiment in a sermon preached last Sunday, when he said:

"In the earlier New England days the home was the mother's club, guild, missionary society, temperance organization, and all the rest. Today, as soon as a family is prospered a little, the women must needs 'join' all kinds of clubs and societies, till the child is left to the care of any person who can be hired, and in the most tender, susceptible and impressionable years the little one is at the mercy of untaught and often unscrupulous caretakers."

It is undoubtedly true that woman's first duty is in her home, but after she has performed her duty there, she can find improvement for her mind as well as opportunity to assist humanity by joining a club with other women.

There are many women, however, who neglect their own homes, their own husbands, and their own children in order to devote their lives to the "reformation" of other people. For these the average man entertains the same feeling as a Montana club woman has for W. R. Hearst. Every time he sees one he feels like yelling "seat!"

But the great mass of women, including the members of clubs, are today as always, devoted to their home duties, rearing their children in ways of truth and peace and cleanliness, beacons and guides for all that is pure, holy and ennobling. The women—God bless them. They have their faults, but their virtues are many, and the vampires, thank heaven, are few.

THE FIELD SURVEY

The question "Why do not more men go to church?" is now being discussed. The most plausible explanation is that they do not want to.

President Eliot says "there is joy in digging a ditch." But there is more joy in it to those not compelled to dig than to those that are. To the latter the work becomes so onerous at times as to lose its joy-giving qualities. In work is found happiness, but happiness departs when man is worked beyond endurance.

There are thousands of Americans, acknowledging no church connections, who are already members of the religious order thus described by C. D. I. in the Cass Lake Times:

Let us away to the woods—God's first cathedrals,—where we can listen to the "tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, sermons in stones and good in everything." Where religion is found in the truest and best meaning. Where we recognize, in this vast isolation, as in no other way, the infinite power and goodness of our Creator.

The Aitkin Age gives the following as a sample of the language used by a boy in district No. 62. He was writing on "School Deportment:"

A child or scholar should be clean, neat and honest, not lyable to make faces at any body. Should not whisper to any one but study your lesson instead, should not draw pictures to be pined on the wall by the school master, should not write notes or laugh at anything funny, should not shake your desk as if the school house was shaken by a earthquake should not throw spit-balls so high up into the roof that neithor you nor teacher can get it down again Should not laugh at a dog that is nearly as bad as your self or, pershape a little worse should not draw faces on the black-board that resembles yourself as you often do and makes every body laugh to look at it. Don't call a boy and girl, man and wife because they are sitting togather, unless you are a justice or a minister don't call a dog a fool unless you are a fool yourself don't throw spit balls unless you are a spit ball your self

You should behave every day as you would when D. W. Kemerer is to look after you

Turner's counsel held that the constitution gives no power to expel persons for belief or teaching. Justice Fuller held that the right is inherent in sovereignty to expel persons dangerous to the state.

Either the Minneapolis Tribune, which gave utterance to the above, had different information from that furnished to The Herald, or else it has attempted to make the chief justice say what he did not say. The Associated Press dispatch gave the information that the only point settled by this decision was that admitting the right of this nation to expel foreigners if it so desires, and Chief Justice Fuller explicitly stated that the matter of free speech, religious or political liberty was not on trial. Expelling a foreigner and expelling a citizen are two different things. Let somebody undertake to expel a citizen anarchist from this country and he will undoubtedly run bump against the constitution.

In Britain alone at least 600,000 horse-power uselessly goes up into smoke every day and in this country we are even greater sinners in that respect. It is an established fact that a locomotive scarcely ever utilizes 80 per cent of the coal burned. Only in recent years have we begun to utilize some of the waste in blast furnaces and other coal-consuming plants by collecting the escaping gases and regenerating power therefrom. Our descendants may have to use mirrors for collecting the sun's rays or extract heat from the center of the earth, or concentrate their great manufacturing plants in Africa and Australia where solar heat may be relied upon the year around, but sure it is that our children's children will not be able to get coal indefinitely.

HOTEL GOSSIP

One of the first straw hats of the season was in the Spalding this morning, and did not seem to be a bit bashful about its early debut. It surmounted a rather good-looking man of stout build and wearing a dark, short mustache.

The various people lounging in the lobby observed it with careful eye, but were unable to detect any blemishes on the skypiece. The clerk said it was the first straw hat of the season so far as he knew, at least the first new one.

For it was new, or else a mighty good job of renovating had been done, as it was as white and clean where the band did not obscure the material, as the most fastidious could desire.

The clerk stated that the hat was not stopping in the hotel, so far as he knew. It came in from Superior street and the wearer accompanied another gentleman who was covered, so far as his cranial section was concerned, by an ordinary dark felt hat. Both men took the elevator and disappeared upstairs in the hotel.

The straw hat was of what is known as the Panama brand, of modest dimensions and dignified shape. But one man who saw it poo-poohs the idea of it being the first straw hat of the season.

"Maybe 'tis in Duluth," said he. "But you ought to have been down to the Twin Cities with me the other Sunday and seen 'em—thousands of 'em. It was a bright sunny day and all last year's bunch was out, as well as some new ones. But if this weather keeps up in Duluth the felt hats will have no other work to do than to keep the hat racks and shelves from getting dusty."

"Brides and grooms are subject to some harrowing experiences," was the admission of a married man to a scribe the other day. "It has been some years since I was married, but lest we forget, I may tell you that it was an occasion to be remembered. They had the usual fat umbrella, whose excessive bulk and weight was due to the Chinese food confined within its folds, and when someone offered us the use of the umbrella and opened it we got the customary God-speed of rice. But that's only a circumstance compared with what came before and after.

"The best man went with me from what was then my home in an Eastern city to the bride's place in Iowa—Des Moins. If you must know. He roomed with me at the hotel for several days prior to the wedding and had gotten all the literature he could from me and from others on the duties of the best man, about arranging carriages, fee for the clergyman, carrying the ring until the last minute and a lot of other truck.

But from the development which took place subsequently I judge that he got the greater part of his information on the subject from other people than your humble servant. I had been pretty wise and had not let him out of my sight all the time. But he got around that one day by playing sick and got me to leave the hotel to buy some medicine for him.

"While I was gone he rang for the porter and what they arranged between them was a caution. He got the porter to go out to the ashpile and get all the old shoes he could. Well, if he did not get them all from the ashpile it was not because they would not have done credit to that section of the premises, for of all the dilapidated looking footgear you ever saw it was the worst bunch.

"And the sizes? Well, I never knew there were feet so large and so small as indicated by the results. But enough about the shoes. That porter also had instructions and the price for obtaining a bolt of white satin ribon, and explicit orders as to when and where to go to work on my trunk before I left for the wedding trip.

"It was a new trunk and the best I could afford, in fact, better, considering what I had paid for the ring. It was all finished leather, save on the bottom, and covered with canvas. It was a 'beaut' and I was proud of it—almost as proud as I was of the bride.

"To make a long story short, when I started on the wedding trip I had no misgivings, the trunk having had a civilized appearance the last time I had seen it. I did not see it from the time I left the hotel to go to the ceremony until we were well on the way from Des Moines to Denver, but I thought I'd take a stroll through the baggage car early the first morning out.

"I did. There was the trunk. would never have recognized it. It was bound with what looked like miles of white ribbon and studded with the toughest looking array of shoes of all sizes and colors that you ever heard of. There were men's and women's black shoes, misses' bronze low cuts and babies' shoes of all colors. It was not only rubbing it in to put so many shoes on the trunk, but the different colors and sizes was what stirred up my gore. I could have just gathered someone to my bosom in a wrestling match about that time.

"They hadn't been satisfied with binding the shoes to the trunk, but had inscribed chalk sentiments all over the vacant spots where the lack of shoes would permit. It spoiled the cover of that trunk to rip it off, but I had my knife out in less time than it takes to spin this fairy tale to you, and was doing some of the most artistic butchering of that canvas and that ribbon that you could imagine.

"But I got it all off and scattered it out on the green fields of Iowa. Occasionally I hacked the trunk itself in the operation, and every time I did it I got ill the madder, and the things I said would require you to use different colored paper than you usually print on, to bear the sentiments. It spoiled the trung and lost the cover and certainly cost me a lot of temper that I lost. When I got back to the sleeper I don't believe I spoke to the bride for two hours.

"Every time anything happens now that is not the fault of either of us, and I get hot about it, she says, 'Well, I suppose now you'll blame me for it and not say a word to me all day.'

"So you see a fellow's sins get back at him for years after."

"I suppose nothing like the present deadlock in the Illinois Republican convention has ever been known in that state," said F. W. Engler, an Illinois man at the Spalding yesterday. "But I believe it is a good thing. It is evidence that the people have been getting out to the primaries and electing men as delegates that have some respect for the will of the people rather than men that are chosen merely to serve the interests of a few bosses.

"It's a good thing, and goes to show that the public is getting a chance. It will arouse those of the people who have not yet been stirred up, and ought to serve as well as a wholesome example to the other states in the country. You can never stir up the people too far in politics, is my belief. It's often hard work to get them to take any interest at all in things, and such a state of affairs is hard to countenance. But they are waking up down there, at any rate."

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

Harper's Bazaar: "Pa, what is intuition?"

"Merely the feminine of suspicion, my son."

Boston Transcript: Mrs. Tittle—Isn't it awful the way Mrs. Wild goes on with Mr. Wayward?

Mrs. Tattle—Yes; I've often thought what a blessing they are to the village. It would be intolerably dull without them, don't you think?

Philadelphia Press: "He married money, didn't he?"

"No; he thought he was marrying money, but he merely married something else that talks."

New Yorker: "Yes, sir; the way that dog was devoted to me was amazing. He heard me say to my wife that I was pressed for money, so he went and died the day before the dog-license was due."

Chicago Journal: Visitor—So your poor husband has passed away, Mrs. Murphy. He died happy, I hope?

Mrs. Murphy—Oi think so, mum. The last thing he did was to crack me over the head with a medicine bottle.

"No girl, you cannot marry him!"
The father spoke in accents plain.
"And why, papa?" she wept and asked;
"Because he goes against the grain!"

She thought her father meant to say
He felt for George a scorn complete;
The old man's sole objection was
George went too often 'gainst the wheat.

Piles Can Be Cured

By Internal Treatment

Without the Aid of Narcotics or the Knife

You who suffer with piles know what a glorious boon it would be to you to be absolutely and painlessly cured. You know from actual experience that salves, ointments and other local applications do not cure. You may get relief, but you keep on suffering.

There is a cause for every human ill. Remove the cause and you cure the complaint. Piles have two distinct causes: First, congestion of the liver; second, constipation resulting from poor digestion.

Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific

The Internal Remedy

absolutely removes these causes by increasing the flow of digestive juices in the stomach, and relieving the congestion of the liver. It is a tonic for the entire bowel system and helps each particular member of this system to work easily and naturally.

You simply take a teaspoonful of this positive, internal remedy three times a day before each meal. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely free from opium, cocaine or other narcotics. It is not a palliative or temporary remedy; it produces a positive, radical and lasting cure.

Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific is sold under an

to cure any case of blind, bleeding, itching or internal piles, no matter how chronic or aggravated it may be. Out of over 10,000 cases there are only three on record where a positive cure has not been made.

Dr. Perrin's Pile Specific can be procured of any reliable druggist under an iron-clad agreement to refund your money should you take two $1.00 bottles of the remedy without receiving positive benefit.

IT CHANGED ITS COURSE

How the Mississippi Deprived Men of Right to Vote.

Vicksburg, Miss., May 20.—The perversity of the Father of Waters is a theme around which every old steamboatman and river pilot can weave many a yarn, but that changeful stream has not only outdone them all and disproved the most sacred of their traditions in the prank she has played at Killikranky cutoff, 40 miles below Vicksburg, but have deprived some good Americans of the right of suffrage in the coming election.

At this point in ane-bellum days when the steamboat business was in its zenith the river was comparatively straight. Then of a sudden it dissented its apparently natural channel and swerved to the left through the marshes and lagoons, making a 60-mile curve and doubling back upon itself to a point near its first digression.

This action shifted some square miles and a number of patriotic Mississippi planters into Louisiana. However, the current persisted in taking this circuitous course, and the old channel filled in with silt and finally became a wooded sandbar. The former Mississippians became content under Louisiana rule. Their sons were born in Louisiana in the same house in which they had been born in a different state.

About a month ago, however, during the period of high water, but with the water still six feet below the mark of last year, the narrow neck where the stream doubled back upon itself, suddenly gave way, and ever since the great strong current of the mighty stream has been going through the cutoff line like a millrace. It seems that the force of the current is changed entirely from the course around the bend and rushes madly through the new breach, leaving a slow running and eddying current in its old channel.

Never before in the history of this, the most changeful of streams, has it been known to return to an old channel after once leaving it. Such is the argument of the old river dogs but it is an assured fact that the river is, at this point, going back to the channel which it left forty years ago.

When the low water comes the current will flow strong through the cutoff and the old channel will be converted into a sluggish bayou or a long and gracefully curved lake.

When the election comes in November those sturdy plantation owners who were born and reared in the houses in which they now reside will be denied the right of suffrage in the state of Mississippi, not having lived the necessary one year in the state. They can of course not vote in Louisiana, not being residents of that state.

The old steamboatmen have given up their long harbored belief that the fickle old stream will not return to a channel once deserted, but they may anchor more firmly to their belief in the stream's perversity and incidentally save several hours in their runs up and won the river by reason of the Killikanky cutoff.

Most folk who eat "FORCE" think it tastes the best of all breakfast foods. They say, "It goes right to the spot."

That's because Nature is on the spot. She knows at the first taste what she can make the best blood, and bone, and brain out of.

Nature says, "Give me 'FORCE.'"

A MURDER MANIA

Among the Black People of State of Mississippi.

Over Two Hundred Killings During Present Year.

Jackson, Miss., May 20.—Two hundred killings is the unenviable record Mississippi has achieved since the first of January, and the murder mania, which is spreading with such astonishing rapidity, forms the most serious phase of the southern race problem, for practically all of these crimes have been committed among members of the negror ace.

Killings have become so common among the negroes that they excite little or no interest, however, even in the communities where they occur, and of late they are not even mentioned in the press dispatches.

Some of the murders of the past four months have been of a most atrocious nature, cold blooded, premeditated, and unprovoked, and in at least 20 instances they have been caused by general shooting melees in which from two to six persons have been numbered among the victims.

The popularity of the craps game and the use of cocaine is spreading at a phenomenal rate among the negroes of the South, and the combination of these two forms of pleasure invariably results in work for the undertaker.

Another cause that has contributed very largely to the spread of the murder mania, is too much prosperity. Last year's crop season was unusually good and the negroes on the farms, who have heretofore been always in debt, managed to settle in full with the supply merchants and planters and have money left in their pockets with which to go on sprees. They are paid fancy wages, draw their money, each Saturday night, and before Monday morning manage to get rid of it in riotous dissipation.

A characteristic of the negro race which was comparatively unknown to the olden slave owners and which is becoming more strikingly evident with each succeeding generation, is the fact that the average male member of the race is absolutely devoid of fear. One instance can be cited of where a negro murderer was brought to bay by a posse of a dozen others, and, after discharging all the bullets in the pistol resolutely advanced on his pursuers with a club in his hand, when he realized that further resistance would mean sudden death.

A careful compilation of the 200 killings in Mississippi since the first of the year shows that 40 of the number have been provoked by immoral women of the race. Although the county jails of Mississippi are filled to overflowing with negro criminals, many of them charged with capital offenses, it is a melancholy fact that the average officer charged with enforcement of the law seldoms performs his full duty.

The negro knows its laxity. The vicious members of the race realize that so long as their killings are confined to members of their own race very little trouble will be taken by the officers to place them under arrest. A negro who was arrested in Jackson a few days ago and taken to Gulfport for trial on the charge of slaying his mistress, confessed that he had committed seven murders within an equal number of years, and in each instance had managed to elude the officers after the crime.

Several weeks ago 10 killings were reported within a period of six days in a radius of 10 miles of territory in the delta and only one arrest has been made on account of these crimes.

The jails in Indianola and Yazoo City are so full of murderers that the citizens a short time since petitioned for special court terms in order that the criminal dockets could be cleared.

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. Van Metre, of Shepherdtown, W. Va., says: "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. It's guaranteed by all druggists. Trial bottles free. Reg. sizes 50c, $1.00.

RAILWAY AGENT

Accused of Conspiracy, Convicted and Sentence Affirmed

Owensboro, Ky., May 20.—A. B. Schlitzbaum must serve one year in the penitentiary for embezzling $100 from the Illinois Central railway, says the court of appeals in affirming judgment on appeal from the Ohio circuit court.

The conviction was the outcome of the sensational Boatner express case. Boatner alleged that he shipped a package, said to contain $28,000 from Owensboro to Fordsville, to his own address, in August, 1900. The package left Owensboro on a morning train. At Fordsville Boatner refused to accept the package from the agent, Schlitzbaum, who was also agent of the American Express company at Fordsville, had the package and envelope obtaining money belonging to the Illinois Central Railroad company in his possession. As he was going from the office to his hotel, about 8 o'clock at night, he claims he was held up and robbed of the package and the envelope. He and Boatner were afterwards arrested and tried on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the American Express company. The juries failed to agree on a verdict in the case. Schlitzbaum was then indictde and tried on a charge of embezzling money from the railroad company. He was convicted of the charge and given one year in the penitentiary. His attorney appealed the case to the court of appeals, and the Ohio circuit court judgment was on yesterday affirmed. Schlitzbaum has been in jail at Hartford since August, 1902.

Boatner was indicted and tried on the charge of receiving embezzled funds. He, too, has been in jail at Hartford since the affair. He has brought suit in the United States court for $28,000 alleged to have been shipped from Owensboro to Fordsville. This suit was continued until the November term of court at the last session of the federal court in this city.

THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL

Endorses

Beer as Opposed to Patent Medicines.

Of course, a pure, wholesome beer is meant—that is

Budweiser

Mr. Edward Bok, editor of The Ladies' Home Journal, in a page article in the May issue gives a list of 36 medicines with official analysis asserting them to contain 12 to 47 per cent. of Alcohol!

And he adds in black type:

> "In connection with this list, think of beer, which contains only from two to five per cent. of alcohol, while some of these 'bitters' contain ten times as much, making them stronger than whisky, far stronger than sherry or port, with claret and champagne way behind."

Mr. Bok continues:

> "A mother who would hold up her hands in holy horror at the thought of her child drinking a glass of beer, which contains from two to five per cent. of alcohol, gives to that child with her own hands a patent medicine that contains from seventeen to forty-four per cent. of alcohol."

Budweiser contains only $3\frac{89}{100}$ per cent. of alcohol. It is better than pure water because of the nourishing qualities of malt and the tonic properties of hops.

Budweiser is pre-eminently a family beverage; its use promotes the cause of true temperance—it guards the safety of health and home. Budweiser is

FOR MAY 1904

GREAT WAR IS ON

In Tennessee For Election of a Prohibition Legislature

Pledges Required From Candidates By the Temperance Advocates.

Covington, Tenn., May 20.—There will be a battle royal in Tennessee this year between the temperance advocates and the whisky men, which will be finally fought out in the legislature, which meets in January next. Already the league has sent out pledges to be signed by candidates for the legislature, pledging themselves to vote for an extension of the Adams bill and for measures to more rigidly enforce prohibition laws in "dry" counties. The league's attention will now be directed toward the large cities, such as Nashville and Memphis, and the wards will be the points of attack.

Some people profess to be under the impression that this question will not be greatly agitated in Tennessee this year, but that the friends of temperance will rest on their oars for the time being. But the direct contrary is the case, as will be readily seen from the following extract of a letter written by Dr. Erward E. Folk, president and acting superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of Tennessee, on the Anti-Saloon league and its work in Tennessee, to W. N. White, secretary of the Tipton County Anti-Saloon league. The letter was read in full by him at the meeting of the Methodist church in celebration of the closing of the saloons in Covington.

It will be seen that it is the announced purpose of the league to carry the war into the large cities, such as Nashville and Memphis, by giving the wards the right to vote on the question of whether whisky shall be sold in their respective ward limits or not. Dr. Folk writes:

"What of the future? The program of the Anti-Saloon league is:

"1. Rigid enforcement of the four-mile law in towns which now come under its operation, and to this end the vigorous prosecution of all its violators, "blind tigers," "boot leggers," or by whatever name called.

"2. The extension of the law as soon as possible to all of the towns in the state that want it, giving them the privilege of voting upon the question of having saloons, either by corporations, as now, or by wards in the larger cities.

"If it should be said that the law could not be enforced in the large cities, I have simply to reply that if there is sufficient public sentiment to vote out saloons, then there would be sufficient public sentiment to enforce the law. If, on the other hand, there would not be sufficient public sentiment to enforce the law, then there would not be sufficient public sentiment to vote the saloons out. Certainly those towns whose citizens have been pleading for the privilege of having a vote on the question should be given that privilege.

"3. The regulation of saloons in towns where they may still remain, so as to minimize, as far as possible, their direful influence.

"As seen from the above program, instead of being ended, the work of the Anti-Saloon league in Tennessee is just begun.

"No temperance law in Tennessee has ever been repealed, and none will ever be. A prominent politician told me that 85 per cent of the people of the state are in favor of temperance. The wet and dry counties in the state show about the same proportion, as also did the votes in the house on the Adams bill. With 85 per cent of the state behind the leaders of the Anti-Saloon league, they do not fear either the saloonkeepers, the wholesale liquor dealers or the brewers and distillers, either of Tennessee or of the United States, with all of their money and machinations.

"EDGAR E. FOLK,
"President and Acting Superintendent Tennessee Anti-Saloon league."

The passage of a law giving the wards in the cities the right to vote on the question of whether or not liquor could be sold in the respective wards will be bitterly opposed by the whisky men, as a number of wards in Nashville and Memphis would doubtless go "dry," leaving the saloons in a comparatively narrow compass, which would, of course, render the business much less profitable on account of competition, etc.

It is evidently the purpose of the league, as announced in the letter of the president, to make this the issue before the next legislature, and the friends of temperance all over the state are getting in line for the battle. An effort will also be made to pass some act practically prohibiting the "jug" trade. Laws having this object in view have been passed by different states.

An act in this direction was passed by the West Virginia legislature. A privilege tax of $100 was levied on all firms, express companies and railroad companies shipping liquor or conveying it from a point in one county to another point in a different county, the privilege to be paid both at shipping point and destination. The point in the matter was that a prohibition city or county could not give any firm or person the right to exercise such a privilege by shipping liquor into it, and this effectually killed the jug trade. Legislation in this direction will probably be an issue before the next legislature in Tennessee.

CURES RHEUMATISM!

Helena, Mont., Jan. 24, 1904.

MEDERINE REMEDY CO., Duluth, Minn.

Dear Sirs:—As I have suffered for the last seven years with Blood Poison and Eczema I had tried everything that money could pay for and it was of no avail. No one knows how I suffered with running sores on my leg, I at last gave up all hopes and started to use oxplasm for relief.

My druggist, one day, told me to try Mederine. I thought that it was no good, but resolved to spend a dollar once more. One bottle of Mederine cured all the running ulcers and clears the Eczema. I have taken two courses and am a well woman today. I cannot say enough for Mederine for Blood, Eczema and Catarrh. I thank you for my life long relief and shall recommend Mederine to others. Yours truly, Mrs. A. O. S. Miliot, No. 208 State street.

Mederine is sold at $5 per bottle or 6 for $25 by all dealers. Write for booklet.

OFFERED TO REVEAL NAME

If the Court Should Order That It Be Done.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 20.—Dr. Chas. H. Hoffman, the noted bacteriologist and pathologist, who has been an expert witness in many important suits and whose real name and identity is shrouded in mystery, offered on the witness stand last week to produce his certificate of graduation from Heidelberg university and reveal his true name.

When Dr. Hoffman left the professorship in Drake university's medical college, it was understood to be because he refused to produce this certificate which would have revealed his true name.

Dr. Hoffman was a witness in the Bass estate suit against the Edison Light company, in which one line of the company's defense was to show that Bass could have died from other causes than an electric shock. W. A. Spurrier, cross-examining Dr. Hoffman, said:

"Doctor, you say you are a graduate of Heidelberg. What evidence is there to that effect, you haven't any certificate, have you?"

"My certificate is at the house. You can see it if you want to," Dr. Hoffman said quietly.

There was a moment of silence in the court and then the cross-examination went on without further reference to this point. Dr. Hoffman said afterward he would produce the certificate in court if it were necessary but he would not gratify idle curiosity.

Cured His Mother of Rheumatism

"My mother has been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism," says W. H. Howard, of Husband, Pa. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at all times walking was painful. I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried, in fact, she is never without it now and is at all times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with." For sale by all druggists.

Young women may avoid much sickness and pain, says Miss Alma Pratt, if they will only have faith in the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely run down, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO YOUNG GIRLS.

All young girls at this period of life are earnestly invited to write Mrs. Pinkham for advice; she has guided in a motherly way hundreds of young women; her advice is freely and cheerfully given, and her address is Lynn, Mass.

Judging from the letters she is receiving from so many young girls Mrs. Pinkham believes that our girls are often pushed altogether too near the limit of their endurance nowadays in our public schools and seminaries.

Nothing is allowed to interfere with studies, the girl must be pushed to the front and graduated with honor; often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality,—often it is never recovered.

A Young Chicago Girl Saved from Despair.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to thank you for the help and benefit I have received through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. When I was about seventeen years old I suddenly seemed to lose my usual good health and vitality. Father said I studied too hard, but the doctor thought different and prescribed tonics, which I took by the quart without relief. Reading one day in the paper of Mrs. Pinkham's great cures, and finding the symptoms described answered mine, I decided I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I did not say a word to the doctor; I bought it myself, and took it according to directions regularly for two months, and I found that I gradually improved, and that all pains left me, and I was my old self once more.—LILLIE E. SINCLAIR, 17 E. 22d St., Chicago Ill."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one sure remedy to be relied upon at this important period in a young girl's life; with it she can go through with courage and safety the work she must accomplish, and fortify her physical well being so that her future life may be insured against sickness and suffering.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

APOSTLE OF GOOD CHEER

Who Whistles For All His Meals and His Bed.

Paducah, Ky., May 20.—Have you heard him, that merry whistler who stands propped on his crutches and whistles and whistles, and then whistles low, but always melodiously? He is no hot-air machine. Nor does he bore people by telling them he can whistle—he just whistles.

The whistling man is A. H. Bryant, of Atlanta, Ga., and he has but one arm and one leg. He stops on a corner and begins his melody. In a moment someone stops to listen, then another, and presently he is surrounded by a crowd that stays till the whistler pulls stakes and hunts another location. Saturday, from early in the forenoon until almost midnight, he stood on Broadway and alternately whistled and sang, but mostly he whistled. And his airs reflected the fortitude, physical and mental, which is necessary to maintain the labor. Not a single melancholy note did he pipe during the long day and a half of the night. His cheerfulness was a sermon to all who heard him on the downtown street corners.

There is great variety in his tunefulness, and many of the pieces he whistles are real classics. Saturday it was noticed more than once that a man would stop to listen to him and a few minutes then go away and bring his friends and sometime his family, back. Bryant will not talk about himself. While you are trying to get an expression about his work, he has drawn you into conversation on some other subject. He is well-groomed and gentlemanly in his bearings, uses good English and is rather handsome.

He is going to St. Louis and will be there from June 1 until the close of the fair. He has traveled nearly all over the world, whistling his way along. He took in lots of money Saturday, but he is no whining mendicant. He never passes the hat, and every cent he gets comes voluntarily.

Bryant is also a splendid ventriloquist, and his clear tenor voice rings out high and strong above the noises of street traffic. A few years ago an accident cost him his right leg and his right arm, he goes through the world, earning an honest living by his powers as a sidewalk entertainer.

WOMAN RECORDER

In Iowa Who Has Made Fine Record.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 20.—For the first time in the history of Polk county an official has made a perfect record with the books of the office balancing to the cent at the end of the year. This was the record made by County Recorder Mrs. Frank Dodson for the year 1903, and the auditing committee of the board of supervisors and their expert accountant were unable to discover a discrepancy.

In handling thousands of fees of various sums it has always seemed impossible to avoid errors and every year the accounts are off in a small way one way or the other. The fees in the recorder's office for 1902 show an increase of $1076.31 over those of 1901, the last year when they were known for the entire year. There were filed 3756 instruments and the total receipts were $6895.05, yielding the county over and above the expenses of the office $1465.90.

The deeds filed numbered 5096, and the revenue was $2944.50; mortgages 3193, at $2879.30; miscellaneous, 1525, at $1101.25.

The report of the committee of the supervisors will state that the books of any of the county offices were never found in better condition than those of Mrs. Dodson's office.

Whooping Cough.

"In the spring of 1901 my children had whooping cough," says Mrs. D. W. Capps, of Capps, Ala. "I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with the most satisfactory results. I think this is the best remedy I have ever seen for whooping cough." This remedy keeps the cough loose, lessens the severity and frequency of the coughing spells and counteracts any tendency toward pneumonia. For sale by all druggists.

AGED SISTERS'

First Meeting Though Over 65 Years Old.

Parkersburg, W. V., May 20.—Mrs. Andy Rumble, who lives near Morgantown, and Mrs. William Maxwell, of Chicago, sisters, each over 65 years of age, saw each other for the first time in their lives a few days ago, when Mrs. Maxwell came to West Virginia to visit Mrs. Rumble.

The latter, when 6 years old, went to live with her grandmother and was gone so many years that when she returned home her sister had been born, grown to womanhood, married and gone to Chicago to live. The first meeting was a joyous one.

RUIN OF A BOSS

Caused By Iowa Editor Whose Brother's Diamonds Were Stolen.

The Frightened Gang Gives Up Its Ill-Gotten Wealth.

Clinton, Iowa, May 20.—L. E. Fay, editor of the Clinton Advertiser, is a remarkable man. It has been said he is an editor; let it be added that his brother wore diamonds worth many thousands of dollars and you instantly agree with the assertion that this editor is remarkable. But urther, over and beyond this extraordinary state of facts he has proved himself by causing the downfall of Tom Dennison, the gambler political bosa of Omaha, and the uncovering of a gang of diamond robbers and other criminals who have operated successfully in Iowa for years.

C. A. Fay was robbed of his diamonds two years ago. The editor went on the trail of the robbers.

The gems were returned to L. E. Fay at Council Bluffs by Sheriff Canning, of Pottawottamie county, who received them in Omaha, Canning acting as the representative of the Fays and the persons who had come into possession of the stones.

The first positive clue was obtained in April, 1903, when George B. Burrier, convicted with several accomplices for burglaries at Lyons, Iowa, made a confession, covering a number of crimes committed by the gang, of which he was a member. Among other things he stated that the Fay robbery had been accomplished by one W. C. Rogers, and the property disposed of to Bernstein, an Omaha pawnbroker, now a bailiff in the Omaha district court, at Omaha. Burrier then told Fay that Bernstein was nothing but a tool of Tom Dennison's, and that any attempt to recover the diamonds must be directed at Dennison.

Early in May, 1903, Fay went to Omaha and saw Dennison, who denied all knowledge of the matter. Fay then went to Chief of Police Donahue, who, it is said, after conferences with Dennison and Bernstein, advised Fay to abandon his search in Omaha, and to go home and mind his own business.

There the matter rested until a few weeks ago, when Fred Bunting, of Lanesboro, Iowa, was arrested upon the charge of receiving property stolen by the Burrier gang. The evidence was slight, and upon condition that he would not be prosecuted, Bunting undertook to induce Dennison and Bernstein to return the missing diamonds.

In more detail the story of Editor Fay, as prepared for his own paper, follows:

"To George B. Burrier, who was first supposed to be connected with this crime, to a large extent rests the credit of the case and the final recovery of the property. His story has been verified in every particular by the return of the identical goods by the hand of the man to whom Burler stated Rogers had sold them.

"That this quest should have developed into the unveiling of one of the most sensational crimes in the state—the robbery of Pollock—was not dreamed of when this work was undertaken, and that it should have led into a political scandal, owing to the publication of the statement of Dennison showing the amounts which he had paid the politicians for the paroling of Shercliff, a convict in the Iowa penitentiary, who robbed Pollock, a diamond salesman, on a train, and has recently confessed that he did this under the advice and protection of Dennison, the writer regrets, as politics should in no ways be mixed up with a criminal prosecution. The writer did not give out the statement until after the principal parts of it had "leaked" out of the grand jury room at Logan, following the indictment of Tom Dennison, when it was introduced as evidence.

"The first knowledge the writer had of the Pollock robbery, and in fact the first knowledge he had of Tom Dennison, came through Frank Shercliff the first visit which I made to Fort Madison. This was before the confession of Burrier. The statements made by Frank Shercliff at that time were that Dennison was "the whole thing" in Omaha; that his hold on the police department was such that nothing could be done there without his consent, and that if the diamonds were to be recovered it must be through Tom Dennison. I later found that everything that Shercliff had said was correct; that Dennison was a political czar of Omaha whom the thieves loved, the officers respected and the business men feared. No promise or support of any character was asked by Shercliff.

"Dennison is the most cold-blooded, calculating man whom I have met; a man who it is reported will hesitate at nothing to gain a point, and yet whose word is generally regarded as good as a government bond. Whatever other crimes may be laid at the door of Tom Dennison he is not regarded as a liar. He generally carries his point. The thieves who stay by him he protects, even by the expenditure of a vast amount of time and money; the thieves who go back on him he finds a way of burying in some penitentiary. With a cudgel in one hand and money in the other he has kept a large gang of thieves answering his summons; and by the same means has kept absolute control of the votes of a corrupt element in the Third ward of Omaha, whose votes he has as absolutely controlled as he has his own. The result has been that he has been able to swing the vote of that ward in any way he desired, and with the political pull which he has been able to exercise in other wards of the city has controlled the politics of Omaha and of Douglas county, giving political favors here and defeating unacceptable candidates on either ticket.

"Politicians have sought the support of Tom Dennison and his gang, and he has thus formed associations with men high up in the political councils of the state of Nebraska which has been of great value to him, and as has been proven by later developments has been able to reach into Iowa and contaminate many of our best public men.

"Such in brief is Tom Dennison, who now occupies the center of the criminal stage in the country because of his recent indictment at Logan, Io., for the robbery of Pollock of $15,000 in diamonds. Such was the standing of the man a year ago, when the writer stood in his presence and demanded the return of the diamonds which had been stolen from C. A. Fay. I remember his sneer of incredulity when I stated that I proposed to keep after those diamonds until I got them. He thought it a 'bluff' and it did look like it.

"Stirred up by the disclosures in the Shercliff confession, the Burrier statement, and by the information which had been dug up by Attorney Dunn, the civic federation of Omaha was formed, backed by the best men in the city and with ample funds paid in to prosecute Dennison. Attorney E. E. Thomas, a bulldog in tenacity and possessing, as Dunn does, a great legal brain, was employed to conduct the legal end of the case. He placed himself in communication with Shercliff, through me, and secured the itemized statement of account which Dennison made of his expenses in the Shercliff pardon case, which has made such a political sensation.

"He secured the co-operation of County Attorney Fallon of Harrison county and followed this up with the indictment of Dennison at Logan, Io., for the Pollock robbery, and states that it is his intention to press it to a successful conclusion, and there is little doubt but he will do so.

"In the meantime Murphy and Conroy, in addition to Burrier, had been convicted in Clinton; Dolan had been sent up from Sioux City and after a strong fight Rogers was convicted at Council Bluffs.

"The gang was getting pretty well cleaned up and Dennison himself was getting very uneasy at the way the convictions had been secured, especially as an indictment was pending against him.

When Bunting went to Omaha there were various conferences between Bernstein, Dennison, Nesselhouse and Bunting. It was thought that it would square things if the diamonds were returned. I was sent for to go to Council Bluffs and had several interviews with Bunting. I gave him to understand that the return of the diamonds would have nothing to do with the case, excepting that I would endeavor to get the indictments against him in Clinton dismissed, providing the officers felt that they did not have a strong case against him. I further told him that if the diamonds were not returned that his friends would find that I would be as active on their trail the next twelve months as I had been in the past. Also that I had placed with the proper officials all the information I had bearing upon the Dennison case, and that the officials could call on me for any further information I might be able to get for them.

"He reported to Bernstein, and the result was the meeting in the center of the wagon bridge between Council Bluffs and Omaha, each being needlessly afraid of the treachery of the other, as Bernstein was as anxious to return the diamonds as I was to get them. He there made arrangements for the delivery of the stones through Sheriff Canning of Council Bluffs, but said that it might take him a day or two to get one or two of the diamonds which, up to that time, he had been unable to buy back.

"Bernstein stated that he had bought the diamonds from Rogers, but that they had been subsequently sold and he had got most of them back.

"A day later I received a wire from Sheriff Canning that he had the diamonds, and went out and brought them back."

TEXAN BUYS A KINGDOM

Will Have Hundreds of Mexican Peons as Subjects.

Mexico City, May 20.—Judge Seymour Thurmond of El Paso is soon to be the proprietor of the largest ranch in the world.

He has just returned from a trip into the interior, where he has purchased 3,000,000 acres of land and will stock it with the best breeds of cattle.

Collector Patrick F. Garrett, collector of the port of El Paso, is interested in the deal with him and will be one of the owners.

The land was secured from the government in payment for extensive surveys made of government land by Judge Thurmond and associates.

When the land is fenced and stocked the proprietors will be virtually the rulers of a kingdom, and will have hundreds of Mexican peons as subjects.

In speaking of the deal Judge Thurmond said:

"This is my second visit to Mexico's capital city. I was here last January in company with Capt. Garrett and was then, putting it mildly, favorably impressed not only with the city and its apparent thrift, but with all Mexico as well.

"Yes, I am here in connection with a land deal. In connection with one of Mexico's prominent citizens, Luis Martinez del Castro, we have undertaken the acquisition of territory that will be valuable to us if our plans do not miscarry, and I see no reason why they should.

"Of course, we will have to clear land and put water on it, and we will have to build mills to saw the lumber. But in Mexico, apparently, these enterprises are profitable, and as the policy of Mexico is to encourage the movement of capital, if we fail it will be through mistakes."

STARVED HIMSELF

To Death While In Sight of Plenty.

Little Rock, Ark., May 20.—Francis Toews, for many years janitor of the local Y. M. C. A. rooms, died at the county hospital.

Francis was known to hundreds of members of the Y. M. C. A., came to Little Rock about twelve years ago and entered the service of the Y. M. C. A. ten years ago. He was greatly liked by the many boys who were members of the association, and was a great favorite with the smaller boys. He received a regular income from an estate in Germany.

Last year Francis suffered with a bowel complaint and spent some time in an infirmary. He had never recovered from that attack. He had suffered considerable during the past month and about two weeks ago refused to take either food or water. All efforts of friends were unavailing to induce him to eat and drink. He gradually wasted away and during the last week in April his mind gave way to such an extent that friends had him removed to the county hospital, where he was placed in the insane ward. He still refused to eat or drink and slowly sank until he died yesterday. His hallucination was that his enemies were after him, during the past year he has turned against many of his former friends, believing that they were trying to injure him. He was placed in the hospital April 28.

Early last week when it was seen that there was no hope for the recovery of the unfortunate man, a telegram was sent to his brother, Professor Peter Toews, instructor in the University of Toronto, who reached the city Tuesday, and has since attended him.

A BUFFALO HUNT

By Indians In Oklahoma In Presence of 12,000 People.

It Was the First Buffalo Hunt In Thirty Years.

Oklahoma City, May 20.—Fully 12,000 people witnessed the great Indian buffalo hunt, participated in by over 3000 Indians, at the 101 ranch, one mile north of Bliss. Five excursion trains arrived in the morning from the north and south, and great masses of people swarmed over the hills from the trains to the stockade in which the exercises took place. Surrounding this stockade was an enormous grand stand, holding over 8000 people. Scattered around the outside of the enclosure were the Indian tepees, with their tall poles sticking out like antlers and their smoke-colored tops, browned with the smoke of many fires. In and around these the Indian families lounged, watching the young bucks practicing on their ponies on a nearby hill, or sitting cross-legged eating hard baked bread and half-cooked meat. Hanging on the backs of buggy seats or strung up on wires were large slabs of cut meat, drying in the sun, resembling at a distance a line full of clothes.

In a brand new enormously large tent sat the new chief of the Poncas, Horse Chief, cross-legged, smoking. He was dressed in full regalia, but spoke to no one. At one end of the grand stand sat the the squaws, a sight which could possibly been seen for fifteen miles. All the hues of the rainbow and some that rainbows never dreamed about were blended in one awful mass of color by the blankets and clothes of the eleven different tribes of squaws.

It was almost 2 o'clock when a grand parade started around the enclosure. The long half mile of grand stand was packed. Thousands stood around the fence. Leading the parade was the new chief with six warriors, followed by the band. Then came thirteen young bucks dressed in Indian costumes and war White Eagle, the retiring chief of the falo hunters, with their long wicked spears, steel pointed and lightly dressed, and then the ball players.

Following this the Coyle band and then White Eagle, the retiring chief of the Poncas, seated on the stage coach, filled with newspaper correspondents and drawn by four large mules. Fifty-six cow punchers of the true Western sort wound up the parade, which formed again at the north end of the enclosure, and marched to the south end abreast, where they wheeled around, and with a wild yell galloped back at a terrific speed. On slower ponies came the old gray-haired chieftains and Standing Elk, the secretary to White Eagle.

The Otoe Indian ball players next came dancing out in the field, some with nothing more than a guide around their waists, others in brightly colored costumeas and tights. The game was very interesting and whenever a young buck would catch the ball in the little sack at the end of the three-foot stick, and started down the field towards the goal, the onlookers cheered with the vigor of college football rooters. Some would throw the ball for hundreds of feet, others would dart for the goal, running as only an Indian can, swinging his sticks up and down, to keep the ball from falling out.

While this was going on, coming from over the far away hills could be seen a string of cattle. On they came, up and down the hills and around pools of water like a worm, a mile in length. As the foremost cattle reached a knoll a short distance in front of the grand stand, they were turned in a circle by the cowboys, and as they still came, they were coiled up, again until they had wound up into a round bunch 5000 strong, so close, that one might easily walk over their backs. In a short time they were unwinding, and streaming out over the green hills scattering as they went and eagerly munching the fresh green grass.

The world's record for roping and tieing a steer was broken by Kirby Reynolds, who roped his steer in just twenty-two and a half seconds, three seconds less than any previous record. Jim Hopkins also did quick work roping and tieing his steer in thirty seconds. The exhibition of broncho busting and roping was just a Buffalo Bill's show on a large scale.

Then followed an exhibition, the like of which will never be seen again, and which is the first after a period of thirty years—the buffalo hunt and inauguration of the new chief and the selection of the new council. With a blood curdling yell followed by a war chant, hundreds of Indian braves entered the stout steel wire enclosure, and galloped at break neck speed around and around the stockade. At the signl of pistol shot, the bunch of yelling demon-like creatures, painted in hideous colors and whirling their spears in the air, bore down upon the three buffalo, which were browsing in one corner of the field. They were shaggy brutes, with rather long horns and at the shot, they looked up and started in a terrific run from the stampede. Back and forth, back and forth they fled, their tongues lolling out, froth streaming from their mouths and a wild glare in their eyes. Around them were the hundreds of hunters driving them hither and thither and shouting until they were worked up into a frenzy. The large buffalo, a shaggy brute with a heavy mane, was singled out by the hunters, and finaly shot. The carcass was then skinned and the head cut off, which Mr. Miller intends to have mounted. The body was cut in two, half of which J. C. Miller presented to his guests and the other half of which was eaten by the Indians.

After this followed more feasting and dancing and singing by the Indians and after this the inauguration of Horse Chief, the new chief of the Poncas, who selected his council from those he considered of his braves, who showed the greatest bravery and skill during the hunt. The exhibition was an impressive ceremony consisting of dancing, chants and feasting participated in by all the Indians, which included the folowing tribes: Osages, Otoes, Cheyennes, Arapahoes, Tonkawas, Pawnee, Kaws, Siouxs, Omahas, Kiowas and Comanches.

The ocasion is one to be remembered by the thousands who witnessed it. The exhibition was void of the monotony and make-believe of a Wild West show. The Indians were at home on their own grounds, and everything was genuine. They paid no attention to the onlookers, but carried out the services which meant so much to them, and with the spirit and abandon of the old-time savage.

Hundreds of camera fiends clicked their little machines, taking everything in sight and the moving picture machine was kept going constantly, catching the wonderful pictures, to be reproduced later before the thousands who failed to see the living picture.

PENALTY OF FORFEITURE

To Be Enforced Against Many Corporations In Texas.

Austin, Tex., May 20.—The secretary of state has commenced the work of forfeiting the charters of all the domestic and foreign coporations now operating in Texas that have failed to pay the franchise tax required by law. No more franchise taxes will be received and the charters of approximately 1200 corporations will be forfeited.

The statute under which these forfeitures are made provides: "Any corporation, either foreign or domestic, which fails to pay the tax provided for herein, shall forfeit its right to do business in this state, which forfeiture shall be consummated without judicial ascertainment by the secretary of state entering upon the margin of the ledger kept in his office relating to such corporations the word 'forfeited.'"

The same act provides that any corporation which shall within six months after the list has been published pay the tax and $5 additional for each month or fractional part of a month which elapses, after such forfeiture of its right to do business in the state, and when the said tax and penalty are fully paid to the secretary of state it shall be the duty of said office to revive and reinstate said right by canceling the word "forfeited" on his ledger and substitute therefor the word "revived."

BOILS

PYRAMIDS OF PAIN

Boils show the blood is in a riotous, feverish condition, or that it has grown too weak and sluggish to throw off the bodily impurities, which then concentrate at some spot, and a carbuncle or boil is the result. To one already enfeebled by disease, boils seem to come with more frequency, causing the intensest pain and greatest danger to the already weak and debilitated sufferer. All skin eruptions, from the sometimes fatal carbuncle to the spiteful little cat-boil, are caused by bad blood, and the only way to avoid or get permanently rid of them is to purify and build up the deteriorated, polluted blood, and counteract the humors and poisons; and nothing will do this so quickly and thoroughly as S. S. S., which is the acknowledged king of blood purifiers and greatest of all tonics. Where the blood has become impoverished and is poor and thin, no medicine acts so promptly in building up and restoring its richness, purity and strength. The time to cure a boil is before it develops, when it is in a state of incubation or formation in the blood; for boils are, after all, only the impurities and poisons bubbling up through the skin, and this will continue in spite of poulticing and lancing till the blood gets rid of its accumulated poison. The way to stop boils is to attack them in the blood, and this is what S. S. S. does. All danger of boils is past when the blood has been thoroughly purified and the system cleansed of all morbid, impure matter. If you are subject to boils, then the same causes that produced them last season will do so this, and the sooner you begin to put your blood and system in good order the better the chance of going through the spring and summer season without boils or other painful and irritating skin eruptions. S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable, and can be taken with perfect safety by old and young, and without harm to the most delicate constitution. It is mild and pleasant in its action, and unequaled as a cure for boils and kindred eruptions. Write us if you would like medical advice or other information.

SSS

Allegheny, Pa., June 11, 1903.

From the age of twenty or thirty I was sorely afflicted with large, awful boils on my face and body. As soon as they would heal up in one place they would break out in another part of the body, and this continued for ten years. I tried everything I could hear of to get relief, but nothing did me any good. I had but little faith in S. S. S. doing me good when I began it, but after taking it for a short while the boils began to disappear. I continued on with the medicine, taking six bottles, and all the boils entirely disappeared. Five years have elapsed since that time, and I have never been bothered since, showing that the cure was permanent. I had some thirty or forty of the most painful boils one ever had, and to be entirely rid of them by your great purifier, S. S. S., puts me under a debt of gratitude to you.

STRONG SITUATION IN CASH WHEAT

Chicago and East Buy Wheat to Be Shipped All Rail.

Lively Time In Chicago May—Duluth Market Strongest.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 20.—Duluth led the other markets in strength this morning and the cash situation was responsible. The May here closed 1½c higher, while in Chicago it was unchanged and in Minneapolis only ¼c higher. In the May option in Chicago there was a lively time. There has been a great advance in the price of that option this week and this morning extremely small receipts caused active covering by shorts and the market went upward with a rush until it sold at $1.01¾, which was 2¾c higher than yesterday. Then there were heavy realization sales and it went off to 97½c with a rush. A rally brought it to the closing prices of yesterday.

Duluth found a strong demand for its wheat and traders here say the situation is the strongest they have seen in years. Chicago bought from 60,000 to 75,000 bus of Duluth No. 1 northern wheat to go all-rail to that market. Eastern millers also bought 30,000 bus to go all-rail. The demand for wheat is not confined to this country either, for exporters this morning sold 15 loads of Manitoba wheat to go abroad. Interior millers are also asking for choice lots of Duluth wheat, but get the answer that they can only buy out of the elevators, and not selected wheat. If navigation would open there is little doubt that Duluth stocks of wheat would go out with a rush and the amount in store be reduced to a low level.

Foreign markets are all strong. Liverpool was ½d higher, and London 1d higher. Continental markets were all firmer. Paris being up ¼c, Berlin 1¼c, and Buda Pest 2¼c.

Weather reports are generally favorable. H. V. Jones had this to say of seeding in the Northwest:

"Seeding operations in the Red River valley are backward, only 50 per cent of last year's crop area having been seeded last Saturday night. This would perhaps be equivalent to 65 per cent of wheat acreage sown, possibly 70 per cent. A considerable percentage of land is unplowed, and this will go to barley, flax, or remain fallow. Outside of the valley wheat seeding is practically completed and the plant is making a good start, but it late. This week has been favorable for seeding in the valley, possibly 80 per cent, which will represent about the maximum that will be seeded there this year.

The Modern Miller says: "A further improvement in the condition of the winter wheat crop is reported, and there is no deterioration even in the section where the plant suffered most damage through winter killing and lack of moisture. The crop will be short in the Ohio valley, in Texas and Indian territory, but the yield promises to be better than earlier estimates indicated. Prospects are for large yields in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri and for good crops in Illinois and on the Pacific coast. Harvesting has begun in Texas, with better results than expected."

In the Duluth market the July option closed with an advance of ⅝c. Minneapolis was a shade higher, Chicago ⅝@⅞c lower and New York ⅜c lower. In Minneapolis the September option closed ⅛c lower and in Duluth unchanged.

Car receipts at Duluth were 8, against 34 a year ago and at Minneapolis 78, against 112 a year ago, making a total for the Northwest of 86, against 146 a year ago. Chicago received 5 against 3 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 147,731 bus, last year 184,366 bus. Shipments 185,197 bus., last year 652,540 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 71,000 bus. Argentine shipments this week were 2,584,000 bus, against 3,664,000 bus, last week and 2,376,000 bus, last year. Bradstreet reported American clearances this week of 1,225,763 bus, against 734,736 bus. last week.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged. In the Chicago market July corn closed ⅛-¼c higher. July oats closed ⅛-¼c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 207,040 bus., last year 475,840 bus. Shipments 292,155 bus., last year 349,020. Clearances were 36,000 bus. Argentine shipments this week were 1,096,000 bus., against 864,000 bus., last week and 863,000 bus. last year. American clearances this week were 118,337 bus., against 120,160 bus. last week.

Trading in wheat in the Duluth market was active. The July cotton opened ⅝c up at 94c and advanced to 94⅝c at 9:45. It fell back to 93⅞c at 10, advanced to 94½c at 10:35, and again reacted to 94c at 11:11.

It sold a few minutes later at 94⅝c and then fell to 93¾c at 11:50. After that it held between that price and 94c and closed at the latter figure, a gain for the day of ⅜c. The May option closed 1⅜c higher at 96¼c. September was unchanged at 81¾c.

Cash prices were wide in their range running from ¼c over July to 3c over and higher.

Flax was dull and stronger in the early part of the day but lost its advance. July sold ⅜c up to $1.09. It then settled back and closed unchanged at $1.08¾. September closed ¼c lower and October ½c lower. Argentine shipments of flax this week were 1,960,000 bus., against the same last week and 312,000 bus., a year ago. Stocks of flax at Duluth are estimated to increase 30,000 bus. this week.

Oats and rye made an advance of 1c. Following are the closing prices:

Wheat in store: No. 1 hard, 97¾c; No. 1 northern, 96¾c; No. 2 northern, 93¾c. To arrive: No. 1 hard, 97c; No. 1 northern, 96; No. 2 northern, 93½c. On track: No. 1 northern, 94¼@98c; No. 2 northern, 91¾@94¾c. Macaroni: No. 1, 91c; No. 2, 89c; May, 90¼; July, 94; Sept, 81¾. Flax in store: $1.07; to arrive, $1.07; May, $1.06¾; July, $1.08¾; Sept, $1.08¾; Oct, $.00. Oats 69on track, 43c; to arrive, 43c; rye to arrive, 65c; on track, 65c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 8; last year: 34; flax, 2; last year, 18.

Receipts: Wheat, 5,531; oats, 176; barley, 625; flax, 4,989.

Shipments: Wheat, 8,709; oats, 1,000.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bullish Sentiment Prevailed In Spite of Weather.

Chicago, May 20.—In spite of ideal weather a bullish sentiment pervaded the wheat pit today, due to activity of shorts in the May option. The urgent demand for the May option was occasioned by the extremely small receipts, five cars being received today—the smallest number on record—while only three cars were estimated for tomorrow. The opening was strong, with May ½c to 2c up at 99½c to $1.01. Offerings were light and the price soon advanced to $1.01¾, but reacted to $1.01 on profit-taking. July opened ½c lower to ¼c higher at 87½c to 87¾c. In sympathy with May the price advanced to 88¼c but eased off to 87⅞@88. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 91 cars, against 76 cars last week and 141 cars a year ago.

On heavy realizing sales the May delivery received a severe set-back late in the day, the price declining to 97¼c, a break of 4⅝c from the high point. The weakness, of the nearby delivery influence the more distant options, July selling off to 86⅝c. Within the last few minutes shorts again bid up the price of May to 99c, where it closed, final figures being precisely at last night's closing prices. The July option, however, was affected by bearish crop reports, closing near the bottom at 86⅜@⅞c, a net loss of ¾@⅞c.

An almost total depletion of stocks, together with the advance in wheat, caused strength in corn in the face of excellent weather. The opening was inclined to weakness on large Argentine shipments. July being a shade to ⅛@¼c lower, at 48c to 48¼c. Offerings were very small, however, and on an active demand from a leading operator the market quickly assumed a strong tone, July advancing to 49c. Local receipts were 70 cars, with 5 of contract grade.

Reports of a more liberal movement in Illinois together with the weakness in wheat caused a reaction during the later part of the session, the market losing nearly all the early gain. July closed ⅛@¼c higher at 48⅜@⅝c.

Oats were strong in sympathy with other grains, July opened a shade to ¼c lower at 38½@⅝c to 38¾c and sold up to 39c. Local receipts were 79 cars.

Provisions were firm, notwithstanding the weak hog market, the strength in grains being the supporting influence. July pork opened 5c up at $11.20 and held at about the opening figure. Lard was unchanged to 5c higher at $6.35 to $6.40. The price held within the opening range. Ribs were off a shade to 2½@5c at $6.37½ to $6.40.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—It was a very erratic market, especially in the May. The open interest in this option is not large. There is probably some short interest left, but the buying end of it must have liquidated. There is considerable scattered long interest. The rest of the market had an easier time. Cables did not follow the advance here to any extent. The weather is fine throughout the West. Jones estimates that 75 to 80 per cent of the seeding will be completed in the Red River Valley this week. The market has had a very sharp advance and the short interest, especially in May and July have been pretty well made to run to cover. We are inclined to think the market has had advance enough for the present.

Corn—It was again a very quiet market. Weather is most favorable throughout the corn belt and there is again an increasing tendency in the country offerings in this state and from the West. There is the same local bearish sentiment, but with small receipts no great scattered long interest seems to come in. The market seems to be still without tendency either way.

Oats—There was some strength early, but the demand for May was met freely by those who are the largest holders and this turned the general tone of the market easy. The cash situation is quiet and speculative operations are on a small scale.

Provisions—It was the same dull dragging market with an absence of good support. Receipts are in excess of a year ago, and the shipments also. The local speculative situation is not strong. Stocks are liberal and worse than that is that they are in the hands of scattered outside holders and the market is receiving no support from packing interests or the distributers of the property. Packers expect a large run of hogs through June.

B. E. Baker's Chicago grain letter: Wheat—Scalpers characterized wheat as a mean trading market. Bulls and bears were both extra cautious and were easily stampeded from their positions. The former istempering his enthusiasm with the idea of a reaction and the latter has constantly before him the evidence of depleted stocks and a possibility of the market attracting more widespread attention. There was a drawn battle up till noon, after which the bears got somewhat the better of it. The May touched $1.01¾ in the early trading but latter broke 5¾c. Outside markets were firm relatively to Chicago. Receipts were small light and 1,500,000 bus. decrease in the visible is looked for on Monday. Rust damage was reported from Hungary but the effect was off-set by showers in the south districts of Roumania. The weather today was spring-like throughout all the forecast districts. Some break in the July would be normal and we are especially friendly on the dealings to the old September. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 7 cars.

Corn—The pit offerings of corn were inadequate to meet a light but general buying demand at the opening, and the result was a quick advance in the deferred futures. The trade soon dwindled to small proportions, with scalpers following the wheat fluctuations. The easier cash market changed the tone and the increase in the estimated receipts precipitated a break on which most of the early advance was lost. All of our stations through Illinois are buying corn again today, and reporting increased offerings. A house with extensive elevator interests through Nebraska was a heavy seller on the advance, suggesting an increased movement in that state. The weather is ideal for farm work and for the growth of the corn already in the ground. The cash market was from ½c to 1½c per bus lower. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 140 cars.

Oats—There was little interest taken in the oat market. Offerings were light. The market followed the trend of other pits. The May broke sharply on the selling of a few fives, and the deferred futures eased off when the other markets turned weak. The sample market was from ½c to 1c a bus lower. Demand is still rather slack. Receipts moderate today, with some increase estimated for tomorrow, but we do not anticipate heavy arrivals, as the country movement is still light. Estimated receipts for tomorrow, 150 cars.

Chicago Record-Herald: Wheat shorts continue to feel uncomfortable. Wheat prices continue to advance. May wheat yesterday showed an advance in three days of 10c from the opening Monday morning. September was firm, but continued to lag because the short interest was in the near months. The contract supply is steadily lessening and receipts are incessantly widening. There has been for three days a steady reduction in the short interest in the July and the May, but there has been no such thing as a rush to get out sales, and the situation so far as the oversold condition of the nearby months compared with the deferred is concerned is not one whit alleviated.

"If I was short of wheat," said Valentine, president of the Armour Grain company, "I would cover my shorts just as quickly as I could get in the pit. If I was long any considerable line of wheat I think I would sell it because the market is so narrow it will be difficult to sell in any great hurry without a severe break and I think I would prefer to get my profits and look on. It is a very uncertain situation and very wide fluctuations are the things to expect. I am not emphatic either way in my wheat views just now."

"I cannot see why the next crop," said Charles B. Hirsh, "should not be cleaned up just as thoroughly as the last crop we are now ending."

There is every prospect that the visible supply of wheat will decrease next Monday just as much as it did a year ago, 3,500,000 bus.

In three days this week there has been a decrease in the standard oats stock of 267,000 bus and this leaves the stock of standard oats here now at 889,000 bus. By Saturday it is expected the decrease will be about 500,000 bus standard and the remainder on Saturday will be about 600,000 bus with three days more of May left. There were out of public houses yesterday 96,000 bus.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Some Encouraging Gains Made By Leading Railroad Issues.

Closing Was at About Best Prices of the Day.

New York, May 20.—Light offerings carried opening prices of stocks today to a slightly lower level than last night except for a few obscure specialties. There was no evidence of any accumulation of orders over night and the market was practically stagnant.

But little inquiry prevailed for stocks and the offerings forced on the market caused losses of ⅛ in St. Paul, Atchison and Missouri Pacific. Comparatively few other leaders were dealt in to any extent and the whole market showed a lethargic heavy undertone. Kansas & Texas preferred advanced a point, Westinghouse Electric declined 1⅞ and Realty preferred ⅞.

A narrow up-swing of prices carried the level of the market a slight fraction over last night, with some small improvement in the activity of the market. The advance halted before noon. Rocking Valley gained ⅞. Union Pacific ⅝ and Westinghouse Electric rallied 1⅛. Sloss-Sheffield Steel lost 1. Bonds were irregular at noon.

The market improved largely in sympathy with the buying of Union Pacific, which benefited it 1¼. Other gains reached substantial fractions in a few cases. Rubber preferred advanced to 6⅞.

Profits were taken in Union Pacific, lowering it to 83. Slight reactions followed elsewhere, but the general pressure was not continued.

Prices dropped idly for a time and then hardened to the best. St. Paul and Amalgamated Copper gained ¾, and Lackawanna 1¾ and Realty preferred recovered its one point loss. Wheeling & Lake Erie second preferred declined a point. The closing was dull and slightly irregular.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Evans to Paine, Webber & Co.: In the present apathetic state of the stock market, comment is useless. The floating interest on both sides of the market is extremely small and bears and bulls seem to be waiting for something to turn up to start the market out of the rut. Conditions seem to be against any advance and nothing but aggressive and vigorous manipulation can put the market up at the present time. It doesn't seem likely under present conditions that such manipulation will start. Therefore, I look for a dull and sagging market.

* * *

Ridgely to W. H. Laidley & Co.—Some of the non-dividend stocks will probably prove good investments on breaks, and should sell a great deal higher within a year irrespective of the general list, T. C. I. below 30, Southern Pacific near 40. Probably Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Amalgamated might be mentioned. Amalgamated, I hear, is to have its dividend increased at the next meeting in July. At present, however, I don't feel inclined to buy anything. As to the next Steel dividend, the onl question is whether it will be at a 4 or 5 per cent rate.

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.—Railroads a little stronger, and that is about all the change in market. London was a little easier. An unfavorable bank statement is expected. What little trading there is is done mainly by the bears, who sell one day and buy the next. There is absolutely no gossip and nobody in Wall street seems to be looking for any change either way. It is a market which, by reason of its dullness and the indifference of the public, would not stand much liquidation, but liquidation is on a small scale. We see nothing to improve the situation or prices in the immediate future.

* * *

Coe Commission Company: The stock market is strong today, although not very active. Stocks that we have told you to buy on breaks are the strongest. The short interest is so large that any material decline is almost impossible from this level. Bears have hammered the market with only fractional declines to pay for their efforts, and when their selling ceased the market invariably raised without any effort on the part of holders of stocks. Buy stocks on all the breaks and hold them. They will make you money.

* * *

Dick to Paine, Webber & Co.—Although heavy for a time this morning in sympathy with London, the stock market recovered today and was generally strong. Some encouraging advances were made by the leading railroad issues and the closing, which was strong at about the best prices of the day, showed gains all through the list. Further gold engagements were announced and indications pointed to an unfavorable bank statement.

* * *

New York to W. H. Laidley & Co.: The Stockholder says: "There is a great hubbub over the Western Union shutting off racing news service to the pool rooms. What is to be the outcome of the present crusade against the company it is difficult to judge. If worse comes to worse the telegraph company will be deprived of a business which has been yielding an annual revenue of some $2,000,000. Such a loss of income would naturally lower the value of Western Union stock."

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 20.—The cotton market opened quiet and decline 10@12 points on rather poorer than due on cables, under scattering liquidation, selling by brokers believed to represent New Orleans and commission pressure from Wall street brokers. While prices worked downward there was more or less covering sentiment seemed to have a bearish average and the undertone was feverishly weak with July selling around 12.30, a decline of 22 points. The new crop months also showed easiness on liquidation, following higher temperatures over the South.

Cotton spot closed quiet; 25 points lower. Middling uplands, 13.15; middling gulf, 13.40. Sales 110 bales. Futures closed easy; May, 12.61; June, 12.69; July, 12.80; August, 12.40; September, 11.27; October, 10.85; November, 10.79; December, 10.78; January, 10.80.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, May 20.—Closed: Money on call easy, 1¾@2 per cent; closing bid, 1¾; offered at 1¾. Time loans steady, sixty and ninety days, 2¾ per cent; six months, 3 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 3½@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange heavy with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.86.65@4.86.70 for demand and $4.84.80@4.84.85 for sixty days bills; posted rates, $4.85¼@4.85¾ and $4.87½@4.88; commercial bills, $4.84¾. Silver certificates, 55¼c; Mexican dollars, 44c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds irregular.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, May 20.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve held for the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $164,594,210; gold, $74,965,717; silver, $21,514,748; United States notes, $7,810,444; treasury notes of 1890, $67,520; national bank notes, $13,222,189; total receipts this day, $1,687,132; total receipts this month, $28,907,735; total receipts this year, $480,519,906; total expenditures this day, $2,020,000; total expenditures this month, $32,010,000; total expenditures this year, $531,163,599; deposits in national banks, $127,914,399.

MARINE NEWS

WILL UNION BREAK?

Vesselman Predicts That as Outcome of Lake Strike.

If Mates Should Waver, the Association Would Topple.

Do you know what the outcome of this deadlock between the vessel owners and the masters and pilots will be?" inquirtd an old marine man this morning.

"Don't, eh? Well, I'll tell you what it will come to. It will end in the disruption of the Masters' and Pilots' association just as sure as you are alive. Do you think that a man who has been running a $2000 boat is going to take a chance of having to run a $1400 boat? Not after he thinks it over a while, will he.

"Of course some fellows, if the union should break, will be reduced in their jobs, because the first fellows to start the ball would get the best jobs, and the fellows that hold out the longest will get the poor ones. Those men who were getting $2000 for a season's work were getting pretty good pay, I think. Not only that, but they were getting their board and lodging and a lot of extras. They hardly had to spend a penny on themselves the year around.

"When navigation has a normal season the men are working pretty well up to the first of the year and they can start up again in March or April on the latest. They have nothing to worry them in the expense line from the time they get aboard in the spring till they tie up in the winter. It is just about as near a clear money job as anything you can name.

"And as I say, any man who had a $2000 job does not like the idea of going back to the old wages, or of getting none at all, and if some of them are not careful this is going to be the result, in my opinion. If there is not a weak spot somewhere in the association I am very much off in my guess."

The scale as asked by the masters for coarse freighters, which are the boats owned by the big lines that are holding off from the men's demands, is as follows:

Class.	Tonnage	Master	First Second Mate.	Mate.
First	....4,000 or over	$2,250	$150	$85
Second	....3,000 to 4,000	2,000	115	80
Third	....2,200 to 3,000	1,800	110	75
Fourth	....1,500 to 2,200	1600	110	75
Fifth	....1,000 to 1,500	1,400	100	70
Sixth	....700 to 1,000	1,200	90	65

Last year the various lines were paying lower wages, as a

THEY MUST WAIT

No Sidewalk Building This Year Is Present Outlook.

All Money Available Goes Into the Aerial Bridge.

No more sidewalks can be laid in Duluth this year unless the money for them comes out of the salaries of the city officials, or from the appropriations for the police or fire department funds.

The reason for this is the appropriation of $8000 made for the approaches to the aerial bridge at the last meeting of the council. To have taken this money from the permanent improvement fund would have totally depleted that fund, and rendered impossible a number of much needed improvements. The appropriation was, therefore, made from the general fund, and it will be necessary to economize most rigidly in order to make the fund meet the drafts that have already been made upon it.

When the council considered letting the contract for the bridge last winter, it was necessary to ask the treasurer to make a report, stating whether or not the general fund would stand the appropriation of $35,000, which was to be paid in advance, as the material for the bridge was delivered on the ground. The treasurer stated at that time that he thought the fund would stand it if the sidewalk construction were cut down from $20,000 to $5000.

The extra appropriation of $8000 for the bridge approaches will more than use up this $5000, and some sidewalks have already been ordered. Several blocks were ordered at the meeting of the council last Monday evening, and some more may come up for confirmation next Monday evening. It is doubtful if they will be passed, however, as the aldermen now realize that expenses will have to be curtailed to the last point in order to leave the general fund in a condition to meet the appropriations that have already been made from it.

There is but a small balance in the fund at the present time. A considerable sum is due from licenses on July 1, but most of it will have to be transferred to the other funds.

The problem is a serious one, and the aldermen will be called upon to take it up next Monday night. It is not unlikely that they will decide to order no more sidewalks to be constructed during the coming summer. The construction last season was very heavy, and the city is in a condition to cease further construction for a year if a few necessary repairs are made from time to time.

W. F. Siewert, 425 Spalding block, is now prepared to serve his friends and customers with the most beautiful line of furnishings ever shown in Duluth.

GIVES UP THE FILMS

"Lew" Dockstader Was Mixed Up In Picture Scandal.

New York, May 20.—"Lew" Dockstader, the minstrel, today turned over to the police the moving picture films that were used in a camera yesterday in the capitol grounds at Washington, where photographs were made of a man made up to represent President Roosevelt extending aid to a negro, lying on the ground. The films yet are undeveloped. Dockstader's action followed a visit from a police inspector after a secret service officer from Washington had made a call at the detective bureau and stated that the Washington police wished the films.

"I wished the pictures for a new monologue," said Dockstader after leaving the inspector's office, "and I am very sorry that my venture should have caused such a commotion."

A Cordial Reception

awaits you in this establishment, whether you want to buy or order or simply to sample and price our ample, complete and very satisfactory array of wines and liquors—champagnes, clarets, sauternes, whiskies, brandies and cordials, the latter of the best liked kinds. You are welcome any time you're in the neighborhood.

HANDSOME ESTABLISHMENT

The Oak Hall Clothing Store Opens Its Doors Tomorrow.

After months of preparation, the Oak Hall Clothing company is ready to throw open its doors tomorrow at 331 and 333 West Superior street. Thousands of dollars have been spent in remodeling the two stores. New steel ceilings, myriads of electric lights and a magnificent window space combine to make the establishment one of the handsomest in the West.

Everything of the very best in clothing and furnishings for men and boys will be carried, and sold at popular prices. Satisfaction is absolutely guaranteed. "Your money back if the purchase does not please you," say the firm and this certainly speaks well for the policy to be adopted in all dealings with its patrons.

The opening announcement of the new firm appears in this issue of The Herald and besides outlying its general principles, contains some exceptionally strong values for tomorrow's buyers.

The Oak Hall Clothing company starts out with every prospect for a grand success. A general invitation is extended to every person to visit the store tomorrow whether they intend to purchase or not.

ATTENTION FORESTERS

Members of Court Duluth, No. 724, I. O. F., Companions, and all members of the order, are requested to attend the funeral of our deceased member, Joseph Renand. Services will be held at the French Catholic church, 11th Avenue west and Superior street, at 9 o'clock, Saturday morning.

TYNER-BARRETT CASE.

Major Conrad Examines Barret For Government.

Washington, May 20.—At the opening of the Tyner-Barrett conspiracy case today, A. S. Worthington, counsel for the defense, drew from Mr. Barrett testimony as to the nature of his business before the postoffice department, and it was developed that more than half of this was obtained from practice which had not been before Gen. Tyner or the office of the assistant attorney general.

Maj. Conrad then took Mr. Barrett for cross-examination. The prosecution ascertained that Mr. Barrett had no trial experience when he formed partnership with Mr. Nelms.

CLASSIFY JAGS

Rules Are Laid Down By the Chicago Police Lecturer.

New York Authorities Say Problem Is Purely Philosophical.

New York, May 20.—"How to tell a plain drunk" is the latest budget of advice issued to the Chicago police, by which, of course, is meant "how to disfinguish when one is involved in circumstances of ordinary intoxication."

Learned lectures are being given to the guidance of the "jags" of the Windy City, so that they may be able to distinguish between alcoholic coma, apoplexy, epilepsy, knock-out drops and fractured skulls.

"I am sure that such advice would be of no benefit to the New York police," said Commissioner McAdoo yesterday, "for the members of the department are so temperate themselves that they would not be able to tell a really intoxicated person when they saw him.

"I suppose that the test applied to a distinguished officer of the navy at one time might suffice to determine whether a man were in the state of the 'plain drunk or not. He was under suspicion, but when it was noticed that he was approaching a coping a foot in height as he went backward over a parade ground it was proposed that if he stepped over the obstruction backwards without failing that he should have a clean bill of health. He got over safely. He was pronounced sober. I should say that a man who was unable to perform a similar feat would be classified under the category of the 'plain drunk.'

"It is difficult to prove when a man is really intoxicated, for I recall once that a policeman was ordered to report himself as drunk, but as he insisted that he was not, an ambulance surgeon was called, who pronounced the supposed offender as being merely tired.

"As to the various degrees of intoxication, I fear I shall not be able to give any definite information, as the matter is largely a philosophical and ethical one."

Between the authorities at Bellevue hospital and the police department there is a difference as to what constitutes a "plain drunk." The police say that it is a state of intoxication without frills and totally devoid of the vivid color scheme of the advance state known as the D. T. jag. Physicians of the hospital who had served in the alcoholic ward in a professional capacity said that they never considered a man as having reached the beatific state of the P. D. until he is unconscious. One who is only talkative, merry or spoiling for fight or consumed with grief over the death of his wife's great-grandfather is considered only tipsy.

"All intoxicated persons," said a well-known physician yesterday, "should be treated as patients and later, when sober, they may be punished. It is not for the policeman or the layman to differentiate; the variety of 'jags' is too great and the difference between clases too slight for any but the physician to diagnose."

For the praciecal purposes of police business in New York the stages of intoxication are as follows:

Plain Drunk—When a man is barely able to take care of himself, but had better be locked up for safe keeping.

Drunk and Disorderly—When he is wobbly on his legs and is filled with a wild desire to smash things and to get clubbed.

Dead Drunk—When he lies in a doorway of in the street in an absolutely unconscious condition.

D. T. Drunk—When he leans against a lamp post and asks if it isn't funny that green lizards are running along the sides of the houses and white dragons and square headed dogs are marching with red lanterns in the midle of Broadway.

In the opinion of the police they have a sufficiently good theoretical knowledge to tell the various stages of intoxication as far as the public is concerned, without further instructions.

INSPECTOR IS GUILTY.

Michael Dunn of Milwaukee Accepted a Bribe.

Milwaukee, May 20.—Michael Dunn, city building inspector, against whom a true bill was found by the grand jury, on the charge of accepting a bribe of $1500 from a local brewing company for a special privilege, was today found guilty as charged by a jury in the municipal court. Dunn was committed to jail pending a motion for a new trial on Wednesday next. During the course of his trial Dunn admitted accepting a check for the money, but denied receiving a portion of it, claiming it went to others.

TEMPLE OF FRATERNITY AT WORLD'S FAIR OPENED.

St. Louis, May 20.—The Temple of Fraternity at the World's fair grounds was opened today by the Daughters of Rebecah. During the exposition, days have been designated especially for different organizations, and this was the first of the series, being designated as "Rebecah day."

The German divisions of hydraulic engineering and the exhibition of the German imperial health department, installed in the Palace of Manufacturers, were formally opened to visitors today.

The second event of the Olympic games' series will be held in the stadium tomorrow afternoon, consisting of an opening handicap meeting, under the auspices of the American Athletic union.

BUTCHERS RETURN.

St. Paul, May 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two hundred and fifty striking pork butchers, who went out late yesterday at the Swift Packing company's South St. Paul plant, returned to work today pending an investigation of their grievance. The men complained because a non-union man had been employed. Manager Bangs for the company reported that an extra man was needed and the union had none to furnish so the man objected to was hired.

FARM LANDS.

FOR SALE—GENTLEMAN'S COUNTRY place. I will sell a 320-acre tract of land in northern Wisconsin. Land is beautifully located. Is a perfect natural park. Has two fine large spring fed lakes—one of which is abundantly stocked with rainbow trout. Nearby are lakes alive with muskallonge, pickerel and bass. Deer and small game are abundant. Grouse, pheasants, etc., are common. Land is substantially level and easily cleared. Soil is the best and will make a fine farm. Property is within easy driving distance of Iron River, Wis. Roads are good. The other half section is owned by a Chicago millionaire, who has his summer home here. This is a great chance to buy outright a fine piece of land, in a fine neighborhood at a low price. Land will treble in value in a few years, but if sold at once, I offer this property for sale at $4 per acre, spot cash. Cultivated land within one mile is now held at $20 per acre. Address Bayfield, care The Evening Herald.

TIE-UP ON THE LAKES LIKELY TO PROVE MORE DISASTROUS THAN THE GREAT COAL STRIKE

Buffalo Grain Receipts 30,000,000 Bushels Less Than Last Year.

Over 150,000 Tons of Coal Loaded at Buffalo Awaiting Shipment.

Water Highways Between East and West Are Practically Closed.

Buffalo, May 21.—Last year the port of Buffalo had received up to May 31, 31,657,596 bushels of grain. Up to May 20, of this year, the receipts have been 694,300 bushels. Shippers here say that the effects of the tie-up of lake commerce, due to the strike of the Masters and Pilots' association, will be more disastrous than the effects of the great anthracite coal strike. The great water highways of trade between the West and the East are practically closed. No figures are available showing the falling off of ore shipments, but the same proportionate decrease probably prevails. It is estimated that there are in this port 150,000 tons of coal on board of vessels unable to sail on account of the strike. A number of grain vessels which have arrived have not been unloaded because of a strike of men in the elevators.

FUNSTON'S SWIMMING FEAT EXPUNGED FROM TEXT BOOKS

Pupils of Kansas to Be Taught That It Was Two Privates and Not the General Who Performed Daring Act In Philippines.

Chicago, May 21.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Topeka, Kans., says: Pupils of the Kansas high schools will no longer be taught that it was for swimming the Bag Bag river, in the Philippines, and in the face of a hot fire from the enemy, that Gen. Frederick Funston was promoted from colonel of volunteers to be a brigadier general in the regular army. A subcommittee of the state text book commission has ordered the account of the incident expunged from the history, which has been readopted for use in the high schools for five years.

When Gen. Funston was promoted to the place he now holds, his commission declared in explicit terms that his promotion was earned by his action in swimming the Bag Bag river in the face of a severe fire from the enemy.

"We will give credit to the privates, Trembly and White, to whom it belongs," said Commissioner McCray, a member of the sub-committee.

"The misstatement that Funston ever swam the river will be stopped now while there are men living in the state who know it is not true."

EX-SECRETARY ROOT ARGUES FOR THE SECURITIES COMPANY

Newark, N. J., May 21.—The hearing of arguments on the petition of E. H. Harriman and Winslow S. Pierece for an injunction against the distribution of assets of the Northern Securities company, under the announced plan was continued before United States Judge Bradford today. At the opening of court, it was decided by Judge Bradford that the arguments of Elihu Root, for the Northern Securities company and Attorney Thatcher representing the Oregon Short Line bondholders, would be heard here today, and that Messrs. Guthrie and John Stone will be heard on Monday at Trenton. Mr. Root then resumed his argument, begun yesterday. He maintained that the decision of the courts did not adjudicate the plaintiffs to be the legal owners of the stock in question and that the United States circuit court, sitting at St. Paul, had sustained his view. The equity in the property held by people who had bought in the open market he argued, must prevail against the claim of counsel for Harriman and Pierce, and it would be entirely unjust to these people who would be deprived of their rightful share in all the stocks. The extra $10,000,000 which would accrue to the Harriman interests, he insisted, would be at the expense of the other stockholders.

THOUSANDS OF BACILLI ARE LOST

Chicago, May 21.—Several thousand bacilli taken from plague sufferers in India and enclosed in a small tin case, leather bound have been lost somewhere between St. Paul and Chicago, by W. W. H. Hurlburt, M. D., a scientist, from London, England, who has arrived here. The bacilli are as yet unnamed, though labelled. Some are mounted and some are preserved alive in media prepared by Dr. Hurlburt. The objects, important in their relations to science, had been collected after three years of travel and investigation through Berar, Hyderabad, the vicinity of the Rajputana desert and coast districts, in India, and are destined for the use of learned men of England and Germany in their researches regarding the Asiatic plague, which, Dr. Hurlburt says, up to this time, have not yielded definite results. The loss has been reported to the police and railroad officials.

ONE KILLED, FORTY-ONE INJURED

Salida, Col., May 21.—One man was killed and forty-one people have been injured in a wreck on the Denver & Rio Grande railroad narrow gauge line, between this city and Alamosa. The wreck is believed to have been due to spreading rails on a roadbed softened by recent rains.

FRANK EVANSTON, the engineer, was killed.

The train was south-bound passenger No. 115. The wreck occurred at a point known as Cumber's hill, a steep incline a few miles the other side of Alamosa. The entire train left the track and piled up in a shapeless mass beside the track. It was several hours before the victims were all removed from the train, and not one of the passengers escaped without some injury.

WHICH ONE WAS LEGAL?

Anti-Third Termers Take Steps to Settle Convention Matter.

Madison, Wis., May 21.—The first step to determine which of the two state conventions held here this week was legally the party convention, was taken by the anti-third term Republicans last night, when a demando was made upon W. D. Conner, chairman of the La Follette state central committee, to permit attorneys to examine and make copies of all delegate credentials and other papers bearing on the question as to what persons were elected as delegates.

Notice was also served that such papers must be carefully preserved intact, in order that they might be used as evidence in the contest to determine what delegates-at-large from Wisconsin are entitled to seats in the national convention at Chicago, and as evidence in any contest that may be made in the courts to determine which of the two conventions shall have the names of its nominees placed upon the official ballot under the regular party name.

DELEGATES TO VISIT THE FALLS.

Buffalo, May 21.—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States held a brief business session today. After adjournment the commissioners and the women of the party left for Niagara Falls, where they will spend the afternoon.

EXPLORERS SAFE

Danish Scientific Expedition Arrives at West Greenland.

Encountered Many Hardships In the Far North.

Copenhagen, May 21.—The Danish scientific expedition to Greenland under the leadership of Ericksen has arrived at the Danish colony of West Greenland after much hardship and suffering. The expedition reports that it found the whaling ship, Gjoa, with Captain Ammundsen's magnetic north pole expedition on board, at Dalrymple dock. All the members of both expeditions are well.

According to a dispatch from Dundee on November 16 last, whalers who had just returned there reported that they had found the Danish Ericksen expedition on Saunders island in a pitiable state of destitution. Count Moltke, the artist of the expedition was very ill. The explorers, it was added, in the company of Esquimaux, were living in a tattered tent and their food was almost exhausted, except a supply of eggs from the island. They had only one gun and had abandoned their boat an done sledge at the northern part of Melville bay. The Danes were entirely dependent on the Esquimaux. The whalers left with them supplies and materials to build a new boat.

The Ammundsen's expedition sailed from Christiania, June 17, 1903. According to program it was first to go to King William's Land on the east coast of Greenland, and thence to proceed for Behring strait. The expedition was characterized by Prof. Schmidt, of Berlin, as undertaking the most important task in the domain of terrestial magnetism. It was planned to take a route never before attempted.

SUICIDE IN A PEST HOUSE

Peter Poirier Hanged Himself With a Sheet at Cloquet.

Cloquet, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Peter Poirier hanged himself with a sheet at the pesthouse at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Poirier was 35 years old and has been a resident here for ten years, coming from Bonaventure, in the province of Quebec. He was proprietor of the Princeton house and was a cook by occupation. Three years ago he was married here to Miss McIntyre and they have one child.

No cause is known for the suicide and it is supposed he committed the act while delirious.

BRITISH AMBUSHED.

Thibetans Attack Mounted Infantry With Mail Bags.

London, May 21.—A party of mounted infantry with mail bags was ambushed two miles from here on Thursday, says a dispatch from the Times sorrespondent at Gyang-Tse, Thibet. The eighteen soldiers composing the escort fought gallantly, but lost one killed, two wounded and seven horses killed and wounded. When Capt. Otley, with a relief party came out twelve to fifteen Thibetans were seen dead. Otley drove the enemy across two farms, but found them in great numbers occupying villages on both sides of the river, four miles south of Gyang-Tse, and was compelled to retire. One mail bag was lost. It is possible that the daily post will now be discontinued.

GOVERNOR TO BE ASKED

To Commute Death Sentence of Chounard.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Petitions have been circulated this week in Cass Lake, asking Governor Van Sant to commute the sentence of William Chounard from capital punishment to life imprisonment. Chounard shot his wife, Dora, here last January. He was given a fair trial at the May term of district court for Cass county, and a jury brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree. Judge Spooner sentenced the murderer to be hanged within three months of the 20th day of April, and the papers in the case have been forwarded to Governor Van Sant, who has not as yet set the actual day for the murderer to be hanged.

NEW NATIONAL BANK.

Washington, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The application of Peter Manderfeld, E. Peter Bertrand, C. P. Cutter, John P. Bertrand and Peter Mertz, to organize the Farmers' and Merchants' National bank, of Sleepy Eye, Minn., with $25,000 capital, has been approved by the comptroller of the currency.

DROWNED IN BED

Four Persons Lose Their Lives Near Cheyenne, Wyo.

Flood From Cloudburst Swept Upon Them While Sleeping.

Cheyenne, Wyo., May 21.—Four bodies of persons drowned during last night's flood have been recovered.

It is feared there have been other casualties, as a number of persons are still missing.

The dead resided near the river. They were asleep in bed when the flood came and were unable to get out.

Rain had been falling for twenty-four hours when the cloudburst occurred at 4 o'clock. Crow creek had been running bank full and when the cloudburst took place a wall of water six feet high came down the valley, sweeping ranch buildings, fences, corrals, hay stacks and other movable articles in its path.

Five hundred people living in the low lands along the creek in West Cheyenne, were given no warning whatever until the wall of water was upon them. Many had retired for the night and fled without their clothing.

Serious washouts have occurred south, east and west of Cheyenne and traffic on the Union Pacific is seriously impeded. Telegraph and telephone lines are also down.

Denver, May 21.—A cloudburst at the head of the Cache La Poudre river caused that stream to overflow its banks and meager reports received here indicate that great damage has been caused by the flood.

A telephone message to the Associated Press from its correspondent at Cheyenne, Wyo., at 11:30 o'clock last night says that the Crow river, which runs through Cheyenne, is running bank full, as a result of the heavy rains today. From eight to twelve miles of the main line of the Union Pacific railway and several miles of the road bed of the Colorado & Southern road have been washed out. Several lives are reported to have been lost among the ranchers living along the Crow.

The towns of Livermore, Belleview, La Porte, Wellington and a portion of Fort Collins are under from three to four feet of water and in some cases the water reaches to the eaves of the houses. Five iron wagon bridges and two railroad bridges in the vicinity of Fort Collins have been swept away and two miles of the Colorado and Southern tracks washed out. Several thousand acres of beets and vegetables have been destroyed and hundreds of head of live stock drowned. The water system of the city of Fort Collins has been seriously damaged and all of the irrigation canals and ditches badly washed. Twelve big reservoirs along the Cache La Poudre are threatened with destruction. A foot of water covers the floor of the sugar factory. The Russian colony at Fort Collins consisted of 600 people. About half of them succeeded in getting out of their houses before the flood was upon them. The remainder, however, are in a perilous position. Their houses can plainly be seen floating about among the trees and shouts and other signals of distress seen and heard. A few of the houses have entered the current of the river and been swept down stream, and, perhaps, shattered or sunk and their occupants drowned.

RIVER DRIVER DROWNED.

James Hanlun's Neck Broken By a Fall.

Deer River, Minn., May 21—James Hanlun, a river driver, was drowned near here yesterday. He was piking logs from shore, when he slipped and fell from a steep shelving bank. He drowned before assistance could reach him. Hanlun's body was recovered soon after the accident and it was found that his neck was broken by the fall. It is presumed that he struck upon a log, when he fell from the bank.

Hanlun came to work at Deer River recently from Canada and little is known of his family or relatives. He will be buried at the expense of the Nanaken Lumber company of Minneapolis, by whom he was employed when the accident happened.

ENDS HER LIFE.

Daughter of English Captain Sick and Destitute.

San Francisco, May 21.—Alice Victoria Murphy, daughter of the late Capt. Francis J. Murphy, of the Royal Fusileers (city of London regiment), sick and destitute, turned on the gas in her room here today and died from asphyxiation. Before attempting her life, she had carefully destroyed all means of personal identification. It is believed she was married in Ireland to a man named Stautelgh, whose death in Southern California had left her penniless in a strange land.

RUSSIANS MAKE SORTIE FROM PORT ARTHUR AND DEFEAT THE JAPS, WHO LOSE OVER 1000 MEN

The Russian Losses Are Reported as 1161 Killed and Wounded.

Russians Said to Have Blown Up Their Fine Cruiser Bogatyr.

Went Ashore Off Vladivostok In a Fog and Could Not Be Floated.

St. Petersburg, May 21.—The government today received news confirmatory of the rumors in circulation here that Gen. Stoessel has made a successful sortie from Port Arthur, resulting in the defeat of the Japanese with the loss of more than 1000 killed or wounded. The Russian losses were 116 killed or wounded.

The movement was carried out by a combination with a train bringing in war munitions and Gen. Stoessel's force, communications being maintained by wireless telegraphy. The Japanese barred the route between the train and Gen. Stoessel's forces, whereupon the Russians attacked and routed the Japanese. After the engagement Gen. Stoessel's force, together with the train, returned to Port Arthur.

London, May 21.—A dispatch to the St. James Gazette from Kobe, Japan, dated today, after confirming the report of the stranding of the Russian protected cruiser Bogatyr on the rocks near the entrance to Vladivostok, adds that the Bogatyr subsequently was blown up by the Russians to prevent her falling into the hands of the Japanese.

The Bogatyr was a fine, modern cruiser of 6750 tons displacement and 20,500 normal horsepower. She was built at the Vulcan works, Stettin, Germany, was completed in 1892, was 416¾ feet long, had 54½ feet beam and drew 20¾ feet of water. The armament of the Bogatyr consisted of twelve six-inch guns, twelve three-inch guns, six 1.8 inch guns, two 14 inch guns and two smaller rapid-fire guns. She had six torpedo tubes, her armored deck was two inches thick and she had five inches of nickel-steel armor over the gun positions. The speed of the Bogatyr was estimated to be over twenty-three knots, she could carry 1100 tons of coal and her crew numbered 580 men.

MAIN BODY OF JAPS

Still Remains South of the Russian Troops.

Mukden, May 21.—The main body of the Japanese forces, estimated at 80,000 men, remains south of the Russian troops, who are covering Liao Yang. They, apparently, have suspended their advance. This inaction caused surprise and some satisfaction as every day's postponement of a decisive engagement is considered favorable for the Russians, who are daily increasing their forces and are enabled by the delay to strengthen their positions. It is supposed that the recent rains hampered the movement of the Japanese artillery and compelled a temporary halt.

The Russians still hold the railroad to Tschikiau.

ROUTED RUSSIANS.

Japanese Forces Inflict Losses on the Enemy.

Tokio, May 21.—The Japanese forces, which landed at Taku-Shan Thursday, surrounded and routed a force of Russian cavalry at 7 o'clock Friday evening, in the neighborhood of Wang Chi Tung, seven miles north of Taku-Shan. The Russian force, which consisted of about one squadron, lost many men killed or wounded, as well as a captain, who was captured.

Although it has not been officially reported, it is said on good authority that the Japanese forces have captured Kai Chou, driving the Russians back to Tashi-Chia, in the direction of Newchwang, and preventing the advance of the Russian troops at Newchwang in the direction of Kai Chou.

The bombardment by the Japanese of the vicinity of Kai Chou recently was probably in preparation for the landing of forces in the northwest corner of the Liao Tung peninsula, for the purpose of capturing Newchwang and co-operating with the other armies in the march at Liao Yang.

Probably a small Japanese force has been landed at Kin Chou bay.

Taku Shan, where Japanese forces were landed, May 19, is at the mouth of Dayan river, west of the Yalu.

PORT ARTHUR

Is the Objective Point of the Japanese.

Newchwang, May 21.—The officials have not received any further information regarding the fighting which resulted in the retreat of the Japanese on Feng Wang Cheng, but there is good authority for saying that the Japanese movements in the direction of Liao Yang and Hai Cheng were for the purpose of causing the Russians in this vicinity to move northward, thus giving the Japanese an opportunity to complete ther preparations to capture Port Arthur. When the Japanese begin a determined movement in this city it will be from Feng Wang Cheng and Newchwang. They figure that it does not matter what may be the fate of the Yalu army if they can continue to control the sea and Port Arthur.

The Japanese are still fortifying the hills on the neck of land between Talien-Wan and Kin-Chou bays. Many rapid fire guns, protected by sandbags, have been mounted there with the obobject of resisting a sortie of the beleaguered garrison.

A spy set fire to the woodwork of the water tanks on the local railroad station this afternoon. It is believed this was part of a plot to injure the railroad.

OCCUPY KAN KOW.

Russian Forces Take Possession of City.

Seoul, Friday, May 20.—The Japanese consul at Gensan reports that about 300 Russians occupied Kan Kow (Ham Heung) forty miles north of Gensan May 19, with the usual stories of looting and rape by the Cossacks. The main body, of 3000 men, is said to be following the force which occupied Kan Kow.

There is no telegraphic communication north of Gensan. The consul there believes that part of the force which recently attacked Anju is retreating from Nin-Yeng. It is considered possible that the Cossacks have had a base at Kyong-Song for weeks past.

The Gensan garrison, which consists of a battalion of infantry, will not take the initiative but will await an attack which is not expected.

The Japanese authorities here are inclined to ridicule the Russian movements on tht east coast and wish for the advance of a large column, making it worth while to cut it off. The only sufferers, it is pointed out, are the Koreans.

NAVIGATION DANGEROUS.

Protest From Foreign Governments Expected.

Tokio, May 21.—It is absolutely certain that the battleship Hatsuse was sunk by a Russian mine ten miles off the coast. The position of these mines makes navigation dangerous for neutral vessels, and a protest from foreign governments is expected. The loss of the Japanese warships is felt keenly here. No flags are flying in this city and the nightly lantern parades have been abandoned. American nurses will go to the Heroshima receiving hospital on the 25th inst.

RUSSIAN MINES

Were Responsible For Loss of the Hatsuse.

St. Petersburg, May 21.—Details of Rear Admiral Wittsoeft's mail dispatch to Viceroy Alexieff, (transmitted by telegraph yesterday to the high admiral, Grand Duke Alexis), which were not made public, establish the fact that mines planted by the Russian torpedo boats were responsible for the destruction of the Hatsuse and the damage sustained by another battleship of the Fuji type off Port Arthur. It is said that no submarine boats were sent out of Port Arthur. The suppression of the statement regarding the mines was due to the fact that it explained where they were located. A number of unexploded mines lie in the same vicinity and it is not deemed wise to describe their position. Each mine contained 74 pounds of guncotton.

The admiralty thinks it highly probable that it was a battleship of the Fuji type which struck a mine but that she kept afloat and was eventually lost, as a heavy gale was blowing.

In any event it will take several months to repair the damage done to the vessel. The haste with the Russian cruiser Novik put to sea to support the smaller craft is pointed to by the authorities as showing that not only is the harbor entrance clear, but that Admiral Witsoeft is convinced that he had taken up all the mines laid by the Japanese. A report from Witsoeft some days ago announced that he had exploded three Japanese mines.

SUICIDE THROWS MONEY IN RIVER.

Green Bay, Wis., May 21.—Between $3000 and $4000 in cash was thrown into the Fox river by Joseph Doehm, previous to his suicide at his home here, by hanging. A note written by Doehm, and found near where the hanging took place, gives all the particulars. It states that the deceased had determined that his relatives, as well as those of his wife, who, he claimed, were trying to get his money, should not succeed, and that he had therefore thrown his money in the Fox river, near the Dousman mill.

PLAGUE AT LIMA, PERU.

Lima, Peru, May 21.—Two new cases of bubonic plague were reported to the health authorities yesterday.

CHANGE IS MADE

In the Program For the Republican National Convention.

Dolliver or Cousins To Speak For Northwest.

Washington, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The program for the national Republican convention is about completed and a draft of it was submitted to President Roosevelt today. It is expected there will be a three-days' session. The Wisconsin contest between La Follette and the stalwart element will doubtless take up considerable time before the committee on credentials. Senator Spooner, one of the contesting delegates-at-large, will, it is expected, present the claims for the stalwarts.

It has been decided that there will be but few seconding speeches to the speech placing Theodore Roosevelt in nomination, which will be made by ex-Governor Black of New York. About two weeks ago it was announced that Minnesota would be one of the states selected to name an orator for a seconding speech, but the North Star state is not now on the program. The honor is going to Iowa, and either Senator Dolliver or Congressman Robert G. Cousins will make the speech for the Northwest.

WILL REMAIN AT ST. PETER

The Conference Decides Against Removal of Gustavus Adolphus College.

St. Peter, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—By the decision today of the Evangelical Lutheran conference, Gustavus Adolphus college will remain here. The vote was 105 for removal and 141 against. The conference will establish another school in the Twin Cities.

NEWSPAPER MEN PUNISHED

Two of Staff of Chinese Paper Imprisoned.

Shanghai, May 21.—The two remaining members of the staff of the Chinese reform newspaper Supao were sentenced today to two and three years hard labor, respectively, dating from their arrest last year, with banishment from every foreign settlement upon the expiration of their sentence.

In August last the Taotal, of Shanghai, issued warrants for the arrest of the editor and staff of the Chinese reform newspaper Supao, published in Shanghai. They were accused of publishing seditious matter. It was reported that the prisoners were about to be tortured, but through the intervention of the British minister, acting subsequently with the American government, this was averted and the prisoners were given an open trial with the above result.

NEW POSTMASTERS.

Washington, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following postmasters have been appointed: Banning, Pine county, Maurice Ring; vice Martin Ring, removed. Bethel, Anoka county, Francis J. Hoolihan, vice William R. Fowler, resigned.

RAPID GROWTH OF BONESTEEL, S. D.

Omaha, Neb., May 21.—The town of Bonesteel in Gregory county, South Dakota, has grown in less than a month from a village of 300 to a city of 3000. Bonesteel is located at the edge of the Rosebud reservation, which the government is preparing to open to homesteaders, and is the terminus of the Chicago & Northwestern road.

John A. Kuhn, assistant freight and passenger agent of the Northwestern road has just returned from the reservation and reports that Bonesteel is crowded with people awaiting the opening of the new territory. The government has taken steps to prevent anybody securing advantage and will dispose of the 416,000 acres by lot. A registration office will be opened at Bonesteel in a short time to credit the names of those who wish to participate in the drawing.

DOMINICANS TO ATTACK REBELS

Cape Haytien, Hayti, May 21.—A courier of the Associated Press, who has arrived here from Guayaubin brings the news that Monte Cristi, on the north coast of Santo Domingo, which is held by the Dominican revolutionists, will be attacked by land and sea today.

It was announced from Cape Haytien, May 10, that the Haytien authorities had authorized a Dominican cruiser to disembark a strong contingent of troops on Haytien territory for the investment of Monte Cristo, which adjoins Haytian territory, this being necessary by the fruitlessness of the many bombardments of Monte Cristo by the Dominican gunboat Presidente.

TRUNKS TO ALL PARTS OF THE CITY.

MARKINGS ARE GIVEN

Result of Civil Service Examination For City Places.

The results of the recent civil service examinations were announced last evening after the meeting of the board of examiners, held in the city hall.

Five candidates were examined for promotion to the position of lieutenants. Detectives Terry and Schultz, and Sergeants Fritb, Gillon and Kenna took the examination. The percentages were as follows: Frank Schulte, 98; Sergeant Gillon, 99; Sergeant Fritz, 90; Detective Terry, 88; Sergeant Kenna, 82.

It is planned to appoint the detectives to the position of lieutenants. The change involves no raise in salary, but the position of detective is not very clearly provided for in the charter and it is doubtful if they can be included under the civil service. They will simply rank as lieutenants, but will be detailed to detective work. Mayor Cullom will doubtless issue the order on his return from West Baden.

If this is done, there will be no vacancy on the list of lieutenants, caused by the resignation of Detective Terry. Sergeant Fritz has been detailed to detective work for the past month, and he will probably be appointed to the position of lieutenant, as he stood even with Sergeant Gillon for second place. Detective Terry's standing was even with that of Detective Schultz except in the physical examination, which brought his percentage down.

The promotion of Sergeant Fritz would leave a vacancy for the position of sergeant. Six candidates wrote on the examination for promotion to the position of sergeant. Officer Wilcox headed the list with a percentage of 90. A. G. Fiskett came second with 88, Barber third with 87, Weber fourth with 86, Roberg fifth with 84 and Johnson sixth with 82. Officer Wilcox will probably receive the appointment as sergeant, unless Mayor Cullom chooses to exercise his power of promoting some other than the highest candidate.

A number of points were considered in the markings. Length of service, scholarship, physical fitness, past record, and personal habits were all taken into consideration by the examiners.

While there were no vacancies for patrolmen, six candidates wrote on the examination for the eligible list. The percentages were as follows: Patrick Welsh, 90; James L. Bradley, 89; August Thede, 89; John Rodahl, 80; A. A. Wanvick, 76; Gust Spitz, 75.

The percentages of the eligibles for promotion in the fire department are as follows: Dan Cameron, 87; Joseph Cole, 86; H. F. Wendland, 76.

The successful applicants for positions on the fire department are J. F. M. Bell, 93; H. C. Merriman, 92½; Duncan McLain, 87, and Oliver Goldsmith, 84.

There are several vacancies in the fire department, and the successful candidates will be assured of positions in the immediate future.

Distress After Eating

Nausea between meals, belching, vomiting, flatulence, fits of nervous headache, pain in the stomach, are all symptoms of dyspepsia, and the longer it is neglected the harder it is to cure it.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Radically and permanently cure it—strengthen and tone the stomach and other digestive organs for the natural performance of their functions.

Accept no substitute for Hood's.

"I had dyspepsia twenty-five years and took different medicines but got no help until I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Have taken four bottles of this medicine and can now eat almost anything, sleep well, have no cramps in my stomach, no burning and no distress." MRS. WILLIAM G. BARRETT, 14 Olney St., Providence, R. I.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

Commercial Club Appoints Committee In Courthouse Matter.

Will Present Arguments to Commissioners—New Reservoir.

The matter of a down-town site for the new county courthouse building was again taken up last night by the West Duluth Commercial club, at its regular weekly meeting in the rooms over the Western State bank. The West Duluth club has the distinction of having been the first organization in the city to see the need of another site than the old for the proposed building, and at a meeting several weeks ago, by a unanimous vote, a resolution recommending that the new structure be placed nearer the business district of Duluth was passed.

In view of this previous action the club did not find it necessary to go into the matter more fully last night. It was decided, however, to appoint a committee, consisting of W. B. Getchell, B. H. Martin, E. J. Zauft, A. Miles and Rev. John Feehely, to wait upon the board of county commissioners, at its next meeting, to present the arguments of the club.

There were a few members who spoke relative to the matter. The arguments introduced were very similar to those brought out at the previous meeting. It was pointed out that the present site is very inconvenient, and that those doing business at the courthouse, especially those from outside points, are almost a unit in favoring a more central location for the new building.

Attorney H. H. Phelps reviewed in detail the action taken at the meeting of the bar association Thursday night, and advised that the club committee cooperate with the lawyers to secure the desired location.

A location for the proposed new water reservoir was also discussed, but no action was taken regarding it, in order that the matter might be given further consideration. Mr. Phelps is a member of the board of water and light commissioners, and he urged the recommendation of the site in Lloyd's addition.

It was argued that this tract is practically upon a level with the reservoir in the East End, and if located there, the reservoir would supply all parts of that locality. It was pointed out that the location would also be desirable, from the fact that connection could be readily made with the present mains. In case of a break in the trunk mains, it was shown, the reservoir would supply as large a territory as the one in the East End.

It was suggested at the meeting that steps be taken to secure a better enforcement of the pound laws.

The Postponed Dance of the Odd Fell-o's Club will be given at the Lincoln Park Pavilion on Wednesday evening, May 25. Tickets 50 cents. This is the dance which was to have been given under the auspices of the club May 11.

THE LAKESIDE CLUB.

Its Delightful Social Draws Several Hundred Guests.

Last evening another of the delightfully amusing Lakeside club socials was given at Harmonie hall at Lester Park. These evenings grow in popularity and last night there were several hundred guests and members present. The program was greatly enjoyed, the mandolin and guitar club being particularly well received. The chairman of the entertainment committee is Rev. Charles Fox Davies, and with his assistants, other socials will be planned during the summer months.

The first number of last evening's entertainment was a piano solo by Miss Ursula Joerns, who has been heard before at the meetings. Her number was well received. Miss Clothier followed with a vocal solo which was well sung, and she responded to several encores.

After the mandolin and guitar club numbers, the "Posey Sextet" appeared in one of their last farewell numbers. The sextet is composed of the following residents: Sunflower Case, Rosebud Joerns, Cauliflower Catherall, Hyacinthe Holmes, Sweet Pea Magner and Lily Park. Well known ditties were sung by the sextet.

Miss Effie Brotherton appeared in place of Mrs. Berg in several recitations that were well delivered. Norman Rose read a funny German dialect number, a trombone solo was given by F. H. Huse and a voca lsolo by C. McCauley.

Notice!

All persons having rooms to rent during the summer, for tourists, delegates to conventions, excursionists, etc., will please notify H. V. Eva, Secretary of the Commercial Club, stating price, and number of rooms and persons they can accommodate.

THE LUND STUDENTS.

Tickets For Big Concert Go On Sale.

Tickets went on sale at the Lyceum this morning for the concert to be given in that theater July 1 by the singing students of Lund university, Lund, Sweden. There are sixty male voices in the body which will be heard here for the benefit of the Augustana college, of Rock Island, Ills. All net receipts of the concerts in Duluth and elsewhere are to be devoted to this end.

Gustave Thalberg is managing director of the chorus, whose program here will be made up of English, German and Swedish songs. At the concert given in New Haven, Conn., some days since, the affair was under the auspices of the students of Yale, who made it a great success by their efforts. Carl Friberg is secretary of the executive committee for the concert here, while Carl Lundberg, of Lundberg & Stone, is at the head of the ticket committee.

MAY VISIT DULUTH.

Rome, May 21.—Cardinal Satolli has arranged to visit America. From New York he will go to Washington, where he will be the guest of the Rev. Dennis O'Connell, rector of the Catholic college, hoping to be in time to assist at the close of the scholastic year. He will also visit Notre Dame, Ind.

After a visit to Archbishop Quigley of Chicago, and Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, the cardinal may go to Duluth and through the lakes to Buffalo, to which city he has been invited by Bishop Colton.

GATHERS IN COWS.

Big Stir Occurs at Sixty-Sixth Avenue West.

The West Duluth poundmaster, Clarence Freeburg, did a rushing business yesterday. Twenty-eight surprised cows were turned over to him by Mr. Himple, who resides at the corner of Main street and Sixty-sixth avenue west. Complications of an exciting and decidedly interesting nature, not the least of which was an assault on the valiant poundmaster by a dozen women, followed. The herd was finally released, about 8:30 in the evening, but before the affair ended the acting mayor and two West Duluth aldermen were drawn into it. It was upon their orders that the lowing kine were released.

Mr. Himple has 240 acres of leased land near Sixty-ninth avenue west and Main street. The tract is fenced in, so that it may be used for pasture purposes. Yesterday afternoon the bunch of twenty-eight cows took it into their heads that the grass on the other side of the fence was the sweetest. Following this decision by a few minutes, they broke through the fence and entered the forbidden grounds. They were soon discovered by the irate Mr. Himple, who drove them to the pound forthwith.

The poundmaster was somewhat in doubt as to what should be done in a matter of this kind, so called upon the city attorney, and was advised that cows running at large in the fashion described should be placed in the pound. This was done, despite the vigorous protests of several women, supposedly owners of the cows, who had been attracted to the scene by the unusual procession. In telling of what followed, Mr. Himple says:

"The women were armed with clubs, sticks and other weapons, which they used in a manner not to be misunderstood. One woman struck me three hard blows across the back, and also called me some very bad names. I ordered peace and the order was obeyed. The matter was appealed to the acting mayor and two West Duluth aldermen, who recommended that the cattle be released. I let them go about 8:30 in the evening."

THE NEW CHURCH.

Improvements Progressing In St. James Church.

Rev. John Feehely of the St. James Catholic church, this morning received through the mail, direct from Rome, a relic of St. James, the Greater, in the shape of some of the bones of the worthy saint. The sacred relics will be placed in the new St. James church.

The last of the side altars for the new St. James' church is now about completed, and ready to be installed in the building. It is the one donated by the Twentieth Century Progress club. Three stained glass windows, donated by the congregation, are now being put in place. The date for holding dedication exercises in the new structure has not yet been set, but it will probably be fixed some time in June.

The old church building on Fifty-seventh avenue will be formally opened as a hall next Monday evening by an entertainment given under the auspices of the Twentieth Century Progress club. The program will consist of musical and literary numbers, with addresses appropriate to the occasion. The affair will be for members of the congregation and their families, and no admission will be charged. The building has been thoroughly overhauled and fixed up in good shape for hall purposes. A stage has also been provided, so as to make the building better adapted to entertainments such as the one next week.

Aside from the program Monday evening there will be refreshments.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The gospel meetings being conducted in West Duluth by R. Bultmann, the Chicago evangelist, are fairly well attended, and will be continued through the coming week.

William Fisher and James Mulligan left this morning for Ireland lake on a fishing trip.

William Brotherton returned this morning from a successful fishing trip up the St. Louis river.

Gus Olson has sold his saloon on Central avenue to Fred Bourdo.

Among the West Duluth Knights of Pythias who left for St. Paul today on the special train were Emil J. Zauft, George Gardiner, Charles Bergren, William Farrell and C. M. Phillips.

Carl Weaver is in the city from St. Paul, visiting with his parents on Fifty-eighth avenue west.

The members of the Congregational Sunday school classes gave a successful social last evening.

P. Mitchell and George Fletcher, of Proctor, have returned from a fishing trip to the headwaters of the Cloquet river. Each brought back a fine string of fish.

Dr. Keyes left for St. Paul this morning.

A. T. Knox, of Sixty-third avenue west, has returned from Fergus Falls, where he served on the federal grand jury.

J. T. Culbrtson left for Grand Marais yesterday.

John O'Brien will leave for his claim near Grand Marais tomorrow morning, one of the north shore boats.

Harris Ross left yesterday for Carlton, Minn.

T. W. Ralph left for St. Paul yesterday.

Walter Cook has returned from Sandusky, Ohio, where he has been visiting with relatives for the past month.

The dance given at Great Eastern hall last night by Uniform Rank 1555, Modern Woodmen of America, was successful in every way and was largely attended.

W. C. Strong, who recently secured a position with the Union Match company, has removed to West Duluth with his family from Minneapolis.

A. Zanone has arrived from Cincinnati with six skilled workmen to put in gas tanks at the Zenith furnace.

William Black, a colored boy, aged 14 years, residing at 501 North Fifty-seventh avenue west, was arrested yesterday by Humane Officer Withrow, on the charge of furnishing tobacco to minors. The case was set for trial at 10 a. m. Monday. The boy is charged with peddling the tobacco among the West Duluth school children. He says he bought it from a West Duluth dealer. The man will probably be arrested before the case comes to trial.

GRATEFUL WOMEN RESTORED TO BEAUTY AND HEALTH BY PE-RU-NA.

Neglected Colds and Spring Catarrh Make Invalids of More Women at This Season of the Year Than All Other Diseases Combined.

"An Ounce of Prevention is Better Than a Pound of Cure."

Cure a Cold Before It Develops Into Catarrh.

How to Protect Yourself Against Catarrh During the Uncertain Weather for May.

"Keep the feet warm and dry.
"Also keep the chest well protected.
"Be sure to go out in the fresh air every day, so as to be accustomed to outdoor air."

HEALTH HINTS FOR MAY.

The following of the rules will secure to each individual a reasonable guarantee against colds, coughs, catarrh, spring fever, and so forth, in spite of slush, sleet, rain or sudden changes of temperature.

If however, you are already the victim of a cough, loose or tight, catarrh, acute or chronic, the remedy that relieves readily, cures quickly and restores permanently is Peruna.

A few doses of Peruna at the beginning of a cold will change the entire course of events. It operates directly on all the mucous membranes, so that no matter where the cold may have settled it is bound to be reached by this searching remedy. Peruna absolutely prevents catarrh from fastening itself upon any part of the organism.

Miss Lydia Herziger, Grand Recorder of American Daughters of Independence, writes from Neenah, Wis., as follows:

"I have used Peruna now for four years, each spring and fall, and it keeps me perfectly well and strong. I am able to continue working, and do not have to take a three months' rest, as I used to do every year. This is a great comfort to me, as I was not able to afford such a long rest. I find that it is a preventive for colds and coughs and soon rids the system of all disease and is an admirable medicine."—Lydia Herziger.

Mrs. Frances Wilson, 32 Nelson street, Clinton, Mass., writes:

"Had you seen me at the time of my illness and now, you would not wonder that I take delight in sounding the praises of Peruna. My ailment was a severe cold which attacked the bronchial tubes and after using six bottles of Peruna I was on my feet again. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine."

Miss Edna Wilson, 145 Temple street, Los Angeles, Cal., Worthy Vice Templar, I. O. G. T., writes:

"Peruna cured me of catarrh of the bronchial tubes which had been most annoying for many months. I had a severe pain in the chest, with a cough and an asthmatic condition. I had tried many things to rid my system of this before I heard of Peruna. It was only a short time before I began to feel beneficial results, and in less than a month I was well. Your medicine is very meritorious and deserves praise.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

The Testimonials Given Here are Only a Few of Thousands of Testimonials From Thankful Women.

At the Beginning of a Cold is the Time to Take Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. C. Morrison, 1030 S. New Jersey St., Indianapolis, Ind., writes: "Some months ago I contracted a severe cold returning from the theater. This cold settled in my head and developed into catarrh of the head and nose, and I know of nothing more obnoxious. Every morning when I arose my head was all stopped up, throat dry and parched, and I would have to spray for half an hour before I could clear my head. I noticed that Peruna was advertised as a certain cure for catarrh, so I tried what it would do for me, and found after four weeks' use that it had cleared my head and throat, leaving no trace of catarrh. I therefore wish to add my testimony to the many you have as to the efficacy of Peruna."—Mrs. C. Morrison.

Spring is the best time to treat catarrh. Nature renews herself every spring. The system is rejuvenated by spring weather. This renders medicines more effective. A short course of Peruna, assisted by the balmy air of spring, will cure old, stubborn cases of catarrh that have resisted treatment for years. Everybody should have a copy of Dr. Hartman's latest book on catarrh.

With healthy mucous membranes climatic diseases lose their terror, the system is enabled to throw off contagion and health inevitably follows.

Miss Rush Suffered With Systemic Catarrh—Was Nervous, Had No Appetite, Grew Thin and Emaciated. She Now Looks Like a New Woman After a Course of Pe-ru-na.

Miss Bertha M. Rush, 5435 Kincarde street, Pittsburg, Pa., Superintendent Junior Society of Methodist Protestant Church, and leading soprano of the choir, writes: "Words cannot describe my thankfulness to you for Peruna. I was a sufferer from systemic catarrh for years and was in a very much run-down condition. I was extremely nervous and had the most foolish fears over nothing. I was thin and emaciated.

"My physician advised me to leave this climate but as it was not convenient to do so at this time, I took the advice of a friend to use a bottle of Peruna. I took it faithfully and when the first bottle was gone I felt so much better that I bought six more and took them faithfully, after which I looked like a new woman.

"I gained in flesh, my appetite returned and all my old symptoms had disappeared. I am more than thankful to Peruna."—Miss Bertha M. Rush.

ANNOYING SYMPTOMS.

"Peruna Cured Me After Using Only Seven Bottles."—Mrs. M. S. Rogers.

Peruna is Known in All Parts of the Civilized World. Nowhere in the United States is There to be Found a Household That Has Not Heard of Peruna, and Very Few, Indeed, Have Not at Some Time or Other Used It. Peruna is Now Acknowledged to be a Shield Against the Encroachments of Catarrh, and a Remedy for All Forms of Catarrhal Diseases. It Ought to be in Every House.

Mrs. M. S. Rogers.

"I Feel Like a Different Woman Now and Am Never Troubled With Any Catarrhal Symptoms."

Mrs. M. S. Rogers, Vice President of Neenah Mothers' Club, Wis., writes:

"For years I was troubled with catarrh of the head and did not know what was the matter with me. I was rarely without a headache over my eyes, and when I took cold my head stopped up. The discharge from my head was very obnoxious, my breath was bad and I was miserable for months."

"A friend suggested that I try Peruna, and as I had heard of it before, I gladly did so. My experience was the same as many others who have used it. It cured me after using only seven bottles.

"I feel like a different woman now, and am never troubled with headaches, nor offensive breath, nor any of the evils resulting from catarrh."—Mrs. M. S. Rogers.

When You Don't Know What Ails You.

If you don't know what ails you, take Beecham's Pills. They are harmless, and will at least relieve your pain. While Beecham's Pills are not a panacea, they have a widespread reputation of being a cure for many common ills of men and women. They keep your stomach and bowels in the condition nature intended them to be. They are the foremost foe of constipation, and following in their train, come bright eyes, a clear head, an active brain and greater possibilities for success. They cost a quarter, but they are proverbially worth a guinea a box.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The Wisconsin First district Republican congressional convention renominated Congressman H. A. Cooper. Resolutions endorse President Roosevelt's administration. Ogden H. Fethers and George A. Yule were elected delegates to the national convention.

Roulette and the sale of lottery tickets within the canal zone have been suspended since the issuance of Governor Davis' proclamation. This suspension does not apply to the cities of Colon and Panama.

Mrs. Gallaugher, tried a second time for perjury in connection with the murder of her husband, was found guilty at Des Moines Friday. Mrs. Gallaugher was charged by the state with having killed her husband and attempting to burn the body. She swore the crime on one Charles Holoday, a farm hand, and escaped. She was afterwards tried for perjury, but was acquitted.

Fire at Montreal Friday afternoon did damage estimated at $250,000 to the seven-story carriage factory of B. Ledoux & Co., on Osborn street. Hundreds of vehicles were destroyed.

The Ohio grand lodge of Odd Fellows has sustained the action of Grand Master Pavey in excluding saloonkeepers and bartenders from membership in the order. The grand lodge upheld the decision of Grand Master Pavey by which Rescue lodge No. 59, of Grayton, was suspended because of its refusal to expel two bartenders and a saloonkeeper. The lodge is ordered to carry out instructions or surrender its charter.

JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION

Novel System to Locate Relatives and Friends of Visitors.

Richmond, Va., May 21.—Next month, while the St. Louis exposition is in the heighth of its glory, ground will be broken for the Jamestown exposition, which will be held at Hampton Roads in 1907. The three hundredth anniversary of the first permanent English settlement in America will occur that year.

There are many plans being formed for making this the most interesting and useful exposition which has yet been held. One of these which will be unique in the history of such great gatherings, is the development of a system for locating the relatives and friends of those who attend the exercises. For carrying out this plan a fire-proof building, the contract for which has already been made, will be constructed. Every visitor to the exposition may register his name there, and the names for whom he is looking. These classes of names will be kept in separate catalogues, by the card system, and will form cross references by means of which it will be possible for any one who registers to find any person who has registered.

This building will also be made the headquarters of various families. There will be days set apart for the meeting of the Smiths, of the Joneses, of the Browns, of the Blacks, of the Whites and the Grays, and all the rest of the families. Rooms will be provided for the meeting of the sub-divisions of these families, and in this way one of the great objects of expositions, that of bringing people into closer relationship, and giving them a better understanding of one another, will be served and accentuated more fully and more strongly than has been possible at any previous exposition. The idea was originated by Mrs. B. F. Johnson, a leading publisher south of Mason and Dixon's line, who has carefully planned the work and under whose enthusiastic leadership and energetic management it is sure to be a great success.

HOLD STATE CONVENTION

Independent Order of Good Templars to Meet Here.

The annual convention of the Independent Order of Good Templars will be held in Duluth this year during the second week in June. The local lodges are preparing to receive the delegates, who will be considerable in number. Important plans for promoting temperance work will come before the convention.

The headquarters of the organization is at Minneapolis. Last year's convention was held in Brainerd. The session of the convention will be held at Sloan's hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street.

Saloon Fixtures Involved.

David Forty is seeking to recover from Anton Lavella, a Buhl saloonkeeper, two barrels of whisky, a music box, a cash register and several other articles of saloon fixtures that were removed from Lavella's saloon under a writ of replevin and are now in the hands of the sheriff. The case is on trial before a jury in Judge Ensign's room in district court.

Lavella gave a mortgage on some fixtures to Forty, some time ago, but claims that the articles replevined were not included, but were inserted after he signed the document.

BEAVERS A NUISANCE.

Great Falls, Mont., May 21.—Beavers, protected by the game laws of the state, are becoming so numerous in Cascade county as to menace certain interests. Road Supervisor Frank Servoss says the depredations of the animals are such that the bridge across the Belt creek will be washed out as a result of the dams constructed by the beavers. The creatures are also raising havoc with the courses of irrigation streams.

POTTS ORDERED TO SEA.

Berlin, May 21.—Lieut. Commander Templin M. Potts, the United States naval attache at Berlin, Vienna and Rome, has received a cablegram from Washington notifying him of his detachment and ordering him to join the Brooklyn, the flagship of the Southern Atlantic squadron, at Gibraltar. He will leave Berlin May 28. Ambassador Tower will give him a farewell dinner the evening previous to his departure.

It pays to advertise in The Herald—ask Simon Clark.

After all, the thing I like best about "FORCE" is the enjoyment I get from eating it.

It makes little difference how "good" a food is if you don't like it.

I've met mighty few people who don't like "FORCE."

You can relish "FORCE" for a longer time, without change, than any other food I know of.
But it isn't such a bad notion, now and then, to switch off onto something else for a day or so—

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS

Series Arranged By Duluth General Temperance Society.

Last evening the first meeting in a series to be held under the auspices of Duluth General Temperance society took place at Victor hall, Fifty-sixth and Grand avenue west, and was addressed by Rev. Hjalmar Henrickson, arranged by the lodge Morning Star, of the I. O. G. T.

Thursday evening, May 26, another will be given at Columbia hall, Twentieth avenue west and Superior street, arranged by the lodge North Star of I. O. G. T., Rev. John A. Anderson to speak. Sunday evening, May 29, Rev. Hjalmar Henrickson will give a temperance address at the Swedish M. E. church, Twentieth avenue west and Third street and the same evening, Rev. John A. Anderson will deliver an address at the Bethel church, at Ninth avenue east and Third street. Tuesday, May 31, O. H. Wik will be the speaker at Victor hall, Fifty-sixth and Grand avenues west, at a temperance meeting arranged by the Temple Vaarbund, Templats of Temperance. On Sunday evening, June 19, Rev. Henrickson will deliver a temperance address at the First Swedish Baptist church, on Nineteenth avenue west and First street and the same evening Rev. Anderson will give an address at the Third Baptist church, Fifty-ninth avenue west and Ramsay street.

The series will close with a union meeting June 26, at 3 p. m., the place not yet being decided upon.

The speakers at the various gatherings will set forth the aims of the society in its work and will read its newly adopted constitution and bylaws. As the Duluth General Temperance society is a representative body from churches and temperance unions, its officers wish to have every organization represented and in close touch with the work of the society.

OBJECT TO ASSESSMENT.

Owners Oppose Sewer Levy In East End.

Suit has been started in district court by the Venedoo Investment company, C. H. Graves and J. D. Ensign, in an appeal from the assessment levied by the city council to defray the expense of a sanitary sewer between London road and South street.

The appeal is taken on the grounds that no petition containing the required statements and signatures of a sufficient number of property-owners has been presented to the council or referred to the board of public works. The board of public works is claimed to have made no investigation as to the proposed improvement or attempted to ascertain whether the property owners affected consented to the levy.

The assessment ordered by the city council was $288.34, and it is alleged that the council did not apportion the cost among the property owners affected in proportion to the benefits to be derived.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Dunn Campaign At a Standstill In St. Louis County.

THREE CANDIDATES FOR COUNTY TREASURER

Both Dunn and Collins Are Claiming To Be Certain of Ramsey and Hennepin Counties.

Signs of local activity in the governorship campaign were lacking the past week, much the same as the week before, when the wordy battle between the two leading candidates in the Republican party, Robert C. Dunn, of Princeton, and Judge Loren W. Collins, of St. Cloud, left everybody high and dry on a beach of disgust and uncertainty.

While the Dunn campaign started here with more evidence of definite plans, at least with plans defined earlier than the other people, everything has come to a standstill, apparently, at least as far as headquarters is concerned. William C. Sargent, who was the chairman at the start and had charge of the Dunn interests in this end of the state, has been away from his office for about three weeks.

He went to St. Paul about three weeks ago and when he came back was home for a couple of days and left for Wisconsin, his absence being ascribed to illness. Nobody could be found at the Dunn headquarters the past few days save the young woman who attends to correspondence.

It is said that William Getty, who has been out of the city the past week is to take charge of the Dunn interests on his return, until Mr. Sargent comes back to town, which is expected to be about the first of the coming month.

It is believed that within a short time the Dunn people will take a larger room than the one they have had the past few weeks in the Lonsdale building, and will go into the campaign to make up for lost time by active work.

* * *

The Collins people say that while they are making no noise they are getting there. The latest wrinkle in their side of the fight is their assertion that they will send their delegates to the convention without being pledged to any particular candidate—excepting up to a certain point.

They make the assertion that the Dunn delegates who go will go as one man. A Collins man said yesterday that whatever delegation would represent the Dunn interests would be practically representatives of Sargent or Guy A. Eaton and that the Collins crowd was against the sort of campaign that would bind men as closely as that.

The Collins people are free to admit that they should not wonder if a third name in the convention would develop some strength, and it may be that this is the reason they are claiming to have no "ties that bind" them to one man past all thought of any other. It is worth while pondering on whether they do not see a chance to take up the cudgels first in favor of an outsider in case they see weakness on their side, and by such an act get political credit for it before the Dunn people could follow the same course. People interested in the campaign have called attention to the advantages on both sides in such a situation—the unquestioned unanimity of the Dunn folks, and the professed freedom of the Collins side.

One advantage which the Collins people have in their favor is the fact that they are for some one far outside of St. Louis county, who is not posed as the county's friend. People of St. Louis county who are loyal to the county protest that this is not liberal to the county, and that St. Louis and its vicinity should have all it can get, either for its own sons, or the sons of other counties who are favorable to its interests.

But the Dunn people are pretty closely allied with Joseph G. Miller of Two Harbors, the incumbent railway commissioner, who is after another term. This is asking for one thing that will be charged to St. Louis county. At the same time Judge Lewis of St. Louis county is a candidate for the supreme bench which is another good berth that St. Louis county is after. It is counted as a distinct help to the other side that the Collins people are committed to no more for St. Louis than to get for it the nomination of Judge Lewis.

Mr. Miller's principal strength, so his friends concede, is the large number of candidates who are in the field and the fact that he now holds the office, the latter point always being considered favorable to a man who is after an office. But claims are being made that if he goes with St. Louis county's delegation uninstructed for him he will not be successful. Only one candidate for the commissionership has ceased to make any noise about the matter, if he ever did make any, and that is J. W. Sargent, of Minneapolis, a railroad man, who is understood to have quit the race.

But among the candidates still after the place, according to the last inventory taken, is Senator Thomas Torson. It is said that he believes he is eligible for the position despite the decision in the Sutton case, 27 Minn., 466, which decided that a member of the legislature could not hold any other office during the term for which he was elected, whether he resigned or not. Section 9, of article IV, reads:

"No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he is elected, hold any office under the authority of the United States or the state of Minnesota, except that of postmaster."

Senator Torson, it is said, will not quit the race until he gets legal advice to the effect that he is not available as a candidate.

* * *

One of the latest "mentions" for governor is Senator E. B. Hawkins, of Duluth and Hibbing. The senator came back from the South a fortnight since and when the smoke of battle between the two leading Republican candidates for the governorship cleared away and there were many wounded lying about, the senator's friend, Editor Claude Atkinson, of the Mesaba Ore, published at Hibbing, jumped to the fore with a suggestion of Hawkins for the place. But the senator, who has been in St. Paul the past week, says he is not after the position, besides being ineligible.

* * *

If Frank M. Eddy, who appears to be in the lead of the "outside" candidates, should go into the convention with 250 votes, or even 200, he would hold a very strong position, especially if the result of the vote between Collins and Dunn was anywhere near divided. Of the 1176 votes of the convention, 250 would leave 976 for the others, and as 589 votes will be necessary to pick a nominee, there is plenty of chance for several ballots, if not a deadlock. If Collins and Dunn split the balance of the votes between them at anything like 550 and 426 votes, the chances are that it would not take long for the one with 550 to get the rest, but if they both stand pretty close to 500 and can't get away from those figures, Mr. Eddy's friends will be able to make a nice bargain for their man's future, such as the assurance of a term in congress or the governorship a couple of terms hence. It makes a nice problem for the politicians to think about.

* * *

Treasurer L. W. Whipple is not going to have a clear field in his fight to retain the guardianship of the funds of St. Louis county. George H. Vivian, postmaster at Soudan, who has a lot of good friends, especially on the range, has come out flat footed in favor of himself for this desirable office, which pays $250 per month, and together with W. A. Holgate, president of the board of public works of Duluth, will give Mr. Whipple a sample of pacemaking that will be rare, so it is claimed, if he should not show himself stronger than either of the others.

Two things which are loudly urged against Mr. Whipple are his alleged affiliation for the Collins boom for governor and the assertion which he is alleged to have made that he would not again run for the treasurership. There seems to be no doubt that some of the Dunn crowd are going after him hard when the race opens.

* * *

Senator T. M. Pugh has been the object of some good natured inquiry lately as to where he stands in the governorship melee. The Minneapolis Tribune, some time since, pointed to the senator as a leader of the Collins tribe, and a number of people have queried the senator on the subject, with the result that they got an emphatic denial, but the senator would not say he was for Dunn, either. He is said to be holding aloof on the question.

"If you'll find out and let us know something on this point we will do the handsome thing by you," said a Dunn man yesterday. "Fact is the senator has a son, Ed Pugh, in the office of the state board of appeals, and he would like the young man to be retained in that office under the next governor. And as there is no telling who the next governor will be, the senator does not care to endanger the son's chances."

* * *

It is the Fiftieth district, and not the Forty-ninth, as stated in error in these columns two weeks ago, in which the business men are said to be making ready to name a business man for the legislature. The candidates are now Capt. J. R. Randall and Ray T. Lewis, who served last term, and Andrew Miller, who served the two terms prior to that. While the name of the business man who is being urged to come out is withheld, he is known to be a Sixth warder, and is said to be a man who could ably represent the business interests of the district.

* * *

Loren Fletcher has tangled up the Minneapolis congressional situation worse than ever by coming out as a candidate for a sixth term. It is well known that a political precedent has been generally recognized by giving a congressman a second term, and this was recognized with Fletcher some years ago. At the end of his second term he pleaded for a third, on account of unfinished business in congress. It was given to him, and by placing Stephen B. Lovejoy in the postmastership, at Minneapolis, he entrenched himself for another term, as Lovejoy was a great favorite and one of the finest politicians in the state—a man who could placate nearly every factional trouble that could arise. But the death of Mr. Lovejoy left Mr. Fletcher without a powerful engine of strength. Yet he won in the fight against Eugene M. Hay and James A. Peterson, a former member of the legislature and a man with strong aspirations in the political forum.

Having the advantage of "being in" and a barrel to back him, for Fletcher is rich, he managed to draw the most votes in the three-cornered fight. It was thought by this time that he would surely be satisfied, but he came out against Lind and got defeated. Now his contention in entering the race is that he wants to go back to Washington and retire of his own accord. As it is, he stands as a defeated candidate. He says he wants a final election and a peaceful retierement, or words to that effect.

F. M. Nye was in the arena once, when he thought Fletcher was going to stay out. He is now in again, and William T. Coe has started after the plum. But it is said that Fletcher is anxious to have Coe, at least stay in, which would split the fight, and thus favor him. In fact, it is asserted in some quarters that Fletcher has Coe in the race for a purpose, and is supporting his candidacy.

* * *

M. O. Aubolee, of Two Harbors, who has ben spoken of for the legislature, was at the St. Louis Thursday. He says he is not a candidate for honors in the direction indicated, as his law business is keeping him too busy to permit him to make the race, even if other things were not to be considered.

"There's not enough in it to make it worth while to fight for," said Mr. Aubolee. "If one attends to the duties properly there is not much to the honor to make a man wish for it. Certainly it is not worth a fight for, and unless a man has the field all to himself, he might as well stay out.

"There is none to oppose Mr. Skinner now that I know of, since Dr. Budd has withdrawn from the contest. As to the governorship situation, I believe the sentiment in our community is pretty well divided, and I guess both sides are pretty well knocked out breath by the latest explosions that we have been treated to, especially the Dunn people. Personally I am in favor of Collins."

Letters for and against its candidate are being received by the William Randolph Hearst club of this city. One of the most radical letters from an anti is the following, which was written under date of May 9 by H. J. Millbrook, of McKinley. Some of the Hearst people are inclined to contend that Mr. Millbrook's failure to get an office in the Lind gubernatorial regime is responsible for his attitude toward their candidate. This is the letter, which was addressed to F. H. Cutting, secretary of the club:

"Yours of the 25th inst. received. It is as impossible for me to join the Hearst club as it is for my Democratic donkey here to be persuaded to cross a swamp. The experience of the last eight years had at least by this time ought to open the eyes of the Democrats and give the mapority of the people of this country what they want, as the Democrats believe in majority rule.

"Give the people what they pay for. If there were no emoluments attached to the several offices within the gift of the people there would not be so many hankering for the positions. The first and fundamental principle of the government of this country is a free an independent republic.

"Neither party has sent, or desires to send it to the dogs.

"It is simply who will serve them the best or who has the opportunity.

"Success is my watchword—anybody it.

"Empty honor like an empty bag counts for no more than it represents.

"I do not like the idea of continually walking in a blinding snowstorm.

"It is as immaterial to me as to whether Wall street tries to run things or whether Superior street tries to run St. Louis county. Mr. d'Autremont's letter would sound far better if he eliminated 'so from principle only and are,' and add 'or West and Superior street,' where indicated."

The paragraph in Mr. d'Autremont's letter to which Mr. Millbrook's letter refers reads as follows:

"The county conventions are the nearest to the people and represent more fully the feelings and wishes of the great mass of the party than any of the other conventions. In order that their wishes may be carried out, every Democratic county convention to use all honorable effort for the nomination of a presidential candidate of its choice and to vote as a unit on all questions coming before the convention. Democrats in Minnesota are so from principle only, and are entitled to express their choice in the selection of a presidential candidate and such choice will be more in accord and much nearer the wishes of the Democracy of the United States than the selection which may be made by a Democratic machine of the East, which is dominated by and under the control of Wall street."

Mr. Millbrook intends that "or—

Here is a letter more favorable to the candidacy of Mr. Hearst, which was sent by Fred Joynt, of Hendricks, under date of April 30:

"I should be false to my convictions of duty and silent when conscience calls for speech if I did not respond to your circular letter addressed to me.

"Yes, I am for William Randolph Hearst, because with a political experience of over half a century I believe he is the peer of any man who has occupied the presidential chair.

"Of cound mind and reason he would bring back to our country the character for honor, honesty and justice which has been lost in the departments of judiciary, naval and military, and would permit the house and senate to pass laws in accordance with their desires without intruding upon the domain of their legitimate jurisdiction.

"I believe that the present ocupant of the throne is a most dangerous man, of no one mind for no one hour, without the convictions which should influence a loyal servant of the people. His judgment is so defective that he decided a man forty miles from the scene of conflict was in command at the naval engagement at Santiago bay and awarded the honor to the absentee with the prize money, and humiliated the gallant Schley and put his prize money into the pockets of a Sampson.

"He insulted the great deliverer Miles (who saved thousands of lives of the Western pioneers by subduing the Indians) by a public display of cowboy ferocity which the Minneapolis Journal in recording called a brutal outrage. He has lifted his favorite sawbones over the head of all his superiors and given him a position at the head of all the forces of the country. He keeps at the office of public prosecutor, (while pretending to desire conviction), those who must be constantly urged to duty and whose public opinions have been published as without hope of success.

"That Hearst ought to be nominated and elected is not a sentiment with me. An acquaintance (as clerk of court in Illinois) with Abraham Lincoln, one who followed his great debate with Judge Douglass, I believe they are identical in their ideas of government. Lincoln said 'No man is good enough or great enough to govern another without that other's consent.' He declared when requested to act as he would have desired, 'I have no power or lawful right to do this. I must and will be governed by the constitution.'

"Now in conclusion: The Republican party are ridiculing because they fear the people, if once aroused, would sweep them to private life and deprive the looters of the booty they have taken from a patient and suffering people.

"At 74 years of age, had I an opportunity, I should have been pleased to have participated in the struggle, but can only hope that the people will awake.

"I yesterday was favored by Mr. Evans, of Tracy, with a fine portrait of our candidate, which, in a golden frame, now adorns my den."

Most of the work of the Hearst club is being done outside the county, but confined, of course, to the state. It is figured by the campaigners that they can work St. Louis county locally, by going out to talk to people, if necessary, or catch them when in Duluth.

J. R. Bennett, Jr., of St. Cloud, was here during the week and made arrangements to help him in his fight for delegate-at-large to represent Hearst at St. Louis, where the national convention will be held. He arranged with the St. Louis hotel here for eight rooms which he and his friends will use during the state convention next month. He seems prepared to fight hard for the place.

* * *

J. B. Galarneault, of Aitkin, is a candidate for district delegate to the St. Louis convention. He is a Democrat of many years' standing and has been prominent in the delegations to state and congressional conventions for a number of years. Duluthians have frequently met him in these and remember him as a very pleasant gentleman and a man active in the cause of the Democracy.

* * *

With all the turmoil which has ben manifest on the Republican side in the governorship fight, it seems rather remarkable that the Democrats have not been more eager in their state affairs this campaign, as Republicans, at least, concede that the position on their own side is such as to give a distinct advantage to the Democrats. While the Democrats might not elect a governor, they could at least make considerable headway in strength, at least so it is asserted.

HENNEPIN AND RAMSEY.

Both Dunn and Collins Claim These Counties.

St. Paul, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The report is circulated by some of the supporters of Robert C. Dunn of Princeton, that the friends of Judge Collins in Hennepin county are endeavoring to secure an uninstructed delegation to the state convention from that county. This is taken by the Dunn men to mean that Judge Collins no longer is confident of carrying the county, and that he prefers to trust his chances to an uninstructed delegation.

Hennepin county is the only large county in the state that unbiased politicians have been inclined to concede to Judge Collins, and the general sentiment is that without it the St. Cloud candidate has not much show for the nomination. The friends of Mr. Dunn say he could be nominated without Hennepin, but they are nevertheless putting up a hard fight for it.

A state senator who is friendly to Dunn but who is taking no active part in the gubernatorial contest said yestreday regarding the situation in Hennepin:

"I have talked recently with a large number of the influential Republicans in Hennepin, and they seem to be of the opinion that Dunn has the workers and Collins the 'goody, goody' people. They say that Collins men are practically the same as those who opposed Governor Clough when he was a candidate and who were defeated overwhelmingly.

"I cannot see how Judge Collins will carry the county. He has many friends among the 'silk stocking' element, but they are not the men that go to county conventions as a rule. Many of Judge Collins' supporters are excellent gentlemen, such as Judge Ell Torrence and others, but they cannot compete politically with the Dunn organizers.

"Talk is common in Minneapolis that the Collins men are now trying to secure an uninstructed delegation, and the Dunn men say this means that the St. Cloud candidate will lose the county enthely."

* * *

Although the Collins men say that Mr. Dunn and his friends are conducting a bandwagon campaign, the impression cannot get away from the average resident of Ramsay county that Judge Collins has practically no show of carrying the county. A few weeks ago, before the close of the city campaign, many of the Dunn men were slightly worried over the situation in Ramsay, and the word was passed along that Judge Collins might carry the county. It was pointed out that the judge had a large number of the younger Republicans and that they might turn the tide for the St. Cloud candidate. Then came the overwhelming defeat of the Republicans in the county, whose campaign was practically managed by the Collins men. Since then Judge Collins' stock in Ramsay has been below par.

The Collins men say they are confident that they will carry St. Louis, but the average Ramsey county Republican, in conversing with men from Duluth and other points in the county, cannot see how the judge will win out.

* * *

Interest in the contest for the nomination for attorney general is revived in St. Paul by the visit of Former Senator E. T. Young of Appleton. Mr. Young is confident of victory. He said yesterday, concerning the situation:

"I have been so busy for a month that I have not had time to run very hard but I do not feel that the time has been wasted, for so far as I can see the voters of the state are not getting excited over the aspirations of any of the ambitious ones, not even the governor. Outside of the men who always have an active part in political affairs, there seems to be very little doing throughout the state."

* * *

Frank M. Eddy, of Glenwood, slipped into St. Paul late Thursday night and departed as quietly Friday morning. He repeated his former denial that he had ever been approached by James A. Martin, Judge Collins' manager, with the proposal that if he would take care of Martin and the rest of the Office-holders, he could have Judge Collins' following.

Mr. Eddy as usual called at the Collins' headquarters, and there were the customary rumors that he and Martin are fixing up a deal. The rumors are not generally credited by the Republicans of the Twin Cities, although some believe that there will be a consolidation of the forces of the two candidates on the floor of the convention.

PANTON & WHITE COMPANY
THE BIG GLASS BLOCK STORE — WHERE QUALITY IS PARAMOUNT

Posting the new comers to Duluth and Superior on the right place to trade, and tightening the ties that bind our old customers to our vastly growing house, we follow our annual May custom of giving a colossal sale which shall prove to all that your interests are our constant aim.

BARGAINS like these never fail to draw Big Store crowds.

Colossal mill-end and clearing sale

Commencing Monday May 23 and lasting until Saturday night, May 28

BARGAINS like these are pillars of support to this store.

$50,000 worth of jobbers' surplus merchandise, mill and manufacturers' remnants, combined with our own odds and ends, will be sold at the sort of prices that will keep the little stores guessing and the people buying. THIS IS NOT A HALF PRICE SALE! It is better than that—a sale that will discount the frantic efforts of the exposed little shops to make you believe they can sell for as low prices as this store of the people!

No grass grows under our feet when it comes to merchandising

We know all branches of our business from A to Z. We know the gold brick men will catch a few of the unwary with their full-page ads., backed by only a handful of merchandise offered at "half price." We know this house has grown by methods far different from such. Big merchandising on a big scale is what gets the prices down! For months our buyers, here and in the East, have been rounding up choice lots of merchandise from mills, factories, importers and jobbers, wherever they could be gotten way below value! In many instances the quantities were too great for us, but the price was incentive enough to take them and give the people the bargains of their lives. It is a great gathering of good merchandise and the prices are less than the little dealers pay for the goods. You get the bargains at the expense of the mills and jobbers. "Enough said."

Cut glass sale basement

We want to show you our new cut glass department (basement) with its new decorations and its myriads of lights—a veritable crystal palace. To insure a visit we offer 660 pieces of genuine cut glass—tooth pick trays, individual salts and peppers, individual almond and peanut tubs, upright tooth pick holders—pieces worth up to 50c—limit 3 pieces to a customer and pick of the lot for..... 15c

Dinnerwares basement.

We picked up, too, a big pottery's odds and ends in dinner wares—semi-porcelain, finely decorated, all sorts of pieces, almost enough to make complete sets. There are platters of all sizes, pitchers of several sizes, creamers and sugars, salads, butter plates, cups and saucers, covered and uncovered dishes, soup tureens and ladles, plates of all sizes, gravy dishes, etc., etc. We got these very cheap. Several colors and decorations. You can come and pick out as many pieces as you want and be sure you'll buy them at about half the regular prices.

42-PIECE DINNER SETS—Just the thing for Park Point cottages, for camps, etc. Beautiful pure white ware, embossed pattern, scroll edges. The set is worth $2.75 and consists of:

1 covered dish,
1 meat platter,
1 vegetable dish,
1 slop bowl,
1 pickle dish,
6 cups,
6 saucers,
6 butter dishes,
6 dinner plates,
6 sauce plates,
6 pie plates,

$1.49 How do they make 'em?

DELFT BLUE SAUCE DISHES—We just got 1000 pretty little Delft flow blue sauce dishes, good porcelain ware, good size, worth in the regular way $1.00 a dozen. In the manufacturers sale 35c a doz. or each..... 3c

Lamp sale basement.

Out of season? But you'll want them next season. We don't want to carry them over and the prices will prove it! After you see the beautiful lamps you'll buy—you can't help it at this price. 50 lamps, beautiful cast brass mounts, decorated opal ware founts and globes to match, large parlor size, center draft burner, hardly 2 lamps alike in the lot. All very handsome. Original selling prices were $4.25, $4.75, $5.25, $6.00 and $6.50. Take your pick of the lot in the odds and ends sale for $2.69

Glassware sale basement

A big lot of fancy opalescent glassware—took a glass blower's surplus at our own figures. This is fancy pinks, blue, greens and canary. The lot includes salad bowls, sugar baskets, card receivers, rose bowls, pickle trays, celery trays and fancy vases. Not a piece in the lot is lower than 25c value. The maker takes the loss in this sale when you get your pick for... 10c

Kid gloves 49c.

One big lot of kid gloves. Other glove bargains too—only space to mention this one. Ladies' kid gloves in tans, browns, slate modes and black—some with white tops—all stylish 2-clasp fasteners. Some stores ask $1.00 a pair—our price is less than half of that. We take the loss ourselves on these and offer the whole lot at, per pair 49c

75c chatelaine bags 19c

The biggest leather goods bargain ever offered the ladies of Duluth. Chatelaine bags that cost 50c to make and never sell for less than 75c. All black, decorated metal tops, good size—got to limit 1 to a customer, because there are only 500 of them, but while they last they go in the manufacturers' sale at 19c

20c hat pins 5c.

The jewelry department presents a sacrifice for this sale. Couldn't pick up a special purchase, but will do the handsome thing just the same. Take your choice from 200 hat pins regularly selling for 10c, 15c and 20c plain and fancy, all metal and stone mounted, your pick of the lot in the odds and ends sale for..... 5c

$4 silverware $2.50.

Knives and forks—the silverware that everybody wants—no table complete without it. Now is your chance. You'll not get this price again very soon after this sale—only 100 dozen silver plated knives and forks sold in every jewelry store for $4.00 a dozen. None sold to dealers, and limit 1 dozen to a customer, in the manufacturers' sale, per doz.... $2.50

Lonsdale muslin sale.

We were fortunate in getting Fruit of the Loom and Lonsdale muslin a little under the market price, which is 8¼c at wholesale. Five cases, all perfect goods. This will not go far amongst our thousands of patrons, so we limit 20 yards to a customer, at—per yard..... 7½c

Flannel sale. 2nd floor.

Outing flannels, as you know, have gone up with the cotton goods market. Low-priced outings are out of the market entirely. We had our usual luck in finding 500 pieces in a big Boston house, which we got way below the market value. Divided into two lots these are yours in the Manufacturers' Sale as follows:

Lot 1—200 pieces 8c quality outings 5c a yard
Lot 2—300 pieces 10c quality outings 7c a yard

Great shoe sale.

The greatest single bargain in ladies' shoes ever offered the women of Duluth—Choice of boots or oxfords—shoes worth $3, $3.50 and $4 in the lot. Come in vici kid, patent kid, patent colt, mat kid—wide and narrow toes, high French and military and low heels, some Goodyear welts—all sizes 2½ to 8—all widths—all high-grade shoes—will let go 500 prs in the Manufacturers' Sale. at $2.39

Stocking sale. Two lots.

If we had more space, could mention a doz lots.

INFANTS' HOSE—All one big mill had—infants' fast black all-wool stockings—all the babies' sizes—4 to 6—all worth 20c a pair—the mill takes the loss and we sell them..... 3 pairs 25c

LADIES' HOSE—Ladies' fast black cotton hose, seamless, white maco yarn feet, elastic tops. Here's a rare one—actual loss to the mill.....3 pairs for 25c, or per pair 9c

Ladies' underwear.

We mention two bargains—Come and you'll find others as well.

LADIES' VESTS—Choice of either style—high neck and long sleeves, or low neck and no sleeves—extra sizes for large women, shaped waists, white only—the best 25c value in Duluth—for the Manufacturers' Sale .....2 for 35c, or each 17½c

LADIES' UNION SUITS—Ladies' Harvard make combination suits—a regular $1.00 garment, buttons down the front, has lace neck, ankle length—these are "seconds" from the mills. Just as good as "firsts"—will wear as long and look as well, and the Mill-end price is only..... 49c

Men's furnishings sale.

50c UNDERSHIRTS 15c—A little lot, only about 200—blue balbriggan undershirts, no drawers to match, all sizes, all 50c values—stitched neck—satin front—Odds and Ends Sale price..... 15c

SEERSUCKER SHIRTS—Men's soft seersucker shirts with soft roll-down collar—all sizes, good colors— at..... 3 for $1.00

NIGHT SHIRTS—Will let go of 200 night shirts at the same price—50 inches long—good colors outing flannel, at..... 3 for $1.00

SHIRTS AND DRAWERS—Men's natural balbriggan undershirts and drawers—long sleeves, French neck, drawers double-seated—exclusive gents' furnishing stores get 35c to 50c, while they last..... 19c

Embroidery mill-ends

Especially for this sale, we bought three cases of manufacturers' seconds and mill-ends of beautiful, fine, dainty, high-class embroideries. You understand by this that some of the goods may be damaged or have slight flaws. But the prices are damaged far more than the goods—for in the goods you'll hardly detect them, and the prices are only one-fourth the regular values.

Swisses, nainsooks, cambric and muslin embroideries—beadings, edges, insertions, corset covers, widths and flouncings. They come in lengths of 4½ and 6¾ yards, and positively none will be cut.

Wash goods "scoop."

Snaps in wash goods you'll not get soon again. All the following goods were bought specially for this sale from the biggest cotton mills in the country. They are the mill ends—1 to 20 yards in lengths—so much sought after by shrewd shoppers.

DRESS LAWNS—Just the thing for ladies' waists, misses' dresses, etc.—the price, cut from the piece, is 7c a yard—having but two cases, limit is placed at 20 yards to a customer— Manufacturers' Mill-End price..... 3c

GINGHAMS—10 to 20-yard lengths—light and dark colors, stripes and checks and solid colors—these goods by the piece cost 8¼c, and you 10c—Manufacturers' Sale price—per yard..... 5c

SILKOLINES—Simpson's goods—everybody knows their value is 12½c a yard—remnants 1 to 20 yards—splendid for pillows, etc —Manufacturers' Sale price..... 5c

CHANCE OF A LIFE TIME!—Manufacturers' remnants, 10 to 20 yards—of Swisses, Batistes, satin-stripe Organdies, Lawns, Dimities, Voiles, English duck suitings and crashes—not a piece in lot less than a 25c value every day. You never saw such an assortment in your life. We have 10 full cases and in the Manufacturers' Mill-end Sale, your pick, yd. 10c

FANCY WASH GOODS — Mouseline de Soie, silk Organdies, Soie Ecletante, Lorraine tissues, Repp suitings, satin-stripe Lenos—these are odd pieces from one of the biggest importers in Philadelphia. Not a piece in the lot sells for less than 35c—the majority are 50c and 59c goods—Manufacturers' Mill-end Sale price, all you want, per yard. 15c

Sale odd portieres.

These are our own accumulations of odd pairs of all kinds of portieres. Only one pair of a kind or pattern. Beautiful for drapes or couch covers. You'll never recognize the original prices when you come and see how we have smashed them for this sale. As they are all different, we can't make one price on the lot, but if you'll come and look them over you'll see what Glass Block generosity is like.

Sale odd lace curtains.

All the one-pair and two-pair lots of lace curtains in the house—Nottinghams, Brussels, Scotch Net, Irish Net, Renaissance, Arabian, Guipure—some dainty and light, some heavy and handsome—no two prices the same. Can't name a single price for the lot. The regular prices were from $1.25 up to $25 a pair. Come and see the way we cut these prices—literally pulverized them for this May sale of odds and ends.

3 lots ladies' suits.

You've been treated to some frantic efforts on the part of the little shops lately, to make it appear they can get their prices as low as the Glass Block's. But these efforts fail to do anything but make them look ridiculous. Some acknowledge they have last year's suits to sell—others throw out a few suits as baits and even the baits are higher priced than in the Glass Block Suit Department.

Our own suits were nicely sold with the advance of the Spring season. As usual we were in just the right condition to pick up the lines the ladies' tailors always are ready to close out at about cost of material. We have picked up several hundred such suits. They have arrived and go on sale in this annual Manufacturers' money-losing sale, in three lots far below any prices possible to get in the Northwest.

$7.98 FOR LOT 1—75 new suits in black, navy and brown cheviots and Scotch mixtures. Hip-jacket suits, Eton and blouse suits. Jackets all satin-lined, suits all braid and band trimmed, in self and contrasting colors. Elsewhere these suits sell up to $25—"half price" would be $12.50—our Manufacturers' Sale price $7.98.

$12.50 FOR LOT 2—90 new stylish suits, many never shown before—cheviots, serges and fancy suitings, silk and satin-lined jackets, hip coats, Etons and blouses, skirts with all manner of plaitings and trimmings—dress styles and walking styles—$35 is asked for this grade in the little shops. "Half price" is $17.50. Our Manufacturers' Sale price for pick of the lot $12.50.

$23.75 FOR LOT 3—We pride ourselves on securing these 74 suits, made by the best ladies' tailors in America—barring none. Every suit is guaranteed—Voiles, Etamines, Panamas, Cheviots, Broadcloths—colors: black, navy, brown, eminence, champagne, etc. Every suit right up to the minute in every detail of style and making—$60.00 is asked for them in the little shops. "Half price" would be $30.00. Our Manufacturers' Sale price for your choice—$23.75.

Silk dep't sale.

$2.50 SILK REMNANTS 75c—None of these silks have been specially purchased for this sale. They are our own stock—the short lengths and last of popular lines of this spring's new silks. They embrace the finest goods in the house, formerly priced at $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2.00 and $2.50 a yard. The lengths are 4 to 10 yards, the colors and patterns are beautiful. You'll also find some lustrous black taffetas and Peau de Soies. The entire lot goes into this sale—some quick—at per yard..... 75c

LINING SILKS, satins, foulards and silks for linings, regular price 35c to 50c a yard—your pick in this sale for..... 15c

Every dress goods remnant ½.

The greatest sale of Dress Goods Remnants for years. Lots of them—grand goods in good lengths—black and every color, every weight, every style—the entire accumulation of months of lively selling. Regular prices were 50c, 69c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00 Dress, waist, skirt and jacket lengths for JUST HALF THE REGULAR MARKED PRICE.

Ladies!—Any piece of dress goods you see here, on which the price ticket has been tampered with (as some houses do at "half-price sales") you can have the length you want for nothing.

15c wall papers 5c.

We start in the closing out of odds and ends, with a selection of 2000 rolls of 10c. 12½c and 15c wall papers, ceilings, sidewalls and borders to match, all clean, bright, fresh this season's goods, and will allow one room to a customer at, per roll..... 5c

A TOUCH OF NATURE.

There is a chance that the automobile may yet be redeemed from the disrepute into which it has fallen on account of the large number of criminally reckless idle rich who, having taken to this form of sport, because of its exciting and exhilirating effects, do not hesitate to run down, mangle and kill those who are so unfortunate as to cross their paths.

Recently a Chicago millionaire entered his auto in a race with Death in order to bring a child suffering with pneumonia to a hospital, where it could receive proper care. He won the race and the plaudits of his admiring countrymen. Another story which shows that even the heart of the automobilist is touched with pity for suffering and poverty comes from New York. William H. Dunlap, of that city, was riding along in his auto, when a small boy, no doubt one with a grievance against automobilists in general, threw a brick at him and smashed a lamp. Giving chase, Dunlap caught the boy and took him to the police station. The lad, who gave his name as James Halloway, wept so piteously that Mr. Dunlap consented not to press the charge. "Jimmie" told his accuser that he had no father and that his mother was very poor.

Mr. Dunlap gave the boy a dollar and again seating him in his automobile drove the lad to his home at 311 East Twenty-fourth street. Mrs. Halloway in the meantime had come out to look for her erring son. "Jimmie" jumped from the automobine and displayed his dollar. The mother, wishing to show her gratitude, quickly embraced Mr. Dunlap, much to the amusement of a large crowd of small boys and neighbors, and so much to Mr. Dunlap's embarrassment that he quickly fled in his automobile.

No doubt this boy deserved punishment for his wanton act, and yet was not Dunlap's plan of making both boy and mother happy a more effective manner of reformation than would have been a police court fine or a reformatory sentence? No doubt the lesson taught Jimmie Halloway by this man's kindness and goodness of heart will have a strong influence in deterring him from infringing upon the rights of others in future, while both mother and chauffeur will be the better for that embrace, which again proves that "one touch of nature makes the whole world kin."

OUR CUBAN TRADE.

Whether entirely the result of reciprocity or not, the trade between Cuba and the United States has increased wonderfully since reciprocity was adopted, and no industry either in this country or Cuba has been injured thereby. The large increase of exports to that island are shown in the following table, which gives the figures for the first nine months of the past two fiscal years:

	1902.	1901.
Agricultural implements	$ 29,194	$ 96,859
Wheat flour	1,431,596	1,943,373
Sewing machines	47,531	143,195
Lumber	586,991	868,091
Refined oils	161,033	226,329

United States imports from the island have practically doubled during the same period, and yet neither our sugar nor tobacco industries have suffered thereby. It is the contention in some quarters that much of this increase of trade is due to better industrial conditions in the island, and would have come without a reciprocity arrangement, but the increased prosperity and consuming power of the Cuban people is no doubt due to these freer trade relations with our country.

This is certainly a strong showing in support of President Roosevelt's wisdom in demanding that the nation should redeem its pledges and formulate a reciprocity arrangement with the island, and has had much to do with his present popularity.

The benefits to this country's trade that have followed this treaty would be many times multiplied if similar arrangements could be made with the government of Canada. There is no doubt that, if unhampered, President Roosevelt would favor freer trade with Canada, but the Republican party management has tied his hands and nothing will be done in that direction if the party now dominated by "stand-patism" is returned to power.

TWO BOY HEROES.

One New York boy has learned a valuable lesson as a result of stealing rides on trains. Unfortunately his companion in the ride was killed, while he himself was badly injured as a result of disobedience of parents and running away from home in search of excitement and adventure.

But out of this severe lesson and the misfortune of these two boys comes a valuable lesson to humanity, the lesson that heroism and bravery are not entirely confined to the truly good.

Arthur Stretch and his cousin, Eddie Kilday, seeking stolen sweets, wandered far from home and, desiring to return, they boarded a freight train with the idea of stealing a ride on top of a box car. In the darkness they could not see the girders of a bridge overhead and both were struck. Eddie was wortally wounded while Arthur was knocked between the cars. Fortunately, as he was falling, he grabbed the ladder and regained his position on top of the car. There he found his companion lying near the edge. Grabbing Eddie with one hand, the brake rod with the other, Arthur, although badly hurt himself, bravely clung to his dying companion until the end of their journey was reached. When the trainmen found them, Arthur Stretch said:

"Look out for Eddie. He is badly hurt and I've carried him for so long. Please, Mister Policeman, look out for Eddie. We didn't mean to do no wrong and I was to blame."

But a day or so before this accident another New York boy, a vagrant, a homeless wanderer, David Johnson, risked his life to save a doll, thinking it was a baby, that was floating down the river. He swam 100 feet, recovered it and for his brave act was rewarded with a dime by pretty 6-year-old Elsie, the mistress of "Lillian," the doll.

Boatmen thinking it was a baby gave the alarm. Johnson dived for the white object. He was chagrined to find it was a doll; he was more than rewarded when Elsie hugged, kissed and gave him the dime her mother had given her to buy candy. The wanderer said it would buy him a bed for the night.

Here we have another incident that proves the inherent worth of the average boy's heart. Bad and disobedient as they may be at times, the opportunity is all that is needed to prove their innate goodness and bravery.

Neither of these boys considered that they had done anything deserving of especial reward, and yet Arthur Stretch, in trying to save his dying chum, and David Johnson, by risking his life in an endeavor to save what he thought to be a drowning babe, performed acts more heroic than was ever accomplished by the heroes of warfare.

They have proved to the world that goodness springs eternal in the human breast and that the best man in the world is but little better than the worst.

HONORING THE FIRE HORSE.

A pretty, pleasing and novel spectacle was recently seen in the city of Portland, when thousands of school children of the city were gathered at the Marquam Grand theater to witness exercises in honor of an old fire horse named "Colonel," who was about to be retired, after years of faithful service.

There is always something pathetic in the retirement of fire horses. Usually the most noble and intelligent of their kind, they break down early from the severe strain that is put upon them by their arduous labors, and as a result they must give way to younger and sounder beasts. They are often sold to those who ill-treat and starve them and their final days are passed in misery. If it be impractical to pension these horses so that they might end their days in peace and happiness, it would be much more humane to shoot them when they are no longer serviceable as fire horses. The life of a sound horse is often made miserable by thoughtless owners or fiendish drivers, but his chances are much better for kind treatment than those of the unsound horse, which usually falls into the hands of men who abuse and maltreat him.

There is, of course, much that is silly and inane in the creed of the societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals, but that portion of their belief which leads them to educate the young to deal kindly and justly with animals should receive the commendation of everybody. It was no doubt with the object of teaching the children of Portland the lesson of humanity and kindness that these exercises were held, and for this reason the movement was commendable. The lesson that enjoins a humane regard for the comfort of domestic animals is one of the highest and noblest that man can inpart.

Sympathy for animals widens into a larger sympathy for human kind and the child who finds delight in honoring a worn-out fire horse will be quite sure to likewise honor the aged workingman who has broken down from years of honest toil and whose declining years are too often, like those of the fire horse, made miserable by the thoughtlessness and uncharitableness of his fellow men.

WOMEN AS EDUCATORS.

The Herald, in its discussion of educational matters, has made the assertion that too many women teachers look upon their occupation as a means to provide themselves with the necessaries and some of the luxuries of life until they can get married. These do not, therefore, take the same interest in their avocation as do those who intend to make teaching a life work.

In the last issue of Harper's Weekly Florence Jackson discusses this phase of the educational question. "If teaching has been done by women as a makeshift," she asserts, "it has been done as often by men for that same reason. This is proved by the life records of many prominent men, not to mention those not prominent who have done tutoring and odd jobs at teaching to 'help along.' Indeed, I think it is safe to say it is the exception when a man starts from his university with the intention of teaching continuously. As a matter of fact there are graduated as professional teachers yearly a greater proportion of women than of men. That many of these women expect to marry, and to give up teaching when they do, does not imply that they mean to marry merely to escape teaching. It means chiefly that, in looking to the natural and desirable complementing of their natures, they recognize that the duties, as well as joys of wife and mother, will confine their activities mainly within the home. Just because teaching is a calling that, unlike journalism or lecturing, cannot now be entered without training for it, those women who take it up are more apt than not to continue its pursuit, for even marriage does not always interfere with its prosecution."

All this may be true. But the fact remains that the majority of men who take up teaching as a profession adopt it either as a life work or as the means of attaining higher things. On the other hand a great many women who become teachers do not intend either to follow that business nor any other to the end of life. They are simply temporary sojourners in the field of mental industry and consequently cannot be expected to take the same interest in their work as do those who expect to battle for bread throughout life. The proof of the pudding is in the eating and the fact that women teachers are willing to accept less wages than men in the same profession is proof of their inferiority as a class.

Furthermore, experience has demonstrated that women are not as good educators as men because they are unable either to maintain as good discipline or as well impress the pupil with the necessity for application and persistence.

Like the St. Paul carpenters who were not hurt when their scaffold fell, the Russians assert that the Lord is on their side because they won a victory on the czar's birthday. That is about the limit.

If a well-constructed macadam pavement had been laid on Garfield avenue at the time the cedar block pavement was put down, there would be a good pavement on that street today. Instead the property-owners are now faced with the necessity of going to the expense of again paving the street or going without a decent roadway. Paving with cedar blocks is a mighty expensive error.

Some members of a recent charivari party down at Romeo, Mich., received a dose of their own medicine. It came from the mouth of a shotgun and as a result one of the mob may die, while two others are badly wounded. Sustaining the right of a man to put his mother-in-law out of doors, the Ohio supreme court gave as a reason that a husband was the head of the house. A better reason would have been that a mother-in-law is often a disturber, sometimes without intent, and for the peace of the family either husband or wife should have the right to tell the mother-in-law to walk and seek a home elsewhere. There is no justice in granting that right to man alone.

The judge who decided that a boy was worth twice as much as a girl is not alone in his belief. Women often sue men for breach of promise of marriage, but we rarely if ever hear of a man suing a woman on that account. Therefore both sexes seem to agree that a man is worth more than a woman.

There are 247,000,000 acres of land in the South which are awaiting to be put into profitable cultivation. Land in South Carolina, for instance, can be bought for from $5 to $15, while in the North and West it runs from $100 to $150 an acre. Russia and Japan will make great demands upon our cereals and the chance for exportation generally is even better than usual, all of which will tend to further enhance prices at home and make our bread-stuffs dearer, and at a time, too, when the middle class and poor all over the country already feel the effect of high prices.

HOTEL GOSSIP

F. D. Lyon, the Rock Island traveling passenger agent who was here a few days ago is a great fisherman, so is William Chadwick, the ticket agent at the union station. The latter is familiarly known by his friends as "Chad" and when Lyon got in town the other day he did a little business and then hunted up the ticket agent.

"Say, my boy, this is fishing season and you should not be called 'Chad' any more for quite a while," said Lyon.

"What do you mean? What would you have me called?"

"You should be called 'Shad,' as it's more suggestive of the season."

"I might stand for that if you are willing to apologize."

Mr. Lyon expressed his willingness to buy an apology if it was in the shape of flowers or a box of candy or some nice useful thing, but he said he objected seriously to a liquid apology.

"I shan't go to any Budweiser foundry with you, Shad, for it would not be right. But I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll furnish the fishing tackle and the bait if you want to go fishing. What do you say?"

Chadwick rested his hands on his expansive bosom and pondered. He is fond of fish, and began to think he would not mind having a nice little mess of fresh trout for his supper.

"That seems to me like a pretty good proposition. Where shall we go, and will you furnish the car fare?"

"I'll pay the car fare if there's any place you can go on the trolley. I have no conscientious scruples against trolley cars even if I am a steam railroad man by occupation. Of course, it is against my principles to pay money to ride on any kind of a car, but I am willing to overlook that side of the matter this time. So you may put me down for the car fare."

So at 4 p. m. they came up to Superior street and took a Lakeside car and went out to Lester Park. The street car man did not like to carry fishing poles on the car, but Chadwick smiled sweetly at him and that was enough. No further objections were made, and the two fishermen, with their tackle, and some books, to read in case fishing should be slow, embarked.

The book carried by Mr. Lyon was called, "Alone in London, or Far From Home," while Chadwick was armed with a copy of Shelley's poems. The street car carried them as far as Lester Park, where they disembarked with their load, and proceeded to hunt a shady spot on the stream where it was quiet.

They set to work and found that there would be no time to read, but owing to the fish biting very fast it was determined to use the books for bait, and this was done. Most of the fish were so large that they did not think it policy to bring them back with them, as it would never be believed. But half a dozen or so of the piscatorial trophies were strung after much debate as to what was properly the domestic size of a fish. The two Waltonians then boarded a car and returned, after hiding their tackle where they could find it on their next trip.

They had the fish cooked and ate them with much enjoyment.

Chadwick says that he prefers freshly caught fish.

He says, "I have watched a good many accounts of sickness and all that, and have taken the Medical Record for several years, but never yet have I heard of a case of ptomaine poisoning from eating fresh fish. You can bet your bottom dollar that I am going to stick to the domestic catch after this when I eat fish. Then one'll be sure to live. See?"

Barber stories are plentiful, and some of them are highly entertaining. The experience of a Duluth man in a barber shop in an Eastern city not long since is of interest in this connection.

The gentleman who ran the chair was of African origin, light of color, and very able in reducing chin stubble to the surface of the customer. But he was evidently superstitious to a high degree.

"I've shaved a whole lot o' people in my time," said he to the Duluth man, "but I never have had any time for a dead man. No, sir, I never shaved one and never will. I believe I'd get the heart disease and die on the spot if I ever had to do that.

"My father was a barber before me, and when he died he needed a shave, but I did not have the nerve to do it, I tell you. I got one of the fellows from his shop and he did the work. One time I remember out in Ohio there was a colored barber hired to shave a man who had died. The man was laid out stiff and cold, and the barber went up there with his kit in a little vallse and opened up for business.

"Got his lather good and not and soaped the face good, and after getting a gold medal edge on his razor, started to shave that man. Well, something about the way the man was laid out wasn't right. I don't know just what it was, but I guess the body was too close to the edge of the couch that it was lying on.

"Anyway, the barber had not got very far along with the job when he brushed against one side of the body. The arm on that side fell down over the edge of the couch.

"That barber thought he saw forty different live men in the room all at once. He dropped that razor like a shot and ran out of that room and out of that house as fast as he could, making for home as though his life depended on it. He left his tools and bag behind and never went back after 'em. I suppose they got bomebody to finish the job.

"He told me that he wouldn't mind shaving a dead man, he believed, but he did object to tackling a man that was only half dead. He never could be hired to shave a dead man after that. Of course there's money in shaving the remains of a man and that's the only possible thing that attracts colored barbers, for they don't like to handle corpses. They usually get a dollar for the job, but of course it is a great deal more trouble than handling a live man, except a sick one. Ordinarily a man comes to your shop and it's no trouble to shave him.

"But the sick or the dead have to be sought, and then think what it must be to handle a man's face. Not only that, but just think how lonesome it is."

"All colored men don't object to it. There are some that have been making money out in Indiana stealing dead bodies."

"Is that right? I never heard of it. But as a rule you'll find that colored fellows are not at all partial to dead people. I know I'm not. I can be a mighty good friend to a man as long as he's alive, but when he's dead I'm done with him. Haven't got any use for him at all then."

THE FUNNY FELLOWS.

New York Weekly: Daughter—Is it really bad form to go shopping without a chaperon?

Mrs. De Style—Excessively. Young ladies who shop without a chaperon are always sure to forget themselves and buy things.

Judge: Riley—So Casey was killed by th' blesht? Who broke th' news to his widdy?

Rooney—Big Tim Houlihan.

Riley—Did he do it gintly?

Rooney—He did. He began be askin' her to marry him.

Catholic Standard and Times: "The trouble with the average servant girl is that she cannot remember her place."

"I guess you're right. At any rate, our new servant girl went out last Thursday and forgot the way back to the house again."

Tit-Bits: Judge—Was there any other person with you in this? Did you commit the robbery quite alone?

Prisoner—Quite alone. You see, the trouble about having a partner in an affair like this is that you can never tell whether he is honest or not.

New York Weekly: Uncle Wayback—I jus' tell you, th' city is an awful place. Skin yeh alive there.

Farmer Meadow (gloomily)—That's so.

Uncle Wayback—Eh? Did yeh meet some green goods men while you was in th' city?

Farmer Meadow—N-o, but my wife met some dry goods men.

Washington Star: "How much better off a man would be if he would take his wife's advice."

"Yes," answered young Mrs. Torkins, "I have told Charley time and again not to bet on horses that don't win. But he will do it."

"Why is it, old man, that you treat us so badly? You said you would meet us."

"I couldn't," he said.

With a shake of the head,

"I have au-to-mo-bil-eetis."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Princeton Union: There is a man down in Anoka who has practiced deep breathing so long that he is getting to be a regular air-ristocrat.

Pine County Courier: Congressman Bede has done splendid first term service for his district. No member stands closer to the powers that be at Washington than the Pine county man. In the big things, the really important things, he has acted wisely and well.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: The anti-Hearst Democrats of Wisconsin worked a very clever game against the young money-bags of New York by working up a boom for one Edward C. Wall, and capturing the convention for this alleged favorite son. Wall is but little known outside of his own state, and seems to have been resurrected for the occasion. He will make a convenient Wall for the Wisconsin Democrats to hide behind while locating the band wagon.

Sauk Center Herald: Political strikers are not interested in finding out how much Mr. Hill contributed for political purposes in times past. What they want to know is, how much is he going to cough up this year and who is going to get it.

Sauk Center Avalanche: While Governor Van Sant is in the investigating business, the people of Minnesota would like to know something about the true inwardness of the board of controls' award of the prison shoe contract at Stillwater. There is a lingering idea in the minds of some people that the transaction was not altogether on the square, but the edict seems to have gone forth that this scandal must not be investigated.

Sauk Center Herald: "I met Mr. Hill in front of the Dispatch office. Mr. Hill did not seem to recognize me until Louie said, 'Father, don't you know Mr. Dunn?'"—Mr. Dunn's interview in St. Paul Dispatch.

This is the only foundation there is for the rumor that Mr. Hill has gone to Europe to consult an eminent oculist.

SATURDAY NIGHT TALK

Unpublished Heroisms.

During the weeks which have passed since Mr. Carnegie's establishment of his hero fund instances have come to light here and there throughout the country of persons deserving portions of the interest on the $5,000,000 which he has set aside to reward the heroes of peace rather than war. Doubtless as the years roll by there will be an ample number of claimants for the revenue derived from this magnificent gift. But it is preposterous to suppose that all of those who ought to be rewarded will receive their just dues. And underneath all the specific instances of heroic action must be at all times the substratum of a vast deal of heroism which never gets into the public prints. It is of these unpublished heroisms that we may profitably think today.

Is the heroism of the battlefield any nobler than that of the sick room, not alone of the persons condemned to long and apparently unending years of invalidism, but of those who minister unto them? I am thinking now not of paid nurses and attendants, but of relatives and friends who spend considerable time night and day in caring for the sick. The man whose wife is a confirmed invalid carries a heavy burden. Hard as it is to be deprived of her company and co-operation in the joys and the work of life, it is still hardor to see your dearest one wasting with disease, the victim of unstrug nerves or of unsound organs. Many a man goes to his business in the morning heavy-hearted and returns at night in deep anxiety because illl health has come to be a permanent guest under his roof. Yet I have known men who have borne even this trial with serenity, courage and trust in an all-wise, over-ruling Providence.

What about the small army of persons who give up cherished plans and strong ambitions for a home of their own in order to take care of infirm parents or other relatives who need not only physical assistance, but cheerful companionship day by day, who want to be read to, amused, diverted, who want someone else to be to them sunshine or even life itself. We all know daughters who thus stand loyally by aging and sometimes aggravating mothers, sons and younger brothers who cheerfully take up a cross of this sort. Their unpublished heroism deserves as high praise as that of a man who risks his life to carry another person from a burning building.

Another group of unpublished heroisms comprises those sacrifices made in order to give advantages to children or to brothers and sisters. I know more than one successful business man whose mental poverty and social disabilities are due to the fact that he began in his early days to make his own living, and before he was 20 to take care of his younger brothers and sisters. He went into the factory or the warehouse that they might go to college. He scrimped that they might have money for tuition and books. He saw them growing in brain power, while his crowded days left him no opportunity to look within the covers of a book. He is now past middle life. Yet he would not do differently were he to live his life over again. He knows the greatest of all joys, that of pouring himself into the life of another. No one speaks of him as a hero, but he has been just that all these years.

There is something heroic, too, about the man who retrieves his fortunes, after having met with some great reverses. It is easy to begin at the bottom of the hill when one is young, but when one has reached the time of life of Mr. McKinley when he suffered financial disaster, it takes a brave heart to start all over again. Yet men all over this land are doing this thing every day. They refuse to be disappointed and discouraged. They will risk another venture, and whether they win out or not the mere fact that they might entitles them to a place among the unbreveted, unadorned heroes of the race.

Don't, in your search for heroes, look exclusively at the ranks of policemen, firemen, nurses, life savers. Many among them will, in due time, come in for a share of Mr. Carnegie's beneficence. But open your eyes to the unrecorded heroisms of daily life about you, and if you want to be a hero yourself, do not wait in the hope of seeing a runaway horse come tearing down the street with a child in the carriage, but begin today and meet your responsibilities and bear your burdens like a hero. Then you will not prove wanting when some great test arises.

On Probation.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: Mr. Cleveland congratulates his party on a prospect of a "return to sanity." But as the aberration has lasted eight years, would it not be well to hold the patient under observation for a considerable period?

DR. MITCHELL'S STRANGE POWERS

If you are thinking of employing a physician, just investigate before you decide, and you will find that Dr. Mitchell is the only one who actually cures chronic cases of long standing. He removes tumors and growths before your very eyes. Patients, when cured by this wonderful process, remain cured. They return to prove that the effect is permanent, the cure is lasting. No man can witness Dr. Mitchell remove suffering and pain without becoming a convert to his wonderful power over disease.

The reporter noticed a collection of crutches, canes, etc., at one side of the room, also a couple of pipes and a small bottle filled with white powder. Dr. Mitchell noted his questioning glance and smilingly said: "Those are my trophies and all left here this week. When a man finds he has no further use for a crutch or cane, he is anxious to get rid of it as soon as possible. They were left here by their owners, who found after being treated that they could walk without their assistance. These pipes speak for themselves and tell their own story. The little vial contains arsenic. A young lady placed that on my desk while talking with me. As she turned to go I offered it to her, and she refused it, saying that the terrible hankering which had never been absent from her for a moment had entirely disappeared, and she was going to try to do without it. It is but justice that I should add," said the healer, "that this happened after the fifth treatment."

What power this man possesses, perhaps, cannot be satisfactorily explained, but that he does possess a strange and marvelous power to heal the sick cannot be denied.

Dr. Mitchell cures all forms of skin diseases, fistual dropsy, dyspepsia, sleeplessness, constipation, all nervous disorder, all female complaints, without the use of instruments or exposure of the person; deafness, catarrh, blindness and all diseases of the blood and bones. He also cures cancers and tumors without an operation or pain to the patient.

Engineer Killed In Collision on Mineral Range Road.

Houghton—In a head-on collision of a rock train and a switch engine on the Mohawk division of the Mineral Range road, Friday afternoon, James Jefferey, the rock train engineer, was killed.

Sault Ste. Marie—Preliminary operations in the work of opening the west Neebish channel to the commerce of the lakes, a project that will require four years' time to complete and necessitate an expenditure of $3,000,000, have been started by the concern to which the government has awarded the contract. The first work to be undertaken will be the construction of a temporary dam across the rapids, designed to check the current and make "dead" water above, where an earth cofferdam will be made by the simple but effectual method of dredging the ground from the future channel and dumping it at the point desired. A similar dam will be constructed at the foot of the rapids, and then two huge twelve-inch pumps will be set at work pumping dry the river bed between the two dams. This task, with the pumps working day and night, will, it is estimated, take ninety days. When the project is completed the contractors will have changed the face of nature and substituted for the roar of the rapids, covered by water only a few inches deep in some places, a quietly flowing, deep channel, between narrow banks, carrying water enough to float the largest freighters that ply the lakes. The undertaking is one of the greatest ever authorized by the government in its scheme of improving navigation on lakes or rivers, and will be of inestimable value to lake commerce.

Escanaba—The Steel Corporation has resumed construction work on its big ore-crushing plant at North Escanaba. Much was done last year but it is probable that most of the summer will have passed before the crusher will be ready. The plant will treat hard ores.

St. Ignace—With the hope of scooping up fortunes for all members of the company, representatives of a syndicate of Sault Ste. Marie men will shortly sail for Cape Nome, Alaska, to conduct dredging operations off the shore of that bleak land.

Houghton—The annual reunion of the Knights of the Modern Maccabees of Houghton county will be held in Chassell on June 18. Special trains will be run.

Calumet—Thousands of Frenchmen will gather in Calumet June 21 to attend the annual reunion of the St. Jean de Baptiste society.

IS MORE ORDERLY.

Small Number of Arrests In Duluth Lately.

Two lonely drunks comprised the sum total of the arrests made by the police department during the thirty-six hours ending at noon today. Judge Windom showed his appreciation of the light court docket by suspending sentence on both the drunks, for which they were duly thankful.

The past week has been a record-breaker with the police for the small number of arrests. Outside of the arrest of James Creevy for grand larceny, the list for the week has comprised only six or eight vagrants and about a dozen drunks.

SITE NOT CHOSEN

Commissioner Berg Claims Courthouse Location Is Still Open.

County Official Presents Argument For Present Place.

"The county commissioners have not yet decided on a site for the new county courthouse," said Commissioner Ole Berg this morning. "We have been desirious of finding out where the majority of the taxpayers want the building erected, and thought this a good way to find out public sentiment."

Mr. Berg further said he thought the method was working out very successfully.

"Since the meeting of the attorneys the other evening to discuss a courthouse site there has been a great deal of discussion among local taxpayers over the action there taken and the outcome of the meeting of the county commissioners at which the committee to be appointed by the attorneys will be present. This will be early next month.

Many of the county officials favor the present site, and one of them said today:

"There is one peculiar feature about this opposition that has arisen to the old courthouse site, which is, that the people elect men to represent them on the county board whom they believe will run the affairs of the county on an economical basis, and then jump on them.

"Just to site an instance. Some of the very few people who are now urging a courthouse on a new site, regardless of the expense,' are the very fellows who complain against what they term the unnecessary expense of administering the county affairs, when they go up to the treasurer to pay their taxes.

"It is well enough for them to say now to let the old site go, if we have got to build on it and buy a new site anyway, but when these same taxpayers have to stand their share of that expense they will be found kicking again.

"I believe it is only a question of a few years before the county will be divided. If that happens the taxpayers in this end will have to make good for that new courthouse. Some seem to think that the fellows in the outside districts of the county who may be in the new county formed will have stood part of the cost, but they should realize that they will have to be reimbursed. They cannot be compelled to help pay for a courthouse here and then have to be taxed to build a new courthouse for themselves. I think this is a matter for serious consideration.

"I certainly do not think we want the whole block in which the courthouse now stands. The half block we already occupy is plenty large enough, and it is a fine site.

"After this year's courthouse levy is collected we will have about $135,000 toward a new courthouse.

"What is the matter of continuing as we have done and in a short time we will have about $300,000, enough to build a handsome building right on the site of the old courthouse."

PYTHIANS IN SESSION

Five Thousand Knights Attend Festival at Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Northwestern Pythian festival today has called together some 5000 Knights of Pythias, including the degree team of Iola lodge from Dayton, Ohio, Grand Chancellor James Cromwell, of Minnesota, Supreme Chancellor Tracy R. Bangs of Grand Forks, Dakota, Grand Chancellor M. M. Molseberry of Iowa, Grand Chancellor Merrill E. Wilson of Indiana and Herried of South Dakota. The afternoon was spent in conferring ranks and tonight there will be a banquet at the auditorium.

FAILED TO OPEN.

Newark Savings Bank In Hands of Receiver.

New York, May 21.—The Newark Savings bank did not open its doors today and the court this morning appointed a receiver for the bank in the person of W. G. Taefel. For the past two days there have been rumors regarding the bank and yesterday there was a slight run on the institution and last night the directors decided that they would not open this morning. The bank had thousands of deposits from the working people here and there is great excitement. According to report of Mr. Taefel this morning, discrepancies have been discovered in the books of the treasurer, James Lingafelter.

GOOD ROADS CONVENTION ENDS ANNUAL SESSION.

St. Louis, May 21.—The National and International Good Roads convention concluded its sessions today. W. H. Moore was re-elected president. R. W. Richardson and C. H. Huttig, secretary and treasurer, respectively, were also re-elected. It was decided to elect a first vice president, who would also be the national organizer of the Good Roads association, and A. S. Mann., of Jacksonville, Fla., was selected for the position. The Republican and Democratic parties will be requested to support the movement for better highways when the conventions are held.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Body of Dead Fireman May Reveal Case of Murder.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Larimore—The dead body of Jesse Heald, a Great Northern fireman, aged about 20, was this morning found lying in the center of the railroad tracks, with the head completely severed from the body. His clothing was torn and his body badly mutilated. Heald came here from Carman, Minn., to get one of his pay checks, and was intending to return this morning. When found, his pocketbook, watch, quarterly pass and money was gone. His pockets were turned inside out. He was a single man and lived at Willmar, Minn. Whether it is a case of murder or accident is yet unknown, but most persons believe a crime has been committed.

Williston—In a dispute over stock at Buford, Andrew Nohle, vice president of the Buford Mercantile company, was shot in the shoulder and J. C. Sanderson twice in the leg. Both will recover. Mr. Nohle went over to Sanderson's to get a horse on which he held a mortgage. Sanderson objected to having him take it, and guns were pulled and both men were wounded. The affair happened fifteen miles out of Buford, and full particulars cannot be obtained.

Fargo—Schrump Bros., liverymen, are looking for a stranger who hired a team Monday and has failed to return. He wanted the rig for a country drive and was to return that evening.

Judge Amidon has discharged from custody in the bankruptcy court Olaf Foss, Theodore, Velva; Richard Euler, Arndt; John R. Smith, Langdon; O. A. Sole, Colfax.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—A suit instituted several months ago by William Black, an old veteran, against the members of a former board which had charge of the affairs of the State Soldiers' home at Hot Springs and ex-Commander Arthur Allan, has been settled by the payment to Black of a satisfactory sum. Black, in his suit, asked that he be awarded damages against the defendants of $5,000 for being discharged from the home.

A Sioux Falls attorney has been engaged to assist a Beresford attorney in contesting a recent election at Beresford at which the saloon license question was voted upon. Beresford is partly in Lincoln and partly in Union counties, and the contest, which was instituted by Anthony Cooper, of Beresford, is based upon the novel ground that the voters in the third ward, who live in Lincoln county, could not vote upon the sale of intoxicating liquors at the precinct polling place, which was on the Union county side of the line.

Bradley—A team, top buggy and three sets of harness were stolen from the barn of Walter Stacey, seven miles south of here, Thursday night. Marshal Martin Holmes took the trail while it was fresh and bagged the thief with all the chattels in his possession about four miles north of here, and has taken him to the Clark jail for safe keeping. He is a young man who came here on the train dressed in a light check suit, which he had changed for another. The supposition is that he is a recently released convict named Johnson.

Huron—The intercollegiate oratorical contest Thursday night was witnessed by a large audience. The contestants were J. W. Crowther of Mitchell, Miss Bessie Jean Parks of Huron, William Smith of Brookings, Miss Floy Treadway of Yankton, and Jay A. Larkin of Redfield. The Judges found difficulty in arriving at a decision, the markings given Crowther and Miss Treadway being very close. Finally Crowthers was awarded first and Miss Treadway second, it being understood that both contestants will enter the interstate collegiate oratorical contest.

HALF RATE TICKETS

Cannot Be Sold For World's Fair.

St. Louis, May 21.—The sale of books of fifty tickets to the World's fair stockholders for $12.50, or at the rate of 25 cents each, which has been going on for several days, was ordered stopped today. The reason for this was the failure of the commission to approve the action of the board of directors of the exposition company in authorizing the sale. The national commissioners took the stand that the privileges granted the stockholders was actually a substitute for a dividend and to that extent gave them a lien on the receipts of the fair. This, they claimed, was in violation of the government's agreement for the loan.

LINCOLN NINE WINS.

Takes Close Game From Polish School Boys.

The Lincoln Park nine defeated the Polish school team this morning on the Lincoln park grounds by the score of 13 to 12. Eddie Beers, pitcher for the winners, struck out 12 men. The winners lined up as follows: Catcher, Bingham; pitcher, Beers; first base, Arthur Anderson; second base, Charles Louis; shortstop, A. Anderson; third base, G. Anderson; left field, Amos Burke; center field, Mackowiak; right field, Orval Ryan.

The Lincoln park nine also won yesterday from the St. Clement's school team by the score of 8 to 5.

The score by innings this morning, was as follows:

Polish School	0	0	0	4	1	3	0	2	2	—12
Lincoln Park	4	1	3	0	1	1	1	0	2	—13

ONE MORE BISHOP

To Be Elected By Methodist General Conference.

There Was No Election On the Last Three Ballots.

Los Angeles, May 21.—On the eleventh ballot taken by the Methodist general conference last night, the result of which was announced this morning, there was no election.

The time of the morning session was almost completely taken up with the resolution on the question of restoring the pastoral time limit.

A sensation was caused, early in the session, by the adoption of a resolution by a rising vote of the conference excluding from the privileges of the hall the representatives of a local newspaper on account of the publication, this morning, of an article regarding the fight against Dr. Day, the leading candidate for the bishopric.

The committee on state of the church has concluded, by a large majority vote after a warm discussion, to recommend to the general conference that it prepare a petition to congress on the subject of polygamy and of divorce. It will ask congress, if the report of the committee is adopted, to enact a constitutional amendment providing uniform divorce laws in all the states and territories. The subject as to whether church congregations shall employ individual communion cups has also been threshed out in the committee, and the report from that body will recommend that a rule be adopted making it possible for any church to adopt individual cups by a two-thirds vote of membership of a quarterly conference. Today is the last day for the missionary exhibit, which has been one of the features of the conference. More than 90,000 persons have visited it since its installment.

Seven of the eight bishops to be elected had been chosen last evening. They are: Joseph F. Perry, of Chicago; Henry F. Spellmeyer, of Newark, N. J.; William F. McDowell, of New York; James W. Bashford, of Delaware, O.; William Burt, of Rome, Italy; Luther B. Wilson, of Baltimore, and Thomas B. Neely, of Philadelphia.

The seventh and eighth ballots resulted in no election, but in the ninth Dr. Neely was elected by 486 votes out of the 700 cast, 467 being necessary to a choice.

The tenth ballot was taken just before adjournment and resulted in no election. Dr. J. R. Day received the highest number of ballots—311 out of a total of 700 cast, 471 being necessary to a choice. This showed Day a loss of thirty-nine votes, having polled 350 in the ninth.

The twelfth ballot resulted in no election. Dr. Cook then withdrew, saying that he had no desire to be a party to a long contined contest.

Recess was then taken.

A Bullet Proof Vest.

It is reported that a vest made of bullet proof cloth was recently sent to the president, to be worn as a protection against assassination. If this cloth will do all that is claimed for it, its discovery will be a most valuable one, especially to all public men. While it is good policy to protect the system from danger on the outside, it is equally as important to protect it from the inroad of disease on the inside. For this particular work Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is highly recommended by physicians everywhere. It will tone up and strengthen the system so effectually that disease cannot find a foothold. Then it also cures indigestion, dyspepsia, bloating, dizziness, insomnia, liver troubles and malaria, fever and ague. A trial will convince you of its value.

HERE IN THE FIFTIES.

Early Resident of Lake Superior District Visiting Here.

Mrs. George E. Nettleton, of Ashtabula, Ohio, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Amidon, and granddaughter, are visiting at the home of Judge and Mrs. J. D. Ensign. Mrs. Nettleton is the widow of George E. Nettleton, who was one of the original proprietors of a part of Duluth. Mr. Nettleton came to the Lake Superior country about 1850, and was connected with the Indian department at Madeline island. About 1854 he went back to Ashtabula and was married, returning then and locating with Mrs. Nettleton in Superior. They lived there some years and then returned to Ohio.

An interesting fact associated with Mrs. Nettleton is that she was a member of the historic picnic party which gave the city of Duluth its name. This picnic was held on Minnesota Point in the early fifties and the subject came up as to what should be the name of the little town then just springing up on the hillside that could be seen in the distance. It was then called Portland, but it was conceded that it ought to have some other name. By some one the suggestion was made that it should be caled Duluth and the idea caught favor. An impromptu christening was arranged and the picnic party merrily drank to the health of the new town of Duluth, probably little believing that the name would be the one actually adopted.

Mrs. Nettleton will visit here for some time. She is a cousin of Mrs. Ensign and also of Mrs. Clinton Markell.

EXTENSIONS ORDERED.

New Mains of Gas and Water Department.

The following extensions of the water and gas mains were ordered by the board of water and light commissioners this week:

On First street from Piedmont avenue to Seventeenth avenue west; on Sixth street from Seventh to Tenth avenue west; on Twenty-second avenue east from London road to Water street, and on Water street; short extension on Twenty-third avenue east.

The contract for hauling the water and gas pipe from the dock to the localities where the various extensions will be made this season, has been awarded to C. O. White, Jr., whose bid was the lowest submitted, $447.62. There was only one other bid, which was $545.66.

SEALED VERDICT.

Jury Reports In Peavey Damage Case.

A sealed verdict was returned by the jury last evening, in the personal injury case of Charles Carlson against the Peavey Elevator company, the contents of which will not be made public until court assembles next Monday morning.

Carlson was injured at the time the scaffold on the inside of the concrete elevator on Rice's Point fell and killed several employes. Carlson sustained severe injuries at the time and brought a damage suit for over $10,000.

The elevator company contended that Carlson knew the scaffolding was of inferior timber and that it was unsafe, but the latter claims to have gone to work after the scaffolding had been built and knew nothing of its insecurity.

A motion by the elevator company yesterday, that the court direct a verdict in its behalf was denied.

PRESERVING IN CLAY.

Process of Mummification Is Still Carried On.

How would you like to be a modern mummy and to wear a life-like and natural appearance for centuries after your spirit has wended its way to "that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns?" says Wayside Tales. It is certainly more agreeable to contemplate than the crematory oven, and it is more hygienic, to say the least, than our modern practice of interment. Indeed, scientists have for years inveighed against our modern burial customs, which are held to be responsible for much of the prevalent disease and ill health.

It is scarcely hygienic, to say the least, to continue to pour the drainage of our cemeteries into our drinking cups. Moreover, it has been repeatedly demonstrated that the infection of contagious diseases is not destroyed by burial, and cattle become infected with typhus and smalpox germs from feeding on the grass of the graves of those who died from the dread diseases. Such being the case, there are only two courses open to the unselfish who love their fellow men enough to permit their own diseases to dio with them—cremation or mummification. Which shall it be? Why, the latter, by all means!

The custom of preserving the bodies of the dead dates from time immemorial. It is, literally speaking, as old as Methuselah—perhaps older. But so accustomed has the twentieth century American become to the idea of a mummy as a much-bandaged and shrunken bit of human antiquity—or should one say antique humanity?—decorating a marble slab in a museum among other fine arts that he is startled when confronted with the idea. Mummies? Modern mummies, are there really such things? Most assuredly, and vast numbers of them, sovereign and subject, ecclesiastical and temporal, noble and humble.

Only a few months ago we read that the body of the late Signor Crispi, for many years prime minister of Italy, had been placed in its appointed niche in a crypt of the well-renowned monastery near Palmero, the process of its mummification being now complete.

The old statesman was all his life long such a foe to the church and the religious orders that such a disposition of his remains is, to say the least, curious; but only on that account. For Signor Crispi will not be lonesome in his new abode. He will have the company of thousands upon thousands of Capuchin monks, and great dignitaries of the church, as well as of not a few Sicilian nobles and statesmen who are preserved in a mummified condition in the vaults of that beautiful mosque-like structure—indeed, it was formerly a Mohammedan mosque in the days when the Moslem ruled that fairest of island capitals.

These Capuchin monks have a peculiar and secret process of embalming, said to have been transmitted to them by the former Moslem owners of the property. For hundreds of years they have made this disposition of the bodies of their dead, which are exhibited unconfined for the inspection of the devout and the curious who visit the Christian Pantheon. The bodies for the most part are wonderfully life-like in appearance, except that the process of mummification turns them almost entirely black. Many are suspended from hooks on the walls, while others repose in niches or on marble tables.

Gruesome as is the idea, the sight is not so. Indeed, there is something wonderfully solemn and dignified about this silent concourse of the dead, in monkish cowls and rocks or priestly vestments. One is not surprised to learn after having seen them, that the Palermitans, who have a church dedicated "to the souls of the decapitated dead"—who number very numerous in that land of the guillotine and the vendetta—have also a lovely Gothic chapel raised to the memory of these embalmed Capuchin monks, whose intercession is said to be very effective in the curing of the sick and the crippled. Pilgrimages from all over Sicily are made to this chapel, and the number of votive offerings, candles, flowers, fruit, crutches, etc., is very large.

But this Sicilian monastery is not the only instance in modern times of such a preservation of the dead. There are many sports in Europe and in other parts of the world where the custom prevails.

For instance, it is a fact not generally known that all the kings of Spain who have possessed the actual sivereign power are subjected to the mummifying process. Since the days of the Emperor Charles V such has been the custom, and even as late as 1870 the coffins of the great emperor and his son, King Philip II, author of the invincible Armada and of the Inquisition, were opened and photographs taken of the mummies. The royal Spaniards wore a wonderfully natural appearance, even after 300 years, and a large number of tourists annually give up a small coin in exchange for the photographs.

The royal tomb of Spain, or as the Spaniards call it, the Pantheon, is a gorgeous vault, placed directly beneath the high altar of the church in the Escurial. One ascends into it by means of a staircase whose walls are lined with yellow jasper, and the whole vault was executed by the greatest artists of Italy and Spain.

The octagonal walls of the splendid vault contain numerous niches, or shelves on twenty-six of which repose gray marble coffins. On the left are the kings, from Charles V down to our own dimes. In a short time there will be added to the left side the sarcophagus of Alphonso XII, father of the present youthful sovereign of the peninsula. For seventeen years the body of the late king lay on a marble slab in a dark and mysterious vault, through the grated door of which tourists were permitted to peer—that is, if they could offer a bribe of a sufficient size to overcome the superstitious terror of the guide. Over the body of the king the water from a certain unique mineral spring has been constantly pouring for years, until even the human flesh has become literally petrified.

When the young king, Alphonso XIII, joins the shades of his ancestors he also will be subjected to the mummifying process.

There is a great deal besides precedent to be called up in favor of this ancient custom. Perhaps we ourselves should have followed it instinctively had our lot been cast in a different climate. Amid the burning sands of Libya, or on the arid plains of Central America, the traveler who is left to die and lie unburied by his companions is mummified by the hands of nature herself.

It is not unlikely that the first embalmers may have taken a hint from some such chance specimen of the homo siccus and improved on the model until the masterpiece in the modern museum is the result.

It was the belief of the Egyptian—and possibly of the Central American, the mound builder and the cliff dweller, who likewise embalmed their dead—that after 3000 years the soud would return to its deserted body.

Quite naturally, therefore, each Pahroah took great pains with his future habitation and no expense was spared to make his mummy as perfect and as beautiful as possible.

The last toilets of these royal personages were certainly unique. The wrinkles caused by the process of mummification were carefully filled in with enamel, the cheeks were colored with ochre, and false eyes were introduced beneath the shrunken lids, giving the face a horrible life-like appearance.

Most of the queens were buried in all their jewels, like the famous Queen Aahhotep, but others were not so fortunate as that celerated beauty. Arab vandals, and Christian vandals, too, did not hesitate to rifle these royal dead, as the prints in the withered flesh and the carelessly restored bandages bear witness.

Many a story, curious, mysterious, comic, pathetic or tragic, those spicy remains of a past and gone civilization have to tell.

Only a short time ago, at the time of King Edward's serious illness, Professor Lannelongue, the great French authority on appendicitis, made the fact known that the dread disease was probably just as fashionable in the days of the Pharaohs as now. As evidence he set before his class an Egyptian mummy of the eleventh dynasty, which demonstrated clearly that appendicitis was known and operated on 5000 years ago—among the contemporaries of Joseph and Moses!

Among the mummies recently unrolled in Berlin was that of an anonymous prince of royal blood who appears to have been embalmed alive. The body was bound in three places, which made deep indentations in the skin from which blood spurted, and the heart and other vital organs remained intact, although it was customary to remove them. The agonized expression of the face and the open mouth, the swollen and knotted muscles, bear silent witness to his desperate struggles and the horrors of his last agony. He was about 20 years of age, and evidently of high rank. That he was the victim of some unspeakable tragedy there can be no doubt. But of his name, parentage or fate there is no clew.

The ancient method of embalming differed materially from those now in use. The Egyptian first covered the body with a thick covering of bitumen, lime and powdered resin, and then rolled it in hundreds of yards of strong linen bandages which had been soaked in some glutinous substance.

There are many methods in use at the present time, but all widely different from this.

In Goeth's "Wilhelm Meister" a process is given by which a body may be indefinitely preserved, retaining all the beauty it had in life, and affording the appearance of being merely locked in gentle sleep. After the death of poor, pretty little Mignon her body is subjected to this process and is then exhibited cradled in flowers to her sorrowing friends.

"A balsamic substance," says the abbe who conducts them, "has been forced through all her veins, and now tinges in place of blood those cheeks too early faded."

He raised the veil; the child was lying in her angel's dress, as though asleep, in a soft and graceful posture.

Many readers have considered this passage unreal and fanciful, if not impossible, but a number of women and children embalmed after this method by Dr. Gammel in 1892 have been found to retain a life-like appearance that defies the power of decay. A single incision is all that is necessary for the purpose of injection; the embalming fluid is forced rapidly through the veins and the body becomes firm and elastic. The drying process occupies about six months, but after that the embalmed individual requires no further attention.

Is it not comforting to think that we may keep the bodies of our loved ones thus, in all the beauty and freshness of life and health, as though asleep? Surely the plan is an improvement on our present diseasc-breeding, tear-compelling and altogether horrible burial customs!

And scientists tell us that the day is fast approaching when this dream shall be an accomplished fact and every hearth shall have its silent, but visible members. Meantime the mummy question continues to be one of the topics of the day in the great world of science.

DISEASES OF MEN

WE CURE—

VARICOCELE,
STRICTURE,
NERVO-SEXUAL DEBILITY,
CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON,
RUPTURE, KIDNEY AND URINARY DISEASES,
SMALL, WEAK ORGANS, DISCHARGES,
SEMINAL EMISSIONS.

THE LONGEST ESTBALISHED, MOST SUCCESSFUL AND RELIABLE SPECIALIST IN DISEASES OF MEN, AS MEDICAL DIPLOMAS, LICENSES AND NEWSPAPER RECORDS WILL SEOW.

VARICOCELE.

The disease of Varicocele comes upon a man so gradually that he does not realize his danger until he has reached a somewhat advanced stage. All of the time the disease is undermining the foundations of vitality and threatening to wreck the entire system. By our cure, instead of vital parts being maimed and injured, they are preserved and strengthened, pain ceases entirely, and almost instantly, swelling subsides, healthy circulation is rapidly re-established, and every part of the organism affected is thoroughly restored.

NERVO-SEXUAL DEBILITY.

No one afflicted with Nervo-Sexual Debility in any of its forms should despair after failure to obtain satisfactory results from inferior treatment. Our methods rid you of the main malady which underlies nervous disease and disturbance, and we are able to restore you to enviable health and the strength of mature vitality. Every case is a personal study with us, and we invariably modify our treatment to answer the requirements in individual cases. We cure all weaknesses induced by specific nervous complaints and put you on the right track to complete or restore the conditions essential to your future life and happiness.

SPECIFIC BLOOD POISON.

Prompt and heroic treatment is the only kind that should ever be used in combating this loathsome disease. Only temporary relief can come from hot spring baths, specifics, mercury, potash, or other mineral mixtures and poisons. We have originated and perfected a cure for Blood Poison that is absolutely safe, rapid and permanent, and leaves no injurious effects. Every external symptom soon disappears, while the blood, the tissues, the nerve fibers, the bones and the whole system are cleansed, strengthened and restored to perfect health and purity.

GONORRHOEA.

We especially invite old, long-standing cases of Chronic Gonorrhoea, complicated with stricture or gleet. We have the best cure for Gonorrhoea in the world and can heal these cases —or no pay. If you had Gonorrhoea months or even years ago, and still have a slight discharge, which shows you are not thoroughly cured, call and let us cure you right. Certainty of cure is what you want. WE GIVE A LEGAL GUARANTY TO CURE OR REFUND YOUR MONEY. What we have done for others we can do for you. Our charges for a perfect cure will be reasonable, and no more than you are willing to pay for successful treatment of your case.

BASEBALL SEASON OF HIGH SCHOOL

Schedule of Games to Be Played By School's First Team—Great Senior-Faculty Game Is Event of Prime Interest—Instructors Engaged In Vigorous Practice.

At the high school the coming athletic events in baseball and the field day exercises are now claiming the principal attentions.

Raymond Willcuts, manager of the baseball team, has now practically completed his schedule, although a couple of the dates have not yet been decided upon.

This year's team, while it is not as strong nor as experienced as that of last year, is nevertheless composed of a bunch of good players and should render a good account of itself in every game that it plays. The following is the schedule so far as it is completed:

May 23, Alumni at Duluth.
May 25, Superior Blaine high school at Duluth.
May 26, Board of Trade at Duluth.
June 4, Ashland at Ashland.
June 18, Ashland at Duluth.

In addition to these, two games with the Nelson Dewey high school, and the with the Brocklehurst Business college have been arranged, but no dates have been set, except that they will come off in June.

Next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clok the much talked-of and eagerly-anticipated game of baseball between the seniors and the faculty will be played at the Driving park.

The whole school, as well as a large number of outsiders, are manifesting a great deal of interest in the event and are looking eagerly forward to the day on which it is to come off. This is always an occasion for a great deal of fun and merriment, as perhaps more ridiculous and laughable things happen in this game than in all the rest of the year put together. These are particularly enjoyable to the student as he gets a chance to turn the laugh on his teacher and to have a good time at the instructor's expense. Full advantage is taken of the opportunity, for unlike Christmas or the Fourth of July, it does not occur once a year, but only once in every three or four years.

Both teams are practicing regularly and according to report, are getting into fine shape. The faculty had two practices at Woodland during the week and it speaks much to the credit of the instructors that all of them turned out.

Those who have seen the instructors at work say that they have some "phenoms" in their line-up and that they are going to give the class of '04 such a drubbing as they have never experienced before and will never experience again.

Speaking of the practice which was held yesterday, Capt Foster of the faculty team said:

"The boys are showing up exceptionally well, much better than I had ever hoped, and are going to make an unusually good team, considering the fact that some of them have hardly touched a ball for several years.

"Mr. Church and Mr. Ferguson, however, having just left college, have in no whit lost any of their skill, and will make an exceptionally strong battery.

"Mr. Crull, who will very likely hold down the first bag, has shown that he is able 'to keep his hold,' and is gathering in everything that comes his way. But in order to keep his cap from falling off at the critical points of the game, we have taken up a collection among ourselves and will buy a couple of yards of blue and white ribbon with which to tie it on.

"Superintendent Denfeld and Principal Smith are also getting out regularly to our practices, and together with Mr. Towne, will make an outfield only equalled by that of the Northern league's pennant winning bunch.

"Mr. Thomas, Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Robbins are showing up exceedingly well, especially in their work with the bats. Mr. Robbins and Mr. Hutchinson will hold down second and third bases, while either Mr. Thomas or myself will fill the position of short stop."

The seniors on their side say that they have a better team this year than ever before, and that they are going to give the faculty such a big "goose egg" that they will so hate the sight of one that they will never again have the heart to put an "0" down against the pupil who cannot score when he comes "up to bat" in the class room.

The probable line-up of the teams will be as follows:

Faculty.	Position.	Seniors.
Ferguson	catcher	Okore
Church	pitcher	Seible
Crull	first base	Shepard
Robbins	second base	Strate
Hutchinson	third base	St. Clair
Thomas or Foster	short stop	Hornibrook
Smith	left field	Crandall or Zimmerman
Towne	center field	Young
Denfeld	right field	Sweeney or Kreiter

* * *

Last Wednesday afternoon the Sophomores and Freshmen played their annual game of baseball at Lakeside. The Sophomores were older and more experienced and easily outplayed the Freshmen, defeating them by a score of 18 to 6. The lineup was as follows:

Freshmen.	Positon.	Sophomores.
Hartman	Catcher	Crawford
McPhee	Pitcher	Maginnis
Cargill	Shortstop	Ammunsen
McDevitt	First base	Cramner
Cole	Second base	Crasswelle
Manson	Right field	McLennan
McMillan	Left field	Milner
Ryan	Center field	Harris

School Notes.

At the last meeting of the junior class, held Monday afternoon, in room 302, it was decided to give the junior-senior reception Monday night, June 20, and to have no school on Tuesday, but on Saturday instead. Preparations for the event are now being made. The Spalding has been engaged, the committees are being appointed and the invitation list is being made out. The junior-senior reception is the greatest social event of the school term, and it promises to be finer than ever this year.

All the proof for the Zenith of '04 is now in, with the exception of the advertisements. Arthur Hanford, editor-in-chief, says that it will be the best, as well as the largest publication of its kind that has ever been issued. In order to have a quiet celebration the Zenith board congregated in the chemical laboratory Thursday afternoon and had the last fudge party of the year.

* * *

The date for the inter-class field day, in which representatives will be chosen to represent the school in a dual meet with Superior, to be held a week later, has been set for June 11, three weeks from today.

* * *

It will be interesting to know that St. Paul Central won the final debate of the Minnesota High School Debating league and now holds the championship of the state.

A large number of the students had no stenography or history lessons on Wednesday as Mrs. Videtto and Mrs. Lectra were both compeled to be absent.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Reports of Increased Trade Received From Some Localities.

New York, May 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Reports of increased trade are received from a few favored points, but the nation as a whole has not improved its commercial position during the past week in so far as current distribution of merchandise or manufactured activities are concerned. Prospects for the future have improved somewhat, however, on account of the progress made in agriculture. Unless the crops suffer an unusual setback hereafter it should be a good year for the farmers and all other industries will feel the stimulus. Lake traffic is seriously interrupted by the strike, but otherwise the labor situation is not alarming.

Leading branches of manufacture are extremely quiet, the recent slight gain in iron and steel having disappeared, and transporting interests are not equalling last year's results, railway earnings thus far available for May showing a decrease of 6.6 per cent.

Although quotations of iron and steel products have yielded little, the industry is not making satisfactory progress and unless consumers place contracts freely without further delay, there will be an accumulation of unsold stocks. It does not appear to be a question of price, as there are no reports of business offered on a lower basis. In a few lines, notably tin plates and tubes, there is no lack of inquiry, but these products are by no means typical of the situation.

Although railway equipment is in need of unusual replacement, owing to the severe winter, there is still much conservatism, and purchases are genrally limited to absolute necessities. Independent mills have made some concessions in prices of plates, and there is a weaker tone in the sheet market, while there is no pressure for structural material as yet. Improvement in that line should appear very soon if work is begun, as planned, on several large buildings, bridges and a terminal warehouse. Minor metals have ruled quiet and soke is weak, despite some reduction in output, but there is a vigirous demand for anthracite coal and the month's production will be very heavy.

Aside from some activity in hemlock sole for export to Great Britain, the leather market has ruled quiet. New England footwear producers report additional contracts for heavy fall goods from Eastern jobbers, but factories are only running about half time on supplementary purchases of summer goods.

The only evidence of improvement in the promary market for cotton goods has been furnished by exporters and the new business was only accomplished by further concessions in prices. Buyers of woolen and worsted men's wear have shown more interest, fairly numerous supplementary orders being placed.

Failures this week number 236 in the United States against 191 last year and 12 in Canada compared with 14 a year ago.

WIDOW MISSED TRAIN,

Met Her First Sweetheart and Was Married.

Wabash, Ind., May 21.—The culmination of a singular romance was reached this week, when Mrs. Florence Howard, widow of William Howard, who was killed at Bluffton last August by an explosion of nitroglycerin, became the wife of Lee D. Palmer, her first sweetheart, from whom she parted after a quarrel in Ohio a number of years since. The couple met by the purest accident three weeks ago when Mrs. Howard went to Ft. Wayne and was the guest of her sister. Mrs. Roscoe Johnson, at whose home Palmer was invited to a party. The strange part of the affair is that Mrs. Howard missed her train and remained over with her sister by accident, and that Mr. Palmer was invited to the sister's house because another young gentleman could not attend. But for these fortitous circumstances they would not again have met and married.

GULF STREAM

Reported Unusually Swift By Coasting Vessels.

New York, May 21.—For the past two weeks vessels north-bound up the Atlantic Coast have been making marvelous time, and skippers of coasting craft have been much puzzled to account for the reason why they have got into port from seven to twenty-four hours ahead of the time they were due.

The master of the schooner John B. Bremiller, which has just reached here from Brunswick, Ga., brings the explanation. He says the gulf stream was running like a mill race.

Another indication of the unusual speed of the gulf stream is the fact that the agents of the regular liners running southward report that in all instances during the last week or so their southward bound ships have arrived at the other end late. The same is true of some of the ships coming this way from Europe.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless: Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food: Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians Addressed to Charles H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. Wm. L. Bosserman, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I am pleased to speak a good word for your Castoria. I think so highly of it that I not only recommend it to others, but have used it in my own family."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. J. McCann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Casteria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. Channing H. Cook, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used your Castoria for several years past in my own family and have always found it thoroughly efficient and never objected to by children, which is a great consideration in view of the fact that most medicines of this character are obnoxious and therefore difficult of administration. As a laxative, I consider it the peer of anything that I ever prescribed."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has reised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

THIRTEEN LOST

A British Steamer Goes Down Off Cape Breton.

The Turret Bay Loaded With Coal For Montreal.

North Sydney, N. S., May 21.—The worst marine disaster in the history of the St. Lawrence river coal trade occurred yesterday off Cape North, the northernmost point of Cape Breton, when the British steamer Turret Bay, laden with coal and bound from Sydney to Montreal, struck on the rocks off St. Paul's island, and sank in deep water, twenty minutes later, causing a loss of thirteen lives. Only nine men from a crew of twenty-two were saved.

The dead:

J. W. Hayden, captain; M. A. McCarra, first officer; G. P. Gray, second officer; W. H. Adams, chief engineer; H. S. Matthews, second engineer; George Johnson, boatswain, together with the steward, name unknown, cook, mess-room boy, two firemen, a seaman and a helper.

According to the government agent at St. Paul's island, the steamer struck near Southwest light, about 8:30 o'clock in the morning. A dense fog prevailed at the time and the sea was running mountains high. Almost immediately the Turret Bay backed off into deep water, but sank within twenty minutes.

The crew attempted to cut the boats clear but while thus engaged the vessel plunged down, bow first, carrying every man aboard with her. Some of the men struggled to the surface and clung to floating pices of wreckage. Fourteen persons were taken off the wreckage by the life saving crew that put out from the island, but five of them died before reaching the island.

The survivors say that they did not know that they were in danger until the vessel struck. The fog was so thick that the shore could not be seen, hearing the fog horn at the light house they mistook it for the whistle of another steamer.

The disaster occurred nineteen miles north of Cape North. There is a lighthouse on the northeast point of St. Paul's island and also on the southwest point and a steam fog whistle is situated near the southwest light. It was this whistle that the crew of the Turret Bay heard.

The Turret Bay was owned by William Peterson, limited, of New Castle-on-Tyne, and under charter to the Dominion Coal company, was carrying coal from Sydney to Montreal. The steamer was built in 1894 at Southerland and was a steel ship of 287 feet and gross tonnage of 2211.

Capt. Hayden, her commander, was a native of Waterford, Ireland.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Expert Has Been Investigating Geological Formations.

Colorado Springs, Colo., May 21.—Professor Waoldemar Lingren, a government geologist, who has been spending several months recently in the Criple Creek district investigating the geological formations, has returned to Washington. He has developed into one of the most enthusiastic experts that the district has known in many a day. He compares the conditions of 1894, when the previous government survey was made, with the present state of things. In 1894 there was no shaft deeper than 400 feet. Today there are at least thirty mines whose shafts are down 1000 feet or more. "Within the radius of a mile and a half," says Profesor Lingren, "there are nearly 300 mines, all producing 'pay dirt.' It is a wonderful and interesting mineral field and undoubtedly countless concealed millions yet lie beneath fissure veins in the old volcano now being explored."

The view taken by this expert geologist after an extended examination of many of the greatest mines in the district, confirms the opinions held by many of the experienced mining men of Cripple Creek, who have given a dozen years of thought and examination to the mineral possibilities of this great gold field. What in 1894 was merely a possibility, owing to the inconsiderable development of that period, has now become a probability and almost a certainty. If the mineral conditions continue as they now are, and there is no reason to assume that there will be any radical change, the ore bodies in the Cripple Creek district will produce in the future a far greater amount of gold than they have ever done in the past. As Professor Lingren puts it, "countless millions are yet to be brought forth." Indeed, the only limitation upon the mineral wealth and output of the great Cripple Creek district seems to be that which will come in the course of time with such great depth that it will be impracticable to continue further development at a profit. And that day will unquestionably be many years hence.

* * *

Donald Glass, of Buffalo, N. Y., national organizer for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, who spent three days in Duluth this week, left last evening for Chicago. Mr. Glass says that conditions in the ranks of the carpenters throughout the country, and in Duluth in particular, are very satisfactory. In Duluth practically all the men are now employed, and indications are that the entire season will be a busy one. Mr. Glass says that it is much the same elsewhere.

"Of the 800 demands made this spring by our unions for better wages and shorter hours, only four or five strikes have resulted, and these are not serious," said the organizer yesterday. He then gave some interesting and not generally known facts about the national organization of carpenters, as follows:

"The carpenters have the second largest labor organization in America. The miners come first, and the carpenters second. Our association has more than 185,000 members in good standing. That the unions have benefited the carpenters is shown by the fact that in 330 cities they have an 8-hour day, and in 550 cities a 9-hour day. These shorter hours mean employment for about 25,000 more carpenters than would be the case with a 10-hour day.

"The Brotherhood is organized to protect the carpenter trade from the evil of low prices and botch work; its aim is to encourage a higher standard of skill and better wages, to re-establish an apprentice system, and to aid and assist the members by mutual protecion and benevolent means. About $20,000 is monthly paid from our general fund in death claims. In general benefits $181,957 has been expended in two years, and $815,460.91 in twenty years, while $950,000 more was spent in that period for sick benefits by the local unions, and $297,318 was donated locals by the general office for strike purposes. This is fully one and three-quarter millions of dollars expended for benevolent and charitable purposes. My raising the wages in hundreds of cities it has placed about $1,500,000 more wage sannually in the pockets of the carpenters in those cities."

* * *

By June 1, all the local unions will have elected their delegates to the convention of the State Federation of Labor, to be held at New Ulm, June 13, 14 and 15. The attendance from Duluth will be smaller this year than last. The carpenters have elected Edward Lowe, J. H. Baker and George M. Davis, and the plumbers have chosen W. E. McEwen and O. C. Strum to represent them at the convention. The carpenters are entitled to five delegates, but decided that they could afford to send only three.

William Templeton, of the St. Paul Typographical union, will probably not be a candidate for the presidency of the association, owing to the fact that he failed to be elected as a delegate to the convention from the St. Paul Trades assembly. He was defeated by C. E. James, who is also a candidate for the presidency.

One feature of the convention this year will be the large number of women delegates in attendance. Two of the first women to be elected to the convention were Miss Brown of the St. Paul garment workers, and Mrs. Whitlock, of Minneapolis.

In Minneapolis, the center of the socialistic movement in the state, all the socialists who were nominated by the assembly as delegates to the convention were defeated.

An investigation is being made by the police department regarding the complaints of about twenty laborers that have been the victims of a man named Gus Johnson, who had engaged them to work at a station called Whitefish, for a lumber company of the same name, collecting a fee of $1 from each man. The men say they have been unable to secure the promised employment.

From the Chapin, S. A friend who had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy on hand gave each of us a dose and we at once felt the effects. I procured a bottle and before using the entire contents we were entirely cured. It is a wonderful remedy and should be found in every household. H. C. Bailey, Editor. MOTHER FOUND

By Iowa Lawyer After Forty Years' Separation.

Zanesville, Ohio, May 21.—After a separation of four decades from her mother, during all of which time he knew absolutely nothing of her whereabouts, Attorney L. S. Draper, of Sioux City, Iowa, arrived here yesterday, meeting his mother, now Mrs. Joseph Prangle, of Railroad street. Draper is also an extensive real estate dealer of the Iowa city and quite wealthy. The strangest feature of the case is that the parents had separated, each thinking the other was dead, and both remarried. The meeting was brought about through a pension agent at Marietta, Ohio.

The Draper family lived at Elida, Allen county, Ohio. The father was a Civil War soldier, and upon his return from the war he left his wife after a quarrel. The The father, with his son and daughter, went to Newton, Iowa, in 1866. The son remained in Iowa, but the father removed to Tennessee, where three years ago he died.

It was while Draper's second wife was prosecuting her claim for a pension that the son began a search for his mother.

THE GOLF SEASON

Play Begins Monday In the Spring Handicap Events.

Handicaps of Different Players, Both Men and Women.

On Monday the spring handicaps of the Northland Golf club for both men and women will begin at the grounds. There is great interest in the club in the result of these tournaments, which are for the silver tankard and silver cup, which are are the men's and women's prizes, respectively. Each of these must be won three times and the tankard is at present held by H. H. Myers, who won it for the first time last fall, while Mrs. T. W. Hoopes holds the cup, having won it once last season. There will be two "ties" for the prizes this season and if the present holders should win in both instances the end of the golfing season would see them retaining possession.

The preliminary round beginning next Monday is for the men, as follows; the names standing opposite one another being of players who will match in the entries:

	Handicap.		Handicap.
Luster	6	Taussig	0
Leach	5	Cutler, Jr.	1
Markell	5	Abbott	2
White, F. N.	6	McLennan	2
Munger	3	Alexander	2
Brown	9	Parsons	2
Pressentin	5	House	2
Dowse	9	Hartley	0

Mrs. E. P. Alexander	0	Mrs. W. J. Olcott	3
Mrs. W. M. Dalrymple	2	Mrs. F. R. Leslie	5
Mrs. W. G. Hegardt	9	Mrs. G. D. Swift	1

All the teams, both of the men and the women, must contest during the week, or the person or persons of each team failing to meet by next Saturday night will be penalized.

The schedule for the golf club's events following the spring handicap is as follows:

Men's spring championship, May 30.
Women's spring championship, May 30.
Bagley championship, medal score, men, July 25.
Bagley championship, medal score, women, July 25.
Wells's mixed foursome trophy, Aug. 1.
Men's fall handicap, Aug. 25.
Women's fall handicap, Aug. 22.
Men's fall championship, Aug. 29.
Womens fall championship, Aug. 29.

The dates given above are the dates on which the events commence and are not to be taken as any indication of when they will be completed.

The rules for the games have been announced as follows by the games committee, which consists of E. P. Towne, L. J. Hopkins and D. R. McLennan:

1. Tournaments open to all resident members of the club.

2. Members wishing to enter any tournament must notify the games committee at least three days before date fixed for tournament.

3. All games in men's championship to be eighteen holes, match play.

4. All games in women's championship to be nine holes, match play, short course.

5. All games in men's handicap to be nine holes, match play, with such handicap as the games committee shall designate.

6. All games in women's handicap to be nine holes, short courses, match play, with such a handicap as the games committee shall designate.

7. All games in Bagley championship (men) to be eighteen holes, medal play.

8. All games in Bagley championship (women) to be nine holes, short course, medal play.

9. All games in Wells' mixed foursome to be match play, nine holes, over short course.

10. All tournaments have been arranged to commence on Monday. Six days will be allowed for each round in tournaments. Any game not played by Saturday night following the Monday designated for the round to be played, the games committee will forfeit the player at fault. If unable to determine which player is at fault, both players will be forfeited out of the tournament.

11. All protests must be in writing, stating points in dispute and filed with the games committee within twenty-four hours after game was played. An appeal may be taken from any ruling of the games committee to the board of directors.

12. All cups must be won three times, playing throughout the entire tournament to own same.

PAPER PLANT BURNED.

Morristown, N. J., May 21.—The Stony Brook plant of the United Box, Board and Paper company, at Whippany, four miles from here, was practically destroyed by fire today. The building and machinery are said to have cost $350,000. The plant had a capacity of fifty tons of finished product daily. The blaze started in the stock room and spread rapidly to the other departments.

FAST RUN BY KENTUCKY

Battleship Breaks the World's Record From Hong Kong.

New York, May 21—The United States battleship Kentucky anchored off Tompkinsville this morning, having made the world's record run for a warship from Hong Kong and Madeira to New York. The total distance steamed was 12,699 miles, from Hong Kong, at an average speed of 12.7 knots. The last run of 2900 miles, from Madeira to New York, was made on an average rate of 13.8 knots. The whole distance was made under natural draughts. The Kentucky has been in commission a little more than four years, and her first run was out to the China station. She left Manila on March 13, docked at Hong Kong on March 15 and sailed for home on March 29.

TO BRING RELIEF

Three Railroads Taking Freight Held Up By Lake Trouble.

Only Taking Limited Amount and of Certain Classes.

Three of the railroads out of Duluth are said to have already entered on a movement to relieve the congestion of freight due to the tieup of the steamboats on the lakes, by accepting fright contracted to be shipped by boat, at lake and rail rates. This is done by the railroads to relieve the boat lines and the shippers as well, from a highly embarrassing position—that of being unable to fulfill their contracts.

But this applies only to a limited amount of freight and to certain classes only, and it is not intended as a general movement to substitute for lake and rail movement and all rail movement at the cheaper rate. And it applies only to millers' products and lumber from the sawmills.

The first shipment of this character went out about three days ago and it was not until today, however, that some of the millers in Duluth heard of the movement. The three roads, which are said to have joined in the relief, are the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha.

It is understood that all the stuff that was accepted under these rates by the three roads mentioned was supplies that had been contracted for prior to May 7, and which is due in Chicago by Monday next, May 23. It is understood that the general sense in regard to the opening of navigation was that it would commence by May 7, and when some of the millers found that the negotiations between the masters and vessel owners did not produce lake transportation by that date, they were in the embarrassing position of facing a considerable loss, if they were compelled to send their products by rail solely, for prices had been based on cheap navigation and to furnish a rail movement at their own expense would entail considerable loss.

Many of them had their stuff landed at the steamer docks and the expense of dumping this freight on the docks and removing it again to the cars, it is understood, is borne by the lake lines.

At any rate, it is certain that the railroads are doing a generous thing both for the lake lines and the flour and lumber men, as they could stand pat and demand all rail rates for starting the material if they were so disposed.

"It is true that some of the railroads out of Duluth have taken this step," said a railway official this morning. "The movement, however, has been merely nominal and not a great amount of freight has been moved in this way. The railroads have stepped into relieve their friends of the vessel lines from a very embarrassing position.

"The railroad men and the lake transportation people have to stand ready to help one another occoasionally, even if they are competitors. No doubt you can readily see the application of this by thinking over the similarity of the situation to that of a newspaper whose plant has burned down. One newspaper whose plant is destroyed is frequently gotten out on the press of a strong competitor until it is able to get its own plant in operation again.

"So it is with us. We are doing this for the reason that there might come a time when we would need the help of the vessels on the lakes and we would be more in a position to get it by having stood by the lake lines than if we refused to do so.

"It is frequently the case that one railroad helps out another in the case of wrecks, washouts or burned bridges. In such emergencies one line will tender its tracks to the handicapped competitor and often gives that competitor the right of way at the sacrifice of its own trains and their schedules.

"There is not a great amount of freight being moved under these conditions, the movement being directed to relieve the people who have contracted to move freight and are absolutely unable to do so in the manner described in the contracts."

LONGSHOREMEN TIE UP FREIGHT

One Thousand Go on Sympathetic Strike In New York.

New York, May 21.—About 1000 longshoremen, employed in the marine district of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, on the company's eight piers on the East river, quit work in a body today. The strike is a sympathetic one, originating from the trouble at the Fall River line pier on the north river.

The docks used by the steamers of the Long Island Sound lines are piled high with freight and although the passenger steamers and some of the freighters thus far have succeeded in keeping close to their regular time, the tie-up of freight is practically complete. Teamsters refuse to move it after it has been handled by the Italians, who have filled the places of the striking freight handlers. The strikers insist they will not return to work until the non-union men are discharged and threaten to extend the strike to Long Island sound ports.

TO ATTACK RACE TRACKS.

New York, May 21.—A leading firm of this city is stated to have accepted a retainer to direct an attack of great proportion upon the race tracks. All the courses in existence of or near New York will be subjected to the most vigorous campaign in the history of racing. The war will, it is understood, be a retaliatory measure growing out of the suppression of pool rooms. It is even intimated that plans are being formulated for legislation which would make racing in this state impossible.

EPIDEMIC OF SPOTTED FEVER

Ninety-Four Fatal Cases In New York In One Week.

New York, May 21.—In the past fortnight there have been 150 deaths in New York from spotted fever, or cerebro spinal meningitis. That the epidemic is increasing is shown by the fact that the week just passed had 94 cases. Stringet measures are now being taken by the health department to stop the spread of the contagion, which has grown steadily since March 1. Just how the disease is transmitted is not fully understood by the doctors, nor is there any known remedy, the efforts of the physicians being directed almost entirely to alleviating the terrible agony of the sufferer. The last great epidemic of the disease in New York occurred in 1873, when it caused great mortality.

THE GILLESPIE CASE.

Barbour's Servant Girl Tells of the Shooting.

Rising Sun, Ind., May 21.—In the trial of James Gillespie, Mrs. Belle Seward and Mr. and Mrs. Barbour for the murder of Elizabeth Gillespie last December, the defense continued its testimony today.

Fannie Determer, formerly employed by the Barbours, testified that she was in Barbour's kitchen at the time of the shooting and did not know of it until Mrs. Barbour told her about it a half hour afterwards. She denied that she had testified to the grand jury that Mrs. Barbour gave her "a peculiar look" when telling about the shooting. She had not heard Mrs. Barbour say to her husband, "You do not know anything of this, do you?"

PRESS PARLIAMENT OVER.

A Remarkable International Gathering Comes to a Close.

World's Fair Grounds, St. Louis, May 21.—The most important event of the day at the exposition was the closing session of the press parliament. The members of the parliament were somowhat late in assembling, the attractions of the fair being the trouble with many of them who made their way to the administration hall where the sessions are held, by way of the buildings which held exhibits. The time taken up in sight-seeing by many members of the parliament materially delayed the opening address of the day, which was that of M. C. Bodin of the Dublin Journal. Other addresses on the program for the morning were those of Gustaf Gulberg, of Stockholm, Sweden; Kanesakuro Miyamatsu, Tokio, Japan; S. Szkely, Budapest; Fritz Rottier, Brussels; Crosby S. Noyes, Washington, D. C., and Martin Von Raalte, or The Hague.

Several receptions were tendered members of the parliament at different hours of the day.

DID NOT DO ENOUGH.

Miss Katherine Costello Loses Her Claim.

Officials of the general land office are of the opinion that in building a log shanty, measuring 11x13 feet, chopping out a clearing one-eighth of an acre in extent, and planting six hills of potatoes, one-quarter of a pound of beans and a few musk melon seeds, one does not live up to the requirements of the homestead laws. Especially is this true, they say, when the person only makes an occasional visit of one or two days' duration to the claim in question. Because of all this Miss Katherine S. Costello, a school teacher, whose home is at Graceville, Minn., loses title to her claim in the Big Fork country.

She made entry on the land, in section 7, township 61-25, in September, 1901. Special Agent Colter investigated the case and found that the requirements of the law had not been lived up to. The local officials recommended that the entry be cancelled, and, according to a communication received at the local land office today, the general office at Washington has affirmed the decision.

Discharged From Bankruptcy.

The application of Charles F. Leland, president of the defunct Commercial Banking company, bankrupt, for final discharge in bankruptcy, was granted this morning by Judge Page Morris. No objections whatever were filed to the application, and the discharge was granted immediately. The rumor had been spread that some one would appear to enter objections, but there was nothing in it.

POPULIST LEADERS ARE FOR HEARST.

Louisville, May 21.—The Times says: J. A. Parker, chairman of the national executive committee of the Populist party, said today in an interview that Hearst would receive the support of the Populists in Kentucky and elsewhere. "I speak for the national leaders of my party when I say that we are for him," said Mr. Parker. "His views and principles agree with ours. He advocates certain principles for which we have been fighting for years. If the Democrats nominate him the Populist party will put out no ticket."

Mr. Parker said he was endeavoring to have the Populists' convention date which comes before the Democratic convention, postponed in order that the Populists might know whether Hearst or a similarly suitable candidate was named by the Democrats. If the Democrats did not nominate Hearst, he said, the Populists will meet and name a ticket.

The Sluggers Slug.

The Empire "Sluggers" defeated the East Enders this morning by a score of 24 to 9. The feature of the game was the pitching of Kompinsky, who struck out 16 men. The line-up was as follows:

BARRETT ON THE STAND.

Washington, May 21.—Harrison J. Barrett, the junior defendant in the Tyner-Barrett conspiracy case was on the stand today, and Maj. Conrad, special counsel for the government, pursued his cross-examination. The examination extended over the broad field of testimony offered by the prosecution. Court was adjourned at noon until 10 a. m. Monday.

WESTERN UNION SHUT OUT.

Chicago, May 21.—President Fitzgerald of the Hawthorne Racing association today notified the Western Union Telegraph company that the association had decided not to allow the company to operate any wires from the track. President Fitzgerald in his notice to the company gave no reason for the action taken.

LUTHERAN CHURCH

Conference Debates The Removal of Gustavus Adolphus College.

Debate Was Warm and Decision Was Against Removal.

St. Paul, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the Evangelical Lutheran conference Thursday evening, the Gustavus Adolphus college Oratorio chorus, assisted by John Dahl, Minneapolis, tenor; Mr. Holmquist, of Chicago, bass, and Miss Sundstrom, of Lindsborg, Kan., soprano, rendered Handel's "Messiah." The concert was given in the Swedish Lutheran church, which has a seating capacity of 1000, but was still altogether too small, so that hundreds had to be turned away without being able to gain admission. It is not too much to say that the rendition was simply superb.

The morning session was occupied yesterday in discussing our synod's relation to the general council of the Evangelical Luthera church, North America, of which our synod has been a member since 1888. A petition had been received from the Pacific mission district of this conference asking that our synod sever its connection with the general council.

This matter was referred to the synod which convenes at Lindsborg, Kan., June 2, this year, and the delegation to the synod was instructed to use all allowable means to secure the adoption of the resolution presented by the Pacific district.

The afternoon session was the most interesting because that session was devoted to discussing the great question whether the conference institution of education, the Gustavus Adolphus college, should be removed from St. Peter where it is now located to Minneapolis, Minn. The Gustavus Adolphus college has been located in St. Peter since 1875 and has grown to be one of the most important educational institutions of the state, with an enrollment of 350 students. About two years ago an agitation was started in the Twin Cities to have the school removed from St. Peter and located in the Twin Cities. In the fall of 1902 an extra session of the conference was held in New London, Minn., for discussing this very question of removal, and it resolved that if the citizens of the Twin Cities would donate to the conference free ground for the buildings and $250,000 in cash the school would be removed to the Twin Cities. A committee was oppointed to secure these donations. This committee reported to the last meeting of the conference in Minneapolis a year ago. The condition had not been fulfilled and the committee asked for an extension of time until the next annual meeting of the conference. During this time the agitation for removal has been going on and created an intense excitement among the members of the conference.

At the beginning of this convention yesterday afternoon was set aside for discussing this important question and has been looked forward to with great interest.

The forces on both sides had been well organized and were ready for a pitched battle. Before the session was opened the church down stairs and the gallery was packed so that standing room was at a premium.

The committee reported that forty acres of land situated on Lake avenue and Thirty-fourth street in Minneapolis, had been secured and donated to the conference. Besides, $110,000 had been raised for the erection of the necessary building. The committee from the Twin Cities proposed that the conference remove the college department of Gustavus Adolphus college from St. Peter and locate it on the site selected by the committee in Minneapolis and that a business college and music conservatory be established in connection with the same, and that the business college and musical conservatory now at St. Peter be allowed to remain at this place, and that such measures be taken as would insure the realization of these resolutions.

These resolutions gave rise to a very animated discussion, which consumed the greater part of the afternoon. Rev. C. J. Petri and Attorney E. Lind, of Minneapolis, made strong pleas in favor of the resolutions. Attorney P. H. Stohberg, of Harris, Minn., and Mr. T. N. Oherstrom, of Port Wing, Wis., made just as strong pleas against the same. The vote was taken this morning and the conference decided against removal from St. Peter.

DOCK IN BAD SHAPE.

The dock at the foot of Fifth avenue west, used extensively for freight and passenger purposes, is in a dangerous condition, and people having occasion to use it are registering complaints against the structure. The timbers and lumber of which the affair is built have been in their places so long as to become rotten and unsightly. The planks are full of holes and rotten. There are always about twenty-five wagons strung along the dock, making walking on it, especially in the night time, all the more dangerous.

One of the worst features about the dock is that it is not properly lighted at night. The nearest street lamp is one-half block distant, and affords almost no light at all at the dock. It would be very easy for a person to walk of the dock in the dark without knowing what he was about. This did really happen on two or three occasions last summer. If nothing else can be done a light should be placed on the dock at least, say the complainers. Owing to its central location the dock is used quite extensively. It is daily becoming more dangerous.

Knights of Pythias Leave.

About 200 members of the Knights of Pythias and their friends went away this morning on a special train over the Great Northern, which left the station at 10:45 a. m. They expected to arrive in Minneapolis in time for the afternoon session of the Pythian convention there, which is expected to initiate 1,000 new members today and tomorrow.

The local contingent was headed by a committee including Charles T. Johnson, G. H. Nichols, L. H. Whipple, W. J. Ryder, W. L. Seaton, J. V. Dumphy, J. W. Parker, S. I. Pierce, and A. Freimuth.

Judge Cant Sentences Frank White to Thirty Years Imprisonment.

Says Jury Accorded Him All Mercy He Should Have.

Frank White, who was indicted for murder in the first degree, and who was found guilty of murder in the third degree, was sentenced by Judge Cant shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon to the state penitentiary at Stillwater for the period of thirty years, at hard labor.

This is the maximum punishment for murder in the third degree.

White shot and fatally wounded Jerome Manaige, bartender at the Northland saloon, April 26 last. Before sentence was passed White's attorney, W. E. Green, made a plea for leniency on the part of the court.

White is now 35 years of age, and will be over 60 years old if he lives out the period of his sentence and is released.

Judge Cant said: "This offense is entirely different from any of the other crimes for which sentence is passed this afternoon.

"Manaige is dead. Your act, entirely uncalled for, has deprived him of life. Whatever ambitions he may have had, whatever the hopes of those who knew him, they are crushed.

"The verdict was not unsatisfactory. You had a fair trial. From the fact that you took a human life, the jury extended to you all the clemency that was due."

White was sworn and questioned by the court as to the date of his birth, his past life and employment, when sentence was passed.

William Wahl, aged 23 years, who was indicted for receiving stolen property and who pleaded guilty to the charge after a jury had been drawn to try him, was sentenced to the state reformatory at St. Cloud. Wahl was charged with taking from Patrick Egan the $10 bill that the latter stole from Bert Bailey in a Bowery saloon.

John Moran, aged 31 years, who was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree, was sentenced to the state penitentiary on the reformatory plan.

Frank P. Sherwood, aged 41 years, who was indicted for the same offense, was given a similar sentence, to the penitentiary on the reformatory plan.

Patrick Egan, aged 30 years, who was convicted of grand larceny in the second degree, was sentenced to the state penitentiary on the reformatory plan. Egan was charged with taking a $10 bill from Bert Bailey in a Bowery saloon.

Joseph Boreck, age 22 years, who was convicted of grand larceny in the first degree, was sentenced to the state reformatory at St. Cloud. Boreck is charged with stealing $300 from Felix Matel at the Red Star hotel, in this city, where they had roomed together. When arrested in Chicago he had spent all but 75 cents.

Alfred A. Scrase, aged 40 years, who was indicted for and convicted of forgery in the second degree, was sentenced to the state penitentiary at hard labor for the period of two years. Scrase was charged with passing a bogus check for $30 on Joseph Kenney, forged with the signature of John McAlpine.

Scrase' attorney, before sentence was passed, made a motion for a new trial on the ground the evidence in the case was not sufficient to warrant conviction, and on the ground of error by the court in overruling objections interposed by counsel and by him excepted.

George Edwards, aged 32 years, who was indicted for grand larceny in the first degree, who pleaded guilty to the charge of grand larceny in the second degree, was sentenced to the state penitentiary on the reformatory plan.

Edwards was arrested while trying to pawn clothing stolen from Dr. John Robinson.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

Discuss Several Amendments To Their Constitution.

St. Louis, May 21.—After a brief business session and a discussion of the report of the household economical committee, submitted by the chairman, Mrs. Arthur C. Neville of Wisconsin, in the auditorium of the Odeon in St. Louis today, the seventh biennial convention of the General Federation of Womens clubs adjourned to the World's Fair grounds where the session was held in the German government pavilion.

Several amendments to the constitution were adopted at the business sesion, the most important of which was an addition to the section regarding qualification for membership in the general federation. The section previously provided that no secret society is eligible, and Mrs. W. W. Boyd, of Misouri, offered an amendment providing that any club or society which tolerates either by practice or teaching, violation of the national or state laws is barred from membership

KNOWS NOT OF IT.

In ignorance of the fact that his brother-in-law lies dead at Racine, Wis., Ur. R. Edwards of that city is in Duluth today, probably transacting the business which brought him here.

The local police received a telegram at noon today asking them to locate Mr. Edwards and request him to go home at once on account of the sudden death of his brother-in-law. A search was made through all the hotels in the city but he was not registered at any of them under his own name, and the police have no description of him on which to work.

The funeral of his brother-in-law, whose name is John Roberts, will be held in Racine tomorrow afternoon, and unless Mr. Edwards leaves Duluth tonight he will not be able to reach home in time to attend.

Fidelity Lodge Banquet.

Fidelity Lodge, No. 105, A. O. U. W., will hold a banquet next Thursday at its regular meeting at Kalamazoo hall. The committee on arrangements includes C. G. Firoved, chairman; J. A. Schumacher, J. A. Grochowski, E. G. Wahlgren and W. J. Stephens. The order is making ready for the coming of M. W. Taylor, deputy grand master workman, who will be here June 1 from Minneapolis, and conduct four months work for new membership.

The lodge has now over 500 members and expects to double this by fall. It is said there are 200 names on a list of prospective members, and this list will start the deputy grand master in his work.

METHODIST UNION PROPOSED.

Washington, May 21.—The brief session of the general conference of the Methodist Protestant churches today developed but one feature. Rev. Dr. W. F. Little, of Baltimore, submitted a proposition for a union between the Methodist Protestant and the Methodist Episcopal churches. The Methodist Episcopal general conference at Los Angeles recently referred this proposition to a committee. The same disposition of the matter was made today by the Methodist Protestant conference.

FOREST FIRE NEAR VIRGINIA

Threatens Lumber of Virginia Company—Fire Department Working.

Word was received at the local Great Northern city ticket office that a forest fire was raging in the close vicinity of Virginia. The report states that the fire is burning fiercely just across the track from the yard of the Virginia Lumber company, which contains several million feet of lumber. The volunteer fire department of Virginia has been valiantly battling with the flames all day, and it is hoped that the lumber can be saved. Burning brands were landing about the depot at the time the message was sent. A high wind is blowing.

The forest fires in Northern Wisconsin appeared to have quieted down somewhat today. No serious damage from them have thus far been reported. Quite a large fire is reported between Lester Park and Two Harbors, about midway between the two places.

RUSSIA WOULD NOT PAY PRICE FOR DEUTSCHLAND.

Berlin, May 21.—The Hamburg correspondent of the Boersen Courier telegraphs that the Hamburg-American officials admit that Russia tried to buy the steamer Deutschland, but the price demanded was too high, the sum mentioned being $3,000,000. The price of the steamers sold to Russia are said to be as follows: Augusta Victoria, about $1,500,000; Columbia and Fuerst Bismarck, each $1,000,000; Belgia, $750,000. It is believed that the Hamburg-American vessels will be fitted out as auxiliary cruisers.

STRENGTH SHOWN

Wheat Strong Again and Advanced Over One Cent.

Flax Trading Very Dull and the Market Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, May 21.—The wheat market was strong again today and the July option advanced better than a cent in all markets. The cash wheat in Northwestern markets was stronger than Chicago, which early in the week was furnishing all of the bullish incentive, because of the shortage of the contract stock there. Today Duluth advanced 1⅛c for May, and Minneapolis 1⅛c, as compared with ⅜c in Chicago. Minneapolis reports mills there as buying a large amount of cash wheat in the past few days. No wheat was sold at Duluth today to go all rail, the advance evidently being so much as to put the market out of line.

The Liverpool market was closed as it will also be on Monday and Tuesday. Paris closed ¼c lower.

Broomhall estimates that world's shipments Monday will be 8,800,000 bus., a decrease of more than 2,000,000 bus., for the corresponding week a year ago. The final official estimate of the wheat crop of the United provinces of Algiers and Oudh in India places it at 95,320,000 bus., compared with 111,744,000 last year. These provinces raise about one-third of India's total wheat crop.

The July option in Duluth advanced 1¼c, in Minneapolis 1½c, in Chicago 1-1⅛c and in New York ⅞c. In Duluth September was up ⅛c and in Minneapolis ⅜-⅝c.

Car receipts at Duluth were 5, against 14 a year ago and at Minneapolis 50, against 138 a year ago, making a total for the Northwest of 55 against 152 a year ago. Chicago received 7, against 36 last year. Winnipeg receipts were 64 cars against 119 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 145,813 bus., last year 357,388 bus. Shipments 412,618 bus., last year 522,160 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 191,800 bus.

In the Chicago market July corn closed a shade lower. July oats closed ¼c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 331,800 bus., last year 524,120 bus. Shipments 443,957 bus last year 371,800 bus. Clearances were 46,618 bus.

In the Duluth market there was active trading. The July option opened unchanged at 94c and advanced steadily to 96¾c at 11:15. It reacted to 94¾c at 11:35, and then sold up again to 95¾c. The close was at 95¼c, an advance from yesterday of 1¼c. May made the same advance, closing at 97½c. The September option closed ⅞c higher at 82½c.

Cash offerings were light and there was a wide range in the basis of prices.

Flax was very dull. The July option closed ¼c higher at $1.08¾. The May and September options also closed ¼c higher and October was ¼c higher.

Oats had a slump of 1½c.

The following were the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat in store, No. 1 hard, 93c; No. 1 northern, 97½c; No. 2 northern, 95c. To arrive, No. 1 hard, 98¾c; No. 1 northern, 97¼c; No. 2 northern, 95¾c. On track, No. 1 northern, 95⅝@96⅛c; No. 2 northern, 93@96c. Macaroni, No. 1, 91c; No. 2, 89c; May, 97¼c; July, 95½c; Sept. 82¼c. Flax in store, $1.07½; to arrive, $1.07¼; May, $1.07; July, $1.06½; Sept. $1.08; Oct. $1.06½. Oats on track: 41½c; to arrive, 41½; rye to arrive, 69c; on track, 69.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 5; last year, 14, oats, 1; barley, 1; flax, 24; last year, 0.

Receipts: Wheat, 6,655; flax, 2,582.

Shipments: Wheat, 56,245; oats, 8,431; barley, 2,046.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Uncertainty of May Delivery Makes Wheat Steady.

Chicago, May 21.—The uncertainty surrounding the May delivery today offset the influence of excellent weather conditions and caused a fairly steady tone in the wheat market. Trading was almost entirely of a scalping character. May opened unchanged at 99c and eased off to 98¾c. July opened a shade to ⅛@¼c lower at 86⅝c to 86¾c. After selling up to 87c, the price reacted to 86⅜c, but rallied again to 87c. Duluth, Minneapolis and Chicago reported receipts of 92 cars, against 91 cars last week and 188 cars a year ago.

Reports of rain throughout the Red River valley and confirmation of heavy cash sales in the Northwest imparted decided strength to the situation during the latter part of the day. The market closed strong with prices practically at the high point. July being up 1⅝@1¾c, at 87⅞c, after touching 88c. May closed with a gain of ¾c, at 99⅝c.

Ideal weather brought out moderate selling by commission houses causing an easier tone in corn. July opened ⅛@¼c to ⅜c lower at 48c to 48⅛@¼c. After touching 48¼c, the price settled back to 48@⅛c. Local receipts were 117 cars, with 7 of contract grade.

A little firmer feeling was manifested later in the day in sympathy with wheat, but prices showed little change. After advancing to 48⅝@⅝c, July closed at 48¼@⅜c, a shade below yesterday's final figures.

Oats were influenced by fine weather and by the easier tone of corn. There was some realizing by small holders, offerings being taken by shorts. July opened ⅛c to ⅛@¼c lower at 38¼@⅜c to 38⅜c and held within the opening range. Local receipts were 122 cars.

Provisions were a trifle easier on moderate selling of pork by packers. A weak hog market also had a depressing influence. July pork opened 2½c to 7½c lower at $10.95 to $11.00, and sold off to $10.92½. Lard was down 2½c to 5c at $6.27½ to $6.30. Ribs were off 2½c at $6.35.

Close: Wheat—May, 99⅝c; July, 87¼c; old, 89@⅛c; September, 81@1¼c; old, 82½c. Corn—May, 48c; July, 48⅜@⅜c; September, 47½c; December, 42⅝c. May, (1905), 42⅛c. Oats—May, 41½c; July, 38¼c; September, 30½@⅝c. Pork—May, $10.95; September, $11.20. Lard—May, $6.17½; July, $6.27½@6.30; September, $6.45@6.47½. Ribs—May, $6.25; July, $6.35@6.37½; September, $6.52½. Rye—May, 77c; July, 68c; September, 60c; August, 58c. Timothy—May, $3.05; September, $3.20. Clover—May, $10.75. Barley —Cash, 33@57c. Flax—Cash, northwestern $1.09; southwestern, $1.06; May, $1.02; July, $1.02½; September, $1.06. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—There is an absence of selling pressure from long wheat and the bear interest seems thoroughly cowed. The whole situation is an unusual one. There is a strong bullish sentiment on the small stocks of contract wheat. The May wheat is practically cornered with, we think, a considerable long interest tailing on. Prices are easy out of line for export and the movement is increasing in the Southwest. The conditiona which govern the market are almost wholly speculat ve. The visible on Monday is expected to show about the same decrease as last year. Conditions are such that a nervous and good scalping market for the immediate future is likely, but we think it should be kept in the prices are high and the movement of the new crop not far off.

Corn—While there is a fair shipping demand in the absence of lake transportation, yet there is nothing in the local condition in this respect to move prices very much. Local speculative feeling is rather bearish on the price and outlook for a large acreage going in under favorable conditions are on the view that the planting done the movement from first hands will be larger. On the other hand receipts are small and prices at interior points are much better than Chicago. The speculative buying is small and featureless. So far it has no tendency.

Oats—The May oats seem to be offered freely and shorts are being given every opportunity to cover. Speculative sentiment rather bearish on the outlook for a big crop. Cash oats are in fairly good demand.

Provisions—It is the same dull market with a dragging tendency. There is nothing like general liquidation but is enough scattered selling by tired holders and enough hedging by packers to keep the price dragging. Provisions are largely owned by scattered outside speculators. Outlook is not a strong one.

* * *

Chicago Record Herald: At one time yesterday wheat prices were ½c to 2½c over Thursday. The speculator was more convinced than ever that it was the day to try for a reaction. The conditions operational at the end of the three-day rally had not been realized, but there had been a steady and astonishing advance for five days and the people who had made money on the bulge and those who had lost money were at last convinced it was the longest matter of guessing and that it behooved them to sell long wheat and put out short for a smash. Liverpool cabled that it was considerably impressed by the falling off in Argentine shipments.

Influential selling of corn was apparent on the strong markets that developed promptly after the opening of the session. The miscellaneous shorts were nervous and soon bid prices to a high point which was sufficiently tempting to induce strong people, holders as well as large short sellers, to meet the demands. Although reactions from the top prices were important the final close prices were not from those of the previous day. The trade temper is generally bearish. The best impression is that the big holding in the market, the one with the most corn movement for July, is striving to quiet any interest in the market seeking to get the price on a legitimate shipping basis and to coax the short seller. Not a day passes now, however, that a good deal of corn is not sold and shipped, considering the almost otal impossibility of getting transportation. Yesterday's sales were at least 100,000 bus.

May oats showed a net loss of ¾c at the close.

* * *

B. E. Baker's Chicago Grain Letter: Wheat—Wheat was strong and the steady advance proved something of a puzzle to the local talent in view of the very light trade, and absence of anything particularly new in the line of bullish advices. The crowd are cautious on the short side, and a small amount of buying promises abnormal effect. The Northwest was a buyer, and Minneapolis mesages were replete with gossip regarding heavy transactions in their wheat yesterday between the elevator companies and the millers. The latter were generally accredited with taking over fully 1,000,000 bus. The stocks there decreased for the week a little over 1,000,000 bus, and the futures were strony today. The May and July options here are uncertain ones in which to trade, and promise to be nervous, and in view of the local character of the trade will probably fluctuate with the daily cash advices. The old September at the discount we consider the better purchase on the breaks. The weather map was favorable in every respect.

Corn—The local talent were bearish on corn. The tone was dull, but prices held fairly steady on a light trade. The wheat strength was a factor in maintaining the level, as the news is becoming increasingly bearish. The movement next week is certain to be heavy, and private estimates of receipts for Monday are for 180 cars. The board's estimate is for 119 cars. The cash market had an over-supply of corn this morning, and prices were 1c to 1¼c a bushel of which is corn, all of which are unable to unload because of the lake strike.

Oats—Oats were a quiet, dull market with the May option again the weakest. Trade was very light, the market being neglected by operators. The sample oats were 1c a bushel lower. Sixty-nine thousand bushels of standard were shipped from store yesterday. Demand is slack. The receipts and shipments for the week about offset each other. Illinois advices on the oat crop are flattering. Estimates 105 cars.

W. H. Laidley & Co.: Wheat—The receipts and Omaha disturbed the market. Temperatures are moderately warm.

ADVANCE IN STOCKS

Market Opened Steady and Advanced Sharply On Covering.

Closing Was At the Best Prices of the Day.

New York, May 21.—The merely nominal market at the opening offered no feature of interest in stocks today. None of the leading stocks varied more than a ¼. The changes were all gains. Twin City Rapid Transit rose a point and Realty preferred ¾.

Reactions of ⅛ to a ¼ comprised the principal movements in the usual speculative features. Strength, however, developed in some stocks of less general importance. Adams Express advanced 2, Realty preferred 1¼ and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo, People's Gas and Locomotive, common and preferred 1.

The traders bid up prices in intimations that the bank statement would offer a pleasant surprise. Buying dwindled after the publication of the statement and prices drifted off again. The rise lifted Pennsylvania, Erie, Louisville & Nashville, St. Paul, Chesapeake & Ohio, Western Union, Gloss-Sheffield Steel and Hide & Leather preferred about a point, Consolidated Gas 1⅝ and United States Steel preferred, Atchison and Reading 1½. Prices advanced again to the best and the closing was strong.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Ryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: There is a better feeling in Wall street. It is not shared in by the bears. The market is strong and shows a substantial improvement. It may be only a natural reaction after the long dragging tendency, but the feeling among brokers is rather more optimistic. No doubt a good deal of the buying is in the way of covering shorts. The remaining short interest is no doubt large. The bank statement was not so bad as had been expected, as the reserves were protected by a large shrinkage in loans and deposits. There is some hopefulness expressed that the exports of gold are at an end.

* * *

Goldsmith, Wolf & Co. to B. E. Baker: Fisk was reported to be selling Pennsylvania again. He was one of the chief sellers at high prices recently. The feeling on the floor on this stock is bearish, and Philadelphia advices continue to be against any advance in it. The movement in Erie is a drive at floor shorts. We do not believe it will be wise to buy it, however, except on reactions.

* * *

Waldorf to B. E. Baker: The deadlock in the stock market is unbroken. Ninety per cent of the current dealings are for the account of local speculators and the views expressed tonight indicate that this unsatisfactory state of affairs will continue for some time. Brokers who represent the larger commission houses say the public disinclination to buy stocks is just about equalled by its indisposition to sell them. But many of these observers feel that in the event of favorable developments bearing on the trade or financial situations there would be enough liquidation to cause decided weakness in the market. They find it hard to avoid the conclusion that apprehension of such developments is reponsible for the apathy of powerful interests which, though holding large lines of stocks, persistently refuse to encourage the efforts of bull operators. As a matter of fact, they never try to infuse general activity in the market by bidding up some stock or group of stocks while the short interest i most of the active stocks is conceded to be considerable. In Pennsylvania, United States Steel preferred, Atchison, Missouri Pacific and Union Pacific there is a short interest which has been outstanding several months and as it has survived in this interval a number of rallies of five to ten points it is evidently for the account of men who are making a long campaign. But for the great dullness the banks statement which is expected to show a further material reduction in surplus reserves, it would be awaited with unusual interest.

* * *

Evans to Paine, Webber & Co.: I am inclined to modify my bearish views and I think that a rally may occur at any time. Gold exports seem to be nearing an end and we have probably seen the last of the bank statements, although it is hard to judge a market as stagnant as this. I am inclined to favor short covering and going long for a turn.

* * *

Walker Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: London holiday, but our market opened steady and later developed strength. Shorts began to cover and the market advanced quite sharply. The advance continued until the close, which was at the best prices of the day. The bank statement was about as expected. We look for a better market next week and expect to see heavy covering by shorts. Sentiment much better.

* * *

Dick Brothers to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market has been very strong today, the whole list rallying sharply and on the late trading showing very fair activity. The bank statement proved much more favorable than expected. The market showed its greatest strength after this appeared and the best prices were made at the close. Much of the buying was short covering and in the last hour this was quite urgent, especially in the leading stocks. The close promises higher prices next week.

* * *

J. S. Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The opening was featureless, although the trading element was inclined to favor the bull side for the moment, giving the market a fair amount of strength. The trading was confined to Pacifics and Steel issues, where the short account was the most extended. The bank statement was considered a very favorable one. The market continued active and strong up to the close. Reading advanced on expectation that the April and May earnings will make an excellent showing.

* * *

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: There are developments pending the nature of which I am not at liberty to state, which, if they are consummated, will create sentiment favorable to the steel stocks, and probably result in a 5-point rally for United States preferred. The general market looks like it would temporarily do better, but for the moment I don't see much in it on either side. There will be ample opportunity to make good profits a little later on. For the immediate future, stocks look more like a purchase than a sale, but for the long pull I continue bearish.

* * *

W. H. Laidley & Co.: There is practically no change in regard to the amount of trading done in stocks today, although the short covering movement which started yesterday continued and forced prices still higher. The bank statement was poor, but about as expected. There was some activity in Realty preferred again, and it looks as if the stock would be forced into the seventies. We continue to feel there is very little encouragement to holders, and that sales on the bulges will show good profits. Some specialties will doubtless work somewhat higher.

* * *

Randolph to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market opened dull, but strong and showed the same characteristics that it has for some time past. This is a total disregard for bad news and a tendency to harden. About 11 o'clock the market began to become somewhat active and the shorts were nervous at the lack of offers. Prices began to move up easily. When the bank statement appeared it proved to be a much more favorable statement than had been expected. After it came out, the market grew more active and advances became general and rapid throughout. Short covering was undoubtedly responsible for most of the buying, but it was helped along by some purchases for long account. The lack of offerings was quite remarkable and the close was strong at top figures.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co: The market has been more snap today than for three weeks past. There has been some very good buying all through the list. The inability of the bears to start a selling movement is causing a good many people to turn to the long side. We should not be surprised to see the rally go further the first of the week. Amalgamated Copper continues to show good buying.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, May 21.—The cotton market opened easy at unchanged prices to a decline of 8 points and for a few moments was inclined to weakness on the opening figures, then broke violently under continued bear pressure and active liquidation with July which opened at 12.75, selling down to 12.54, a net loss of 25 points. Below 12.70 for the summer months there seemed to be a very good demand with a leading Wall street bear interest reported to be covering and the market towards the end of the hour showed a somewhat steadier tone with July around 12.68. The late months meeting with less pressure ruled relatively steady in spite of excellent weather reports. There were no cables from Liverpool where the market will be closed until Tuesday owing to the Whitsuntide holidays. Trading here was active on the break and the market showed great nervousness and excitement, it being reported that the continued decline had undermined the holdings of a leading long interest, both here and in New Orleans.

Cotton futures, closed firm. May, 12.65; June, 12.71; July, 12.33; August, 12.40; September, 11.26; October, 10.87; November, 10.78; December, 10.78; January, 10.83. Spot closed dull; middling uplands, 13.15; do. gulf, 13.40. Sales, none.

BANK STATEMENT.

New York, May 21.—The statement of averages of the clearing house banks of this city for the week shows: Loans, $1,056,553,500, decrease, $22,375,100; deposits, $36,480,400; increase, $476,700; legal tenders, $78,143,600, increase, $1,046,400; specie, $230,002,800, decrease, $8,131,700; reserves, $288,545,300, decrease, $7,085,300; reserve repuired, $275,141,525, decrease, $7,262,325; surplus, $13,004,275, increase, $177,025. U. S. deposits, $19,714,025, decreasc, $1,340,625.

For the first time in many weeks the bank statement issued today shows a contraction in loans. The shrinkage is very large—in excess of $23,000,000— and the opinion of experts, reflects the liquidation of numerous loans contracted during the last two months. The deposit account also shows a heavy decrease.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

District Rally at West Duluth Next Friday.

A district rally of all the Christian Endeavor societies of West Duluth will be held next Friday, at the Plymouth Congregational church, at Fifty-fourth avenue west. Rev. C. F. Davis, pastor of the Lester Park M. E. church, will speak to the young people on "The Social Side of Christianity." Rev. Davis is a most interesting speaker and all will enjoy hearing him speak on a subject of so much interest, especially to young people. During the evening members of the Christian Endeavor union will discuss the different phasis of Christian Endeavor work. These rallies are most beneficial to the societies, and it is hoped that all the members of the West Duluth societies will not allow this opportunity to pass.

The Christian Endeavor society of Pilgrim Congregational church is to hold its monthly business meeting next Friday. Written reports will be read and plans made for the summer season's work. The place of meeting will be set later on.

Masters and Pilots Hoeing Their Gardens, Says Howell.

Chicago Trade to Georgian Bay Has Sufficient Boats.

Cleveland, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The masters and pilots are all at home hoeing in their own gardens," said District Captain Howell today, when asked if any change had taken place in the attitude of his union.

According to Mr. Howell the masters and pilots are making no move whatever for a settlement. He contends that the proposition to pay last season's rate of wages is unfair, because certain

Corner lot, 160x140 feet in central location, carrying one double and two single houses, rented at present for $576.00 per annum. After allowing ample deductions for fixed charges, this parcel will easily net you 10 per cent on purchase price of $5,000. You can make your own terms, with 5½ per cent interest on deferred payments. This ought to be a little better than putting your money in a savings bank at 2½ or 3 per cent. BUILDING LOANS IN GOOD DEMAND

Better Inquiry Reported For Them Than a Year Ago —Real Estate Market Not Active But Brokers Report Good Interest Shown—Building Projects Continue to Materialize.

While the past week has not witnessed an especially active real estate market, there has been more or less negotiating between intending buyers and the owners that is likely to be productive of results before the close of the month.

All of the local realty brokers report good inquiry and have, in the main, been busy showing properties and smoothing away difficulties, if any existed, which might tend to defer or cancel their sales.

Inquiry for building loans continues very good, even better than a year ago at this time. The going rate seems fixed at about six per cent, though there is some money to be had at five and one-half per cent. Two or three loans at the latter figure are said to have been placed this past week.

The agencies representing Eastern moneyed men claim that their clients are not looking for any five per cent loans for the reason they can get six per cent in the East and it would be no object for them to place it at a lower rate in the West.

T. C. Vaughan has made a sale, this week, of a 50-foot lot on Superior street, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second avenues west, for $3300. The same piece of ground sold last December for $2450. The transfer runs from Katherine McGraw to the Polish White Eagle Cooperative association and the property is described as lot $49, block 52, Second division.

Mr. Vaughan has sold a lot for $600, for immediate improvement, on West Fourth street, near Twenty-sixth avenue west. He has the earnest money down on several other deals that are likely to be closed within a few days.

A sale of more or less interest that has been closed for some time is that of the old Children's Home property at 1722 Superior street, to Samuel H. Rothermel and C. H. Maginnis. The consideration was $3500. Messrs. Rothermel and Maginnis intend to turn the building around so as to face Dingwall street, and remodel it into a double house. On its old site they will build a handsome modern brick flat building to be known as the Endion flats. None of the improvements are to be started until the new Children's home on Fifteenth avenue is ready for occupancy, which will be within a short time.

The sale was made through the office of Little & Nolte.

This week W. C. Sargent & Company sold a home on Oneida street to William Kohagen, of Twelfth avenue east, also a lot on Minnesota Point, for improvement this summer.

The Lakeside Land company has sold two lots on McCullough street on which homes will be built this summer.

Young & Nystrom, architects, have an order for plans for a new Presbyterian church at Fort William, on the north shore, to cost about $5000. The church building is to resemble, to a large degree, the Lester Park Methodist church, designed by Mr. Young, and built in 1893.

The firm will also get out plans for a new school building in district No. 21, on the range.

The plans for the new flat buildings at Seventh avenue east and Fourth street, are to be out for bids by Monday next.

* * *

The remodeling of the Phoenix block by George Lounsberry is practically completed. Mr. Lounsberry had twenty days in which to do the work, but has pushed the work and will have finished in sixteen days. The building is already occupied by the Oak Hall Clothing company.

Young & Noystrom are working on several other plans, among them one order for sixteen flats in one or two buildings, and another of six flats.

J. D. Howard & Co. reports an active week in the loan business and the sale of a lot at Lakeside for immediate improvement.

* * *

It is reported that A. W. Hartman, who recently purchased 100 feet of East Superior street property, just west of the Frazer property, will make extensive improvements there some time this coming season. He is said to contemplate the erection of a fine residence.

* * *

G. H. Goose will build a $2000 home on Fifty-fourth avenue east, this coming summer.

* * *

If the sentiment in favor of building the new county courthouse in the downtown district is sufficiently strong enough to influence the hoard of county commissioners to make the selection of a site there, it is claimed that there will be some busy times among the real estate men this summer, who represent vacant property in the business part of the city, or even property that could easily be cleared for a courthouse site. If the courthouse is built near the office buildings a large tract will be necessary for purchase by the county, and the disposal of a parcel of ground of the size needed would be a desirable deal for any one of the real estate brokers to make.

T. J. Babcock has purchased several lots in Princeton addition from J. R. Hathway for a consideration of $5000.

* * *

Charles Stahbrodt has sold to A. Johnson, an improved property on the upper side of Second street, near Nineteenth avenue west, for $3500. The improvements comprise two frame buildings.

* * *

J. T. Michaud has sold a residence property on the upper side of First street, between Fifth and Sixth avenues west, to John Allen for $8700. Mr. Michaud bought the property not long ago at a trustee's sale of the realty of the Leland estate for about $6500.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR

Disposed of Rapidly at This Term of Court.

The criminal calendar in district court for this term is practically cleaned up with the trial of Frank White for murder.

There are but two cases remaining to be disposed of, but it is understood that the accused intend to enter pleas of guilty, so that further trials will not be necessary.

The cases on the criminal slate have been wiped off very fast this term of court. Only four men of all those indicted by the grand jury stood trial, and a conviction was secured by the state in every instance.

Frank White was convicted for murder in the third degree; Alfred Scrase was convicted for forgery in the second degree; Joseph Boreck was convicted for grand larceny in the first degree; Pat Egan was convicted for grand larceny in the second degree, and Joseph Schutte was convicted for assault in the second degree.

It is quite possible that the remaining civil cases for jury trial will be finished during the coming week, and the petit jury will be discharged.

FIELD'S MINSTRELS.

Please Large Audience at the Lyceum.

Al G. Field's minstrels drew a large crowd at the Lyceum last evening. New songs, funny hits and clever specialties abounded and the entertainment was a good one throughout.

The tenor solos of Reese Prosser, Al Tint and Charles Flynn were received with etnhusiastic approval, especially those rendered by Mr. Prosser. The chorus work was strong and the parts well balanced.

The sextet from "Lucia Di Lammermoor," by the Al G. Field choir, at the close of the first part, was splendidly rendered and was one of the best features of the singing.

They delivered the goods. Al G. Field Tommy Donnelly and Frank Shunk were down for the funny work and made a hit with their monologue of "Uncle Henry and Brother Anderson stories."

The musical specialties of the Mignani family were highly entertaining as well as novel. Walton Bros. did some clever acrobatic work and Percy Leigh and brother did some startling balancing feats with billiard cues Frank Dumont's travesty entitled "The Trustees' Meeting," where the parson joins the crap game and takes everything in sight, was a funny feature.

Olie Young and brotherl did some pleasing and skillful feats with the hoops. The entertainment concluded with the burlesque Darktown circus and menagerie.

Found a Cure for Indigestion.

I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find that they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different remedies. I am nearly fifty-one years of age and have suffered a great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything I want to now. —Geo. W. Emory, Rock Mills, Ala. For sale by all druggists.

FARM LANDS.

FOR SALE—GENTLEMAN'S COUNTRY place. I will sell a 320-acre tract of land in northern Wisconsin. Land is beautifully located. Is a perfect natural park. Has two fine large spring fed lakes—one of which is abundantly stocked with rainbow trout. Nearby are lakes alive with muskallonge, pickerel and bass. Deer and small game are abundant. Grouse, pheasants, etc., are common. Land is substantially level and easily cleared. Soil is the best and will make a fine farm. Property is within easy driving distance of Iron River, Wis. Roads are good. The other half section is owned by a Chicago millionaire, who has his summer home here. This is a great chance to buy outright a fine piece of land, in a fine neighborhood at a low price. Land will treble in value in a few years, but if sold at once, I offer this property for sale at $4 per acre, spot cash. Cultivated land within one mile is now held at $20 per acre. Address Bayfield, care The Evening Herald.

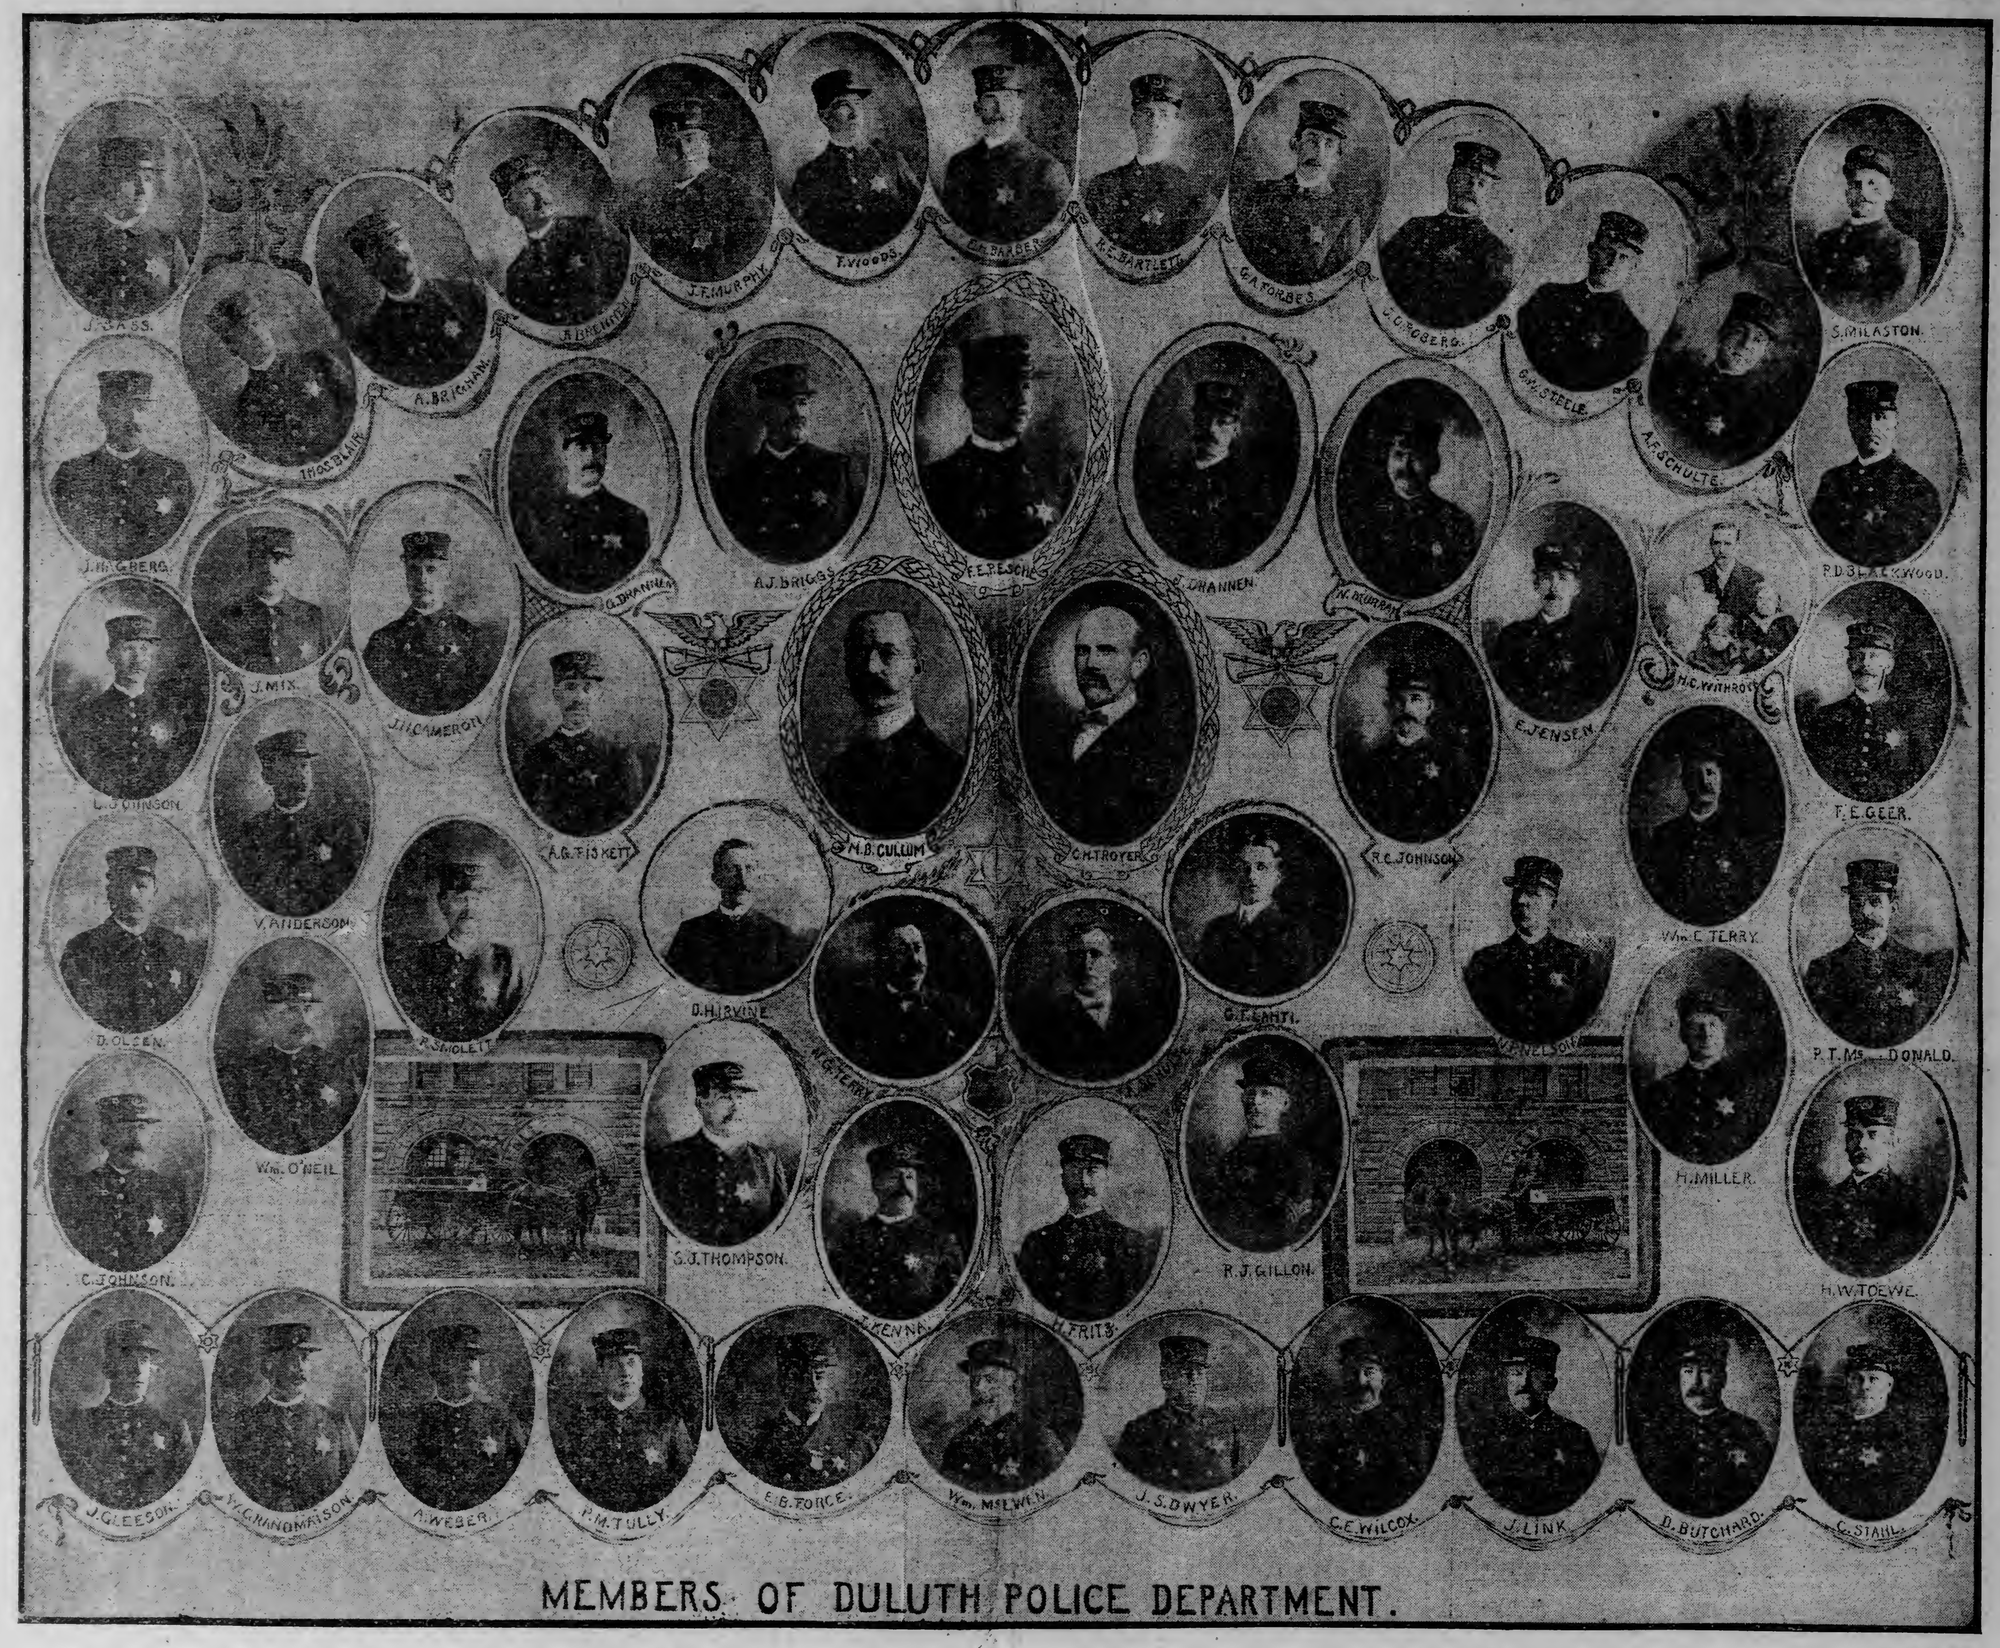
THE POLICE DEPARTMENT OF THE CITY OF DULUTH



MEMBERS OF DULUTH POLICE DEPARTMENT.

The fifty-seven members of the Duluth police force, at whose head are Mayor Cullum and Chief Troyer, have gained a reputation throughout the country as being a thoroughly modern and efficient police department.

Duluth is one of the most difficult cities in the country to cover by a police force. Spread out as it is over many miles of territory, it gives each patrolman more than the ordinary sized district for a beat. Duluth has more territory within its police limits than many cities with two or three times its population and with several times its appropriation for police protection.

In addition to this fact, the vicinity of the Wisconsin state line makes it difficult for the police to handle criminals. The first impulse of a crook after he has committed a crime is to flee to Superior, where he can put the police departments of both cities to endless trouble and expense if he chooses to fight extradition.

Duluth is also the dumping ground for many disreputable characters. One of the greatest shipping points on the lake, and the source of the supplies for all of the range towns, it is a rendezvous for all of the disreputable characters among the lake sailors and the miners in the range cities. The lumber camps also furnish their quota of vagrants, drunks and desperadoes in the spring and make the prevention and punishment of crime in Duluth no light task.

In spite of these facts Duluth has a police court record that would do credit to many an older community, where the city is compactly built, and where the number of desperate characters is far less. During the year there has been but one murder case, that of Jerome Manaige. The murderer was caught within five minutes of the shooting and was convicted within a month of the affair.

Other serious crimes have been few in number. One case of arson, a doezn cases of forgery, three cases of assault in the first degree, and ten or twelve cases of grand larceny compiete the list of serious crimes for the past year. This number in a community of 75,000 people of the cosmopolitan nature of Duluth's inhabitants, is a record of which the department may well be proud.

The infrequency of serious crimes is largely due to the system of prevention which is in vogue. Suspicious characters and vagrants receive a chilly reception in the city. Any man who shows a desire to hang around saloons and live without working does not spend many weeks in Duluth before he is requested to move on to some more congenial clime.

As a result of this attitude on the part of the police, Duluth is shunned by the petty grafters and confidence men. There has been a notable absence of the various crimes, which are resorted to, to rob woodsmen of their money, during the present spring, and the parasites who make their living by these games, have steered clear of Duluth.

The police telegraph system in use by the department is of the most modern type. Boxes placed at convenient corners in different parts of the city are supplied with private telephones which connect with the operator's desk at headquarters, and each patrolman on the force is required to report once an hour during the time he is on duty. Gongs are now being placed in the boxes in order the headquarters may also communicate with the patrolman. The gongs, which are for use in cases of emergency only, can be heard for a distance of about two blocks from the boxes, and if the officer is within that distance he can be reached from headquarters at any time.

At the head of the department is Mayor Cullum, and under him Chief C. H. Troyer, to whom is largely due the credit for the efficiency which the department has attained. He has been connected with the department for many years, having served as patrolman, sergeant, detective and chief. He is a "Hoosier" by birth, but has lived the greater part of his life in the Northwest and is one of the old residents of Duluth. He has been connected with the department long enough to know the city like a book, and there are few citizens whom he cannot call by name.

Second to him is Captain F. E. Resche who acts as deputy chief during the time the chief is off duty. The captain is a German by birth, but has lived practically all of his life in this country. He has a reputation among crooks for "getting his man" whatever the obstacles may be and many a criminal has found out to his sorrow that the reputation is well earned.

Under the chief and the captain come Lieutenants Briggs and Drannen. Lieutenant Briggs has charge of the West Duluth station, with six patrolmen under him and Lieutenant Drannen takes charge of headquarters on the late night watch.

Three of the members of the force, N. G. Terry, F. A. Schulte and H. Fritz are detailed to detective work, and are known as the "plain clothes men." Their work is principally on special assignments from headquarters, but when not thus occupied they patrol beats in the central part of the city, keeping constantly in touch with headquarters by telephone and being in readiness to answer any call sent in.

Sergeants Thompson, Kenna, and Gillon have certain districts of the city under their special inspection.

REPAIRING SHAFTS IN THE HOLDS OF VESSELS

New Appliance Patented By a Duluth Concern.

A Duluth concern, the Marine Iron company, recently completed the first portable crank and shaft lathe ever constructed. The machine, on which the local firm holds a letters patent, with exclusive right to manufacture, is designed to trim, true up and cut off steel shafts without removing them from their positions, whether they be in factory, mine or boat, thus accomplishing a great saving in time, labor and money. It will also face a coupling and turn cranks, crank pins, cross head pins, etc.

The value of the invention is particularly noticeable when the propeller shafts in the large lake and ocean steamers are in need of trimming up, or, in case they break, they can be coupled together in a comparatively short space of time with the assistance of the machine. Heretofore, when any such work had to be done, it was necessary to take the entire shaft, measuring from eighteen feet up, from the ship to a lathe on shore. This cannot be done without sawing through several of the boat's beams, and removing a section of the deck. Now all that is necessary is to lower the portable lathe, which is in two pieces, into the hold and clamp it onto the shaft.

Where, in a machine shop, the shaft would turn as it was being trimmed or cut, it remains stationary with the apparatus, while a traveling cutter head revolves about it, performing the work as perfectly as could any lathe in the best appointed machine shop. The feed is adjustable and the affair works automatically. The lathe is accurate, easily set up and may be run by steam, hand or motor power. In an experiment the other day on the tug Vigilant, the shaft was trimmed in four hours time where, if it had to be taken from the boat in the old way, the whole operation of taking it out, trimming and replacing it would have taken almost as many days.

With such a machine on board more than one ocean liner would have been able to avert a wreck, caused by the breaking of the propeller shaft. Instead of floating helplessly about waiting for a tow the liner might repair the injury and proceed on her way. It is expected the lateh will find a ready sale all over the world, at the large factories on land as well as at the lake and ocean ports.

SOCIETY

Aside from the formal opening of the Northland Golf club house, the week socially has been exceedingly quiet. The weather during the latter part of the week has brought out any number of golfers and the links are dotted with the enthusiasts and their caddies. For June, which is just ten days away, a number of weddings are promised and brides-to-be are busy with dressmakers, but some wedding gaiety will surely precede the ceremonies.

• • •

The opening of the new club house of the Northland Golf club, on Monday evening, was one of the most brilliant social affairs that the city has seen in many months. The affair, which was carefully planned that it might present the new house in a manner befitting its artistic beauty, was attended by all society and Monday night's reception should stand out in the club's social history.

Over 400 invitations were issued, aside from the club's membership, and it seemed that everybody went. The house was filled the entire evening with interested guests. The rooms were a blaze of lights and many beautiful gowns were worn.

The guests were received in the main room of the first floor by the directors and their wives, the receiving party being Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Richardson, Mr. and. Mrs T. W. Hoopes, Mr. and Mrs. W. Presentin and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. House. On the second floor Flaaten's orchestra played for dancing and many danced in the hall, the walls of which are quaintly finished with shingles. The reception hall, the living room, the dining rooms and porches are all artistically finished and furnished.

The club has a house of which it may well be proud and the members and those who may be entertained there during the summer will be envied by many.

• • •

One of the delightful events of next week is the reception which will be held Tuesday afternoon in honor of Professor Edward Howard Griggs, who will lecture here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The Ladies' Literature class will be hostesses and the affair will be given at the home of Mrs. H. C. Marshall, on East Fifth street. All club members and holders of tickets to the lectures are invited to attend and doubtless many will be delighted at this opportunity to meet his gifted lecturer.

Mrs. Charles Patton Craig entertained at two charming little affairs this week in honor of her mother, Mrs. Cameron, and her guest, Mrs. C. Z. Doolittle, of Minneapolis. Wednesday the affair was a lovely rose luncheon. The table was beautifully trimmed with the flowers. Covers were laid for eight. The guests were:

Mesdames:
J. D. Morrison, W. J. Olcott,
A. B. Wolvin, J. N. McKindley.
J. B. Adams,

Yesterday, in honor of Mrs. Cameron and Mrs. Doolittle, a few of the East End matrons were entertained at an informal tea. The rooms were prettily decorated. The parlors were beautiful with rose decorations and the dining room with effective Mexican poinsettas.

• • •

Miss Leta Phelps returned last Saturday from Leland Stanford university, and will be at home with her parents at 119 East Second street, for the summer.

• • •

Mrs. H. C. Crawford has invitations out for an afternoon card reception of next week, at her home, 1117 East First street.

• • •

Miss Arnetta McBride, of Florence, Col., was married last week to Arthur Bates Vance, of Jacksonville, Florida. Mrs. Vance is a sister of Charles J. McBride and Miss McBride, of this city, and has visited here several times.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Vivian, of Adams flats, are in St. Paul for a short visit.

• • •

The date of the junior-senior reception has been set for Monday evening, June 20. This annual reception, given by the juniors of the high school in honor of the graduating class, is the largest social affair of school life, and this year it will be given at the Spalding, and will be as delightful as usual.

• • •

Park Point has always been a most popular summer abiding place, and has been the scene during the summer of much of the town's social gaiety. This year more people than ever before are planning to spend the summer there, and the informal camp suppers, with a fire on the lake or bay shore, have already begun. Most of the entertainments given there must of necessity be of an informal nature. This afternoon Miss Briggs entertained at a tea at the Briggs' camp, Lodge Wenonah.

• • •

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. A. H. Smith entertained in honor of the 6th birthday of her little daughter, Margaret, at her home, 4506 London road. The luncheon table was laid with covers for sixteen, and in the enter a large birthday cake, with seven pink candles, six for the years and one to grow on, was placed. A tiny bansket filled with candles was the souvenir of the afternoon. The guests were:

Misses:
Katherine Suther- Margaret McLean,
Bertha Blair. Florence Whipple,
Louise Blackmarr, Alice Mooney.
Martha Mobeck.

Masters:
Shores Walker, Harold Hare,
Harold Bradley, Allen Blair,
William Mooney, Kenneth Suther-
Cecil Smith, land.
Frank Smith.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Miller, Jr., returned the first of the week from a few days at Chicago.

• • •

Miss Morris was in Minneapolis for a few days this week.

• • •

Last Saturday evening the local members of the Minnesota State Music Teachers' association entertained at an informal dancing party at Harmonie hall. The affair was in charge of Mrs. James McAuliffe, Miss Simonds, Mrs. D. H. Day, George Tyler and Gerard Tonning and was well attended by many of the musical people of the city interested in the welfare of the association. La Brosse played and the proceeds will help defray the expenses of the meeting here in June.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Upham, Jr., are at home at 1616 East Superior street.

• • •

The first of the ladies' nights which are to replace the stag parties of the Elks will be given Wednesday evening of next week at Elks' hall. The evening is looked forward to with pleasurable anticipation, and the entertainment for the first part of the evening is sure of success. It will be a minstrel show, with their own talent taking part. E. L. Miller will be interlocutor, with John Doran, Leslie Hubbell, Charles Applehagen and Joseph Medley on the ends. Following this, Flaaten's orchestra will play for an informal hop.

Mrs. W. T. Tenbrook left during the week for a month's visit at Deerwood.

• • •

Miss Bell Tucker was the guest of Mrs. H. B. Sutherland during the week.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Poehler returned Monday from a two weeks' fishing trip.

• • •

Mrs. J. B. Hanson and daughter, of 1631 East Third street, left Monday for a visit at Fargo and Valley City, N. D.

• • •

• • •

Mrs. J. L. Almquist, of West Duluth, returned the first of the week from a visit with her daughter at St. Paul.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. J. Allyn Scott, of West Duluth, left Wednesday for St. Louis to attend the fair.

• • •

Miss Dorothy Nichols, of this city, has gone to Brainerd to play at a concert to be given in that city by H. Roy Palmer. Both Miss Nichols and Mr. Palmer are pupils of Ernest Lachmund, of this city.

• • •

Mrs. Gertrude Anderson, of Minneapolis, and Robert Willet Hoye, of Duluth, were married May 14 at Minneapolis by Rev. G. L. Merrill.

• • •

Mrs. W. H. Bliss and daughter, of Minnesota Point, have returned from a four months' Southern trip.

• • •

A dance will be given Wednesday evening of next week by the degree team of Court Eastern Star, 88, U. O. F., at the Oatka Beach pavilion. The entire team composed of twenty-two members is the committee and they are planning for a delightful dance. The team is drilling faithfully and at the high court meeting at Hunter hall on June 7 some fine work is expected. The team is composed of the following: R. H., O. E. Olund; F. T., N. H. Widson; W. S., John Gelineau; T. S., H. E. Gelineau; C. A., A. L. Foster; S. A., E. Milnes; messenger, E. Iverson and foresters, C. Hanson, I. Haller, I. Bergman, M. Gelineau, A. Swanson, S. Anderson, M. The wedding of Miss Lulu Clippert and Walter Petty toko place Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Frank Clippert, of 2719 West Second street. The wedding was a quiet one only the immediate friends being present. Rev. I. I. Gorby read the service and the attendants were Miss Nellie McNulty and George Stevenson. Mr. and Mrs. Petty will be at home at 306 West Fifth street.

THE LADIES' LITERATURE CLASS

Has secured the eminent lecturer, Prof. Edward Howard Griggs, for a course of three lectures to be given the coming week at the First Methodist church. Prof. Griggs comes here from St. Louis, where he has been lecturing before the bi-centennial of women's clubs.

Tickets for the course, $1.00. Single tickets, 50c. On sale at the Public Library and Smith's drug store.

CLUBS AND MUSICAL.

The manual training work which has been done at the Webster school is one of the things that has a strong hold on the children of that portion of the city. Weaving of baskets has been claiming their attention for the past few months and many pretty ones they have made. At present the children are busy weaving garden hats out of the pretty colored grasses. The hats are well made and will be placed on sale at the leading milliners of the city. Orders have been given them for some hats and in this way they make a little money that is put to good use.

• • •

The domestic science classes of the Y. W. C. A. under Miss Keepers' direction closed their year's work this week. The classes have had some fifty or sixty members and the work accomplished has been most satisfactory. Miss Keeper's successor will be elected some time during the summer.

• • •

Three lectures were given during the week in the Seymour series. The lectures are fine and finely delivered and those attending them regularly are enthusiastic in their praise. "Queen Elizabeth," "Lady Jane Grey" and "Napoleon" are the subjects of the lectures given during the week and next week "Alexander the Great," "Jeanne d'Arc" and "William of Oraige" will be given.

• • •

Great interest is being awakened by the concert which will be given by the stringed orchestra of the Flaaten Conservatory of Music, next Wednesday, at the Lyceum. The greater part of the seventy members of the orchestra are children. They have been trained by Gustor Flaaten and the little orchestra promises to be the foundation for a larger one in years to come.

The orchestra will be assisted by pupils of Mrs. G. Flaaten. Miss Clara Richardson will be the soloists for the evening. She was formerly a pupil of Mrs. Olund and will be at the head of the vocal department. A department of elocution has been added to the school. Miss Adele McLaren who has recently returned from Boston will take charge of this department. She has been heard by Duluth audiences and her studies this year have added much to her art. The following pupils make up the personnel of the orchestra:

FIRST VIOLINS.
Edwin Berg, Concert Master.

The annual membership meeting of the Young Women's Christian association will be held this evening at 7 o'clock at the association rooms on West Superior street. Four members of the board of directors will be elected and it is greatly desired that a quorum, which if fifty active members, be present.

• • •

The Art club which was the last club to close its work for the year held its last meeting Wednesday evening at the library. The club worked as usual for the first part of the evening with Miss Lydia Poirier for a model. Later the club held an informal social session. The work for this year under Miss Gertrude Carey's direction has been most satisfactory and the members feel that much has been accomplished.

• • •

The closing of the "gym" classes of the Y. W. C. A. will take place Tuesday evening, May 31, and the plans for the entertainment are not yet definitely decided upon. The entertainment will be in the nature of some sort of frolic for the members of the classes that number over 200. The members expect a most delightful evening. This department of the association has been most successful and greatly enjoyed during the working year.

"The last pupil of De Beriot. This is a disdinction that can be claimed by Emile Sauret. If DeBeriot was his father, musically speaking, his great-great-great-great-grandfather was Corelli. The interesting article by Herr Paul David, on "Violin Playing," in Sir George Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians," gives a pedigree of the tribe of Corelli. Here it is in skeleton form, though the names are by no means suggestive of dry bones:

"Corelli, born 1653; Somis, born 1676; Pugnani, born 1727; Viotti, born 1753; Robberechts, born 1797; DeBeriot, born 1802; Sauret, born 1852.

"The collateral branches include such distinguished violinists as Geminiani, Leclair, aBilliot, Rode, More, the Helmesbergers, Ernest, those whose names are in the pedigree, are the sons of Corelli, the father of modern violin playing. No one who has heard Emile Sauret play upon the instrument of his choice will deny that he is a worthy scion of the noble house of Corelli.

"Victor Emile Sauret was born in the heart of France. He first saw the light on May 22, 1852—Wagner's thirty-ninth birthday—at Dun-le-Roe, Department du Cher.

'During a residence in Paris, Emile was fortunate in making the acquaintance of DeBeriot, who became "like a father" to the boy fiddler.

"At this time Sauret benefitted by a dual pupilage, as he also took lessons from Vieuxtemps, one of DeBeriot's most eminent pupils. In Paris Sauret studied harmony with M. Victorin de Joncleres.

"Although young, Sauret followed Wienlawski as the solo violinist at the promenade concerts in London. He at once made a great success, so much so, in fact, that Alfred Mellon engaged him for the remaining twelve weeks of the esason.

"Sauret was a great favorite with the Emperor Napoleon III. in those brilliant tuileries days previous to the downfall of the empire. He must have played before the French court at least fifty times. In 1872, fired with patriotic enthusiasm, Sauret made a long concert tour in France, under the patronage of M. Thiers, president of the Republic, in aid of those who had been left destitute by the loss of husbands or fathers during the Franco-Prussian war. In the same year he paid his first visit, under the auspices of Max Strakosch, to the United States, where he met with that success which has attended him upon his subsequent concert tours. He made his debut at the Leipsic Gewandhaus in May, 1876, and was very warmly greeted. He had often played there and is a great favorite with that very critical audience.

"It is hardly necessary to say that M. Sauret has known all the most distinguished musicians of his time. Moreover, he can claim to have been friendly with all of them—not in the mere conventional sense of the term, but in the bonds of mutual admiration, love and sympathy. Here are the names of some of those forming the camaraderie of Emile Sauret: Liszt, Rubinstein, Hans Von Bulow, Brahms, Tschalkowsky, Wagner, Rossini, Grieg, Saint Saens, Ferdinand Hiller, Max Bruch, F. Gernheim, Eugene d'Albert, Moszkowski, Niels W. Gade, Svendsen, Xavier Scharwenka, Jadassohn, Karl Klindworth, Leschetizky, Emil Sjogren, Edouard Schutt, Norman and David Popper.

"Among violinists he recalls pleasant intercoures with Wieniawski, Sivort, Bazzini, Ernst, Alard, Leonard, Dancla, Lauh, Hellmesberger, Ferdinand David and Sarasate, who often played duets with him in his house in London.

Duluth will have the opporunity of hearing this wonderful artist, as Mr. Sauret has been engaged as soloist for the convention of the Minnesota State Music Teachers' association June 16 to June 18.

A large and enthusiastic audience was present at a delightful piano recital given by pupils of Miss Mabel Fulton last evening at her home on Fourth avenue west. Several pupils made their first appearance and others showed a great deal of improvement over the last recital given. The first part of the program was devoted to the younger ones, and the solos by Helen Metcalfe, Edna Fulton, and Jennie Olson were daintily played, while the duets played by Clara Sutton and Martha Sanders, Violet Flaaten and Alice Gogins were excellent numbers. Matilda Landfold, Ellen Messler, Pauline Solom and Master Harold Compbell, also played their solos in a manner that would have been a credit to much older pupils and showed a great deal of musical talent.

Of the older pupils, especial mention may be made of the excellent work done by Olive Sutton, Ida Broman, Nellie and Ruth Brown, Bessie Gogins, Harry McMartin, Eva Baker and Millie Fisher. The two selections for eight hands went with a fine lot of spirit and showed that the pupils were in sympathy with their work, and the entire program was a tribute to both pupils and teacher.

Miss E. Pauline Stitt sang two very attractive numbers, "My Heart Is Singing" by Sano Souci, and "Daisies," by Hawley, with a very marked degree of musical taste. Miss Fulton sang "Violets," by Ellen Wright, and responded to an enthusiastic encore by singing "Mighty Lak' a Rose," by Nevin. Master Harold Campbell played the accompaniment in an admirable manner.

E. L. Eva was also one of the soloists of the evening, and showed himself to be a very artistic singer, giving a splendid interpretation of his song "For All Eternity," by Mascheron, and for an encore sang a selection from the "Chimes of Normandy." Mrs. V. L. Bean played the obligato for violin in a very finished maner.

The lectures which are to be given Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week at the First M. E. church by Professor Edward Howard Griggs are the leading topic of interest to the club women of the city. The subjects for the three lectures will be "Florence," illustrated, "St. Franci of Assisi" and "Problem of the Divine Comedy." The Evening Monitor of Concord, N. H. says of Prof. Griggs:

"Prof. Griggs is a man of high conceptions and an idealist of the extreme type, and has a gift of the most rapid and fluent oratory. These qualities combine to furnish one of the most entertaining talkers, whose octrine eriches and uplifts the minds of his hearers. It is well for our young men to hear such men as Prof. Griggs because they get correct and broad ideaas as to what constitutes the highest type of American manhood."

Last evening the pupils of Mrs. K. A. Ostregren gave a delightful recital at the First Baptist church on East Second street. The program was wel larranged and enthusiastically received by the friends of the pupils. Miss Alberta Mc Mullen, soprano sang and Dexter Ostregren played a violin number.

The following pupils took part: Misses: Ellen Nelson, Agnes Nelson, Lillian Kler, Hedvig Fredin, Hazel Butchart, Beatice Walsh, Eva Polinski, Hephzibah Hagberg, Mildred Berquist, Gertrude and Beatrice Champlin, Eva and Elda Luxon, Elizabeth Congdon, Alma Thompson, Elizabeth Meiner, Delia Gronseth, Mabel Rich, Beatrice Ole, Minniess Hason, Gertrude Noble, Inga Dahl, Ruby Cullen, Hattie Teske, Alice Sjosellus, Mabel Anderson, Helen Majo, Helen Congdon, Nellie Kennebrook, Violet Jordan and Hattie McMullen and Masters. Hedvig Fredin, Lloyd Massey, George Stillman, Herman Hjortholm, Robert Sturtevant and Harwood Sturtevant.

EMILE SAURET, VIOLINIST.

A GLIMPSE BEHIND THE VEIL

By Catherine Carr.

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

A storm, sudden and violent, was raging over Point au Clare. Those who had been lounging in shady nooks were forced to scurry with undignified haste across the sands to the hotel and cottages, where safe, if breathless, they watched the fierce warring of the elements without. But out on a bit of high rearing rock and sand stood a man and a woman to whom retreat to shelter was denied, for the little pebbly neck that had led to mainland was covered by the wind-driven waves.

They were strangers, these two, and neither had known of the other's presence on the islet until, finding retreat cut off, they sought refuge among the higher boulders where they met with surprised eyes. When the woman found that she had a masculine companion in this hour of peril, she had a relieved feeling of being able to cast its difficulties upon other and broader shoulders, and she sprang forward with outstretched hands, which the man, despite a momentary sense of annoyance at thus having a woman thrust upon his protection, caught close to his own. He spoke a few reassuring words and drew her up to a more sheltered niche among the rocks, where for a time they sat silently.

The lightning came in swift, blinding darts through the greenish masses of low hanging clouds, and the waves broke at their feet with a threatening roar, yet she was in no throe of terror. In this wise she contradicted his knowledge of her sex, and he decided that she was not like other women. She was thus of interest, and he considered her critically when by the lightning's glare he could see her face.

She was slight and blonde, with a delicate mouth, but a firm chin, and great eyes that held the look of one who seeks; over all a placid poise firmly held. The man had a singular thought of a rose frozen within a block of ice, and a pulse of pity for the imprisoned bloom.

His own thin face bore the look of one who had lived life in most of its phases, and had found only the dearness of such. Had she known him the woman would have felt the gleam of interest she had brought to his heavily lidded eyes, to be a distinct tribute.

"You are not afraid?" he asked, presently. Not because he thought she was, but from a desire to hear her speak. He classified people by their voices.

"I think not," she said, and though it was necessary to speak loudly to be heard above the tumult of water and wind, her tones were musically the contralto of his favor. "Of course I was really terrified when I thought I was alone, but not now."

"Why not? You must know that I would do all in my power for you, but that I am powerless against this," he said, involuntarily, however, interposing his arm before her face as the salt spray dashed high up over them.

"I don't know why," she answered, simply, "but it was such a relief to find you here that all my fright left me at once."

"You are kind to say so. Though of course," he added, "it was the sense of not being alone that brought relief."

"It may have been, and yet—" she looked thoughtfully at him. "The strength of everyone does not inspire confidence."

"No, I suppose not," he replied, inadequately.

He had just notice that the water, even when not wind driven, was about their ankles, and the awful suspicion that it would soon sweep entirely over the rocks was pressing upon him. He did not voice the thought then, only suggesting that it might be well to go higher, and half lifted his companion to a narrow ledge above. The boulder that sheltered them would be the next step, and the last—then—. He turned and looked long at the woman whose shoulder touched his arm.

An indefinable something in the look of her sent his thoughts zigzagging back to the dream corner of his brain, where certain vague ideal fancies of his younger days had long been stowed as idle and impossible. His desire to know more of this woman with whom he was to meet death leaped sudden and strong.

"What is your name?" he asked, abruptly.

"Mrs.—" she began.

"No, I don't mean that. I mean your own, your Christian name."

The woman wonderea, but this man was able to say unusual things without offending.

"Avis," she said.

His eyes absorbed her again.

"It suits you," he said.

"You think so? It is generally judged the contrary."

"You are not generally understood, I fancy."

"Possibly," with a little sigh. "Yet isn't that what people say when they have made a failure of life?"

"No doubt," and he echoed her sigh. With the approach of their close the futility of his own years was strongly borne in upon him. He took out a cigar and set his teeth down hard as if the contact lent strength.

The woman laughed.

"How manlike," she mocked. "I have often thought that the masculine advantage most worthy of envy is the comfort you men get out of a cigar. Tea is a mighty poor substitute, and I'll need something stronger when I get home if I assist in the concert tonight."

The man started. Her light words and the phrase "when I get home" brought a realization of the difficulty of telling her that there could be for them "getting home;" that even then they were as a man and a woman dead. He tossed away the cigar and drew his breath hard.

"Is there anyone for whom you deeply care?" he asked, with seeming irrelevance.

The woman lifted questioning eyes. They widened with terror as he answered.

"No boat can venture out," he said, gently, "and—"

She understood and reached blindly toward him as for support. A great wave broke over them and he put out his arm and drew her close.

They were drenched and cold, but her eyes were against his shoulder, her fair hair was blown across his breast, and he was seeing the reality of his young ideal with crystaline clearness.

They stood silent for a little time, she still within his arms, for the water was fast coming up about them, and it was with difficulty that she kept her foothold. A great agony lay in the eyes she turned toward the hidden shore, but the corners of her mouth were firm. The man recognized in her a bravery of spirit akin to his own.

"I want to tell you something," he said at last, and his tone was of a strange, deep tenderness. "Something that out in the world, where you are a wife and another woman bears my name, I could not say. It has been coming to me since you first looked at me with trust in your eyes and with the touch of your hands I knew. You are the one woman whom, with the best of my heart and brain I could love."

The woman drew back a little, yet she did not express surprise.

"How can you be sure?" she asked, quietly. "You don't know me. That I am not crying and shrinking from death appeals to you, but life is made up of small things, and the shallows of my nature might repel more than this depth has attracted you. Men are so different. They cannot for the sake of some great virtue overlook little congenialities as we women can and often do."

The man was unbelieving.

"It would not be so. I feel it. I have always laughed at this talk of affinities. My experience has not fostered the idea, but now I know that all my life I have wanted—you. And you?" he probed. "Has life been satisfying?"

"Not altogether," she admitted. "He is well enough after the manner of his kind, my husband. He is fond of me and—kind when he thinks of it, and yet—"

"I could have made you happy," he affirmed, with confidence.

The forecfulness of his gaze drew up her eyelids, and in a long glance each sounded the depths of the other's soul.

"Perhaps—" she hesitated.

The water swept up with a violent rush. They clung to each other and a projecting crag.

"Tell me," he urged, when they had regained their breath. "The world is nothing to us now—even our heartbeats are numbered. Let them, our last, know the truth. You could love me?"

Her eyes answered. He drew her nearer.

"Kiss me," he said.

For a long breath their lips clung together and the veil was lifted.

They stood silently waiting, the water coming fast and strong.

Then suddenly, as its coming, the storm cleared. A boat was put out and sent plunging across the heaving waves by the willing strength of men coming to the rescue. They watched its approach with dull eyes.

"You may think me a fool," the man said, hesitating at first, then speaking with impetuous force, "but on my soul I'm sorry that they're coming."

The woman laughed, but there was the tenseness of unshed tears in her accent.

"I think you are very foolish—and that so am I, for—for I'm sorry, too," she confessed.

"I may see you sometimes?" he suggested, but the woman shook her head.

"It is far better not," she said.

"You have so little faith in me," he murmured.

The woman told herself that the blend of his eyes and voice was the sort likely to make sad havoc of good resolutions.

"Perhaps I have so little in myself," she replied, and they spoke no more until they reached the beach and their anxious friends, where they touched formal hands and parted with conventional words.

The woman was a brilliant figure at the concert that night, playing gay ripples on her violin and dancing lightly. The man smoked innumerable cigars and left on the late train.

They never saw each other again. Also they never forgot.

And it is not the shadow of searching that is now dark in the woman's eyes.

AMONG THE PLANTS

Everyone who plants a shrub, tree or flower does something toward making our city beautiful and the time is here when the product of the florist goes into the hands of the gardener and we want to give a few cautions. Bedding plants are usually planted in the latitude of Ohio in the last week in May and colen, which are very tender, the first week in June, and here where we pry the sun up with a crowbar, it is as well to be a few days later, where they cannot be covered with a sheet at night if it turns cold. If you can protect them, plant now.

Don't expect every plant to be wonders. Remember that every batch of bread you make is not the same, although you have taken just the same care in making it.

Don't fail to plant all the seeds now.

Don't get your geranium bed too rich. Nature's law is that when a plant is a little starved it makes a greater effort to reproduce itself, hence more blossoms and seeds, and don't forget to pick off the same seeds if you want lots of bloom, for if disappointed the plant will keep trying.

Don't plant your window box if the soil is lumpy, shovel it out on the walk and pound it fine with the back of the spade, add what fertilizer it needs, and when it is planted don't shot at it with the hose water at forty pounds pressure.

Don't plant a dry flower bed with dry plants from pots and try to soak the bed with cold lake water. Rather set your plant and pour around it and on the dry ball of roots a pint or so of water, then level off with dry soil, which will act as a mulch and do mucn toward keeping the roots molst.

Don't spread your energies over too large a surface. Better to have one bed a thing of beauty than two or three unsightly ones.

Don't mix your colors too much in a small bed. Red and pink don't look well together, however much we love bright colors, and we all do, and you want a bunch of color to be effective, for you view it from a distance and one or two don't show off well.

Don't expect all the seeds you sow to be good, all the stocks will not be double for the seed is raised from single flowers and nature ofttimes makes a freak; have seen fully 5 per cent of my best pansies revert to Johnny Jump Ups and expect such things.

Don't plant your verbenas upright. Peg them down. A root will start at the joints coming in contact with the soil and they will grow faster.

Don't put off your visit to the florist's until 9 p. m., when every one is tired after a hard day in the rush of the season and lastly, don't hire all your planting done. Do some of it yourself and as you handle the beautiful plants, note the beautiful curves, the delicate veining, the subtle fragrance in both leaf and flower and maybe some of their beauty and fragrance may creep into your own life. Gardening may be caled by some who do not know a lowly occupation, but there are some who would rather live among the plants than be the president of the United States.

CURE FOR MOSQUITOES.

A cure for mosquitoes has been discovered in Laredo, Tex., says the Detroit News. Each inhabitant is given a card by the authorities, on one side of which appears this information:

You are responsible
For the Mosquitoes
In Your House and Dooryards.

On the other side are these rules for the destruction of mosquitoes:

Mosquitoes breed only in water.

Mosquitoes occur in the vicinity in which they breed.

The young mosquito or "wiggler" lives in water at least seven or twelve days. It must come frequently to the surface to breathe.

Coal oil on the surface of the water prevents the wigglers from breathing.

Destroy the breeding places and you will destroy the mosquitoes.

Empty the water from all tubs, buckets, cans, flower pots and vases once every 48 hours.

Fill or drain all pools, ditches and various excavations.

Change regurally every day all water needed in chicken coups, kennels, etc.

Treat with coal oil all standing water which cannot be screened or drained.

Places in which it is desirable to place oil, such as watering troughs for stock, lily ponds, etc., can be kept free from the wigglers by putting in goldfish.

Clean away all weeds, grass and bushes about ditches, ponds and other possible breeding places.

Clean up vacant lots and back yards of oil cans, tins, bottles and rubbish.

Inspect and treat with coal oil gutters, culverts, ditches, manholes, catching basins, etc., along the roadside.

Houses should be cleared of all winged mosquitoes by the burning of insect powder or sulphur. The mosquitoes will fall to the floor and should be collected and burned.

The Herald has the circulation. Of this fact there is no doubt. Not only has it the circulation, but it has the circulation that counts. Try The Herald's want columns and get the best and quickest results.

SOIELINE BLOUSE WITH LACE AND EMBROIDERY

THE ELABORATE BLOUSE COSTUME.
DESIGNED BY VOLKERSTEIN & GOLDSMITH

SHIRTWAIST COSTUME IN PLAID SICILIENNE

TAILOR MODEL IN SHEPHERD'S CHECK

OF MONEYBAK TAFFETAS

"GEISHA" SHIRTWAIST OF BOURETTED LINEN AND LACE

[By Our Special Correspondent.]
MIRIAM SPIER.

Very brilliant as regards the display of toilets was the opening day at the Paris Horse Show, and though the type of dress was almost without exception of the tailor-made order, several new and interesting details were to be noted. One of these was the unusual quantity of more or less fancy textiles, such as pointilles, snowflakes and mousselines, employed for the construction of such suits; also very delicately shaded checks, chiefly in soft shades of gray.

From all appearances, the newest tailor-made is distinctly feminine in its styles, not a trace remaining of the mannish air which held sway some years ago.

Too much importance cannot be given to the soft, sheer fabrics that lend themselves so readily to the graceful, flowing lines of the season's fashions. The softest, gauziest voiles and veilings are, perhaps, in highest favor and are employed not only for dressy afternoon toilets, but for severely finished morning costumes as well. While plain colors are preferred, there are many charming fancy effects. Embroidered voiles will be much worn in the dressy tailored gowns. The taffeta silk foundation for these materials may be of a harmonizing color, though self-colored lining is the better choice.

A marine blue voile is made with an instep-length full skirt having three deep tucks in the lower part and a short eton or bolero distinguished by a soft girdle of silk in the same shade and a vest of white linen embroidered in pistache green and finest gold threads, with fine, narrow lace in jabot effect down the front. The sleeves end just below the elbow, a deep cuff with lace ruffle inside falling over the hand. This costume is made over taffeta in a slightly lighter shade, which gleams through the open meshes. With this smart street gown was to be worn a "lingerie" waist made of sheerest white batiste elaborately trimmed with embroidery and very fine lace.

Among the fashionable silks for shirtwaists and shirtwaist dresses are Louisines and taffetas in tiny checks strewn with wafer dots in contrasting colors. Patterns showing tiny black and white checks with the wafer dots, which are thickly scattered over, in turquoise, lilac, pale green or bright red are beautiful. Bands of silk to match the dots, with French knots in black worked over them, may be introduced in the dress trimming.

Waterproof taffetas that are soft as foulards are a recent importation and it would be difficult to imagine a more charming shirtwaist costume than one fashioned from this silk in light blue and white pinhead checks and strewn with tiny white dots, or in black and white checks. The fact that this silk is waterproof will at once make it popular. A watered or gleaming moire finish distinguishes other samples of this material, and the summer girl will rejoice that she has discovered so practical and at the same time so attractive a fabric for her shirt-blouse and dress.

That fancy effects in linen are very popular is indicated by the great assortment exhibited; never has there been such a variety. The newest of these, called barette cloth, has a coarse canvas weave and a napped or raised effect over the surface in self or contrasting color. Black and white and brown and cream are stylish combinations in this material. Plaid linen canvas makes exceptionally pretty and stylish shirtwaist dresses, while the almost invisible stripes and mixtures are used for the jacket and skirt costume.

Besides the printed cotton in Scotch tweed effect there are the mohairs and Sicilliennes, which adapt themselves especially well to the two-piece costume. The best dressed women in New York are strong advocates of the tailored silk suit to be worn with a smart lingerie waist. They contend that it can be worn on almost any occasion, morning, afternoon or evening, with the proper amount of separate waists. Entire costumes, both in dressy and simple garbs, are the first choice. The shirtwaist dress, consequently, is very much to the fore, the natty little costume that London and Paris derided as "too American," but have adopted at last with open arms.

Foulards and pongees will always be most popular, but this year so many new silks are to be seen, and these all so attractive, that it would seem as though for a while, at least, foulard would have to divide its popularity with taffeta or Louisine silk. Again, while in foulard a few new colors may have been introduced, the designs are very much the same as those worn for the last few years—polkadots of various sizes and many Japanese looking patterns. In the different silks there seems to be a far greater variety of patterns.

In the checks and plaids, blue is always a most popular shade and is particularly good for harder wear, as it will always look smart, and one never seems to tire of it. Unfortunately, there are some to whom dark blue is not becoming, and by these must be worn the gown of brown or that of black and white, for let it be understood that no matter how elaborate the frock, if the color is not becoming to one's own particular style of beauty the gown will never look smart.

The shirtwaist dress must not be elaborately trimmed. On the contrary, it should be made up quite as simply as the present style will permit. In making a gown it should always be borne in mind the purpose for which the dress is to be used, and in accordance it should be elaborate or plain. For the dress to be worn traveling and during the summer at the resort this shirtwaist suit must, to begin with, be short—that is, should just clear the ground all around.

A walking gown for a slim person is one made quite simply, trimmed only with a little Irish lace and band of shirring. The waist has a transparent lace collar and cuffs and may or may not have a small unlined yoke of the lace. There are two bands of shirrings across the front and back of the waist and at the top of the sleeves. The sleeves from this are full, having the puffs just at the elbow, if the lace cuff happens to be broad enough. Around the skirt are two bands of the shirring, the first just a little below the hips and the other a trifle below the knee. There may also be another row of the shirring at the top of the skirt. Over the hem should be laid two bias folds. This, while finishing the skirt, also makes it flare out better. A broad belt of the same material is now much worn.

It is rather difficult to say just where the fulness of the sleeve should come. Although in all the French papers the sleeve is still largest below the elbow, with quite a narrow wristband, still on some of the smartest gowns to be seen the sleeve has the large puff almost at the shoulder. Perhaps we are returning to the immense sleeve worn 10 years ago; and, if this be the case, it would seem as though one would only have to turn "upside down" the sleeve on the gown worn last summer.

Linen frocks are the most interesting of all the displays yet made for the summer costumes. The linens used for them are of many grades, from fine handkerchief quality to heavy butcher weaves. And they are in all shades and colors. Combinations of linen and Irish point are as yet among the choicest appearances. One model of this kind had a skirt of the lace in which the fan plaits of the skirt, starting below the knee, were of the blue linen. The bolero was of linen, and the blouse, with balloon sleeves falling below the short, flowing sleeves of the bolero, was of the lace. An old ivory-tinted butcher's linen had a plaited skirt of the linen; the eton jacket was of the lace banded with the linen. Lace jackets, indeed, are frequent accompaniments of linen costumes; to bring them in unison with the suits they are trimmed with the linen of the skirt.

With suits of all linen the daintiest lingerie blouses are used; two shades of linen, one as foundation material, the other as trimming, make up many smart toilets that long sought balmy Southern shores. But morning and afternoon costumes, simple as to treatment or elaborate, as occasion requires, will be in evidence during the summer. As to linen waist embroidered ones, last summer saw only the ushering in of them. This summer, it is feared, will see them overdone.

Shirtwaists are still very much in evidence, and the materials used for their development are shown in great variety. While the extremely heavy vestings are no longer seen, there are many attractive specimens of mercerized goods of light weight and having a rather coarse basket weave that will become popular and that will be worn with the pink, blue and cream, while old blue, outing or shirtwaist silk. The lustrous finish of this new mercerized fabric, which is termed lotus cloth and is shown only in a rich cream tint, makes it like silk, and the soft, pliable quality is a feature worthy of consideration, as present modes demand materials of this sort.

Etamines and voiles are no longer confined to wools, but are shown in the new cotton and linen, and some of these effects are most attractive. A cotton voile has a chine surface mingling soft old red or gray, green mixed with white are among the prettiest of the linen etamines. The smartest of morning or afternoon shirtwaist dresses are fashioned from these novelties. There is a great array of wash fabrics for the shirtwaist toilette; the different effects in woolens are reproduced in these materials; among the most popular of the recent importations are the bordered voiles and linens, the border in many instances being almost half the skirt's length and in rich broche or jacquard designs. These novelties are adapted to the straight, full skirt.

The separate shirtwaist, from the standpoint of the "exclusive trade," is a tailor built affair that varies little in cut and finish from year to year; this summer its shoulders have increased in length an inch or less, and its cuffs, in some cases, have taken on a slight elaboration; but even these concessions to la mode are scouted by conservative dressers, who claim that "a shirt is a shirt" and that any attempt to alter it is out of good taste; among this class of waists linen is the leader, closely followed by madras and other fancy weaves in cotton. Out of this order, fine linens and cottons and thin silks prevail. An especially pretty waist of dotted taffeta was trimmed with stitched bands of plain silk of the same tone as the dot; there was a small lace yoke partially edged by the bands which continued straight, half way down the waist, from the shoulder seam; the lower edge of the yoke was finished with soft four-in-hand and flowing ends, made of the plain colored silk; the sleeves were full and plain with the exception of the deep lace cuff, which gave it a very chic finish.

Shirtwaists or fancy blouses, as are called the more elaborate ones, are now such an important feature in the fashionable outfit that a lot of time and thought is expended in planning them so that they shall be becoming and at the same time smart, not always the same thing, be it understood. To wear with dark cloths, silk or veiling costumes, while fashion commands there shall be a waist to match the skirt, there must be as well an attractive white waist; these can be fashioned of muslins, lace, batiste, satin or silk and are elaborate in design. The fashion of wearing a waist made of wash material, either embroidered or trimmed with lace over a fitted silk lining, is quite a popular one, and certainly the clean, fresh waists look most attractive with the darker skirts, while it is possible to have a great variety of styles now that embroidered muslins are so fashionable.

The prices asked at some of the shops for the fancier waist, also called shirtwaist, even in these days of high prices is rather overwhelming. Originality of design, costly lace and fine hand embroidery is the ostensible reason given for the cost, but fortunately for the majority of womankind who would fain be gowned according to the latest orders of fashion, these same waists are copied for infinitely less price, and, furthermore are perfectly possible of home manufacture if a clever seamstress is employed.

Accordeon pleated chiffon and crepe de chine waist, matching exactly the color of the gown with which they are worn, are extremely useful and will be as fashionable as ever during the summer.

For the plainer shirtwaist, white linen, white lawn and dotted Swiss are particularly favored for midsummer wear; also in great demand are the endless styles of lingerie waist, whether in net lace, crepe de chine, white China silks, sheer lawn or handkerchief linens. Such waists are dressy enough for the many morning or afternoon social gatherings at the resort. Waists buttoning at the back are in great evidence; the mode of trimming is such that it becomes necessary to have the waist button at the back if the style idea is to be retained in its perfection. Cuffs are mostly tight, but they are of infinite variety, both as to the shape and trimming; indeed, it might be added that the cuff is generally entirely composed of trimming; the narrow band is seldom seen excepting on the tailored waist.

The use of a somewhat wider cuff brings the sleeve puff a bit further up the arm, and this is an improvement; the sleeve puff is bound to remain moderately large on account of the development of the open sleeve for the summer suit jackets; the lace or lingerie ruffles used in the majority of suit sleeve requires a puff in the waist sleeve to fill out.

"Geisha" Shirtwaist of Bouretted Linen and Lace.

Here the yoke is fashioned with long stole ends, which are stitched down with Honiton lace, and appliques of the same lace are posed at intervals on the yoke and sleeve top, this latter being banded with lace to simulate an extension of the yoke. The fronts are pleated to this yoke and fastened under a fly. The sleeves are of the familiar shirtwaist pattern, with straight cuff fastened with wash buttons. The silk belt has a Rosalind adjuster cleverly combined with the buckle, producing the desired long-waisted effect.

A remarkable production is "The Yoke," which bears the sub-title, "A Romance of the Days When the Lord Redeemed the Children of Israel from the Bondage of Egypt." The author is Miss Elizabeth Miller and it is the first novel of this young woman who has at once jumped into the front rank of American authors. It is not surprising to learn that she comes from Indiana, which has produced a host of lights in the literary world. It is a charming work, as may be understood from the sub-title, and yet the subject is treated with great reverence and the book has a religious and educational value as it was at the period of the Hebrew Exodus is the scene of Miss Miller's story. The hero is Kenkenes, a fictitious character, a son of the architect of the Pharaoh, an Egyptian of royal blood. The action of the story begins about five months before the initial movements of Moses, which led to the Exodus. The hero is a young sculptor, following in his father's footsteps, but in revolt against the straight lines prescribed by Egyptian art. A perfect relief was not permitted by that art and there were in the Egyptian ritual certain rules that were in defiance of nature's lines, but which the artists were obliged to follow. (For instance, the top of the ear was on the level with the nostril; the fingers were without joints; the outer corner of the eye ran back almost to the temple.)

Kenkenes, who has true artistic sense and feeling saw that these conventional restrictions, which it was sacrilege to ignore, were not in accord with nature. He went into the desert where there was much stone and where he might find material to work out in secret his own ideals. It is while seeking a suitable block of stone that he meets opposite old Memphis, the beautiful quarry slave, the Hebrew girl Rachel. She, without her knowledge, becomes his model, and they fall in love with each other. But they are of different faiths. He bows down to Ostris, the great god of Egypt; she only to Jehovah, the true God, for her house is one of the few Hebrew families that had retained in purity the faith of Abraham and Kenkenes, in his secluded block of stone out in the desert, carved Rachel, as Athor, the golden, the Egyptian Venus, defying Egypt's oppressive ritual and working only from observation and inspiration. The expression that he wished his statue to wear was one of appealing love and so art and instinct unite in awakening this look in the face of Rachel.

Miriam, the aged sister of Moses, is a creature of life-like and terrible power. Deborah, the prophetess and protectress of Rachel, is a true representative of those women of her race who could peer into the future and foreshadow its events. Astu, the merciful Egyptian taskmaster; the Lady Ta-meri, the coquette, and her effeminate lover. Nechutes, are a few of the more striking figures on this glowing, densely-peopled canvas. Miriam's defiance of Rameses when he refused to let the children of Israel go, is remarkably vivid. From this point on the succession of great events is unbroken. In turn Egypt suffered the plagues; the fish in the rivers died and stunk; the light went out all over the land, but each time Pharaoh hardened his heart. The first-born died and Israel escaped toward the Red sea, pursued by the Egyptian army. "At the first glimmering of the dawn the melody of many winded trumpets arose over the encampment of the Egyptians. Now the notes were near and clear, now afar and tremulous; again deep and sonorous; now full and rich, and yet again fine and sweet. There is a pathos in the call of a war trumpet that no frivolous rendering can subdue; it has sung so long at the death of men and of nations." Then followed the miracle of the Red sea, in which Har-hat and the flower of the Egyptian army, while marching on toward the Promised Land went the Hebrews.

Through all these mighty scenes runs the love story of the Egyptian artist and the Israelitish maiden, separated by barriers of race and social station and religious obligation as they were. But the pure and holy faith of Rachel inspires her lover to examine into the fundamental questions of life and religion, and he at last abandons his ancestral belief and his people to go with Rachel and the despised Israelites. He is won over to the belief in the one god and joins his sweetheart on the farther side of the Red sea after many thrilling experiences. But his occupation as a sculptor is gone, for the Hebrews so lately won from idolatry are opposed to all graven images and the sculptor gives up his art for love. He engages in the pastoral life of the people who have adopted him, and when Israel took up the forty years of pasture hunting in Paran, Kenkenes made his tent beautiful, but always pitched it apart from the multitude.

His sons were artists after him, but they were handicapped also. So it continued for many generations until the temple of Solomn was built. Then, though the plans came from God and artisans were brought from Tyre, it was the descendants of Kenkenes who made the temple beautiful with carved figures and palm trees and open flowers, within and without.

The Bobbs-Merrill Publishing company, of Indianapolis, is the publisher of "The Yoke," and the book is handsomely printed and bound, the covers displaying a frieez of Hebrew bondmen at labor and below two characteristic Egyptian figures, in terra cotta and gold on a dark blue background.

Little, Brown & Co., of Boston, Mass., the publishers of "The Wood Carver of 'Lympus," by M. E. Waller. The hero of Miss Waller's new story is one of the strongest and most original characters portrayed in recent fiction. Hugh Armstrong, used to a busy out-of-door life, in felling a tree meets with an accident and loses the use of his limbs. At first he finds it impossible to adjust himself to his shut-in life, but a friend suggests wood-carving to him. Through work and love a great change comes over him, and the author has portrayed to us in a powerful manner Armstrong's salvation. The scenes are laid in the Green Mountains of Vermont. The reader will follow the various love affairs with increasing interest. The atmosphere of the book is bright and cheerful, and the whole story is out of the usual run of fiction. C. C. Emerson has drawn a capital frontispicce illustration, representing "the Old Vermont Stage Coach."

"A Preacher's Story of His Work," is the title of Dr. W. S. Rainsford's new book. The writer will tell of his childhood on the picturesque east coast of Ireland, of his school days, his experience in East London, his university life at Cambridge, of his coming to America, and his early experiences here. Finally he will tell of the ways by which he transformed St. George's parish, New York, from a dying family parish into the present and powerful church that is serving rich and poor alike. The book is to be published soon by the Outlook company.

The Baroness Von Huten, author of "Araby" and "The Notorious Sir Charles Gratwicke," spends much of her time on her husband's estate, Schloss Steinbach, in the Main valley, Bavaria. An aged peasant had lost his life and the baroness graciously called to extend her sympathy. The man sat stolid and silent under her condolences, not even desisting from a vigorous attack upon his evening meal. A pause followed the last of her comforting speeches. Then the old peasant, still eating, spoke for the first time: "Well, it's a good thing it wasn't the cow!"

It is rarely that a novel of acknowledged literary merit awakens its most particular interest in the ranks of the life insurance companies. The scene in "The Forerunner" (Fox, Duffield & Co.), where Daniel Devin on his death bed regrets not having made his will and not having insured his life, though given naturally as an instance in psychological analysis, affords too good a text to be neglected by the pracical solicitor.

"Just why the latter-day writer of fiction has such a mortal terror of anything like a plot is, to the average reader, an unsolved enigma," says Lilian Whiting in a letter to the New York Times. Winston Churchill, who may fairly be called the most popular novelist in America today, has written a new book which, although a perfectly independent story, follows "Richard Carvel" in point of time. Its title is "The Crossing." Here the author puts into a picturesque story of the peaceful conquest of the great Louisiana territory the whole American spirit of a very critical period. It was during the years covered by this vigorous novel that the country proved the depth and value of the ideals created during the times of which "Richard Carvel" gave so convincing a picture. The first chapters open with the days when the Carolinas were upon the frontier, and Andy Jackson was a red-haired boy, licked by the schoolmaster for fighting. They carry the hero, young Davy, over the Cumberland Mountains to share the adventures of the famous leader and Indian fighter, George Rogers Clark. More thrilling picture there could not be than is here given of the pluck with which these backwoodsmen, a force of 170 weakened, starved men, stormed Fort Sackville, garrisoned by 600.

In the opinion of the authorities on the subject Dr. Henry C. Rowland's new novel, "To Windward," just published by A. S. prominent position all her life in politics in Colorado. Ten years ago, at the first election in which women took part in her state, she was nominated for the legislature. She consented to run, though much against her will, and spoke many times during the campaign. At the close of one of the meetings, an old Irishman, with a beautiful brogue, stepped up to her. He shook her hand, then turning to a friend near by, he said: "There ain't the same brains to the same bulk anywhere in the state of Colorado." As Miss Meredith is distinctly a small woman, she has never been able to decide whether "Paddy" intended this remark for a compliment or not.

A delightful holiday book is announced by Dodd, Mead & Co. for publication in the fall, viz.: An illustrated edition of Maurice Macterlinck's "Our Friend, the Dog." This is to be issued in a most sumptuous form, with sympathetic illustrations by Paul J. Meylan, and decorations by Charles B. Falls. This exquisite little sketch marks, in the opinion of many, the highest level of Macterlinck's literary achievement. It is characterized by a keenness and accuracy of observation and fullness of sympathy with its subject which will cause it to appeal to all friends of the dog. It is safe to say that very little that has ever been written about the dog portrays his nature so faithfully.

In Michael Davitt's preface to his forthcoming work, "The Fall of Feudalism in Ireland," which is dated Dalkey, Ireland, January 1, 1904, he says: "In the following pages I tell the story of an Irish movement which sprang without leaders from the peasantry of the country. The book will narrate the ways and means by which a revolution, more or less on the same lines of a passive resistance, accomplished these reforms." And again: "The chapter recalling the dramatic trial of the Land League and its leaders in the special commission of 1888 will narrate how that unscrupulous plot to destroy Mr. Parnell and the powerful movement behind him was frustrated, and will add something not previously told to the history of a judicial inquisition unparalleled in the annals of political warfare."

The publication, "Social Progress," edited by Dr. Josiah Strong, has brought to the publishers and the editor an immense number of letters from ministers and public speakers, who have fairly overflowed with gratefulness. It seems that in the compilations and classification of statistics Dr. Strong has furnished a vast deal of information on all topics of human uplift, which can be found nowhere else. Curiously enough, too, the labor leaders have found it of the greatest service to them, and have been loud in their praises of it.

Philip Verrill Mighels, whose story "Bruvver Jim's Baby" represents a new and genuine success in American fiction, was born in Carson City, Nevada, in 1869. Young Mighels was educated for the legal profession, and went so far as to practice a short time. But the fatal step had already been taken—at the age of eighteen he had published in the Sacramento Bee, a story for which he received no pay. He abandoned the law, went to San Francisco, and earned a limited living as a sketch artist and as a reporter. Finding this unsatisfactory, he went to New York, and edited three trade journals for a year. Then "dead broke and friendless," as he himself says, he started out to work for himself. The first individual work for which he was paid was a "Carrier's Address," in verse, for which a syndicate paid him seventy-five dollars. Then he wrote advertising verses and finally struck into story writing, and, as the saying is "found himself." He has recently contributed a number of stories to Harper's Magazine.

There have appeared of late in many magazines a goodly number of poems by Wallace Irwin; and it is not exaggerating to say that Irwin is beginning to rank as one of the most delightful and consistently witty verse-writers of the day. His "Love Sonnets of a Hoodlum" achieved a most remarkable success; no less than sixty thousand copies having been sold in book form. A new book of verse by him will appear in the fall, entitled "The Nautical Lays of a Landsman." The poems are perhaps a little reminiscent of "The Bab Ballads," but are in nowise a copy of Gilbert's verses. Irwin has a humour quite his own, and anything more laughable in this vein has not appeared in recent years.

It is a personal account of a trip made in 1r01 by way of then new Siberian railway by Dr. Francis Edward Clark, famous as the founder of the United Society of Christian Endeavor. Dr. Clark and his party were the first Americans, and in all probability the first foreigners, to girdle the world crossing Asia by the new all-steam route. The narrative is rich in interesting observation of the people encountered, and is made vivid by numerous photographs taken by the party. Dr. Clark is now in South Africa on a mission for the Christian Endeavor Society, of which he is still president.

The Baker & Taylor Company announces the completion of arrangements for English editions of two recent books, "The Strife of the Sea," by T. Jenkins Hains, which has attracted very wide attention, both in this country and abroad, and "My Mamie Rose," Owen Kildare's story of his rise from the Bowery. "The Strife of the Sea" seems to appeal very strongly to English publishers, as the sort of work which the English public will appreciate, but what seems curious in this relation is that a story of a man's rise from the Bowery struck the English publisher as unlikely to appeal to his public, because it was so American. If the popular English books, which deal with special phases of London life, were failures in this country, there would be a small chance for English works. However, the start of "My Mamie Rose" in America is most promising, being now in its fifth thousand.

Five pages of war pictures, showing scenes of action in the far East, are a timely feature of the May 21st issue of Harper's Weekly. Of equally timely interest is an authoritative and informing character study of William Randolph Hearst, written by Charles E. Russell, of the Chicago American. Other subjects treated in text and illustration are the recent steeplechase meet at Cedarhurst, Long Island; women as educators—a suggestive article by Florence Jackson; London from a comparative point of view; "Marriages in Russia;" the St. Louis World's Fair, and "Machine-guns," by Sir Hiram Maxim, C. Notwithstanding the initial successes of the Japanese, it is the opinion of many competent observers that the war in the far East has only just begun, and that great uncertainty still clouds the final issue. The hosts of interested people who are striving to forecast the ultimate results of the conflict will find material aid in their conjectures in an article in the current number of Leslie's Weekly, "Which Power Will Win in the Far East War?" by Sidney Graves Koon. Mr. Koon is an expert in naval matters, and he logically and convincingly presents the relative strength and efficiency and the chances of the opposing forces. In this, as in previous numbers, war pictures are a marked feature, while note is taken of the St. Louis exposition in a spirited drawing on the front by Gordon H. Grant, showing the exposition as seen from an air-ship; and also in a double page, giving superb panoramic views of the buildings and grounds.

What may be ranked as the unique magazine serial of the year, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell's "The Youth of Washington," is now, for many readers, easily first in interest in each number of the Century. The June chapters will tell—and readers will find it hard to distinguish which of the quaint, formal phrases are Washington's, which his biographer's—of the young Washington's choice of surveying as a profession, of his experiences in laying out land, and of his appointment by Governor Dinwiddie as one of his adjutant generals. Will it be possible that, in years to come (in spite of the many explanations that "The Youth of Washington" is autobiographical only in form), readers will come to accept this historical study as an actual instead of an imagined autobiography?

The cover of the Pilgrim for May is one of the finest examples of three-color printing ever shown on the newsstands. It is certainly a cover that will be preserved, for its beauty, by all the young men and women who see it, and by many of their elders as well. It is not too much to say that the cover gives an excellent clew to the contents and general appearance of the contents. A striking story by Mary Imlay Taylor, author of many novels and short stories, serves to open the number. A page of charming pictures illustrates Mrs. Wiggs on the stage, and following Grace Isabel Colbron contributes a genuinely valuable article, entitled, "Europe on Next to Nothing a Day." In "The Municipal Enterprises of Freiburg," Edward Rumley contributes an article that should be of decided interest to all Americans who are interested in the cause of municipal improvement.

The Middle West, "the very heart of our country," is the subject of an admirable paper in the June Harper's by Henry Loomis Nelson. Mr. Nelson points out many salient differences between the Middle West, the East, and "the real West." He describes the status of women in the Middle West, and paints an attractive picture of social conditions there. Mr. Nelson is an accomplished student of American affairs, social and political. He is professor of political science in Williams college.

SPINSTERS, WIVES, AND—WIDOWS

By KATE THYSON MARR.

The widow never knows when she may have a chance, or miss a chance, hence it behooves her to be, as it were, always well brushed and garnished, for she knoweth not the day nor the hour thereof wherein the next bridegroom cometh, and that is just exactly where the widow scores in the matrimonial round. (The second).

A woman of keen intuitions can sit in a hotel lobby or a fashionable cafe, and point out the spinsters, the wives, or the fetching widows at a glance. Each one seems to be cut out on well defined lines, after exclusive patterns that are copyrighted and trade-marked.

The spinster, be she young or old, aggressive, progressive, digressive, or elusive, has always the air of being engaged in hunting for something that she has never been able to find, whether it be a man hunt, or chasing the evanescent phantom of woman's mission, at any rate, the expression is there both in face, manner and in the unrest of unhaloed spinsterhood.

She is either gowned as well as her purse affords, or she effects a total disregard of the niceties of toilet and personal adornment. If she be a creature of fads, she will tell you in a toplofty, high treble score, that her mind is abstracted or contracted beyond such vanity and folly. She has a mission, and when a woman has a mission, for goodness' sake let her go on it and be done with it—it is the only royal road for your peace of mind.

The wife always has a "sure-of-herself" look. She is possessed of a happy consciousness that hubby will pay her bills, and why should she care? If she comes in looking for any one, her face plainly indicates that she knows what she is looking for and will be sure to find "it," and "it" means hubby. She dresses to please herself, as her own taste dictates. Of course, she will please hubby in such matters, provided, that in pleasing him and wearing what he wishes her to wear, she manages to wear exactly what she herself prefers. Should she be still young and charming, she dresses well, as a matter of vanity, but after the vanity stage is mellowed by time, she thinks more of comfort, and pleases herself, and it is none the less true that a woman's taste deteriorates with age.

Compare two women of 45 or 50, the one a wife and the other a widow, and the result will give you something wherein to cogitate. The widow will be trig, her corsets a perfect fit, and her general air thoroughly in her favor. The wife will array herself for comfort, and don what she chooses. The widow will array herself in what she knows is most becoming, and will better show off her face and figure. The wife dresses to please herself, the widow to create an impression. One gown might attract one man's attention, that would fall flat with another.

It is passing strange that a man has to shy off to heaven, or to any other old place, in order to metamorphose a commonplace little wife from an ordinary household dummy to an accomplished strategist. The procession of the corpse from the hall door to the grave is often the turning point in a woman's life. As a wife, she may have blushed unseen, but as a widow, she will not blush at all, or at anything, or if she should by accident, it will be well noted and she will be in a measure ashamed as not being-up-to-date, or in keeping with the spirit of the times.

Very few men would care to return to enjoy a furtive glance at their widows. The reception that a round trip ticket might evoke runs the risk of being either warmer than is salubrious, or not warm enough. The poor, dear man who returned thus unexpectedly would be more than likely to run up against a few surprise parties that would be more startling than flattering.

People are much inclined to a curious inspection of the newly-made widow, and the friends and relations of the family indulge in comments and speculations at times more caustic than kind.

If the widow settles down to tears and lamentations, they are apt to think her hypocritical and a few other mean things not found in the decalogue. If she starts out in frills and furbelows they assail her one another with the hue and cry—"I told you so"—which is raised loud enough to rattle the bones of the dear departed. If she buries herself every one is suspicious and if she laments her lonliness each and all are ready to register a few vows that she is ready for another throw for joy or misery. If she smothers herself in crepe, she is told how foolish it is to do so, that it is "so unhealthy," and if she lays the crepe aside, she is giddy, unfeeling, frivolous, or anything in the irresponsible line.

People make bets as to how long she will remain a widow, and if by any chance she steers clear of matrimony, they criticise her worse than ever, wondering why, and manufacturing conclusions of which the one most concerned never dreamed.

A widow should really marry again as a matter of self-protection. While yet unappropriated, spinsters are jealous, and wives suspicious. If she casts her eyes to the leeward of a girl's best beau, the girl is in hysterics and calls her a mean designing thing. If she casts the same orbs to the windward of her best friend's hubby, fortwith the best friend collapses with nervous palpitations, and will not stop at calling her designing, if her vocabulary can furnish any expletive conveying a more wicked ultimatum, and it is astonishing the variety and quantity of mean things that one woman can fabricate and disseminate whereby to injure another, whose only fault perhaps lies in the fact of her good lucks and general attractiveness.

Of course, the widow is fascinating. A widow who is not is not worthy the care and guardianship of the dear angel gone before, but not—(really, Mr. Editor, we don't know whether he's not forgotten or not, but we'll risk it), forgotten, and to be sure she always dresses well, even if she runs in debt to do it, and who can blame her? Who wants a shabby widow around? A shabby woman of any degree is harrowing enough, gracious knows, but a shabby widow is heart-rending. She hasn't the ghost of a show of getting another.

Now, the widow does not want a lonesome old age. If she could call a halt on Time and remain young she would also prefer to remain a widow. But the awful uncertainty of a lonely old age and a trip over the hills to the poorhouse has a sobering effect that leads her to willingly sacrifice her charming prerogatives of single blessedness for the creature comforts of a second experience.

In a first marriage, a girl is too unskilled and blind to see anything. In a second venture she has one eye on Cupid, and the other on the safe deposit vault. Then too, a first marriage is a sort of eye-opener, but at the second venture she is generally pretty wide awake.

A spinster always cherishes such a good opinion of herself that she waits to be wooed. The wife thinks she has achieved her mission and is either indifferent or wants her own way, that is if she belongs to any woman's club.

There are a few passive wives who have either been trained that way by their spouses or who do not know any better. Once in a great while you may find a woman who is really in love with her hubby. In that event, she is either an angel or an inmitigated nuisance. If an angel, she is adorable, and matrimony may be the vestibule of Heaven with a mortgage on St. Peter's bunch of keys. But, if she thinks she is in love and is not well balanced, but is jealous, capricious and exacting, a man would prefer being hated to being loved by such a woman.

The widow and her den is generally the happy hunting ground of the henpecked husband.

The widow, if she does not do the large majority of the wooing herself, she, at least, meets the wooer half way, which compialsance on her part fills the heart of the poor dear mere man with such a sense of his own importance, such a glad elation as expands his soul, that he thinks her wonderfully clever because she appreciates him, and if poor dear Jack could come back and see how his poor little demure Marie Anner who was such a dear unsophisticated little rosebud has blossomed out into a gorgeous tropical exotia his eyes would just bulge.

So boys, I guess an allwise Providence was attending strictly to business when making the all-wise provision of the absolute impossibility of a man keeping tabs on his widow.

A very few might possibly be flattered, but the chances are that one glance at the widow would rake the conceit out of the most satisfactory corpse. There is no denying that the widow is the spice of life.

"By the time you have returned to the cabin and cut your bread and started your coffee to brewing, you may think of uncovering your breakfast from the ashes. When the trout comes out, and you have removed its wrappings it looks so much as it did when it left the water and lay quivering and flashing in the grass that you can scarcely believe that it is dead, and not only dead, but cooked.

"And there is the trout's natural smell, sweet and penetrating, which the herbs kept from wasting away.

CURES LOSS OF APPETITE.

Clears the Complexion and Restores the Health—Rea Bros.' Cascarin.

Cure after all others have failed is the result of experience with this wonderful remedy. Diseases of the liver, stomach, kidneys and bowels are usually very pronounced in their manifestations; inpronounced symptoms the head aches; the back grows weaker and more painful; the patient becomes debilitated; the eye duller and more lifeless; the inability to sleep at night is more pronounced than ever; constipation, catarrh of the stomach, dyspepsia, inability to digest food, loss of appetite and all the distressing symptoms of diseased or inactive stomach and bowels, liver and kidneys become more aggravated and the sufferer feels more wretched and tired of existence than ever. You may take remedies and medicines which will relieve, perhaps for a short time, but you cannot get rid of the trouble unless you effect the cure of what causes it. Rea Bros.' Cascarin will do this, and when this is done you cannot be a sufferer from these troubles, because the cause of such ssuffering is removed. At all druggists, 50c a bottle.

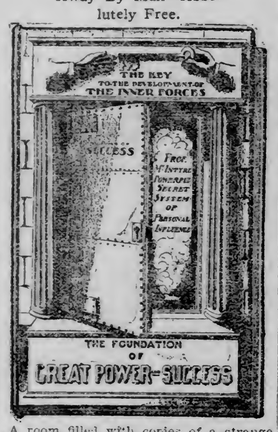
WHO WROTE THIS WONDERFUL MYSTERIOUS BOOK?

Reveals Startling Secrets Jealously Guarded for Ages By Adepts.

Explains the Workings of a Strange Force That Has Been Overlooked By Scientists for Centuries Past.

Tells How Men and Women Wield a Powerful Influence Over the Minds and Lives of Others. Why Some Succeed and Others Fail.

Peculiar Arrangement by Which 100,000 Copies Are to Be Given Away By Mail—Absolutely Free.



A room filled with copies of a strange and mysterious book, the like of which has never been fed to the eyes of the public, is on exhibition at an institution in New York city. Scientists and physicians have read copies of it with amazement, speculation is rife among masters of occult sciences as to who wrote it; many contend that no mind of this age could divulge the carefully guarded secrets of the wise old sages and adepts in such simple language.

Professor Frederick T. McIntyre, who claims authorship of the work, offers to send a copy free to any person who will in his own handwriting send the following odd lines to him.

"I want power of mind.
Force and strength in look.
If my writing is satisfactory,
Please send me the book."

Professor McIntyre says that he can tell by glancing at those he receives just what the one who penned them is best fitted for in life; what the writer's characteristics are, and whether the writer will succeed in using to advantage the many powerful secret systems of personal influence outlined in the book. He does not wish to send it to any person who would use the system of personal control for any other than an honorable purpose. Like Andrew Carnegie, he believes in the distribution of good books. No book in this age of scientific progress has created such a well-merited furor of interest.

This book is full of startling surprises and many pictures showing how one mind controls another; it explains how the strange phenomena of developing personal magnetism, hypnotic influence, magic curing of diseases, reading characters and minds, projecting thoughts to distant places are accomplished; it gives you the key to the development of the inner forces, concentration, force of character, memory and powerful systems of swaying the minds of others; how to overcome the most obstinate disease or habit through an inward subjective power, as the Hindoos banish disease and despondency at will.

It is by far the most wonderful book of the age and all who receive free copies of it can be thankful, it points out the road to financial and social success; it reveals the many mysterious phenomena that have baffled scientists for centuries past.

If you wish a free copy of this wonderful book sit down and write the above verse and send it to Professor F. T. McIntyre, Dept. H. No. 120 West Thirty-fourth street, New York city.

All who write will receive it, no one will be disappointed; it will be sent by mail postage paid, absolutely free.

CREEVY IS HELD.

Must Answer to Charge of Grand Larceny.

James Creevy was bound over to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of petty larceny yesterday afternoon in the municipal court. Judge Windom fixed his bail at $350, which he was unable to furnish.

Creevy was an hostler in the employ of Frank Shillings, a teamster. He is claimed to have entered a barn back of the fire department headquarters, where the Ribenack brothers had a large quantity of furniture stored, and to have removed a number of articles, valued at about $200.

Creevy is claimed to have smashed up the articles alleged to have been stolen and sold them for junk to the second hand dealers.

HANDCUFFED HIS WIFE

To Lover and Delivered Them to Constable.

Pittsburg, Penn., May 21.—After a search of a week for his missing wife Michael Latoski, of Towers, near here, located her and Stanley Wilson, her alleged lover, at Cambridge, on the outskirts of the city. He immediately placed them under arrest by taking the law in his own hands. Wilson put up a short fight, but Latoski succeeded in handcuffing the pair together. He brought them to the city and will have them taken back to Towers, where he will prosecute them.

A week ago, it is charged, the wife disappeared, along with $400 of the husband's money, leaving four small children behind. Latoski suspected where she had gone, and located her. Wilson had secured a position and, it is alleged, was about to begin housekeeping with Mrs. Latoski. The couple are now in the hands of a constable.

THE GOSSIP OF GOTHAM

Broke Spell of Apron Strings and Took To Himself a "Fairy" Who Led Him a Merry Chase For Nine Busy Years.

New York, May 21.—One of the buyers at a recent sale of a collection of small bronzes, with a few bits of genuine medaeval armor and a dozen or so of reasonably high-grade tapestries, was an example of the New Yorker who doesn't want to be rid of his girl. He secured three of the smaler tapestries and the sort of counterfeit knight that is suitable for a hall corner, these at prices the art salesroom regarded as good, and bought a little bronze miscellany that went at the heartbreaking figures art objects and antiques sometimes fetch when there is no especial impetus to work them off to the wealthy. These were sent to her home in the West Side in the eighties. This is a fine house on the pleasant side of the street, in a block exclusive in the sense that there's not a flat building or business sign in it, and further desirable from the fact that all its occupants are of entire respectability so far as outward appearances go. So she's—outwardly, so completely that none of her neighbors suspects her history. This is a story of remarkable willfulness on her part, and of singularly enduring infatuation on his.

FAST TO APRON STRINGS.

There have been nine years of their acquaintance. He had been brought up in leash of the apron strings. An austere mother, made not the least unyielding with her son because his father broke away from respectability once in a while, saw to it that his childhood was very much in the personally conducted way. He had no chance of escape for more than the briefest periods while in college, for mother selected Columbia and the son boarded and roomed at home. It was shortly after graduation and some ten years after his father's death that he first met this fay. His mother had by then succumbed enough to a chronic complaint to keep away long enough to have some insight into the matters so long forbidden.

He has told of the happening that first drew him especialy to the woman. He had spent an evening in her company and was going home, for he had not reached the stage of such recreators where home is reached only after other places are closed. His fairy was remarkably fond, and had announced her intention of seeing him home, since he insisted on going there in the shank of the evening, and to reciprocate her lurking mood, he had consented planning to alight at the "any old address" he gave the driver and let her go on.

GASPED AND SHIVERED.

But the damsel knew more about his affairs than he thought—that's a trick such women have—and once the carriage was well started she called to the driver his correct addres. It was in the manner of lively frolic and he did not countermand, but when his mother's dwelling was reached, she threatened so long and with such seeming seriousness to pay a call upon the sick woman, that when she finally was driven away laughing merrily at her own joke, he was fairly gasping at her daring.

But if that was the hit that has enabled her to fasten upon him, he was experienced enough also from her. She has put upon him snub on snub, and still he has gone on providing, on an elegant scale of late, for now he has come into his mother's property. It is nothing unusual for a woman of her class to be unable to stand prosperity, but such inability usually finds expressions in undue indulgence in beverages or in too large a corcle of men acquaintances. This charmer had none of these failings, yet she was spoiled enough, showing it by a capriciousness that might be expected of a petted daughter of wealth, rather than of one coming from the half-world, and before that from no one knows what lowliness or worse. In the quarters he provided for her early in their acquaintance, she had a maid and a "sister."

WAS A MEEK SWAIN.

I put the relation in quotes, as it is reasonably suspected of being like that of some of the "sisters" of vaudeville, who are related only because they use the same make-up box. But sister was a companion to the woman, one in whose company she seemed to find much pleasure, since again and again she ordered her protector out of her sight, and then would go off and enjoy herself to her mood of the moment in the woman's company.

The man took these repulses with the utmost meekness. No swain ever met his sweetheart's petulance with finer patience than did this man his mistress's ill-temper. The surest way of recovering her good graces was to pay, pay, pay, and the presents he showered upon her were of increasingly costly grade. By the time, early in their acquaintance, that he had her flat in the forties very richly and completely furnished, she took a dislike to the outfit, which eventually went to an art salesroom, except the small proportion of the furnishings that were of ordinary grade. For the succeeding three months she was in Atlantic City with "sister" in a high-priced suit of rooms in one of the high-grade hotels of that resort. He saw her once a week only in that time, for, though a man of property, he also is a steady worker. He needs to be finely paid, too, for his work to get the wherewith for her whims.

WON A TRIP TO EUROPE.

For a month after her return they lived in a small hotel down town, when her restlessness broke out afresh. She yearned for a trip to Europe, and won it, though not until he had opposed the scheme as stoutly as he seemed to be able to. Sister didn't go along. Perhaps his opposition had accomplished that much. But the woman recrossed the Atlantic within three months of the time of her start, and seemed to be taking up new methods, since she declared that she was unable to stay longer, because so lonesome away from him. Soon after he installed her in a dwelling on Lexington avenue, and by the time, two years later, she was wearied of it, it was standing in her name and incumbered but a trifle. There was a tidy lot of furnishings also, including many of the art trifles on which she insisted as so many necessaries of her easy life.

When they had been sacrificed she had what she made him believe was a dreadful attack of nerves. For a year she spent his money as recklessly for consultations with specialists of high grade as she had previously blown it for furnishings. But as soon as she became interested in the project of a new house her hysterical condition improved without other treatment.

EXHAUSTED ARCHITECTS.

He narrowly escaped having to build to suit her notions through her happening upon her present dwelling and being vastly taken with it. After he had bought it for her it was suggested strongly that its chief recommendation to her was the opportunities it presented for alterations. Three different architects exhausted their own and her patience before the house was, to her notion, ready for occupancy. When she had moved in, which was two years ago, she was more flucky than ever as to furniture and ornaments. Though reasonably well outfitted at the time, he has been buying at odd times for her ever since. Her complete indifference to decency in the treatment of his purchases and gifts is amazing. He knows what it is to be ordered to take way with him a portable ornament he has bought to please his charmer. Last winter he found in a Columbus avenue pawnbroker's shop a statuette, which she had pledged for a few dollars less than a fifth of what he had paid for it but a few weeks before, and then had forgotten it altogether. There's not the slightest surety that her content with her present surroundings will last a month longer, and, according to all precedent, her next move will be a very expensive one for him. Yet he holds on, and is likely to in any outcome. When to those of his acquaintances who know of his establishment he speaks of its occupant, he voices praise of her and pride in her. So the end is not in sight, though some of his friends declare their belief that bankruptcy for him will be one feature of it.

AN INCIDENT OF FLAT INVESTMENT.

Do you want to buy a flat house? They are a sound form of investment these days when purchased judiciously, for they're not being built in numbers equal to the demand resulting from the city's increase of population. This one likely can be had cheap, too, for the owner is very anxious to dispose of it at once. All the flats are occupied with tenants who are regular in their payments. The owner will give up her flat so soon as the deal is closed, which will give the new owner a chance to live in his own property if he cares to. West Fifty-fourth street, is the location, a flat neighborhood, not fashionable by any means, but entirely respectable.

The tenant on the ground floor right across the hall from the owner is the cause of the property coming on the market. She is a widow, bright of hair and manner, who confessed when making application for the apartment that she had her living to make. She was able, however, to deposit with her landlord certain securities left her by her late husband. These gave him ample guaranty for his rent, and he told his wife, in whose name the building lies and who now is anxious to dispose of it, that he would have been strongly tempted to have accepted her without security, so favorably was he impressed with the widow's ability as a business woman.

WOULD TAKE BOARDERS.

Her scheme for making her livelihood was a simple one, with apparently excellent prospect. She would take to board two friends, a married couple, both employed down town. Then there were in the city two nephews of her late departed, young men making their way in the world. These young chaps she hoped would board with her. If they didn't she had little doubt that she could get satisfactory boarders instead of them.

Neither had her landlord, and all went well until one unhappy day when his wife opined that there was something strange about the tenants of that flat. Under pressure she disclosed uncertainty as to their relationship, one to another. The landlord in all simplicity sought to acquaint her with all he knew. Next night he found his wife in a mood for receiving corroboration of his statements. She was a widow, she big fellow and the other woman were husband and wife, and the other two were her nephews? Right, she had it. At which the wife sniffed and retorted that the widow's behavior was remarkably affectionate. Yes, she kissed each of the men on their departure for their work and again on their return toward night. Further, the other woman didn't seem at all pleased at the widow's caresses for the big man, and as for the young fellows, they put in an ardor, not to speak of a tendency to linger and prolong, into their kisses that seemed extraordinary to lavish upon an aunt. Aunt! quoth the wife, in conclusion, and the one word constituted so eloquent a climax that the husband declared he would look into the behavior of these folks across the hall.

KISSED HIM WARMLY.

He began his investigation within an hour, earlier than he had intended, because of accidental overseeing one of the partings of which his wife had spoken of so contemptuously. He whom the wife had described as the big man was the recipient of the widow's goodbye. The two were just outside her front hall door, and the landlord, having just passed out of his rear hall door, had only to stand still to take it all in. First, the widow wrapped her arms about her boarder and kissed him warmly. Then she drew her lips from his long enough to lay her face on his shoulder, following this with another ardent kiss. Do you wonder that the landlord stood as if glued to his hall matting? Then, having looked tenderly into her boarder's eyes for a spell, the widow said:

"Here's hoping that you average two hundred," a toast that she drank from his lips, and at such length that the shocked landlord was tempted to shake his own door-handle in protest. "Say, when," proceeded the widow, "are you going (smack) to organize (smack) that ladies' (smack) bowling club?" (smack, smack).

The reply was indistinct and hurried because one of the nephews passed out of the door of the widow's flat at that moment, and the large man went up on to the street.

A MORE EMPHATIC EMBRACE.

You're not going, Charlie?" said the widow brightly to the newcomer while yet the other boarder was in hearing. "Well, good-by," and she forthwith enwrapped him as fondly as she had the other. The landlord stood aghast, noticing that this embrace was more emphatic than the other, and that the widow only playfully remonstrated with the youngster for his excessive ardor, telling him that she'd have to get herself a stop-watch if he was going to hang onto her like that.

The landlord passed out to the street with the youngster, the widow having retired to her rooms, and though somewhat benumbed, received a further impression from the fact that the first man was waiting for the other in the best of good feeling. Evidently they were a strangely happy family, thought the landlord, as he halted the older man for a few words. They were frank and to the point. There was something, much if appearances were an indication, that needed an explanation. He was met frankly, ingeniously. The sum and substance of the explanation was that the widow was of a remarkably affectionate disposition. His wife had hinted so much, the landlord recalled, and then, blind weakling, he decided that he'd go and see.

SHE WAS TOO AFFABLE.

He looked in at mid-afternoon of the next day. The widow was surprised to have a call from him so remote from rent day, but was all cordiality. He was just in time to share her afternoon cup of tea—if he would, and after the look she gave him he did. By strange coincidence she couldn't endure a cup of tea unless it contained precisely the amount of suger he took in his, and she was altogether so affable that he found it impossible to go at her as directly as he had approached her boarder. The latter, she explained readily, was an old friend of her dead husband's, and was doing so much for her. As for the young men, she had promised them all the comforts of a home, and was doing her best to keep her word. The boarder of her own sex was a dear, distinctly all right, a thoroughbred, and the widow's eyes snapped, though a moment before they had verged on the tearful.

To just what stage her confidences had extended I do not know, but the visitor had prolonged his call until his wife, who knew his errand, became impatient. It was excessive curiosity to know the outcome, doubtless, that led her to open the widow's parlor door without rapping. What she saw was further testimony to that bright-haired woman's singular affectionateness. Also, it was what threw this desirable parcel of real estate on the market. Three-fourths of the purchase money may remain on mortgage at 4½ per cent, I believe. Come, who'll buy?

MOTHER OF A HERO.

A Tribute to Mrs. Ann Eliza Gridley

Captain Charles Vernon Gridley made himself famous in a day, and secured a permonent place in history. As commander of Dewey's flagship at Manila, he conducted his part of that great and momentous battle with a skill and bravery that did much toward achieving the glorious result. He was suffering that day with a fatal malady, and was in fearful paln throughout the battle; but he clung valiantly to his work, and to him went a goodly share of the honors of the conflict, says Carlton's Magazine.

Heroes do not come from chance; they must have a logical development. In most cases, the greatness of great men can be traced largely to their mothers; and in the strong but womanly face of Ann Eliza Gridley, we see an illustration of that fact.

Mrs. Gridley was born in Waterloo, N. Y., upon the Christmas day of 1825. Her father was a Hollander, her mother of Scotch descent.

When she was seven years old, the little girl lost her mother, and became the ward of her uncle, who soon afterward removed to Goshen, Ind., taking her with him. In four years he died; and the half-grown young lady who was destined to be the mother of one of the world's chief warriors, found a refuge with her sister, in the quiet little town of Tecumseh, Michigan. Here, a few years later, she met Franklin Gridley, who afterwards became her husband.

The little family, after a few experiments as to place of residence finally settled in the pretty and fast-growing village of Hillsdale, Mich., which was afterwards to become a thriving city, and the seat of a well-known and influential college. Charles, afterwards Captain Gridley, was born on November 24, 1844.

The family had its struggles; a certain amount of iron-bound resolution was necessary, in those pioneer days, when the country roundabout was, largely, unsettled, and forest trees grew where now flourish all the accompaniments of modern cvivilization.

The boy, "Charley," participated in those struggles, as soon as he was old enough, and did his part loyally, from the beginning. He found time to acquire a good common school education and to take part of a literary course at Hillsdale college; but in September 1860, his mother dedicated him to the serivce of his country, by sending him to the Annapolis naval academy, where he graduated in 1863.

When the great American civil war broke out, Mrs. Gridley felt that her mission was in the field, among the sick and wounded soldiers; and she soon became one of the best known and loved of the many nurses that toiled and suffered in the army of the Potomac. While at Annapolis, toward the close of the war, she contracted the spotted fever; and for a year did not recover from its effects.

Meanwhile her only remaining son, Lucius E. Gridley, had joined the Second Michigan infantry; and he participated in the masterly campaigns in which Grant fought his way through the wilderness and captured Lee at Appomattox.

In her two sons, Mrs. Gridley had offered her best heart's treasures to the country; and had added to the gift her own sympathy, toil and bravery. The war being over, she obtained a clerical position in one of the departments at Washington, and has since served the country in that way.

She is now seventy-nine years old, but she still retains much of the fire and energy which characterized her younger days.

Last Fourth of July, she was back again among the scenes of her early life at Hillsdale, Mich., and attended an anniversary of the laying of the corner-stone of Hillsdale college, where her now distinguished son had studied for a time, before going into the naval academy at Annapolis. She had with her the captain's flag which he used on the Olympia, and it was given a conspicuous place upon the platform, to which she was escorted amid cheers from the large audience assembled.

As she stood there, the large throng sang "America," with a fervor and solemnity taht had seldom been witnessed before, and the quiet woman who had sacrificed so much in order that her boy should prove a brave and helpful American, was honored in every way that the officers of the college and the citizens of the town could devise.

An effort is in progress to procure for this brave mother of heroes, a substantial pension from our national government; and it is to be hoped it will succeed.

Not only is this true woman a mother of a hero, but a grandmother of a martyr as well; for Lieutenant J. V. P. Gridley, one of the victims of that sad disaster on the battleship Missouri, April 13, was her grandson, he being a son of Captain Charles V. Gridley.

BAVARIAN COUNTRY LIFE.

In old Bavarian districts many of the smaller towns are merely walled farm villages, says the Chicago News. These settlements of agriculturists reproduce the ancient laager for all. Each is built in the form of a parallelogram, the shorter sides having each a gateway, with double gates, over which rise central square watch towers capped with conical red roofs. A narrow road or street runs from gate to gate, with old half-timber houses set back close to the inclosing wall. The ground floor of these houses affords stabling for cattle, and from these stables the cows are driven out through the town gates in the morning and brought in at night. Townships like this are merely clusters of houses intimately connected with the farm lands that lie beyond their gates. The peasantry, whether peasant proprietors or allotment leaseholders, go in and out to their work.

In eastern Bavaria, toward the Danube, where the better-class farms are to be seen, one finds farmhouses of wood, a great shingled roof covering, as in Holland—not only the large living apartment, with many bedrooms, but also the stables for the horses and cattle. On such farms much of the farm work is done by girls, who usually wear short petticoats, tight bodices and kerchiefs on their heads. Most of the men are either in the army or working at trades.

Cattle in Bavaria are much used in plowing and hauling. They are frequently yoked in a curious manner, so that the pull comes from the forehead and not from the neck, or rather shoulders, which is the ordinary way elsewhere.

AN EXPENSIVE RETORT.

The appointment of Judge Stafford, of Vermont, to the district bench to succeed Judge Pritchard, who has been named as circuit judge, calls forth this story from Representative Foster of that state, says the Louisville Times.

"When Chief Justice Chase, a man of great ability and marked characteristics, was presiding in one of the county courts of Vermont an appeal case from a justice's court came up before him, so small and contemptible in its origin that he ordered it stricken from the docket. The case was where a turkey had trespassed upon the garden of a neighbor and got shot for his depredations. The owner brought suit to recover damages, and, failing before the justice, had appealed the case. Judge Chase was angry, and when he ordered the case from the docket, said:

"'The lawyer who consented to appeal this case ought to be thrown from the window of the court room. Why didn't he have the case referred to some of the honest neighbors for settlement?'

"'Because, your honor,' retorted the attorney, getting hot under the collar, "it was our intention not to let honest people have anything to do with it.'

"True, this was a neat retort, but it cost the lawyer just an even $50 for contempt of court."

Theatrical

THE COMING WEEK AT THE THEATERS

"Cheek" Will Be Presented the First Half of the Week and "The Streets of New York" the Second Half at the Metropolitan.

Commencing Monday, the Kennedy Stock company will present one of Rolland Reid's greatest successes, when this popular company will be seen in the play of "Cheek." It has been twelve years since this play has been seen in Duluth, at which time, Roland Reid appeared in the character that John J. Kennedy will play, Dick Smythe, "a gentleman, and don't care who knows it." The play abounds with thrilling situations, and the vein of broad comedy throughout the piece keeps the audience heartily interested from the rise of the curtain on the first act, to the fall of the last curtain.

The first act is laid in Virginia and the succeeding acts in New York City, which gives ample opportunity for elaborate scenic embellishment. Especially is this true in the third act, when a reproduction of Madison Square is presented in every detail; the Fifth avenue hotel is in evidence, while the adjacent buildings of Collins the publishers, Broadway, in the distance with illumination, and elaborate dressing by members of the company all tend to make this one of the most popular plays presented here during the summer by the Kennedy Stock. Cheek has been in the company's repertoire the past three years, and has been used as an opening bill in the majority of the cities where the company has appeared during that time, never failing to give great satisfaction wherever presented. The humor is typical of the inimitable Roland Reid and John J. Kennedy handles the character in a manner, that will be sure to make a decided impression upon those who attend, and will, no doubt, establish him as one of the most versatile comedians ever appearing in Duluth.

Following "Cheek," "The Streets of New York" will be presented a thrilling story of New Yorw life, and some scenic surprises are also promised for this well known and popular play.

There will be an entire change of specialties, with the change of each play, and matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday, at which time a diamond ring wil be presented to some lady in attendance.

In the near future the Kennedy Stock will produce an elaborate revival of "The Two Orphans," and it is promised that the company will be seen at its best in this great play.

ISABEL IRVING.

Miss Mabel Irving, who will be seen in this city, May 30 and 31, at the Metropolitan theater, in Winston Churchill's dramatization of his famous novel, "The Crisis," has won her place in the ranks of the stars by sheer hard work and artistic achievement. Beginning when little more than a mere child as a member of Rosina Vokes company, she has worked her way successively from there to being a valued member of Augustin Daly's company, then to the place of leading woman in the finest stock company this country has ever seen, the famous Lyceum stock company of New York, then to be leading woman for John Drew, then leading woman with Charles Frohman's favorite company, his Comedians, then as a semi star under the same management, and now for the past two years as a full fledged star, under the management of James K. Hackett. Miss Irving, in spite of her years of hard work, is still a very young woman, and she is as modest and unassuming as in the days when she was a little girl playing her first parts with that queen of comedy, Rosina Vokes.

LYCEUM ATTRACTIONS.

"A Girl From Dixie" and "The Game Keeper."

The Lyceum will have two attractions next week. Friday and Saturday evenings "A Girl From Dixie" will be seer. This is one of the Shubert, Nixon & Zimmerman musical comedies and has been a great success. Briefly told, the plot of "A Girl From Dixie" deals with the fortunes of a young woman born south of the Mason and Dixon line, and revolves around the fortune which belongs to one Nick Calvert, but which through mistake has been given to Kitty Calvert.

Thursday evening Thomas J. Smith, the singing Irish comedian, and his company will appear in the "Game Keeper," a production that is claimed to be one of much merit.

SHAKESPEARE.

In the Library and On the Stage.

Caroline Wells, when she built her charming conglomeration of fun, "The Nonsense Anthology," overlooked one inexhaustible occasion for merriment, says F. A. M., in the Cincinnati Enquirer. Had she hit upon the pedagogue who is forever wailing at Shakespeare's plays "were written for the theater and survive for the library," and so supplants the actor with courtously discordant foot-notes, her wonderful little book would have been complete and a gem beyond compare.

Several personally appointed noodles, scintillant annotators of the text of Shakespeare, have been playing on this string for so long a time that they have come to believe the tune as tuneful as they consider it true. But it is neither musical nor is it a fact, that Shakespeare had ceased to be actable, and to understand the deeper meaning of the text one must depend upon a lot of ridiculous comments instead of the finer art of the actor.

In order to discover to what a low level of absurdity these foot-note ninnies have sunk, all that is necessary to do is to pick up almost any copy of Shakespeare and read the annotations. The reader will there discover such startling facts as that when Shakespeare said "silly" he meant "absurd," and that when he wrote "boundless" he intended "big."

The pedagogue's purpose seems to be to deprive the reader of thinking for himself or making use of his own imagination. It is, however, rather rough on Shakespeare to put him in the same class with the author of "Mother Goose." However, before entering upon an examination of some of the notes to Shakespeare let us see what the annotators who consider that Shakespeare is for the library only have done for "the old lady with the shoe." Take "Hey, Diddle, Diddle," for example:

"Hey, diddle, diddle,
The cat and the fiddle,
The cow jumped over the moon;
The little dog laughed
To see such sport,
And the dish ran away with the spoon,"

Here are Clara Austin Winslow's curious annotations:

"The following questions are suggested for stimulating the pupil's imagination:

"What is the significance of the first line? 'Hey' was originally a sad character.

"Do you understand that the cat had already begun to play the fiddle?

"How did the cow jump—by the Delsarte method?

"What is a full moon?

"Was the dog's laughing an evidence of wit or humor, or might there have been a combination of the two elements?

"Would it have been possible for the dog to see at such a distance?"

The reader may say that it is very absurd to state that any annotator ever applied any such extraordinary questions to the text of Shakespeare. If he thinks in this way he will presently be disillusioned. Let us take a few lines from Shakespeare's text and then discover the notes to them:

"O sleep, O gentle sleep,
Nature's soft nurse, how have I frighted thee,
That thou no more wilt weigh my eyelids down
And steep my senses in forgetfulness."

Here are the annotations:

Note to the first line: "This line means that sleep is soft and caressing; but that the speaker has scared the timid creature and is suffering from that dreadful disease insomnia. Well, yet there is lacking in discernment that he asks how the timid one has been frightened."

Note to line two: "Would it not have been better for Shakespeare to have said 'lovely nurse' instead of 'soft nurse?' Certainly the Bard did not mean that this nurse was mushy."

Note to line three: "It is evident that the speaker cannot keep his eyes closed and, going to sleep, forget. It is a pretty figure, the idea of weighing the lids down as one does the eyes of a dead man, with copper cents. This custom evidently prevailed in Shakespeare's time."

Note to line four: "Hasn't Shakespeare made a frightful blunder in mixing his metaphors? In line three he speaks of weighing the eyelids down, evidently with pennies, and in the fourth line speaks of steeping the sleepless person's senses—that is, of holding the head over a pot of boiling water, i. e., soaking the head."

This is the sort of thing that emanates from those persons who consider that Shakespeare is for the study and not for the stage. But all one has to do to discover the complete absurdity of this notion is first to read the notes commonly affixed to one of the plays and then see the play acted. There are whole passages, in the dramas which are entirely lost on the reader unless he knows or sees the stage "business" which goes with them. Lately in Washington Ambrose Bierce saw a performance of "Twelfth Night." After the famous kitchen scene he said: "I read the play this afternoon and I hadn't then the slightest notion that there was such a wealth of fun and comicality in the lines and situations. After all, is takes the actor to elucidate the text, either by inflection, facial expression or by what is called 'business.' It is surprising to discover what a difference there is between reading a play and seeing it well acted."

Now, Shakespeare left much of the sense of these passages, as he has hundreds of others, for the actor to illustrate and embellish. Consequently, in order to really know one of the plays in its fullest sense it must be seen upon the stage, for, as it has been said, "the dramas were written for the theater." If Shakespeare had intended them for the library he would have supplied his own notes and illustrations and thus saved the world from a collection of ridiculous annotators.

The individual who does not go to the theater to see Shakespeare's plays performed reminds one of that sapient Hoosier who did not visit the ruins of Pompeii for the reason, as he expressed it, "that they were out of repair."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

The Nautical Melodrama Has Hit New York.

New York, May 21.—Followers of nautical melodrama here in town are having a hard time to answer that knotty but important question, "When is a girl not a boy?" And a decision in one case isn't the least bit of help in another. The whole import of "Two Little Sailor Boys" might have been misunderstood if we had believed these seafaring youths to have been girls just because they were shaped the same as the sailors in "The Signal Lights of Port Arthur." They, you know, turned out to be disguised heroines and soubrettes, who, like the lad-lassies in Gilbert's verse,

"Went to sea for love of he
In masculino array."

But all things are not what they seem, and Cyril and Tom —(Ye-ho, for the jolly tars!)—were not girls in spite of their "straight fronts."

Having pointed this fact out to you positively and undeniably, I will proceed to the vicissitudes of poor little Tom and rich little Cyril, and how they had, apparently, once upon a time seen "The Two Orphans"—(with or without the modern all-star cast, is a detail)—and were wise to the fact that all's well that ends well, and that the more misery two wandering innocents crowd into four acts of adventure the surer they are of a reward in the last great enough to insure happiness the rest of their lives. These two little sailor boys, who, by the way, didn't get any nearer to the sea than a canvas-bound tank 4 by 6, were luckier than the maiden tars in the Port Arthur play, who had to walk right into a naval battle to find their trouble, and carry their own boat at that. It came right to these boys in the form of Lola Gray, stepmother of Cyril and really, truly ma of Tom, a large, dressy lady addicted to strenuous adventuressing.

Lola was all for the river front, and, though she was so elegant that she wore evening gowns from morning to night, she invariably went to the lowest parts of the town to look for her long lost son, nautical Tom, who turned up as apprentice to a thief and might, by bringing to light her past, break up her happy home with Cyril's father, a wealthy banker, and, I may tell you, a very fine man. So when Tom "came into her life again"—(she surprised him and his guardian robbing her husband's house)—she would have had him arrested but that the thief, who was leading Tom's young footsteps to a life of crime, threatened to reveal her identity. Therefore she let them go, thus leading to the "big scene."

This transpired in a very effective setting. Indeed it is rare that a melodrama or, for that matter, a play of any sort, is so well staged as "Two Little Sailor Boys." It is a bridge in the moonlight, but not the green and constant moon usual to the stage. The sky is darkened with drifting clouds that fitfully reveal and obscure the moon, simultaneously lighting and shading the mist stream over which stretches a rustic bridge. Here little Tom, who has found out that Mrs. Gray is his mother, and, in spite of her perfidy, which is known to him, loves her with her, if only momentarily and clandestinely. Thus it is that they meet on the secret bridge, the boy just for one kiss, the mother—well, we might have known when she appeared in the country lane, resplendent in gorgeous gown and "flashing jewels," to meet her ragged, shivering, half-starved son. He begged her for but one kiss. And he got it, and got it quick. Mother Lola took advantage of the guileless moment to shove sonny into the silent stream, and run back to her pallatial halls just as fast as she could patter. But she had reckoned without stepson Cyril, who, without even doffing his "straight front," plunged headlong into the tank, hid a moment or two behind the less convincing bulk also, less suffocating canvas water, and then swam to dry land with the half dead Tom in his arms.

* * *

Much of the fun at the Lambs' annual gambol Tuesday afternoon of last week came of men playing women roles in burlesques of current pieces. But a drama, "The Squaw Man," was given with a young fellow impersonating an Indian squaw, and not by way of a joke. Edward Milton Royle had written in dead earnest the tragedy of an English lord's disowned younger brother, who became a ranchman in our West, married a Indian girl and was the father of her little boy. The family's lawyer came to tell that the lord was dead and that the title and estates awaited the wanderer's return. Now you see the problem. The "squaw man" couldn't take his aboriginal wife to England. Should he desert her? Ah, she loved him, and he wouldn't abandon her. Well, there you have it; absolved metaphors? In line three he speaks of weighing the eyelids down, evidently with pennies, and in the fourth line speaks of steeping the sleepless person's senses—that is, of holding the head over a pot of boiling water, i. e., soaking the head."

This is the sort of thing that emanates from those persons who consider that Shakespeare is for the study and not for the stage. The "squaw man" couldn't take his aboriginal wife to England. Should he desert her? Ah, she loved him, and he wouldn't abandon her. Well, there you have it; absolved from those persons who consider that Shakespeare is for the study and not for the stage. But all one has to do to discover the complete absurdity of this notion is first to read the notes commonly affixed to one of the plays and then see the play acted. There are whole passages, in the dramas which are entirely lost on the reader unless he knows or sees the stage "business" which goes with them. Lately in Washington Ambrose Bierce saw a performance of "Twelfth Night." After the famous kitchen scene he said: "I read the play this afternoon and I hadn't then the slightest notion that there was such a wealth of fun and comicality in the lines and situations. After all, is takes the actor to elucidate the text, either by inflection, facial expression or by what is called 'business.' It is surprising to discover what a difference there is between reading a play and seeing it well acted."

Now, Shakespeare left much of the sense of these passages, as he has hundreds of others, for the actor to illustrate and embellish. Consequently, in order to really know one of the plays in its fullest sense it must be seen upon the stage, for, as it has been said, "the dramas were written for the theater." If Shakespeare had intended them for the library he would have supplied his own notes and illustrations and thus saved the world from a collection of ridiculous annotators.

The individual who does not go to the theater to see Shakespeare's plays performed reminds one of that sapient Hoosier who did not visit the ruins of Pompeii for the reason, as he expressed it, "that they were out of repair."

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

The Nautical Melodrama Has Hit New York.

New York, May 21.—Followers of nautical melodrama here in town are having a hard time to answer that knotty but important question, "When is a girl not a boy?" And a decision in one case isn't the least bit of help in another. The whole import of "Two Little Sailor Boys" might have been misunderstood if we had believed these seafaring youths to have been girls just because they were shaped the same as the sailors in "The Signal Lights of Port Arthur." They, you know, turned out to be disguised heroines and soubrettes, who, like the lad-lassies in Gilbert's verse,

"Went to sea for love of he
In masculino array."

But all things are not what they seem, and Cyril and Tom —(Ye-ho, for the jolly tars!)—were not girls in spite of their "straight fronts."

Having pointed this fact out to you positively and undeniably, I will proceed to the vicissitudes of poor little Tom and rich little Cyril, and how they had, apparently, once upon a time seen "The Two Orphans"—(with or without the modern all-star cast, is a detail)—and were wise to the fact that all's well that ends well, and that the more misery two wandering innocents crowd into four acts of adventure the surer they are of a reward in the last great enough to insure happiness the rest of their lives. These two little sailor boys, who, by the way, didn't get any nearer to the sea than a canvas-bound tank 4 by 6, were luckier than the maiden tars in the Port Arthur play, who had to walk right young now as they did then, and I think they can act just as well."

We were astonished to see them come out in the jaunty jackets and knee breeches affected by neat song and dance teams twenty-five years ago. One of those easy melodies of that far-back time was played, and they sang to it—what do you suppose? A ditty in which they said they were two Irish lads. They covered their Jewish noses at that assertion of Irish birth, but that was their only break in the faithfulness with which they repeated the crude singing and dancing of long ago. They left us to do the laughing, and we did it.

That small lump of humor, Marshall P. Wilder, was among the volunteers at the Actors' Fund vaudeville show. The hour was late and so he took time for only two short, quick jokes. One was to enter screened behind a big announcement card, disclose himself and then place it on its rack. The second was to say: "I can't stay out here a minute. George Kessler likes the entertainment so well that he's sent in a check for a thousand dollars and I mustn't lose sight of it." The audience didn't know what to think about the check till a little later.

"Kessler has given his thousand plunks to the Actors' Home fund all right," said James J. Morton in the course of his monologue, "but I guess it means two thousand for the Kessler Home fund and that's all right, too."

What Morton meant was that the rustling rounder, whom the Tenderloin calls Count Kessler, is as well known in this town as the brand of wine he imports and was booming his merchanrise by his gift to the charity in a ratio of at least two to one.

The first half of the entertainment was feminine negro minstrelsy, with no fair face blackened and with a lone representative of the uglier sex for an interlocutor. At his right and left sat Verona Jarbeau and Mabel McKinley in contrast with each other. Mrs. Jarbeau-Levy had been for a quarter of a century in private life an undivorcible wife. But on the stage she had longer than than embodied devilry of the Parisian sort and she looked it. Mrs. McKinley-Baer, niece of a President of the United States, had gone on the stage from a modish section of New York society within a year, and that is what she looked like. The two toilets were typical. One was as loud as a yell of revelry with its gown of black, green, red and silver. The other was calm-toned in soft white and lustrous pink. Its behavior was as strongly differentiated. Verona was wide-eyed, cockeared and very knowing. So was Mabel alert to what was going on, and after Verona had her department was not demonstrative. When their times came to sing Vernona stepped forth briskly to a sensuous French ballad of winks and shrugs, and Mabel swung quietly forward on her crutches for an Indian lay of decorous sentiment. Thus did the stage and society get together for charity's sake.

There were four pairs of end women—all talented—but Marie Dressler and Elfie Fay were the funniest combination with tamborine and bones, and to smear their droll faces with burnt cork would be a waste of comicality. They are the most highly esteemed cut-ups in our Tenderloin village, and they don't save up all their fun for the theaters, but give it out freely in hotels, restaurants and wherever else a funny fit come on. Marie had been expended on for original antics at this charity show, and she didn't disappoint us. She appeared in a black evening gown, like a stylish woman, but she was tipped mannishly with a collar and tie around her neck and bared shoulders, cuffs at the wrists of her sleeveless arms and a high silk hat on her finely coiffured head. Elfie wore a simple white frock and revealed no mobility of visage and limbs for the grotesquery. They were well up in the grins and grimmaces of negroism, both of them, but it was big Marie who tickled us half to death with new tricks. Tambo Marie manifested the intensest disdain of Bones Elfie, and scorned to so much as look at the further end of the line, but glared grimly at the audience when the other woman. I ever it laughed at the end of a comic song. But most of my readers have seen these violent comediennes, and so are able to imagine the broad humor of what they did on this occasion. To others I can't undertake to convey more than a vague idea of it.

In the olio which followed the minstrels good old Tony Pastor was an exhibit. Perhaps you don't know that he is a beloved philanthropist and a vice president of the fund. He has lost his rotundity and shows all of his age of three score years and six. We demanded a song.

"Why, my friend," he replied, "I have not sung in two years—not when I knew anybody was withing hearing."

It has been decided that Edna May will, after all, return to America and be seen in her original role in "The School Girl," when that musical comedy is put on at Daly's theater next fall. Miss May has not been seen in this country for some time. She came back once after her great success in "The Belle of New York," in London, but was not well received on this side. At present she is making a big personal hit in "La Poupee," that was recently revived on the other side, but will soon abandon that part to return to America for a vacation before taking up her stage work again in her native land.

* * *

In a recent interview, Harry B. Smith made the claim that it is far more difficult to write a libretto for a musical piece than to write a play. In substantiation of this claim America's foremost librettist is said to have cited the facts that Arthur Wing Pinero and Sydney Grundy were failures as writers of librettos, while on the other hand their plays are unquestionable successful. W. S. Gilbert, he maintains, is essentially a writer of librettos, and yet he has turned his hand on several occasions to play writing, and always with success. Mr. Smith, in his contention, says he is written this description to show the danger that the squaw, played by a man at a Lambs' gambol, might be regarded as ridiculous. I shall not tell you who the actor was. I don't want to load this letter up with names. And, after all, the success of the experiment law with the author. He didn't permit his heroine to utter a word. We first saw her walk silently across the scene, an unideallized savage. When she came back to hear of the portending law she was still dumb. except for some low, inarticulate outcries. Again she went away stolidly. At the climax she was brought in limp and dead. All of that was soberly impressive.

* * *

In the main, however, the Lambs gamboled facetiously. They gave us in "The English Invasion" an inside view of their club. The English actors were shown as grumbling much, buying little, and inclined to be caddish. Clay M. Greene, the president of the Lambs, had written this skit, and he is a hard hitter when he pokes.

"They tell me," he said to the audience when the author of "The Squaw Man" was called for, "that Mr. Royale is out there in front, and I've no doubt he is helping the applause."

The single burlesque of a recent play gave the scene from "Babes in Toyland," where girls and boys of the Mother Goose tales sit in a row on a high wall, with pencils and slates, and sing a ditty called "I Can't Do That Sum." Seven chaps wore the curls, frocks and socks of little misses, made up to look as pretty as they could, happily suggesting no real effeminacy. The audience liked that.

The other piece of fun was more novel. It was a travesty of grand opera on a new plan. The point poked at was not operatic music, but operatic libretto—the common practice of delaying action for the sake of vocalism. A man and is wife were in a hotel room. There came a tremendous rapping at their door and they sang a duet, reiterating their notion that probably someone wanted to get in. The visitor proved to be a porter, breathless and excited, with the warning that the house was on fire, and they must fly instantly. Yet he delivered his message in a protracted solo, afterward joining the two others in modrigals on the perils of their plight if they didn't get out right away. Firemen dashed in to rescue them, but stayed to sing long and loud about the imminence of the danger. The smoke and glare of the conflagration came in on them, but that didn't hurry them at all in a grand finale. Gustave Kerker had composed quite dignified music for this new kind of a burlesque. R. H. Burnside had written the words, and six excellent singers didn't try to force the inherent humor by any skylarking.

Weber and Fields, the German dialect comedians, did a curious thing in this show. They have quarreled, as you know, and are to part company two weeks hence, each to go his own way. However, they showed nothing but amiability on this occasion.

"They will give you," said President Greene, "exactly the act in which they made their debut on the Bowery when they were boys. They think they look as

The spring revival of "The Two Orphans," with an all-star cast, came to a close in the New Amsterdam theater last Saturday night. This revival has been a wonderful success, having averaged receipts close to $17,000 every week of its long stay there. In fact, it has been so well received that the original promoters have decided to keep the same organization as nearly as possible intact, and by filling in the other roles send the big cast out on the road for a memorable tour next season. Clara Morris, who played the role of a Sister of Charity in the revival, bid adieu to the stage for all time with the closing of the run last night. The occasion was made a memorable one, and Miss Morris was showered with congratulations for the many kind remembrances that her brief return to the stage awakened.

The scheme tried formerly of assessing a 10c fee on every deadhead ticket in the theater, the same to go to swell the Actors' Home fund, has been revived in the East. Elizabeth Tyree, now presenting "Tit For Tat" in New York, took the initiative last week, and following the instructions of the Managers' association, collected a neat little sum in this way. It is reported that if the system can be successfully maintained that managers throughout the country will be asked to affiliate with the New York asociation in this new move, and thus make the Actors' fund even more independent than it has been heretofore. The scheme when launched originally was not handled in a systematic manner, and proved a failure. It is reported, however, that the new plans cover all the defects, and that hereafter everybody entering a New York theater on a pass will have to contribute 10 cents to the fund.

Here's a neat and far from inapt summing up of dramatic criticism and critics. It is from the pen of a young writer of the name of Benjamin de Casseres. "Dramatic criticism is of three kinds. There is the critic who goes to the theater to tell the public what he sees; there is the critic who goes to the theater to tell the public what he knows, and there is the critic who goes to the theater to tell the public what it shouldn't see or know. The first is impersonal; the second is egotistic; the third is atavistic. The first will tell you what D'Annunzio says; the second will tell you what he ought to have said, and the third will tell you what he shouldn't be allowed to say at all. The method of the first is inductive; the method of the second is deductive; the method of the third is asinine. The impersonal critic has brains; the personal critics has taste, and the eternally moral critic has billingsgate."

member of the force, is detailed to the work of the humane society and paid by that organization.

E. Jensen and J. H. Cameron are detailed to the positions of court officers and do special duty in connection with the serving of the different court warrants and papers from the municipal court.

G. F. Lahti is detailed as secretary of the department. He keeps the books, does all necessary clerical work, and acts as interpreter in the municipal court when called upon.

E. B. Force, William McEwen and J. S. Dwyer are detailed as operators. They answer all telephone calls, and keep the record of all reports sent in by the patrolmen from the patrol boxes.

A. G. Fiskitt and R. C. Johnson are on special duty as jailers, having charge of the prisoners in the station.

The above picture of the members of the department has just been completed. Since the mat was made however, there have been one or two minor changes in the force, but with these exceptions it shows the department as it is today.

A PLEA FOR THE BIRDS.

Letter to the New York Tribune: So widely known has become your well deserved reputation for upholding all that is just and right, protecting and defending the helpless, that I turn instinctively to your valuable paper to make my earnest plea for the protection of our birds, who, now that the spring has come, are again returning to us in all their trustfulness. Unless very stringent measures are soon taken, making it an offence punishable by law to kill a bird or rob its nest, our sweet songsters will soon be but a sad memory—a thing of the past.

Some of our birds are already wellnigh extinct, such as the heron—for its aigrette. Much has already been written by able writers on this subject, but the annual slaughter still continues, and will until the law takes the matter in hand. A recent article by E. G. S., from Ruthford, N. J., in the Tribune of April 13, plainly states "that the preservation of our birds is becoming a national affair."

Our government, so alert in all other matters, has not as yet fully aroused to the importance of this fact, and unless active measures are adopted without further delay the awakening may be too late. All honor to New Jersey, that the cruel sport of pigeon shooting from traps has recently been abolished! One step, at least, toward a good cause. If others would only follow!

Little need for advertising "insect destroyers" if our birds are but spared us. There are none better than the cuckoo to rid our apple orchards and fruit trees of that dreaded pest, the "tent caterpillar." Grubs and laravae are patiently dug out from shade trees and woodlands by the industrious woodpeckers and vireos. Flycatchers and swallows are successful foes to all annoying insects, including the obnoxious mosquito. Owls, with untiring zeal, destroy the mice in our grain fields. Gulls are the scavangers of our harbor. Space forbids mention of other equally useful birds, with the exception of the English sparrow, who has long since worn out his welcome by his persistent enmity to our native birds. How well it would be could he be transported home, with all other foreign immigrants who flock to our shores from all parts of the world, defying our laws under the subterfuge that "this is a land of liberty."

Bird trappers also join in the general destruction, for the capture of live birds often cause the death of the nestlings, who are thus deprived of parental care. The tragedies of the nests caused by snakes, weasels, squirrels (especially the red), birds of prey and the domestic cat are perils more than enough without man adding to them. A bird trapper who resorts to that extremely remorseless and cruel practice of putting out a bird's eyes that its piteous cries may serve as decoy to others should be severely fined, even to imprisonment.

John Burroughs in speaking of the life of birds, states: "Very few of them probably die a natural death, or even live out half their appointed days."

Milliners, I am glad to say, have been made more careful in their use of feathers, but there is still need of greater restrictions and fines placed upon them, and women made to feel they no longer wear bird-bedecked hats. There has been an improvement in this last respect, but not sufficient. Some improvement to protect our birds. Fifteen paroquet wings, with corresponding number of breasts. I recently counted upon one hat alone. Not long since a milliner vainly endeavored to persuade me that the bird I refused to wear "was only made up." I soon proved that it took the lives of three birds. Guns and the slingshots of boys are steadily doing their deadly work. The last seven summers I have spent in Maine. Woods once vocal with the almost divine chant of the hermit thrush and the exquisite notes of the veery are now silent—the sweet silvery songs forever hushed by a brigade of boys with slings, added to that of guns. Spotting one day one of these slayers, triumphantly displaying a number of little birds hanging from his game bag, I asked: "What are you going to do with them, now that you have taken their lives?" "Chuck them away," was the reply.

I appeal to you, Mr. Editor. Cannot some law be passed to punish such offenders, and thus effectually stop before it is too late this long continued, wilful and careless slaughter of our birds?

INDIAN STRIKE BREAKERS.

Hungry Pintes Disarranged Scheme of Valiant Italian.

"Speakin' of strikes," said the conductor, glancing out of the window, reminds me that right there, in that bend of the crick, a world's record was made for breakin' a strike. Ever tell you about it?" he asked of a writer in Popular Magazine.

"It was when this branch of the line was bein' built, say 10 years ago. The boss contractor sent me word to turn over my gang to Murphy and come to headquarters.

"'Baker,' says he, 'you can patter Dago pretty good, and I want you to take a couple of men and a hand car and run down to the west end of the branch line. The Dagoes down there has struck for higher wages. They're a fresh importation, just over, and that damned Bald Pete has wandered down there and queered 'em. We're under bond to shove that branch through by the first of August, and something's got to be done quick. The quickest way is to buy Bald Pete off. Here's $50; run down and see what can be done. Report tonight.'

"You see, Bald Pete was an old Dago who'd been fired by the construction company, and had been makin' it his business to get even. Ugly devil, Pete was; his hide was the color of scum on an old frog pond, and his eyes—once I looked into the eyes of a live rattlesnake, not two feet away, and Pete's eyes was just the same. Once, when he was cookin' for a party up in the Black Hills, he'd had a lop-sided argument with a band of Sioux who lifted his scalp and left him for dead, and their bright smiles still lingered in his dreams. That's why we called him Bald Pete, and that's why he was prejudiced against Injuns. Mighty proud of that head, though, Petey was; kept it tied up in a red bandanna, with the knot hangin' down over one ear. Always braggin' to the other Dagoes 'bout a terrific Injun fighter, and provin' it by that head.

"Well, when I reached the Dago camp first man I seen was Bald Pete sittin' in front of the shack, smokin' an old black pipe. He was polite as you please, grinnin' and flashin' his ragged, yellow teeth, but when I tried to talk business there wasn't out one side to it, and that was Pete's side. He was onto his game, all right—knowed that men was scarce and time precious—and the way the yellow fakir orated 'bout the wrongs of his dear countrymen was disgustin', while the rest of the gang crowded up, waggin' their heads and flourishin' their dirty paws and chippin' in whenever Pete stopped to get his breath.

"I seen I couldn't do anything with 'em just then, so I left my tow men with the hand car, and took my Winchester, intendin' to hunt for a couple of hours while the Dagoes cooled off. There was game in these parts then. I strolled to the top of the slope, and lookin' across the river I seen an antelope standin' head up, watchin' a clump of trees on my side of the stream. It was a long shot, and when the Winchester cracked the antelope was gone quicker'n a boy after breakfast when the lazy horn's a-mowin'. At the same time who should walk out of that clump of trees and stand starin' up at me but an Injun. Couldn't hardly believe my eyes for a miuute; then I seen it was old Billy—Billy Pi, I called him. His Injun name was too much for a white man's tongue—sounded like a bunch of sneezes and a cough—and mighty proud Billy was of that name; said it meant 'Eagle that soars.' I'd run across Billy and some of his relations two years before, when I was on a fishin' trip 100 miles up the river, and they were as cowardly, dirty gang of Pintes as ever boiled a root or eat a lizard.

"Well, sir, I don't know how the scheme struck me so quick, but the minute I seen Billy Pi I knowed the Dago strike was as good as broke. So I was mighty well pleased to see the old sinner, and he appeared tickled to see me. He come slouchin' up th' hill, carryin' an old percussion smooth-bore that he shot pebbles out of when he could get powder. I met him halfway down the hill, for I didn't want them Dagoes to catch sight of him.

"'How! How!' he says, lookin' pompous, and stickin' out a dirty paw. 'Got any whisky.'

"I gave him a swig from the cup of my flask, and he swallowed it at one gulp.

"'Any toback?' the old beggar asks next.

"I handed him a stogie and a match, and it was amusin' to see him squat down, shut his rheumy old eyes, and puff like a stalled locomotive.

"'Where's your people, Billy?' I asks.

"'Without openin' his eyes he points up the river and holds up one finger, meanin' they was one mile upstream.

"'How many?' I asks.

"'Much people,' he says, throwin' out all his fingers three or four times. 'Billy's bruder there, too. All much poor, much hungry.'

"'Hungry, eh!' I says. 'You come with me.'

"I got him near the top of the hill and made him lay down and peep over and his eyes stuck out like a snail's horns when he seen them Dagoes down there cookin' supper. They had about a week's provisions yet, that the company had furnished, besides some Dago delicacies of their own importation, and when the smell of that garlic and macarony and fried bacon floated up to Billy's proboscis I thought the old thief had took Saint Vitus's dance.

"'Friends of mine,' I says, pointin' to the camp, 'want to see Injun. Never see real Injun. I want to please friends.

"'Billy comes this evenin' and bring all his people. Plenty grub, much whisky, heap toback.'

"'You ought to have seen how quick Billy hooked onto that proposition; the way he grunted you'd thought he had the colic.

"'All hide here,' I says makin' signs, 'till noon comes up. Want to s'prise friends. Musn't come till I shoot. Then all come quick. Run—yell—shoot Billy's gun—big show—s'prise friends—friends very glad.'

"'Good!' he says, poundin' his chest and swellin' up. 'Billy un'stand. Billy great chief! Come like hell! Heap yell! Billy shoot gun! Big show! Huh! Then he trailed up the river faster than I ever seen him move.

"I knowed no one would get hurt, even if the scheme fizzled, for there wasn't a gun in the Dago outfit, and if they should put up any kind of a front, them cowardly Pintes would skedaddle back faster than they'd come. So I hurried back to the camp, lookin' very solemn.

"'What shoot at?' asks Bald Pete, quite pleasant.

"'Pete,' says I, loud, for some of the Dagoes could understand a little English, 'I shot at an Injun—and missed him.'

"He humped his shoulders, cocked them eyes at me, and grinned—thought I was lyin' to scare him away.

"'The senor is mistaken,' he says, with a sneer. 'Injuns all gone many year.'

"'Come with me and I'll pr

THE WATER POWER AT INTERNATIONAL FALLS

FALLS ON RAINY RIVER AT INTERNATIONAL FALLS.

RAPIDS ON RAINY RIVER AT INTERNATIONAL FALLS.

WANGAN ON BIG FORK RIVER.

With two new lines of railway heading towards it through the wilderness of Northern Minnesota, the little town of International Falls, situated on the mighty Rainy river, at the site of one of the greatest water powers in the Northwest, is becoming an object of national interest. Great predictions are made for its future, when the construction work of the railroads is complete, and when the company now organized to develop the water power has carried out its plans.

Both the Minnesota and International and the Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake railroads are planning on extending their lines to the border town at the earliest possible date. It is reported that the M. & I. has quietly added twelve miles of winter made road to the extension beyond Blackduck. The twenty-six miles of the new Duluth, Virginia & Rainy Lake railroad, which has been built and is being operated to Ashawa, forms the basis of the struggle which the short line will make to get into International Falls first.

On the development of the big water power largely depends the future of the town. Residents of the village boast of a fall of forty feet in the river at this point, taking falls and rapids together, but it is said a careful survey reduces this estimate by about ten feet, making the actual drop somewhere around thirty feet, possibly a little less. There is an immense volume of water always pouring over the falls, however, affording an unlimited water supply, with the whole of Rainy lake at its back.

Up to this time little has been done to develop the power. Many years ago the Canadian government started the construction of a lock on the Canadian side of the river, so that boats might pass the falls, but the work was never completed. Evidences of it may yet be seen, however, for it had been carried pretty well along before it was dropped.

The two new railroads will touch the rich Big and Little Fork country, which, when the lines are completed, will become nearly related to the border town. At present this region is rather wild, with logging its chief business. One of the accompanying photographs shows an old-fashioned "wangan" on the Big Fork, used by the loggers during the drive. The wangan carries the provisions and that worthy and important individual, the cook, as well as other necessaries of the drive. Such a craft is quite an ordinary sight in these northern streams.

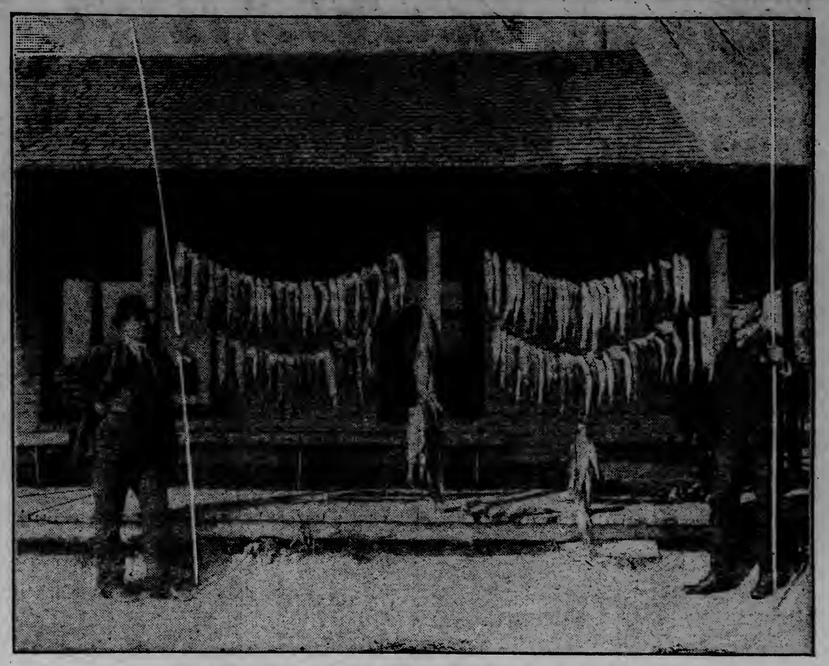
NINETY DOLLARS IN TEN.

Mr. Brown, a Kansas gentleman, keeps a boarding house, says the Harper's Weekly. Around his table at a recent occasion sat his wife, Mrs. Brown; the village milliner, Mrs. Andrews, Mr. Black, the baker; Mr. Jordan, a carpenter, and Mr. Hadley, a flour and feed and lumber merchant. Mr. Brown took a ten-dollar bill out of his pocketbook and handed it to Mrs. Brown, with the remark that there was ten dollars toward the twenty he had promised her. Mrs. Brown handed the bill to Mrs. Andrews, the milliner, saying: "That pays for my new bonnet." Mrs. Andrews, in turn, passed it on to Mr. Jordan, remarking that it would pay for the carpentering work he had done for her. Mr. Jordan handed it to Mr. Hadley, requesting his receipted bill for flour, feed and lumber. Mr. Hadley gave the bill back to Mr. Brown, saying: "That pays ten dollars on my board." Mr. Brown again pased it to Mrs. Brown, remarking that he had now paid her the twenty dolars he had promised her. She, in turn, paid it to Mr. Black to settle her bread and pastry account; Mr. Black handed it to Mr. Hadley, asking credit for the amount on his flour bill. Mr. Hadley again returning it to Mr. Brown, with the remark that it settled for that month's board; whereupon Brown put it back into his pocketbook, observing that he had not supposed a greenback would go so far.

FISHING IN AND AROUND CASS LAKE

Many Lakes That Are Filled With the Finny Tribe.

Points of Interest and Beauty For the Campers.



AN AFTERNOON'S CATCH OF PIKE AT CASS LAKE.

THE LANDING, DOCK AND BOAT HOUSE AT CASS LAKE.

Cass Lake, Minn., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—There are many points of interest and beauty in and about Cass Lake that are attracting many visitors to this place. The fishing to be had here is admittedly the best in Northern Minnesota. One spot that is the particular pride of all Cass Lakers, and also the apple of their eye to the Indians is Star island, located in Cass lake, one mile northeast of the boat landing. In the center of the island is Lake Helen, a fine body of water to which there is no inlet or outlet, and the lake is filled with fine black bass. This island is a favorite place for campers, there being but one provision made as to staying there, and that is that those taking advantage of living there shall exercise due diligence in keeping fires from being started to such an extent that they will do any damage to the standing timber. Lake Thirteen is another favorite fishing ground. Here abound big-mouth bass, in large numbers, and of good size. There have been many catches of these fine fish at Lake Thirteen that have been the pride of visitors stopping here. Another trip that is a comparatively short distance from the boat landing is made by going out through Cass lake to the Indian mission and burial ground, into Lake Edwards. From the latter lake the trip is continued to Long lake, where the launch may be deserted and Big lake is reached by a short portage. A short distance beyond Long lake there is a string of three lakes which have not as yet been named. The entrance to these lakes from Big lake is partially concealed, and in the summer time the trees on the banks are covered with a dense foliage that makes a splendid retreat for bass and perch. The top of the water is literally abloom with pond lilies, and it is in the recess of the small bays projecting into the woods of these lakes that the finest black bass that inhabit the waters of Northern Minnesota are cought. Owing to the manner in which the entrance to the lakes is covered, these fishing grounds have not been known but one season, and the bass are there in large numbers.

Still another trip that is taken by many who come to Cass Lake is across Cass lake to Turtle lake, thence through Kithi, Rice and Pimush lakes, from whence there is a portage to Moss and Washburn lakes. These are about fourteen miles north of Cass Lake and easily accessible. In the last two named lakes there have been cought large numbers of bass and muskallonge. An interesting point to visit is the government dam at Lake Winnibigoshish, which is reached by going to the northeast shore of Cass lake, down Cass river to Lake Winnibigoshish. The trip to the dam and return can be made in a single day.

THE COOKING OF TROUT

A Rural Philosopher Tells of Something Woman Cannot Do.

Cambridge Springs, Pa., May 21.—"If there is one thing I like better than another," said the rural philosopher, "it is the eating of a trout after it is cooked.

"Oh, yes! I know what you are going to say about what your Mary can do! Certainly! Your Mary and my Eliza Jane, and somebody else's Jerusha think they can cook a trout, and maybe they can. It isn't their fault if they can't, because they can't help it if the best part of the trout is gone by the time it reaches their hands. But the best part of it is gone, all the same; but even if it wasn't they couldn't cook it trout, anyhow.

"In the first place, they don't go at it right. When they get hold of the fish—even if it hasn't been a day or so out of the water, lying stiff on the ice or with its insides stuffed with salt—our women folk go straight to work and souse it in water; wash it and wash it; rip it open as if it were a seam in an old garment they were making over, and then drench its insides until it looks live a piece of bob veal.

"Then they roll it in flour until you can't tell whether it is a luscious trout or a bony sucker, and no matter if it is a two-pounder—which as a matter of fact, it is not likely to be nowadays, if you stick to the truth—slap! it goes into the frying pan with a slice or two of pork, and there it sizzles and sizzles, and snaps its juice all over the stove, and gets hard on the outside, remains half raw on the inside and smells more like a sausage when it is served than the sweet scented, quivering, sparkling thing you drew out of the eddying pool just at the foot of the swift bend in the brook down yonder, where the alders nod and the elms throw their dancing shadows.

"And, right here, come to think of it, is another reason why your Mary or my Eliza Jane, or somebody's Jerusha can't cook a trout, because half of the cooking of a trout lies in the killing of it. How's that? Well, I'll tell you:

"You are camping for a day or two on your favorite creek. You have arrived there, say, late in the afternoon, because, naturally, on your way out you wandered here and there out of our course because you wanted to see what sign there was of woodcock, and whether the old hen and grouse had had good luck with their broods, and perhaps to cast an eye out for the prospects for deer, and to have a look at the swamp edges in the hope of seeing a bear or two wallowing in the soft, moist earth.

"So you reach your camping place late in the afternoon, and by the time you get things in shape you are a little too tired to let the trout know you have arrived that evening, and you bunk in on your bed of fresh cut hemlock boughs, and before you have heard the whippoorwill call twice, sitting as he is out beyond your cabin, and making the hush of the gathering darkness seem deeper with his plaintive note, you throw one arm up over your head and behold, you are asleep!

"When you awake, 'far in the East a saffron tint is heralding the morning.' The brown-winged thrush is just astir in the leafy copse, and is piping cheerily to the passing breeze.

"The breeze carries the greeting to other thrushes and other thrushes send their along with it. Birds that are not thrushes toss their matin voicing on the bosom of the willing breeze until it is bearing here, there, everywhere, the gladness and the sweetness of nature's jubilate.

"A saucy red squirrel chatters in the big chestnut over in the dewy swale. The leaves tremble and shake and scatter down little showers of silver that will glitter like jewels by and by, when the sun sees them.

"You can't quite see the brook, but you can hear it shouting to you from beyond the stretch of hemlocks. You go out and look around and swell your lungs and say:

"'Aha! This is glorious!'

"Then you dig your fireplace. You dig it a foot deep and as wide as you please. You dig it in the mossy spot at the foot of the great old rock, only a step or two from the cabin.

"Then you will build a hardwood fire and keep it going, so that by the time you have your flies tied on, and everything is in shape for going over and trying the impatient brook, you have a foot deep, almost, of the cleanest, hottest coals and ashes that ever snapped and glowed and waited to be used.

"You find the brook just right. While you are looking it over a green-winged fly drops on the water.

"In spite of its struggles, the ripples bear it along until it circles around the edge of the big rock that divides the brook just below you; a rock that looks proud of the moss that covers it, and seems to say:

"'Don't you wish you were I, sitting here in the shadows, with the cool waters kissing you, and always singing to you, day in and day out, and never aweary of it? Don't you wish you were I?'

"The green-winged fly circles around the edge of the proud old rock. You see a flash in the water, and for a second or so the smooth surface is troubled and foamy. The green-winged fly is gone.

"'Aha!' you say. 'If you take mine like that, old fellow, you are lost!'

"Then you drop your flies away below the rock and dance them up along its mossy side. Flash! Whizz! That is he! You have him!

"Your black gnat is in his jaw! Give him line! Keep him away from that old root there, on the other side of the brook! Keep him away!

"That's it! Don't lose your head! Keep cool! Whew! He tries a leap to free himself! Hold him taut!

"Ah, he's a beauty. Favor him! Favor him!

"Now he goes down stream like a steam engine! Follow him, and follow him quick, if he leads you a mile!

"Hold on! Hold on! Back he comes again! Reel in! And don't hold your rod so low! Straighten it up! Straighten it up! There!

"Now let him worry himself in that deep pool if he will! That's it! He is a game one, is that king of the brook, but he is conquered!

"Now he'll follow your line as you reel him in. Gently, though, for he will give another surge and take another plunge when he sees you! There he comes! Ah, the beauty of him! Your net! Aha! He's yours!

"Place him on the dewy grass. Don't put your hand on his quivering sides! Draw in the flavor of him! Nothing like that grows on tree or shrub, nor is distilled from flowers.

"Well, having caught your trout, you gaze at him awhile as he lies there in the grass. The sun has come up in the meantime and is peeping at your prize through the openings in the leaves, making his gold and crimson and sea shell tints flash and sparkle.

"Then you run your fingers through his gills and bear him to the cabin. You lay him, the untouched bloom upon him, lightly on the moss.

"There is surely sweet fern growing near, for you can smell it. Perhaps there is also a clump of two of spicewood. If so, all the better.

"So, you pick some sprigs of sweet fern or spicewood, or both, and place them at the side of the trout. You take a piece of clean brown paper, which you surely have brought with you—the old-fashioned, rough, brown paper—and you cover it nicely with the butter that perhaps your Mary made, and which is in the little stone jar that you sank in the spring at the edge of the alder thicket last night. You cover the paper thick with the butter, and sprinkle pepper and salt on it.

"In this paper thus prepared you wrap the trout, just as he came from the water a quarter of an hour ago. Then you wrap some sprigs of the sweet fern or spicewood about the paper. Enclose it all in two or three thicknesses more of the brown wrapping paper, and bury your herb enshrouded trout in the hot ashes.

"Then you go to the creek and indulge in soothing ablution in its limpid waters, after which you take that little flat bottle of yours, walk over to the spring, and tamper with the bottle's

Fargo, N. D., May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo handed Duluth the second game of the series here yesterday afternoon by making eight bad errors in the first part of the game, and then attempted take it away again by batting rallies in the seventh and eighth innings. The game was a most erratic one and the eight errors of the home team came at most inopportune times.

Koukalik was in the box for Duluth and for six innings had the home team completely at his mercy, allowing but one scratch hit. In the seventh he took a balloon ascension, for no apparent reason, and two doubles and a single were secured off his delivery, netting two runs.

The trick was repeated in the eighth, when two triples and a single were lined out by Fargo, but the home team was unable to continue the fireworks in the ninth and Duluth won out by a narrow margin.

The White Sox started their scoring in the first inning. Short Stop Edwards threw Corrigan's grounder over Werden's head, and after Ball had been retired, Randall clouted one to deep right field, scoring Corigan.

Edwards repeated his trick in the third and Duluth scored again as the result. Werden also had an off day and with his assistance, in the shape of two bad errors, the White Sox tallied two more in the fifth.

"Newt" Randall brought in the winning run in the seventh with a long drive to deep center field. He succeeded in completing the circuit of the bases before the ball was fielded, and slid in under the catcher's legs just as the ball reached the plate.

Ball made a circus catch of a sizzling liner in the eighth inning. The drive was tagged for two cushions, but Ball speared it and caught Werden at first.

Corrigan was put out of the game in the second inning for back talk to the umpire, being Gerring took his place.

Souders pitched a beautiful game for Fargo and had he been given good support would have pulled out a victory.

CHAMPIONS AGAIN WIN.

Maintain Their Stand In Percentage Column.

Winnipeg, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The "Champs" won the second game of the series with Crookston yesterday afternoon as the result of the ragged fielding of the visitors. Their errors were responsible for three of the runs made by the home team. Dalquist made his debut in the box for Winnipeg and Crookston took kindly to his shafts, although good headwork saved the 'Peggers from defeat. Over 2000 fans witnessed the game.

SUPERIOR GOOSE-EGGED.

Grand Forks Gets Revenge For Thursday's Loss.

Grand Forks, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The second game of the series between Superior and Grand Forks was played yesterday afternoon at the University Athletic park. The tables were reversed and the Superior bunch was presented with nine goose eggs. The Tigers took 5 scores and were satisfied.

Noldin was on the slab for the visitors, and allowed eight hits. He did not have the best of backing as Egan has four errors to his credit in seven innings. Cameron sent the little short stop to the bench after he had made an awful error in the seventh, letting Nagel score. The other errors were made by Kens and Cameron, in the eighth inning, but from them nothing resulted. Noldin had only three strike-outs to his credit.

In the sixth inning Cameron went to first on a hit, but as he is young at the game and did not know which way to turn, his honor, the umps, told him to go away back and sit down. The only time the Superior men were near the Tigers' scoring line was in the fourth inning. O'Dea was the first up and he struck out. Cameron sent a nice little one to Newmeyer, and was thrown out on first. The next three Chandler, Symons, and Egan were issued passes. The bags were full when Rogers stepped up to the gutta percha. One, two, three and out; said the umpire.

Newmeyer was generous with passes, and in return the visitors bit readily, giving him seven strike-outs. He pitched pretty ball and had excellent support. Dillon made the only error. The last game of the series is being played this afternoon.

A STRIKE PROBABLE IN MINNEAPOLIS

Minneapolis, May 21.—Notice served on the local trades' unions yesterday leaves them no alternative but to go on strike, 5000 strong, Wednesday, May 25. The open shop system will be started by the contractors allied in the Builders' and Traders' exchange at that time, they declare, regardless of what the unions do.

The officials of the unions say that as soon as a non-union man is put to work all union men will withdraw from the job, even if every man must go out.

The action of the employers is more severe than anyone outside of their organization had dreamed.

STANFORD ATHLETES WHO WILL COMPETE IN CONFERENCE MEET ON MARSHALL FIELD JUNE 4

WEST. LANAGAN; BEACH. DUNN. HYDE; HOLMAN (Captain). CRAWFORD. "DAD" MOULTON (Trainer); HAMILTON. DOLE. M'FARLANE; HENLEY. BELL

Stanford, Cal., May 21.—Norman E. Dole and eight of his fellow athletes at Leland Stanford, Jr., university are going to Chicago to compete in the Western intercollegiate athletic championship which the nine conference colleges are to hold on Marshall field, June 4.

Since the Stanford-California meet, April 19, when the Stanford boys won, "Dad" Moulton has been training his charges steadily, with the Chicago meet and the Olympic games in St. Louis in mind.

Dole is regarded as the star par excellence of the team. He is one of the famous family of athletic boys, and has a record of 12 feet 1¾ inches in the pole vault and 5 feet 11 inches in the high jump. Hyde, the shot putter, has sent the ball 45 feet 6¼ inches.

Bell has done 21 feet 9½ inches in the broad jump and 5 feet 11 inches in the high jump. West has done 21 feet 10 inches in the broad jump. Beach, an understudy to Dole, does 11 feet 4 inches in the pole vault. Crawford, the hammer thrower, has done 133 feet 5¾ inches.

In the sprints, too, the Stanford boys promise well. The dash men seem stronger in the "220" and longer events than in the 100-yard dash. Dunn, in the 220-yard event, has done 0:22 4-5 and 0:52 3-5 in the quarter. Capt. Holman's stunts are the mile and half-mile. He has made the former in 4:40 3-5 and the half in 2:03 2-5.

W. H. Lanagan, the hurdler, has done the 120-yard event over the high ones in 0:16 2-5 and the 220-yard stunt over the low ones in 0:26.

Moulton's experience as a trainer leads many of the Stanford enthusiasts here to believe that the team will prove by its work that it is one of the best developed bunches of men that will represent any of the institutions in the big meet.

ONE TEAM IS OUT

Commercial League Schedule Must Now Be Rearranged.

Fine Game Expected Between Fashions and Cloquet Nines.

COMMERCIAL LEAGUE.

F. A. Patrick	1	0	1.000
Kelley-How-Thomson	0	0	.000
First National Bank	0	0	.000
Northern Pacific	0	1	.000

The Marshall-Wells team has withdrawn from the Commercial league, leaving but four teams in the list. The hardware men were unable to get together a nine. Some internal trouble among the members of the team and lack of interest in the game, prevented the players from getting together, and the management of the league was notified that the team would withdraw and forfeit its games.

This will necessitate a revision of the schedule. The officials of the league will hold a meeting Monday evening for the purpose of drawing up a new schedule for the four remaining teams. Each team will play the other three teams twice during the season, which will give a schedule of twenty-four games, making the season twelve weeks in duration, with two games a week.

The Marshall-Wells team has not yet played a game this year, and the withdrawal will not affect the standing in any way.

The second game of the year will be played this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, at the baseball grounds, the F. A. Patrick and First National bank teams will be the opposing nines. The Patrick team will be much the same as the nine that defeated the Northern Pacific men last Saturday, and the players are confident of repeating the trick. The First National bank team will make its first appearance of the season. A strong aggregation has been collected, and the contest should be a fast one. The Patrick team will line up as follows: Catcher, Honnold; pitcher, Moe; first base, Patrick; second base, Britton; short stop, Menelce; third base, McDougall; right field, Winness; center field, Dooley; left field, Tschirgi.

* * *

One of the fastest amateur games that will be seen in Duluth this year will be played tomorow afternoon at baseball park between the Duluth Fashions and the strong Cloquet nine. Cloquet claims to have an even stronger nine than last season, when it defeated all of the best teams in Duluth, and the Fashions are probably as fast a bunch of amateurs as can be gathered together at the head of the lakes.

Houle, the Indian pitcher, who twirled last year for the Superior Northern league team, will be in the box for Cloquet, and either Earl Lowe or Lovell will pitch for the Fashions. Lowe gives promise of being one of the best amateur pitchers ever turned out of Duluth. He pitched two good games against the Duluth and Superior league teams this spring, and should hold the visitors down.

IMPROVING DAILY

Oarsmen Who Go to Madison Putting In Hard Work.

Now Make the Four Mile Distance at Racing Speed.

With but two weeks remaining before the departure for Madison, the members of the Duluth Boat club eight are down to work in earnest.

The regatta at Madison is scheduled for June 9, or two weeks from next Thursday. The crew will probably leave two weeks from Monday in order to become accustomed to the quarters at Madison and have a chance to row over the course before the day of the race arrives.

The new eight-oared shell is now being used regularly by the crew in the practice spins. Every evening in the week it is launched at 6 o'clock and the crew takes a spin down the Park Point shore as far as the pavilion, returning in time to have a bath and a rub-down before dark.

The trip of four miles can now be made at racing speed and the men are fresh at the finish. The new shell is proving very satisfactory and is working easily.

Little change will take place in the weights of the members of the crew from now until the date of the regatta. The men are all in racing trim, and none of them are carrying any superfluous flesh. They will average about 175 pounds when they take their places in the shell at Madison.

No reports have been received in Duluth as yet concerning the weights of the Madison crews, but it is not likely that any of them will outweigh the Duluth eight.

With at least an equal chance in the matter of weight, and with the advantage of having six veteran oarsmen in the crew, Duluth should be able to overcome the handicap of having no professional coach, and should make a good showing in the race. Dr. Lynam, who is an old oarsman himself, has gained the confidence of the crew in the matter of coaching and under his directions the form of the men is improving daily.

Robert Marshall will act as coxswain in the race and handle the tiller.

POOL ROOMS RAIDED.

New York, May 21.—Somultaneously raids on twenty-two alleged pool rooms and pool room offices were made here yesterday by the police, acting under orders from Police Commisisoner McAdoo. Axes, hammers and crowbars were used at many of the places to batter down specially constructed iron and steel doors and to gain entrance through barred windows. Less than an hour was spent on the work, and police officials are highly pleased with the results. Seventy prisoners were taken, and many telegraph and telephone instruments were confiscated, besides a number of books and racing charts that were found in the rooms.

THE TENNIS CLUB

Extensive Improvements to the Clubhouse Are Planned.

Arrangements For New Grounds Still Hanging Fire.

Extensive improvements are being planned for the club house of the Endion Tennis club. Hot and cold baths will be put in and the locker rooms greatly enlarged. If the new grounds are secured, a new club house will be built, considerably larger than the present house, but even if the present grounds are retained for another year additions will be made to the present building.

The club house is at present far too small to accommodate the members. It is little more than a shanty and has no accommodations in the way of dressing rooms or baths.

The plans for the new grounds are still hanging fire, and nothing definite has been arranged as yet. The negotiations are well under way, however, and there is every prospect of a successful termination within a few days.

The new grounds will be within a block or two of the present site. They will have six double courts in place of the three on the present grounds. The new court will be about twenty feet apart in order that the players may not interfere with each other. The courts on the grounds at Eleventh avenue are within six feet of each other and when they are all in use the players from one court are compelled to run on the adjoining one in reaching for line drives.

The new courts will be dirt courts, similar to the old ones. They are the cheapest to maintain, and while they are a little more expensive than the grass courts to lay, they are much easier to keep in good condition, and they are preferred by most of the members of the club.

Arrangements are now being made for the first club tournament. The committee in charge has not yet announced the date, but it will begin within a couple of weeks. The open tournaments will not be held until later in the season, and no plans for them will be made until the negotiations for the new grounds have been completed.

The grounds are in excellent condition at present. They have been used constantly during the past week by the members, the fine weather having brought out a number of players. They will be maintained until the new courts are ready for playing, and there will be no break in the season for lack of grounds.

HARNESS HORSES

Estimate of the Stallion Director Is Not Extravagant.

Incorporation of Grand Circuit Tracks a Good Thing.

An Eastern breeder who is always on the lookout for the best in harness horses, and who has ample means to gratify his tastes in that direction, writes me suggesting that the estimate in this column a week ago of the stallion Director was quite an extravagant one, says Harry Ten Eyck White in the Chicago Tribune.

"We all admit," he says, "that Director was a wonderful racehorse for his speed, but is it true that he was as notably successful in the stud as the Tribune estimate would indicate? He certainly had the best of opportunities from the time he was retired from track work, and, of course, he has made a most satisfactory showing, but it occurs to me that the percentage of standard speed in his foals was not what it might have been. How about it?"

On the point mentioned there is this to be said: Dictator, the sire of Director, was a stallion that started life with a good name, as his brother, the mighty Dexter, was champion of all trotters, and so marked was his prominence that for years there was none to approach his record. Dictator lived to be a good old age, and, having been used in the stud all his life, was necessarily the sire of a good many colts. Considering their number, however, and the class of mares with which he was mated, his percentage of standard speed was not as great as that of some stallions of far less repute.

DID WELL AT TROTTING.

But when one of the Director family did go trotting it was almost certain to prove a good racehorse for what it could do. No other stallion ever had three such trotters on the turf in one season as were credited to Dictator the year that Jay-Eye-See, Phallas, and Director were sweeping all before them. One of them was the champion trotting gelding of his day, as well as the first trotter to accomplish a mile in 2:10. Another held the stallion record when he retired, and the third, Director, was admittedly the best racehorse of his speed in the land.

But when Dictator was used in the stud it was found he was far from a sure foal getter, and for this reason the number of colts sired by him was much less than would have been the case with an ordinarily prolific stallion. Taking this vital fact into consideration, his success as a progenitor of racehorse speed—not the 2:30 variety—is marvelous. The Dictators do not breed on as well as some other families, Phallas being a notable instance, and yet in the case of Director his sons are doing remarkably well.

STATISTICS OF DICTATOR'S SONS.

Without going into details, and confining the investigation to trotters with records better than 2:20 and 2:15 or better pacers, it is found that to the close of last season the sons of Director had sired the following:

MUST NOW TROT A FAST CLIP.

A trotter that can't beat 2:20 or a pacer that is unable to step a mile in 2:15 or better is of no value as a racehorse in these days of bike sulkies and billiard table tracks, so that although the official standard for trotters is still 2:30 and for pacers 2:25, not having moved with the times, practical horsemen and breeders put speed of that sort where it belongs when considering it in sire and dams. A good-gaited "four-cornered" trotter that can show a 2:30 gait, however, is better to breed to or from than one that goes "sloppy," cross fires, knee knocks, or does any of the other different things that are not consistent with true action. As a rule the Director family of horses are clean going ones, and that is a great recommendation, for either the track or road.

That Director sired but one trotter capable of beating 2:10 is true, but that one, Directum, was a giant, a real race horse, as well as the champion stallion of the day, and it was not until the incomparable Cresceus came along that his mark of 2:06¼ was surpassed by an entire horse, although John A. McKerron now also has him beaten a shade. Director's fastest pacer, Direct, has a record of a quarter of a second slower than the best trotter of the family, but he is also in one respect a champion among pacers, his 2:06 to high wheels being the best mile at that style of hitch. He trotted by virtue of a liberal use of toe weights, in 2:18¼ as a colt, and this double-gaitedness is a trait of the Dictator blood, as Jay Eye See, the fastest of the tribe, paced in 2:06¾ after trotting in 2:10. Like many of the good ones of his house, he was but a pony in size, but a Leviathan in deeds.

INCORPORATION OF TRACKS.

The incorporation of the grand circuit tracks is now an accomplished fact, and this move means that eleven of the most important harness horse courses in the country—Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, Empire City, Brighton eBach, Boston, Providence, Hartford, Columbus, Cincinnati and Memphis—are now banded together for mutual protection and support.

Ever since it was announced in this column some time ago that the grand circuit tracks and that at Memphis were going to unite their interests on certain points, and that a board of stewards whose members would have autocratic power over the tracks interested was to be chosen, there has been a tremendous amount of discussion anent the whole matter. As plainly stated here, the grand circuit tracks were disgusted with the inefficiency of the National Trotting association, of which they were members, and proposed to see to it, by means of an independent organization, that, so far as the leading tracks of the country were concerned, justice would be meted out to a class of offenders who apparently possessed immunity when their cases were brought before the ordinary tribunals.

UNABLE TO PUNISH OFFENDERS.

The first board of grand circuit stewards—Messrs. Campau, Billings, Butler, Thayer, Perkins and Hanna—are gentlemen who have spent their own money lavishly in the effort to place harness racing on a high plane, and, so far as the tracks where they have had individual jurisdiction are concerned, their efforts have been successful. But there were certain offenses that seemed difficult to reach and punish by means of the machinery of the National Trotting association, and the grand circuit people finally decided that, so far as their own tracks went, they would be a law unto themselves, without in any antagonizing other organizations.

To come at once to the concrete fact, the new board of stewards will get after "the cheaters." They will decide whether they want the entries of men whom they believe to be guilty of practices detrimental to the turf, but whose operations are so conducted that it is only occasionally they can be punished—this condition of affairs existing principally because of lack of evidence that could be produced in court or would be admitted there. In every case of "cheating" that is worth notice, it is possible for men posted in such matters to satisfy themselves absolutely as to where the guilt belongs, but in the nature of the matter it follows that not every man who is able and willing to tell the "inside" story of a turf fraud is also willing to have his name brought out publicly in connection with the affair.

It is the commonest thing in the world for those who are investigating a turf fraud to have some man of undoubted credibility make statements that settle the question of guilt beyond doubt, but this same man will say: "Now, I won't make an affidavit to this, for the reason that it will hurt me in my own town." Or: "I am willing to give you the facts, but it would hurt my business to be mixed up in a turf fraud case, even though I have had no unworthy connection with it. A lot of people whose good opinion I esteem don't understand such matters, and they would think I was one of the criminals."

Sometimes fish of more caliber than would be imagined are landed in the turf fraud net. One of New Hampshire's district attorneys is suspended from the trotting turf right now for being mixed up in an unsavory race, and "Long Shot" Cox, the best driver in that part of the country, was set down for a year in connection with the same job. But with the new board of stewards at work all these hindrances to the proper administration of justice will vanish, so far as the twelve grand circuit tracks are concerned. When fraud is suspected the work of ferreting out the facts will be pursued secretly. Then, when the guilt of any man is proven to the satisfaction of the stewards, that man will be barred from the grand circuit tracks, even as a spectator.

WILL END CHEATING ON TURF.

To drivers and owners of horses the fact of being barred from the grand circuit will mean that they have no place left where a good horse can be raced for purses of sufficient size to make the campaign a profitable one. A driver under the grand circuit ban would get no first-class horses, for the reason that the owners of those animals would not want to pay training bills and then be prohibited from competing for the big prizes of the turf. The proposition is such a simple one that the mere fact of the board being in existence will automatically put an end to 99 per cent of the cheating that has been going on, and that for the last three seasons has been the cause of much scandal.

In other words, knowing the men who compose the board, the cheaters will not take a chance of being practically ruled off the turf for life by having all the grand circuit tracks closed to them the first time they are caught. And they also realize that it will not require testimony before the board of appeals to convict them, as has heretofore been the case. They will not of necessity know what witnesses furnished the information that convicted them, and that they cannot disprove.

TO INVESTIGATE SECRETLY.

Every "job" on the harness turf has its pool box end. In nearly every instance at least half a dozen men know enough about this feature of the rascality to put the investigators on the right scent. There are a hundred reasons why, under the old-time methods, such men do not care to come out in the open and give testimony before the board of appeals. But one or more of them is practically certain to "give up" the facts if approached in the right way and assured that his secret is safe. No one realizes this fact better than the men who handle the jobs, and this knowledge of the weakness of their carefully erected fortress will keep them from starting any jobs on grand circuit tracks.

Of course there will be an exception or two. There is always some bullheaded schemer, who is never satisfied that the buzz saw is really running until he has contributed a finger as the price of correct information on the point. There will be jobs attempted next summer somewhere along the line, and later on, when the stewards announce the exclusion from grand circuit tracs of some man who has previously stood pretty well perhaps, there will be a feeling among the rest of the jobbers that they would better keep in the narrow path.

COLLEGE SPORTS.

Records May Be Broken At Intercollegiate Meet.

New York, May 21.—If there are not records broken at the intercollegiate meet in Philadelphia, May 27 and 28, it will be surprising. In the 100-yards event Duffy, Torrey, of Yale; Sears, of Cornell; Schick, of Harvard, and Dear, of Pennsylvania, all turn the trick under ten seconds, and a fraction may be clipped from the record. In the quarter-mile event, too, the record is in danger. Pennsy's speedy negro runner is in fine shape, and may set up new figures. If Schuet, of Cornell, is pushed in the two-mile race he may lower his own figures.

In the pole vault Yale has two splendid performers in McLanahan and Behr. The present figures are 11 feet 7 inches, held jointly by Horton, of Princeton, and Gardiner, of Syracuse. Both the Yale vaulters exceeded this height in Saturday's games. Gardiner is also thought to be able to better his vault of last season. De Witt, of Princeton, holds the hammer-throwing record, with a throw of 164 feet 10 inches, made in 1902. Last year he did not come within nine feet of this, but reports from Princeton are to the effect that he is doing better than usual in practice, and he will have a worthy pair of competitors in Shevlin, of Yale, and Van Duyn, of Syracuse. If they should prove able to make De Witt exert himself to his limit it is likely that several inches will be added to the record.

Chicago, May 21.—The long delayed American Derby list has been given out by the officials of the Washington Park club. It contained 119 names and no surprises. Every 3-year-old in the West of any established class and a great many of the disestablished class are in the event.

Possibly two of S. S. Brown's youngsters, Auditor and Audience, might be named as worthy of nomination, but, with Conjurer and Proceeds to draw from, the Pittsburg turfman evidently thought it not worth while to name others.

The official list tallies exactly with the revised list given out by Bookmaker James O'Leary.

There are eighteen Eastern nominations —W. M. Scheftel's Highball, Scheftel & May's Major Pelham, F. Burley's Hello, M. J. Daly's Judge and Play Ball, F. Gebhardt's Pulsus, J. E. Madden's Gettysburg and Robin Hood, Miller & Leeds' Divination and Reveille, W. L. Oliver's Hazlewood, G. L. Richards' Ostrich, A. C. Thomas' Deep Red, E. R. Thomas' Stalwart and Palmbearer, R. T. Wilson Jr.'s Montreson and Dolly Spanker, and H. M. Zeigler's Don John. Not all of these men live in the East, but they race in the East most of the time. The Eastern representation is exceptionally strong.

The Derby list leaves little to wish for. Experience has shown that Eastern colts are not likely to come out for the races anyhow, so the absence of some Eastern stars is no cause for disappointment, especially with the acknowledged star of that section, Highball, one of the entries.

The winners of all but two of the so-called Western Derbies to date are also among the entries: Bill Curtis, winner of the Ascot Derby; Bombardier, winner of the California Derby; Proceeds, winner of the Tennessee Derby; Rainland, winner of the Cumberland Derby; Moharib, winner of the Kansas City Derby, and Elwood, winner of the Kentucky Derby, are all there. Bugler, winner of the Mound City Derby, and Ralph Young, winner of the Arkansas Derby, are missing, but those events are of little consequence.

The total number of entries is just one short of what it was last year.

The other stakes of the South side organization filled satisfactorily. Below is a table showing the comparative number of entries to the stakes this season and last:

	1903.	1904.
THREE-YEAR-OLDS.
American Derby, 1½ miles	120	113
Sheridan stakes, 1¼ miles	76	83
Englewood stakes (fillies), 1 mile	44	55
Drexel stakes, 1 mile	104	116
TWO-YEAR-OLDS.
Hyde Park stakes, ¾ mile	194	190
Kenwood stakes, ⅝ mile	120	113
Lakeside stakes, ⅝ mile	112	116
Maywood stakes, ¾ mile	120	119
Edgewater stakes, 5½ furlongs	112	119
Quickstep stakes, ½ miles	146	139
Lake View handicap, ¾ mile	113	138
THREE-YEAR-OLDS AND UPWARDS.
Wheeler handicap, 1¼ miles	132	123
Young handicap, 1 3-16 miles	117	106
Great Western handicap, 1½ miles	79	74
Oakwood handicap, 1¼ miles	106	96
Auburn stakes, 1 1-16 miles	109	95
Midway stakes, 1½ miles	99	90

McChesney is not entered in any of the Washington park events, which makes it seem likely he will not be seen on the Chicago tracks this season, although he is entered in the Harlem National handicap, which he won last year. The great Gold Heels is, however, named in the Wheeler, Young, Great Western, and Oakwood handicaps. Other good horses named in all four of these handicap features are the Derby favorite English Lad, Mr. Corrigan's McGee, S. C. Hildreth's Witfull, J. B. Respess' Bernays, which finished third in the Derby last year; Moharib, the Kansas City Derby winner; T. C. McDowell's Monarka, winner of the Young handicap last season; Little Scout, winner of the Montgomery handicap; and Ellison's Judge Himes. All of these, with the exception of Bernays and Judge Himes, have already shown good form this season.

Several good ones which are in the Wheeler and the Young handicap have ducked the longer race in the Great Western, in this list being the incomparable Dick Welles, Clay Bros.' fast mare Flying Ship, Gregor K., Six Shooter (although he won the Great Western two years ago), Flower King, Peter Paul, W. Oliver's Eastern horse, Lord Badge, and Middleton & Jungbluth's Santon.

Last year's Derby winner, The Picket, is entered in the Wheeler, Young, and Great Western handicaps, but not in the Oakwood, and the same is true of the Tichenor Derby colt, Flo Bob, and the Burns' handicap winner, Modicum.

F. Burlew has entered his Derby candidate Hello in the Wheeler and Young handicaps, indicating that he may keep the colt here during the Washington Park meeting if he sends him West.

T. H. Ryan has entered The Roman, who won the Wheeler handicap in 1900, in that event this season, and F. W. Doss has entered Nones, the long distance California horse, in the Wheeler and Great Western. Pat Dunne has named John McGurk in the Great Western handicap only. The horse won this race last year in his sensational defeat of McChesney.

An interesting fact is the appearance of an entry from a prominent Eastern stable in the Hyde Park stakes, the richest of Western 2-year-old events, J. G. Follansbee having nominated his black colt Portsmouth, by Bill of Portland—Rosegarland. W. L. Oliver and A. L. Aste also have entries in this stake. As indicating where the promising 2-year-olds of the West are scattered this year the number nominated by the different owners in the Hyde Park stakes is summarized as follows:

J. W. Schorr, 13; E. Corrigan, 11; P. Dunne, C. R. Ellison, B. Schreiber and M. H. Tichenor, 8 each; F. Cook, 6; T. C. McDowell, 5; G. C. Bennett & Co., Boots & Hollenback, S. S. Brown, Clay Bros., Coleman & Brignadello, and R. A. Smith, 4 each; H. F. Etches, W. Gerst, W. H. Laudeman, M. D. Miller, W. C. Overton & Co., J. B. Respess, and Talbot Bros., 3 each; E. Alvey, A. L. Aste, E. J. Baldwin, E. R. Bradley, D. Cameron, W. W. Darden, A. T. Dobson, W. V. Ellery, J. Fay, E. S. Gardner, J. G. Greener & Co., W. J. Harding, F. L. Hartigan, W. M. Hayes, S. C. Hildreth, S. K. Hughes & Co., Keating & Hecker, J. O. Keene & Co., S. Lazarus, G. J. Long, J. J. Marklein, W. L. Oliver, J. W. Pugh, and F. T. Wood, 2 each; J. S. Barbee, A. B. Barnes, Mrs. R. Bradley, C. B. Campbell, Cushing & Barbee, F. W. Doss, J. G. Follansbee, J. W. Fuller, R. T. Gibson, H. T. Griffin, W. H. Hammond, T. P. Hayes, W. M. Hedges & Co., Hinde & Baker, H. C. Loeb & Co., J. Mannion, T. W. Moore, W. T. Muir, J. F. Newman, E. E. Park, J. B. Payne, T. Sayres, W. F. Schulte, J. D. Smith, W. A. Smith & Co., G. W. Thomas, Turney Bros., Weidemeier & Sells, W. S. Williams, and J. C. Yeager, 1 each.

CHAT OF THE TURF.

Races Won By Two and Three-Year-Olds.

Lexington, Ky., May 21.—Up to date 309 3-year-olds have won races this season on the American turf, according to statistics complied by an eminent authority here. One hundred and ninety-five 2-year-olds have so far won races this year.

J. B. Haggin, Milton Young, John E. Madden and H. P. Headley combined own over 9000 acres of blue grass land in this country. Headley holds by deed the smallest space of ground of any of these breeding magnates, and he owns over 1200 acres.

Maj. B. G. Thomas, the veteran breeder, is preparing to go East again next month with his crop of yearlings for the New York market. "The Nestor of the turf," as he is justly styled, is in better health this spring than he has been in years.

A chestnut filly just foaled by Morris Dance, by imp. St. Blaise, owned by Gus Straus, of this city, is the only foal by the dead imp. Mirthful, which John E. Madden, owner of the ill-fated great stallion, has no lien on. Morris Dance will be mated this season to Ed Corrigan's famous stallion, imp. Scintillant.

White Plume, the property of Charles W. Moore, owner of Intense, which filly won the Nursery stakes at Louisville recently, is tipped strongly here to win the Kentucky oaks at Churchill Downs next Wednesday. White Plume won the Debutante stakes at Louisville last spring, but when sent East to race by heo wner, proved a disappointment. She is bred very much like the mighty Ornament, being by the same sire—imp. Order—their dams are by the same horse—Onondaga—and both are members of the celebrated Levity family.

The $50,000 suit W. S. Barnes, of the Melbourne stud, has pending in the New York courts against the Long Island railroad and express company, for the alleged injury of two carloads of yearlings he shipped East in 1902, will shortly come up for trial, being now docketed for an early date. The attorneys for the companies have several times essayed to effect a compromise with the breeder, but on the advice of his lawyers Barnes has refused to consider any of their overtures, and instead will push the case for an early trial. The accident which led to legal entanglement occurred when the horses had almost reached their destination at Sheepshead Bay.

In the next few months work on the Kentucky association track, in the way of improvements, will be pushed rapidly by Manager W. C. Scott, and when the horsemen now scattered over the country with their strings return here next fall to winter they will hardly know the historic old grounds. Capt. S. S. Brown, owner of the track, figures on spending $50,000 on the property in the next ten months.

THE GREAT WINNING

By Irish Lad Places His Dam In Front Rank.

Is Now Second In Leading Honors As a Producer.

Lexington, Ky., May 21.—The brilliant victory of Irish Lad in the rich Metropolitan handicap has put his dam, Arrowgrass, second on the list of living mares in America, rated by money won by their produce, according to statistics compiled by an authority here. H. B. Duryea's champion by this win also presses Africander close for the honors of the biggest money-winning horse now on the turf, he having to his credit $83,435 won, to $86,565 to the credit of the son of imp. Star Ruby. As he has already shown sensational winning form and Africander is as yet to make a public appearance this season, the chances seem most favorable for Duryea's great colt to be the first horse in 1904 to reach the $100,000 line and join that select circle of America's phenomenal money winners to which there has not been a recruit for several years.

Of living brood mares, Ella T., owned by J. B. and P. P. Keene, Castleton stud, is the queen of producers in money won by her sons and daughters, they, combined, having won $171,678 in stakes and purses. Arrowgrass, the dam of Irish Lad, has to her credit now $144,844 won by her produce and third on the list is Bonnie Blue Girl, and her two sons, Blues and Blue Ribbon. To Castleton stud also belongs the honor of having as a companion to Ella T. another brood mare with $100,000 record in Belle of Maywood, dam of Tenny, her produce having won $125,110 on the turf. The tables following give in detail the stud records of these wonderful brood mares and is one of the most interesting compilations of recent date:

ELLA T.'S RECORD.

Great as is the showing these living stars of the thoroughbred breeding world are making in the stud, they have yet a long way to go to equal the records made by that trio of dead stud matrons, Mannie Grey, Marian and Thora, the produce of which won respectively $279,890, $274,420 and $267,696. Still, could Arrowgrass yet throw another Irish Lad she might finally shine as the star producer of all time in America. It is not likely any American mare will ever equal the record made by the famous English stud matron, Perdita II. of King Edward's royal breeding plant, her produce having won the enormous sum of $378,000. Morganette equaled the record of Perdita II. in producing tow English Derby winners, but the sum total of the winnings of her produce falls far short of the mark to the credit of King Edward's wonderful brood mare.

WALKER

Walker, May 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Officers found a large number of stolen goods in a lot of tile in the Northern Pacific yards. They have been taken from cars along the line. The robbers have not been arrested.

It is learned from authoritative sources that the state forestry board will in a few days plant in the nursery in the Pillsbury forest reserve in Cass county, a few miles south of Walker, approximately 5,000,000 pine and spruce seeds, and if the season is favorable at least 3,000,000 seedling trees will result. The seeds will be planted in rows five inches apart. Five seeds will be planted to every lineal inch, and it is estimated that at least three out of the five seeds will germinate. For several weeks after the plants come out of the ground they will be screened from the excessive heat of the sun by screens of lath and brush. After they are two years old they will be taken up and planted in the reserve at the rate of 2000 seedlings to every acre. There are 1000 acres in the Pillsbury reserve, so the 3,000,000 seedlings will be more than enough to cover the reserve.

Mrs. James Canfield, who has been spending some months with her parents in Brainerd, arrived home Tuesday, accompanied by Mr. Canfield's mother from Stillwater. The young heir to the Canfield estates is getting along finely.

Mrs. A. L. Cole has returned to Walker from Motley.

Your health is your greatest blessing. Guard it as your life. Find out the truth about yourself, whether you are sick or well. Learn how to get well and keep well—and how to get well should you become ill. Poor health is the result of your failure to obey nature's laws. How can you obey these laws unless you know what they are? Do you suffer from headaches? Is your appetite poor? Do you lay awake at night? Are you nervous and irritable? Then you are on the down-road to poor health. Get on the up-road. Dr. McLean's book tells you how to regain lost health or to retain the health you have.

Dr J. H. McLean has prepared many remedies to help those who suffer. One of them is

McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm

This remedy reaches the organs that are most susceptible to disease; the organs that must be kept in good working condition to secure good health for you. McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm puts these organs in good order and keeps them so; makes them throw off disease germs; relieves untold suffering; brings health and strength to those who use it. At all druggists. $1.00 the bottle.

WHY MOTHERS WORRY

Did you ever hear a mother worry over a plump child? There is no better bank of health for a child to draw from than a good supply of healthy flesh.

Scott's Emulsion not only gives a child weight and plumpness, but it feeds the brain, bones and nerves with strength and active power.

Fewer mothers would worry if they knew more about Scott's Emulsion.

We'll send you a sample free upon request.

KNOCKING PLAYERS

On the Diamond Often Puts Them In the Air.

Cy Young Has Best Pitching Performance on Record.

Tim Murnane says in a Boston letter: A winning club is always called lucky. Baseball, however, unlike games of chance, is subject to fluctuations, caused by the will power, head work and aggressiveness of the team that luck breaks even with in the long run, if the same standard of nerve is displayed, and every game played through from start to finish.

How often one pitched ball out of several hundred will turn the tide of a ball game, showing how interested the players should be at all times. Many good ball players are of little use if the spectators get after them, especially on their home grounds. The sensitive player will have his ears open for the comment from the bleachers, and when not playing his best game he will feel keenly every remark, often taking notice of comments not intended for him. Take a player at third base or first base; being near the crowd, they hear voices at their backs, and often make bad errors as the result of having their mind off the game when some play comes up, thus giving the fans new material to work with.

I can well understand how a crowd sent to the New York American grounds could rattle two or three sensitive souls on Griffith's team. It's hard to believe that Messrs. McGraw and Brush would stoop so low, but they tell me that about 10 men are paid to go to the American grounds daily and abuse the Highland players in the hope of breaking up the team. The two men said to be affected by the "Hessian" are John Anderson and John Ganzel, both sensitive, fine-living fellows, and good, clean ball players, who do not care to be made marks of.

Clark Griffith says he wants fighting ball players who care not for the comments of the cheap fans, but will play all the harder to show their gameness. And Griffith has several players of this stamp, among them being Billy Keeler, Dave Fulz, Elberfield, Conroy, and Griffith himself, with several others. We had them with us a few days ago and they looked good, Keeler and Fulz especially so.

The New York boys drew well here and were prime favorites. They play fast, up-to-date ball and will be in the game for the finish this fall. The club will not play Sunday ball at Ridgewood this season, so Griffith informed me, but a team made up of crack players under Griffith's command and known as the Griffith team will play at Ridgewood on Sundays when the manager is in New York.

Griffith thinks the graft is too good to turn down when there are so many good ball players laying around. "This will not be up to the National League mission," says Griffith, "but one cannot tell what the members of the commission may not attempt to tackle, as they are ambitious. All are rattling good fellows, however, and usually mean to do the right thing for the old game."

Cy Young's performance was the talk of the baseball world last week. It was clean cut, and it rel hard chance ball game, and every ball sent, if not over was very close to the corner of the plate. It was a case of wonderful command, and a knowledge of every man's weakness. On that day Young had a fine drop and as good curves as I ever saw him use. The Philadelphia boys can hit some, but were tied up from the start to finish by the masterly pitching of the old war horse.

Richmond with Worcester, and Ward with Providence, back in the eighties, turned practically the same trick, but the distance was shorter and the box man allowed to do all sorts of gymnastics. I remember Johnnie Ward standing with his face to second then go through several motions, and after stepping about the position curve the ball up from 45 feet away, and less, for all the pitchers stepped over the front line, some of the tall ones going two or three feet, until the game was almost a farce from the pitcher's box. Records should not be allowed until after the pitcher was forced to stick to the rubber. All things considered Cy Young should be given credit for the best pitching performance on record.

Leagues enjoy making rules for the guidance of the officers and howl like madmen when the same rules are enforced later in the season. If a player was fined $50 every time the umpire put him out of the game there would be less unpleasant work for the officials. Players care little about a three days' lay-off, so that a fine should go with the punishment. Then again it should be three times out, then out of the business for the remainder of the season.

I can see the players are growing a bit independent and are after the umpires, the two New York clubs in particular. One thing is certain, good or bad umpires are all worse when the players are allowed the least reedom. It's a case of choke off from every player fro mthe start and teach them to overlook the official altogether.

Barney Dreyfuss is being touted as a game loser. I believe he is all of that, but no man loves a winner more than Barney. When President Taylor read the story that the Pittsburg man would give all kinds of money for Cy Young he smiled and said: "Why, $100,000 wouldn't get Mr. Young." This talk about buying great players from leading clubs is simply a case of trying to look good with a lot of knockers. Mr. Dreyfuss will pay good money and has even spent his coin freely to get talent, so that it is not necessary to tell what he woud give for players he couldn't get for any price.

Mr. Hermann is now in favor of farming. I thought the National league was in favor of this play, but were stopped by the minor leagues. How can Mr. Hermann farm out his players when the minor leagues rule against taking the man? It would be well for the national commission to feel out the minors on the subject before telling what they might do. This is one of the clubs the minor leagues have to use on the major leagues, and a very effective one it is. The Boston League club has learned that the small fry can regulate their own affairs.

Tom Daly, managing the Providence club, is evidently not well informed on the rules of the minor leagues, of which he is a member. So when there was talk of Boston tin-canning J. B. Stanley, the outfielder, Daly opened negotiations for the player and the player's release to the Providence club promulgated by President Harry Pulliam.

Two years ago this player signed a contract to play with New Orleans, as he gave good satisfaction in that city. Later Boston came along, and with the help of dear Uncle Nick Young, a friend of Stanley's managed to induce the player to jump his contract and sign with Boston.

Stanley was all right until he was turned down by the league, throwing him back to the mercy of the New Orleans club, for all players must return to the club holding a claim on their services, and Stanley must await the pleasure of New Orleans, showing the strength of the minors, for the players that go to the big leagues usually return to the minors before quitting the business.

It strikes me that the big college teams are not keeping up with the times in baseball. Years ago both Harvard and Yale had teams superior in every way to the teams that represent those colleges at the present time. Catchers and batsmen are scarce, and there is too much uncertainty about the make-up of the teams to bring out confidence and the best results. If the college players were allowed a little more freedom and taught to play ball hard, each man in his own way, the results would be better. Theory never wins in baseball. Every man must be allowed to do his own thinking. One trouble with the college teams is that many of the best players are weaned away from the larger universities, leaving only the second-class amateurs to be developed. There is no reason why Harvard and Yale shouldn't have teams able to cope with the major leagues.

How Dan Got To Saint Louis.

BY DAVID LANCASTER.

"Sorry, boy, but I can't send you to St. Louis; it's been a bad year for me and I have a lot of expenses to meet. You're young yet and you can go to the next World's Fair."

Mr. Thayer got up and put his big hand kindly on Dan's shoulder.

"All right, dad," replied Dan; but he looked hard out of the window and did not turn around. Until recently he had had everything that heart could wish, and doing without things came hard to him. He and his chum, Bob Stinson, had planned to go to St. Louis together and had talked about it all year. All the boys knew they were going, and now he should have to tell them that he could not go. He knew his father would send him if he could, but Bob and the other fellows would just think he was stingy.

"I hate like thunder to tell them," he muttered to himself as he started for school.

Before he had gone half way "Dizzy" Holcombe overtook him. Dan liked "Dizzy" less than any other boy in school. "Hello! Dan," said "Dizzy."

"Hello!" replied Dan.

"Well, I suppose you and Bob Stinson will be taking a palace car direct for St. Louis the day after school closes," said "Dizzy," with a covert sneer.

"I'm not going," said Dan, shortly.

"You're not going, after all the big talk you've had about it? Well, that is a joke!" and "Dizzy laughed loudly.

"Say! boys," he called out, running after a group of young fellows, "what do you think? After all his blowing, Dan Thayer isn't going to St. Louis!"

"Is that so? What's up, Dan?" asked the boys as Dan came up.

"Yes, it's so. I can't go—that is. I've just given it up, and that's all there is to it."

"Been a naughty boy, I guess, and his papa's punished him," said "Dizzy," and the other boys laughed.

"Now, look here, Dan Thayer, you've got to tell me why you're going back on me at the eleventh hour like this," said Bob Stinson at recess.

"Father can't afford it."

"Fudge!"

"Don't Bob," groaned Dan. "I feel cut up about it enough as it is. Don't make me feel worse. Father would send me if he could—I know he would."

Bob sniffed incredulously.

"Isn't there some way it can be managed?" he asked, after a moment's silence.

"I don't believe so. I know father's been worried about business, and I won't worry him any more."

"Wish I'd known it sooner, so I could have made other plans. My uncle would have taken me and paid all my expenses, but I thought it would be more fun for us two fellows to go together."

"I'm awful sorry, Bob. I didn't know it until this morning myself. I think Dad hated to tell me and put it off, beautiful the world was! The fields were richly bejeweled with dewdrops. The fruit blossoms were almost gone and in their places delicate foliage was clothing the trees. Dan began to feel quite reconciled and happy. As he came near the racetrack he turned in. Horses were being exercised and he loved to watch them.

"By jove! I'd give five dollars to have that mare ridden as she should be!" exclaimed an angry voice. "She's the best little animal in the country, and she's being beaten by a third-rate nag just because there's no one with sense enough to ride her."

Old Mr. Holcombe, who cared more for horses than for anything on earth, was raging and fuming.

"If I were 10 years younger and 50 pounds lighter I'd ride her myself," he went on, "and I'd show you a thing or two then."

"Mr. Holcombe, did you say you would give $5 to anyone who would ride Lady properly around the track?" Dan asked, riding up.

"I did, and I'll stick by it. I had a decent enough fellow, and what did he do but go and break his leg just now, when I need him the worst. And this blockhead," pointing his whip at a sullen-looking youth, "rides like a carpenter. He let Captain Hearn's Gold Legs walk right away from him, and Lady's worth 10 Gold Legs."

"I'll ride Lady, and if you're satisfied you can give me $5; if you're not, you need not give me a cent."

"You? Do you think you can ride my Lady?" Mr. Holcombe glared in astonishment.

"I do," replied Dan, with a smile.

"I know you ride pretty well for a boy," admitted Mr. Holcombe. "Well, you may try it, but if you hurt her it will be a sorry day for you, young man."

Dan smiled again. Dismounting from Gyp, he went up to Lady, patted her and talked to her as one friend to another. Lady looked him in the eye and rubbed against his sleeve in token of confidence.

"You'll do your best for me, Lady, won't you?" Dan asked her, and she promised. Then he threw off his coat and leaped on her back. He adjusted the stirrups, walked Lady slowly up and down a few times, encircled the track once, and then trotted up to Mr. Holcombe, saying, "We're ready."

"All right," said Lady's owner. "Remember, she's easy in the mouth, and treat her as if she had sense."

Three other horses started with Lady. Two of them were so distinctly inferior that Dan paid no attention to them. He did look at Gold Legs, though. "A showy performer, but Lady's his superior," was his conclusion.

The two leaders kept nearly together for a time. Then Gold Legs went ahead. He was a length ahead at the end of the first round, and Dan heard Mr. Holcombe saying things as he passed, but he was not worried. Lady began to gain on Gold Legs to lose. At any rate, the little mare came easily to the front and kept there until the end. She did it with the greatest ease, while Gold Legs was badly used up by his vain effort to get back to his lead.

Mr. Holcombe was delighted. He petted Lady and Dan indiscriminately. "Fine work, my boy. You handled her just right. You've won your money, and here it is."

"Thank you. I enjoyed the ride very much, and I am glad to get the money."

"Say, Dan," Mr. Holcombe called after him, "do you want to make some more money?"

"Yes, I do."

"Well, if you will come out every morning and ride for me, I'll give you $10 a week. Think it over if you want to."

"I will, and I'll let you know this evening," Dan replied.

That day Dan spent a lot of thought on a very simple mathematical problem: If a boy worked four weeks at $10 a week, how much would he have at the end of that time? The answer to that was $40. To that Dan added the $5 he had made that morning and a ten-dollar gold piece given him on his birthday, which he had not spent. Result $55. With that he could go to St. Louis.

After supper he went over to the Holcombes. "Dizzy" was at the front gate.

"You think you are mighty smart, don't you?" he asked.

"Moderately," replied Dan. "Is your father at home?"

"What do you want? Going to try to get some more money out of him for trick riding, eh? He's been bragging about your stunt all day. Any clodhopper can ride."

"Why don't you do it then?" With this Dan walked into the house, where he found Mr. Holcombe.

"Well, I hope you've come to strike a bargain with me, Dan. I certainly do want a boy like you powerful bad," said Mr. Holcombe, getting up and shaking hands with him.

"I'd like to do it, but I'll tell you just how it is, Mr. Holcombe," replied Dan. "I only want the job for four weeks. I want to make enough money to go to St. Louis. My father can't afford to send me and I want to go."

"So you'd desert me at the end of four weeks, would you? Well, what I want is someone right now. I guess I can look around and find someone in that time. So you can begin tomorrow morning. And say, Dan, if you do well with the little mare and a youngster I'm just putting on the track I'll give you a bonus."

"I'll do my best, sir," replied Dan, and ran home with a light heart.

His father heard him whistling joyously and heaved a sigh of relief. "He doesn't take his disappointment to heart as much as I feared he would," he said to himself.

"Dizzy" Holcombe was not long in letting it be known that Dan Thayer was working for his father. "He's our hired man now," was one of 'Dizzy's' favorite witticisms.

"What does the beast mean?" Bob Stimson asked Dan.

"Oh, he's telling the truth this time," answered Dan. "I get up early every morning and exercise Mr. Holcombe's horses. It's very good fun, but I don't do it for that."

"What are you doing it for?"

"Money. And, Bob, if you aren't ashamed to be seen with the Holcombe's hired man, I guess I can get to St. Louis all right after all."

"That's why you're doing it?"

David nodded.

"Dan, you are a brick, and I'll be proud to go to the Exposition or anywhere else with you."

The news of what Dan was doing came to his father's ears. "I don't mind your working for Mr. Holcombe, Dan, but I am a little afraid of the risk."

"You needn't be; the horses and I understand each other."

"If you work your way through this you will appreciate the Fair far more than if I could have sent you, and it will make other hard things seem easier to you."

Dan was on his last week when something happened. He was riding the colt, which was a foolish but nowise vicious bit of horseflesh. Suddenly a double sheet of newspaper fluttered right out in front of the colt. He snorted and jumped to one side, jamming Dan's leg against the fence. The colt was harder in the mouth than Lady, and Dan had a hard time getting him under control. Then he began to feel a terrible pain in his leg, and by the time he got back to the stables he was so sick that he tumbled off his horse. He got on to Gyp more dead than alive, and Gyp took him home without any guidance. For a time he was too ill to do anything except to lie on the stable floor. Then he began to think that if he gave up he would lose his last week's pay and could not go to St. Louis after all. So he got up, washed his leg and tied it up in bandages soaked with witch hazel. He could not tell how he got to school that day, but he was so white that his teacher asked him if he did not want to go home.

"No," said Dan; "I'll stay, only I hurt my leg and can't move about much."

His first attempt to move the next morning caused him such acute pain that Dan feared he would have to give up the work for Mr. Holcombe that day, but little by little he got so he could hobble downstairs and get on dear old Gyp. He did not want Mr. Holcombe to see that he was hurt, and he managed to get on Lady before Mr. Holcombe noticed him; but he rode in agony.

"Hey, Dan!" cried Mr. Holcombe when he had been around the track once. "Here's a fellow who is a candidate for your job. Let him show how much better he can ride than you. Why, lad, what's the matter?"

As he dismounted Dan dropped to the ground with a groan.

"Hurt your leg a little. Let's see. Well, I should say you had. You haven't any business to be riding with such a leg."

Mr. Holcombe drove Dan to the doctor's, had his leg attended to and took him home.

"The bill is mine," he said, "and here's your last week's pay."

"But this is $15, and I haven't even finished the week out."

"You've earned the money, and I said I'd give you a bonus. But I'd like to know where that paper came from that scared the colt."

Dan did not say, but he had seen someone that looked very much like "Dizzy" Holcombe sneaking away just as the mishap occurred, and he had a strong suspicion that Dizzy could have told his father about the paper if he had wished.

Dan devoted the next week to getting well and taking his examinations, and the week following he and Bob Stimson went to St. Louis.

"Did he sell his?" asked Betty, breaking the silence.

"I don't know; we'll ask him the next time he comes," replied Polly.

"I haven't any goods," protested Rosemary.

"I know what goods is," said Betty. "It's gingham. I heard mother tell the seamstress when she did not have enough gingham to finish our dresses, 'I must get some more goods.' So it's gingham."

Polly shook her head. "It isn't that kind of goods. It's houses and lands. I 'spect father will sell this house and 'over the border' and everything, 'cause I saw the minister looking right at him when he preached."

"Oh, dear!" groaned Rosemary. "Where'll we live?"

"The rabbits have holes and the birds of the air have nests, but the son of God has not where to lay his head," quoted Polly oracularly. "I learned that in Sunday school and the minister said it."

Betty and Rosemary regarded her with awe. Then they sighed and shook their heads.

"We haven't any houses and lands, so we can't sell 'em and give to the poor," said Betty.

"We have the big doll's house," suggested Polly.

"Oh, yes; and the Noah's ark."

"Besides houses and lands," went on Polly, "it means anything you set your heart on and love better'n anything else."

"I think I love my new white dress and blue sash best," said Rosemary.

"Well, you'll have to sell that," was Polly's stern decree, "and I'll give up my brand-new paint box."

"I've set my heart on my tricycle," admitted Betty, "so I s'pose that'll have to go."

When the little Leas once made up their minds to do a thing, they carried it through, no matter at what cost to themselves or anyone else. They were therefore very busy for the next few days going over their possessions and deciding which were "goods" that ought to be converted into money and turned over to the poor.

"Who will buy them?" asked Betty, practically.

"Mr. Webster, who keeps the grocery," replied Polly, confidently.

"I thought he just had sugar and coffee and things like that."

"And candy," added Rosemary.

"He'll buy anything anyone has to sell," asserted Polly, recklessly.

"Where are the poor we're to give the money to?" asked Betty suddenly.

"They're at our gates."

"No, they ain't," retorted Rosemary, running to the nursery window and looking out. "There ain't anybody there but the marketman."

"And all about us," Polly went on, calmly.

"I don't see them," Rosemary insisted.

"Nor I," said Betty.

"It means," explained Polly, patiently, "that they live near us. Captain Lowe, that lives in the 'weenty' house down the back road and walks with a cane, and says 'What je want?' so cross, is poor, too."

"And I think Miss Titley, the seamstress, is poor, 'cause I heard mother say one day, 'Poor thing! What a dreary life she leads!'"

"Mrs. Rokeby is poor, too," put in Betty.

"No, she isn't," denied Polly, "she has lovely houses and lands and carriages and diamonds and satins and velvets."

"I don't care," retorted Betty. "I heard father say, 'No wonder the poor soul is disagreeable, with no one but herself to think about,' and mother said, 'I know the poor woman is to be pitied.' That's what they said."

"Well," admitted Polly, "I s'pose we'll have to give her some of the money."

All of the goods that it had been determined to sacrifice were placed upon the express wagon, except the tricycle. Betty rode that for the last time, the light of a willing martyr on her face.

Polly also wore an expression of self-righteous exaltation as she pulled the loaded express wagon behind her. Only Rosemary looked slightly downcast. She was not made of stern stuff, and some of her dearest treasures were on that express wagon, passing out of her life forever. A tear trickled down her face and she swallowed hard. Luckily, Polly was too self-absorbed to notice this sign of weakness.

Mr. Webster was more than astonished to see the three little Leas stop at his door with the piled up assortment of nursery idols.

"Mr. Webster," said Polly, with great dignity, "we've come to sell you some goods."

"You have, have you?" said Mr. Webster, as he took off his hat and scratched his head.

"Yes; we're going to give the money to the poor," said Betty.

"Whew!" Mr. Webster whistled in the most peculiar way. "S'pose I don't want to buy them?"

Hope sprang into the eyes of Rosemary, but Polly insisted. "You must buy them, Mr. Webster. They are very nice, and we want the money."

"If you don't buy them we can sell them to someone else," suggested Betty.

"So you might," observed Mr. Webster. "Well, how much do you want for your goods?"

"We must have a good deal, because we're going to give money to all the poor we know."

"And who are they?"

"Miss Titley, Captain Lowe and Mrs. Rokeby."

"Mrs. Rokeby?" Mr. Webster roared with laughter until he got red in the face and choked.

The little Leas looked offended.

"Excuse me," he said, "it's a kind of fit I have sometimes. But Mrs. Rokeby"—he gave vent to a succession of explosive snorts which caused the Leas to set him down as an impolite, as well as a peculiar, man.

"I think we ought to give them each 50 cents," said Polly.

"That would be three 50-centses, you know," explained Betty.

"Just wait a minute," said Mr. Webster, and went back into a corner and began to talk with another man. They talked in a low voice, but they roared loudly with laughter.

"I'm blest if I don't do it," exclaimed Mr. Webster at last, and came back to where the three little Leas were standing.

"Very well, young ladies; I will give you a dollar and a half for your goods and chattels."

"No; three fifty centses, please," insisted Polly, firmly.

"Oh well, it's all the same to me," said Mr. Webster, with a grin. "Here they are," and he took three silver fifty-cent pieces from his money drawer, giving one to Polly, one to Betty and one to Rosemary.

"Thank you," they said, politely, and turned away.

"He's a dreffui rich man," commented Betty when they were out of hearing. "He had lots of money in the drawer."

"Let's go first to Captain Lowe's, 'cause that's nearest," said Polly; and thither they went.

The old man was out in his garden. He sat in his wheeled chair and dug all around it. Then he pushed it on and dug some more. It was an interesting process. He growled when the little Leas spoke to him, and his dog growled, too.

"We've sold our goods and brought you fifty cents 'cause you're poor," explained Polly, handing him the piece of money she held in her hand.

"We can't give it all to you 'cause we have to give some to other poor people," added Betty.

"Well, I swan!" ejaculated the old man. Then his jaw dropped and he looked after them with wide-open mouth as they went down the road.

Next, the three little girls tapped at Miss Titley's door. There was an iron knocker on the door, but they couldn't reach it.

"Dear me! It's the little Leas," said Miss Titley, in surprise as she looked at them through her glasses. "Mother, it's the little Leas," she called out, and an old lady hobbled forth on a cane and looked at them through her glasses.

"We brought you fifty cents 'cause you're poor," said Betty, giving up her piece of money. "We've sold our goods and are giving the money to the poor. Good-by."

The three little Leas had turned away before Miss Titley could recover from her surprise. Then she run after them and hugged and kissed them.

"Now we've only poor Mrs. Rokeby to give money to," said Polly, and a few minutes later the three little Leas were walking up a shaded drive to a beautiful mansion. "Is Mrs. Rokeby in?" Polly asked the man who answered their ring at the front door.

"Yes; will you walk in?" replied the butler, gravely, and ushered them into a great drawing-room filled with beautiful things.

Mrs. Rokeby looked at them questioningly when she came in.

"Aren't you the Lea children?" she asked.

"Yes," lisped Rosemary, "and I've you fifty cents 'cause you're poor, you know," explained Polly, handing him the piece of money she held in her hand.

"We can't give it all to you 'cause we have to give some to other poor people," added Betty.

FLOWER PUZZLE BY THE GARDEN GOSSIP

The answer to last week's Flower puzzle was "Violet Rose at 4 o'clock." This week, affairs in the garden are even more exciting. If you will supply the names of the flowers shown in the pictures, thereby making a complete sentence, you will find out what is going on there. Although it is so late in the season, the awful things that happen are enough to freeze the blood.

I WANT A DIAMOND WATCH

A little girl living in the Middle West, when asked what she wanted more than anything else in the world, wrote: Strange to say, when properly folded, this little note will show what state she lives in. Can you solve it?
